SAY, what is the matter with our editorial brother of the Republican persuasion? Some time ago, when Joseph of Chicago was engineering his wheat deal, and the price of bread and wheat was going up by big jumps, they were clapping their hands and calling out to the farmers to see what the Republican administration and the Dinglev bill were doing for them when wheat passed the dollar mark their exultation knew no bounds. When it climed up to nearly two dollars they could not contain themselves for joy. But Joseph's corner busted and wheat went tumbling down. It isn't two dollar wheat any more. THE DEMOCRATIC SITUATION.

The Democratic County Convention is called to meet in this city September 21st at which time and place the winning ticket will be stand up and tell us why it costs us named. The Republicans are badly twice as much per capita to govern disrupted. Two very evenly divided factions of the g. o. p. are enjoyed in pleasant task of reducing the political ambitions of each other to sausage meat. The Democrats are united and they view the warfare in the Republican camp with great complacency. They will put up a ticket of representative men, giving fair representation to each section of the |county. Under the present eirenmstances such a ticket cannot fail to meet with public approval.

The general sentiment upon the outcome of the campaign this fall is fairly indicated by the number of good men who are willing to take nominations on the Democratic

PIERCE WINS OUT.

Orrin R. Pierce, of Hudson, is the Congressional Candidate of the Democracy.

Orin R. Pierce, of Lenawee county, was nominated on the sixth ballot at Jackson Wednesday.

The convention was called to order in the city council chamber at 11 o'clock by Hon. John W. Boardman, of Jack-and in addition a committee to confer with the Populists and Silver Repub-

At the afternoon session the conference committee reported in favor of giving the Populists 10 votes and the Silver Republicans 5 votes in the convention. This proposition was accepted by the Silver Republicans and rejected by the Populists. The convention then proceeded with the business without the Populists.

Bert Chandler, of Hudson, placed the name of Orin J. Pierce before the convention. Walter Westerman, of Adrian, performed the same service for Willard Stearns, and Martin Cavanaugh for S.

Balloting began on the three named candidates. On the first ballot the announcement of Jackson's 26 votes for Barkworth brought forth loud applause. Lenawee split between Pierce and Stearns, with 4 for Hoch. Monroe gave 11 to Salsbury, 2 to Beakes and 4 to Washtenaw's 23 went to Beakes. Wayne gave 6 each to Pierce and Beakes and 1 to Barkworth. The five Silver Republicans went to Pierce on each ballot.

On the second ballot Jackson gave Pierce 7, Beakes 6, Stearns 3 and Salsbury 10. The result on the ballot was: Pierce 33, Beakes 33, Stearns 19, Salsbury 24. Both Pierce and Beakes gained on the third, fourth and fifth ballots, at the expense of Salsbury. When the Sixth ballot was called Jack son gave Beakes 16, Pierce 10; Lenawee gave Pierce 19, Beakes 4, Stearns 4. Monroe then started the break by giving 16 to Pierce. Washtenaw and Lenawee asked for a recess, and upon re-convening both counties cast a solid vote for Pierce, which example was followed by the other counties, and Pierce was declared the unanimous nominee amid the wildest enthusiasm.

While the balloting was progress the Populists came in and announced that they had nominated Willard Stearns of Adrian. The Democrats did not like to be dictated to in this manner and this wiped out all chances of Mr Stearns' landing the Democratic nomination. When the Populists saw how unkindly the convention took to their would be dictation word was sent in that Mr. Stearns had declared himself a Democrat and would not accept the Populist nomination unless the Demorats would first honor him.

Had it not been for the fact that some of the Washtenaw Gelegates wanted to bolt Mr. Beakes on the sixth ballot he would undoubtedly have been nominated. But this disaffection caused a prolonged caucus of the Wash-tenaw delegation and knowledge of the dissension getting out in the convention and threw the nomination to him. Had Washtenaw presented a solid front when called for the sixth ballot, Wayne was ready to follow with a solid vote, which would have named Beakes. Mr. Pierce is a substantial business

This opened up a lively talk over the condition of Ann Arbor's sidewalks. City Clerk Mills called the attention of the board to the fact that there were many sidewalks in the city which were simply bait for law suits against the city, and stated he understood that the four or five actions against Ann Arbor preparation where the basis of the claims were defective sidewalks; and maining counties had not yet been heard from, but they doubtless were getting their share. He then read the following provision in the charter:

"The board of public works are here-such temporary repairs to be made in sidewalks, at the expense of the city, as may be immediately necessary for the safety of pedestrians, and all bilis dent of the board of public works, shall be allowed by the common council and paid out of the street fund."

PASSED AWAY

Death of John W. Maynard Early Tuesday Morning.

Ann Arbor's Oldest Resident - He Saved the Location of the University for the City of Ann Arbor.

Although the people of Ann Arbor had been fully prepared for the news of the death of John W. Maynard which occurred Tuesday, by the published facts that his recent illness was certain to result in his demise. still when the news did come it was in the nature of a shock to the community, especially to the older portion of it. The deceased was 85 years of age and came to this county with his father in 1824 from Massachusetts and settled on the farm in Pittsfield where William Campbell now resides. Up the time of his death Mr. Maynard was probably the oldest continuous resident of this county and that honor now falls upon Daniel B. Brown who came here in 1826. On Dec. 7, 1836, John W. Maynard and Miss Mary J. Willcoxson were married and the sixtieth anniversary of that event was celebrated very fittingly a year ago last December. Mr. Maynard came to the village of Ann Arbor at an early date and became prominent in its affairs. He engaged in active business and at one time was Ann Arbor's best known merchant. In 1844 Mr. Maynard commenced the erection of the house in which he died thus making his continuous residence in one home 54 years—an instance that is most remarkable.

A bit of history in regard to Mr. Maynard ought to be told. At the time the commissioners came here to locate the University he owned 146 acres of land lying within the limits of what is now the Second Ward of this city. The forty acres which now composes the campus was owned by the Ann Arbor Land Company, consisting of his brother, W. S. Maynard, E. W. Morgan, Charles Thayer and Daniel B. Brown, All of these men were willing to deed the land to the state for a University except Wm, Maynard, He only consented to do so on condition that his brother John should deed to him onehalf of the 146 acres in the Second Ward, as his share of the gift as he called it. There was an active committee here from Marshall looking very lobbingly after the commissioners. The people of Ann Arbor wanted to head Marshall off and became very anxious about what John was going to do. Onhim depended the matter of the location of the University. He went to a lawyer about it. "Tell your brother and the University of Michigan to go to Hades," said the lawyer but he did not follow his advice, but straightway and willingly did he make a personal sacriversity here. Had it not been for him it is altogether probable that Marshall would today be the great University city, known all over the globe, and not

The deceased leaves a widow and three sons. They are Dr. Wm. Maynard of Dansville, N. Y.; Fred A. Maynard, the Attorney General of Michigan; and John H. Maynard who has been kindly and faithfully caring for his parents for some time past.

