DANGER OF FICTION WRITERS How Great Popularity May Work Then

In the present tremendous vogue of fiction as a form of literature and the consequent demand for the work of popular storymakers authors are exposed to a certain danger, says an exchange. We mean the hothouse forcing of their work. Famous writers of novels and short tales are besieged with offers Philadelphia, Penn., June 30.-Two and orders on all sides. > TWO EXTREMES IN SKELETONS That of the Irish Giant Is Over Eight Feet in Height.

The largest and smallest skeletons of humans ever preserved are kept in the museum of the Royal College of don, says the New York World, One is eight feet four inches in height. The other is less than two feet.

Charles Byrne, the famous Irish giant, who was more generally known as O'Brien, died in 1783, when he was 22 years old. His capacity for liquor was in keeping with his huge physical proportions. So keen was his anguish over losing all his property, to-wit, a £300 note-that he drank a cask of ale in one day. The day following he died. Byrne had a great dread of becoming dissecting room subject. He made a bargain with a fisherman before he died to take his body out into the channel and throw it overboard. Hunter the English surgeon, learned of this arrangement and by paying the fisherman $500 he prevailed upon him to carry out his bargain to the letter, but to attach a rope to the body and drag it up again after it had been immersed. The fisherman served two masters and Hunter got the body. The tiny skeleton is that of Caroline Crachami, the Sicilian dwarf, who was exhibited in Europe in the early part of the century. The child did not grow after birth, and before she reached her teens she died. Her body, it is said, was sold to a British surgeon by her parents. Beside the giant's frame stands one of the boots he wore when he died. The skeleton of the dwarf can be slipped into it as easily as a pipe stem.

The Snake Redeems Himself. One of the attaches of the United States geological survey tells a wonderful snake story, and he claims it is true So does his wife, who was one of the parties to it. Both are favorably known in this city, but as there is much doubt expressed about their story, they prefer that their names shall not be given for the present. According to the gentleman, while in the far west in the early part of last summer, he ran across a raftlesnake. The snake was apparently in great agony and, upon examination, it was found that a thorn was sticking through it. The gentleman was an expert in handling snakes and he had no difficulty in pulling out the thorn, much to the relief of the rattler. Three months later he visited the same place and near the same spot found the same snake. He packed it up in a box and decided to bring it to Washington.

A few nights afterward the gentleman and his wife arrived in a promising western town and took quarters at a hotel. During the night a thief entered the room and would have got away with considerable plunder had not the snake, in his gratitude for kindness shown him, stuck his tail out of the window and given a rattle which attracted the attention of the police .-Westington Sta

Latest Ally of the X Rays.

While the X rays are undoubtedly able accurately to locate a foreign body such as a needle imbedded in the flesh of the hand, yet they are powerless to remove it, but electricity is equal to the occasion and offers means in the electro magnet of accomplishing this. A curious instance of the removal of a needle by a magnet is reported from Cherryfield, Me., to the Philadelphia Record. A woman pierced her hand by a needle, the eye going in first and the point breaking off, leaving a piece about three-quarters of an 'nch long imbedded in the flesh near the thumb. A slight cut was made in the skin over the place where the fragment was located and a powerful electro magnet devised at the local electric light station applied. The attraction of the magnet Prof. Dusel, of Bonn, noticed one day for the steel needle drew it out at his wife placing a large bouquet on his once, causing it to cut its way through desk. Shortly after this event two very good specimens were detected among a collection of eggs purchased at a sale in the country for 30 shillings and were subsequently sold by Mr. Stevens last year for 275 guineas and 185 guineas respectively. A third specimen, Sir W. Milner's, came into the auction room during last season and fetched 180 guineas. A tickled that he told the story at his few years ago a number of exceedingly clever forgeries of the egg were sold immediately after the above mentioned great auk's egg-a very fine specimen, slightly cracked, but otherwise in first-rate condition-of an egg of oe pyornis miximus realized 40 guineas and the only example of an egg of oe pyornis grandidieri ever offered for sale in this country sold for 35 guineas.-London Times. Sale of a Great Auk's Egg.

Says a Pennsylvania farmer: "I always know when there is going to be a winsdtorm by watching the turkeys and chicks go to roost each night. In calm weather the fowls always roost on the poles with their heads alternating each way-that is, one faces east, the next west, and so on. But when there is going to be a high wind they always roost with their heads toward the direction from which the storm is coming. There are reasons for these different ways of roosting, I take it. When there is no wind to guard against they can see other dangers more readily if they are headed in both directions, but when wind is to arise they face it because they can hold their positions better. But the part I can't understand is how the critters know that the wind is going to rise when we mortals lack all intimation of it."-New York Mercury. Ann Arbor, Every Friday.

