"Brave Kate Shelley."

The presentation made, a few days ago, by a committee of the Iowa legis bration, comprising a procession, speeches, music and a banquet.

Kate Shelley is now 18. About dusk on the night of July 6, 1881, a terrible storm broke over that section of Iowa. The Des Moines river rose six feet in an hour. The hurricane blew down houses and carried away every portable object and looking out she saw a train go down into the abyss below. No one was at home but her mother and a little brother and sister. Kate did not wring her hands and wish she were a man to brave the storm. She knew the sufferers must need assistance, and that the next train must be warned. So she lighted a lantern, donned a waterproof cleak, and and was answered by the engineer of the lost freight train, the sole survivor, who had managed to crawl upon some of the bridge timbers, He urged her to warning to the coming express train Retracing her steps, Kate then proceeded to Moingona, about a mile distant. Before her journey's end lay the high trestle bridge over the Des Moines about 500 feet long. Just as she reached pitchy darkness, save for the flashes of lightning, she crossed over on her hands and knees, crawling from tie to tie. Then rapidly running the short dis tance remaining she arrived in time. The express train and its passengers were saved. The story of Kate Sheiley's brave act was soon the topic of admiration throughout the country. Several funds were started for her and she has been made rich. The state legislature last winter ordered a medal struck to commemorate the noble action of this girl and, who had lived for the last seven- of 16, and it has been formally presented

A FATHER'S TERRIBLE CRIME. James Boyd shot and killed his son, 'Alfred Boyd, aged 17, in his house in Cumminsville, Ohio. Boyd is a huckster aged 49. Returning home he found his son playing marbles on the commons. He reproached him for not working, and then roughly caught the boy by the coller, and dragged him home, a distance of 100 yards. Reaching the porch door the boy struggled, caught the door, and refused to enter. Then the father drew a revolver, 44 callber, and deliberately shot his son through the chest. The father was immediately arrested.

Samon has confessed killing Mrs. Ford and the Ruddy family at Laconia, N. H. He says he killed Mrs. Ford at 9 o'clock a Saturday morning. Did not attempt to outrage her. She was killed in a drunken squabble. She showed signs of life for about 10 minutes and he made several attempt to bring her to life. Failing, he became irightened and chopped the body and put it into a truck and started off to dispose of the body. He carried it to Ruddy's house where he was somewhat acquainted. He then left the trunk in front of the house where it remained two hours. He took it into the house about dark and during the night became nervous and could not sleep. When it was near morning, and he had no opportunity to dispose of the body, he concluded upon the plan of killing the Ruddy family, and burning the house, thereby destroying the evidence of his guilt. O'DONNELL'S TRIAL. O'DONNELL'S TRIAL.

The case against O'Donnell for the murder of Carey, the informer, was opened in London on the 30th of November. An immense crowd was present, yet the proceedings were remarkably quiet. The principal interest centered on the testimony of the wife and son of the murdered man. The testimony of the son was very contradictory. Mrs. Carey re-iterates the statements made by her at the preliminary examination that O'Donnell exclaimed, "I was sent to do it."

Moderate Reduction of Revenues Urged--Fears of Disastrous Currency Confraction-Better War Defenses Needed--Extreme Measures Against Polygamy, Etc., Etc.

The president's message to the forty-eight Congress was read late in the afternoon of the 4th instant. It is recommended that the United States should establish an agency in the Capital as in the absence of conventional engagements the rights of our citizens in Mexico depend upon domestic statutes of that country. When the will of the Peruvian people is manifested the president will not hesitate to recognize the government approved by them. The president repeats the suggestion that provision be made for the exercise of discretionary power by the executive in appointing delegations to participate in social and sicientific Congresses for the discussion of important matters of general concern

CHINESE IMMIGRATION. CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

There is good reason to believe, says the President, that the law restricting Chinese immigration has been violated by the officers of China, upon whom it is bevolved the duty of certifying that immigrants belong to the excepted classes. Measures have been taken to ascertain the facts incident to this supposed infraction, and it is believed the government of China will co-operate with the United States in securing the observance of the law.

He quotes from the Secretary of the treasury's report, and says: If the surplus shalt hereafter be as large as the treasury estimates now indicate, the three per cent. bonds may all be redeemed at least four years before any of the 4½s can be called in. There are cogent reasons, however, why the FINANCIAL. only by excessive taxation is such rapidity at-only by excessive taxation is such rapidity attainable.

The president does not advise the adoption at this session of any measures for large diminution of the national revenues. Owing to the interval which must clapse before the effect of the act of March 3rd, 1883, can definitely be ascertained, a certain portion at least of the surplus revenues may be wisely applied to the long neglected duty of rehabilitating our navy and providing coast defenses for the protection of our harbors.

