Up in a little Rocky Mountain town in Colorado, one day, a boy called his teacher to his side, and pointing to a picture of a cornfield in his geography, asked what "those things were" referring to the round objects lying among the corn-stalks. The teacher thought she was being chaffed, and answered, a little impatiently: "Why Willie, don't you know a pumpkin when you see it?" Oh, are them things pumpkins?" said Willie. "I never saw any only in tin cans." Investigation proved that only six children out of the thirty-five in the room, had ever seen apples on a tree.

Allegan County Indians. Correspondence Detroit Post.

Correspondence Detroit Post.

Steps are now being taken which will result in placing some of the Indians who live in Allegan county in a more independent and responsible position. The few favored aborigines are a band of Ottawas, and live in Wayland township upon a tract of 360 acres of land. They were originally placed upon these lands thirty years ago by Bishop Samuel McCoskry of Detroit, who held the property by deed of trust, he receiving it from the Episcopal church. The band now numbers twerty-two men and they were, at the time of their settlement in Allegan county, under Chiefs Saginaw, Penaase and Shopquenag. At present their leader and missionary is D. K. Foster, an intelligent Indian.

Since 1855 the lands above mentioned have been held in trust by Bishop McCoskry until the early part of the present year, and since that time by Judge W. B. Williams of Allegan to whom Mr. McCoskry resigned. Lately Judge Arnold of the circuit court appointed Judge Williams special trustee of the lands and authorized a division of them. The Indians themselves have agreed as to the proportion and will receive from ten to seventy acres each. They are all citizens and some of them are quite industrious; others are shiftless, improvident and get very drunk. The lands which they occupy have been sold for taxes several times, and it is chiefly with an idea of giving each Indian the responsibility of his own hunting grounds that the division is made.

Armstrong Acquitted.

The trial of Abia Armstrong for the murder of his wife and her paramour ended in the circuit court at Newaygo on the 21st, the jury bringing in a verdict of acquittal. We append a brief resume of the case and the causes which led to the crime.

Armstrong who is aged 35, had a young wife whom ne suspected of criminal intimacy with George Bates, a boarder at his house. On the night of Oct. 5 he took their only child up to bed and found Armstrong sitting beside his wife who was lying on the bed. The wemau sent her husband on an errand to a neighbor's, haif a mile away, and on looking through a window Armstrong saw Bates get into the bed. He did the errand, however, and on returning found Bates still in the room. Armstrong says he then took an ax and threatened to break in the door. It was opened, when his wife grasped him around the arms and told Bates to go down stairs for the revolver. Armstrong swung the sx and nearly severed his wife's head from her body. Going down he met Bates, who chased him with the pistol, when Armstrong turned and killed him. He then gave himself up to the prosecuting at orney, saying he did not mean to kill his wife. The child, 12 or 14 months old, was found lying by the bloody corpse of its mother.

The Latest Sensational Story.

A special to the Detrott Free Press, says: A man irom Whitehall, Mich., wag in Jackson Nov. 21st and tells the following story; He has a man working for him near Whitehall named Joeph Allen (not the Joseph Allen once arrested on a i charge of complicity in the Crouch murder), who says that on the night of the murder on the Crouch farm a year ago, he (Allen) got into Julia Reese's bedroom window at the Crouch place and went to bed with Julia, leaving the window up. About 12 or 1 o'clock it stormed so that Julia got up and put down the window. Shortly after another window of the house was raised and three men, whom Allen claims to have recognized, came in and shot the family. Allen jumped from the window and came to Jackson, arriving at the house of a Mrs. John Lee, on Fourth street, "since moved away," about 4 o'clock in the morning. The succeeding day he went north, where he has been ever since.

NO THIRD PARTY WANTED.

The Kansas state temperance union met in Topeka on the 19th. Gov. St. John and wife were in attendance. During the afternoon the committee on resolutions made a report, reciting that the principles of the union had been emphatically enjoyed by the people of Kansas in the overwhelming defeat of the present occupant of the executive chair, thus condemning his unlawful usurping of law and exercise of executive clemency in behalf of convicted saloon keepers. They congratulated Prohibitionists in the growth of temperance sentiment and recommended a series of resolutions, the more important of which were as follows:

Resolved, That the Democratic party of Kansas, by adopting an anti-prohibition platform and making an avowedly anti-prohibition campaign, have made it impossible for consistent Prohibitionists to give it their support so long as it retains its present attitude.

