As a matter of fact, American wages in the principal protected industries have decreased instead of increased. In 1870 the average annual wages of the protected iron industry was $450 in gold, in 1880 it was $393, while to-day it is still lower. In 1870 the average in the protected glass industry was $418, in 1890 it was $272. unbarmed, but in the Detroit for repairs.

In contrast to this, the highest wages are paid to workmen in those industries which are unprotected by the tariff. Thus, while in the leading protected industries of iron, wool, cotton and glass the average wages are in each $393, $293, $243 and $378; in the unprotected industries, say of scales, carpentering and printing, the average is $524, $457 and $665, respectively.

Mr. Blaine has certainly not increased his reputation for honesty or practical, narrow and demagogic discussion of the tariff.

I am honored by this nomination in a very special degree. I accept the suggestion that in this candidacy I will represent the right of the people to choose their own rulers that right that is above all, that lies beneath it, for if people are denied the right to choose their own officers according to their own judgment what shall become of the rights of the people at all? What shall become of the rights of free government? If the people select not their officers how shall they control the laws, their administration and their execution? So that in suggesting that in this candidacy, I represent the rights of the people, as you have suggested, a great honor has devolved upon me, by the confidence of the convention. So soon as it may be convenient and possible to do so I will address you more formally in respect to the letter you have given me. I thank you, gentlemen.

At the close of Mr. Hendricks' remarks hearty applause was given, and he was introduced to each member of the committee and a general handsnaking followed, after which the people paid their respects to Mr. Hendricks and then quietly dispersed.

Since the outbreak at Toulon the cit a fairs, write home about it, and try to institute reforms. But such men soon get recalled. It is more than whispered that some of the colonial officers and titled statesmen are the proprietors of the stores that are run under different names. Thus there is wealth and every luxury in a few houses in Newfoundland and a mortal struggle for existence everywhere else, and struggle against ungenerous nature as well as human rapacity and injustice. Skirting the coast for a hundred miles, one sees no animals grazing, no garden patch near a house or hut, no forests nor orchards ——nothing but the rocks, the barrens of stunted pines or pine bushes, and the bare, sterile plains. Nothing offers food except the sea, and that is full of hardship and danger to the toilers. now prevails at Marseilles and Toulou is Asiatic cholera imported, beyond al reasonable doubt, from Salgon, China, by the French transport Southe to the port of Toulon. At first the disease was a type medi cally classified as "benign," but its maliguity has since incurred by its further diffusion and development and the influence of continual hot weather. In compliance with instructions from the department this consulate has a certained from official sources that no emigrants have recently left either Toulon or Marscilles by sea for the United States. It should be added, however, that few emigrants for American ports, ever embark here, as atteamers leaving Marscilles always touch at one or more Mediterranean stations before leaving their final point of departure and emigrants usually go by rall to this ultimate port of departure to embark for the United States. It is therefore respectfully suggested that all vessels bringing immigrants or baggage to the United States from Bordeaux, Havre, La Rocheile, or any other French part not yet declared infected, should be subjected upon their arrival to most careful sanitary regulations. Clean bills of health have been refused at this consulate to all vessels clearing for ports in the United States since June 25, and none such first the proceeded to the campaign. A SCHEME TO PURCHASE CUBA. A SCHEME TO PURCHASE CURA.

It is announced in Washington, on the au thority of Geo. H. Butler, that a syndicate headed by ex-Gov. Warmouth, of Louisians, and including August Belmont, S. L. M. Barlow, Pierce Lorrillard and Leland Stanford, of New York, also James Gordon Bennett, John A. Mackey, has been formed for the purchase of Cuba for use as a sugar and tobacco plantation, the price being $100,000,000, the Rothchild's to guarantee the purchase money, $20,000,000 of which is to be paid down and the remainder in installments of $5,000,000 on nursicond so quarantee the purchase money, $20,000,000 of which is to be paid down and the remainder in installments of $5,000,000 annually. The syndicate will conduct its affairs like the old East India company, and proposes to maintain on the island armed constabulary 1,500 strong, enlisted for five years. The United States is to be asked to take a hand in it by modifying its anti-Chinese laws so as to allow iomigration of Chinese to Cuba, and to keep small garri risons in the prizcipal towns; after 10 years the island to be turned over to the United States, the latter to assume the remaining debt of $30,000,000 of the purchase money and the syndicate to retain enough of the best sugar and tobacco lands to refmburse with profit.
It is also said that John Russell Young has been offered $25,090 a year to act as general factor for the syndicate, Geo. C. Gorman to take his place if he cannot serve, and Pinch back of Louisville to act as governor of the Negro population. Warmouth is said to have planned and worked up the scheme. He is

The New Rugby. A newspaper correspondent gives the following illustration of Tom Hughes'

American Rugby: Rugby, as a town, is not dead, mainy because it has never had strength enough to go into final convulsions. A Georgia man hit it off for me thus: "Did you ever go a-fishin'," he said, waving back all interruptions, "with a four-dollar livery team, and a three dollar tackle, a dollar lunch, fish all day, spile your clothes, get sunburnt and catch a cussed little valler catfish with his head jined onto his tail?" I intimated that I had been through some such experiences.

