

AGAIN the nation is called upon to mourn the loss of a brave general in the person of the late General Winfield Scott Hancock, who died suddenly Tuesday afternoon.

The council should take steps at once to supervise the expenditure of city funds for the poor. The expenditure is rapidly increasing without any apparent and necessary cause.

SINCE the university clock has been set on legal time, and the schools are governed by it, many of our citizens are adopting it.

SENATOR KEMPF continues quietly and gently to nurse his congressional boom. There is no use for democrats to attempt to conceal the fact that he would make a strong candidate.

MORE than a year ago THE DEMOCRAT suggested the propriety of securing a city market—a building for selling fruit and vegetables, and other perishable articles.

Our former townsmen, C. J. Kintner, at present chief examiner in the department of electricity in the patent office, delivered a lecture a few days ago before the Franklin institute, in Philadelphia, upon the history of electrical inventions.

It is our painful duty to announce the death of J. Emmet Robison, a member of the Detroit Free Press staff and son of Hon. J. J. Robison of this city, which occurred sometime Tuesday night, from the effects of chloroform used to overcome sleeplessness.

In speaking of Gen. Weaver's bill providing for the election of United States senators by the people, the Ovid Union hits the nail on the head as follows: "The people speak in the highest terms of the work of selecting United States senators as with the work of selecting men who shall select the senators."

Mr. Cleveland has earned a reputation for strength of will. He can never make a better display of that quality than by making a firm stand from the first against senatorial encroachments.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE DETROIT EVENING NEWS.

MR. EDITOR—Sir: Your article in last Saturday's News, on the silver question, attributing the accumulation of the standard dollars in the government vaults to the whims of the executive in persisting to pay bonds with gold instead of standard dollars, at the expense of hoarding the dollars in the vaults to depreciate their monetary standard, and letting the bonds continue to draw interest, is indeed and excellent specimen of that line of argument which the organs of monopolists and capitalists are forced to present in discussing questions of political economy, in order to protect their own interests with a seeming show of reason.

It would indeed be a useless task to attempt to instruct you on the great fundamental truths underlying the silver question, for you know them far better than the writer, as you have shown in many a classical argument, and hence I will briefly content myself with calling to your recollection a few facts which you seem to have forgotten: When our government issued its bonds it pledged the faith of the nation to redeem them, dollar for dollar, in dollars which are dollars all the world over, not in dollars which are dollars only in the domain of the U. S.

In all business transactions the common law of civilized nations requires that both parties to the transaction shall understand it in all its bearings; that one shall not commit a wilful fraud without giving the other full legal redress. Now, sir, do you really think that the people of foreign lands would have bought our government's bonds if there had been known to the slightest suspicion that these bonds would some future day be called in to be paid with dollars which are actually 20 per cent. less than the face value of the bond in the markets of the world?

During the last two decades silver has fallen in value almost 20 per cent, and in order to manufacture an artificial market for the western mines, our government in its infinite wisdom, instructed and coached by the silver kings of America, has ordered the coinage of the silver dollar which has 20 per cent. less of silver than its face value in comparison with the gold dollar, the standard of the world's unit of value. Your pen, sir, has exposed this wrong in all its bearings. Rightfully have you argued in days passed that if this coinage were stopped now these dollars would eventually pass into circulation without depreciating materially in value in general, for they would be absorbed and pass for exchange more or less like cents, without affecting the credit of the country or of the individual.

Of late, however, you have changed, and now you want this coinage of stamping 80 cents worth of silver with the dollar mark continued and the debt of the nation paid with this coin. You know that this must inevitably result in a crash to the nation itself, for it is an artificial inflation of 20 per cent.

So far I have not seen your argument on its bearing on the obligations of the nation, but this much you very men, that these bondholders are the very men who have in the dark days of our history given their good standard money to help our government fight the rebellion, and that our government could not have fought this war without the money from these very bonds which you now want paid with a dollar of a value 20 per cent less than the dollar bargained for in the bond.

