WILSON'S MUSIC STORE. In a letter to the New York Times Mr. J. S. Moore, the well known musician, writes that he has written the remarkable letters written by ex-Tariff Commissioner Porter on the condition of England under free trade.

I am about to startle my readers with some official figures which will convince any man of the influence of free trade and the influence of free trade. In 1840, when happy England was living under protection and prohibition; when 1,200 articles were taxed by the custom house, when many articles were not allowed to be imported at all; when the navigation laws were so sacred an institution in England as pig tails in China, the commitments of criminals in England and Wales were 27,187. The population of England and Wales in 1840 was 15,730,813. It therefore follows that there was one criminal to every 580 inhabitants. In fact, the criminals of 1840 in England and Wales were 27,187. They lived and thrived on the happy population, although 19,927 of those courageous people were convicted during that year. But in 1841 20,280 took their places, and they kept increasing until the year 1884, when England had 27,187 criminals. They were in fact, a characteristic of protection.

Now behold a remarkable change. After a lapse of forty-two years, in the year 1882, when free trade in England was rampant for twenty-two years, the commitments of criminals in England and Wales had increased to 27,187. In 1840 to 15,730,813 in 1882, a net decrease of no less than 12,929 criminals. But what is still more startling and no doubt appalling to the courageous criminal classes is that the commitments of criminals in England and Wales from 1840 to 1882 were 27,187, giving one criminal to every 1,730 of the population. The summary therefore stands thus: 1840 under protection, England and Wales, with a population of only 15,730,000 souls, could support and maintain 27,186 criminals, or one in each 580 of her inhabitants, while in 1882, with a population of 26,400,000, 27,187 criminals, or one in every 1,730 of the population.

Now what does this frightful decrease show? Why it clearly proves that free trade has uncared the courageous criminal classes, and has driven them to their death. For instance, the number of fresh cranberries all kinds made every day.

DEMOCRATIC DOCTRINE.

COLD COMFORT. Louisville Courier-Journal.

From the amount of cackling that is going on among the Republicans it seems that they are deriving a vast deal of satisfaction, not to say relief, from the fact that the National Democratic Committee, in its call for a general convention, said nothing about the tariff.

The Republicans are disposed to look on this as a proof that the Democrats have abandoned the tariff issue, which they so brilliantly made the opening of Congress, and will condescend to make a campaign on the non-commitment principle advocated by some of the protectionist Democrats.

The Republicans are welcome to extract all the comfort from this surmise that they can, generally they had, and they are making of the Democratic platform they could not construct one to suit themselves better, and if they think that they are warranted by the action of the Democratic Committee in drawing up the platform, they may as well meet one party fighting behind such amenable breastworks as tariff neutrality, then by all means they should make the most of such comfort.

They will soon discover their error. The National Committee met, determined on the plan for holding the convention, and issued its formal call, and therefor, it did not waste its time in a lot of political poppy-cock. It simply did its duty and went home. It had no authority to declare a platform for the Democratic party, the platform of last party is before the country, and has been for four years. It can not be changed until it is changed in convention. If the Republicans wish the Democratic platform amended to suit their views, they must have the job done there.

As to the charge that the committee, while in Washington, instructed the Democratic members of Congress that there should be no tariff legislation at this session, that is absurd. Individual members may have given such advice, and others like Mr. Morton may have insisted on an opposite course. It is to be presumed that there are differences on the tariff among the members of the committee, and protectionist, and the former protectionist Democrats realize this fact; the cleverer will be their understanding of what is before them.

Of one thing they may rest assured. There will be tariff legislation at this session of Congress, or at least a bill will be reported to the House, and if it is defeated, then the country will know whom to hold responsible for the defeat, whether they be Republicans or Democrats.

POSTSCRIPTS FOR PROTECTIONIST PORTERS.