"Well," he said, "that's the kind of town Rugby is." Rugby is certainly not growing, and so far as I can see there is no one worrying about it. They have a lawn-tennis club, a social club, an amateur brass band, a library and a church and good fishing and hunting. Added to this, many of the colonists have some independent income, and why should they fret themselves prematurely gray?

A prominent Philadelphia insurance man said to a reporter: "It is surprising how few people would insure their lives unless induced to do so by agents or brokers. I do not think one-fifth of the number of policies annually issued by ife insurance companies are unsoicited. In consequence a large proportion of the year's premiums have to be paid by way of commissions to the agents—a very hardworking body of men, by the way. It seems strange, however, that we can not buy real estate, or dabble in stocks, or insure our lives, or do a hundred other things without employing and paying somebody else to do it

WITH each succeeding day Grover Cleveland's chances become brighter and brighter. In all sections of the country prominent republicans who have been identified with the party for years are coming out for the democratic nominees. The signs of the times are encouraging and everything points to the election of Cleveland and Hendricks.

We have been asked to favor certain candidates for county offices. Now we want it distinctly understood that we favor no candidate. The convention will store formerly occupied by C. A. Lewis, select the men they want and we will on Huron-st., an elegant line of steel engive them our hearty support. work. The ground of Mr. Cleveland's veto was based upon a clause in the railroad charter which provided that uncertain amount no reduction in fares should be made. No facts were presented to indicate that the earnings had reached the specified amount, and on the ground that the state could not violate its own contracts it was vetoed. Had it become a law it would only have been tional. The governor saved the people and the state so much time and expense. lieve republicans will make no permanent capital out of that matter. THE nomination of ex-Gov. John E. prohibitionists has been greeted with expressions of genuine enthusiasm by the members of that organization in all parts of the country. The prohibition leaders intend to make a vigorous campaign in the states where the sentiment in favor of sumptuary legislation is the strongest, and by thus centering their efforts secure the balance of political power. A vigorous canvass on the part of the prohibitionists will seriously embarrass the calculations of the republican managers. There are a large number of prohibitionists in Kansas, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio and New York, and it is not trespassing beyond the bounds of absolute truth to say that the most of them were formerly republicans who have become disgusted with the two-faced and hypocritical course of the republican party in dealing with the temperance question. They are terribly in earnest in the advocacy of their peculiars, of the day were to take place. By two o'clock 5,000 people had assembled to listen to the orator of the day, the Hon. Jas. E. O'Hara, of North Carolina. Mayor Harriman delivered the address of welcome. He was followed by Capt. Allen, of Ypsilanti. A poem was then read by J. H. Starks, after which Mr. O'Hara was introduced. He spoke for an hour and his remarks were attentively listened to. The exercises closed by in earnest in the advocacy of their peculiar views, and they will certainly do a well timed speech by Hon. A. J. Sawsome very effective work in behalf of their candidates. They have been fooled too long by the tricky republican leaders to repose any confidence in the charge of assault with intent to murder, promises and overtures which the latter will undoubtedly make to induce them to desert St. John and rally around the standard of Blaine and Logan. Prohibitionists are engaged in a contest for principle, and they will not be swerved from the line of their political duty by the specious talk of republican judases who kiss in order to betray. Some of the most estate religious the most astute politicians place the strength of the prohibitionists in Michigan at 20,000 votes. If they poll that number of votes for St. John the repub-lican jig is up in this state.—Lansing Republican.

"The examination of Billington, the was called Saturday afternoon. Mr Dunn, the old gentleman who was injured by the prisoner, was able to be in court, although still suffering from the effects of the blow. Prosecuting Attor-ney Whitman subjected Mr. Dunn to a long examination in private before the examination, at the conclusion of which the prosecuting attorney said that Mr Dunn would make a statement to the court which would explain his position. Mr. Dunn accordingly said that he remembered nothing about his going to Billington's room or what occurred afterward and that possibly he ought not to have gone. Under these circumstances he feared that if he pressed the case he might do his assailant some injustice as he was a young man. Owing to Mr. Dunn's assertion that he could remem-ber nothing the prosecuting attorney considered that there was not sufficient evidence of a positive nature to warrant the holding of the defendant for trial and the case was discontinued. All our Drain Tile are made of Fire Clay, are f unusual strength and light weight, which ma erially reduces the breakage and expense of Transportation.

