They are on the run.
Republicans in full retreat.
The Democrats are in evidence everywhere.

Tuesday's election sounded the death knell of McKinleyism.

The Spanish ministers are probably not aware of the fact that they are trifling with dynamite when they indulge in incendiary criticisms of Uncle Sam's Cuban policy.

One Bates sues J. Pierpont Morgan for $2,000,000 which he alleges the latter has stolen from him. That's nothing. Morgan, Cleveland & Co. stole your Uncle Sam so blind that the old fellow thought they were saying his credit.

The endorsement which McKinley's administration received at the polls Tuesday was off from the same piece of goods as that from which the endorsement which Grover Cleveland received from the Chicago convention was made.

The real test of prosperity is not the booming of the stock market. It is not the hustling of the business of the factories and refineries and mines of the great trusts and corporations. But the real test is the ability of a man, willing to work, to earn by reasonable exertion in reasonable hours, a comfortable living for himself, to provide for the education of his children, and to rise toward a better scale of living.—Albion Mirror.

Our ancient contemporary, the dear old grandmother Times, asks if it is not possible for Ann Arbor to have a paving ordinance. Certainly, Ann Arbor has been the happy parent of a paving ordinance for so many moons. It was brought into the world with much travail and it has since been secreted in the archives of the city hall. But, somehow or other, the people of Ann Arbor don't pave or do anything else until they get a good ready to and we don't know of any way to make them do it sooner. Perhaps, however, our contemporary can dig up in the dusty lore of the past from whence it is evident that it draws its knowledge of current events, some method by which the people can be made to construct public improvements before they are ready to do so.

The Pontiac Post is authority for the statement that Deputy Railroad Commissioner Wedemeyer is responsible for the attachment of some sort of a safety appliance to the electric railway which transports the festive Pontiac to the suburb of Detroit and that the aforesaid appliance interferes with the peace and dignity of the aforesaid Pontiacer in an unwarranted manner. The Democrat cannot believe that our "Weedy," who is the very essence of amiability, could be guilty of obstructing the peaceful routine of our neighbors of the Oakland county metropolis other than that side-tracking which is calculated to restrain undue activity upon the part of those obstreperous Republicans who do not understand that the only path over which the true patriot can pass in safety has been turned and put in order by willing hands and that it leads to a succession of the Pingree dynasty.

PERHAPS A BLESSING.

There is a feeling among those who best understand the strength and the weakness of Henry George, the dead philosopher, that his untimely death may have been a blessing in disguise. Henry George was pre-eminently a thinker and a logician. It was for him to discover the abuses which underlie social discontent, to point out the true reform and to explain and to defend his conclusions with the force and vigor which commands respectful attention. In this province he stands without a peer in the intellectual arena of the nineteenth century. He erected a new school of political economy. He lived to defend it against all comers and to see it established as a recognized line of thought. Had he lived for yet a score of years he could accomplish no more. His philosophy will be carried forward by able and enthusiastic disciples. The very circumstances of his death, the sacrifice upon the altar of humanity, will serve to cast a halo of that romance which catches the multitude over all that was his.

But, upon the other hand, grave dangers confronted him in the future. Defeat in the great contest which he was urging could not have been without its poignant sorrows. And greater peril to his reputation lay in the success which was almost certain to attend his candidacy. There was a well grounded fear that he would not prove equal to the administrative task imposed by an office second in its responsibilities only to that of the President of the United States. He was not fitted by nature for the discharge of executive duties. Had he lived to become mayor of New York there was more than a possibility that his administration would for this reason have been a failure. In that event a reputation which will now go down into history without a single blot to mar its resplendent brightness would have been tarnished in the estimation of a public which is too prone to measure greatness by success. It is better for George and it is better for the fundamental reforms for which he stood that it is as it is.

THE ELECTIONS.

The result of last Tuesday's election may be viewed with complacency by Democratic patriots. Whether successful in carrying the election or not the sweeping reduction of last fall's majorities express in an unmistakable manner the country's disapproval of the lame and halting policy of the administration, and portend a tidal wave in 1898 which will seal the doom of McKinleyism. New York city was the scene of a landslide. Detroit expressed its approval of its Democratic mayor. Kentucky is again in line with 25,000 silver Democratic majority. In Ohio the result is still in doubt. If the Republicans control the legislature and re-elect Hanna it will be accomplished by the skin of their teeth. Inasmuch as Ohio is the home of the president and the man who owns him, this result cannot be regarded otherwise than as a disapproval of both McKinleyism and Hannaism. In Iowa last fall's Republican majority of 6,500 is reduced to almost nothing. The same news comes from every state in which an election was held. If the Republican bosses can gather comfort from the situation they are welcome to it.

Geo. M. Pullman, multi-millionaire, dies and the chief concern of the public is manifested in the interest which is taken in the disposition which is to be made of his million. Henry George, a poor man who had never been honored by public office, distinguished from other private citizens only by the wealth of his intellect and the greatness of his heart, dies. The whole nation stops to do homage to his memory. It is such contrast as these that make one proud to be an American.

Attorney General Maynard worked over Sunday, presumably in an effort to earn that $800 salary which the people consider to be about his size. Where was the $2,000 clerk which the legislature considerably allows the attorney general for the transaction of the business of his office.

A GREAT MAN GONE.

"I believe that all the needed reforms are summed up in the philosophy: The right of every man to eat, to drink, to speak as he pleases, so long he does not trench upon the rights of other men."

With this grandly Democratic thought upon his lips, Henry George, philosopher, thinker, reformer, closed a life work whose influence will be a sacred heritage of future generations. The thinker has not produced a clearer theory, a more forceful logician than Henry George. It has not yielded a statesman or a reformer whose heart beat in closer union with the common people. He was democratic in the broadest sense of the term. His mind teemed with practical subjects. His philosophy looked to the emancipation of the human race and the highest realization of liberty.

The reforms which he advocated penetrated deep down to the roots of society. They were fundamental. His ideas were not the ideas of one who temporizes; his words were not those of an agitator. He was as far removed as it is possible to be from the socialistic tendencies of the day and from the popular fallacies which often govern the course of labor unions. His philosophy appeals to the intellect, not the sentiment of man, but it is leavened with a broad humanity which touches the popular heart.