That the nation owes a debt to the valiant men who offered their lives for the support and perpetuation of the republic is amply recognized by the acts of every congress since the war, but let it not be forgotten that this nation also speaks in the highest terms of those men who offered their money, and that this debt should honestly be paid, dollar for dollar, with dollars which are dollars of the world over.

Respectfully, G. GEORGE. Ann Arbor, Feb. 8, 1886.

WORDS OF CONSOLATION.

COLONEL INGBERSOLL'S LETTER TO A SON FRANCISOSI MOTHER.

Not long ago a lady of San Francisco was suddenly overwhelmed by a great crushing affliction, that, coming like a thunderbolt upon her for a time threatened her life. Her son, and only child, and gone on a short business journey, expecting soon to return. Sudden and fatal illness overtook him, and a brief telegram announced the dreadful tidings to his heart-broken mother. The terror of the Calvinist creed, in which she had been brought up, according to which as she well knew, there was no hope of future happiness for the unconverted young man, added greatly to her agonizing grief over his death, until her friends feared that her reason, if not her life, would be destroyed. A lady friend, who had sympathized deeply with and vainly sought to console her, informed Col. Ingber's mother, and begged him, if possible, to write something which might at least relieve in a measure the terrible apprehension as to the fate of her son under which she was suffering. The following is his letter. It was only upon the representation that, like Col. Ingber's widely-published remarks at the funeral of his brother in Washington some years ago, these words also might "comfort other hearts which mourn," that a San Francisco reporter succeeded in obtaining a copy for publication, with the consent of the recipient.

Dear Madam: Mrs. C. has told me the sad news of the almost infant sorrow, and I am not foolish enough to suppose that I can say or do anything to lessen your great grief, your anguish for his loss; but may I say something to drive from your mind the terrible and ungodly fear for him. If there is a God, let me believe that He is good; and if He is good, the good has nothing to fear. I have been told that your son was kind and generous; that he was filled with charity and sympathy; now, we know that in this world like begets like, kindness produces kindness, and all good bears the fruit of joy; believe that his deeds are everything; and if your son was kind, he will naturally find kindness wherever he may be. You would not wish endless pain upon your young enemy. Is God worse than you? You could not bear to see a viper suffer forever. Is it possible that God will doom a kind and generous boy to everlasting pain? Noting is more manifestly absurd and cruel. The truth is that no human being knows anything of what is beyond the grave. If nothing is known, then it is not honest for any one to pretend that he does know. If nothing is known, then we can hope only for the good. If there be a God your boy is no more in His power now than he was before his death—no more than you are at this moment. Why should we fear God more after death than before? Does the feeling of God toward His children change moment they die? While we are alive they say "God loves me," will He cease to love us? True love never changes. I beg of you to throw away all fear. Take counsel of your own heart. If God exists your heart is true, and your heart is true to God. He will never send your boy to endless pain. After all, no one knows. The ministers know nothing. All the churches in the world know nothing of this subject than the ants on the anthills. Creeds are good for nothing except to break the hearts of the loving. Let us have courage. Under the seven-headed arch of hope let the dead sleep. I do not pretend to know, but I do know that others do not know. Listen to your heart, believe what it says, and wait with patience and without fear for what the future has for all. If we can get no comfort from what people know, let us avoid being driven to despair by what they do not know. I wish I could say something that would put a star in your lonely path—and if an unbeliever has such a wish, surely an infinitely good being has no wish to be the father of pain through countless years. Sincerely yours, R. G. INGBERSOLL.

How can Mrs. Smith wear such a handsome velvet coat? My dear child, don't you know her husband used to pay all his money to doctors, but since he took to using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup he gives it all to her to spend as she likes.

Time is money; so they say, and it is observable that it takes nowadays a good deal of money to have a good time.

