Who will be the democratic nominee in this congressional district is a question that we hear frequently asked. And it is one hard to answer as no name has yet been mentioned as far as we have been able to learn.

E. S. Manly and nine other property owners have petitioned the city fathers for a street lamp to be erected on Traver street, at the crossing of the T. A. A. & G. T. R. R., in the fifth ward. Referred to general fund committee.

As the 20th Michigan regiment is to hold their reunion on Oct. 11, our citizens should respond liberally when called upon by the various committees to aid the old members living in this city, as they wish to make their 17th annual reunion a grand success.

This city was again visited Tuesday afternoon by one of the heaviest rain storms known in years. It was accompanied with considerable hail. The gutters were too small to carry off the water which overflowed the streets. The storm passed over a large portion of the county.

At the council meeting Monday evening the majority report of the committee on the new engine house, who accepted the plans of Scott & Co., was adopted. Chief engineer Seabolt was in favor of accepting Arthur Marshall's plan. He whooped it up to the council in a lively speech. There was considerable sparring all around Mr. Marshall also had his say, and why his plan was better than some others. Joe T. Jacobs defended his position. He said he had gone according to his best judgment and what he thought was for the best interests of the city.
It looks as if the excursion to Lansing on the 10th instant, via the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Grand Trunk road, was going to take the cake over all the other excursions of the season. Everything is being done to make it as pleasant as possible for the excursionists. A sufficient number of cars will be provided so that all will have plenty of room. There will be no change of cars on this route. Tickets for the round trip only $1.25. Children 65 cents. Tickets for sale at C. Bliss & Son's jewelry store. Train leaves at 8:30 A. M.
Observer: Wheat in this section is a very heavy crop, and of course there are some "heavy" wheat stories. One man said the shocks stood so thick in his field that it was impossible to drive through with a wagon; but liar number two happened to hear it, and not being inclined to get scooped on so small a thing as a wheat yarn, said: "I had a field so heavy that there wasn't room to set up the bundles, so I hired five acres of my neighbor's adjoining field to set it up on." Liar No. 1 had no more to say.
Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine. The number for September abounds with pleasant, edifying and interesting reading, and is, as usual, profusely illustrated. The editor, Rev. Mr. Talmage, has an admirable article entitled "The Horse and his Rider," finely illustrated; and The Home Pulpit contains one of his eloquent and characteristic sermons, "What are Our Departed Friends Doing Now?" "The Disciples of Menno Simon," will be read with great interest. Marion Harland continues her highly interesting serial, "A Good Fellow"; and besides the other admirable serial "Weighed and Wanting," there are short stories, sketches, essays, etc., by popular writers; some very excellent poems, several of them beautifully illustrated; and a large, interesting and instructive miscellany.

Fairchild's office at 8 o'clock Saturday evening, in the court house basement, where the members of the regiment are requested to meet, as business of importance will come up for consideration.
Saline Observer: A terrible rain storm passed northwest of this place Wednesday evening. The river was higher than any time last spring. Klein's mill-dam was washed out in two places, causing a considerable loss. The east embankment of the bridge just below the dam, was also badly washed out. Fields of grain on the river bottoms were swept away; trees and logs came floating down the river like so many straws, causing people to think a second flood was coming. Travel was greatly impeded by bridges being swept away, and wash-outs in the roads. It must have been one of the heaviest rains ever experienced in this section, and we expect to hear of greater damage, not in the country further north-west. A farmer northwest of this place informs us the storm, did a vast amount of damage in his section. The rain poured in torrents for over three hours. The rise of water was so sudden that many sheep and cattle which were grazing on the flats, were with difficulty rescued, and in several cases drowned. Fields of oats and corn were entirely destroyed and miles of fence and numerous bridges swept away. The loss will be thousands of dollars.
A 20-year old girl named Maggie McDonald arrived in Detroit from Ann Arbor yesterday and applied at the office of the poor commissioner for assistance to get to Buffalo, N. Y., from whence she hailed. She told Secretary Dwyer that some weeks ago a sister living at Chicago sent for her to come to that city, and that in response to her summons she left Buffalo for the west. She had not been in Chicago long before her sister's treatment changed towards her and she wished to return to Buffalo. She had no money and her sister refused to supply her with the wherewithal to purchase tickets for home, and after enduring ill-treatment for some time longer determined to walk that distance. She left Chicago on foot two weeks ago last Sunday and reached Ann Arbor yesterday morning, after a long, weary and eventful tramp. The authorities at Ann Arbor heard her story and furnished her transportation to this city, from whence she will be forwarded on to Buffalo. The girl was questioned about her journey by secretary Dwyer, and told a straightforward story, which was not shaken by cross questioning. On the way, she says, she encountered numberless traps but managed to avoid them by seeking refuge in the nearest farm-house until they had passed. The girl, says the secretary, is possessed of indomitable pluck and endurance, and if her story is true deserves great credit.—[Post and Tribune.]