Immediately associated with the financial subject is the important question of what legislation is necessary regarding the national currency. The aggregate amount of bonds now on deposit in the treasury to support the national bank circulation is about $350,000,000.000. Nearly $200,000,000 of this amount consists of three per cents, which are payable at

One of our readers thought we were a little rough on Judge Joslyn in our issue last week, but what will "reader" have to say of the following article from The Monroe Democrat on the same sub-

"There has not, within the memory of our oldest inhabitants, been so much indignation shown at the charge of any judge, as was exhibited by our citizens at the charge of Judge Joslyn in the Couper case. It was decidedly one sided, and unwarranted either in fairness or in law, and was in no way what the people had a right to expect from the bench, and is looked upon as such by our law-yers and laity. As the judge waded through the testimony he blocked every avenue of the prosecution and opened up every way of escape for the prisoner. He handled the evidence in a larger proportion than he did the law. He not only reviewed and commented upon the testimony but clearly indicated his own opinion upon certain parts of it. So glaring was his denunciation of the people's attorneys and the people's witnesses, that many of his warmest friends left the court room in disgust before he had finished his charge which consisted largely of a re-argument of the case for surprised to have heard him instruct the jury to bring in a verdict of acquittal. The list of requests for the defense was smuggled into court and the people's at-torney were unable to see them and did not see them. Just at the close of the argument for the prosecution, Mr. Gilday was called out of the room by a lady, and he asked the court to wait a few moments until he returned which it promised to do. He was gone less than four minutes, but upon his return found the judge delivering his charge.

"Now while it may be highly probable that the testimony of these witnesses was in fact entitled to no consideration by the jury, yet the weight to be given to it was for the jury and not for the Standing alone, what the learned judge said he would do if in the situation of the jury, would be clearly unwarranted and could not be sustained, and what preceded it does not take away or destroy its prejudicial effect. "Last week the Commercial announced in headlines that Couper had an "impartial trial." Does it make the announcepartial trial." Does it make the announcement thus conspicuous because an "impartial trial" is a rarity in this court, or to counterbalance public opinion upon the charge of the judge? So far as the presentation of testimony is concerned, no one questions its fairness; but so far no one questions its fairness; but so far a hydrogram of the case Jno. Lony, Jno. health and avoid sickness. Instead of feeling tired and worn out, instead of aches and pains, wouldn't you rather feel fresh and strong?

You can continue feeling miserable and good for nothing, and no one but yourself can find fault, but if you are tired of that kind of life, you can change it if you choose.

How? By getting one bottle of Brown' Iron Bit-TERS, and taking it regularly according to directions.

> Gentlemen:—I have suffered with pam in my side and back, and great soreness on my breast, with shooting pains all through my body, attended with great weakness, depression of spirits, and loss of appetite. I have taken several different medicines, and was treated by prominent physicians for my liver, kidneys, and spleen, but I got no relief. I thought I would try Brown's Iron Bitters; I have now taken one bottle and a half and am about well—pain in side and back all gone—soreness all out of my breast, and I have a good appetite, and am gaining in strength and flesh. It can justly be called the king of medicines.

Happy young friends, sit by me, Under May's blown apple-tree; Hear a story, strange and old, By the wild red Indian told, How the robin came to be.

Once a great chief left his son—
Well-beloved, his only one—
When the boy was well-nigh grown.
In the trial-lodge alone.
Left for tortures long and slow
Youths like him must undergo,
Who their pride of manhood test,
Lacking water, food and rest.
Seven days the fast he kept,
Seven nights he never slept,
Then the poor boy wrung with pain,
Weak from nature's overstrain,
Faltering, moaned a low complaint:
"Spare me, Father, for I faint!"
But the chieftain, haughty-eyed,
Hid his pity in his pride.
"You shall be a hunter good,
Knowing rever lack of food;
You shall be a warrior great,
Wise as fox and strong as bear:
Many scalps your belt shall wear,
If with patient heart you wait
One day more!" the father said.
When, next morn the lodge he sought,
And boiled samp and moose meat brought
For the boy, he found him dead.

As with grief his grave they made,

As with grief his grave they made, And his bow beside him laid, Pipe and knife, and wampun braid— On the lodge-top overhead, Preening smooth its breast of red And the brown coat that it wore, And the brown coat that it wore,
Sat a bird, unknown before.
And as if with human tongue,
"Mourn me not," it said, or sung;
"I, a bird, am still your son,
Happier than if hunter fleet,
Or a orave, before your feet
Laying scalps in battle won.
Friend of man, my song shall cheer Laying scalps in battle won.
Friend of man, my song shall cheer
Lodge and corn-land; hovering near,
To each wigwam I shall bring
Tidings of the coming spring;
Every child my voice shall know
In the moon of melting snow.
When the maple's red bud swells,
And the wind bower lifts its bells,
As their fond commanion As their fond companion Men shall henceforth own your son, And my song shall testify That of human kin am I."

Thus the Indian legend saith Thus the Indian legend suith How, at firs', the robin came With a sweeter life from death, Bird for boy, and still the same, If my young friends doubt that this Is the robin's genesis, Not in vain is still the myth If a truth be found therewith; Unto gentieness belong Gifts unknown to pride and wrong; Happier far than hate is praise— He who sings than he who slays.

TWENTY-FOUR O'CLOCK.

