The residents of the North Side are rejoicing over the fact that the old town pump which stands at the corner of Broadway and Wall st. will soon be suitably enclosed with a fence. A resolution to this effect was introduced by Ald. Taylor and passed by the council Monday night. The pump has had a railing of wood which formed a resting place for the loafers of lower town whose business seems to consist solely of disgusting the passers with their profane and obscene language. The doorbell of a house in Ann Arbor was violently rung the other day and the lady of the house rushed to open the door, thinking that either the house was on fire, or a message of life and death was awaiting her. To her surprise and indignation she found no one on her porch, but saw a flaming hand-bill heralding the wonderful reductions in some bargain store. On looking down the street she discovered a small boy with a bundle of the bills on his arm, going from door to door and pulling the bells as he had done at her house. This nuisance is a hard one to stand. It does a firm no good to advertise in this way, but harm, as the people are only indignant at the way they are called to the door to find their steps and halls littered up with waste paper. An ordinance has been recently passed prohibiting the throwing of bills on the streets or sidewalks, and they cannot be put in stores or private houses unless the owners are willing. Our Man would like to see some of these rascally bell ringers taken in hand.

Y. M. C. A. Anniversary.

The second anniversary meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association, took place at the M. E. church Sunday evening, was an interesting affair, and was listened to with much pleasure by the audience.

President Charles W. Wagner presided, a chorus choir of young men furnished the musical part of the program, and General Secretary B. B. Johnson gave an account of the work of the Association for the year. The work accomplished by this organization is certainly well worth the effort and money it has cost. The result, if only one boy instead of many, was saved every year to right living and pure thinking, would be worth the effort.

This association is doing nobly. If there is any good, conscientious, Christian labor being performed in Ann Arbor to-day, this body of laborers is loing it. The field is a large one. They have only started in it. More laborers and more givers both, are needed. Join the ranks, can you

The Proper Time is when nearly everyone feels the need of some blood purifying, strength inrigorating and health producing medi ine. The real merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the reason of its widespread popularity. Its unequalled success is its best recommendation. The whole system is susceptible to the most good from a medicine like Hood's Sarsapa-Illa taken at this time, and we would ay special stress upon the time and edy, for history has it recorded that delays are dangerous. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy of your confidence. We ask you to give this medi-cine a fair trial.

> Results Tell the Story. A vast mass of direct, unimpeachable ity of doubt that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually does perfectly and permanently cure diseases caused by impure blood. Its record of cures is unequalled and these cures have often been accomplished after all other preparations had failed.

Persons who take their brains to the theatre as well as those who have a fondness for real dramatic art can hardly afford to miss the fine stage resentation of this play in Charles B. Hanford, Elihu R. Spencer and Nora O'Brien. For they not only interpret standard dramas rather better than other organizations of the sort, but nothing could add to the material effectiveness of the pieces they present. In beautiful costumes, finely painted scenery and enriched pageantry their presentations offer rarely successful examples of the appropriate use of spectacle. Yet handsome as are these embellishments, there is never a moment when they obtrude to the disadvantage of the drama or the players. Mr. Hanford is considered one of the foremost American actors. He requires no introduction to local patro is of the loftier form of the drama, nor does Mr Spencer either, for that matter. Miss O'Brien is a new comer. A novice but ten months ago, she has stepped to the fore with somewhat surprising swiftness. There is reason for it too, for she has rare personal beauty, a trained mind and a polished quality of dra-

I have no doubt but many of our principal streets have had gravel erough put upon them to make a fair wheelway, but, applied as it has been, without system or any preparation of the road bed, a load here and a load there, it has become thoroughly mixed with soil and street refuse and readily softens in wet weather and streets is in no way commensurate with what it has cost. this condition.

The better a road is built the less will it cost to maintain it, and nothing will so surely nor so speedily predjudice the people against street improvements as a street that will not hold its shape What you undertake this season will be regarded by the people as an experment, although there is no reason why good roads should be more of an exper iment than good houses. Those who are disposed to criticise street improve ments will not have far to go to fine many instances where macadam roads have been deplorable failures. But there are reasons for all of these fail ures outside of and beyond the system itself. Like asphalt, macadam is not an economical pavement where it is subject to the wear of continuous and heavy traffic.

That mistake has frequently been made. Again, soft stone, poor founda tion, lack of drainage, faulty construction, etc. have been responsible for many expensive experiments in stone road building. But I have yet to see hear or read of a macadam road pro perly constructed and for a traffic to failed to give satisfaction.

ntial features of a good ros covering are capacity to present a smooth surface, to resist wear and to shed water; the foundation must do the rest. In most localities the first and most expensive problem with which the engineer is confronted in the construction of macadam roads is the prepartion of the foundation.

