HOW LAKE ITASCA WAS NAMED. - Years ago it was discovered that a certain lake which had long been considered the head of the Mississippi, had no claim to the honor. The explorers found a new and smaller lake from which the great river took its rise. A discussion arose as to what name would be appropriate for it. The story is that it was decided in this way: "Let's make a new name for it by coining a word," said an old voyager. "Some of you learned ones tell me what is the Latin for true," "Veritas" answered a scholar. "Well, now what is the Latin for head?" "Caput," "Now write the two words together by syllables." The scholar wrote on a strip of birch-bark, "Ver-it-as-ca-pu-tum." "Read it out," "The five syllables were read. "Now drop the first and last syllables and you will have a good name for the lake." And "Itasca" it was. - Youth's Companion.

According to Professor C. W. C. Fuchs's annual report on earthquakes and volcanic phenomena, there were 297 earthquakes in the year 1881, and ten volcanic eruptions, the most important being that of Mauna Loa, in Hawaii, from which very large lava streams flowed.

FRANKLIN'S MESSAGE

Congress assembled Dec 4th, and the President's message was read the afternoon. It is the first call attention to the gratifying condition of foreign affairs. All relations with other nations are most harmonious. Light differences being already settled or in a fair way to early adjustment. The arrest of citizens of the United States in Ireland has been settled by correspondence and the release of the arrested parties. The discussion on the supervision and control of an international canal across the Isthmus of Panama continues, but will probably be largely settled by the lapse of time.

The continuation of friendly relations with Russia has led the president to prefer the services of an American minister to the Russian Empire. The appointment of an American minister to the Russian Empire, so far as known, has been subject to arrest. The President's relations to the question of international conventions for various purposes, and requests that discretionary power be lodged with the executive, are also mentioned.

The president trusts, in the interest of justice, that the indemnity fund will be returned to Chile and Japan. The recent legislation restricting immigration of laborers from China has given rise to the question whether Chinese proceedings in the Hawaiian Islands may lawfully pass through our own. In constructing the act of May 9, 1882, in connection with the treaty of commerce with China, the president's intention was to limit Chinese immigration to the United States as laborers, and to prevent their becoming permanent residents.

The United States has lately attempted to add to the amicable settlement of the boundary dispute still pending between Liberia and the British province of Sierra Leone.

Diplomatic intercourse with San Domingo is recommended by enlarging the scope of the mission at that city.

A recent agreement with Mexico provides for the crossing of the frontier of the armed forces of either country in pursuit of bandits. The attention of the president is called to the prevalent lawlessness upon the border, and the necessity for legislation.

The boundary line between the United States and Mexico will be defined by a general revision of our system of jurisdiction in that country and the establishment of a court of justice.

Our claims against Venezuela remain still unpaid. That government proposes holding a centennial celebration of the birth of Gen. Bolivar, the founder of the republic, in Caracas in July next, which will be open to American participants. Provision for a suitable representation is recommended.

In the war between Chile and Peru this government sought a year ago to induce Chile to accept a treaty which would have terminated the hostilities. Nothing more could be done without the assistance of a military force which would be at odds with our policy of non-interference.

The determination of Chile to exact such rigorous conditions of peace is deplored.

bona fide negotiators, or let them live in the treasury a prey to all the extravagant expenditure which, as experience has taught us, is ever the bane of an overflowing treasury. It is better to have a moderate surplus than to have a large one, which is liable to be dissipated by the extravagance of the government.

In referring to the recommendation that the Indians be allowed to sell their lands to the government, the president says: "The Indians are a people who are not yet civilized, and it is better to have them sell their lands to the government than to have them sell them to private individuals, who would then sell them to the government at a profit."

THE LITTLE BANANA PEEL.

Like a gem of bested gold, I gleam in the summer's sun; I am but a little, but I think I can throw a man that will weigh a ton.

I stand on no challenge bold, With his heels where I stand ought to be; With a down coming crash he maketh his mesh.

And I know he is clear gone upon me, I am scorched by the man who buys me; I am modest and quiet and meek; Though my talents are few, yet the work that I do

Has made the cellar doors creak, I'm a blood-red republican here, And a Whittier favorite I be; Though the heat of the crowd, I would bring its pride down.