His staunchest disciples are found among the reading and thinking classes, yet his powerful thought and his evident sincerity of purpose won for him the confidence, the homage even, of the toilers of all classes and conditions.

The publication of "Progress and Poverty," a work dealing with the social and economic conditions of the day, in 1879, brought Henry George from obscurity to world-wide prominence in a day. In that work the author with a masterly, forceful style and a convincing logic ruthlessly demolished the idols of the orthodox school of political economy and erected upon their ruins a new, a better, a more hopeful creed. The book astonished the thinking world. It dumbfounded the scholars who had been posing as the leaders of economic and philosophical thought. The undertaking of Henry George, unknown, obscure, to revolutionize one of the most precise and inelastic forms of human thought was audacious, but his work was startling, his success complete.

"What manner of man is this?" the pedants exclaim as soon as they recover from their panic, "who dares to set at defiance the doctrines which we have pronounced correct." Then followed an onslaught of criticism such as no onslaying thinker has had to repel and which in its very fierceness and volume was a testimonial to the character of his work. But he had builded better than they knew. His positions were invulnerable. Not even an outpost of his citadel could they capture. One by one these scholars, who would not brook investigations in economics which did not follow in tradition, blazed by themselves, fell away sullen and discomfited.

"Progress and Poverty" was published twenty years ago. Its cardinal thought is the same right of every human being to the use of the earth's surface that he has to the enjoyment of the air and the sunshine which make it habitable. His specific remedy lay in raising public revenue by a tax upon land alone—hence the name "single-taxers" which is applied to those who advocate the George doctrine. Its publication marked an epoch in economic thought. Its fierce opponents have been silenced and its teachings and its teacher have made a profound impression upon the thinking world. It yet enjoys, in a mild sort of way, the opposition of the schools. But the schools, always the last to yield to the march of progress, must some day conform to the trend of popular thought, and before another twenty years have elapsed Henry George's philosophy will be taught as the standard where it is now ostracized and condemned. His life work is done but the influence of his teachings are left behind and it is only a question of time when the reforms for which he labored shall become an accomplished fact, and his name will go down into history as one of the world's few really great men.

When the legislature meets in special session for the consideration of railroad legislation the Pingree dynasty will hold a winning hand.

A football player was killed during a game down in Georgia the other day and now some meddlesome legislator has proposed that the game be prohibited by law. This statesman must be first cousin to the fellow who proposed death by hanging as a preventative for suicide. The person who has arrived at the conclusion that life is not worth living and deliberately ends his career confers, by that act, a benefit upon the society of which he is no longer fitted to be a useful member. As for the man who sacrifices himself upon the gridiron, well he has saved a job for the fool-killer.

A CORRECT DIAGNOSIS.

The New Washtenaw Post, German-Republican newspaper, has the following to say about some gentlemen high in the councils of the Republican party in this state:

"The right Honorable Senator McMillan is busying himself at present in his beautiful home at Manchester-by-the-sea, to build up a machine by the distributing of federal offices, with which to cast down Governor Pingree and his forces, but he will need a different class of timber than the spruce and windbroken politicians that he has so far favored to succeed. He is an aristocrat, and a millionaire and the tool of aristocrats and millionaires and in every one of his official acts he stands against the interests of the common people. He strives to pave the way for the re-election of Burrows as well as for his colleague Humsby by the distribution of federal offices. These aristocrats who care nothing for the necessities and well being of the common people are striving to perpetuate their unscrupulous and corrupt management of the state and the national politics at the public expense. They are the men who have endeared to the common people such necessities as sugar, lumber, leather, etc., in order to still further enrich themselves and a few other millionaires. The Republican party in this state enjoys at present a nice majority and there is before them a beautiful future, but if it is left in the control of such unscrupulous politicians as the McMillan crowd, they will soon be in the mire.

In a recent speech at Atchison, Kan., Senator Ingalls said:

"But Mr. Bryan is not to be catalogued as an uninteresting person. He was the star actor in one of the great dramas of our time. He was one of the chief figures in the most important political campaign since the close of the civil war.

Against tremendous odds, without combination, experience or fortune, he was the most signal personal triumph of our history at an age when political leaders are in the cradle or the kindergarten. Through the contest for the presidency he displayed courage, endurance and versatility that have not been surpassed, and he accepted defeat with dignity and composure.

"So we do not need to look far to discover the cause of Bryan's popularity. People like pluck and nerve in friend or foe, and Bryan is young, poor, sandy and western born, which is a strong prescription even with those who reject his ideas and methods."

The Register, of which about the best thing that can be said is that it would be a partisan sheet if it knew how, and whose political influence is accurately represented by a cipher on the left hand of nothing, attempted last week in its morbid way, to cast a slur upon its prosecutor Kirk on account of his prosecution of the Richards murder trial. The prosecutor in this instance simply did his duty, nothing more—nothing less. It was his duty to place the evidence pointing to the guilt of the prisoners before the jury. He performed that duty in an acceptable manner, and he was ably assisted by Mr. Sawyer. It was not the fault of the prosecution that the evidence was not sufficient to convict. It is the care with which the guilty parties, whoever they may be, planned to hide their identity that has prevented the detection and punishment of the murders of James Richards. The Register may see political machination in these circumstances. But, as we intimated before, neither the Register's foresight nor its hindsight is to be relied upon.

The Dunn and the Bradstreet mercantile agencies are agreed this week that the hope for the immediate business future lies in the better prices which farmers are receiving for their produce this season. This is a tacit acknowledgement that the prosperity of the farmer is the key to the situation and yet the so-called "business" interests, the capitalists and the manufacturers are, as a rule, arrayed under the standard of a policy which is calculated to foster anything but the farmers' interests.

PROSPECTS OF BIMETALISM.

The prospects for international bimetallism under the present order of things are not encouraging. President McKinley's commissioners, who have been assiduously laboring for some concession on the part of European powers, are on their way home without even so much as a promise to consider the matter from the chief factor in any scheme of international bimetallism—the British government. France is willing to act, Germany will talk, but England is reaping a golden harvest from the gold standard, and her statesmen have no concessions to make. But this failure of the labors of the commission will surprise no one. The position of the English government upon the questions at issue was as clearly understood when the commission was appointed as it is now. Its work has been but a poorly disguised burlesque. Now that it is finished it is in order for the administration to outline its future policy with respect to this question. England is not willing to enter into any project for the rehabilitation of silver because it would be disastrous to the people of India. But all the world knows that India has suffered untold disaster since the British council in July, 1893, stopped the coinage of silver on private account at the Indian mint, and that the Indian people are anxious to see their old-time money restored.