Usually it must be under-drained side ditches must be constructed and the foundation prepared at great expense before the road is ready to receive the broken stone covering. And this expense cannot be avoided for the foundation of a road is quite as essent ial as its covering. If that foundation is not properly drained and protected from the weather by the stone covering which should be to it as a roof, no depth of stone or other material will trary to popular ideas, the macadam is and the greater number of people wil not intended to let the surface water sink away into the underlying soil. The proper place for the surface water is in the gutter and the stone road that been. This water tight feature is to be obtained by thoroughly rolling and by proper binding which caulks up the crevices. Any thing that will absorb road. For that reason all earthy and clavev materials must be excluded from the broken rock. Clay not only dis integrates a road by freezing and heaving, but, when wet, acts as a lubrican between the stones facilitating motion between them. Care must also be taken to guard against the entrance of clay from the under side of the stone layer, and this is another argument in favor of thoroughly compacting the bed before the stone is laid.

Nothing but the screenings from the broken rock or the cleanest sand or ine gravel should be used for binding With a road bound with this material properly curved and thoroughly compacted, you have a surface that will not only furnish all possible resistance to the wear of traffic that the materia of which it is made is capable, but t the action of the elements as well.

Frost can heave or soft weather ettle your road only when water car strain through the covering. With a road constructed in this manner no water can reach your foundation, hence climatic changes can have no effect apon it.

Perhaps for our purposes it will be as well to put the stone upon the road in two layers, the coarser layer under

Yet my judgement is that if the stone s broken fine enough nothing will be lost to the durability of the road by making both layers of the same size The saving lies in the expense of crus! ing and is in favor of using larger stone for the lower layer. A well constructed macadam road does not depend upon thickness for its she people who habitually travel the any given point distributed over a large area before it reaches the foundation, but, with a thoroughly compacted road, the stone form an arch which has a tendency to transmit the load over he entire width of the road. No leas which is drawn upon our streets can cut a well built macadam road four inches thick.

Bridgeport, Conn. affords a striking example of the utility of thin roads when well constructed. Their newer oads are only four inches thick and are noted among engineers for their excellence. They have been constructed at so low a price as 28 cents per square yard and compare favorably with Telford roads in the same town that cost $1.50 per square yard.

Extra thickness is not wasted, howthick enough to give it body additional thickness adds to the life of the road, extending the time when a general resurfacing must be given it. Two inches more in thickness will only cost the stone extra and I am inclined to think that when the cost of maintainance for a term of years has been added to the original cost of the road, the six inch road will prove to be cheaper than the four inch one. Two layers of rock, which will measure four inches each when loose. and which, with the binding would make about six inches of compacted road, should make a fair average for any of the streets of Ann Arbor that it is desirable to macadamize.

Right here I wish to suggest that it is not advisable to macadamize business streets that must necessarily be frequently cleaned and are subject to continuous heavy travel. While the first cost of a brick pavement is much more than that of macadam it can be kept clean with less expense and the cost of maintainance will bear no comparison. On such streets brick at $1.75 per square yard will be cheaper and more desirable than macadam at 50 cents.

For the purpose of safely carrying the surface water during storms, would recommend that gutters be cor structed of cobble stone or paving bri k on each side of the roadway. These gutters should should vary in width from two and one half to three ond one half feet, according to the grade of the street and the territory to be drained.

our four rod streets would leave a 27 foot driveway to be macadamized. The cost of a cobble stone gutter would be about $1.50 per lineal rod. The brick would cost considerable more but could be made narrower. Six inches of finished macadam 27ft wide with three and one half foot cobble stone gutters on each side will cost, at a conservative estimate, about 47 cents per square yard, $1.40 per lineal foot, or better to be profane than vulgar.' $46 for each four rod lot.

part of the day had been given to set speeches y Mr. Lodge on immigration and Mr. Pugh on silver. The Cuban discussion was mainly important in bringing out the full reading of a datement of the Spanish side of the case by senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister. It chaimed to detail the insignificant methods of guerrilla warfare, the burning of canelields and the disorganized character of the bands. Mr. Morgan commented severely on the miniser's statement. They Senator had several charp controversies with Mr. Hale over varous phases of the Cuban question. House-several bills were passed: Among the important was the Oklahoma homestead bill, which elieved homesteaders in Oklahoma of the paynent of the purchase price of their homesteads. The House also decided, at the request of Mr. litt, chairman of the committee on foraga affairs, to consider the resolutions censuring ambassador Bayard. tariff, finance or foreign policy.