Those who believe that nature will work off a cough or cold should understand that this is done at the expense of the constitution. Each time you cough the system, and we all know that the termination of this dangerous practice is a consumptive's grave. Don't take the chances when a fifty-cent bottle of Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure will safely and promptly cure your recent cough, cold or lung trouble. Buy the dollar bottle for chronic or family use of Eberbach & Sons.

Some reports about a county official having got abroad, the local wrote for his paper that he had been "fully vindicated." The compositor put it "vindicating."

Credit is due the German women and physicians for first using Red Clover blossoms as a medicine. Best result are obtained when combined with other medicinal roots and herbs, as in Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic, which is the best known remedy for all blood diseases, stomach and liver troubles, pimples, constipation, bad breath, rashes, ague and malarial diseases, indigestion, loss of appetite, low spirits, headache and all diseases of the kidneys. Price 50 cents, of Eberbach & Sons.

Well, wall, that's just the queerest sight I ever seen, said an old farmer to his wife, as he gazed at the Edison light on the ferry boat. "Strange, isn't it? Wall I should say so; why, that's the first time I ever seen old kerosene burnin' upside down."

The best on earth, can truly be said of Griggs' Glycerine Salve, which is a sure, safe and speedy cure for cuts, bruises, scalds, burns, wounds and all other sores. Will positively cure piles, hemorrhoids, etc. Try this wonderful healer. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Only 25c. Sold by C. Eberbach & Sons.

A colored man, who was hunting a house to move into, was asked if he had paid his rent for the former landlord's house. "Yes, sah," he said, rather hesitatingly. "Can't you get a recommendation?" "Oh, yes, sah; I can get Mr. Smith, my landlord, to give me a recommendation."

Salt River, a little town up north on the Toledo and North Michigan extension, of less than 500 inhabitants, offers a bonus of $30,000 for the location of the car shops at that place.

Chas. Smith of Ypsilanti, who was in the city the last of the week on a "duzie," was finally arrested for stealing a lap-top from Fremont committed him to the Detroit work house for 60 days. Picket: The man who beats the printer out of a single cent, will never reach that heavenly land where good Elijah Wealsh. But when at last this life is past, this life of toil and we, he'll straightway stand in a fairy land, where they never shovel snow.

The Philadelphia News says: Mr. Thorne's company produced "The Black Flag" at the Arch Street Theatre last night with a good company which has been strengthened by the addition of Master Harry Woodruff, who, though a youth, promises well. Messrs. Smith & Smith the popular proprietors of the Clifton house at Whitmore Lake, are making preparations on a grand scale for the masquerade ball, Washington's birthday. A number of prizes are to be given. Several companies from this city will attend the ball at the Clifton.

The Wagner Bros. of Second street, have been doing a rushing business this present winter. They have manufactured a large number of handsome cutters, double sleighs and bobs, and filled orders in all over Michigan. Their work is in great demand in the northern peninsula. This firm is known far and wide for turning out only first-class work.

An exchange says: Advertisers who understand their business, advertise more judiciously. The season of dull trade has in the season of lively trade. It is the slow horse that needs the lash, not the fast one. The steady goers are the successful advertisers. They build up a reputation for themselves, and they are ready for the public summer and winter, and whether it rains or shines, or is a feast or a fast day.

Phildelphia Chronicle: "The Black Flag" has played four engagements in this city and been seen at three theatres, but it was never better thought and acted than it was at the Arch Street Theatre. Long practice seems to have inspired the entire cast with confidence, and the play glides along very smoothly. There is a very noticeable improvement in the acting of Master Harry Woodruff. His acting in his former tendency to overact, and his work is now forcible yet subdued. L. R. Willard's Sam Lazarus is a clever piece of comedy acting. Taken in all, it is a remarkably well balanced comedy, and gives a very effective performance.