George Bolles, the Negro boy employed at the Crouch farm, was next witness called. After testifying as to the length of time he had known the Crouch family, he said a few other facts of minor importance, Bolles told over again the story of the fatal night. He said that he saw the Crouch family on the morning of the fatal night, and that he saw the Crouch family on the morning of the fatal night.

William H. Hartup, a hardware dealer, was called. He swore to nothing positive, but he said that he was at the Crouch farm on the night of the fatal night, and that he saw the Crouch family on the morning of the fatal night.

Now what does this frightful decrease show? Why it clearly proves that free trade has uncared the courageous criminal classes, and has driven them to their death. For instance, the number of fresh cranberries all kinds made every day.

MICHIGAN NEWS.

ALLEGAN WARMED UP. The Fuel Costs Nearly Half a Million Dollars.

A fire started about a quarter before 11 o'clock, on the morning of March 13, in the upper part of T. O. Hoffman's grocery on Hubbard street in Allegan, and before the engine could get out of the engine house across the street from the fire the whole building was in flames. The flames ran up the ten wooden buildings, and it was evident at once that all must go. On the opposite side of the street was the Sherman house, a three-story brick structure, to which the fire leaped, and there a general panic seized every one. The wind was very strong from the south and swept the flames directly over the business portion of the town. Every business man commenced moving his goods at once to a place of fancied safety, but places which were deemed safe were quickly quashed by the flames and destroyed in an instant.

Following the Sherman house, the Empire block was reached, and then it was plain that both sides of Locust street were in flames. The block was struck by the fire. The Empire block was struck by the fire. The Empire block was struck by the fire.

The National Committee met, determined on the plan for holding the convention, and issued its formal call, and therefor, it did not waste its time in a lot of political poppy-cock. It simply did its duty and went home.

Grand Rapids Visitation.

That which proved to be a very destructive fire on Grand Rapids, Michigan, building on the canal near the business center of Grand Rapids, a few mornings since. It spread to other buildings, destroying four manufacturing concerns. About 80 men are thrown out of employment. The Bissell carpet-weaver company's building which was completely destroyed was situated on the story structure, R. E. Butterworth's building was also a good structure of four stories. The insurance is scattered in many companies, the Manufacturers of Chicago being the heaviest single insurer. The wind was blowing heavily at the time and the fire spread rapidly. The loss was about $250,000, which is below rather than above the actual figures. A reliable source is anywhere from $143,000 to $175,000.

SOME TERRIBLE TESTIMONY.

Taken at the Examination of Judge Crouch and Dan Holcomb.

When the examination was resumed on the morning of the fourth day, the court room was completely filled. It is a noticeable feature of this case that the public are so much interested in the trial, and that the interest is so much increased by the testimony of the witnesses.

Now what does this frightful decrease show? Why it clearly proves that free trade has uncared the courageous criminal classes, and has driven them to their death. For instance, the number of fresh cranberries all kinds made every day.

THE LYONS CASE.

"It, before Judge Howell, who has come out in the invitation of Judge Josely to preside in the trial of Sophie Lyons, she is convicted, her counsel and friends will no longer charge that between the prosecuting attorney and the defendant, the father-in-law, there was a determination to send this woman to prison."

[Ann Arbor Argus, February 7, 1884.]

The Lyons case has been tried by an honest and able judge, the defendant has been declared not guilty by an intelligent jury, and will the editor of the Argus now rise and explain?

SURAN ANTHONY says she wants to live to see Ben Butler president. This is a note way the live Susan has of saying she wants to live twice as long as she has already lived—in other words, she wants to be one of the few, the immortal old girls who were not born to die.

In Nashville last week ex-United States Marshal Spence murdered his son-in-law, ex-United States Marshal West. If such southern outrages are not stopped at once the republican party will not leave enough of itself in the south to represent that interesting wing of the grand old party at the Chicago convention.

Since Charles Grosvenor promises to carry Tennessee next fall he should run down there and have all government officials and ex-officials put under bond to refrain from murdering one another.