The funeral will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

About 2 o'clock. yesterday flames broke out in the rear of the house and was probably due toa defective kitchen stove or chimney. Mr. McCormick and his help rushed to to the common council. It is built to | the scene, but were unable to subdue the blaze and turned their attention to saving the furniture. All the furniture on the ground floor was taken out and also some from the second story. Even the piano was saved. In the meantime the high wind which was raging carried some burning cinders across the road to his barns and sheds, and soon they were a mass of flames. The house, horse barn, cattle sheds and grain barn were all completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $6,006. Mr. McCormick was insured in the Washtenaw Mutual for $4,120.

The future movements of the Thirtyfirst Regiment are still enshrouded in mystery, but if the boys had their choice there would be no two ways about it. Now that peace has been declared the object for which most of the men enlisted has been attained, and they are anxious to be mustered out of service, the sooner the better. Many of the men have business and professional interests at home, and garrison duty has no attraction for them. Some, however, are willing to enter the regular army, and it is hoped that they will be given a chance to do so, while those who so desire may be permitted to return to their homes

There seems little doubt that the Secand and Third divisions of the First corps will move to another camping ground soon. Lexington has been decided upon for the Third division, but up to the present time no advices have been received as to where the Second will stake camp. Knoxville, Tenn., has been mentioned, but Gen. McKee, upon investigation, found it unsuitable for the purpose, and it is barely possible that another site will be selected in northwestern Tennessee. On the other hand, the division may be broken up into regiments and assigned to state

Tomorrow morning will occur the second grand review held in the park. Forty-three thousand men are expected to pass in review. General Breckenridge and his staff, the governors of many states, the people of Chattanooga and the surrounding country are expected to be present to witness the pageant, which has not been equalled since the Civil war. Every soldier is expected to take part except those who are sick, and one-half the usual number of guards.

The word "Monotony" was well chosen when applied to our camp. Major General Breckenridge has recognized this, and will give the boys a diversion in the form of field day exercises, to be held every month. Saturday will be the first field day, and entries will be made in running, jumping, hammer throw, tug of war, baseball and the steeplechase. Trophies will be awarded the regiments winning the largest number of events. Although the boys will be given little opportunity for practice, an interesting day is anticipated.

The part that Company A will take on the program has not been decided, but as we have a goodly number of athletes and heavyweights, entries are almost sure to be made in the tug of war, hammer throw, and sprint.

Brigadier General Roe has issued orders that from now on only one drill shall be held, and that in the early morning. It is further announced that hereafter special attention will be paid to guard mounting. This may mean great part of that work. Which, is the question the boys would like to have answered.

Several of the members of Company A are engaged in private enterprises in addition to their military duties. One of the most profitable of these is a sort of lunch counter set up between two tents by the Wilson Brothers. When the Illinois boys left they preand many other luxuries.

WAGNER.

Mr. Stanger's Speech.

At the German day celebration at Manchester Thursday, Mr. Theo. Stanger, editor of the Hausfreund and Post, spoke in German on "The Contest Be-World's History."

He briefly reviewed the enmittes between the ancient Germans and the Romans, the fall of the Roman empire through the German conqueror, the Anglo-Saxon contest of Britain, the formation of Germanic England and the German principalities in the north and the Latin states of Italy, France and Spain in the south. He spoke of the normal hostilities of the races breaking out anew, the wars between Spain. England destroyed the armada and the power or arrogant Spain began to decline. He referred to the rise of Prussia as a military power destined to free and unite Germany, contemporary to the war of independence of England's colonies in America, and spoke of the influence of the revolutionary war on France. The French as a people were not competent to profit by the example of the Anglo-Saxon Americans. He passed on to the rise of Napoleon Bonaparte and his fall through the Anglo-Saxons and the Germans, and to the humiliation of the ambitious Napoleon III. and France through the German armies directed by the genius of Bismarck, and spoke of the prospects of united Germany. Our war with Spain, he said, was the latest continuation of the old hostilities between the progressive Germanic and the stagnant Latin races. He spoke of the differ ence in the stage of civilization and culture of the two nations and the part the so-called German-Americans played in the war and the triumph of intelligence over ignorance. He concluded with speaking of the grand progress of the Germanic states in science, the arts and good government. Germany was the cradle of all free and mighty nations. The friendly relation between Germany and our nation ought to be maintained.

A County Officials Visit.

Our citizens had the pleasure yesterday of a visit from our gental and efficient county clerk, Jacob F. Schuh, who came in advance of the crowd to enjoy the festivities of German day.

We appreciate this visit because it shows that Mr. Schuh has an interest in the welfare of southern Washtenaw, indeed we believe that he is interested in the whole county. Certain it is that ted that it is even thought of, much he knows the faces of hundreds of its all visitors at his office, and is ready to Ann Arbor. A WORKINGMAN'S PLEA.

Wants the Library, Museum and Art Irving Goodwin Tells of His Partici-Gallery Opened on Sundays.

In a recent editorial The Times expressed a willingness to publish communications from citizens of Ann Arbor relative to the "Opening of the ing the city. "The night of June 30th," University library, art gallery and museums on Sunday." Taking advantage of such offer I would like to say a word or two from the standpoint of the workingman. Our magnificent collections in the libraries, art galleries and museums in the University have been provided and are supported by tween the German and Latin races and funds from the treasury of the state. the Influence of the Germans in the They are largely provided at public expense and intended for the good of the firing stopped we had just time to eat general public. Hence all those who are taxed for their support and for whose benefit the collections are accumulated ought naturally to have the greatest possible opportunities afforded for their inspection and study. But is this the case? Consider for a moment the position of a workingman, mechanic, clerk or shopkeeper in this or any neighboring town. His hours of labor extend from 7 o'clock in the morning England and France, Holland and till 6 in the evening, with one hour's intermission at noon. On reaching home in the evening after a hard day's work, fagged and weary, he does not often feel inclined to hurry through his evening meal and toilet in order to reach the library or museum to pass a short time among their wonderful treasures before they close for the night. The workingman's day for rest and intellectual improvement is Sun-day, and on that day he would derive great enjoyment as well as benefit by visiting the library that has been provided for his benefit.

The rich man has his library and pic ture gallery in his own home, to which he can turn whenever he pleases. He has time and money to travel on every day of the week. But the poor labor-ing man is confined to the factory or to the store. Sunday is his only day for such innocent recreation and mental improvement, and on that day every place in which he can take an intel-ectual interest is closed to him.

Why should men and women who work six days out of the week be cut off from visiting on the seventh day the stores of literature and science and art In the libraries and museums, towards the collection and maintanance of which they are compelled to contribute according to their means?