Advice to a Young Man.
James G. Fair is worth $42,000,000. And the whole $42,000,000 of it, my dear boy, can't make him as happy as you are with the dew of youth in your heart, when you hold the hand of the girl you love, and walk with her in a path that is only wide enough for one, with the rustling branches whispering above your head, so happy you cannot speak with anything but your eyes. If you envy him, Telemachus, if you, with your brown hands and your bright young face, with the dawn just shading your lip, with a gray hair in your head or a gnawing care in your heart, with the morning sun shining upon your upturned face, with the velvet turf under your feet and the blue heavens above your head, with the blood coursing through your veins like wine, with fifty or sixty years of life before you, with mirage after mirage of bright dreams, beautiful illusions and pleasant vanities making the landscape beautiful around you, if you envy this man his forty-two millions of dollars, and his spectacles, and his gray hair, and his wrinkles, and his old heart, you are a fool, my boy; and you are scattering ashes on the roses that grow in the morning. There is light in your step, my son, and color in your blood, and dreams in your heart, and all the love and beauty and freshness of the sunrise, the $42,000,000 can not buy, and don't you forget it. You don't want $42,000,000, anyhow, Telemachus; $2,000,000 are plenty that will keep both of us. And if you want a couple of millions, why, go ahead and get it. "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before kings; He shall not stand before mean men."—[Burlington Hawkeye.]
Peter Polnacker who was sentenced to Ionia for 90 days for assaulting R. L. Godfrey returned to the city and went directly to Godfrey's house in the town of Pittsfield. For the second time he threatened to make it hot for him. Polnacker was taken before Justice Winegar who thought first of sending him back to Ionia, but the fellow begged so hard, and as he promised to leave the county forthwith, sentence was suspended.

A MYSTERY!
The Box Contained Human Remains!
PROBABLY THE WORK OF AN ABORTIONIST!
Who Could It Be!
A few days ago while a young son of Mr. Otley, junior of the university, was working in the garden in the rear of his father's house on Cemetery street, in the 6th ward, his shovel struck something which gave a peculiar sound; his curiosity was aroused. Digging down about one foot and a half he discovered a wooden box about five feet and a half long and sixteen inches wide. The boy was as much excited as if he had "struck oil," or found the buried treasure of captain Kidd. The news rapidly spread among the boys of the neighborhood and, just at dark quite a number assembled to open the box; they procured a pick and iron bar and raised the cover, and to their amazement instead of finding a chest of buried treasure they discovered a skeleton of a woman in a good state of preservation. The body must have been buried several years ago. The box was badly decayed and contained no remains of clothing. Under the skull of the skeleton was a copy in a fair state of preservation of "the code of medical ethics," while at the feet of the skeleton were several well worn copies of a lecture delivered some years ago by Dr. Palmer, extinguishing homeopathy. All the indications went to show that this woman had been the patient of some Regular physician, and not having sufficient constitution to withstand his practice had died. That this Regular physician, with the code of medical ethics in one hand and the scalpel in the other, had dissected her body for the benefit of science, and had then kindly and tenderly laid her bones away in this romantic and secluded spot to await the pleasure or the convenience of Gabriel.

A NEW PRINCIPLE.—The principle upon which Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor acts is entirely new. It does not sink deep into the flesh, thereby producing soreness, but acts directly upon the external covering of the corn, separates it from the under layer, removes the direct pressure from the part, and at once effects a radical cure, without any pain or discomfort. Let those who are suffering from corns, try akeptical of treatment, try it, and by the completeness of the cure, they will be ready to recommend Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor to others. The Bad and Worthless
Are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved to be the world's best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notices in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B., with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

CONGRESS.