It is set its proud head upon me, Robert J. Burdette in Harper's Magazine for December.

The Geological Survey.

Major Powell, Director of the National Survey, reports that a great part of the past year's work has been in the preparation of statistics relative to the mining districts of the United States.

At the beginning of the year, the construction was resolved to curtail the field work so as to give more attention to the study of the large mass of undeveloped material which had accumulated. This work consisted in the identification, classification, and description of fossils; the chemical and microscopic examination of the rocks of the various districts; the preparation of geologic sections; the preparation of charts, diagrams, and other illustrations and the preparation of reports on the various subjects which had occupied the attention of the scientific men of the survey.

Experiments were made under the management of the former director, Mr. Clarence King, on various phenomena connected with rock formation. An examination, (chiefly in the laboratory), has been made of the structural geology of the Eureka mining district of Colorado, of the volcanic rocks of the Great Basin, and of Mounts Shasta, Hood and Rainier.

Another department of the work has been the study of certain lake basins in Utah and California. These lakes are now mostly extinct. Great Salt Lake being one of the few exceptions, and their history, which is now being studied, includes a study of the quaternary climate, which leads in turn to a study of the climate of the arid portion of the United States.

Another field of investigation has been the study of the geology of the interior of Arizona, but with the difference that the latter is reached by railroads, and the former only by sailing vessels and steamers, and with no regularity. Now the best fur-bearing region, the best lumber region, the best fishing grounds, and possibly one of the most important mineral countries within the jurisdiction of the United States, will not long be neglected. It is an enterprise. A few adventurers are going there in search of precious metals. There will never be another Frazer River excitement. But it is now probable that there is to be a great mineral development in Alaska. There are facts enough already at hand to warrant a conclusion. Ten years ago Arizona was thought to be well as a worthless country. There were a few people who knew better. To-day it is the most promising mineral territory in the whole country. Alaska has far greater resources than Arizona. Ten years hence this fact will be apparent enough. Fifty thousand people under a territorial administration in Alaska, would put a new impetus upon the real interests of that country.

There will be a great mineral development not only in Arizona, but in Sonora and all the upper tier of Mexican States during the next ten years. If there is anything in the famous words of the late General Sherman, "The following statement by one of the survivors of the Collingwood's crew gives a thrilling account of their experience on a raft."

"The Collingwood was loaded with cedar posts, and was bound from St. Helena to Chicago. St. Helena is near the mouth of the Columbia. The Thursday afternoon the vessel became waterlogged, and we worked the pump for all it was worth. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon the pump got choked, and things looked pretty blue, I tell you. The gale was blowing from the northwest, and about 5 o'clock the sea made the vessel roll over. There was light rain on the broadside till the topmast went out, when with a great roar she straitened up on her beam ends and kept that way for about an hour. Then all of a sudden the deck burst up, caused by the pressure of the water against the cargo, and she rolled over and went down head first. The whole crew, eight of us, were all hanging for dear life to the raft, thinking that it would be the last thing they would see of this world. After she went down the sea washed over us. The captain and the three other men who were lost were seen floating with posts under their arms. There was a piece of deck about six feet square, and three of us got onto that. Sheldon got onto another raft, the one we three were on when picked up. Four of us finally got on that raft. We suffered terribly, the air being biting cold, and a fierce gale blowing. To make matters worse the

