WASHTENAW POMOLOGY.

Scheme for the Establishment of a Fruit Preserving Factory at Ann Arbor-The Aeme Evaporator-Com-mittee on Trespass, etc. Report on the Influence of the Weather on the Peach Buds.

The January meeting of the Washtenaw pomological society, with Austin J. Scott in the chair, was largely attended. George Aprill went through a catechism of questions, put by J. D. Baldwin, in regard to the results of his manufacture of jelly in Scio. Mr. Aprill stated that last autumn was a very faverable season for his business, as he could buy apples at 10 cents per bushel, and as apples did not keep and pay for shipping, many tarmers turned their apples into cider and jelly.

He failed to find a market for his jelly in Detroit and Toledo, as in cheapness his jellies could not compete with the imitations sold for jelly. He found, however, a home market for his jelly.

Frank Allmendinger: "Detroit and Toledo are in the fruit and wheat belt, We never think of sending any flour to these places. Fruit preserves must be sent beyond these fruit centers."

The president called on Mr. Almendinger who read an interesting paper on the feasibility of erecting a fruit preserving establishment in Ann Arbor. In regard to the probabilities of such a factory four questions were answered by Mr. A's paper. 1st. Will any sort of a fruit-preserving establishment pay in Ann Arbor? 2nd. What should its equipment embrace? 3rd. What investment will be necessary? And 4th. What returns may be ex-

In answer to the first inquiry, it must be said that a complete answer cannot be given until a trial has been had. How ever if jelly making pays at Dexter why not at Ann Arbor? If evaporating has given satisfactory returns the past year at South Lyon, at Manchester and Chelsea, why should a similar result not be attainawhy should a similar result not be attainable here? The only resource of these points is apples. You have apples, small fruits, peaches. You could run similar concerns a much longer period of time each year. Most of you have many hundreds of dollars invested in fruit-trees or dreds of dollars invested in fruit-trees or shrubs. Sometimes a great waste of peaches has occurred for lack of means for caring for second grade fruit. Said one fruit grower a few days ago: "My shipments of berries netted me only seven shillings per bushel last spring and it was not much of a spring for fruit, either." Some season we shall have the abundant yield which occasionally comes. What will his berries be worth then? The same is true of peaches. Could not most of you afford to invest something as a means of caring for this occasional heavy yield regarding it as a part of the order. garding it as a part of the cutlay necessarily connected with your business?

Would not such an investment pay a good return to you in saving fruit which would otherwise decay in your orchards or berry patches?

2nd question: What should be the equipment? The beginning should be a modest one. There is room for growth. In one year's time you can educate a dozen or more hands for your work and then if the time comes for enlargement, the proper person for a manager will probably have been found on the ground and the imported article will prove unnecessary. I have sat in this room and heard talk of an establishment like the one at Adrian which cost $25,000 or $30,000. I have here seen a man cooly propose to come to Ann Arbor and manage such an institu tion for you, who, on questioning, frankly confessed he had no experience whatever. With a small start, it can also be ascertained by experience what branches of the work to push hardest. The plan I propose is as follows: Commence with jelly making and evaporating combined. The waste from the evaporating could all be used in jelly making. In the evaporator could be cured your bearing. could be cured your berries, peaches and apples. Or you could make jelly of the same. A series of experiments can be carried on with reference to preserving fruits, to drying squash and pumpkins, and to canning corn, peas, beans, etc. If the venture, as you have commenced it, shows fair returns, capital will be available to enlarge the industry to any approved extent Question 3rd. What will it cost?

Buildings. $1000

Fruit-dryer.... Parers... Boiler and Engine.... Cider press..... Grater, etc..... Evaporator.... Total..... $3515

To this must be added an amount for ground which will vary for the locality. $4000 capital can be made to start you in good shape. $5000 will put you in almost any location in Ann Arbor and leave you several hundred dollars for running. company with $5000 capital means 100 shares of stock at $50 each.

Question 4th. Will it pay? Incidentally this has been treated already. We may add that the day of great speculative returns from this business have passed. It is now in this business as in all others, a question of the survival of the fittest. If you have as good a chance as Dexter, Manchester, Chelsea and the rest with an improved equipment, you should succeed. The return will then be a fair interest on the capital invested and to members of this society, whatever advantage comes from ability to save fruit at times which would otherwise waste, etc.

to the committee that has this scheme under consideration.

The thanks of the society were tendered to Mr. Allmendinger for his able paper. After a discussion of the same it appeared that the first outlay would be less, as both room and steam might be rented.

H. D. Marsh, general agent of the Acme evaporator, was introduced. He gave an account of the evaporator No. 4, capacity 750 to 1,000 lbs. in twenty-four hours, price $800. Steam is used for evaporation in this machine. It gives more lbs. per bushel than any other evaporator and the product it turns out need not be the product it turns out need not be culled. The evaporator is not apt to burn up as steam is employed. Mr. Marsh ex-hibited fine specimens of evaporated ap-ples, stating, however, that only white meated apples would produce such white dried fruit, yellow meated apples would

J. D. Baldwin stated that evaporated apples were worth in New York 12 and 13 cents per lb., and all kinds of dried fruit had advanced.