The Indian situation is but another instance of English rapacity and greed. The profits of Englishmen from the toll of the Indian people are increased by the conditions which at present prevail in that unhappy land. So long as the situation continues profitable for English merchants, we may expect no considerations of justice or humanity to have weight with English statesmen. If, therefore, President McKinley would accomplish an "international agreement" it must be accomplished without British sanction. It is entirely probable that an agreement between Germany, France and the United States would, in course of time, coerce England, just as independent free coinage by the United States would humble British arrogance. It would seem that, if Mr. McKinley has an honest desire to promote the cause of bimetallism, he should address his energies to the formation of a coalition which would leave England out.

The Republican managers should not forget that the only way to keep the silver question out of the campaign of 1900 is to settle it beforehand.

A BIG FREEZE OUT.

At the freight office of the Union Pacific railroad, on the flats south of Omaha, Nebraska, was accomplished what was at once the largest sale and the grandest steal in financial history. The Union Pacific railroad, after thirty years of chequered financing, was sold by an officer of the United States court, to a "reorganization committee" for $58,000,000, the total sum, principal and interest, of the United States government's claim upon the property. It is a cause for congratulation that the blood suckers who have so long sapped the life of this enterprise have been compelled to settle with the government in full.

But what of the fellows who have been frozen out in this deal. Perhaps it is no concern of the public, but millions of dollars of legitimate claims upon this property have been wiped out by this sale. This was a case where the power of money is felt in its full effect. The "financiers" who have engineered the scheme and secured the release of the government's claim have at the same time wiped out the small fry whose money built the road and whose aggregate holdings constitute a large majority of the stock, and have secured the property at a mere nominal sum. After "financing" the property into insolvency, they have "financiered" it out of its trouble and out of the hands of its legitimate owners by the power of the aggregated wealth which they were able to mass. It is a simple case of might makes right. It is fair to presume that the Union Pacific will, under its new ownership, enjoy an era of prosperity until a new crop of suckers have been gathered and the time of the harvest is at hand.

With Spain devastating Cuba, a Lombard street syndicate running the custom houses of Santo Domingo, and three of the Kaiser's men-of-war en route to force an arbitrary indemnity from the Haytian government, it would seem to be about time for President McKinley to fish the Monroe doctrine out of the chest and put it in shape for active use.

The audience which greeted the Slayton Concert Company at University Hall Saturday night was, with respect to indiscriminate encoring, more considerate than some which gather in that place. The custom of encoring, time after time, each performer upon a program becomes not only wearisome but disgusting. Any program presented there is of sufficient length to satisfy reasonable people and the boisterous demonstrations by which artists are made to appear two or three times in succession for each number, reflects in successful but credit upon the taste of the student body.

A RECORD OF EXTRAVAGANCE.

The tax-payer will find food for reflection in the monthly report of the city treasurer which was submitted to the council Monday night. In making the appropriations for the year the council set aside $15,000 for the street fund and $5,000 for the bridge-culvert and crosswalk fund. The report of the treasurer shows the street fund to be overdrawn $4,533.24, exclusive of the bills which were audited at the last council meeting. The bridge, culvert and crosswalk fund is also overdrawn $1,115.36, making an aggregate sum of $25,048.60 spent upon the streets between June 1st and October 1st, a sum $5,648.00 in excess of the appropriation. The public will naturally inquire where has this money gone to and where has the sum spent in excess of the appropriation come from.

The first question must be answered by the wasteful extravagance and incompetent management of the common council. It has been frittered away in a thousand useless ways. It is doubtful if there are a half dozen aldermen upon the council who can tell where the half of this money has been expended. It is gone and the city has nothing but a deficit to show for it. The council of 1895 was branded extravagant. Yet the total expenditures of that council for streets, bridges, culverts and crosswalks was only $15,300 and this sum includes the $4,000 expended upon the roller and rock breaker. The amount already spent this year is already two and one-half times the sum expended in 1895 and the end has not yet been reached. Can any one tell us what improvement have been made in this city this year which should raise the street expenses more than $15,000 higher than they were in 1895. Here is an opportunity for some very extensive explanations.

Then the tax-payer may well inquire from whence this sum which has been expended in excess of the appropriations comes. The council at the first meeting in June made the annual appropriations to the several funds and fixed the tax levy to raise the money. When they had done that the people who have to foot the bills had a right to presume that the funds would be devoted to the purpose for which they were raised. Any other use of the funds is a misappropriation which the council has no right to make. The taxpayer should know that when an appropriation of $15,000 is made to the street fund to cover the work of one year, that $15,000 is the limit of expenditures in that direction.

But this, it seems, is not the case. The appropriations are hardly made before they are exhausted by reckless expenditures. But the fact that a fund is exhausted seems to be no bar to this council. Funds raised for other purposes are at once diverted from their proper channel and turned into the sink hole mis-called "street improvements." In this manner over $5,000, which was taken from the taxpayers this year for other purposes, has been placed at the mercy of the street committee. If we are ever to secure economy in the administration of city affairs it will be done when the power of the council to raise money for one purpose and devote it to another is expressly prohibited by law. This is the leak that is constantly draining the treasury and building up taxes.

The strict fairness and impartiality with which Judge Kinne presided at the protracted Richards murder trial merited the many favorable comments which it received. The decision of the innumerable controversies which inevitably arise in the conduct of such a trial is at best a difficult task and one which requires not only a profound knowledge of legal principles but sound judgment in maintaining that delicate equipoise between the rights of the people and the rights of the defendants which is expected by the demands of justice.

MACK & COMPANY.

OPENING AT MACK & CO.'S.

A Perfect Day and Scores of People to See the New Goods.

For weeks the Opening at Mack & Co.'s had been the anticipated event with those those who had been waiting to know just what to buy for all-around winter wear, and surely no more beautiful autumn day could have been selected than Saturday, October 30th, had the firm itself been given command of the weather.

