Senator-elect F. B. Stockbridge has bought the old St. Luke's church and lots at Kalamazoo and will donate them to the Y. M. C. A. as a site for the association building. The lots are on Church Square, on Main street, and the site is one of the most desirable in the city. The square was donated by Titus Bronson, after whom the village was first named, for religious purposes, and cannot be used for any other. Mr. Bronson also gave to the town the double square on which the beautiful Bronson Park is situated, the Court House square and the old West Street cemetery, specifying the purpose for which each was to be used.

Another bill is before the house which has a direct bearing on the liquor traffic. It provides that where a business which has been legalized is subsequently made unlawful, compensation shall be made to those engaged in such business for damages that may be caused by its destruction. This bill, though general in its terms, and in some contingencies applicable to other classes of business, will be seen to have its most prominent application to the brewers in case prohibition is adopted in the constitution or by legislation.

A number of important state boards are to be thoroughly investigated. Senator Babcock introduced a bill a few days since abolishing the state board of health. He has procured figures and statistics showing that the institution costs something like $15,000 per year, and he has information that the expense reaches $40,000 annually. A secretary receives $2,500 per year, and ten clerks are employed at salaries ranging from $600 to $1,000 annually. The purpose of the bill is to investigate whether the state is getting full value for this large outlay. Senator Babcock is not radical for abolishing the board if it can show that it serves a valuable purpose, which is in some doubt. He says it was originally intended that the board should not cost over $5,000 per year. tral part of the state.

The plans for the memorial bridge to span the Potomac at Washington were made by Capt. Thomas W. Symons, formerly of Flint, who is now connected with the United States engineer corps.

The state board of auditors among others will come in for a share of attention, a bill having been introduced for the reorganization of that body. The author of the bill says that at present they have sweeping powers, and his design is to add the governor as a member of the board. It is now composed of the treasurer, secretary of state and commissioner of the state land office. Other bills have been introduced for a reorganization of the state board of agriculture and for the reorganization of the management of the state prison board.

A bill is before the house prohibiting railroads from issuing passes to officials, government, state, county or judicial. All the members of the legislature, state officials, sergeant-at-arms, and janitors are supplied with passes, and it would be a god-send to the railroads if such a law could be enacted. It is not very probable however, that the members will vote these passes out of their own pockets. The penalty for violation of the law is a fine of not less than $2.0, or more than $500, and the forfeiture of the office by the person accepting the pass.

White thinks that the cars can be comfortable with very little extra expenditure, the surplus heat in the smoke arch doing the work. He has been invited to part of the county of Luce, but refused to give it immediate effect because the bill gave to the governor the appointment of the county of ficers. The next day the bill was brought out again for discussion by a senator who objects to naming the county after a living man, and proposed to change the passes. Mrs. Louise Crump, a Monroe pioneer, is accepting the pass.

cation, their constituents have not been idle if the flood of petitions which came pouring in is any criterion. Among the petitions there were a number each for petitions there were a number each for raising the age of consent to 18; for the passage of the bill equalizing the bounties of soldiers, an act for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within one mile of the soldiers' home. Those for the equalization of bounties were the most numerous, several of them coming from grand army posts. Petitions or resolutions were also received for an additional judge of the Wayne circuit court, for legislation relating to the crossing of railroads by each other, for amendments to the drain law and for the reorganization of the judicial circuits. Vigorous remonstrances were received against the restoration of the death penalty and against the passage of the Gorman bill.

The response to a resolution of inquiry the Adjutant-General sent to the house a communication the other day, saying that a careful examination of the books in his office and the acts of the legislature has failed to show that any promises of bounty were made to soldiers enlisting in 1861 and 1862 that has not been kept. He then gave in detail the legislation relating to bounties and the amounts paid at different periods. The report has a bearing on the bill for the equalization of bounties.

In the senate two more constitutional amendments have been started on their way to the popular vote. The first amends section 6 of article 6 of the constitution so as to give the legislature power to provide for more than one circuit judge in the circuit in which the county of Saginaw is situated. The amendment will be submitted to the people at the election in April next. The second proposes to amend section 2, article 4, so as to provide for a senatorial term of four years instead of two. This also is to be submitted at the April election.