Some time during last March a man by the name of George Billington came to Ypsilanti from a place about sixty miles north of this city. He had purchased the livery business of Seth Sage, at the depot. After continuing in this occupation for a short time he sold out to Thomas Neat and purchased the place on D. P. Potter, consisting of 140 acres, located south of this, for which he was to pay $10,000, paying $3,000 down and giving a mortgage for the balance. A short time ago Billington's wife left to visit two brothers living in Michigan, part of this state. Soon after her departure a woman came from Canada and commenced living with Billington, as his wife. This coming to the notice of Mrs. Billington, she returned in company with her two brothers and took steps to arrest her wayward husband upon the charge of bigamy. Officers were put upon his track, and he had been warned and expelled them by taking the Wabash train at Whitaker's Station and escaping into Canada.—Free Press Correspondence.

The town of Pontiac, in this state, seems to have the right kind of men in it. The citizens have put their heads and purses together and propose to raise ten thousand dollars to be divided into bonds, to be sold to the highest bidder, and to use the same in the town. Pontiac is coming to the front. It has been rather quiet in that place, but there is no reason why it should be so with such a fine material. The style is a good one. We commend it to other towns, some of which need much more than the Pontiac of it to do something definite and energetic if they do not wish to become moribund. —Evening Journal. What we lack in this city is a leader, and there perhaps something might be done looking toward the establishment of manufactures in this city. Unfortunately we have many "moss-bugs" who would not give a cent, if by so doing they knew the city would be benefited. It is still very well to ask the newspapers to print in this place if men of capital wish they can get along without spending a nick, it will be a long time before they will see car shops or manufacturing enterprises of any kind established here. Men come who would like to see improvements come down liberally. Gov. Ashley once made the remark that he was induced to take hold of the Toledo road because Joe T. Jones started in business by offering to donate $500 toward raising a fund of $50,000.

"In Spite of All" is a play which the delightful young actress may well regard as commensurate with her abilities. The piece which Howard Taylor wrote on the account of complications in English politics, Mr. McCarthy finds it necessary to cancel his American engagements. This fact is a great disappointment to the members of the S. L. A. and they threaten to prosecute the Redpath lecture bureau for breach of contract.

The report that Miss Alice Jordan had left the Yale law school is strongly denied. On the contrary she continues her studies at that institution; also the faculty have not received any decision as to Miss Jordan being eligible to a degree from that school, nor will they until after she has passed her examination. Miss Jordan is a student in the laboratory of Prof. Bruce is a graduate of Boston university, and was made doctor of philosophy at Berkeley.

Justin McCarthy was announced as one of the speakers on the season's course, which Howard Taylor wrote on the account of complications in English politics, Mr. McCarthy finds it necessary to cancel his American engagements. This fact is a great disappointment to the members of the S. L. A. and they threaten to prosecute the Redpath lecture bureau for breach of contract.

Through the untrifling efforts of the last association a gymnasium is at last an accomplished fact. The boys asked for $150 of the $3,000 held in trust by a committee of six, but President Angell, the chairman of that committee, decided that $3,000 must go toward the building on the campus for a gymnasium. Even this did not discourage the members of the association, and Saturday they received a complete set gymnasium apparatus from Akron, O., which has been arranged in the laboratory physics. The membership tickets have been placed at the remarkably low price of $1.50 for the remainder of the college year. The good work of the Rugby association is worthy the highest praise, and should receive the hearty support of every student in the university.

DO OR DON'T. Read the cheap advertisements. But if you doubt for one instant that we have not the LARGEST, CHOICEST, CHEAPEST Assortment of DRY GOODS In the city, Examine our stock and we will prove it. Prices in Ladies' and Misses Garments cut down in many lots to one-half.

The starting low prices on our Black and Colored Silks are moving them very rapidly. Prices reduced in every department. Goods must go—we don't let them accumulate or get old. MACK & SCHMID.

UNIVERSITY NOTES. Bill Nye at university hall to-morrow evening. The sophomore Oracle will make its appearance in March. The university calendar will be out about the middle of March.

The Two Sams have secured the agency for the Yeoman Hats. The sneak thief has been making unexpected cuts on the "two-eds." The Hutchinson club will be the most successful in operation this year.