The Springfield Globe has been charged with being Mr. Keifer's organ, but it admits, with sorrow, that "the impression is surely growing that the reputation of General Keifer will be smirched before the investigation closes." There is a full grown impression all over the country that General Keifer has no decent reputation left to be smirched. It was a square issue of veracity between General Keifer and General Boynton. One of them lied and swore to it. From the very nature of the case it can not be mathematically demonstrated which is guilty of perjury, but there is an impression amounting to moral conviction that it was not General Boynton.

Somewhat American journals said Bismarck was sorry that he returned the Oehlthre Lasker resolution. They thought this sturdy controller of destinies of nations who has reconstructed the political map of Europe, was like a chastised schoolboy, and was whimpering that he wouldn't do it again. His speech yesterday in the reustag, which is given in our foreign dispatches, shows how sorry he is to have his name given to him in connection with the resolution. Bismarck's very plain and forcible statement that he, as the representative of the emperor, could not forward a resolution reflecting on the emperor's government, is unanswerable. But the high tempered channeller lets down from this high plane when he speaks of its transmission to him to be delivered to the reichstag as "conferring on me the part of postman," and makes a fling at the American minister as not possessing sufficient knowledge to have sent a confidential warning to his government against making him a postman. This descends from the high-pitch of an irate statesman to a low and irrational ground, as if the reason he had against transmitting the resolution to the reichstag was that it made him a messenger. But Bismarck was mad; he had his head in part of his argument, and lost it in part. And he went out of the line of reason to make a fling at Minister Sargent. This is undignified. His resentment is this undignified. His resentment is the offender, and show his resentment to that. His assertion that Prussia might claim the merit of having prevented the southern confederacy will attract attention. But he is probably measuring the influence of Prussia then by what she is now, and is claiming too much.—[Cincinnati News-Journal.]

UNRECORDED DEEDS.

Anything That Concerns Owners of Lands Without Clear Titles.

From the Register.

The following is a list of deeds in the Register's office which were handed in many years ago, and were not recorded because of the non-payment of the proper fees. It is worth the perusal of every person owning land in the county to which there is not a clear title, as it may contain the information necessary to remove a break in the title to a valuable piece of property. The preparation of the list has cost considerable hard work, and is given in the hope that it will prove of service to some of The Register's readers.

The Minnie orchestra rendered some very nice selections last Friday night, at the opera house, Ann Arbor, the most noticeable of which was a piccolo solo, "The Skylark," with orchestral accompaniment, which was finely executed by Mr. Fred McOmber.—Dexter Leader.
John Clair was arrested on the complaint of Mrs. Knapp for selling liquors to minors on the 17th inst. Saloon keepers have no right to sell boys under 21 years of age unless they present a prescription for it signed by some physician, otherwise the seller is liable. No man should sell liquor to boys no matter under what pretext they want it.
Prof. Mark W. Harrington, director of the observatory of Michigan university, is about to begin the publication of a monthly journal of 24 or 32 octavo pages, devoted to modern scientific meteorology and allied branches of study. Prof. Harrington is well equipped for doing the work well, and there is no reason to fear that the "American Meteorological Journal" will fail to fill the bill.

"The High School, Trouble."

In some respects the city of Ann Arbor has one of the best school systems anywhere to be found. The courses are quite complete and thorough, and a general earnestness is manifested on the part of teachers and pupils. So as a usual thing praise should be given to the schools and encouragement to the teachers. However, the recent actions of some of the school officers show a spirit decidedly unbecoming to themselves as men and teachers. When the superintendent of the school so far forgets his school, its best interests and all things else to satisfy personal jealousy, spite and ill temper, it is time to call a halt and question what man's further usefulness in the position he ceases properly to fill.
When a teacher comes into a school he should receive aid and support from the superintendent, especially so if that teacher proves a success by manifesting a talent for the work. Mr. Douglas from the first showed rare capabilities, first for organizing new methods and beginning new studies, and afterwards for teaching them. But all along he has been hampered by Supt. Perry's coldness, positive unkindness and opposition. His strange course, it may be said, Prof. Perry is not entirely responsible for, because it is well known that he has been continually worked up by another of whom the jealousy of Mr. Douglas and his success was an incentive.
By this carelessness for the good of the school it has how lost the services of one of its best teachers, and his place cannot easily be filled even after long search. Perry may be jubilant for a time over his petty triumph over one in authority below him, but in the end it will only bring gall to the lips of those who are using our school system as a personal tool of favor or revenge.
We cannot afford to have good teachers driven out, even if they do not trouble to the superintendent and his satellites in their whims and caprices. This abuse is by no means a new one, and much more could be written did space allow.—[Contra].

