TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

THE agitation in England against the mportation of American cattle has been pased, up to this date, upon the assertion that American cattle were suffering with the foot-and-mouth disease, and that to admit them would imperil the health of the native herds. But since it has been authoritatively stated that this disease does not exist here, our British friends will have to invent another excuse for keeping out our bovines. That disease certainly is to be found in America in some places, but it is carefully watched, and at no time recently has it been so prevalent as to make importations from this country dangerous to the English. Out of the 30,000 cattle mported into England in the last six months only six animals were diseased. This is a narrow basis upon which to ouild an argument against the admission of cattle from America, no matter what the disease was which the six CHINA maintains three armies of operation, so-called, having a strength of 0,000 to 40,000 men each, and stationed as follows: The first on the Russe Mantchoorian frontier; the second on the western high roads, leading to and from Turkestan; and the third in the vicinity of Peking, for the special defence of the capital, for which purpose the excellent communications by rivers and canals facilitate an easy and rapid concentration. Besides these three corps for active operations, a fourth army of some 150,000 men is distributed in all the principal ports along the seacoast, the central province of Tchili being again supplied with their strongest garrisons. While the strength of the former Chinese army was estimated at more than a million men, the effective strength of the present force is only about 300,000, but notwithstanding this great reduction the appropriations for support, equipment and armament have remained the same.

RECENTLY a train on the Northern Pacific Railroad found its way apparently barred by the furious heat of burnng wood-ricks along the track. The rain stopped, the rails were examined o see if they had warped, and then it was decided to run the gauntlet. A passenger thus described the passage, which was made at the rate of seventy miles an hour, to a reporter of the Portand Oregonian: "We shut down the windows and closed the door tight just before we started, but the air inside the car was like the breath from a furnace and the whole train seemed to be on fire. The flames licked the windowglass savagely, and although it lasted only a few moments, it was an experience I shall never forget and never again wish to undergo. I can't help but think of the terrible danger we passed through. If one rail of the track beneath us, having been warped by the heat, had given away, we would every ene of us have been roasted alive. It makes me shudder even now."

A REPORTER of the San Francisco Chronicle is burdened with the heavy responsibility of having added a serious item to the list of evils and terrors that offlict humanity. Examinating with a microscope an antiquated brickbat, taken from a building that was being torn down, he found each pore inhabited by a rod like animalcule. "Their motions," he says, "when they were exposed to blows, were as the link of a chain, reminding one of a system of joints to be extended and contracted. light, scintillating column nearly twothirds their length, extending from nearly their head to their pointed tails probably their spinal column." It is probable that San Francisco will find it desirable to have all bricks vaccinated, spared not even the walls of the houses. The case finds a parallel only in the Arkansas village where the houses are reputed to be protected against chills by mixing quinine in the paint with which they are covered.

THE growth of New York City falls little short of the marvelous. Within the past two years there has been a wonderful extension of the residence portion of the city-an extension upward, in the way of lofty apartment houses-and, according to the Sun, there is now unparalleled activity among builders. These figures are given: The total of the estimated cost of the building for which plans were filed in 1882 was $44,778,686. If there is no falling off in the last half of this year, the capital invested will be nearly $10,000,000 more than last year, or $54,000,000. It is said that about 1,500 flats and tenements will be erected. Prominent builders are of opinion that the metropolis will in a few years contain 2,000,000 inhabitants. The island will not then be crowded, if the tremendous double-deckers, or tenements arranged to hold half a dozen families on a floor, are to be the rule in the future as at present. With such vast dwelling places, towering toward he sky tt is possible for 10,000,000 people to make their homes in that

It is not a bad idea, sometimes, to sell your property, if it is in market, if you are offered a good price. The Stanton Herald tells of a lot in that city, now used as a horse pasture, which could have been sold for $3,750 nine years ago, but the owner wanted $4,000. About six years ago $2,500 was offered for it and refused. To-day it is doubtful if it can be sold for cash for $1,500, and it has not produced income enough to much more than pay the taxes during the past ten years. River and Rarbor Improvement. Gen. O. M. Poe has submitted to the war de artment a report of the work done on the rivers and harbors of Michigan. The following is a synopsis of the report:

Buchann is being raided be petty thieves.

