ENGLAND IS EVIDENTLY JEALOUS. Consul General Merrit, at London, in a letter to the state department, says: The proposed commercial treaty between the United States and Mexico has naturally attracted great at-tention in England, both in business and gov-ernment circles, and parliament is being con-stantly memoralized by commercial bodies to again open diplomatic relations with Mexico, so that English trade with that country may not be supplanted by the United States. The possibility of Mexico growing large quantities of coffee for the United States was recently re-ferred to by a member of parliament as one of the probable results of the treaty which would act unfavorably to English trade interests. city on the afternoon train Wednesday. NEWS NOTES

WANTS THE LION'S SHARE.

WANTS THE LION'S SHARE. Mrs. E. H. Wallace, of Cincinnati, is now consulting legal counsel in the matter of pros-ecuting her claims for a share of the Trinity church property in New York. She is the only daughter of Cornelius D. Thorpe, of New York, and maintains that she is the only lineal de-scent of King William Webber, of Holland, in the fourth generation. She aves she is a colscent of King William Webber, of Holland, in the fourth generation. She says she is a col-lateral heir of the Webbers, who prosecuted the case in New York. The property is now worth $1.2,000,000. An agent of the Anneke Janes and the Webbers states that the govern-ment of Holland is willing to settle the claim for $66,000,000. Mrs. Wallace says the other heirs refuse this, but that she is willing to join them and accept a pro-rate share. She pro-poses to begin suit this fall, but expects that triaity church congregation and other proper-ty holders in New York u yon whose estate she holds a first mortgage, will settle the matter before her rights are established by the courts. NO HOPE FOR THE CELESTIALS. Judge Field, in the United States Supreme Court, at San Francisco, sitting en bane, with Judge Sawyer, has rendered a final decision in respect to the rights claimed by Chinese born in Hong Kong to land in the United States. He rules that the fact of a Chinaman being born in Hong Kong does not constitute him a British subject. He enlarges on the fact that congress never intended to disregard the requirements of a treaty with a foreign govern-ment. An act of Congress, he says, must be construed according to its manifest intent, and must be so enforced by the court. In respect to the Restriction act no con-sideration was deemed necessary to the position of other governments regarding the Chinese within their borders. The out country every year unless covered by the Restriction act. The act declares in the first section—that from and after ninety days from the passage until the expiration of ten years, the coming of Chinese laborers to the United States, without any limitation of coun-tries from which they might come, is suspend-ed. During such suspension it should not be lawful for any Chinese laborer to come, or, having come, to remain in the United Stries. The twelfth section declares that any Chinese person found unlawfully within the United States shall be removed therefrom by the direc-tion of the president of the country from whence he came, not necessarily to China, but the country he comes from. families.

Itisafact! BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, a true non-alcoholic tonic, made in Baltimore, Md., by the Brown Chemical Company, who are old drug-gists and in every particu-lar reliable, will, by removing the craving appetite of the drunkard, and by curing the nervousness, weakness, and general ill health resulting from intemperance, do more to promote temperance, in the strictest sense than any other means now known.

It is a well authenticated fact that many medicines, especially'bitters,' are nothing but cheap whiskey vilely concocted for use in local option countries. JOHN'S WIFE.

My bachelor quarters began to look cheerless enough as the holiday season approached, and I was all the more ready to accept the kind invitation of my friend John and his young wife, the mention of whose name always caused him to fly into raptures. Surely no man ever possessed such a paragon before ! To believe his story, she was levely, amiable, virtuous beautiful, and everything else complimentary that could be applied to woman.

I had only John's story for this-was inclined to believe it only in part; and yet, as the time approached for my visit found myself waiting the day with interest, if not something like excitement especially as he had informed me that his ister-in-law, Kitty Manvers, was to make one of the party. I even pictured her as being more beautiful and charming than John's wife, and indulged in various other bachelor fancies.