Let the library and art gallery be opened on Sundays, or at least on Sunday afternoons and evenings, and it will tend to promote moral and intellectual culture among the vast numbers who cannot avail themselves of the great privileges offered for education and mental advancement unless this is done. WORKINGMAN.

CLOSE THEM ON SUNDAYS

Says Wm. Biggs in Regard to the Library, Art Gallery, Etc.

The writer of the article, "A Workingman's Plea," accepts the offer of The Times and gives his views relative to the opening of the University Library, art gallery and museum on the Sunday. It is very much to be regretmore brought up and publicly agitated residents and extends the glad hand to as a necessity for the workingman of halls during the weeks of the year, and if perchance they are the chosen few, occupied all the time, being fagged out Mrs. Elizabeth J. Babcock died at the and weary, so much the better, for they a day off for this purpose if they wish. For if, as we are told, the machine needs rest, and will do more and better work with it, how much more is it true of man if he wisely rests and recreates One could not but wonder if the writ-er of the article referred to (unknown) ever thought of God himself as working through the week, and how H rested on the Sabbath, and how thoroughly He understood the frailty of human nature as it was after the fall, and how He gave the Sabbath to man that he might enjoy it, rest in it and not abuse it. One would not say that simply sitting in one's own door yard, and admiring the works and beauties of nature on the Sabbath would suffice for any of us, but if one wishes to en-joy the sweet rest and recreation afforded him from the arduous toils of the . I think there are few places in our favored land more suited than our own beautiful city of Ann Arbor. Would it be pertinent to ask, how many workingmen of Ann Arbor, in all the many years they have been her, have visited, for instance, the ibrary, which is open through all the college year every day in the week and evening until 10 o'clock, and free to all. I fear it would be only too true to state that only a very small portion, if any, ever go near, not because they cannot, but because they can and don't want

The time has not come, and it is to be hoped never will, when it will be necessary for the state to deprive any man from enjoying the privileges of the Sabbath by being compelled to remain on duty on that day.

It would seem that the effects of the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday would have so left its impress upon our minds that we would not dare to renture it here. The following dialogue, which was overheard some years ago, perhaps would not be inappropriate at this time: One said, "Well, sir, I maintain that Sunday ought to be a general holiday, and the people ought not to be kept ou of such places as the Zoological gardens and the Crystal palace grounds, where they would find both health and amusement. I would have the Sunday used for recreation."

The other listened very attentively,

The other listened very attentively, and then very quietly replied:

"Recreation! Yes, that is the very word and quite meets my views. The Sabbath is meant for re-creation, and if some people whom I know were once re-created they would want very little of the so-called recreation which they now make so much of."

pation in the Battle Near Santiago.

A letter received from Irving Goodwin, under date of July 7th, says that he was then in the trenches surroundhe says, "we marched nearly all night and about 8:30 the next morning we heard the hum of the first Spanish bullets. We were ordered right to the front and got a position in a ditch on the firing line and had to lie in the mud and water for nearly nine hours, under a heavy cross-fire from the enemy. Towards night we took El Caney and got a better position. That night after the a couple of hard tacks when we were ordered to reinforce Wheeler. We marched all night and early the next morning we were on the other side of the city and under heavy fire from the enemy. As we came up the artillery retreated, because it was too hot, they said, and the Seventeenth took their position and held it. The fire from the enemy continued all day and night until about noon the next day. On the night of the 2nd the Spanish tried to retake their position, but we drove them back with a loss of about 800. Anybody that has never seen a battle can form no idea of the misery and suffering it entails, but as horrible as the battle was, there was nothing that worked on my feelings quite so much as the sight that greeted my eyes on the morning of the 5th. As soon as it was light thousands of women and children, ragged and half starved, could be seen leaving the city and taking refuge in the foothills of the mountains.

I am as poor as a crow, having had to live on less than half rations most of the time. I have just been to dinner. It was not such a dinner I remember having eaten at home, but consisted of a thin slice of raw bacon between two hard tacks. I now have a full beard, not having had any opportunity to shave since landing. I passed through the battle without any serious wound and am feeling very well, though a good many of the boys are sick. I think I am going to come through all right."

Mr. Goodwin is with the Seventeenth Infantry of the regulars, which left Cuba last Monday on the City of Macon, so that he is probably well on his way to Montauk Pt. by this time.

HEROES ARE WELCOMED HOME.

Michigan Naval Reserves Get a Royal Greeting at Detroit.

Detroit, Aug. 21.-With honors befitting them, Detroit citizens today welcomed home the Michigan naval reserves who served on the auxiliary cruiser Yosemite.

Amid the cheers of thousands the reserves and a military escort, which was waiting to do them honor, paraded through the principal streets. It was a triumphal procession. Windows were filled and roofs crowded, all waiting to cheer the first of Michigan's returned heroes. The men presented a fine appearance, being bronzed and burned until they looked almost like the Spaniards they had been fighting.

After being reviewed by a party of art which are open to all. Observation officials and friends the men were dismissed and went to the homes they had not seen in four months. Tomor-row the reserves will be mustered out Uncle Sam's service and become

WHA: IS TAUGHT BY GRAVES FILLED WITH VICTIMS OF KIDNEY TROUBLES.

Scientific Research has Revealed a New Remedy, and its Trial by the Public has Proven its Value.

Prevention is beter than cure-and sometimes if prevention is neglected there is no cure possible. Careless people get in the grip of frightful disease that will drag them down through days and nights of pain, to the grave because they neglect the common symp tomes that indicate the danger of Bright's disease, diabetes, and various kidney complaints. Modern ways of living, especially in eating and drinking, have made kidney troubles terribly common, and the increase in death from this cause has led to the keenest kind of research by scientists to dis what remedy nature has pro-

This feature of the new remedy is well illustrated by the case of W. H. Meyers, a well-known resident of Springfield, Ohio, living at 484 Warder street. Mr. Meyers says:

THE SINGLE TAX.

Prof. Belangee Spoke Twice Sunday on the Fauorite Theory of Henry George.

The first public crusade of the Henry George apostles upon the University was made last Sunday when Prof. Bellangee, of Des Moines. Iowa, spoke twice upon the "Single Tax" theory. The single tax idea is one which is as yet in its infancy, but there is no gainsaying the fact that the work of Henry George upon "Pro-gress and Poverty," kindled a flame that is destined either to work a ruination in some favorite planks in the old-time parties or perhaps give warmth to a new political party. The question has not gained such a foothold yet that it will have to be dealt with at the ballot box, but the time is fast approaching when it will. Some party either existing now or to be formed will advance the idea as a means of getting into power.

Prof. Bellangee is not an orator. He loes not impress one by his appearance on the public platform as personifying eloquence to any great extent. He is more of a student. He is posted, well read and calculating, but not magnetic. Consequently his address of yesterday morning at the Trinity Lutheran church ties for those present to ask such questions as they might desire he showed a readiness of answer, an application of illustrative powers that was far more convincing than the formal talks.