Rarely in the history of a city does it fall to the lot of a dry goods house to celebrate its fortieth annual fall opening; rarely are the residents of a city afforded the faithful and uninterrupted service of having their wants supplied by the same firm for forty years. Mr. Christian Mack opened the store in 1857 and continued as its sole proprietor for several years, the firm eventually becoming Mack & Co.

Beginning at the very foundation, the gentlemen who compose this firm have made a guarded and careful study of every branch of the business. The consummation of their indefatigable energies is the large and commodious store where both men and women not only can buy every article of clothing necessary for wear the year round, but all the needed articles of furniture for housekeeping, even to the bedding and sofa pillows.

In the way of decorations, as well as dry goods, the Opening on Saturday surpassed all former years. The first floor was artistically draped with bunting, flags and the yellow and the blue, and was the scene of bewildering beauty. Potted plants, ferns, palms and chrysanthemums added their fragrance and verdure, while the richly dressed ladies who thronged the place all through the day and evening served to heighten the brilliancy of the scene. It would take weeks to see it all but every lady will want to know about the new hats and so if she will take the elevator to the second floor she will find to the left and front the Millinery Department.

For street and travelling, turbans, the high-crowned walking hat, and the "Belmar," which is in reality the "short-backed sailor," are the most popular. These hats are principally of felt or cloth and are remarkably cheap. A good walking hat may be had for 50 cents. In dress hats, the broad brim takes the lead. "The Peerless" is one of the leading styles and is made of either velvet or felt, pocke, only much prettier. A handsome one was shown in grey chenille velvet trimmed with six grey and white plumes, white satin moire ribbon and cut steel buckle. The leading shade this season can be worn by everybody. It is called the "castor," a color blend of grey and tan.

One of the prettiest hats at the Opening was a "Belmar" of castor-colored felt trimmed with castor shaded mirror velvet and birds' wings and face trimming of bright roses. This hat was tried on oftener than any other one garment during the entire day. In the way of something entirely new, the straight-brimmed hat in black and white kid attracted much attention. Dress bonnets are small and elaborately trimmed. The ties are wider than last year. Opera bonnets are seldom ordered, the custom of ladies removing their hats at entertainments being so general that small bonnets of this kind are not needed. In the general outline shirred and tucked brims are the very newest thing, while for those of limited means, Mack & Co. are selling a pretty all-wool Tam O'Shanter for children for 14 cents, and a serviceable English walking hat for 25 cents.

The Cloaks.

Next to a becoming hat the most important garment is the cloak, and the styles and prices this year are unlimited.

Cloaks are longer, prettier and more elaborately trimmed than they have been for several years. Braiding is much used, while all well made garments of this kind are lined throughout with silk, usually changeable taffeta. The leading colors are grey, bottle green, brown and black. An odd, but stylish garment is made of bottle green English cloth with a braided vest in V shape, and a braided frill and belt to match. To slender people such an outside garment is especially becoming. Prices all the way from $10 to $25. In plus, the new designs are trimmed with jet.

Sleeves are the high mutton leg. For girls and misses there are pretty novelties in reds and browns buttoned with large pearl buttons. These are especially adapted to school wear and may be had from $4 to $20. There are plenty of good cloaks for women to be had for $10. The Golf cape is a garment that fills in as an extra ready for stormy weather and evenings. The prettiest one ever shown in the city was a dark green cloth plaided with colors.

The Furs.

Moonlight and snow and sleighbells and furs. It takes them all to make an ideal winter evening. But if you cannot have but one you must have the furs. Collarettes are much prettier than ever and larger in size. The long boa is again in style but instead of being crossed at the throat it is fastened flat with a double ornament. A mink boa of this style may be had for $30.

The new muff is much larger than that of former seasons and will be made to match the garment. Fur capes of all prices and sizes will be worn, being so convenient for entertainments and receptions. The furs used most are astrachan, martin, mink and seal.

Morning Gowns and Dressing Sacks.

In morning gowns the style with the deep yoke, loose front tied with ribbons, and the Watteau plait in the back, is the standard pattern. They come in all colors and sizes and it is much cheaper to buy one ready made than attempt to make it yourself. The same may be said of dressing sacks. Those in the tinted blue and pink eider down are soft and delicate enough for a child. In the plainer and more serviceable materials, a good sack may be had for a dollar. Those made of eider down range in price from $2.75 to $5.00.

In everyday house dresses, flannellette is used for winter almost exclusively. The new styles differ chiefly in the yokes, the designs being more original than in former seasons. These gowns are good width, well made, prettily trimmed and are of fast colors. When a woman can buy an everyday dress, ready for wear, for less than the actual material would cost, it is a waste of time and strength to try to make one. Near the counters containing these morning wrappers may be found the black moreen and silk skirts. A good skirt may be had for $2. A superior one for $4. The black moreen skirt is the most sensible and economical garment the American women ever have adopted. It will always be worn. Buy one whether you can have a new dress this year or not.

While you are at this counter, just take a look over your shoulder at the beautiful sofa pillows. No one need go with the headache when she can buy a sofa pillow made of down for 65 cents. Then there is the tables full of winter shirt-waists, a veritable boon to mothers with a flock of girls to be fitted out for school before cold weather sets in. The Scotch plaid, of course, is the most popular. Prices to suit. Customers should bear in mind that if any garment bought on this floor needs changing in order to insure a more perfect fit, there is an expert seamstress employed to do the work without extra charge. One cannot turn away from all these comfortable things without pausing to appreciate the restful cushioned seat in the window, the generous supply of mirrors and the spacious circular cushioned seat in the millinery department where tired shoppers may drop down to rest and at the same time be looking at the fine display of hats and bonnets.

The Third Floor.

Taking the elevator to the third floor, a pleasant surprise was awaiting customers in the way of a complete line of men's and boys' clothing and household furnishing goods, such as comfortables, blankets, rugs, and tablespreads. The chenille spread is yet much used but a new weave with smooth surface is later style.

The Dress Goods

Will be found on the first floor and women who have to make on new dress last for an entire season will be glad to know that the "rough goods" are out, and that smooth weaves have supplanted them. For a street suit with jacket, an all-wool "Taben" in the new castor shade, at $1.25 a yard, was one of the prettiest things in the entire opening display. The Velour plaids, poplin weaves and all-wool serges are the leading goods in colors. In black, the materials worn most are the "Gold Medal," which is both plain and figured and ranges in price from 50 cents to $1.65; Priestly's "Wool Soleil," and Arap d'ete, the French goods which was always a favorite with women who wear black the year round. Broadcloths are in all colors, the "new blue" and bottle green being especially stylish. In buying broadcloth always ask for the 1003. A broadcloth dress should be trimmed with braid.