The non-partisan state central committee, appointed at Detroit on the 11th inst., by the friends of the proposed prohibitory amendment, held a meeting in the city on the 19th. About twenty persons were present. Among them were Prof. Dickie of Albion, David Preston and the Rev. F. A. Blades of Detroit, D. P. Sagendorph of Charlotte, W. H. Brockway of Albion, Oil Inspector LaDu of Coral, Guernsey P. Waring of Lansing, W. D. It will provide for the covering of machinery in mills and factories where workmen are liable to be injured, such as saw mills. The joint select committee on the Lyons disaster have made their report, stating that on their visit to Lyons they found twenty four families, containing eightynine porsons, who were penniless, and whom they think the state should aid. This does not include business men or others who can repair their losses. The committee introduced a joint resolution appropriating $4,000, of which $1,000 is to be used in breaking up the ice gorge by the use of dynamite, and $3,000 for the temporary relief of those in distress. The resolution passed the house by a vote of $1 to 1. In the senate the matter was referred to the committee on appropriations and finance, and at the evening session was again called up and passed by more than the necessary two-thirds.

Gov. Luce has signed the bills incorporating Romeo and abolishing the superior court of Detroit.

The rush of bills since the legislature reconvened on the 15th, has been beyond the capacity of the clerks to index them. In both houses the committee clerks have been pressed into service and still the work is far behind.

A bill has been introduced in the house appropriating $20,000 for the erection of a hospital and barn at and the purchase of a carriage for the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids. A bill for the general support of the institution was also introduced at the same time. The amount was left blank. Representative Dixon says the managers of the soldiers. However, for $200,000

11 one city is ravored in legislative cir-cles that city is Detroit. From the num-ber of bills and resolutions now before both ber of bills and resolutions now before both houses relating to matters in Detroit, one might safely conclude that Detroit was Michigan, and the legislature was convened solely in the interests of that city. Other matters are attended to, certainly, but the Detroit delegation are certainly to be commended for the interest they display in all that pertains to the City of the Straits.

The bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors within one mile of the soldiers' home, which was introduced by Mr. H. Watson and has been especially championed by him, passed the house by a good vote. It was again the subject of a brief discussion, and numerous amendments were offered.

The bill to admit the wives of veterans to the state soldiers' home is doomed to defeat. The bill is now on the house calendar, but Mr. Manly, who introduced the bill and championed its passage with vigor and earnestness, has undergone a marked change of heart. This was early in the session. Since the bill was introduced Mr. Manly attended the investigation at the home, and is now convinced that if the wives were admitted the building would have to be entirely remodeled or rebuilt, and that the proposed admission is not at all feasible.

Mr. White of Eaton Rapids has been in the city exhibiting to the railroad commissioner a plan which he has patented for heating passenger trains without stoves. By a number of ingenious devices he carries either hot air or steam from the smoke arch of the locomotive through pipes along one side of the cars, returning it to the locomotive on the other. Mr. White thinks that the cars can be made comfortable with very little extra expenditure, the surplus heat in the smoke arch doing the work. He has been invited to exhibit his device to the officers of the Michigan Central.

death penalty and against the passage of the Gorman bill.

The petitions were followed by a shower of bills, covering almost every subject that can safely come within the range of legislative action. Many of them were noticed before the vacation and possess the merit of being original, while others are the chestnuts which have been sprung upon every legislature since early in the 50's.

Thehouse has passed two bills in the interest of the farmers. The first to regulate the use of steam traction engines on the highways, and to provide for giving warning of the approach of such engines, and a second bill, which is intended to break up the Bohemian oat fraud. The provisions of this last measure will be found in another column.

Almost the first business of the house after reconvening, was to take up and John Sherman Resigns as President Pro Tem of the Senate.

Other News and Congressional Resume. WASHINGTON, Feb. 23, 1887.

Washington, Feb. 23, 1887.

Senator John Sherman has resigned as president pro tem of the senate, in order that some one whose time runs beyond March 4 may be chosen to swear in the new senators and assist in the organization of the 50th congress. Several candidates are in the field, but the impression seems to prevail that either Senator Hoar or Senator Ingalls will succeed Sherman.

It is reported on most reliable authority that President Cleveland has receded from his determination not to consider members of the present congress in making up his appointments for the inter-state commerce commission, and has come to the conclusion that it would not be a violation of the spirit of the constitution to appoint present members after the 4th of March.

A bill authorizing the secretary of the interior to sell, at cost price, surplus copies of public documents, not more than one copy to any one person, and the bill making appropriations for the military academy have passed the senate.

