AROUND A GREAT STATE. Cur Iron Supply.

A letter to the Detroit Post says:
It cannot be longer doubted that the iron fields of the upper peninsula are seriously threatened by the competition of the new Ag ogebic and Vermillion iron ranges. The Vermillion mines have just commenced shipping and those of the Agogebic will do so in a shor time. These two fields are comparatively new each having been whilely known only shown. time. These two fields are comparatively new, each having been publicly known only about three years. The Agogebic and Penokea iron ranges extend from near the eastern end of Ontonagon county to Ashland in Wisconsin, and seem to be nearly continuous. Only a few miles have yet been opened up and placed in readiness for business, but the number of those discovered is numerous. The completion of the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railway will give the Agogebic an outlet to Lake Superior at Ashland, where immense ore docks have been built. The value of this region has been underestimated, many iron men preferring ridiculing it to honestly examining its merits. The ore is of good quality and appears to exist in large quantities. Should half, or even a quarter of the mines discovered prove valuable the district will be a large and important one. In 1863 at the time of recruiting the

Should half, or even a quarter of the mines discovered prove valuable the district will be a large and important one.

The Vermitilon field is occupied exclusively by the Minnesota iron company, which has six mines. The mines are reached by a trip of twenty-seven miles from Duluth to Two Harbors by boat and a journey of sixty-seven miles by the Iron Range railroal, which has only recently been completed. The six mines are now shipping 2,0.0 tons per day and may increase the output. A contract has been made to unish eastern furnacemen with 350,000 consolore this season, and the company will ship fully that amount. This will be about 15 per cent, of the product of the Mar juste and Menominee Iron ranges, and to place this ore the Minnesota iron company has made concessions to buyers which have further weakened the ore market at Cleveland. As the company has expended several million dollars in opening up the mines and building eighty-seven miles of railroad, equipping it with rolling stock, building docks and building up a town with nearly 5,000 people, they must mine their ore to pay interest upon the running expenses, which are necessarily enormous. The furnacemen in the East took advantage of this and forced prices down. the East took advantage of this and forced Jennie Beeman, a young woman of Kalamazoo, took oil of tansy with, it was supposed, suicidal intent, a few days ago. The next day she gave birth to a child—a girl, weight eight pounds. The room presented a sight of wretchedness, for she had lain there for days in labor, and the agony she must have suffered, being unable to move off her bed, is horrible to think of. It is said her groans were heard the day before, but no one offered relief or gave any notice of the poor girl. She has worked in private houses and restaurants, and is the victim of seduction and debauchery. The case has caused great excitement.

CONTINUE GLADSTONE'S RUSSIAN POLICY.

Foreign Flashes.

The British parliament reassembled July 6. In the House of Lords the Marquis of Salisbury made a statement to the effect that he would continue the policy adopted by Mr. Gladstone in regard to the negotiations with Russia for the settlement of the frontier of Afghanistan. The Marquis of Salisbury, in moving the adjournment of the House, said it would be convenient to explain the condition of one or two important questions which greatly affected foreign affairs and the position of England. The matter of the gravest im_ certain portance was the recent negotiations with Russia in regard to the frontier of Afghanistan. The business of the government was not now to consider or comment on the past. It was their business to take up the policy of their predecessors and to conduct it to an issue consistent with the public interest.

Of the Egyptian question the Marquis said: The present difficulty in Egypt is perhaps one of the most complicated problems that has ever been submitted to a government. The difficulties are enormous and of many kinds. Those difficulties now form the subject of negotiation. It is perhaps rather too early to express an opinion as to the issue. Before decididing upon any remedy the government must take counsel of those best qulified by experience to guide them. Their policy should be steady and without oscillation. The one most momentous issue was the defense of the frontler of Egypt by Egypt ans, assisted, no doubt, in some measure by ourselves, against the tide of fanaticism and barbarism. It is necessary to establish such a state of things that, if we eventually withdrew our protecting hand, Egypt would be left safe. All of these ques tions required time to settle. One principle must animate us, namely: To so weigh our steps'that once taken we must not retrace them The military difficulty is a large one; the political difficulty is a greater one; still the question was whether the provinces in the Soudan, which had lately ceased to be practically under the control of Egypt, should be abandoned to their fate. The most important of all

THE COUNTRY AT LARGE.