His wife followed him, when he shot, thinking she was one of the burglars. The ball passed partly around her head. She was still alive Tuesday afternoon, but unconscious. depth. The engineer says "It is of great importance that this improvement should be proscented to early completion on the medified plan. As the work now stands it is received by whiteless, will completed?" sults sooner available. As the work now stands it is practically valueless until completed." The original estimate of the cost of improvement was $1,666,500. There has been appropriated to date $335,000, and the amount required for the completion of the work is estimated at $237,000. This will leave the cost of the work $603,800 less than originally proposed. The act of 1882 appropriated $60,000 for the work, and there remained available July 1, 1883, $7,517. Gen. Poe says that if congress will appropriate the amount asked for the work can be completed in two seasons. Improvement of the harbor of refuge Belleriver, Michigan.—The object of the improvement is to obtain a channel 50 feet wide and 13 feet deep from the first to the second bridge. Five thousand dollars were appropriated by the act of 1882, and durring the year the engineer reports that 28,233 cubic yards of material were removed. The result of the dredging is one cut 13 feet deep to near the first and second bridges, and a second cut for about half that distance.

It is now estimated that an additional appropriation of $175,000 will complete the work, and that $125,000 of this sum can be profitably expended next

From the Grand Traverse Herald. In Grand Traverse bay recently, at some di ance out in deep water, between Traverse Cit and Marion Island, the water began to boil and surge, and presently rose in vast jets to the height of from 10 to 20 feet. Being observed from the shore no details could be given on ac count of the distance, but the same thing has taken place years before and some two years ago, according to an account given by the Her ald at that time, parties in a boat were so near ly on the spot that they were obliged to haster out of the way. They described the water as apparently boiling up from the very bottom of quantities of mud and other substances and emitting an intensely unpleasant and sulphurous smell. The area of the eruption, if it may be so called, was about 20 feet in diameter and the time about half an hour. At intervals the water would subside into calmness and then the commotion would begin sgain. It is said by old settlers that the same thing has occurred in other years. The disturbance is always in a line between Traverse City and the island. It is well known by old residents that there are places in the bay where salt springs bubble up through the water, in the neighborhood of the island. It is possible that there are submarine openings of other descriptions, either volcanic or otherwise. It is known to scientific men that there is a tract of country on the eastern shore of Michigan, in the neighborhood of Thunder bay directly across the state from Grand Traverse bay, where slight earthquakes are frequent, and in fact the bay was

WASHINGTON. THE PENSION LIST.

Work has been commenced at the Government Printing Office on the list of pension ers, which was ordered by Congress last session. The work will make about 4,000 octavo pages of nonpariel type, and will comprise 300,000 names. Nineteen hundred copies will be printed.

Commissioner of Pensions Dudley is creating quite an unusual stir in that department by the manner in which he is dealing with violators of the law. The latest crookedness which the manner in which he is dealing with violators of the law. The latest crookedness which has been brought to light is that of Alpha B. Beall, an employe of the government printing office, who is charged with defranding Mrs. Christine Breamer, a pensioner, of $758 of a pension claim of $1,458 paid her in August, 1880. Beall and Mrs. Breamer lived in adjoining houses in Washington and Beall, learning that Mrs. Breamer had had a son killed in the Federel service during the war, induced her to tapply for a pension. The facts with regard to the person's death having been proved, Mrs. Breamer was allowed a pension of $5 per month with arrears from 1865, making the sum of $1,458. Just before the claim was allowed Beall offered to secure the pension for her if she would give him half. This she agreed to do, and after the claim was granted Beall went with hier to the bank and drew the entire sum, giving her $700 and keeping the remainder. It was only recently that the matter was brought to the notice of the Commissioner, who had it investigated. Beall was arrested and placed ander bonds of $1,590 for his appearance before United States Commissioner Bundy. Two other cases of frands have been discovered in a few days, and are being investigated by Dudley. Let the good work go on.