It is rumored that Martin V. Montgomery, commissioner of patents, has grown weary of the strain upon his nerves which the position causes, and that he will short-ly resign. The report lacks confirmation.

Washington's birthday was generally observed in this city as a boliday. All the executive departments and many business houses were closed. Both houses of congress, however, were in session. Several street parades took place during the day. The first was composed of veterans of the old volunteer fire departments of this city and Baltimore, who subsequently participated in the celebration in Alexandria. The washington continentals made a pilgrimage to Mt. Vernon, where appropriate exercises were held.

Any nation that provokes us to war now, must do so with the understanding that we are to be pretty well equipped, the military committee of the house having agreed upon a bill appropriating $5,-000,000 for a gun factory, heavy ordnance, mortars and torpedoes.

The senate has passed the river and harbor bill as amended and reported by the committee. The senate has also passed the bill to incorporate the ship and canal company of Nicaragua. The bill incorporates the maritime canal company of Nicaragua, with the principal office in New York city. The conference committee on the Detroit federal building bill have agreed on the amendment to the bill and it goes back to the house and senate, placing the limit of the co-t of the building and site at $1,100,-(00). This is $75,000 more than the amount fixed by the house bill, and $200,000 less than the senate bill. Under the circumstances it is an exceedingly good compromise, and credit is due to Mr. Maybury as well as to Senator Palmer for bringing it about. It is not expected that there will be any opposition in the house to the conference report, which was unanimous.

Mr. Henderson of Illinois had enjoyed Logha's friendship for a quarter of a century, and gladly bore testimony to the uprightness of his character, the gallantry of his military career, and his ability as a daughter of legislator.

Mr. McKinney of Ohio thought that Logan justly represented one of the best types of American manhood, and illustrated in his life the outcome and the possibilities of the American youth under the generous influence of our free institutions. Logan's creed was his country. Patrictism was the sole plank in his platform. He was every inch a soldier—the very incarnation of soldierly valor and vigor. He commanded on the battle line, and never ordered his men to go where he would not lead. The qualities which made him a leader in war made him a leader also in

The stock is not to exceed $100,000,000 of for, and 10 per cent. in cash paid thereon within two years, the charter is to expire by limitation.

Mr. Daniel of Virginia did not envy the feeling of the men who did not to-day mourn with those who mourned a strong man stricken down in his prime. With those who knew him best and loved him those who knew him best and loved him most, he bowed his head besides the bier of Logan. Great in war and great in peace, Logan was respected by his opponents, even though they thought that sometimes he was severe of judgment and bitter of expression. They respected him sincerely because they recognized that in him was that upright, downright spirit that said its say, did its deed, and left to God the consequences. They respected him because he did not practice to decive, and did not carry political hostility into cprivate relations. They respected him because he was kind to his political opponents and because, as a statesman he sages to the senate the other day. They were private bills, and in one case it was shown that there was fraud of a most flagrant order, and in the other that the applicant bad neither moral nor legal right to the aid which he expected the government to give him.

A committee of ten was ordered appointed who, if his remains are transferred to Illinois, shall perform such services at the final ceremonics as may be desired, and naming memorial day, 1887, as the time. The G. A. R. of Iowa, Wissonsin and Indiana have adopted similar resolutions.

Mormon Outrage. Demands of the G. A. R.

All business was laid aside in the house the other day, and the members paid tribute and honor to the petriotic life and character of Gen. John A. Logan.

Mr. Thomas of Illinois said that in battle Logan was a born warrior, full to overflowing with military spirit and dash. Few men had held so many hearts in the hollow of his hand as had John A. Logan, and in Illinois the vacancy caused by his death could never be filled.

Mormon Outrage.

Edward Stone and wife went to Tula City, Arizona, some time ago, and opened a general store. Ever since their arrival they have been subjected to indignities of every kind from the Mormon residents. Matters reached a crisis and Stone was compelled to go to a neighboring town for aid. While he was absent his wife was made a captive by the leaders of the Mormon church and their property seized. When Stone returned he, too, was made a captive, but after a short parley both were released and the Mormons left in possession. Stone has laid the matter before the authorities.