The single tax theory is based upon the idea that land values alone should go to support the government. For instance, two men may have adjoining lots. The one improves his by erecting a fine business block thereon. The other man allows his lot to be unimproved. Both men are to be taxed alike. The single tax idea does away with all taxes on buildings; all taxes on personal propexty such as furniture, stocks in trade, monies, mortgage securities, bonds, notes, etc. At first it appals one to use. think what the apostles contemplate. Would not a radical change such as they suggest create an irretrievable panic? Even if the theory is correct would not its practical adoption cause such an awful clash of values that the country could not recover. Many perons read the arguments of the "Single Tax" men and say it is indeed beautiful and the business world should have been started on this line, but it would be suicidal to all business to try and enforce it. Prof. Bellangee says that the way to adopt it without causing a panic is to drop off the different kinds of taxes, one after the other, and gradually until the final single tax on bare land values is reached. He claims people will see the drift of the country's notes, etc. At first it appalls one to policy and will gradually adjust themselves and their property values to it. In other words, he would, for instance, drop off all taxes on notes and mortgages, and in doing so he claims he would be benefiting the borrower for the reason that the man who loans money always reckons in his rate of interest the aways. Ernest Axford, aged 6, was fataliy injured under a train at Walled Lake Friday. He died Saturday morning. terest the amount of taxes he has to "Yes!" Well, he knows where to go for it then. Only one place in town that he considers. That place benefit of the borrower. The next step Our soda is better for you any day than beer; better morally, mentally and physically. Speaking about "physically," are you ill, or what is more likely about half ill?

We have seen great fluids for half twelve months, and thus "turning it over," should be made to pay as much taxes as his more unfortunate neighbor who has only succeeded in selling half his goods and being obliged to again pay taxes on the remaining half for a second year. The next step would be to take off the taxes on buildings. Prof. Bellangee claims that under the present system the consumer who does business with any man in a building has to pay his share of the taxes of the building. That the man who owns the building, if freed from any taxes on the same, would be able to sell his goods on so much less a margin and the consumer would be the one benefited. Prof. Bellangee and those who believe with him would have the tax system reduced finally to bare land values. "In other words," said he, "the man who has the opportunity of putting his hand upon the treasures of smallpox.

Do you think that the man who goes to sleep should not pay for his seat the same as the man that reaped the full intellectual benefits from the entertainment? Certainly he should. In the same way, the man who allows his land to remain idle should pay as much for the support of the government as the wideawake neighbor who improves his land and makes it beneficial to his fellow men. A Private Citizen Again. Ransom George, Ypsilanti's representative among the naval reserves, paid his friends a most welcome visit

Detroit, where he has been for the past three days, and his intentions now are to return tonight and get back into the business harness as soon as possible. All who saw the returned seaman say that he never looked better in his life Straight as an arrow, brown as a berry, fleshier than when he left home, Mr. George looks rather as if he had been on a pleasure trip than engaged in genuine warfare. Mr. George was compelled to give an accounting to his friends for not coming back thin and worn out, and this is the way he exwhile the boys were on active service and on blockade duty they were as lean and drawn out as the most romantic lady love could wish. When the Yosemite was ordered to Spain with the proposed invading fleet she took on a large quantity of ship's and private supplies, and then later, when it became evident that peace was about to be declared, rather than leave the precious supplies for some other and less deserving crew, the boys pitched in and for some time each one consumed rations for two or three. The abundance of good, nourishing food, the bracing salt air, the prospects of a speedy home coming made a combination that nothing could resist, and consequently by the time the boys were actually discharged they looked like a lot of youngsters back from a fresh air farm. When the ship was stripped for action Mr. George was No. 6 of a gun's crew and it was his duty to assist in removing the shells from their casings and then in loading up the piece. Now that everything has turned out all right and he and his friends are safely back and in good health. Mr. George looks upon his short career as a sailor with very pleasant memories. It is certainly an experience that not many young men of the 19th century can boast of having passed through, and surely a free-hearted offer of life to one's country is something of which no one need feel ashamed.

The New Organ.

Those who are interested in church music and who have a mind for knowing the make-up of things, may perhaps like to hear something of the Presbyterian organ which is now in the process of building. The organ committee have been very fortunate in placing their contract with Geo. Jardine & Son, who are one of the oldest and best manufacturers of organs in the country and who very seldom contract for as small an instrument as Ypsilanti would require. The cost to the church is to be $2,500, and as the Normal and Methodist instruments came respectively to $3,100 and $2,500, it is easily seen that the church ought to get something very fine. Below are some of the specifications:

Organ to consist of two manuals, extending from C C to C, 61 notes, and independent pedal organ of 30 notes.

independent pedal organ of 30 notes and to contain following stops: Grea organ, 7; swell organ, 7; pedal organ, 3; pedal couplers, 2; couplers, cotave on itself tremulent; accessories, 3 double-acting combination pedals.

Mr. Carlton Michell, who * to yoice the instrument, is one of the very finest valuers in the country.

STATE POLITICS.

Governor Pingree has been in Washington the last week, and his reported exceedingly friendly relations with Secretary Alger have given rise to infinite gossip. To many this friendship suggests a combination between them for offensive and defensive purposes.

It is asserted that Mr. Alger has aspirations for a seat in the United States senate, and he is commonly looked upon as Senator McMillan's successor when the latter's term expires, two years hence. Mr. McMillan is thought to have an ambition to represent this government abroad to round out his political career, and if such an appointment could be secured at the present time-to St. James, for instance-he would resign his senatorial seat now, and the appointment of his successor ad interim would rest with Governor Pingree. The appointment in all probability would go to Mr. Alger, and then when the legislature meets in January Mr. Alger could be regularly elected for the remaining two years of the term, with a mortgage on the full term in

A combination between Pingree and Alger would be one of the strongest that could be put up in Michigan, and in the deal would be Albert Pack, who is in the field against Senator Burrows and who is one of the shrewdest political workers in the state.

The legislative and senatorial conventions are now being held in bunches of four or five a week, and it is probable most of the nominations on the Republican side will have been made before the state convention in Detroit Sept. 21. In the western part of the state Senator Burrows seems to be having things very much his own way for re-election, but he has yet far to go before he has passed the danger point in his canvass. Although Pack is conducting a sort of still hunt canvass, and some rosy claims in his behalf are being made.

In the First district John B. Corliss will be renominated for a third term. Horace G. Snover, of Port Austin, will probably be renominated in the Seventh and R. P. Bishop, of Ludington in the Ninth, though both have rivals for the honors. In the Twelfth district Samuel M. Stephenson, of Menominee, is contesting with Congressman Carlos D. Sheldon, of Houghton, for the nomination. Mr. Sheldon is serving his first term. The race between them will be very close, with the chances at present seemingly in favor of Mr. Stephenson.

