Dispatches of the 28th give the following resume of the condition of affairs:

From Big Rapids: During the heavy gale yesterday the following property in this vicinity was destroyed by fire, which was running in the woods at the time: House, barn and farm tools of George Adams, residing two and a half miles west of town; dwelling of C. Chapin. four miles southwest; dwelling of Henry Bennett, ten miles southwest; barn, hay, buggies, sleighs and farm tools of H. Miner, four miles northwest; barn of A. B. Reed, three miles northeast of town. There has been no rain in two weeks, and the forest fires, which have been burning more or less for some days, were fanned by the high wind of yesterday and last night into fierce and uncontrolia-

Luke Phipps to be Hanged June 17 The public are familiar with the details of Luke Phipps, on a ferry boat between Detroit and Windsor in the summer of 1883. It will be remembered that Phipps was arrested and lodged in the jail in Sandwich from which institution he escaped in November last, together with one Greenwood, and that after some weeks Phipps was recaptured in Pullman, I'll. He made a determined effort to have his case tried on the American side, and the matter was finally determined effort to have his case tried on the American side, and the matter was finally determined effort to have his case tried on the American side, and the matter was finally determined effort to have his case tried on the American side, and the matter was finally determined effort to have his case tried on the American side, and the matter was finally determined effort to have his case tried on the Michigan the old-time Republican majority.

A little later on the clerk of the court called at the names of the jurors and finally got the out the names of the jurors and hanly got the cequited number in their positions, with Embro lodd as foreman. The prisoner seemed well attacked with the men chosen. The crown was represented by Mr. Lister, Q. C., and Col. W. Romeyn of Detroit and Solomon White, M. P. P., for the prisoner.

The case was opened by Mr. Lister. Witnesses were at once called and testified to the description of the prisoner.

nesses were at once called and testined to the domestic troubles of the prisoner and his wife, and gave a recital of a long series of difficulties which finally culminated in the fearful tragedy. Other witnesses were sworn as to the scene on the boat, and the distance of the vessel from the shore when the fatal shot was fired.

mercy for the prisoner, and marshaled together all the argument that could be brought for ward in his favor.

Q. C. Lister grimly clinched the last link in the chain. The judge, in a calm, even voice, with marked English accent, gave a most impartial charge that was the more crushing for the prisoner on account of its evident fairness, and the jury filed out. They were out about half an hour, and that time must have been the most terrible in Phipps' life, and when the jury filed slowly to their places the faces of many of them were as pale as that of the pisoner. As he agerly scanned them one by one he saw no hope. Amidst a deep silence, although the court room was packed full, the clerk asked the yerdie'.

"Guilty, ray Lord," replied the fore man, in a voice scarcely audibleAn awful silence fell upon all as the judge nervously turned over the pages of the large calendar, for all knew the figures he would choose would be the day ou which Phipps must pay the penalty for als crime.

At last the Judge spoke: "Luke Phipps, have you anything to say why judgment should not be pronounced against you!"

Phipps at first shook his head, but finally rose and holding the rail with both hands, said huskily: "Nothing, except that it was not wilful murder."

The judge then, without assuming the cus

Michigan Republicans in Convention

at Grand Rapids. The Republican state convention met in Grand Rapids on the 24th inst., and in all respects was a large, harmonious and enthusiastic gathering. The convention assembled with the memory of reverses behind, but with a firm determination to recover the lost ground, and a hopeful feeling that it could be done. Aside from the delegates chosen at the many district conventions, there were present many of the most prominent leaders and zealous workers in the party. The convention was called to order by Wm. Livingstone, Jr., and an impressive prayer offered by the Rev, J. E. Gilbert, pastor of the Division street M. E. church, Grand Rapids. The call for the convention was then read by his attendance upon the convention.