STEWARD BECAME A RAVING MANIAC during Thursday night, and it was all two of us could do to keep the poor fellow on the raft. All through the night and during Friday the man fought us, and several times he succeeded in getting into the water, but we were too strong for him. About four o'clock Friday afternoon his strength gave out, and after a last maniacal struggle he died. We held on to the raft for awhile, but had to let it wash overboard. Finally, as we had no way of fastening it to the raft, we took some papers and things out of his pockets, and among them was a receipt for a considerable sum of money that he had deposited with a Chicago storekeeper named Jacobs. Early Friday morning all of us became almost totally blind from the terrible exposure. That, of course, tended to aggravate our sufferings. How we managed to live so long under the circumstances we do not know. But we couldn't have lasted much longer. Friday night we were so sleepy that it was with difficulty we could keep our eyes open. The raft gradually began lowering as the posts under it absorbed the water, and from dark on until the time we were found we stood in water the whole time nearly knee deep. If there had been any place to sit down we would have gone to sleep and frozen to death. We continued walking from one end of the raft to the other, and some one would occasionally go to sleep while walking and step overboard. The others would pull the unfortunate back on the raft. McFee walked off the raft three times during the night, and I succeeded after great trouble in getting him back each time. For 31 hours we didn't have a thing to eat. I managed to get a little bit of oakum out of the raft, and the three of us chewed this for 12 hours. McFee would have died in a couple of hours if we hadn't been picked up. He was beginning to act crazy, and was so numb that it was with difficulty that we kept him on his feet. If the Wisconsin hadn't come along just when she did it would have been good by with us, for we couldn't have lived much longer, and we realized also, that the raft was gradually becoming water logged and sinking." The names of the three seamen drowned with Capt. Willies are not learned. They hailed from Chicago. Of the survivors Sheldon resides in Chicago, where he has a wife and family. Johnson resides at Wallaceburg, Ont., and McFee on Amherst Island, Ont.

Capt. Willies hailed from Kingston. He was about 45 years of age, and is stated to have been a good man, and an old and thorough navigator. He was in the Collingwood when built in 1855, but had been several times rebuilt. Her measurement was 258 tons. She was owned by Capt. William Keith. The vessel was worth about $4,000 and the cargo about $2,000.

The Next Ten Years on the Pacific Coast.

The world moves; and the events which make history never transpire more rapidly than now. The greatest development in the United States and adjacent countries, will be on the Pacific Coast during the next decade. Some of the more prominent movements are already foreshadowed. Alaska will have a territorial government in spite of all the opposition made by the few persons who have most to gain by the present condition of things. There will be a large emigration to that Territory, because the natural resources are far greater than the outside public suppose.

Just now Alaska is a far-away country. It is hardly more remote than the interior of Arizona, but with the difference that the latter is reached by railroads, and the former only by sailing vessels and steamers, and with no regularity. Now the best fur-bearing region, the best lumber region, the best fishing grounds, and possibly one of the most important mineral countries within the jurisdiction of the United States, will not long be neglected. Entered as Second Class matter at the Post Office at Ann Arbor, Mich.

For President in 1884, GEN. WINFIELD SCOTT HANCOCK.

One hundred and ninety-five thousand majority in New York is not bad for the party the republicans have looked upon as dead for so many years. It is a lively corpse, and no mistake.

The last copy of the Ypsilanti that reached this office was dated Nov. 1, 1881—a little over a year old, and a half sheet at that. What is the matter, Bro. Woodruff? Do you send your mail by the "star route," or have you suspended?

The cheapest feeling man in the county, over the result of the late election, is undoubtedly ex-State Senator Rose, of Sharon. He was so bitterly opposed to "fusion" that, at the last session of the Legislature, he bolted the nominee of the legislative caucus for United States senator, Col. P. Sanford, because the colonel advocated "fusion," and voted for some other fellow. And at the recent election in his town he was active in his opposition to Begole, and especially active in opposing his neighbor and brother democrat, J. J. Robison, nominee for county clerk. Mr. Begole went out of Sharon with a majority of 53, and Robison with 89, the largest majority ever given a democrat. It is said Rose has not smiled since election. One of the boys in the office says he has seen Rose, if I was ex-Senator D. G. Rose, D. G. Rose, I'd tell you what I would do, I would go crawling into a wood-chuck's hole, a wood-chuck's hole, a wood-chuck's hole, and I'd pull the hole in, too.