ABOUT PAVING. THE DEMOCRAT would like to see a paving ordinance passed by the comthe Courier is not for mono-metallism. mon council which would divide the city into paving districts, designate the particular materials which should be used for the improvement of each district, provide a method for meeting the expense of such improvement and make the paving of the several districts elective upon the property owners thereof. While the council has the undoubted right to do so, we do not believe it would be either wise or just to pay for the improvement of any street entirely out of the general fund. Under any circumstances the owners of abutting property will receive the direct benefit of such improvement and pure silver. The Courier and its school should pay the major share of its construction. WILL HISTORY REPEAT ITSELF.

In 1844, the Whig party made "a protective tariff" the issue in the presidential campaign. The protection advocated in 1844 was not of the superlative, Chinese wall character of the protection of '96, but the principle was the same. Henry Clay was a popular idol of that day and Webster and other giants of the whig ranks had to stand aside and give him the nomination. This sewer business is a case of that character. The city engineer has advised the council that the sewer as originally constructed meets all requirements. He is supported in that view not only by the opinions of other engineers and by all authorities upon the subject, but the points in controversy have received a practical demonstratisn that ought to convince the most refractory understanding of the

The Unity of the Interests of Men and Women.

Much is said of the movement toward equality o' political rights for women with their brothers, as being an attempt to set men and women against each other. This is a view held only by those outside of the movement and who fail to comprehend its true mean-

In so many ways both amusing and provoking, men have felt themselves called upon to "represent" women, that it is difficult for them to realize any possible advantage to be derived from listening to the woman's side of questions presented by herself, but just as certainly as do the mothers of the land, take better care of their children than could any number of men trying to "represent" them in this relation, just so surely will women do better by making their opinions felt directly upon the polity of the country than by being "represented" by men. It is the anti-suffragists who wish to separate the interests of men and women, not the woman suffragists; the former draw an imaginary line between the lives of men and women and wish the two sexes carefully separated lest their influence upon each other should be for evil and not men and women to be together in all walks of life, made them to have a seciprocally good infibence upon each other. They feel that what God hath joined together, no man-made laws should put asunder in the government, any more than in the church, in society

Board of Public Works.

The Board of Public Works met Wednesday afternoon to open the bids | the vacant lot at 34 S. Division. for the construction of the Williams st. from $9453 to $14943. Sharp and Schultz of Port Huron were the lowest bidders. Schneider Bros. of this city Tappan st. near Prof. Hudson's. came next at $19340.

The Schultz of the firm of Sharp & Schultz was one of the firm who constructed the Liberty st. sewer and as that sewer was not constructed accord-It is somewhat difficult for one to ing to contract. Messrs. Smith and Keech objected to letting him another contract while this cloud was hanging over him. Mr. Schlutz was not present but Mr. Sharp assured the board that will have toilet and dressing rooms any claim he might have to the balance claimed on the Liberty st. sewer. It already waived any claim he may have against the city to the other members

The board took the matter under advisement and at a meeting yesterday morning decided to let Sharp & Schultz have the contract upon furnishing a satisfactory bond. The contractor personally agrees to give preference to

Ann Arbor labor. At the regular meeting of the Board Welnesday night bills amounting to $2900 were allowed.

Mr. Keech thought they were spend ing money somewhat recklessly and proposed to call a halt until the board could see where it stood.

More Water.

The Water Co. has been very success fully prospecting for water on West Washington street. The company has driven 28 wells varying in depth from 40 to 80 feet and have secured a flow of pure water estimated at one and onehalf million gallons per diem. All of the wells flow to the surface and many of them have head enough to force the water from 15 to 20 feet above. These wells will be connected directly to a Dean pumping engine of a capacity of two million gal's per day and the water will be forced into the mains without being exposed to air or sunlight. The boilers are already in place and the bed prepared for the reception of the pump. The new pumping station will be connected with the present system through both the Huron and Liberty street mains.

It is to be hoped that the most sanguine expectations of the officers of the company from these wells may be realized and that we may hence forth have a never failing supply of pure

Bicycle Meet.