The ditching for this class of tiling is less expensive, as they do not require to be laid below frost but only deep enough to escape the plow.

While this is more economical it also aids obtaining a better "fall" or grade to the drain.

Which embodies all the principles of a first-class machine. In it are combined all the advantages of the best Mowers in se, with many points peculiarly its own. No machine that is made contains within itself so many Excellencies that recomaend it to the farmer 1. To begin with, it is a FRONT CUT, four feet, and four feet three inch machine, and carries with it all the advantages of a creat over a rear cut machine. The question has been settled everywhere in the last few years in favor of the front cut, and now in the mind of the intelligent buyer it simply becomes a question as to the relative merits of the different front cut

It took but a minute to change the expression on faces from one of contempt to that of pity and sympathy. The boy was but a poor waif, but he kneeled by the side of his best-loved earthly friend, and he was dead. The Rainy Day "My heart leaps up when I behold
A ralubow in the sky,
So was it when my life began,
So it is now, I am a manSolet it be when I shall grow old,
So let me die."

What has become of the good oldfashioned rainy day of our childhood, when we got up and found the windows of heaven opened, and sheet after sheet of sweet, fresh-smelling soft water pour-ing down like a benediction upon the earth; when we knew we could stay home from school, and hunt into all the old corners, and lie on our stomachs to read books too large to hold, and have warm bread with apple jam on it, and stand under the eaves to grow; when it rained in a steady business-like way all day, with no let-up, and little pools of water were on the kitchen hearth, and mother sat by the west window and cut carpet rags, and told us about the deluge in a way that always convinced us she must have been there? That rainy day, that never failed to come just so often, when we were allowed to follow her into the spare room where sister Cynthia was "laid out," and which smelled of sweet lavender and rose leaves. There mother told us of the one little sister dead before we were born, how pretty and smart she was, how she knew all the catechism by heart, and could say chapters and chap-ters and chapters from the Bible without ever looking on. And we saw her picture and her clothes, and subdued and half-saddened we stole up to the attic to watch the little nimble bright eyed mice come out and play. And when at sunset a long, bright strip of sky shone out from a great, gray moving panorama of cloud, we were more than happy. It was like the resurrection of a new world. And there was always a rainbow; and mother would tell us its significance,

The founder of this agency Allan Pinkerton died a few weeks ago, per-haps the most widely known of any of our public men. He came to our country a comparatively short time ago poor and unknown, and for many years followed the humble occupation of a cooper. Shrewd to a remarkable de-gree, his talent could not long lie dormant, and soon he began in a quiet way to do detective work, and success erowned his efforts. His success was not due in any way to what is commonly called luck, but to the inherent principles of right which were manifest in all his dealings, aided by an indomitable will. When he had attained the position of world's great battle field.

Invaribly his advice to those who sought it was to avoid room and In his professional work he had learned that in almost every instance clerks are very unhappy mortals. They are expected to live and dress well on a very moderate salary. In order to meet these requirements they are often tempted to the commission of petty crimes, which prove but the stepping stone to sins of greater magnitude. His advice in this, as in many other things, is well worth heeding. Get rid an accountant is the one thing above all others to be desired. Good Riddance of Rats.

Rat and mice are a natural and unavoidable punishment for neglect, careon a farm so stocked with rats that they fought and squealed with the pigs for a share of their food, and at times drove teen-year-old widow who stormed the citadel of fortune so bravely won the day.

The burying of a dog is for the pay. The burying of a dog is not much, but the binding up the wounds in the heart of that boor boy on ground, and laid it tight with hemlock ground, and laid it tight with hemlock piank. Every hiding place inside and outside was removed. The cornerib was set on capped posts and wire netting was nailed around the bottom and the eaves. The sheep-pen was cleared of everything that could harbor vermin. The horse stable and cow-stable were paved with cobble stones covered with cement and gas tar, and everything was left open. The barn was built on posts eighteen inches above the ground, and the floors were made tight everywhere. No place was left to the rats or mice, but the doors to go in at, and, except the barn, no place was left to hide in. Then half a dozen cats were raised some mice came in with the grain or corn from the fields, but they had a short time before the cats had picked them up. 1 could never tell what I saved, because I never knew what I lost. But I saved myself a great deal of worry the bags were free from holes, and the corn in the cr.b smelled no more so foully of rats and mice. There is nothing better to protect grain and meal bins than broad hoop iron nailed on the edges on both sides, inside or outside, as may be most convenient; and hemlock plank should be used to build them of because of its sharp, splintery nature; and, perhaps, this device might be safely used even with the other means of prevention.