At the Silk Counter

All handsome dresses are now lined with silk. The best is taffeta at 85 cents a yard. Get the best or none. Dress trimmings are also at this counter. Braiding and "jewel chiffon" are the most used. For dress waists the braiding comes in sets from $1 to $6.

Ribbons and Handkerchiefs

At the ribbon counter one may buy every shade and width of ribbon ever made at the factory from two cents to two dollars a yard. Turn around and the same opportunity may be had in handkerchiefs. A pretty bordered handkerchief for the little folks, which sells elsewhere for five cents may be had here for one cent; an all linen ladies' handkerchief for ten cents, and a double hemstitched ladies' handkerchief for 15 cents.

Notions and Jewelry

A new department and one where the counter was surrounded with eager shoppers all through the day and evening was the "Notions and Jewelry." Here may be had a fair sized bottle of perfumery for five cents, a good leather belt for five cents, a doll of perfumed soap for five cents. Here also may be had all the little articles incident to a lady's toilet, including a silver glove hook, a pen-knife, collar and cuff buttons, perfumed soaps and the perfumed ammonia water now regarded indispensable. At this counter, too, will be found a silk umbrella for everybody.

Ladies' and Children's Hosiery and Gloves

Mack & Co. are the sole agents in the city for the Onyx hosiery. This is warranted not to fade and comes in all sizes and prices. The best silk hose is $2 a pair. A good article may be had for 50 cents. A new thing in this line is the "Roman Stripe," at 50 cents a pair.

Underwear and Corsets

In these departments, situated at the west end of the first floor, many bargains are to be found. In winter underwear, the "union suit" both for women and children is universally adopted. A good union suit for women may be had for $1. An all wool for $3. For children, prices run from 50 cents to $1. In cotton underwear, a good corset-cover is afforded at 20 cents and a plain night-dress for 50 cents. Outing flannel night-dresses come in all colors. Good ones at 75 cents. Very pretty ones at a dollar. In corsets, the "Equipose Waist" is sure to become universally worn. It has buttons in front instead of steels, and buttons on the side to support the underskirts. The waist is made of white cambric and will bear sending to the laundry as often as necessary. The P. Q. and "Her Majesty" are full boned corsets of superior make. Mack & Co. are the sole agents in the city.

The Art Department

At this counter the display was most beautiful—embroidered pin cushions, hand-made infants' goods, center pieces, drapery silks, lunch cloths, laundry bags, everything in fact in the way of art and needlework. Ladies who wish may have stamping done here to order. Adjoining this department may be found the laces, cream and champagne lace being the medium priced goods for ordinary wear. When this department was reached, an eager sightseer who had spent the entire day at the Opening, and who had resolved to see all the new and beautiful things in that vast emporium, found that night had closed in and that she must reserve for another day the Shoe department, Men's Furnishing Goods, Furniture and Carpets.

But though the brain was wearied it had received the lasting impression that, to the customer, such a store as that of Mack & Co. is not only a privilege but a benefit to the entire community.

The Sphinx's Riddle.

Johnny—"What is 'the riddle of the Sphinx?" Papa (with a meaning glance at mamma)—"The riddle of the sphinx is this: How can she, being at least part woman, sit there year after year, and century after century, without ever saying a word? Ah, my boy, I guess it'll never be answered, either."—Cleveland Leader.

Nickel Steel for Ships.

At a recent meeting of the Institution of Civil Engineers in London, the opinion was expressed that the coming material for ship-building is nickel steel, but that before it can be extensively used, further deposits of nickel must be discovered.

An Epitaph.

A loving Hackensack nephew, charged with the duty of preparing an epitaph for a disagreeable old uncle just dead, suggested the following: "Deeply regretted by all who never knew him."—New York Tribune.

She Stole Pipes.

The French have produced the most remarkable kleptomaniac on record. This is an old lady named Bide, whose passion for smoking has impelled her to pilfer pipes from Parisian shops with such industry that no fewer than 2,600 were found in her lodgings. All were meerschaums and thirty-nine were colored.—Exchange.

"FIRE FLY LIGHTING."

Common Council Roasts the City Lighting Plant.
The common council met in regular session Monday night with Ald. Coon alone missing. The business attended to was as follows:
Petition of D. F. Allmendinger and others for crosswalk across First street, read and referred. Bids of S. A. Kean and Ann Arbor Savings bank for bonds in sewer district No. 7 were read and referred to the finance committee. Communication from League of American Municipalities relative to membership received and referred to special committee consisting of Ald. Soule, Brown and Hamilton.
Committee on finance recommended that $12,508.25 sewer bonds in lateral sewer district No. 6 be sold to the Farmers & Mechanics bank for face value and accrued interest plus $200 premium. Adopted. Bill of Ann Arbor Water Co., for water in sewer district No. 6, $13.05, was allowed; Water company's bill for $111.35 on Sharp & Schultz contract was withdrawn. Bills of Joe Blackburn, dog catcher, for $35.75, was disallowed. Drain assessment roll of the town of Pittsfield, running through the limits of the city of Ann Arbor, was referred to the city attorney.
"An Ordinance relative to Livery, Feed and other Barns" was placed on its passage. Lost by the following vote: Yeas—Ald. Grossman, Koch, Sweet, Soule—4; nays—Ald. Mooze, Hamilton, Dell, Brown, Vandawarker, Rhodes, Spatheff, Danforth, Cady, Pres. Luick—10. An ordinance relative to bicycles was given its first and second readings. It limits rate of speed within city to 12 miles an hour, wheelmen to slow up at crossings, etc., not to ride with both hands off of handle bars, shall ride on right side of street, pass vehicles on left, carry a light from sunset to sunrise, carry bells and ring at every crossing. Ald. Koch tried to cut rate of speed to six miles an hour and was supported by President Luick and Ald. Soule. The amendment was lost.
The committee on lighting recommended the placing of an electric light at the corner of Hill and Lincoln; also at corner of Tappan and Oakland; also on Washtenaw avenue, midway between S. University and Hill. The committee also presented the following report:
"Your committee on lighting have made a thorough inspection of the system of street lighting in our city and would report that they have found the same in extremely poor condition. The capacity of the plant is far from being sufficient to supply power for the number of lights used. None of the lights have been up to the standard as required by the contract for months past.
"There are 106 arc street lamps, many of which are on poles 60 feet high. One man is supplied by the Ann Arbor Electric company to lower the lights or climb the poles and clean and trim the same, besides driving from one light to another, less than six minutes to each lamp. The actual workings of the lights, as well as common sense, proves this impossible.
"During the last month pedestrians have been compelled to carry lanterns so that they might safely walk our streets, and strange to state these lanterns outshine the glory of the would-be 2000 candle power arc lamps furnished by the proprietors of this fire fly lighting plant.
"Your committee would recommend that the Ann Arbor Electric company be ordered within ten days to raise the standard of their lamps to the requirements of the contract, that is "not less than 9.6 amperes of current and from 46 to 50 volts between the carbons.
"Your committee would recommend that an expert be employed to examine the lights from time to time and see that the same conform to the contract.
"And further that a certified copy of that resolution be served on the Ann Arbor Electric company.
"And, further, that no bill be allowed the Ann Arbor Electric company until the lights are up to standard."
This report was signed by the whole committee, Ald. Soule, Rhodes, Sweet, and was adopted with but one adverse vote, that of Ald. Hamilton.
The city engineer was directed to file with the city clerk an estimate for completed work in sewer district No. 6, and that the city clerk be ordered by this council to draw a warrant payable to Schneider Bros. from sewer fund for the amount of the estimate. The subject of opening Ann street was referred to Attorney Kearney and City Engineer Key.
Bills were paid to the amount of $4,109.03 and usual reports of city officials read.
The council then adjourned.

UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

Art Exhibition, Sale and Oyster Supper at First M. E. Church.
On the afternoon and evening of Friday and Saturday, November 5th and 6th, 1897, there will be given in the M. E. church a unique entertainment, consisting of an exhibition and sale of fifty superb engravings, and an oyster and beefsteak supper.
The Choir Guild of the church has been so fortunate as to secure the collection of the fifty beautiful engravings issued by the publishers of the "Ladies' Home Journal," and will exhibit and sell them on the dates above mentioned. The pictures are now in the city and have been shown to a number of our most competent critics, and all pronounce them superb, and worth hours of study. The pictures are the most celebrated productions of the following artists:
Edwin A. Abbey, S. Begg, Robert Blum, B. W. Clinedinst, Mand Cowles, Frank Fowler, A. B. Frost, Charles Dana Gibson, W. L. Taylor, Kate Greenaway, Will H. Lord, Albert Lynch, Howard Pyle, Frank O. Small, W. T. Smedley, Alice Barber Stephens, T. de Thustrup, C. D. Weldon, A. B. Wenzell, Irving R. Wiles.
These pictures have been exhibited in cities in the east, and have in every instance attracted thousands of spectators. The originals cost the publishers as high as $1,000.00 each, and at least one is now valued at $5,000.
On Friday and Saturday afternoons the church will be open from 3 to 6 o'clock. Admission 10 cents, with a lunch of chocolate and wafers served free. On Friday and Saturday evenings, from 6 to half past 10 o'clock, the admission will be free, and lunch served a la carte at reasonable prices. Regular supper from 6 to 7 o'clock, Friday and Saturday, 25 cents.
Moderate prices have been placed on the pictures at which they will be sold at private sale. All pictures unsold by 9 o'clock Saturday evening will be sold at auction by a professional auctioneer.
The following bill of fare will be served evenings with the following cooks:
Oysters raw, Dr. B. L. McElroy; oyster stew, Dr. C. G. Darling and J. E. Buchanan; broiled beef steak, Prof. Trueblood and C. E. Mutschell; buckwheat pan cakes, Dr. R. S. GREECE'S FUTURE.
What indignities may be in store for her?
What of the future? The Greek people went to war to strengthen the Hellenic race and help to fulfill the Hellenic ideal. Have they irrevocably weakened the one and destroyed the other? At a first glance it would seem so, says Scribner's. The Turk is stronger than he has been for many years. He has learned that no power will coerce him. The millions of Greeks in Asia Minor have lost confidence in Athens. Crete is farther from the union than ever. Financially Greece is on the verge of ruin. She will now have to submit to the terrible indignity of placing her revenues under foreign control, for a time at least. The dynasty has been shaken and the name of the heir to the throne indissolubly connected with an overwhelming national humiliation. The corruption of Greek politics, the miserable personal struggles which have usurped the place of party government, the "spoils system" at its very worst, have had their natural effect and the constitution is thoroughly discredited. The national vice of windy enthusiasm for great ends, combined with unwillingness to perform the solid labors by which alone these can be secured, has at last brought despair into the hearts of the best Greeks at home and abroad. A friend writes me from Athens today that there is little sign of the national disgrace being taken to heart. Is it the end?
New Trades in Paris.
There are several new trades in Paris. You find dog doctors, dog dentists, dog barbers and dog dressmakers advertised in the newspapers, and they seem to be well patronized. I heard of an American woman who spent $80 for garments to dress a $2 dog.

A New Antidote for Snake Venom.