The above from the Courier meets our hearty approval. For 14 years Prof. Perry has been a servant in the employ of the school board. The question with many of our citizens is what portion of the high school building he lays claim to it.

It is quite probable that the annual convention of the Inter-collegiate Literary Association, representing societies from Hillsdale, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Ann Arbor, will be held with Alpha Nu, in this city in May. D. H. Jaff, '84, has been chosen by the latter society as their representative in the public contest, and R. F. Eldredge, '85, will read a paper before the executive session of the convention. W. C. Foote, '84, is president of the association.
The bicycle club has decided to institute an annual two days tournament to take place in June of each year. In order that this may be made a success and reflect credit upon the enterprise of our citizens it will be necessary to run it on a scale of sufficient magnitude to attract bicyclists and visitors from a distance. As the tournament is expected to be of some benefit to our citizens the club would like the aid of our business men to help start the undertaking. Toward this end it is proposed to solicit a guarantee fund to be used only in case of necessity. No part of the fund to be called for unless the receipts are insufficient to pay expenses. The profits, if any, to be used in conducting the next year's tournament.
The eminent actor W. E. Sheridan supported by Miss Louise Devonport, John F. Malone and a company of actors will be seen in this for the first time Friday evening when he begins a two night's engagement. On Friday evening March 21, Mr. Sheridan will present his famous character Louis XI in which he is said to be without an equal and in which part he has no rival artist excepting Henry Irving. For the last night of his engagement Saturday March 22 Othello will be the bill. The admirers of excellent acting have a rare treat in store for them. It is said of all men to know their power you must learn it of those who follow the same profession. Judged by this standard, W. E. Sheridan stands at the head of his profession. He has been winning golden opinions everywhere, and his recent tour of the Pacific states has been a grand success.
About eighty relatives, neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Katter, of Bridgewater, assembled at their residence on Tuesday night to help them celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary. Although it was their express wish that no presents be brought, yet it seemed impossible for friends to meet on such an occasion without leaving some mark of appreciation and a respect, consequently the following articles were presented: One ottoman, a tidy, three pair of gold-bowed spectacles, one gold-lined cup, two decorated china cups and saucers, and a twenty-shilling gold piece. W. W. Hess read an appropriate poem, written by Geo. P. Wright, which was enjoyed by all. The company then partook of an elegant repast and spent the evening in social enjoyment, departing at a late hour after congratulating the happy couple for their successful voyage of life, and wishing them many happy returns of the day.—[Manchester Enterprise].

James A. Coyle, a reporter of the Detroit Times, was badly hurt about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, while endeavoring to ride in a freight elevator from the business office to the editorial rooms on the fourth floor. He was alone at the time, and it is not known how he came to get caught in such an unpleasant position. A few moments after he had passed through the business office to find the elevator, an attaché in the office heard a crushing, crunching sound, and running to the shaft he saw Coyle jammed between the floor of the elevator and the wall of the shaft. Coyle was caught across the body, and his legs were hanging down. "The man who made this shocking discovery stopped the elevator just in time to save Coyle's life. When the unfortunate reporter was taken out he appeared unconscious and black in the face. The bystanders thought he was dead, but Drs. Summers and Noyes soon brought him around and had him taken to the Michigan college of medicine hospital, whence he was subsequently removed to St. Mary's hospital. At last accounts Mr. Coyle's condition was considered very critical. A medical examination showed that his lungs are crushed and that one of the bones of his breast is pressed against the lungs. This causes a hemorrhage, and blood flows from his eyes. The physicians do not think he will recover.—[Evening News].
Mr. Coyle is a son of Luke Coyle of this city, and brother of Mrs. M. H. Brennan.