I straightened myself and gently turned every part around to see if it were all right, and, right here I would say that our side-walks are a disgrace to our beautiful city. A body of young women passed me on the street in my journeyings about the city, whose head-gear was adorned with gaily colored birds, slaughtered to gratify a passing fancy of the hour, I asked myself this question . Why will women be so thoughtless or so cruel as to demand the slaughter of the beautiful birds to adorn their hats and bonnets. Do they realize that in keeping up this fashion which, if not stopped, will render our fields and woods silent as the grave. Why does not this suggest itself to them. Women's hearts are tender and sympathetic, and if they once realized that this continued patronage of this cruel fashion is a blot upon the civilization of the present age.

As I was standing in a bookstore the other day, looking over some periodicals, I was amazed at the number of novels called for and sold. A noted scientist, in attempting to answer the question says, "the novel has became the principal ailment of the feminine intellect." It may be so, but this I do know, that a prominent newsdealer in this city told me that it was surprising how many novels were sold to young men students. sometimes one purchasing $3.00 or $4.00 worth at once. Now does this prove that all the novel readers are women?

The young boys and girls were liberally patronizing this dealer in the purchase of valentines. It is a very pretty custom, but is fast going out of fashion, as I understand the number sold this year is much smaller than ever before. But this sending of these disgusting caricatures called "comic valentines" is a disgrace to the sender, and a stab in university taxidermist, has been expending his skilled genius in mounting, is now unvailed to the public, having been was told by this dealer that I would be

The Washington birthday parade of the above organization was witnessed by filled to overflowing with eager listena large crowd which lined the streets at the time. There were 32 men in line, and, headed by the City band, they made a very fine appearance. She was not young-so to speak, neither was she old, nor in the slightest degree passe. The editor of the Crescent was at the very height of her womanhood and of her power. The object of her displeasure at this moment was a letter, an ordinary appearing letter, in fashionable cream envelope. This letter was unhesitatingly laid aside, and with the seal unbroken. The slender fingers may have trembled a little, but they were none the less relentless of purpose. Resuming her occupation, her brow cleared, and, in the press of business, the circumstance was forgotten.

A month from this date another letter, also in cream envelope, and in the same handwriting, came to the editor's hand. With cold, business like exactness, this letter, still unopened, was placed beside its fellow of the month previous. Evidently the handwriting was recognized by her, and from circumstances best known to herself, especially offensive In a week's time there arrived another, until at length, five of these cream envelopes lay piled one upon another. But with the advent of the fifth missive, the editor of the Crescent became enraged. Such persistence amounted to persecution, and called for prompt measures of suppression. Deliberately enclosing the five letters in an express package, superscribed to Rowland Browne, Jr., Brownville, Wisconsin, she once more dismissed the subject from her mind.

The courts of the county seat of Brownville, Wisconsin, had but recently adjourned, followed by a state of lassitude on the part of lawyers and judges. By some legal ledgerdemain, best known to the fraternity, the most unimportant suits had been continued to the September term. Therefore, these august administrators of justice were duly impressed with a sense of having done their whole duty, toward themselves and their fellowmen.

Rowland Browne, Jr., was no exception to the prevailing dullness, upon this warm July in his Fourth of July oration, without a doubt his chances for congressional nomination from that district were fairly assured; socially ne was popular. He was a jolly good fellow, everybody agreed. A human, flesh-and-blood kind of man; one, none too good for earth, and yet not unfit for heaven. But Rowland Browne, Jr., felt in the depths of his nature, a want. Life seemed objectless. What was he living for, anyway? Ambition was good so far as it went, but ambition was only a part of his life. His nature was sympathetic, he delighted in the everyday amenities of living. He was just thirty-two, and, bah! his office at this moment was like a shaker settlement, except that already it wore a grimy, neglected appearance. However this had happened, he had never in tended it. His dreams had, indeed, been quite different. There was Henrietta Seymour, he suddenly remembered. He had acted like a scoundrel, as she regarded that affair, connected with Prof. J. She would not listen to an explanation, then, and on his return from Yale she was gone. The family had returned to the East, they said. Anyway he had lost all clew to her. "But I swear!" he exclaimed, in a burst of emotion, "I was as innocent as an archangel of wrong toward her."

He had never seen a girl quite like Henrietta Seymour; those clear, direct eyes of hers were a constant reproach to him; he could not escape them. "She was what is called 'talented,' every one acknowledged that. He, Prof. J., admired her, so did I; and how should I have known the old curmudgeon wanted to marry her? He should have been content with science and let love alone; it wasn't a good combinanation. That one can't do two things at once, is a wise maxim. Well, I

Roland Browne, Jr., it was very evident, was fast approaching the confines of sentimentalism this quiet July afternoon. A bumble-bee noisily explored the nooks and corners of his office, alighting upon the bust of Lincoln above the book-case. "Well," he said, retrospectively, "old Abe stood the sting of many a marauder's beak unmoved, simple, and grand to the last."