Dissecting the Doctors. Adrian Weekly Press. Once more the University of Michigan, through the Michigan medical department, is in an unseemly broil. Prof. Frothingham, at a clinic, used language to such a student, named Morgan, took exception, as reflecting on religion. He charged that Frothingham said, in substance, that "Ministers are liars, and I am not certain but they are the fathers of liars." The faculty hauled Morgan over the coals, heard Frothingham's defense and claims, and promptly dismissed the case against the student; whereupon the doughty doctor humps his spine and tenders his resignation. This is not the first time the Conkling of the university has balked; but for the d. cency and the fame of the university it ought to be the last. "Me-too" McLean dances to the front and says if Conk. Frothingham goes he goes also. Let these men go, and give them to understand, first and last, that their insolence will not be tolerated. They are men of great medical skill and knowledge. They are a credit to the profession, but they spoil it all by having the "big head." Their arrogance, their self-importance, and domineering, swaggering course, disgusts and offends everybody. They keep the university in a continual broil; and so determined were they to be in steady quarreling they started a paper, specially for them to air their notions and make their onslaughts against any one who merited their displeasure. They have forfeited all claims to respect or esteem, and should be incontinently and summarily kicked out of the institution they have done so much to harm. The people to-day would be justified in asking that the medical and law departments of the university be abolished, and the university be a college proper. We hope the faculty will have back-bone enough to stand by Mr. Morgan and their judgment. If Frothingham wants to get out let him do so. If he can't keep a civil tongue in his head kick him out, and let him go elsewhere, where he can find a people willing to submit to his dictation. We would rather die from a slight attack of the itch than have to endure the important swagger and domineering methods of these most learned and skillful physicians. The State has been humiliated enough by these men. They played the same game when Joy was kicked out, and Joy was worth both of them. They are greatly over-estimated men, and some people think that all the wisdom in medicine and surgery is lodged in their craniums. It is a mistake—they don't know more than ninety-nine hundredths of it. There never was a man yet but had his equal. If Conkling and Platt do not want to stay let them give way to a couple of men who will make up in many, gentlemanly conduct, what they lack in medical skill and knowledge.

Pomological.

The annual meeting of the Washtenaw Pomological society, held at the court house, December 2, was well attended. President Scott presided. The report of the treasurer showed twenty-nine new members and twenty-four members of the State society. The following officers were elected: Austin Scott, President. J. W. Baldwin, S. W. Dorr and P. L. Page, Vice Presidents. Jacob Granzhorn, Recording Secretary. Emil Baur, Corresponding Secretary. E. H. Scott, Treasurer. Executive Committee—Messrs. William McCreary, O. R. L. Crozier, C. H. Woodruff. Botanist—Prof. Volney M. Spalding. Ornithologist—Prof. Joseph B. Steere. Climatologist—Prof. Alex. Winchell. Hygienist—Prof. Albert B. Prescott. Entomologist—D. J. Higley. The following members were chosen as delegates to the annual meeting of the State horticultural society, at Flint: J. D. Baldwin, E. Baur, W. S. Dorr, J. J. Parrshall, E. H. Scott, B. Day, O. R. L. Crozier, Jacob Granzhorn. During a recess of ten minutes the society examined the exhibit of white grapes. Mr. E. H. Scott had the Niagara grape, left him from the Niagara grape company at the State fair. The bunch was compact, the berries large and fine. E. Baur presented a plate of the Martha grape, raised by himself; also twigs of different peach trees, which showed ripeness and a very promising development. Mr. Crozier asked advice in regard to the purchase of peach trees. Messrs. Baldwin and Scott advised him not to buy from districts infected with the "yellows." This contagious disease had spread over Van Buren county so that the South Haven Pomological society had passed a resolution not to plant any more peach trees. Mr. Baldwin expressed his opinion that, although the "yellows" had made their appearance both in Pennsylvania and New York, sound trees could be obtained from Rochester and West Chester county, Penn. E. Baur thought that the safest way to keep this dreadful disease away from this place was to purchase right here at Ann Arbor, or raise our own trees by budding seedlings. Messrs. Baldwin and Granzhorn, from their experience in budding, thought the buds were more frequently winter killed than at other places, with which opinion E. Baur and Prof. Benjamin Nichols took exception, provided that budding was done at the right time, and the buds loosened as soon as the connection took place.

JACKSON FIRE CLAY CO. Manufacturers of Stone Sewer Pipe AND DRAIN TILE. All our DRAIN TILE are made of Fire Clay, are of unusual strength and light weight, which materially reduces the breakage and expense of transportation. The detailing for this class of tile is less expensive than any other, and they are laid out but only deep enough to escape the plow. This tile is more economical it also obtains better "fall" or grade to the drain.