THE FLAG STILL FLOATS. July 4, Mormons in Salt Lake City insisted upon having the United States flag at half mast. Loyal Americans objected, and resented the insult, and proceeded to force the Mormons to raise the flag. After much demurring the flag was run up at full mast.

A COMPARISON. The failures in the United States for the first half of 1885 are 6,004 in number, as compared with 5,510 for the same period last year, an increase of 4'4. The liabilities, however, for the first half of the present year, show a marked decline, amounting to only 74 millions, as compared with 124 millions for the first half of 1884.

A GOOD SHOWING. There has been a decrease of about $10,50),-000 in the public debt during the month of June. This will make the total reduction for the fiscal year which ended June 30, $65,00),-000. The reduction during the previous fiscal year was $101,000,000. The expenditures during the fiscal year were about $310,000,000 and the receipts $321,000,000 or about $7,500,000 less than estimates.

INSANE BY GRIEF. The funeral of the victims of Cleveland's fire occurred the next morning. The parents and friends were wild with grief. Several fainted and some had to be forcibly restrained from tearing open the coffins. Theodore Tran, who would have been married to Rosie Meisel the next Sunday, and who was made believe his sweetheart had escaped, on learning the truth seized the coffin in his mangled and bandaged arms, and it required the services of three men to POOR PROSPECTS. Six days of steady rain have practically rulned the wheat crop throughout eastern Kansas and western Missouri. Harvesting is at a complete standstill. Stacked wheat has been rulned, and estimates place the loss in Kansas alone at 1,000,000 bushels. This does not include standing wheat. The state board's estimate of 10,000,000 bushels of wheat was based on alleged inversement in southern based on alleged improvement in southern Kansas. This estimate took no account of last week's storms. Fears are entertained that the potatoes will rot in the ground. Minor crops are also suffering.

Fifteen missionaries were with the flock. This is the largest company of Mormon immigrants that has arrived in the United States since last summer, and it is stated it will be soon followed by another equally as large. Nearly all the people will settle in the rural districts of Utah. Some stop in Salt Lake City and a very few will go to Mexico. It should be remembered that Mexico has not yet become a popular country for Mormons. There has been something of a revival of Mormon missionary work in Europe and it may be expected that the tide of immigration to this country will be increased during the next few years.

Henry H. Gorringe, late Lieutenant Commander United States Navy, died at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Hliand, in New York July 6. He was a captain in the merchant service when the war broke out and at once volunte red his service to the Federal navy and served through the war in the Mississippi squadron under Farragut. At the close of the war he was made commander of the steamer Memphis, and from 1863 to 1871 commanded the Portsmouth, then in the South Atlantic squadron. Four years, from 1872 to 1.73, he served in the Hydrographic office at Weshington. Commander Gorringe won his greatest fame by landing the obelisk in New York harbor July 29, 1880, after a perilous voyage from Fgypt. The Commander took occasion to criticise the American Navy Department, and for doing so was disciplined by Secretary Chandler. Then Commander Gorringe resigned from the navy and became President of the American Ship Building Company, but the entroprise was a failure. While engaged in settling up the affairs of the company Mr. Gorringe met with an accident which eventually caused his death. While hurrying from New York city to his ship-yard one day last fall he jumped from a moving train and received severes spinal injuries. He died a bachelor, his only

By the burning of a frame tenement house at 349 and 353 Broadway, in Cleveland, Ohio, the other night, Rosie Meisel, aged 20, Sarah Rosenberg, aged 10, and Fannie Rosenberg, aged 8, were smothered to death. The two latter were horribly burned, but the flames apparently did not touch Miss Meisel.