Talks of Disbanding Troops.

Washington, Aug. 25.-When asked about the mustering out of the troops, Secretary Alger said: "All of the volunteers who have seen service either yesterday. Mr. George ran down from at Santiago or at Manila, with few exceptions, will be mustered out. Many of the volunteers want to remain in the service, and for days I have been besieged with letters, petitions and personal appeals by the friends of such regiments to keep them in the service. Of course a large army is necessary, and will be kept up. Nevertheless, we feel that there are many who made a pecuniary sacrifice to get to the front, and now that they are not wanted, we want to give them back to their families and business. I do not know just when the omcial order of muster out plains the phenomenon. It seems that | will be given, but I think it will be within a week."

The union services were held Sunday The union services were held Sunday evening in the Methodist church, Rev. Wharton officiating. Those who love and appreciate good music certainly missed a treat if they were not present. Besides the solo by Miss Grace Stevens, Braga's "Angels' Serenade" was played by Mr. Frank Smith and Mr. Henry Samson on violin and 'cello. The Serenade is always beautiful, and The Serenade is always beautiful, and it goes without saying that it lost none of its charm when rendered by such thorough musicians as the above named Electric railways are becoming quite the proper thing. One line between Ann Arbor and Detroit is just getting into good running condition and now news comes that this week work will be commenced on a second and similar means of suburban transit. Many peo-ple think they detect the cloven hoof and horns of the Michigan Central, and that the new line is being put up for the express purpose of underbidding the road already established and re-gaining control of the traffic now so nicely slipping from them.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army of the United States, was asked during his recent visit to Cleveland if he had ever met Pawnee Bill.

Not only will it present guests, at their reunion in Cincinnati better oportunities for education to the Sept. 7. The invitation concludes:

At high noon Wednesday was solemnized the marriage of Miss Lulu Rappleye and Darius W. Smith, at the home of the bride's parents, 301 Cross st. Miss Rappleye is the daughter of ex-Deputy Rappleye and Mr. Smith is a gentleman from Ridgeway. The ceremony was a very pretty one. The room where the bridal pair stood was tastefully decorated with national bunting and the mantelpiece was banked with golden rod, the national flower. Rev. Eugene Yager, of Napoleon, was the officiating clergyman. The bride was becomingly gowned in white and carried white roses, while her attendant, Miss Jennie Underwood, of Ridgeway, wore pink and carried pink roses. Mr. Smith's supporter in the ordeal, so trying to the masculine soul, was David Gibson, of Flint. After an elegant repast the happy couple left the parental roof amid blowing horns and falling showers of rice and shoes. Destination of happy pair unknown. The presents included much valuable linen, silver and bric-a-brac. Among the fifty guests were friends from Ridgeway, Britton, Ann Arbor, Flint, Belleville and Detroit. A happy married life for Mr. and Mrs. Darius W. Smith.

A Midsummer Concert.

The midsummer concert has come and gone, and the only regret of its promoters is that it was not as great a success financially as it was musically. Musically there was nothing left to be desired. Every one on the program possesses a special talent, and every one was, if anything, above his usual form. The only way to do justice to the entertainment would be to give each of the participants an undivided compliment, but as eight individual compliments suited to the merits of last night's performance would fill at least two columns it will be necessary to compromise by keeping strictly to generalities and mentioning absolutely no names. This course is permissible sines The Times has already published the program and consequently the public has the nature of the entertainment and the names of the participants well in mind. The participants in the program are to be congratulated on their very fine work, and the promoters of the enterprise are to be congratulated on having secured such excellent talent. ceeds David Eugene Smith as head of it is true that there was not a very the mathematical department of the large house, but those who had the large house, but those who had the pleasure of attending selfishly hope that the ladies will overlook the proverbial lukewarmness of the Ypsilanti public and will favor true lovers of music with another such treat in the near future.

Home on a Forlough,

Corporal Edward K. Owen, of Co. G. Thirty-first Michigan, is home on a ten days' furlough. When seen by The Times he said that as far as he was concerned hard tack and damp ground had not succeeded in reducing either his spirits, his height, his health or his appetite. As for his weight, he admitted a slight deficiency there, but said that in the ten days before bim he could easily make up the 25 odd pounds he had lost. Mr. Owen says that the drills have been reduced to an hour and a quarter a day and that rally life is being mad The farmer's annual picnic will be the boys now that war is ended. He also stated that in Camp Thomas the men have received the best care and attention possible under the existing circumstances, and that they have adapted themselves to their hard life with wonderful equanimity. It goes without saying that the soldier lads are anxious to return home, but not even the wisest of them can venture to predict when that happy event will take

If anybody thinks that war is glorious If anybody thinks that war is glorious let him talk the matter over with James Bycraft, home on a 30 days' furlough. When James left he was a big, strapping fellow, who could give a good account of himself in whatever company he might be. Now he is gaunt and hollow and so weak that he could not properly spank his small brother. He expects however that 30 days of good expects, however, that 30 days of good care and Bycraft cooking will work

John Perry complained of Louis Goodman before Justice Childs. A warrant has been issued for Goodman on the charge of assault and battery. Perry had sent his children to a neighbor's to get a violin string, he says, and Goodman's children maltreated them, whereupon Perry sent his big boy with the first two. Goodman then went after first two. Goodman then went after Perry and smashed him a few times, so Perry says.

There is some gossip about the terible accident of ten days ago in which David Greenman and Don Finnegan lost their lives. A lady living in the Sixth ward, and who does not want her name mentioned, happened to be driv-ing by and saw the accident. She says that Greenman was walking upon the end of the ties outside the rails—a place, by the way, where he would have been comparatively safe—and that the boy was walking between the rails. Suddenly she saw him partly turn and ook up at the train above. Then, catching sight of the engine almost upon them, where they were walking, he sprang straight for the boy, and as he reached him the rushing engine struck them both. The evidence of En-gineer Kent bears out this statement, where he says that had Greenman been upon the end of the ties when the engine struck him he could have been seen from the engine window. But at that moment he could not be seen, probably having sprung toward his boy companion in an heroic effort to save the little fellow's life.

BEASTS AND BIRDS.