August 1.—In the Senate Senator Morrill reported adversely the 2 per cent. bond resolution. A clause additional to the sundry civil bill regarding prohibition of the sale of liquor at the soldiers' home at Togus, Maine, was ruled out of order; changes were made in the bill, and the senate agreed to finish it on Tuesday under the five-minute rule. A new conference committee was appointed on the naval bill.

The report of the House committee on foreign affairs upon the Chiff-Pere investigation is a voluminous document. In the main it exonerates all United States officials from any corrupt designs, but advises caution in all matters of the kind. Mr. Belmont appends a statement regarding the Landrean claims. A long discussion ensued on a resolution to adjourn August 4 which was referred to the committee on appropriations; the bill for printing census reports passed, and the printing reports of the Atlantic coast were defeated.

Aug. 2.—In both houses the projects were chiefly in regard to the vetoed river and harbor bill. As soon as the House met the members of the Commerce Committee, having previously determined to ask the House to pass the bill over the President's veto, came upon the floor and during the reading of the journal were busy arranging their plans of action. At the conclusion of the reading of the journal Mr. Page was recognized by the Speaker. He moved the passing of the bill, the objections of the President notwithstanding, and he called the attention of the House to the fact that the motion was carried by the necessary vote.

Among other remarkable things in the Senate the most noteworthy was the appearance on the floor of Secretary Teller, who when the message and bill were received from the House, the Senators and friends of the measure were very impatient. They had counted the votes and they were content with simply taking a vote, resulting 41 to 16. So the President's veto was set aside and the bill is law.

August 4.—In the senate bills were passed for deduction from the gross tonnage of United States vessels, and for the regulation of steam vessels; a new conference was ordered on the Japanese tariff; a political debate followed upon the question of order of business, which question was finally settled by a compromise on the tax reduction bill; then followed another debate on the relative positions of the parties on the tax reduction question, and the senate adjourned after providing for the temporary expenses of the government.

In the house various reports of committees were passed. One of the most important bills passed was that establishing diplomatic relations with Persia; a resolution was offered and referred regarding a President's power to disapprove of certain items in an appropriation bill, and to approve others; the joint resolution passed for the temporary expenses of the government till August 5.

August 4.—Debate on the tax bill was resumed, Mr. Beck delivering extended remarks. Mr. Hale presented the conference report upon the naval appropriation bill, and explained that agreements had been reached upon all the items in dispute except that in reference to the temporary closing of the navy yards and the transfer of perishable property and stores therefrom, and one authorizing a vote to be made upon additional lands and water front for the Norfolk navy yard. The tax bill discussion was resumed after Mr. Hale's report was received, but no definite action was taken.

The bill passed by a vote of 41 to 25. An executive session of six hours took place, doors being thrown open at 11 o'clock. Mr. Cameron, of Wisconsin, made a proposition to adjourn sine die at 11 o'clock. Mr. Cockerell then moved to adjourn till 11 o'clock next day, and the motion was carried.

In the house a resolution was adopted providing for a committee of nine to examine not exceeding $5,000 to examine into the methods thus far pursued in the improvement of the Mississippi river, and to see how recent appropriations are expended, the committee to hold meetings when they please. Mr. Robeson offered the revenue bill as now stands in the senate, omitting the polariscope for sugar, and moved to suspend the rules and place it on its passage.

FOREIGN.

At Alexandria, the fears in regard to the failure of the water supply has subsided. The state of the town is causing serious disquietude. The natives who remain are incendiaries, and a majority of those who returned are in possession of the bitter hostile attitude of this class and of the native police.