The Hon. Roswell G. Horr of East Saginaw was then called as temporary chairman, and his appearance was greeted with enthusiastic applause. He was in good mood for making a speech, and there was an inspiration in the intelligent, representative body of men who were anxious to hear him. He fittingly expressed his gratitude for being called upon to preside over such a convention as few states and only the Republican party could produce. He would know it was a Republican convention should he meet it in Greenland. He spoke further of the objects for which the convention had been called, and of his confidence that whoever should be named at the Chicago convention would receive the support of the party, and be ratified by the people at the polls in November next. The speech of Mr. Horr was an able one, and the sentiments expressed met the hearty approval of the conventions of his earthers the his attendance upon the convention.

Again Mr. Horr's name was brought before the convention, A. J. Sawyer of Washtenaw moving a suspension of the rules and Horr's nomination by acclamation. This was carried with a yell. There was an attempt by several to secure racognition by the chair, but the calls for Horr were uproarlous and broke into a rousing cheer as Mr. Horr stepped to the front of the stage in response.

Thos. D. Gilbert of Kent county was proposed by N. A. Earle, when several speeches were made in support of the various candidates. Jay A. Hubbell made a strong appeal for the upper peninsula, and made a motion that one of the delegates at large be chosen from the upper peninsula. Capt. Allen moved a suspension of the rules, that the election of Mr. Swift be made by acclamation which was done with a rush. Mr. Swift was called for, but he simply acknowledged the honor conferred upon him and requested that the work of the convention proceed.

When or how Allen gained possession of them, Mr. Winney cannot tell, nor can he obtain any father information of interest to the public from Allen, but the Sheriff says he has no use for the man, and the detectives and prosecuting Attorney may have him and welcome; and he hopes, that his statement which will be made on his examination may divulge something that we don't already know, but he doubts it. He could find no lawyer in Hamilton that was willing to come over here and attend to his case, and therefore thinks that he will be arraigned specdily; when an effort will be made to get him to talk. The Sheriff says that the statement of the eastern papers that he said he had a clear case against Holcomb, is entirely false.

THE ALTERNATES. The following siternates for the delegates at large were then speedily put through by acclamation:
Joseph B. Moore of Lapeer, Ezra L. Koon of Hillsdale, Aaron B. Turner of Kent, Geo. W. Robie of Mason.
The next buisness was the choice of chairman of the state central committee, and the name of Judge Van Zile of Charlotte was presented. After some discussion upon the matter, a motion to elect Van Zile by acciamation was carried. Gen. Pierce of Grand Rapids, after which Mr.

Livingston read a letter from Mr. Lacey, the chairman of the Republican state central committee, whose duties in Washington prevented in the committee of arrangements and Chairman Burch mittee, whose duties in Washington prevented were adopted, and the convention adjourned with cheers.

The various congressional districts held caucuses or conventions preceeding the state convention. So far as their action concerned the selection of scretaries, members of committees, etc., the results appear in their proper place in the reports of the state convention.

A. M. Henry was chosen chairman of the Wayne delegation, and T. C. Sherwood, secretary. After the order of business had been agreed upon, Col. Henry M. Duffield presented the name of Gen. R. A. Rowlson of Hillsdale and Burton Parker of Monroe were elected members of the state central committee.

In reference to the presidential nomination the convention took the view that no preferences should be expressed on account of the long interval before the Chicago convention. The delegates to Chicago are non-committal at present, though an intimate friend of one of

"Spots on the Brain."

Dr. Foot's Health Monthly. One of our wide-awake New York weeklies (The Hour) presents an article under the above heading which is timely and which cautions the active and over-energetic brain-workers of the present time. The article begins by eferring to the fact that the postmortem examination held upon the remains of the late Herr Lasker revealed the fact tnat the brain was really clouded with spots which, in the course of time, would have impaired his mind had he not ill in a hurry, and die with scarcely time to say our prayers. That this abnormal condition of unrest pervades all classes of workers, particularly brain-workers, is an admitted fact. We have, as a people, got into a way of rashing things which it seems difficult to avoid. Competition has kept pace with high pressure desires, and now a man must keep pace with the times or sink out of sight. Instances are thick as leaves in Autumn of persons in the prime of life breaking down under the strain of overwork and over-worry. The streets are filled with men who carry about with them spots on their brains-the victims of speculation, over-work, or extreme business cares. They may be found at the bar, in the pulpit, at the

DRAIN TILE All our Drain Tile are made of Fire Clay, are of unusual strength and light weight, which materially reduces the breakage and expense of transportation.