The burned tenement houses were owned by Daniel O'Dell. The lower floor of 349 was occupied by Max Strauss as a tailor shop, and Louis Deutch occupied 353 as a saloon. Their families occupied the rear parts of the ground floors as living appartments. The upper floors were occupied by three families—the Kaufman family, consisting of the husband, wife and two children; the Cohen family, consisting of husband, wife and four children; and the Rosenbergs, mother and three daughters. Rosie Meisel, a niece of Mrs. Rosenberg, occupied the same room with her two cousins. About 3 o'clock a son of Cohen awoke his father and said he smelled smoke. The father, on opening the door, found the hall full of smoke, and quite'ly gave the alarm. In less than three minutes after Cohn was awakened the house was one sheet of fire. Men, women and children rushed through the smoke, wringing their hands and crying for help. A neighbor had in the meantime raised a ladder to the front windows, down which the Kaufmans were escaping the Cohn family jumped from the windows and escaped, apparently without serious injury. Meanwhile Theodore Trau, the afflanced of Miss Meisel, who had also occupied a room in the house, Three Girls Incinerated in a Tenement House. Secretary for Scotland bill. received no responce. He was about to give up the search when he stumbled against a crouching female figure. Lifting the girl in his arms he rushed to the window and jumped. In the leap he broke his arm and received serious internal injuries. On looking into the face of the girl it was found that it was not Miss Meisel, but one of the Cohn girls. At that same moment Rosle and her two room mates were struggling with death in the room above. The noise had not awadened the girls until it was too late to save them. While the other occupants were leaping from the windows a cry rang out that there were three girls in a rear room. The firemen climbed into the windows, but found no trace of human beings. Some time afterward a citizen named Stewart made a search and found the charred and blackened bodies of Rosle Meisel, aged 20, and Sarah and Jennie Rosenberg, aged 10 and 8 years, respectively. The positions of the bodies gave evidence of a desperate struggle. Miss Meisel was undoubtedly suffocated, as she was scarcely touched by the flames. The other two girls, however, were so terribly burnt it is impossible to state whether they were burned or smothered to death. The three bodies were femoved to the morgue. The chief of the fire department is of the opinion that the fire originated in the saloon and was of incendiary origin. The loss will not aggregate more than $5,000. Miss Meisel and Theodore Trau were to have been married soon.

A New Orleans paper publishes a statement that over $1,000,000 have been co'ned at the New Orleans mint of which there is no official record. The coinage law of 1873 made it the duty of the director of the mint to have a general supervision of all United States mints and assay offices. The first director acting finder that law was the Hon. H. R. Linderman, and in his report on the subject he gives statistics of the coinage in the several mints, showing total amounts and the denominations of money mide at each place for each year of their existence. The New Orleans mint was opened for business in 1838. Subsequently money of every denomination was made there. The director's statement is brought down to January Louisiana, and the 4th of March following they were ordered to be transferred to the care of the confederate states. Documents lately brought to light show that subsequently to the mint going into the hands of the Louisianians and the confederates and up to May 30 of the same year there were coined $254,000 in gold double eagles and $101,216.50 in silver half dollars, thus making a total coinage of $1,355,216.50 while the mint was in the revolutionists' hands. What was done with this money does not appear from any available record, but the fact of coinage as stated is shown on the books of the coiner at that time, and in order to make up the true amount of and in order to make up the true amount of the actual coinage of the New Orleans mint this sum must be taken into account. There was no regular coinage of the precious metals into confederate specie under confederate aus-pices, although the New Orleans mint remain-ed in their control until April 23, 1862, when the city was taken by the federal force,

A letter written by Louis Riel has just been made public. After speaking of his ready surrender, his chance to escape if he wished to do so, and the pacific effect his surrender had in bringing the rebellion to a close, Riel says it should have some weight in securing him his trial before the supreme court and in Lower Canada, for it is there alone he can procure all his witnesses. He says he was in the United States, laboring to create a future for himself, when he was invited among the half-breeds to assist them in petitioning the government. He worked peacefully until the time when arms were taken up. He also says that he never dreamt of war, but that by intrigue and forged letters a complication of affairs was brought about by interested dealers. FAMOUS MEN WHO SMOKE.