FERRON LUMBER YARD. JAS. TOLBERT, Agent. "The Greatest Labor-Saving Machine of the Age." To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune. Dear Sir, March 16.—One of the strongest and most convincing facts that I have yet seen with regard to the drainage is brought out in the December report of the Agricultural Department of Illinois. It is this: ACREAGE. Increase in corn in Livingston County, 1881, 398,507. Increase in corn in Logan County, 1881, 140,758. Livingston over Logan..... 257,749.

On the Boards.

The opera house was filled to overflowing last Wednesday evening, by those who were anxious to see Miss Kittie Malony's play, entitled "On the Boards."

The audience was such a one as is seldom seen in Ann Arbor, and it is needless to say that nearly all the fashion, intelligence and culture of the city were in attendance. The old and the young, the serious and the gay, learned physicians and dignified judges, doctors of the old school and the new, lawyers and merchants, middle aged matrons and their fair daughters, lovers that are and lovers that would be, all were there to see and hear what came from the pen of the young girl who played the part of Shellenore.

It is said that Miss Malony wrote her play when about fifteen years of age, without aid or assistance from any one—the idea having originated entirely in her own mind. Without going into a detailed account of the prologue and the five succeeding acts, it is enough to say, and this can be said with truth, that it is remarkable that a young lady of fifteen should have the determination and imagination to have written a play of such length.

Miss Russell, of Detroit, who took the leading role, has a fine and commanding stage presence, and is singularly fortunate in having a rich and commanding voice, which she uses with admirable skill and power.

Miss Breakey and Miss Swathell, in naturalness of manner and ease upon the stage, were surpassed by none of the company. Miss Wilson made a charming Juanita, and was a valuable aid in securing the success of the play. Especial mention should be made of Bessie Danster, Miss May Leiter and Miss Nell Ames, the latter young lady being saucy, pert and extremely entertaining as Evangeline's maid.

Master Tom Craig exhibited a nonchalance, in the presence of a large audience, which would have done credit to an older head. Mr. Richards did the Hebrew business in a very creditable manner. Little Mickey Sheehan, the "newspaper reporter," was the best actor in the company, and did some very effective pantomime. Miss Molly should remodel her play and give the "reporter" full swing.

As a whole, the entertainment can be considered a great success, and be long remembered, with pleasure and satisfaction, by the participants and their many friends.

The winds may be "tempered for the shorn lambs," but the lack misses his overcoat all the same.

Call early.

DO NOT BE DECEIVED.—In these times of quick medicine advertisements it is truly gratifying to find one remedy that is worthy of the name, and which really does as recommended. Electric Bitters, we can vouch for as being a true and reliable remedy, and one that will do as recommended. They invariably cure stomach and liver troubles, diseases of the kidneys and urinary difficulties. We know whereof we speak, and can readily give them a trial. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Brown & Co.

The first round dance originated with Adam when he sat down on a hornet.

Remarkable for overcoming diseases caused by impure water, decaying vegetation, etc., is Brown's Iron Bitters.

Could Paganini be called an infidel?

Better be wise by the misfortunes of others than your own. Take warning in time. Avoid quick nostrums by which thousands annually perish. Use only such remedies as are demonstrated above suspicion, foremost among which is Kidney-Wort. For torpid liver, bowels or kidneys, no other remedy equals it. It is sold in both dry and liquid form, by all druggists.

When Fogg heard that cigars were largely made by machinery, he said he had noticed a stationary Injun in front of nearly all the cigar stores.

ASHBURNHAM, Mass., Jan. 14, 1880.—I have been very sick over two years. They all gave me up as past cure. I tried the most skillful physician, but they did not reach the worst part. The lungs and heart would fill up every night and distress me, and my throat was very bad. I told my children I would never die in peace until I had tried Hop Bitters. I have taken two bottles. They have helped me very much indeed. I am now well. There was a lot of sick folks here who have seen how they have helped me, and they used them and are cured and feel as though I do that there is no so valuable a medicine made. Miss Julia G. OSBORN.