At the last drawing ticket No. 67,552 drew the fourth capital prize of $6,000, and one-fifth was collected by the German National bank for Chris Hettinger, an honest and industrious carpenter. Mr. Hettinger was looking over the morning Avalanche when he came to his number. He hastily remarked to a friend "By Joe, I believe I have struck it this time," and rashed off for his ticket. He was overjoyed to find that it was a tally.

Ticket No. 12,333 drew the first capital prize of $75,000, and one-fifth was held by a well-to-do farmer living in the quaint and picturesque little town of Canadaville, Fayette county, Tenn. An Avalanche reporter paid a visit recently to Canadaville and was introduced to the lucky farmer. His face was all aglow with good nature. He said that his good fortune enabled him to make some improvements in his place that he had long been wanting to make, but felt unable to do so. He said he had begun life with nothing. Material Progress of the State. A new edition of Tackabury's "Atlas of the state of Michigan," first published in 1873, affords some data for a comparison of the material and other interests of the state now and then. At the time the materials for the first editions were being collected the state had been enjoying an era of exceptional prosperity. Immigration into the northern counties had been at flood-tide; crops had been good and prices for all kinds of products were high; the construction of railroads had been unprecedented, the number of miles in the state leaping from 812 miles in 1863 to 3,252 miles in 1873 Mining operations had also been expanding rapidly. The copper mines produced 15,045 tons refined copper in 1873 against 6,492 tons in 1868, while the product of the iron mines and furnaces for 1873 was for that of 1860 During the same period the production of pine lumber had in-creased over ten-fold, and the progress

Congress must be enabled to settle all questions of national concern, and his catarrh. must have the range of the objects under its dominion extended sufficiently prevent any petty local legislature from being able to thwart the will and endanger the welfare of the whole peoole. It must have full power to regulate the entire question of transportation, in order that artificial boundaries may not be the shelter and refuge of those owerful combinations who now regulate it to suit themselves. For the reason that transportation is so intimately allied to commerce that the two cannot in practice be separated, as well for other reasons hardly less cogent. the establishment of a uniform code of commerce for the whole country must be

A Pen Picture of Chinese Gordon. W. T. Stead contributes to the August Century a charming pen picture of Gen. Chinese Gordon, whose perilous situation in Egypt at the present time is a matter for which the English government is being severely criticised. He

In person General Gordon is slight valued at $11,395,881 against $1,416,930 and short. His appearance is more suggestive of activity than stateliness, and nothing can be more unassuming than his manner. There is a beautiful child-like simplicity about his smile, of the state in other respects had about which recalls, by a certain curious association of ideas, the impression produced by the first sight of Mr. Carlyle. But there is something about his lower face suggestive of latent "hard-ness" of a will that can be as of iron and of a decision that shrinks not at hewing Agag in pieces before the Lord, should the necessity unfortunately arise. In him a sympathy as impulsive and as tender as that of a woman is united with the fierceness and daring of an ancient Viking. The man is positive ly unique in this combination of puritan and crusader, humanitarian and soldier revolutionist and man of order, idealist and man of affairs, that our times have seen. The diversified influences flowing from this heterogeneous conglomeration of antithetical qualities act and react upon his mind with a most bewildering result. Never was there any man so difficult to follow, or so easy to understand. "Gordon," said one who knew him well, "was created for the purpose of confounding all newspaper editors. He never says the same thing twice or sticks to one opinion two hours together. Yet, by those who are capaclearing away the apparent inconsistencies, there will be found a clear silver thread of consistent purpose running through all his impulsive vagaries of thought and expression." To the creatures of routine and humdrum General Gordon is a sheer lunatic. To the official with his red tape and straight lace he is a bete noir. A man who is constantly saying and doing the most parstantly saying and doing the most paradoxical things, whose mind is quick-silver, and whose life is dominated by a curious combination of the religious principles of Cromwell and Thomas a Kempis, is indeed an incomprehensible phenomenon to the dwellers in the well-ordered realm of commonplace. Those who have no faith, but only habits, are naturally at a loss to account for a man of admitted genius whose convictions are the oddest jumble of enthusiasm that can be imagined.