Ringling Brothers, the progressive proprietors of the World's Greatest Shows, which exhibits in Ann Arbor, Saturday, Aug. 27, have this season petitors. The present season has brought their long contemplated plans to perfection and placed their zoological exposition absolutely beyond competition. Many notable innovations have been introduced, and the diversity of the display is constantly a source of wonder and delight. Naturally, the most conspicious feature of the menagerle is the immense herd of elephants. There are twenty-five of these strange and always interesting animals, ranging from the tiniest baby to the towering Asiatic colossus. This is by far the greatest number of elephants ever seen in one exhibition, and the sight is impressive and awe-inspiring. Among the other led animals are many beautifulspecimens of the yak, the gnu, the llama, and even the aurochs, the European bison with which Ursus battled in the famous story of "Quo Vadis." The display of llons and other carnivorous wild animals is superb. A new and striking feature, introduced this season, is the aviary. In this remarkably beautiful display Ringling Brothers again attest their originality as well as the superiority of their exhibition. Other shows are content with a single Ringling Brothers present a complete rnithological collection, containing most every known species of bird, from the familiar domestic canary to the rainbow-hued tropical bird of paradise Nothing like this display has ever be-fore been seen in the United States, and it has created a sensation wherever the show has exhibited. Another new departure is a complete aquarium of water-frequenting wild animals, embracing specimens of the hippopotamus, sea lion, seal, polar bear, crocodile and other animals and saurians of this char-acter. The display is a notably complete one, and one which the student of history can find nowhere else in the world. Ringling Brothersh ave always paid particular attention to the pleasure of the little folks, and the introduction of their special children's menagerie last season was an extremely popular move. This season the children's menagerie has been greatly augmented and many new features added. The most notable is a huge den, arranged as a monkey play-ground, with a miniature merry-go-round of carved lions, giraffes and other animals. It is a laughable sight to see the monkeys riding on the caroussel, and nothing in the exhibition way has created such a furor among the children. An interesting incidental feature of the menagerie is the ladies' orchestral symphony club, which preents an hour's program in the menag erie prior to the performance in the immense hippodrome amphitheatre. MURDERED

Was Valmore C. Nichols of Pittsfield Township.

Body Found in Detroit River Near Bell Isle Last Thursday-Edwrad Ascher, Alias Robert Lang, a Fake Medium, Arrested for the Crime.

(From last Friday's Times.) With his feet tightly bound together with copper wire and with two large square stones fastened to them by the same material, Valmore C. Nichols, of Pittsfield, Mich., was pulled out of the Detroit river near the Detroit Boat club shortly after 6 o'clock last even-

Yards upon yards of the pliable copper wire held the legs of the corpse bound tightly together. The wire followed around the stones like string around a square bundle, and it took some effort upon the part of the undertaker's men to remove it.

Everything points to the conclusion that the man was murdered, and Capt. McDonnell, of the police force, feels assured that such was the case. Nichols has been missing since a week ago last Wednesday, the day he came to Detroit from Pittsfield. The body had evidently been in the water at least a week.

Walter Thompson and Dick Mason, two of the boatmen employed by the Detroit Boat club, were rowing on the river yesterday morning, when they saw a black object, which looked like the back of a man, floating on the river about 500 feet to the east of the boathouse and some distance from the

After taking a good look, though at a distance, at the object, they decided that it was only one of the buoys that have been recently placed at different points about the island to mark the course for the boat race on the river. They went back to the club and thought no more about the matter till evening.

Late in the afternoon some of the members of the club were out on the river practicing in their shells. They rowed around the object which the boatmen had taken for a spar buoy. and when close to it they saw what it really was.

At once the oarsmen went back to the club and notified the boatmen, who went to the spot and pulled the body out. It was that of a man. The corpse was floating in the shallow water in that part of the river with the back turned skyward. On close examination they found fastened to his feet, as already stated, the stones. The weighed 13 and 18 pounds respectively, and were put on in such a way that it would be impossible to kick them off.

Coroner Dickson's office was notified immediately, and Clerk Scrimger ordered the body to be taken to Marshall's morgue on Beauben street. The police were also told, and Capt Mc-Donnell and Detective Larkin went to examine the corps. On the way over the captain remarked that Nichols was the only man that had been put on the records of the police as missing, and had not been accounted for.

The object for the murder-as it undoubtedly is-is discovered in the fact that Nichols had $400 in his pocket at the time he disappeared.

The money was carried in a belt that Nichols had around his waist. The murderers, in their haste to tear it away from his person, pulled off one of the dead man's cuff's, that was missing when his body was discovered.

The identification was perfect in every particular. The description of the man and of the articles found on his person tallied exactly with that given to the police by Mrs. Nichols when she reported that her husband was missing.

"V. C. N." was marked on one of the cuffs taken off the dead man, and the name of A. Seymour, a manufacturing optician in Ypsilanti, was printed on the case of the eyeglasses which were in one of the man's pockets. The $400 he had when he left his home in Pittsfield, about three miles from Ypsilanti, was nowhere to be seen. In another pocket were two Belle Isle tickets with the date of Aug. 10 stamped on the

This was the day Nichols disappeared. Again, in proof that the dead man was murdered, on the right side of the head there was a large wound. County Physician George, who examined the body soon after it was taken to the morgue, says that it looked very much as if it might have been made by a blow. The doctor says that he did not examine the wound closely enough to tell by what the blow was given, and he cannot say positively that the wound was made by a blow until he, at the orders of the coroners, cuts away the scalp and has a look at the skull. The inquest will be held next Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. -Coroner Dickson late last night ordered a postmortem-for this morning.

Whether Nichols was alive or dead when the body was cast into the river can be determined only by a postmortem examination of the lungs. If he was still breathing when thrown in the water the lungs will be found almost, if not completely, filled with water. If life was extinct when the body was submerged, there will be a considerable amount of air in the lungs. The position of the body, found floating chest downward, would be no indication of the condition of the lungs, so it is "An autopsy will show the true nature of the mark on the side of the head and the extent of injury, if any, which it caused. It is possible stomach examination will determine

"To my mind the most plausible hypothesis would be that the man was either rendered completely drunk or made unconscious by an anaesthetic, and then, while in a stupor, was bound true the lungs will be found filled with water, and drowning will be proved to be the cause of death."

Robert Lang, the Detroit spiritualist, was arrested for the murder of Valmore Nichols at the Island Lake encampment at 1 o'clock this morning by Detectives High and Larkins. The detectives went to the hotel where Lang was stopping. After several minutes' rapping Secretary Brown, who is in charge, opened the door. He was astounded, but let the party step in although he held the stake which fastened the door ready for emergencies. High asked for Lang, Brown professed ignorance, but some newspaper men happened to know the room he occupied and told High.

"We're going up to see him," said

"No, you don't," said Brown, as he stepped back a few paces and raised his big club. High whipped out his revolver and Larkins closed in. "None of that business," said High, "we're officers," and he showed his badge. Brown offered no more objection.

The whole party went upstairs, High knocked at Lang's door and asked if he were there. Lang answered at once and Brown called out that a gentleman wanted to see him. The door was opened in a moment.

High and Larkins stepped beside him. one on each side, and he was told to dress as he was wanted in Detroit at once. Lang sat on the bed and blinked.