Prof. T. R. Fraser, of the University of Edinburgh, has discovered a new antidote for overcoming the venom of serpents. It is not like M. Calmette's antitoxic serum, obtained from animals rendered immune by inoculation, but is furnished by the serpent himself, is his own bile. In the experiments various quantities of bile from the gall bladder of the cobra, rattlesnake and grass-snake was mixed with a little more than the minimum fatal dose of the venom, and this mixture injected under the skin of the animal. It was shown that a quantity of bile smaller than the quantity of venom may be sufficient to prevent lethal doses of the latter from producing death. The bile of harmless serpents was found to be less effective. The same secretion from an ox was less powerful, being about one-seventh as strong in antitoxic influence as the venom of cobra or asp. If a sufficient amount were used it would overcome a fatal dose of poison. Dr. Fraser believes the antidote can be prepared for the market in a compact form. African snake doctors have a remedy, of which a principal ingredient is snake bile, which they introduce into the patients stomach and rub into the wound.
The Black Cat Superstition.
From the St. Louis Republic: "Our modern young lady has almost as many superstitions as the maid of ancient days," remarked Dr. G. Courney Phillips, of San Antonio, Tex. "Not long ago I had occasion to be walking through one of our parks with three pretty summer girls. We were chatting pleasantly and laughing when suddenly a black cat happened to cross the path ahead of us. The girls all stopped and refused to move until I had rummaged through my pockets, found a bit of cardboard and torn it a trifle. I was surprised and amused, and asked them why they should insist on the cardboard being torn. They told me that it was ill-luck to have a cat cross a path in front of one, and that the only way to avoid the evil that would otherwise result was to tear a bit of paper. They did not know what magic was in the paper, but insisted that some subtle force dispelled the bad luck."
Grain Elevators Operated by Electricity.
One of the greatest grain elevators in America, now nearing completion at Buffalo, N. Y., is to be operated by electric power from distant Niagara. It is a novel affair altogether. The grain bins are huge steel cylinders. There are three rows of ten each. The capacity of a bin is 100,000 bushels, so that the elevator will hold 3,000,000 bushels, which in these days of dollar wheat is a large amount of valuable property. Each bin is 84 feet high and 38 feet in diameter, and the rows are all flanked by smaller bins about 15 feet in diameter. Owing to the enormous weight, the foundations were carried down sixty feet, and the whole structure for supporting the bin is of steel. By the use of electric power the work of the elevator will be greatly expedited, and it is expected to secure many incidental advantages.

His Peculiar Claim.
From the Kansas City Journal: It is estimated by the Sante Fe officials that the recent wreck near Emporia will cost $150,000 by the time everything has been settled. There seems to be no end to the claims being put in by passengers. Some who did not realize that they had been hurt at the time of the accident have since discovered, through consultation with lawyers, that they were seriously injured. One man has put in a claim who was not in the wreck at all, but who overheated himself in running to it from a farmhouse half a mile away.
World's Telegraph System.
The total length of the world's telegraph system has now reached 4,908,921 miles, exclusive of 180,440 miles of submarine cables. Of this Europe has 1,764,790 miles; Asia, 310,685 miles; Africa, 99,419 miles; Australia, 217,479 miles and American 2,516,548 miles. United States Consul Germain, who sends these figures to the State Department from Zurich, says they show that, notwithstanding the great increase in the building of telegraph lines all over Europe, America leads the world and has almost double the European mileage.
Finest Flowers of the Malay Race.
The natives of Java, according to a recent traveler, in that country, are the finest flowers of the Malay race—a people possessed of a civilization, arts and literature in that golden period before the Mohammedan and European conquests. They have gentle voices, gentle manners, fine and expressive features, and are the one people of Asia besides the Japanese who have real charm and attraction for the alien.
American Gayety in Antwerp.
From the Boston Journal: It is always pleasant to hear of our fellow-townsmen bearing the banner of culture through the streets, churches, restaurants and tangle-tangles of European cities. We therefore were puffed with joy when we learned from a foreign contemporary that "Mm. les generaux Taylor de Boston, Sheeter de New Hampshire et Gallayher et Elder de Boston" gave a dinner to the officers of the San Francisco at Antwerp. The dinner was of the "gay freedom that distinguishes Americans." "The wines were exquisite." We should infer that the wines were also heady, for the reporter informs us that the guests, after they had sung several American airs, "ont entonne" their National hymns "America" and "The Star Spangled Banner" so that it is the way it sounded late in the evening!

GLEANINGS OF A BEEK.

A careful estimate shows that the recent Richards murder trial cost the people of Washtenaw county netly $4,000.

"Eddie" Shields was among the enthusiastic Alumni present at Saturday's game and directed their yelling forces on the side lines.

His many friends will be glad to know that Dr. M. L. Belser has recovered sufficiently from his late illness to again resume his medical practice.

Judge Kinne adjourned the Washtenaw county circuit court Tuesday to November 22 and goes to Monroe tomorrow to open the November term in that county.

A letter from Dr. Angell to his daughter, Mrs. A. C. McLaughlin, announces that Dr. and Mrs. Angell are no longer at the "Summer Palace Hotel" but that they are now in the city of Constantinople. Dr. Angell has been received by the Sultan and is now attending to the routine duties of his office.

Zion's Lutheran congregation in a special service Sunday morning commemorated the Reformation of the 16th century, the pastor preaching the sermon. At the evening service Rev. N. Carter, of near Baltimore, Md., himself a Negro and the pastor of a congregation of Lutheran Negroes, spoke on "Missionary Work Among the Negroes."

The first concert of the season in University hall Friday evening was heard by a somewhat small but very enthusiastic audience. In fact, it might be said that the enthusiasm was a little too much in evidence. The average concert program is long enough, and it is nothing less than an imposition upon the part of an audience to double the number of selections by insisting upon so many encores.

The cellar on the farm of George Sperry, on the gravel road, was robbed of a crock of butter, a quantity of lard and two pounds of beef-steak on Thursday night last. The next evening Farmer Hutzell's cellar was relieved of a quantity of butter, and the same thieves were frightened from the farm of Mr. Spaulding on the gravel road. Last week Herman Reyer had 200 chickens taken from his Pittsfield farm, and Mr. Carpenter, of Carpenter's Corners, was left one solitary chicken by the light-fingered gentry.

Jackson Press: Clay Green, of the Ann Arbor lodge of Elks, was in the city yesterday. He is engaging some of the talent among the Jackson Elks to assist in an entertainment given by the Ann Arbor Elks on November 12 called the Athens Theater. Talent from Detroit and Toledo will also assist the Ann Arbor Elks. Jackson lodge expects to go about seventy-five strong to attend the theater. Mr. Green also billed the city with attractive posters.

The next attraction at the Athens Theater will be De Wolff's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company. Miss Kate Partington, unquestionably the best "Topsy" known to the American stage, is with the DeWolff company. Two brass bands, white and colored, and a troupe of jubilee singers are special features. The transformation scene of 15 minutes duration comprises "Eva in Heaven!" commencing with "The Bower of Roses," "The Bower of Butterflies," "Recording Angel," "The Cobweb Grotto," "The Silver-Lined Cloud Drop," "The Bower Elysium." Three performances will be given, Friday evening, Saturday afternoon and evening.