Well, wife, while down in town to-day, I heard by chance the strangest thing: 'Twill come to pass, the people say, Though trouble it is sure to bring. Our time piece there upon the wall Must go (it gives me quite a shock); You see 'tis of no use at all— Twill soon be 24 o'clock.

We'll breakfast then at 18 sharp; At 19 I must take the train, What oddities! I can't help harp On what is sure to turn the brain But Labor's wheels will still go 'round, On wages there will be no lock, Tho' this old world at last has found It has a 24 o'clcck.

Dear Sue, may be you have forgot
Our wedding, twenty years ago;
Twas 12 when parson tied the knot,
Tho' now it seems it was not so
Time's river flows on mighty fast,
And each new wave seems but to mock;
For, wife, we've had to find at last

Now rising on the stroke of 6
Can have her share of sleep soon,
And doze till 18. What a mix!
But when young Lynn comes here to call,
And stays like Patience on a rock,

So regularly at half-past ten,
Will never seem the same again—
A sort of 22 Amen.
Dear Sue, this thing is certain sure
To soon affect both you and me,
For our old clock there is no cure;

Tho' some folks learnedly may speak
Of Greenwich time and this and that,
It is our century's strangest freak—
A queer, diurnal tit for tat.
We're told the world improves with age,
Our ship at last has reached a dock
Where change in all things is the gauge,
'Twill soon be 34 or lock.

The herd had been driven into the state from Texas in the fall of 1852 and wintered in one of the southern counties. In the early part of June following the drove were started for the market, apparently healthy and in good order, and they proceeded slowly, stopping at intervals for pasturage by the way. Early in July the fever broke out along the road traveled by this herd, and it prevailed with great malignity until checked by the autumnal frost. > In 1866 and 1867 the Texan cattle were again passing through the state, and the ravages of the fever in Missouri were something terrible, single counties losing in several instances stock valued at from $300,000 to $500,000. There was also some loss from the fever in Iowa and Kansas, but the disease did not cross the Mississippi till 1868, when cattle that had been brought up the river by steamboat were shipped northward the Illinois Central railroad and so listributed through the state and especially concentrated at the Chicago stock vards. The shipments began about the first of June, and by the middle of July the fever scourge had become the greatest that ever was known. The loss in Illinois alone was estimated at $2,000,ts spread. died at his residence in London, Eng., a few days ago, aged 65 years. Captain Mayne Reid was born in the North of Ireland in 1818. His father was a Presbyterian clergyman whose labors among the poor people of his native country have been highly spoken Captain Reid was educated for the ministry, but his love of adventure and desire for foreign travel soon led him to throw aside his theological studies and seek a more congenial occupation. From stories which he read of America and its resources caused a desire to visit this country. When only twenty years of age he sailed for New Orleans, where e began life as a trader. His business interests were of such a nature that he was obliged to make long journeys into the interior of the country. He made friends with the Indians of the Red River territory, and spent many months in learning their customs and enjoying the scenery of their picturesque camping grounds. Night after night he sat with the braves about their blazing campfires, and listened to the legends and money. tales of the medicine men. It was from

After spending five years upon the prairies and among the mountains of the western and southern States he settled in Philadelphia, where he began to contribute to the newspapers and magazines stories and sketches of travel When the Mexican War broke out in 1845 he obtained a commission in the United States Army and served during the entire campaign. A few years later he sailed from New York at the head of a body of volunteers for the purpose of aiding the Hungarians in their struggle for independence. The party had hardly arrived in Paris when Captain Reid received intelligence that the Hungarians had been compelled to lay down their arms. The volunteers were dismissed and their leader took up his abode in London, where he soon be gan to attract public attention by his hrilling stories of Western adventure. Novel after novel came from his pen in rapid succession, "The Rifle Rangers; or Thrilling Adventures in Southern Mexico." his first work appeared in 1850. Following this came the "Scalp Hunters," "The English Family Robin son" and "The Deserted Home." His books found great favor among the saved. boys and young men of England. Among his later stories are "The Young Voyageurs," "The White Chief" "The Wood Rangers," "The Tiger Hunter,"
"Cliff Crimbers," "Boy Slaves," and
"Afloat in the Forest." Captain Rei started a daily paper in London called The Little Times, but the venture was a financial failure. In January, 1369, he started a monthly magazine bearing the title Onward. It was published for a few months and was then suspended. The last few years of his life were devoted to magazine writing. Among his most recent literary work was a series of sketches published in The New York Tribune under the general title of "Rural Life in England.

Pat! came my pursuer after me; for he also had been running too swift a rate to check himself in time; and down he had come, and sunk into the mud almost within my reach. Had he been a little nearer, or had we kept our guns, we probably should have had a fight in that singular position. But we were just beyond each other's reach, and could not pick up even a stone or stick to throw or strike with. We then began to make desperate struggles to extricate our-selves from the mud. He, 1 observed, seemed to work to no effect, while I felt my shoes loosen a little under my feet, and then I recollected that he was barefooted, and that my shoes ight now give me some advantage.