A call meeting of students interested in base ball was held in Shaban's hall yesterday, to decide upon re-entering the Western College Association.

"NOT GUILTY."

SO SAID THE JURY IN THE SOPHIE LYONS CASE.
"ONLY TWO MEN IN WASHINGTON COUNTY PERPLEXED AT THE DECISION."
THEY WILL PROBABLY GET OVER IT.
Everybody Seems to Be Satisfied That the Persecution is Over.
The case of the people against Sophie Lyons has finally ended. This much persecuted woman has, after eight days trial, been declared not guilty, and the verdict of the jury gives general satisfaction. The attendance each day during the trial was large, many in the audience being ladies. The readers of THE DEMOCRAT are familiar with this now famous trial which has cost the tax-payers of this county thousands of dollars, and the whole business seems to have been a put up job by the notorious Theresa Lewis, of Detroit. This woman was paid by the police commissioners of the above city $500 to produce evidence that would result in the conviction of Mrs. Lyons. She has been persistent in this endeavor, (how far successful is now fully demonstrated.) The case on the part of the people was ably conducted by prosecuting attorney Whitman, assisted by J. Willard Babbitt, of Ypsilanti. Jno. F. Lawrence Esq., of this city, and Col. Jno. Atkinson and J. W. Hawley, of Detroit, put forth their best endeavors
FOR THE DEFENDANT.
Inch by inch was the case contested by counsel for defense; they well knew that before an impartial judge right would triumph over wrong. The slurs and insinuations of a few persons who wished to see the defendant convicted
ON GENERAL PRINCIPLES
is the talk of the town. That they should take so much interest in Theresa Lewis, the notorious, is a mystery.
When the words "not guilty" fell from the lips of the foreman, Mr. Thos. Young, a dramatic scene followed. Mrs. Lyons sprang forward in an impassioned manner and, throwing her arms about the neck of Col. Atkinson, exclaimed, "O, colonel, my friend, at last!" while the other counsel for the defense, Mr. J. F. Lawrence, retired to a safe distance behind the table. Afterwards there was a general hand-shaking with the jurors, and court and defendant, and congratulations followed.
The long and tedious case was ended, and the woman who had withstood the ordeal of three trials was pronounced innocent of the charges of jury. Could the secret be unveiled, and the animus exhibited in this particular case explained, the facts would make
AN INTERESTING STORY.
Mrs. Lewis was not in the court room when the verdict was announced, but showed the same self-control and stolidity that had characterized her appearance on the witness stand. She expressed great indignation at the charges made against her and one of her sustaining witnesses by Col. Atkinson in his argument. She declared that if she lived she would make him regret the attack, and hinted
AT ANOTHER LIEBEL SUIT,
probably meaning the one she has commenced against the Detroit Evening News. She only asks for $50,000 damages; perhaps she would take less. A Washnetan county jury refused to be lashed her under oath; will a Detroit jury put any confidence in what she says? We think not.
It is reported on the street, and was also published in the Free Press this morning that Jno. M. Braun voted for conviction. This is not true. Mr. B. believed Mrs. Lyons innocent, and voted every time in the negative.

Says the Ypsilantiian: A stock company has been formed by some of our capitalists to work the Babbitt quarry in Huron county. The stock is $50,000, paid up, and the corporation is called the Babbitt sandstone company, having for officers A. J. Leitch, president, D. C. Griffin, secretary, and Charles King, treasurer.