The Strich & Zeidler upright piano used by the Slayton Grand Concert Co. at University hall Saturday evening was certainly a beautiful instrument and was greatly admired. It may be mentioned here that the Strich & Zeidler piano was the official New York state piano at the Cotton States and International Exposition in 1895, and was selected by the New York state committee to represent the progress and advancement in the art of piano construction in the Empire state, and in recognition of their superiority were awarded a diploma and medal. This piano is being introduced in our city by R. H. Kempf and already some of our best musical people here have placed them in their homes.

About 400 alumni attended Saturday's game and cheered on the old favorites. The various delegations were met by committees and taken to headquarters in University Hall where they registered and received souvenir buttons and badges. Over 200 came from Detroit and were met by the U. of M. band. At 2 o'clock they held a meeting in the old chapel, which was called to order by Secretary McAllister, who introduced Prof. Johnson, as presiding officer. Several speeches were made, prominent among which were those of Hon. Sam. Weadock and Holdman, '89. Both spoke of the benefit to be derived from an association such as that now formed by the alumni and said it was the duty of all to join. All were here for the football game, however, and made their speeches short. At the meetings' conclusion a procession formed and headed by the band and board of regents, marched to the Regents' Field.

Mr. L. D. Carr is slowly recovering from her recent illness.

ANN ARBOR MOTOR LINE.

Articles of Incorporation Were Filed Wednesday.

Thursday morning's Free Press contained the following:

"Articles of incorporation of the Detroit, Ann Arbor & Ypsilanti Electric railway were filed at Lansing yesterday. The capital stock of the company is $400,000, and among the incorporators are James D. Hawkes, president of the Detroit & Mackinac railway; S. F. Angus, John C. Liggett, Obadiah Bingham and M. J. Griffin, of Detroit. It is intended to build from the present terminus of the Detroit electric railway on Michigan avenue, in Springwells, to the city line of Ypsilanti, connecting there with the Ypsilanti & Ann Arbor motor line, and, probably, eventually consolidating with it.

"The projectors of this road will probably acquire Albert Plank's interest in the Detroit & Saline Plank Road Co.'s property, and will take up the project of building the road to Ypsilanti. M. J. Griffin, as contractor, will begin work next week on the road in Springwells, and, if no delay is experienced in getting franchises from the township of Dearborn, the road will be built to Dearborn and probably to Wayne this winter. The weather, of course, is an important factor to be considered in the work. The bond issue of the road is practically all subscribed."

THE BLIND PIANO TUNER.

J. P. Hamilton, the blind piano tuner who has made his home in Ann Arbor, should receive the liberal patronage of all who own pianos. Mr. Hamilton has had practical experience in piano factories, numbers among his patrons some of the best families in our city and holds recommendations from leading conservatories in America and Europe.

After trying Mr. Hamilton in both tuning and repairing last fall, Prof. Adams wrote: "Send your orders to Mr. Hamilton, Maynard street, and you will be sure of getting good work done, besides helping a young man eminently deserving." Address 319 Maynard street.

Work in the Woman's Gym.

The year's work in the woman's gymnasium began Monday afternoon in the main room under the direction of Miss Synder with a fine array of students. In all, ten classes a week are held. The course of work is a progressive one and reaches over three years, so that those who took the course last year and are pursuing it again this are ranked as sophomores. The idea of making it a progressive course is founded on the theory that woman needs training up to heavy work in order that it be profitable for her. The afternoon's exercise usually ends with a Swedish gymnastic game under the leadership of Miss Synder and is entered into with a great deal of life by the young ladies.

The apparatus for the second year classes has not been received, but will be put in place as soon as it arrives so that the work will not be retarded. Supt. Reeve is constructing a neat and appropriate winding stairway in the northeast corner from the main floor to the gallery. The newel-post has four handsomely carved Indian clubs fastened to its four edges and three pair of dumb-bells on its faces. The post is surmounted by a basket ball supported by four small hand balls. The balusters, which support a plain oak hand railing, are in the form of small sized dumbbells.

College to Open Earlier.

At the last meeting of the Board of Regents, the date of opening and closing of college was changed. Beginning with the fall of 1898, it will open on the Tuesday preceding the last Wednesday of September, and will close on the Thursday preceding the last Wednesday of June. From this it will be seen that college may open as early as Sept. 23 and not later than the 29th; and that commencement may fall anywhere between the 18th and the 24th. The object of the change is to have the opening come on a fixed day of the week, thus enabling classes to start with greater precision than in the past.

A FAMILY NEED.

The Only One Price Furniture Store

In Washtenaw County. We buy goods in large quantity for spot cash and mark our goods at a price that we are absolutely sure is as low or lower than the same quality of goods can be bought for elsewhere in the county. That price settles it. No amount of bantering can persuade us to cut that price one cent. Every person passing our door must get exactly the same price, must receive exactly the same attention.

If this system of doing business "connected with guaranteed prices and goods" meets with your approval, we especially wish a share of your patronage.

Where several prices are named on the same article, the price you pay is simply a question of how expert you are at bantering if you have the required time and are experienced, eventually you may get as good a price as we name you to begin with.

Is This Year's Course of Choral Union Concert.

(From Monday's Times).

The announcements of the Choral Union series of concerts have just been issued by the University Musical Society.

No greater attraction could possibly be provided for an Ann Arbor audience than the appearance of the great organization which is to open the course.

The second concert, December 10th, will introduce to the Ann Arbor public Mr. and Mrs. Georg Henschel, of London, England.

Mr. Alberto Jonas and the Detroit Philharmonic Club will give the third concert on January 14.

For the fourth concert, which occurs on February 4, the Choral Union will sing Mendelssohn's great oratorio, "St. Paul."

Mr. Gardner S. Lamson, who is at present in Europe, will return to America in February and will give a song recital on March 11 as the fifth number in the series.

As to the May Festival, no definite announcements can yet be made.

In the "Land of an African Sultan," Walter B. Harris describes the traits of Selim, a servant fully devoted to his master's interests.

I had been telling a story, half from imagination, half from an old tale. The men had listened in breathless silence.

"Is it true?" one of them asked. Before I had time to say anything, Selim had given the answer.

I was staggered. I had exaggerated the story, which was not true at all, and was rather proud of the effect it had produced on the men.