The ditching for this class of tiling is less expensive, as they do not require to be laid below frost but only deep enough to escape the plow.

While this is more economical it also aids obtaining a better "fall" or grade to the drain.

The old lady in question is a widow, and supports herself and family by the sale of the milk from four cows. She is not ambitious to shine in the social world. Her chief objects in life are to live contentedly and keep her name out of the papers, and this she has generally managed to do.

A few weeks ago, while attending to the least bravado, her cheeks flushing, and her duties in the stable, shewas attacked by one of her cattle, an angry bull, knocked down and trampled upon. Two of her ribs were broken, and she was severely bruised withal. Paramount to every other consideration, however, at this time came the thought that if the accident became known the sanctity of her home would be invaded by newspaper prowlers, and her priyate affairs paraded before the world. She therefore resolved to keep the se-cret locked in her own breast, and not even to her own daughter did she tell the particulars of the accident. To the doctor who attended her she merely stated briefly that she had slipped and Salt is the only mineral substance required by man and the higher order of animals as an article of food. It is found in some form in hearly all parts of the world, and is generally obtained with but little trouble. It is found in a solid state in mines, and in a liquid state in the ocean, salt lakes, and springs. When liquid, it is necessary to evaporate the fresh water in order to get the salt. This is done in three ways; by the heat of the sun, by boil-ing, and by freezing the water. The water from the ocean in tropleal countries is generally allowed to stand in shallow basins and evaporate by the heat of the sun. The water from lakes and springs is usually evaporated by boiling, or by artificial heat under shallow pans. In extremely cold with a dull, heavy feeling. There was countries the water is frozen; the ice formed is perfectly fresh, and the unfrozen water, beneath, a strong brine, which is evaporated by boiling.

My negative evidence is as follows: 1. I myself am right-legged, and in mist I always circle to the left. I have only come across cases similar to my own in these respects. On the other hand, my left arm has been trained (by always rowing on the bow side) to be stronger than my right for rowing purposes; and in sculling I always circle to my right side.

2. Those savages of whom I have read that they could keep a straight course without any landmark, were also represented as using both arms (and legs?) impartially.

The Emperor William's Health. In spite of the dreaded apparition of the White Lady, and notwithstanding all the evil forebodings entertained in the German capital at the Emperor's recent indisposition, the old monarch has once more regained his health, and with it his good humor. A vivacious French contemporary records that the Emperor recently gave a proof of his high spirit by saying to the sentinel at his door: "My boy, if you should see the White Lady, tell her to come back a black silk tie; never satio, black or after lifteen years." He gives the fol-lowing explanation of the octogenarian's disregard of the dreaded visitant. On hearing the news of the apparition which bodes death to one of the Hohenzollerns, the Emperor, in dismay, expressed a desire to hear the verdict of another authority. Dr. Lauer, the Emperor's body physician, agreed, and sent for a gypsy, who, with the light of inspiration in her eyes, said: 'Sire, you will live to be 100 years old; your son, and Prince Royal, will not reign, but your grandson, Prince William, will be your immediate success.' will be your immediate successor."

The Emperor loves life more than he oves the crown prince; he adores his grandson, and the prospect of fifteen years more of life and of the succession to the throne by his favorite, have given him new strength and confidence nuch to the satisfaction of his loyal Future analysts may well describe ious body physician, who, if the story this period of American history as the were true, would, no doubt, have in-