The resolutions were passed w thout opposition except the last named, which was bitterly opposed by St. John. After a long debate its final clause was amended to read as follows: "And we cordially invite all to join us in the work."

A tale of deep distress comes from Buchanan, Wise and Dickinson counties, occupying an isolated position on the extreme western limit of Virginia. For some weeks a fatal disease has been prevalent there and the number of deaths is terrible. The nature of the disease is yet undefined, but it is supposed to arise from poisonous water. The drouth there for months nearly dried all the streams, springs and wells, and it is supposed the water left it impregnated with mineral poison. A reliable correspondent tells a pitiful story and says as many as four corpses were found in a single house. A MYSTERIOUS DISEASE.

If there was ever a successful campaign carried on in this county it is the one through which we have just passed. The chairman of the democratic county ommittee, C. H. Manly, was ably assisted by secretary Wm. G. Doty, neither of whom left a stone unturned where by votes could be made for the democracy. Several of the members of the executive committee lent a helping hand, but the burden of the work fell on the fancy skating at Saline Saturday. It is gentlemen above mentioned to whose untiring energy and perseverence the campaign was made a success.

The same bright sunlight gently plays About the porch and orchard trees; The garden sleeps in noontide haze, Lulled by the murmuring of the bees The sloping meadows stretch away To upland field and wooded hill; he soft blue sky of peaceful day

Looks down upon the homestead still.

I hear the humming of the wheel—
Strange music of the days gone by—
I hear the clicking of the reel,
Once more I see the spindle fly.
How then I wondered at the thread,
That narrowed from the snowy wool,
Much more to see the pieces wed,
And wind upon the whirling spool

I see the garret once again,
With rafter beam and oaken floor;
I hear the pattering of the rain
As summer clouds go drifting o'er.
The little window toward the west
Still keeps its webs and buzzing files,
And from this cosy childhood nest
Jack's bean-stalk reaches to the skies.

I see the circle gathered round The open fire-place glowing bright, While birchen sticks with crackling sound Send forth a rich and ruddy light; The window-sill is piled with sleet,
The well-sweeps creaks before the blast,
But warm hearts make the contrast sweet.
Sheltered from storm, secure and fast.

O loved ones of the long ago, Whose memory hangs in golden frames,
Resting beneath the maple's glow,
Where few e'er read your chiseled names,
Come back, as in that Christmas night, And fill the vacant chairs of mirth!—Ah mel the dream is all too bright, |
And ashes lie upon the hearth.

Below the wood, beside the spring,
Two little children are at play,
And hope, that bird of viewless wing,
Sings in their hearts the livelong day; The acorns patter at their feet,
The squirrel chatters 'neath the trees,
And life and love are all complete—
They hold Aladdin's lamp and keys.

And, sister, now my children come To find the water just as cool, To play about our grandsire's home, To see our pictures in the pool.
Their laughter fills the shady glen;
Their fountain gurgles o'er with joy
That, after years full three times ten,
It finds its little girl and boy.

No other spring in all the world Is half so clear and cool and bright, No other leaves by autumn curled Reflect for me such golden light. Of childhood's faith this is the shrine; I kneel beside it now as then, And though the spring's no longer mine, I kiss its cooling lips again.

Unchanged it greets the changeful years;
Its life is one unending dream;
No record here of grief or tears;
But, like the limpid meadow stream,
It seems to sympathize with youth,
Just as the river does with age,

But you talk of rewarding my humble efforts. You can reward them. Be mine, Sophia, be mine. Be Mrs. Dumble. Let me be the partner of your joy as I have comforted you in your sorrow. Be mine, be mine:' and Mr. Dumble, suiting his action to his words, passed his arm around the somewhat robust waist of the relict of the late Buffum, and possessed himself of her hand, without meeting with the slightest resistance. "Jonas, I am thine," said Mrs. B. rising suddenly and throwing herself with such violence into the arms of the jubilant Dumble as to precipitate that gentleman, who was not prepared for uch a weighty demonstration of affection (for Mrs. B. was by no means sylphlike in form), headlong into the show-case, where he struck a batch of newly made pies, and emerged covered with pie crust and various sorts of jam, the contents of the pies. This little incident marred but for a moment the fecility of the fair widow and the pious Dumble, who spent the rest of the day in the manner usual to lovers on such occasions, and before finally leaving her in the evening, Mr. Dumble had prevailed upon the widow to lay entirely aside her mourning for Buffum, whom he represented as no longer needing her tears, and to become Mrs. Dumble the following week. This the widow at first would not hear of, but finally, after much persuasion on the part of Dumble.

widow as to Dumble's worldly position and possessions, which he averred were great, she finally consented and named the happy day.