AGES OF ANIMALS.—Camels live from forty to fifty years; horses average from twenty-five to thirty; oxen about twenty; sheep eight to nine; and dogs twelve to fourteen. Concerning the ages attained by non-domesticated animals, only a few isolated facts are known. The East Indians believe that the life period of elephants is about 300 years, instances being recorded of these animals having lived 130 years; in confinement after capture at an unknown age. "Wall" seals are estimated to reach the age of 40 years. Some reptiles are very long lived, an instance being furnished by a tortoise which was confined in 1638 and existed until 1752, when it perished by an accident. Birds sometimes reach a great age, the eagle and the swan having been known to reach 100. The longevity of fishes is often remarkable. Carps have been known to reach 200, common river trout fifty years, and the pike ninety years; while Gesner, a Swiss naturalist, relates that a pike caught in 1497 bore a ring recording the capture of the fish every six 267 years before.

"You see fish by der veek for dose rooms" he said to the Seabright hotel keeper. "We get $10 a day for one person and $25 for two," said the boniface. "Well," exclaimed the applicant; "I'll eat a drink der seaside agrees mit my families, and I go by der mountains, anyhow."

Bound to Have It So.

As you go to Boston and Hartford by way of the Boston & Albany Railroad you take the morning express there are two parlor cars there attached, with all the appointments thereunto pertaining, including a porter with a whisk-broom in one hand and a place for a quarter in the other. Now, these two parlor cars are twins, differing only, as is the case with twins, in their manners. The last time I went out that way, which was, say a few weeks since, one of these cars was Gov. Hawley, and the other was only our Governor.

All went well until we reached Springfield. Here the usual halt of five or ten minutes was made, the parlor car for Albany was switched off to its proper train, and we went thundering on to Hartford.

Before we were well out of the depot an old gentleman confronted me. Round-faced, well-dressed, quick-spoken, a little crusty, and a general air of authority about him.

"Young man," he said, sharply, "out of that."

"Out of which?" I asked in innocent surprise.

"Out of that chair," snapped the old party. "Come, be lively. I want to sit down."

I was puzzled and annoyed, and stammered something about this being a parlor car and—

"Yes, yes," he said, impatiently. "I know all about that. This is a parlor car and you've got my seat. Get out of it without any more words. Get a seat of your own somewhere, and don't go around appropriating other people's chairs when they have gone for lunch. Get out, young fellow."

I am naturally a bashful man, but I did make one more desperate effort to retain my seat. I said that I had occupied that seat—

"Ever since I got out of it at Springfield," started the old man. "I rode in that seat all the way from Boston, and the minute I left it you jumped into it. And now you jump out of it and no words about it or I will make the car full of trouble for you."

It began to dawn on me then just how matters stood. In fact I knew, but I was nettled. Everybody in the car was laughing at me, and I do hate to be laughed at. I determined to wait for my revenge. He snorted fiercely and I abdicated in favor of the testy old jumper of claims who thus summarily evicted me, and took my goods and chatties to a seat in the rear end of the car.

Presently along came the conductor to take up the tickets. When he came to the old gentleman, the conductor snatched back the ticket he had given him.

"Wrong train, sir," he said. "Get off at next station. This train is for Hartford and New York."

The old gentleman's face was a study.

"For Ha-Ha-what?" he shouted.

"I know better. Told me at Boston this car went through to Albany."

"Lem see the parlor car ticket," said the conductor briefly. "Yes, that's all right, you are on the wrong car; this ticket for other car. Your baggage half way to Albany by this time. Get off at Hartford."

"Well, when can I get a train back to Springfield?" wailed the jumper of claims.

"At night," said the conductor, and he passed to the next car.

Then I arose. I gathered up in my weak and long-suffering arms my hat, overcoat, lap-table and newspapers and walked back to that chair and stood before the most crestfallen man the immortal gods ever pitted. I didn't say anything; didn't make a gesture. I just stood up before him, holding my goods, personal effects and railway chatties in my arms, and looked at him. He arose and vouched the claim. And as I settled down in my recovered possession I made only one remark. I said to the port old gentleman:

"I thought you would be sorry if you took my chair."

And he marched back and took a seat on the upholstered passenger, to the merry laughter of the happy passengers. And the last time I looked around—oh, crowning woe! the conductor was making him pay a quarter for his seat in the palace car.—Exchange.

Confusion in the Workshop.

Yes, said to relate, there is confusion in the editorial workshops. Tools designed to work together and in unison were, instead, grumbling and fault-finding, if not, indeed, actually set by the ears.