"For that-" and then he stopped. "Well, all right," he said, and pulled on his socks. He was very careful in his dressing, washed, fixed his hair as if going to dinner, brushed his clothes and even his umbrella. He packed his grip calmly and said he was ready. High pulled out his bracelets, and for the first time Lang spoke freely. He protested, saying it was not treating him as a gentleman since he was willing to go quietly. He argued in vain. As the prisoner stepped out into the inky darkness, old Brown called after him, "Keep your mouth shut." Lang followed the advice, for on the way back across the lake he never said a

The body was seen in the river at noon; but it was thought that it was a buoy, and in the evening, when some members of the boat club happened nearer to it it was discovered to be a dead body.

The news was received in Ypsilanti last night at midnight by the Tribune correspondent, who notified Nichols' sister, Mrs. George Brown, and the family was notified later. He had had his life insured for $3,000, but dropped it a few weeks ago thinking that he could not afford it.

Nichols was very anxious to become a medium, and it was with this object that he cultivated the acquaintance of Lang. He desired to know what course he should pursue to obtain the necessary power. Lang is said to have charged him $1 a visit, an expense which Nichols objected to.

The following letter, written by Lang, was left at home by Nichols when he came to Detroit for the last time, on Wednesday, Aug. 10:

Detroit, May 23, '98.

Mr. V. C. Nichols, Dear Sir:

I received yours of the 20th inst. and am very sorry to say I do not know where Donovan is. He did not tell me where he was gold. where he was going. He was not forced to leave the city; it was the Evening News that was raising all the trouble. I expect he will come back in the near future. I am doing all private work now, as this is my home, and I cannot advertise. The best way for me to help you and for you to have confidence in me is to have a sitting, and I know then that you will be satisfied and I could then see which is the best way for you to succeed in your development. I shall not charge you, only for sitting, which is $1, and you could take a run down here for a day and let me know by mail when you are coming. I expect to leave the latter part of next week for Chatham, Ont., for a few weeks. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain, ROBERT LANG, 124 Lafayette ave., Detroit.

Nichols was also in Detroit on Aug. 6, registering and spending the night at the Richmond hotel. Clinton A. Yates, his Detroit brother-in-law, had been searching for Nichols from the time of his disappearance. "Nichols told his wife when he left home that he was coming to Detroit on business," Yates said. "He drew several hundred dollars from the bank, borrowed some more, and said he would get back that night. That being avenue house, I went back and waited safe to assume that the murderer was around there until midnight, but saw nothing. On Sunday Mrs. Nichols came to the city. We searched together, but without success. On Monday Mrs. Nichols had an interview with Capt. McDonnell and detectives were put to work on the case.

(From the Detroit Tribune.)

The foul murder of Valmore C. Nichols, the Pittsfield farmer, whose lifeless body formed a buoy of flesh and bones in the river opposite the Detroit Boat club and lay in the water fully a week before it was discovered by some of the boatmen, makes a theme, the development of which will require the best detective ability that can be produced. In other words, before the murderer of Nichols can be convicted of the brutal crime there must be a forged chain of Ann Arbor is Being Terrorized by a circumstantial evidence such as is rare-

The murder of Nichols was, apparently, very well planned, though weaknesses are shown in the plans. Little by little evidence is being gathered that tends to show, approximately, how the crime was committed. The two ferry boat tickets found in the pocket of the dead man leave no doubt that he went to Belle Isle in company with some other person on the night of Aug. 10.

Then the couple proceeded to the boat house, where they rented a boat for two. The boat house slip issued on the evening of Aug. 10 records the name of Valmore C. Nichols." The boat was rented for one hour, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. The writing on the ticket has been compared with some of the handwriting of Ascher, and while there is a marked similarity it cannot be said that they exactly resemble each other.

When the couple got into the boat, No. 6, they must have rowed out into the river at once. They could not possibly have reached the spot where the murdered man's body was found until after 8 o'clock. At this time it was reasonably dark, so that persons on the bridge and those on shore, looking from a light to a dark spot, would have hardly been able to discern the movements of the men in the boat.

From all accounts Nichols had been drugged on previous occasions. If the hitching posts on Main st. it is found crime he would undoubtedly have pre-Detroit Boat club before the body was took place. Then it would have been an easy matter for the murderer to have struck Nichols over the head with an oar, felled him to the bottom of the boat, bound his legs with the copper wire, and cast him into the deep water, with the heavy stones attached to his

But to wield an oar in a boat with such effect would be a difficult and dangerous task, and, besides, the leverage would be so great as to give the blow force enough to crack the skull of the victim. Along the north shore of the island not seen Nichols for a week. Later, there are several wagon loads of such stones. If Nichols was drugged before been possible for the murderer to bring the stones along for the purpose. If, however, the struggle took place while Nichols was in his proper senses, it is obliged to row the unconscious body back to shore, gather the stones and then row back to deep water. It is hardly probable that the body was cast into the river near the spot where it was found. The weight of the stones, although great, would not prevent the body from floating toward shore with a strong breeze from the north.

After having cast his victim into the water the idea is that the man rowed back and left his boat at the boat house. It is not known positively that only one man returned in the boat, but should this have been the case no notice would have been taken of it because parties often rent the boats and allow one man to return them.

The trouble with Main st. has been that there have been too few posts on the street in the last few years and the business on the side streets have been getting the benefit. Take a lively Saturday, for example, in this city and see where the teams are, and you will also find a good many people very close to their teams. This place has not got to the point where it can afford o drive or request people with teams to move on the side streets. Main st. would look very good with a row of hitching posts on both sides of the street, all posts alike and any number of them-can't get too many. It would be a long time before you would want them removed when you find you can accommodate most of the teams that come into the city, except on the most ternally. A sandbag could be used with effect, but if there was only the slight contusion that the doctors contend there was, then, in all probability, the man was drugged and, in hauling him Now that we are having these beau-

Farmers' Institute Report.

We are in receipt, from the Superintendent of Farmers' Institutes of Institute bulletin No. 4, being a report of the Farmers' Institute work in this and was nearing completion, State during the past season. The volume is a book of about 275 pages, containing a very complete report of the Institute work of the State in all its various phases; a complete report of the State Round up Farmers' Institute, which was held at the Agricultural College last February; and also a large number of local addresses delivered at county institutes. A very nice engarving of Hon. Chas. W. Garfield of the Board of Agriculture, adorns the book.

The report indicates that last winter's work was very successful, indeed. There were held 67 County Institutes, meetings of two days or more, and 84 one day Institutes. The total attendance of all sessions at all Institutes held in the State during the year was 118,692. The number of members of Institute societies was 7,080. The average attendance per session, of County Institutes, was 211; of one day Institutes, 152. Of the total attendance at all Institutes, 31,559 were reached by one-day Institutes; the remainder, 87, 133, by the County Institutes. The Women's Sections, of which there were 58, were attended by 8,705 women. The local expense of all Institute work done in the state last year, as reported to the Superintendent, was $1,464.66.