I arrived in the city of Boston on the day preceding Christmas, as I had some ess to transact prior to visiting John's house. But as I stepped out of the cars, I saw his carriage waiting, and bidding farewell to a final brushing up at a hotel, I took my place, drew on my gloves, gave an additional twirl to my mustache, and was quickly whirled to the Eden John was accustomed to call his home.

A pretty little woman, not certainly the my friend had described, met me John to the library, light our cigars, and talk over old college days. We passed an cordially, apologized for her husband's absence, informed me that he had suddenly hour thus, the first pleasant one during the been called away upon business, but would day; then John was summoned by his wife to attend her on a little shopping exreturn early in the morning, and pleasantly added that he had consigned me to the pedition, and I was left alone with my sad care of her sister and herself.

ing formed any definite plan, and was awakened at a late hour by a loud rap up on my door, and the cheery voice of my friend John, telling me that the sa bell had rung and breakfist was wi -that I outdid-the seven sleepers, and that ae wanted to see me.

"What do you think of my wife?" was his first question. "Isn't she matchles perfection? Beautiful, accomplished-" "Certainly a wonderful woman," I plied; and then instantly resolved that I never would undeceive so trusting and happy a heart-that he should never hear of the questionable proceedings of the previous night, but that I would quietly bide my time for an explanation, even though the loss to me was a great one. When we entered the breakfast-room John's wife came forward and greeted me just as cordially as she had done upon the previous evening. There was not the slightest hesitation, no deepening color no trembling of lip or voice when she ask ed me, in the most natural manner possi ble, if I had rested well and had sweet dreams. The question sent all the blood to my face, which fortunately was unnoticed, save the laughing remark from John that he "never thought I was so bashful a man.' What a hardened and consummate actor your wife must be, I thought, as I turned o speak to the blooming Kitty, who came n at the same moment, dressed in a pretty corning-robe of azure silk, that set off her londe complexion to the greatest advanage. from storms, stock will lay on fat very fast. For a time it is economy to let them have the run of the pastures or woods: but toward the close I prefer to pen and feed all they will eat.

With as heavy mast as we have in this locality this year, hogs will fatten and grow if allowed to run in the woods, and are fed a good feed of corn night and morning; they hardly need all the corn they will eat. If they have not access to a good supply of water they should have a trough which should be kept filled so that they can get what they want. They can be allowed to run until two or three weeks before killing or marketing, when I prefer to pen closely and feed all the corn they can eat clean.

When fattened in this way, if the work is properly done, it will be as cheap as in any other way. It is a good plan to keep little lumps of coal in the pen or where they can have free access to what they want. A small supply of salt will do them no harm. The cheaper Logs can be fattened for market the more profitable they become, and it is economy to take advantage of everything that will increase their growth and thrif with the least expense. Besides, I do not consider it good policy to change too suddenly from one feed to another, as would be the case if they were taker from the pasture and fed exclusively on corn. I have never believed in feeding stock of any kind on corn alone; they require a variety to keep fully healthy, and the earlier this can be accomplish ed the better for the stock, and the

John's wife was charmingly social, and discoursed eloquently upon the sub-ject of her husband. Of course I endors ed all she said upon the subject-said John was a lucky fellow, told how much I envied him his happiness, and caused her to blush prettily.

But for all my words, I had no eye except for Kitty Manvers. She was crochet-ing a smoking cap for John (how I wish it had been for me!) and as the scarlet wool twined in and out, and around her swift, snowy little fingers, I thanked Heaven that John had married his wife and not her sis-

The evening came to an end long before I had wished it to do so. I had never seen time fly upon such swift wings, and regretted extremely when the hour for retir-ing was announced. I bade my hostess good-night, and looked at Kitty with eyes that spoke volumes of admiration, and caused the rich blood to fly in her cheeks like damask roses. Then after lingering is long as politeness would admit, I went up to my room, and lighting a cigar, sat dreamily smoking for an hour. And my cogitations ended in this: that I, Fred Dawson, was at last in love, and that at first sight, and that I would do my best to win the charming Kitty Manvers (if not already engaged) to be my wife. The thought that another might have been before me in the matter somewhat bantshed the castles I had been building in Spain. However, I could but try; s to assist in the perfection of my plans, l smoked another "Partagas," wound my watch as a bell in a neighboring steeple