The father feels, owing to the publicity given the case, that the verdict of a court martial alone can render complete justice to his son.

QUARRELING AMONG THEMSELVES. Albert E. Boone, one of the Star Route contractors, entered a suit against Flora B. Cabell, reputed wife of Samuel G. Cabell, another Star Route contractor, for the recovery of $1,700 alleged to have been loaned by Boone to her in August, 1880. Boone declares that he has been beaten out of $10,000 by manipulations by Mr. and Mrs. Cabell; that being interested in certain contracts with Cabell, the latter curned them over to Flora B. Cabell, and gave her an order to draw the pay, thereby shutting are and Mrs. Cabell; that being interested in certain contracts with Cabell, the latter turned them over to Flora B. Cabell, and gave her an order to draw the pay, thereby shatting him (Boone) out from the benefits of the contracts. It is asserted that should the Star Route straw bond cases ever reach trial it will be proven that the entire scheme of straw bonds was concocted by Samuel G. Cabell, Flora B. Cabell, and Chas, H. Dickson, a nephew of Flora B. Cabell, who is at present a clerk in the Indian Bureau.

A SENSIBLE MOVE.

At that time he was sentenced to be distincted by a court-martial before the recent trial for duplicating his pay accounts, was in July, 1875. At that time he was sentenced to be distincted in the court which tried him recommended ciercity in his case on account of his excellent military record. Although it was Lieutenant-Colonel figes's second offense, the President, in his order approving the findings and sentence of the court-martial, said that 'un view of some pallating circumstances he had been induced for the secong time to extend clemency to this offer.' E also remarked that the duplication of a pay account by an officer involved "falschood, fraud and an act of dishonor," and that 'delemency in such a case cannot be expected by any officer after this warning.' Under these circumstances probably Lieutenant-Colonel figes does not expect to be leniently dealt with at this time. There is some reason to believe, however, that he will not rest easy under the disgrare of a dismissal from the service, if the case of Colonel Morrow, late of General Sherman's staff, shall be persistently ignored by the War Department. It appears that some of Colonel Morrow's creditors in Washington are indignant at the position of a fairs in relation to that efficer. George Kellogg, a convict in the Illinois state Penitentiary from Logan County, at work at the wire machine, committed suicide the other afternoon by throwing a coil of wire around his neck and suffering himself to be drawn against the machine and the wire imbedded into his neck. Just before committing at the deed he went to the boss and said: "I am the man who committed a double murder at Atlanta, Ill." The particulars of this double murder, which has been shrouded in mystery until now, is as follows: The murder occurred in Atlanta, Ill. August 1, a band of thirty Apaches made an attack upon Opulet and killed four men. Col. On examining them they found three dreadfully mutilated and decayed human bodies, those of Charles McMahon, a bachelor farmer who had lived near by, and two hired hands, Frank Mathews and John Carlock, both from Southern Illinois. There throats were cut and gags in their mouths, and their legs tied together with twine binding cord. It is believed all three were surprised asleep, overpowered, gaged and bound, marched to the spot where found, and there intehered. Every circumsiance showed that a carefully planned scheme was carried out. A large reward was offered and several arrests made, but no one held. This confession of Kellogg's is generally believed, and solves the mystery which has surrounded the case.

ASHFIELD, Mass. I am verging on eighty years, and deem it my duty to suffering humanity to say that my long life is due to BRANDRETH'S Pills, which have been my sole medicine for half a century. I know the last forty-three years of my life is owing solely to their use. Your PILLS saved me many times after the best medical skill in several states had given me up as hopeless. I have had many converts to purgation with Brandreth's Pills, and have seen them perform almost miracles of cure. For children, a few doses have cured meases, scarlet fever, and whooping cough. In all female troubles and weakness I have never known them to fail. In adult males I have known them to cure the worst cases of dyspepsia, dysentery and diarrhœa; even dropsy, paralysis and apoplexy have yielded to the persistent course of Brandreth's PILLS. In fact I have found them the true Life Elixir. They act as continual