If Gen. Grant's use of tobacco was excessive, there are very many men in seeming vigorous health, and of very active habits, who must regard themselves as very intemperate users of the stimulant. Many men smoke more eigars a day than Gen. Grant was acenstomed to do, although physicians say that it is not the number of cigars so much as the strength of them that effects the health. Among public men it is the exception to find one who does not use tobacco in one form or another, sometimes in two ways, and almost all of them firmly believe that tobacco does not hurt them. Judge Kelley's case has been cited as one where cancer was caused by the excessive use of tobacco, but he told the writer that the cancerous affection of the cheek from which he suffered was due to the habit he had of going to sleep with a quid of tobacco tucked into his cheek, and resting his head on that side. The practice in the appraiser's and general Appraiser's offices during the past fifteen years or more has had a great deal to do with disseminating this erroneous notion. Nobody in either of these offices, except a few conscientious examiners, took the view that so long as the law stood on the statute books it must be obeyed. Mr. Manning and Mr. Fairchild insist that this view must prevail now in all branches of the service, and the importers who are protesting are cutting a very queer figure. Their protests should be addressed to congress, which alone has power to heed them. Whether the regulations about appraisepretend to decide, but that their modifi-cation and systematic violation by offi cials in the appraiser's and general appraiser's department, has been in the interest of fraud upon the Government, cannot be questioned. The Advance" Iron Mower

Which embodies all the principles of a first-ctass machine. In it are combined all the advantages of the best Mowers in use, with many points peculiarly its own. No machine that is made contains within itself so many excellencies that recommend it to the farmer. I. To begin with, it is a Front Cut, four feet and four inch machine, and carries with it all the advantages of a front over a rear cut machine. The question has been settled everywhere, in the past few years, in favor of the front-cut and now, in the mind of the intelligent buyer, it simply becomes a question as to the relative merits of the different front-cut machines. 2. The Cutting Bar has imparted to it a rocking motion, and is under perfect control of the driver. It can be lifted from the ground or tilted at pleasure. 3. All gearing is encased in iron and protected from dust and dirt. 4. It is durable, strong in all its parts, and not likely to get out of repair. 5. It starts easily and will not clog. 6. It runs noiselessly.

7. It is the lightest draft machine in the market. 8. It is the best working and most convenient Mower in use.

I am also agent for the celebrated Empire Twine Binder, which stands at the head of all others for its simplicity, durabilty, adjustability and portability. I have also on hand a full line of agricultural implements.

A Lady's Perfect Companion.

Painless Childbirth, a new book by Dr. John H. Dye, one of New York's most skillful physicians, shows that pain is not necessary in Childbirth but results from causes easily understood and over-come. It clearly proves that any woman may become a mother without suffering any pain whatever. It also tells how to overcome and prevent morning sickness swelled limbs, and all other evils attend ing pregnancy. It is reliable and highly endorsed by physicians everywhere as the wife's true private companion. Cut this out; it will save you great pain, and possibly your life. Nor promise of a pe ceful goal. I sent a dove from out the ark, When all around was dull and dark, And watched it as it sourced on high, its white wings brightening the sky—As if heaven's gate stood wide apart—Until the radiance reached my heart, And on the pinions of a dove I found the anchorage of love.

Too oft ambition clouds the gaze,
Removes the sunshine from life's ways,
And, like an eagle in its flight
Is lost upon some glidly height;
While on white wings the carrier dove
Besrs the poor burdened soul above, without speaking for an hour. Then Joan suddenly rose and, going to her huge work basket that stood on the east window ledge, took out a piece of chalk and string. Coming back she measured accurately from the middle of the one door the little cottage possessed to the mid-dle of the fire place, and drew a chalk line connecting the two. Some articles of Grizzle's that were on her side she put across this line, and then sat down and, taking up the big old Bible, began to read. Grizzle watched her a minute, and then muttering to herself 'Gin she gaes to heaven she'll fin' me " took up an old Bible that lay on her side of the room and began

The summers went and came and went and came again with late sweet flowers and tender breaths of wind across the hills, and the sisters watched them, Joan from the east window, Grizzle from the west. And twenty years went by. It was a wild, wet morning in March. Mr. Maclesie, the minister, was coming down the road that leads from the manse into the village, when a woman came running up to him. "Oh, sir, come quick to the Gray Cottage. The sisters has had a stroke, an' they're baith lyin' helpless in their becs. Hech, sir! it's an awsome sight!" "Oh, when did this happen? when did this happen?" "I dinna ken, vir. I gaed in this morn, for there was nae reek fro' the moment they entered Joan called the minister. He came to her. "Send Elsie away," she said, speaking with difficulty but distinctly. "I wad speyk wi' ye."