Every paid-up member of our County Institutes Society is entitled to one of these bulletins, and they will be distributed through the Secretary of that society, Mr. Henry Stumpenhusen, Ransonville, Mich.

EIGHT PERISH IN A TUNNEL.

Sudden Cave-In Causes Loss of Many Lives.

Workmen Tearing Out a Tunnel on the Pan-Handle Railroad Are the Victims -Seven Dead Bodies Taken from the Debris by Their Comrades.

Pittsburg, Aug. 24.—Eight men were killed, possibly ten, and five more injured, two fatally, at the Carnegie tunnel on the Chartiers division of the accident was due to the wall of the tunnel caving in on the number of workmen. The dead are:

JOHN JONES, foreman, married and lived at Ashton, Va.

FELIX MILLS, laborer, married,

SIX UNKNOWN, all foreigners. Five men were injured. One of these, West Penn hospital in a dying condi-

The men were part of a gang of 68 employes of Casper Paris, a contractor from Columbus, Ohio.

They were engaged in tearing out the tunnel on the Chartiers Valley branch of the Pan Handle railroad, just west of the town of Carnegie.

The work is being done entirely at night, in order not to interfere with traffic during the day. It has progressed for about a month without accident

Last night the gang of workmen were engaged in loading the train, used in hauling out the dirt from the tunnel. A blast had been set off about an hour before.

The men were preparing to pull down the west wall of the tunnel, had fixed a rope for this purpose and were preparing to drill some holes in it for blasting. Suddenly the wall fell over on them.

Every man standing at the end of the big excavation was buried alive.

Without an instant's hesitation the other workmen at once began the work of rescue.

Felix Mills was one of the first taken out. He was still living and was sent to his home in Glendale. He died about three hours later.

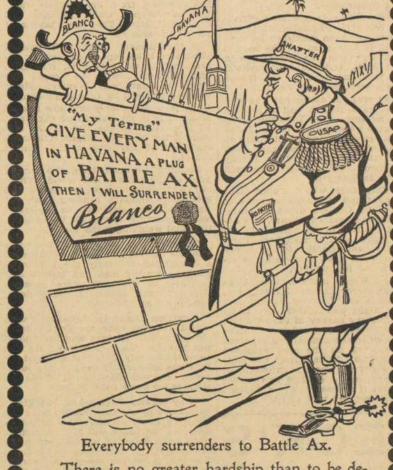

An unknown colored man was next reached. A special train brought him to the West Pennsylvania hospital at once, but it is not thought he will live. The bodies were recovered rapidly after that.

Seven of the men were taken out dead. The others are yet unaccounted for, and are supposed to be under a great pile of rock at the eastern end of the tunnel.

Most of the men employed on the work are Italians. They go by numbers instead of names, and nothing is known of their family relations. Their fellow workmen were too busy seeking for more dead to identify any of the bodies.

The dead were taken to the Carnegie morgue and prepared for burial.

BEING PUNCTURED.

The Alibi of Ascher, Alias Lang. is Being Much Disputed.

Detectives are still investigating the story of Ed Ascher, alias Lang, the spiritualist who had some dealings with Valmore C. Nichols, to find out how true it is. So far it has been punctured in several places as to where he spent the evening on which Nichols lost his life. In many instances Ascher is a self-confessed liar, and the police are confident that he knows more about Nichols' movements than he is telling.

Ascher states that after eating supper on the evening of Aug. 10 he returned to his room at 124 Lafayette ave. and remained there until 10:15. Mrs. Schultz, who keeps the house where Ascher roomed, says she and her daughter were sitting out on the porch all the evening and Ascher did not return.

Louis Ascher, a brother, says Ed called him up a few minutes before 8 o'clock on the night of the murder. Ed says he was in his room all the time. The Schultz's have no telephone.

Edwin F. Hulbert, of the United States weather bureau, saw Nichols and his companion at Belle Isle on the night of Aug. 10. He positively identified Nichols. Hulbert was taken to Ascher's cell and said that he resembled Nichols' companion only the latter had on a brown suit the night of the mur-der, whereas Ascher has on a blue suit now. Later Capt. McDonnell asked Ascher if he wore the blue suit on the night in question. Ascher said he did not. He wore a brown suit that night, he said, and the suit was soon in pos-session of the officers. It was placed on the prisoner and once more Hul-bert looked at him. This time he said Ascher resembled the man more than ever, but his identification was by no means positive.

Murder Will Out.

The tragic death of the Pittsfield farmer whose body was found floating in the river near Belle Isle Thursday afternoon bids fair to afford a fresh instance of that subtle, intangible force which lays bare the plots of human diabolism. The murderers of Valmore C. Nichols exercised the usual criminal cunning. They evidently had made careful calculations, and when the time came to carry them into effect everything must have seemed to them to work exactly as they could have wished, and as they rowed back to the boat house after sinking the body of their victim in the river, they must have congratulated themselves that the evidences of their crime were perfectly concealed and that fortune had smiled upon their nefarious adventure.

But they had not counted upon the fallibility of human judgment. Having taken the precaution to weigh down the body of the murdered man with heavy stones, they had neglected to sink it in deep water. As is usually the case their judgment failed them in one particular, and that failure disclosed the fact that a crime had been committed. The breaking of one link in the chain of the conspiracy brought to light a shocking crime, and it will be surprising if the whole truth does not eventually become known as a sequel. In apparent contradiction of the theory that murder will out is the Dearborn case, the mystery of which has thus far baffled all efforts to solve. But sooner or later the murderer of Mary Mehl as well as of the Pittsfield farmer will be brought to justice, un-less indeed these cases prove to be among the rare ones when criminal cunning proves equal to its devilish purposes.—Detroit Free Press.

MORE "MOORES" THAN EVER.

A Reunion of the Family Held on the Lawn of Mr and Mrs. Eli Moore.

Yesterday occurred the reunion of the living descendants of Andrew Moore, who came to this county from Scotland in 1512. The printed geneology of the family, starting with Andrew Moore, fills two large volumes, and his descendants are scattered all over the United States. A number of years ago they formed the Andrew Moore association, with the intention of assembling once a year in different places. The present occasion makes the third time when it has been held in Michigan. Mrs. Eli Mcore, of the North Side (Mrs. Moore's maiden name was Moore), is one of the descendants, and last year she invited the association to come here in 1898 as her guests. Out of the entire family there were 109 who responded, and Ann Arbor today contains more Moores than ever before. They come from the East as far as Pennsylvania and from the West as far as Arkansas. Many of the family are Quakers, and among the guests were noticeable the queer bonnets, the broad hats and the plain wearing apparel of the sect.

Tables were set at noon on the beau-tiful lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Moore and a sumptuous dinner was served. was a very delightful reunion.