The third annual race meet of the Tecumseh Bicycle Association will occur at Bills driving park, Tecumseh, Thursday, July 23, and the association are sparing no pains or expense to make this their best "meet" as well as the attraction of the season for of amateur and professional riders will compete for the $1,000 in prizes and not only Michigan but Ohio, Indiana and Illinois will be represented. Eight track events and a 10 mile road race are announced, which, together with the engagement of Sid Black, the celebrated trick rider, and many other attractions, will certainly make this a day of rare sport. Special rates on all railroads from points within 50 miles.

Good Health

And a good appetite go hand in hand. With the loss of appetite, the system cannot long sustain itself. Thus the fortifications of good health are broken down and the system is liable to attacks of disease. It is in such cases that the medical powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are clearly shown. Thousands who have taken Hood's Saraparilla testify to its great merits as a purifier of the blood, its powers to restore and shapen the appetite and promote a healthy action of the digestive organs. Thus it is, not what we appears in varied forms, but is forced say but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does to yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which that tells the story and constitutes the purifies and vitalizes the blood and strongest recommendation that can be urged for any medicine. Monkeys as Gold Miners.

Competition is very keen in the gold mines of the Transvaal. Some twentyfour monkeys were recently put to work as day laborers in the mine operated by Capt. E. Moss of Boston. Their work is so satisfactory that their services are accepted in place of ordinary workmen. Capt. Moss recently published an account of his remarkable monkey miners in the Boston Evening Transcript. He says the twenty-four monkeys do the work of seven able bodied men, and they do some of the work more satisfactorily. There are besides no strikes or other labor troubles among these new workmen. The monkeys' work is the gathering of | don Times, small pieces of quartz, which they carefully pile into little heaps. Their sharp eyes detect the small gold-bearing pieces of quartz, which an ordinary workman would pass over, and they are exceedingly skillful and quick in picking them up. Capt. Moss says that when he commenced dirring gold he had two pet monkeys 1 constantly followed him about ... .e. One day he noticed that they were busily engaged in gathering up little bits of quartz and carefully placing them in piles. They seemed to enjoy this work very much. It did not take the captain long to learn their value as laborers and so the monkey gang was at once increased. The monkeys that have had experience in the mines teach the new monkeys how to do the work .- New York World. Flower-Adorned Wheels. Wheelmen who come back from the suburbs with branches of blossom's tied in front of their wheels have a lot of trouble getting home with their prizes. If their return take them up the east side they find it pretty near impossible. Children beseech them for a flower with every variation of entreaty. Youngsters wheedle them with clasped hands and pretty pleadings and little "tarriers" snatch at the petals with violence enough to turn the wheel out of its course. Half-grown girls make no bones about joining in this gentle brigandage, and the exquisite from Murray Hill has sometimes to run an embarrassing gauntlet. A WONDERFUL PHOTOGRAPH. Shows Us with Delightful Realism Father Feeding His Child.

The new system of multiple photo graphy, whereby a great number of im pressions of the same person or object are taken in a moment or so of time, exhibits life to us in a very natural and realistic manner, says the New York Journal. This is one of the mos interesting features of this wonderful invention, for the old-fashioned photo graph represented human nature in the nost unnatural manner possible. It is notriously difficult to look pleasant when sitting for a photograph. The subjects of instantaneous multiple photography do not have the same difficul

The Deceased Wife's Sister Question Mr. Chamberlain, in reply to a deputation of the agents-general for all the self-governing colonies, who waited on him last week to urge support for the legalization of marriage with a deceased wife's sister, said he quite sympathized with the object the colonial governments had in view, but much doubted whether Gen. Laurie Bill's dealing with the subject could be dealt with this session. At the same time, however, whenever that or any other measure legalizing marriage with a deceased wife's sister came before parliament he should support it .- Lon-

WOMEN OF THE SEA.

These Have Followed a Life on the Wave from Choice.

The sailors' superstitious fears that woman's presence on shipboard invites ill-luck, has failed to deter women whose hearts yearned for the sea from gratifying this desire. The pages of the maritime history of the world contain the names of many matrons and girls in various periods who, disguised as men, have followed a life on the ocean wave. The majority of them not copy cannot be dubbed undeniably only proved excellent sailors, but even fought bravely with cutlass, pike and pistol against the foes of their native land.