In pursuance with this decision, the marriage was celebrated the following week with much splendor, and the resources of the store were drawn upon to supply a fitting breakfast for the happy pair and their numerous friends. So did say, in spite of the general festivity. that Mr. Dumble in the midst of his happiness still contrived to throw a funereal gloom over the proceedings which made the marriage assume the air of a wake and the wedding feast (which was cold) taste like "funeral baked meats;" but this no doubt was caused by jealousy at Mr. Dumble's

Entire Wheat Flou Hall's ourual of Health.

There has never until recently been known any possible means or way to make all of the wheat fine; hence the millers have given us nothing but "the beautiful white flour" from which the Young man, if you stick to it and best or nutritious part of the wheat is keep at it long enough, that's what eliminated, or the so-called "Graham' you're coming to. You say now, "' flour—a name, title or brand whiel flour-a name, title or brand which causes a multitude of sins. Most of But all the same you keep on drinking | the "Graham" flour sold in this country it. Well, keep at it. And just about is nothing but a mixture of the lowest the time you learn to like it, and want grades of white flour with bran. No it all the time, you will have to "let it | physician who is posted on cereal foods, alone." You can't raise your pocket- and knows the merits of the entire book by hand, my son. That is, you wheat flour, will advise anyone to eat can't bring it up on the bottle. It won't | "Graham" flour, while every physician in thrive on it. They empty each other, this country and England who has seen but they won't fill cach other up. They and knows what it is, uses and recomcontrive to fill you up, but, paradoxical mends the entire wheat flour, which as it may seem, they clean you out at is explained by a short statement of the way it is made, viz.:

The wheat is first cleaned in the usual way, then it goes to a machine will be cleaned out just as effectually. which takes off the skin or husk; then it is reduced, not ground, by the regular roller process (except purifiers) then after the separation by bolting of the bran from the white flour, the bran is reduced by special machinery; then by a system of spouting, the bran and white flour are brought together and mixed in exactly the same proportion that existed in the berry.

This flour is not only much more nutricious than any other, but will assimilate with the weakest stomach, because it is fine and contains all the gluten and phosphates that are in wheat which can be said of no other flour in the world. It is cheaper than any other because it makes so much more bread -which is explained by the theory of porosity, which theory is demonstrated by the fact known to every baker or breadmaker that a good Minnesota patent flour will make twenty-five per cent more bread than the best grade of Graham flour or wheat meal; and the entire wheat flour makes 25 to 30 per cent more bread than the Minnesota patent flour. The roller process which makes the best and highest priced flour in the world, was a great and glorious advance toward the right kind of flour for the people, but may we have a still greater advance in the art of milling, which gives the people the wheat as grows; or a fine flour of the entire wheat except the skin, which is not food, and which, alone, cattle will not eat. The long continued use of flour usually sold as Graham flour, is positively dangerous to health. Dyspepsia is always made worse by its use large proportion of the bran found in such flour is mixed with the silicate coating of wheat, and it cuts the lining of the stomach like pieces of glass. Entire wheat flour is quite another thing. We prove our faith in it by using it in preference to any other.

A man died in the town of Plainville,

Ct., recently, of a most singular disease. A few days ago he saw a dark sdot on his arm, and the next day he discovered that during the night one of his eyes had become similarly affected. Shortly after several spots appeared on the different parts of his body. He felt well and was apparently in perfect health. He visited more out of curiosity than for any other reason, one of the most eminent physicians in New Haven, who gave him some medicine and told him he would be all right probably in a few days. He ate his breakfast next morning as usual and went to his place of business where he began to feel ill about 8 o'clock. He returned home, and soon after midnight, after ntense suffering, died. After his death his friends learned that such cases are recorded in medical books, but they are exceedingly rare and always fatal. The blood vessels throughout the body burst and let the blood into the tissues, yet up to the time of his death he had suppos ed himself a healthy man.