The women's Christian temperance union will give a series of lectures during the winter, the first of which will be delivered Sunday, Dec. 10, at 3 p. m., by Mrs. Youmans, of Canada.

The "Salvation army" is hard at work in Pittsburg, Pa. Part of one of their hymns is as follows:

"The devil's mad, And I am glad, Glory, hallelujah!"

The only fellows who are really mad about the scarcity of the "beautiful snow" are our lively men. Their sleigh runners are getting rusty and their horses are "standing them off" for their board.

Mrs. Youmans, of Canada, will lecture on temperance, in the opera house, on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 10, at 3 p. m. This will be the first of the Lever lecture course, to be given under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. of Ann Arbor. Season tickets, ten lectures, $1; single tickets, 15 cents.

The "Salvation army" may visit Ann Arbor before long. They hold services in the open air, in all kinds of weather, and march in squads under the command of officers. Their services consist chiefly of short exhortations and singing of doggerel hymns, set to some of the negro melodies of the south.

If we ever felt really mortified it was the other morning, when we visited the jewelry establishment of Haller & Son, and looked over their splendid display of beautiful goods with only the limited means of a local editor to gratify our desire to present our cousins and aunts with something cheap and beautiful.

It is during the winter months that plans for new homes are generally discussed, especially among the farming population, and this is an especially suitable time, therefore, to call the attention of readers of this paper to the fact that the pamphlet upon "Michigan and its Resources," published by authority of the State, and containing an excellent map, together with a large fund of information concerning its remarkable resources and its unoccupied lands, will be sent free of charge to any address, on application to the commissioner of immigration, Detroit. An epitome of this pamphlet has been printed in the German and Holland languages. Residents of Michigan, having friends in other states or countries who are contemplating a change of residence, may render their valuable service by sending their address to the commissioner.

"For goodness sake don't say I told you!" Those who did not attend before, when they were told, say now they are very sorry. Those who did go are very happy. This time take our word for it and don't miss "Ranch 10," at the opera house Tuesday evening, December 12!

The Cleveland Herald says: "It is to summarize its merits, one of the best dramas of its class that has ever been played here. All the acts end with striking tableaux, of which the most effective one is the fire scene of the third act, which is very skillfully managed. "Ranch 10" is well placed on the stage, the scenery having been prepared specially for it. The company presenting "Ranch 10" is carefully chosen, and interprets it with great success. Mr. Meredith, the author, appears in the dual parts of Al and Tom McClelland. He is forcible and vigorous; has an expressive face, and contrasts the characters of the twins with skill and discretion."

HAVE SOMETHING TO SAY AGAIN.

What to Wear in Winter Time.

Now that the air has become keen and nipping, many persons who have been led, by the mild fall, to neglect purchasing winter clothing, are becoming anxious as to where they can secure the best bargains. It is unsafe to wear thin clothing any longer, and heavy cloaks and thick jackets are making their appearance on every hand. There are few if any stores, in this quarter of the State, which will so well repay a visit, by those seeking cloaks and jackets, of all grades and prices, as at the Cash Dry Goods house of Bach & Abel. They have an immense stock of these goods; indeed, it will range many thousand dollars larger than ever before, and it includes only the most desirable articles. It would be useless to catalogue styles and prices; but when it is stated that the choicest dolmans, trimmed with fur and finished with the utmost care, can be had for fifteen dollars, it will be understood at what advantageous terms purchasers can obtain suitable garments for the piercing winter air that reliable weather prophets foretell for the coming winter.—Register.

Rhea is coming at the opera house, on Saturday evening, Dec. 16, and of course the house will be filled by an elegant audience. Rhea is a great favorite here, and will favor us with Shakespeare's exquisite play of "Much Ado About Nothing." The Columbus Times says of Rhea: Rhea has come and conquered, and her signal victory was won last night, when she essayed My Lady Disdain in "Much Ado About Nothing." Those who have witnessed her portrayals will perchance agree that high comedy is the realm where she holds firm sway, and that this Shakespearean creation is her piece de resistance. Her grace is marvelous, and lineaments of the face are rarely so mobile.