They did not even shrink from sailing under the black flag, for the English women, Anne Bonny and Mary Read, joined the buccaneers, the tipcal pirates of the Antilles, in order to gain booty to their heart's content. A German writer gives a number of names of women who have gone to sea, long which the following are interesting:

ships and ravaged the coasts of Normandy, burned castles and illuminated the sea at night with the glare of blazing villages. Jean de Belleville was famed in her age as one of the most beautiful women in Europe.

wife to sea in sailor garb. The ballad of bold Hannah Snell is known by all the sea somewhere in France. From also a kinswoman of the poet Helpa, that time she left the royal service, where her disguise had never been discovered, and returned in woman's clothes to London. The government granted her an annual pension of 50 pounds sterling for life. She is said to have gone on the stage afterward and acquitted herself admirably in sailor characters.

There are also high-hearted women who have performed many brave, heroic deeds while sailing the seas with their husbands. Among them Louise Dittmar, the wife of the captain of the Prussian steamer Edgar, deserves the highest praise. On the way home the entire crew, except the captain and the helmsman, were attacked with serious illness. The two men undertook to attend to the engine, while the woman stood at the helm and steered the ship, and this was done day and night, almost without relief, for weeks! The steamer arrived in port safely, after seven of the crew had died on the passage. In this case the valuable vessel had actually been saved solely by the captain's wife, for it is difficult to estimate what the two men could have done without her aid. Captains whose shipowners forbid them to take their wives with them might aptly cite as an opposing argument the example of Louise Dittmar.

A Lawsuit 300 Years Old. The little community of Burgsinn in he Bavarian district of Lower Franconia will shortly be able to celebrate the not overenviable third centenary jubilee of a lawsuit. On the 21st of June, 1596 this community brought suit at the imperial court, then sitting in Speyer, against the Barons von Thungen, concerning a magnificent oak and beech forest of nearly 8,000 hectares n extent, which may to-day be estimated worth about 2,000,000 marks, and which both parties claim as their own. It speaks volumes for the iniomitable grit of these peasants, who, despite their poverty, through three ong centuries, generation after generation, managed to put up among themselves enough money to carry on the suit and who, in view of a recent decree, may ultimately consider themselves the beati possidentes. A final more things to learn before he is seven ression has been fixed for June 19.

"YOU" AND "THOU!"

A decree has just been issued at Paris by the new minister of war forbidding officers to address the soldiers under their orders by the familiar pronoun of 'thou," says the New York Tribune. Henceforth, the more formal "you" is alone to be employed. It is needless to explain that the minister of war is a civilian, for a soldier would never have made the mistake of imagining for one moment that the feelings of self-respect of a private or non-commissioned officer would be affected by the use of the familiar pronoun "tu." "Tu" and "du" and "thou" are terms not of contempt but of familiarity and intimacy, and their use implies no lack of consideraion for the person to whom they are applied, but, on the contrary, a feeling of affectionate regard. In monarchical ountries the sovereigns have always made a point of addressing their troops with the pronoun "thou" in the same way that they apply the word "children" to even grizzled and battlescarred veterans twice their age. The men like to be addressed thus and feel a sort of sympathy for those whom they regard as displaying in this way affection and interest in their welfare. By forbidding the use of the word "tu" the new French minister of war has done far more harm than good, since he has rendered the relation between French officers and men more distant and formal, and has, in fact, raised a new barrier between those who hold commissions in the army and those who do not. Of course this new departure has been prompted by the spirit of republicanism, the minister's idea being that a soldier is just as much a French

In the German, Austrian, Italian and Russian armies, the officers not only use the word "thou" to their men, but among themselves as well, and the youngest lieutenant may use it to his olonel, or even to his general when off duty, the idea being they are brothers their shape and finish can be distinand comrades in arms. Officers meeting guished only by the microscope. for the first time use "thou" even though one be a prince and the other the son of a petty shopkeeper, one the colonel of some crack cavalry regiment, and the other a subaltern in a mere line of regiment. In the aristocracy, that is to say, among the old nobility, riche element is severely excluded, every one calls the other "thou," even young girls styling old dowagers thus. Monarchs and royal personages in their intimate intercourse with one another, invariably use the pronoun "thou." The prince of Wales addresses the emperor of Austria as "du," and the emperor of Germany makes use of the same pronoun when writing or speak ing to King Oscar or any other monarch. "Tu" and "du" and "thou" imply social equality among the persons who use them to one another, and if the French minister of war had been less hasty, and had taken the trouble of studying the history of his country, he would have found that during the early years of the great revolution at the end of the last century, when the doctrines of equality were really enforced, everyody made use of the word "citoyen" and of "thou" in addressing one another, no matter what might be the difference of age or official rank.