"But shoo! get out there," a palm leaf in his hand, Rowland Browne, Jr., roused him self to pursue the offender to the doorway. "What's the use of screens I'd like to know, anywny. Helio! William, letters? A god send! lay them on the table there, and here, William, drive that rascally bumble-bee out of these sacred precincts, sacred to law and order, eh?"

Seating himself to his more agreeable occupation, letter after letter was scanned and placed on file for immediate answer, or otherwise, as the case might require. The last remaining document proved to be somewhat "Law papers-that Smith affair," but no; the superscription attracts his attention by a kind of magnetism; "this is no client's Starting from the lounging position in which he had thrown himself, he examined it carefully. I am going East as a matter of course, if for no other reason than to disentangle this mesh of misunderstandings. My lawyer-like instincts will not allow of my remaining idle with a case like this pending."

Elevating his feet to the highest altitude of the desk opposite, he proceeded to a careful synopsis of the case in hand. "Contribution versus Editor, at cross-purposes, standing in the relation of plaintiff and defendant. This, I take it, represents the position of affairs. Rowland Browne, Jr., just at the nick of time, puts in an appearance as counsel for plaintiff; also, indirectly and psychologically for defense. A great portion of the cere' rum was not only destroyed, but completely swept away, yet the patient survived for upwards of four days, and as many nights, retaining her mental faculties entire to the last hour of her existence; nor was her sight impaired, the pupils of both eyes acting in the most regular and natura manner. How these things could exist under such circumstances, and accord with the doctrines of phrenology, as they are at present taught, I am unable to determine." The Lancet, London,

NINE WEEKS A CRIPPLE With Rheumalism, and Twenty Years a Suffer er with Neuralgia, Cured by Dr. Pardec's Remedy. ROCHESVER, N. Y., May 25, 1886. GENTS: I would like to open my heart to show you my feelings of gratitude which I am unable to express in words as I desire, for the great benefit I have received fron your remedy. I have for twenty years been a constant sufferer with neuralgia, and in March I had a very severe attack of rheumatism in my side and limbs. I was so badly off that I feared I should lose the use of my limbs, but thanks to 'Dr. Pardee's Remedy," I am now entirely cured of both rheumatism and neuralgia and am better in every respect than I have been for years. I recommend your medi cine to every one.

I am most respectfully yours

> A Miraculous Escape from the Grave.
> I have been in poor health with a diseased stomach and liver, causing a cankered mouth continually for ten years. I kept about my honse until a year ago last June. For three years prior to that time I had a severe pain in the region of my heart, at times seeming past endurance. It affected my shoulder, took all strength from my arm; could get no relief only by poulticing. My stomach being so diseased, my food caused me great distress. My age also seemed to be in the way of my recovery, and not the least of my sickness. I employed the very best medical assistance I could get while in Caro, this state, but little encouragement could I get. Was moved to Vassar Oct. I, 1885, on a bed, giving me every ten minutes a A Miraculous Escape from the Grave moved to Vassar out a giving me every ten minutes a teaspoonful of brandy and ice with only a teaspoonful of nourishment at a time. I commenced bloating soon after arriving a preservance of dropsy. We teaspoonful of nourishment at a time. I commenced bloating soon after arriving here, every appearance of dropsy. We called our Caro physician to come here, and he said my condition was worse than when in Caro. On the 27th day of May last we called a council of doctors from Yassar, "three in number." All of them pronounced my case incurable. I had with the rest inflammation of the bowels, and I lay almost lifeless, and one of the leading physicians said if I could be restored to a sane mind again it would be all my husband might expect, and anything that would soothe me was all that could be done. My husband got me some medicine at Johnson & Williamson's, druggists at Vassar, and commenced giving it to me, and in three weeks' time they began to put me in an easy chair, "for a short time each day," at which time I had no use of my lower limbs and my back was numb: it was a little more than two months before I could walk without crutches. I am now a well woman, have walked one and a half miles within a month, can eat all kinds of food and enjoy it, have gained from $2 pounds, since last May, to 116 now, could say more of sickness, put delicacy prevents.