Miss H. A. Chipman, '86, has taken Miss Chittenden's place in the high school. There were seven waders of the audience who, but that was before the audit was invented. Prof. Knowlton closed his quizzes on Blackstone Wednesday. He is now wrestling with Kent.

"Exams" take up the time of the students at present, since the first semester closes Friday. The university has over 60 students who are preparing to become ministers of the gospel or missionaries. The U. M. polo team was defeated at Ypsilanti Saturday evening the Ypsilanti team winning three straight goals.

The delegates sent to the Y. M. C. A. convention will give their report before the S. C. A. in the chapel, Sunday, a. m. Nathaniel Franklin, a son of the late Dr. Franklin, was found dead last week, shot through the head by the accidental discharge of his gun. Judge Cooley has accepted an invitation to deliver an annual address before the South Carolina bar association, at Columbia, some time in December next.

The Hutchinson club has elected the following officers: President, H. J. Dudley; associates, P. J. Bannan and J. W. Clark; clerk, R. L. Alrich; sheriff, A. D. Crozier. C. W. Carman, '84, is principal of the Owasco schools. He recently tendered his resignation to the board, but they would not accept it, since they thought Owasco could not afford to lose such a teacher as Mr. Carman.

The students christian associations of the university, the Phi Kappa Psi and the normal school, have refused to expel their lady members, consequently they forfeit their right to send delegates to the Y. M. C. A. conventions hereafter. The following are the officers elected by the Alpha Psi society: President, H. J. Powell; vice president, G. M. Hovey; secretary, W. A. Fairbank; treasurer, L. Connell; critic, W. H. Walker; Sibley editors, G. A. Brown and F. E. S. Gast; librarian, F. B. Walker.

The religious census of the university has been taken and shows the following result: Methodist, 264; Presbyterians, 180; Baptists, 137; Congregational, 123; Episcopal, 100; Catholics, 58; Unitarian, 40; Universalist, 27; Disciples, 25; Lutherans, 25; Friends, 15; other churches, 28. Andrews & Witherby will publish a series of philosophical monographs by members of the faculty. Profs. Morris, Payne, Brewster and Thomas will each contribute papers to the first series. These papers will be of great interest and assistance to those students engaged in the study of philosophy in Michigan.

The Chronicle board have organized as follows: Managing editor, F. W. Stevens, various topics, E. T. Pitkin; things chronicled, W. A. Blakeley; general literature, W. E. Gilles; exchanges, W. W. Campbell; correspondence, J. D. Moran; literary notes, Geo. Canfield; secretary and treasurer, J. D. Hibbard. It is with the deepest sorrow that we chronicle the death of J. Emmet Robinson, once a member of the literary class of '84. He died in Detroit Wednesday morning. Mr. Robinson had numerous friends in this city and has been connected with the Detroit Free Press for some time.

Prof. Harrington's poor health compels him to give up his work in physics for the next semester. D. B. Brace, Ph. D., will fill Prof. H.'s place temporarily, with the rank of assistant professor, to give the instruction in laboratory physics. Mr. Brace is a graduate of Boston university, and was made doctor of philosophy at Berkeley.

Justin McCarthy was announced as one of the speakers on the season's course, which Howard Taylor wrote on the account of complications in English politics, Mr. McCarthy finds it necessary to cancel his American engagements. Free Trade is the Handmaid of Protection! YOU WANT US TO EXPLAIN HOW. Then listen. We select our goods from the markets of the whole country and do not confine ourselves to home manufactures. We still make many of our goods, and our men have been busy all winter; but when we find we can buy an article cheaper than we can make it, and as good, we buy it. Consequently, we can offer to our customers the Best of the country's production at the lowest price that an intense competition can make, affording them the most genuine protection.