Mr. Maclesie dismissed the old woman, and then returned to Joan's side. He sat down by the narrow bed and listened to what she had to say.
"I aye thought," she said, still speaking with difficulty, but yet clear-

The voice of the speaker had risen almost to a scream, and suddenly it pierced the dull ears of the form that lay gibbering and laughing on the other bed.

"Joan, puir Joan!" it said. "I maun send the ithers a' awa' an' comfort Joan, for she has nane but me

Then the voice died away in a sigh. Mr. Maclesie wnet over to the other bed, and half lifting, half dargging, brought it across that little room, across that dividing line, and set it close to Joan's. As Grizzle's bed touched hers, Joan burst into tears. The old man lifted the poor, helplesf hand and laid it on her sister's. "I forgive thee, Grizzle, as I hope to be forgiven," he said solemnly, and Joan repeated the words after him. Then he knelt and prayed.

Disfigurements Abolished by Means of Elec-A man with a small mole on his chin climbed up the stoop of a doctor's office in West Nineteenth street, New York, not long ago. "I wan't to get rid of the mole," he said, when the young doctor came out and asked what the matter was.

"Step right in and I'll do it," the doctor responded, as he reached for a large mahogany box containg a polished electrical machine, with insulated wire running from the battery to a neat carved handle. The doctor sat the patient down in an easy chair, threw his head back and dressed the mole deftly with a local anæsthetic that gradually benumed the flesh until it was robbed of all sensitiveness. Then the doctor fitted a tiny strip of platinum into the handle and turned on the full force of the battery. The platinum was aglow with a pure white "Tu whit tu whoo," but the heat in a twinkling. The doctor drew one says "Tu whit tu whom." it sowly and carefully through the mole as if he were using a razor blade. "Few of the public know of the process, although it is simply an elaboration of the one used to remove cancer and similar growths on the neck and body," young Police Surgeon Satterlee said. Dangers of Stair-Climbing. The physicians of this city say that their origin in hurried ascensions of the stairs to the elevated railroad staevenue and Second avenue lines some of the station platforms are sixty feet above the street level, and the climb is a serious matter to delicate women and corpulent persons. One physician says that the large amount of stairclimbing at the elevated stations and in tall tenements has greatly increased the list of sufferers from diseases to which women are liable. Saleswomen and operatives who are much on their feet, are particularly liable to ill-effects | covered.

from the excessive effort of climbing to the stations in a hurry.

Another physician says he has frequent occasion to warn business and professional men, especially those whose vocation is sedentary, of the dangerof rushing upstairs at the top of their speed when trying to catch a train. A an may thus expend an amount of vitality so great as to interfere with his efficiency for the day, to say nothing of the special danger to individ-uals who have a tendency to heart troubles, apoplexy, and other diseases. He added:

The other day an experiment was made at the Forty-second street station. A man who weighed 150 pounds, ascending the stairs at an ordinary pace, raised that weight 288 inches in 34 seconds. This required an expenditure of force equal to about one-lifth of a one-horse ower engine. If he had gone up in half the time he would have put forth two-fifths of the energy of one-horse power. I have no doubt that plenty of people go up that flight in 10 sec-The rate at which the man climbed the stairs called for an expenditure of force equal to that used in running at the rate of nearly 6 miles an hour. A man who should run up the stairs in 10 seconds could as easily spurt at the rate of 18 miles an hour. Buried Alive. A word of caution against reckless haste in burial can hardly be uttered too often. It is not necessary to search the records of the past and bring for-ward many horrible stories of premature burial which can be found in them, for, during the first month of the year 1885, the daily press reported two cases of this kind. One was that of a young man, the other a young woman. Both reports come from southern cities. Both tell how the position of the body and other circumstances discovered on re-opening the coffins, disclosed proofs that the unfortunate victims regained consciousness in the grave and found escape imand in every case of supposed death some sufficient test should be applied before going on with the preparations for interment, and perhaps the safest way would be to wait for some small indication of dissolution. It, in southern countries there is danger of burying a person alive through haste to get the body under ground, there is in northern countries a chance of subjecting living bodies to death in the ice-box. Any one expressing a preference in such matters would, of course, prefer to be frozen to death before being buried rather than be buried alive. It seems horrible to contemplate the occurrence of either of these mistakes -Dr. Faote's Health Monthly.