Very soon I began to drowse, and an undefined figure of Kitty, with with wings like those of an angel, was beginning to float through my brain when I was recalled from my-wanderings to the stern 'ealties of life. I was certain that I heard 'he creaking of a door, and, raising myself cautiously upon my elbow, looked around. The fire was burning dimv; it was just the "witching hour when church-yards yawn" and disembodied opirits walk. Was the chamber I occupied a baunted one?

Had it been in reality so, I should not have been more astonished than I was to see John's wite stealing like a shadow into the room, clad in her long, snow-white night robes. "Great heaven," I murmured, "what can this mean? Is the woman troubled with fits of lunacy? Is it not my duty to summon assistance for fear she may injure herself?" I certainly would 'save spoken to her, but surprise chained my tongue. She carried a small lamp in her hand-paused for an instant after passing across the threshold, and listened. Then, as if satisfied that I was sleeping, she advanced softly to the table, picked ap my jewelery, and, without looking igain at the bed, darted swiftly out of the

I opened it cautiously and look-ed out into the hall. There was no one visible-not a sound to be heard. I again closed the door, this time taking good care to lock it, and returned to bed in no enviable state of mind, asking myself over and over again what it could possibly mean, could it be that John's pretty and accom-

I had seen her enter the room at the dead midnight hour-had seen her pause and listen -had seen her glance anxiously around, as if fearful of detection-and, worse than all, had seen her appropriate and secrete its remains. The next morning it appear-my valuables. Foint the First .- BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is not an intoxicating comund. It is a tonic medicine, not a drink. It is a skillfully compounded paration made to restore strength and health; not a beverage to be sold bar-rooms and taverns.

Point the Second .- BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is free from everything urious. The most delicate ladies and the most enfeebled infants may it with perfect safety and with great advantage. While it is powerful 3 remedial agency, it is gentle in its operation, restoring wasted strength 1 imparting robust health in the most efficient manner.

Point the Third .- BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is made by the Brown mical Company of Baltimore, a long-established house, whose reputaon is well-known to the business world and the general community. There is no risk in buying such a medicine.

IN CINCINNAT: Treating Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Nasal Catarrh, Sore Throat, Loss of Voice, and other Maladies of the Nose, Throat and Lungs. DR. WOLFE treats the above numed diseases by Medicated inhalations. When thus administer ed, remedies are brought "face to face" in contac with the disease; whereas, if they are swallowed they mix with the contents of the stomach and never reach the organs of respiration. DR. WOLFE has, by the judicious employmen of Medicated Inhalations, assisted thousands to regain their health, many of whom had been prounced incurable, and given up to die by their family physicians and friends.

DR. WOLFE has prepared a list of questions for sick people to answe ... mail. They ar ... narac-ter the same he would ask were he by the bedside of the invalid. By writing answers to these question any one can send an accurate statement of his disease and receive and use inhaling remedies at home in any part of the United States or Canada, without incurring the expense and disconfort of making visit to Cincinnati. Any one sending his name an post-office address with a three-cent postag stamp, will receive a copy of the "Circular Questions" by return mail.

OR. WOLFE has published a medical book called "Common Sense, Cause and Cure of Consump-tion, Asthma, etc.," a copy of which he will send to any body who orders it, by mail, and incloses nin cents in postage stamps with his name and postoffice address. The book is of great value to any one af-dicted with any disease of the Nose, Throat,

R. WOLFE has also published another book o 4 pages entitled "Light about the House we Live n." which every healthy person as well as sick ought to read.