JOHN KECK & CO., Furniture, Carpets and Curtains. City Locals. SPRING STYLES. The Two Sams received yesterday, the first installment of Yeoman's Hats for which they are agents for Ann Arbor. This Hat is considered the finest quality of "Doby" Hat made or known to the trade. For correct styles D. B. Yeoman of the Albemarle, is considered the leader of styles for young men's hats throughout the East and West.

They have also received the agency for H. M. Silverman & Co's Derby Hats in two lights. It is also worth while mentioning that The Two Sams are leaders in the hat trade of Ann Arbor. Another feature worth mentioning is the fact that at the end of every season all old styles are discarded from their counters and only the correct styles shown or sold. THE TWO SAM'S. Store to Rent.—The store formerly occupied by Mr. Dunstan, in the Hanster block, is for rent on March 10. Call on A. F. Hangsterfer.

He enjoys a large and permanent patronage, controlling the trade through the surrounding country for from 12 to 25 miles, from the center of each place through the exchange of his work. The premises occupied are spacious and admirably arranged, the reception room is neatly and handsomely furnished and the operating department is equipped with the most improved modern apparatus and appliances. Mr. Gibson employs assistants for each department of his large studio and possesses every facility for turning out first class work in the most satisfactory manner, while his prices are very moderate.

Photography in all its branches is attended to in the most perfect manner, and turned out by a first class gallery may be had there. Mr. Gibson is genial and obliging to his patrons and as an artist, ranks second to none in the line of business and well deserves the success which he has achieved. Two first-class painters by W. G. Brecheff, No. 10 East Huron-st., Ann Arbor, Mich. We opened up, Feb. 11, and will continue our sales every day and evening. Parties wishing fine goods will do well to attend our opening sales. WHAT CONSTITUTES THE NOBLE MAN?

What constitutes the noble man? And how many men are there who are noble in spirit?

THE DIAMOND NECKLACE.

BY GUY DE MADPASSANT.

She was one of those pretty, charming girls who, though through a mistake of destiny, among a family of clerks...

She left about 4 in the morning. Since midnight her husband had slept in a little delirium, of all these agonized desires of the victory...

He threw over her shoulders her wrap that he had brought for her to go home in a shy, excited, nervous manner...

She looked at him with a look of surprise and indignation. He was not the man she had married...

Who would have happened if she had not lost that necklace?

Who can tell? How odd life is, how changeable! What a little thing will ruin you or save you!

Now on Sunday, as she was taking a walk in the Champs-Elysees to rest herself from her week's work...

Mme. Loisel was moved. Should she ask and speak to her? Yes, surely; and now that she had paid, she could tell her everything. Why not?

She went up to her. "But—madame! I do not know—you must be mistaken."

"No, I am Mathilde Loisel." Her friend uttered an exclamation: "How poor Mathilde, how changed you are!"

"Yes, I have had many a hard day since I saw you; and many miseries—and all on your account."

"Do you think that set of diamonds that you lent me to go to the fete at the minister's?"

"Yes, well?" "How! Why you brought it back to me."

"I brought you back another just like it. And for ten years we have been paying for it. You can understand that it was not easy for us, we had nothing. At last it is done, and I am very, very glad."

Mme. Forestier stopped. "You say you bought a set of diamonds to replace mine?"

"Yes, you did not notice it, eh?" "Yes, I did not notice it, eh?"

Mme. Forestier, much moved, took her hands in hers. "Oh! my poor Mathilde! But mine were false. It was worth at the most 500 francs."

Reading Character Legitimately.

A TERRIBLE CONFESSION.

The following story—which is attracting wide attention from the press—is so remarkable, and so full of interest, that we do not lay it to our readers' entire.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ROCHESTER (N. Y.) DEMOCRAT.

Sir:—On the first day of June, 1881, I lay my head on my pillow, surrounded by friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it.

My dear friends, I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

I had always known any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have believed it.

THE "HO" MEMOR.

My soul's secret longings kept me in a daze of dreams as all of them, for nature then in silence sleeps...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...

How oft I have seen you in the night, How oft I have seen you in the night...