J. E. MC'GONAUGHY.

The summer had been only commonly trying at Mrs. Spencer's, but for some reason it had worn severely upon body thought much about it, except that mother was "rather tired out," and father was glad harvest was well over-not that the season's work was over by any means, for every housewife knows how heavy autumn labors are, especially on a farm so well fruited. Everyone was glad when "Uncle Doctor" came down from the city for a few weeks' visit in apple time. That was a title the youngsters gave to Edward Spencer, who had just finished his medical course and was on the lookout for some good sickly place in which to set-Mrs. Spencer never made "com-'How long do you expect that wife

"In the lunatic asylum."
"How you do talk!" exclaimed his brother, banging down a basket, as if he would crush an unwelcome thought. 'Don't you know some kind of medicine that will sort of pick up Lucy's strength and spirits a little? Should think you might, after spending such

'How many times has Lucy been outside the front doordyard this summer?" "Not often-that's a fact. You see, we have to work so hard through the week, we sleep pretty late on Sunday; so she has hard work to get even the children off to church, let alone going

"How often has she been over to the village to do her trading?' "I've generally done that," Lewis, with a slight cough. "Very wrong in you. It does women good to shop, and the charge from the dull round of their duties here is better than medicine. You have these little breaks in the monotony of your life all the time—she, none at all. It is like the steady tramp of a tread-mill. Let me tell you this, young man; give that wife of yours two hours outside of this house every day in the year, unless in case of a blizzard or cyclone, if you care anything about keeping her long. It will be hard at first to make her feel that she can go; but do you smooth away every difficulty in your power, and thus coax and argue the point unti you succeed. The best argument of all do the family shopping. A woman can make the money go at least a third farther than a man, and have the satisfaction of getting just what she wants; and while she shops, don't you stand around to see what she gets. Go off about your busines, and come back when she is ready to return. Have you

"Yes; Old Don is gentle enough. He's getting pretty old, but he's as steady as a mill."

"Just the thing. Give that horse to your wife. I'll see to the rest of the arrangements. Make it out in writing when we go in with this basket."

There was never any "getting around" Edward—Lewis has known that from his boyhood up. So he was marched up to the desk and instructed to "sign his name just there," to a document which gave over to his wife en-tire possession of Old Don, to have and to hold for her own use and her children's, so long as his life lasted.
"Sister Lucy," said Edward turning about in his chair, "please step this way a minute. You are my first patient there is my prescription for you.' Lucy read the paper, a little puzzled.

"Am I to kill old Don and eat him?"

she asked, with a touch of her old mirthfulness again in her eyes. Better than that. You are to hitch

Lucy named a very moderate sum, and Lewis added another small bill which seemed to make the world look nore cheerful and hopeful to her view. Whether it was this consideration or is part, or the novelty of the whole proceeding, one cannot say, but certain t is that work sped for the next few ours. By three o'clock she was dressed and, with a happy, chattering little gir on either side, was speeding toward the village—at a very orthodox pace, it s true, but just the gait to take in al he loveliness of the autumn landscape Never could she remember so delight ful a day, though the inner spirit was what lent a charm to the earth and sky. t was a new experience to the little ones also to be riding along with mother, and hearing her talk about something else than her every-day work. "Going to the store" was an epoch in their history, and the small purchases made for each were a source of keen enjoyment. Lucy saw that she could make much better bargains than her husband, and all her investments were most satisfacory. She met an old friend, too, with whom she had a pleasant chat, and learned considerable "news"—that wonderful enlivener of drowsy country life. It is surprising how much an observing woman will pick up in the course of an hour in a bustling, prosperous village, which she will turn over

THEORY OF CROP-ROTATION.-It is now generally admitted that rotation of crops is rendered necessary, not as formerly supposed because the soil becomes exhausted of some necessary element, or becomes unwholesome for that particular plant, owing to poisonous excreta left by the roots, but because insects and diseases accompany the plant which are special to it, the eggs or spores of which are left in the soil to attack the same crop in the next following year with hundred fold increase of numbers and power.