Mr. Marsh stated that his company was mr. Marsh stated that his company was holding on to their dried apples as a still greater advance was expected on account of the scarcity of green apples, and that the foreign demand for American evapo rated fruit was increasing.

E. Baur related his trouble with a neighbor, who generally trespasses on Sunday. J. Ganzhorn spoke of the re-luctance of the prosecuting attorney to prosecute fruit thieves, when he brought clear cases of trespass before him. Wm. McCreery stated that he had succeeded with the prosecuting attorney to get war-rants for fruit thieves. One had settled his case and the other was still in the hands of an officer. Judge Page and E. Baur were appointed a committee to prepare a petition to the legislature, representing, that stealing from a garden, orchard or cultivated field ought to be punished and branded in a similar manner as stealing from a house, shop or store, and that fruit growers should be deputized to make arrests on their premises, said committee to report at the next meeting of the society.

Those who had examined fruit buds reported that so far the cold had done no harm to peach buds.

The corresponding secretary was instructed to correspond with a Montreal firm in regard to infusorial earth for the preservation of fruit.

Mr. Clough, chairman of the committee on fruit preserving factory, announced a meeting of the committee next Saturday afternoon at 2 P. M. in the rooms of the

OUR LANSING LETTER.

The agony is over; the much-vexed question is settled, and Frank B. Stock bridge, of Kalamazoo, is the gentleman who will take Senator Conger's place in the U. S. senate when that old war-horse retires next March, as there is no doubt the action of the causus will be confirmed on the 18th inst.

Frank B. Stockbridge was born at Bath, Me., and is in his 61st year. In 1847 he came west and embarked in the lumber business in Chicago. He afterwards bought and operated extensive mills at Saugatuck, Mich., residing there until 1864. In 1869 he represented the second Allegan district in the state legislature, and in 1871 was chosen to represent his county in the state senate. In 1874 he removed to Kalamazoo. In 1876 he was appointed U. S. minister to the Hague, but did not accept on account of his wife's health. Since that time he has held no office, giving his attention to his varied business interests. He has always been a strong republican, ever ready and liberal when an emergency arose requiring pecuniary or other aid. The colonel is unmensely wealthy and has one of the finest residences in Kalamazoo. He is a man of the people, easily approached, and popular with all who know

Undoubtedly the success of Col. Stockbridg's candidacy is largely due to the indefatigable efforts of S. S. Olds and Wm. Van Buren, of this city, who are undisputably hustlers of the first order. They had able lieutenants in Robt Smith, of the Ithaca Journal, Will Smith, of Grand Rapids, and "Jim" Monroe, of Kalama-

No one on earth could have done more to push forward the candidacy of Senator Conger than did Gen. Wm. Hartsuff, of Port Huron. What the general don't know about political manipulation ain't worth bothering about. He has held of-fice and pulled wires for the past 20 years, and it is safe to say he has seldom pulled the wrong wire or pulled at the wrong time. It was he who, in the contest of political giants, welded the straggling Congerites into a solid phalnax, and though he was out-numbered he was not out generaled. It did seem to the casual observer that about all the "solid men" of the seventh congressional district had struck Lansing and were doing their level best for Mr. Conger, but I am persuaded that it was Gen. Hartsuff, cool, calculating schemer that he is, whose masterly leader-ship brought the defeated veterau so near re-election.

Senator Jay A. Hubbell is quite a fellow, and manages to make himself seen and heard at a public gathering if he is any-where within a block of the vicinity. He is one of those semi-omnipresent individuals who, on an occasion like the late republican senatorial caucus, somehow seems to divide himself into a variety of chunks of political keenness and thus present himself in a number of places almost simultaneously. During the caucus he attracted attention by skipping about, nimble as the feline species, with an unlighted eigar be-tween his teeth, in which position the weed still remained when your correspondant retired as though firmly secured in its place by an application of Spalding's prepared glue.

Daniel P. Markey, of Ogemaw, speaker of the house of representatives, is quite a young man yet, being but 29 years of age, and is probably the youngest man ever called to that responsible position. He is an Ingham county boy, having first sampled paregoric in the township bearing the historical name of Bunkerhill. He is bright and active and a thorough parliamentarian, and his friends declare he will not stop till he has achieved still greater honor and distinction than his recent victory gives him. If Representative Rumsey did not se-cure the speakership he don't propose to let his defeat impair his usefulness on the floor of the house. He will introduce a bill to make the selling of Bohemian oats and "sich" a state prison offence, and if the bill should become a law many an honest though gullible farmer will have occasion to rise up and call him blessed. The executive board of the knights of labor held a prolonged session in this city last Thursday, at the Commercial house, the purpose being the mapping out of plans for the guidance of the K. of L. members of the legislature, and the appointment of a committee to remain in the city during the session and keep a weather eye upon any and all legislation bearing labor interests. After discussing the whole question thoroughly it was decided that no such action should be taken, but that members should be trusted to do their duty faithfully in all matters affecting labor interests. Every reasonable, right thinking man will concede that labor has rights which legislatures are bound to respect, and every justice loving citizen will be pleased to know that the laborer—who is the bulwark of national prosperity and progress—is being fairly dealt with. But should such watchfulness develop into a species of espionage it would not be astonishing should some members evince a spirit of resentment. Notwithstanding this is a day when "bossism" flourishes like the green bay tree planted by the river side, there may be members possessed of a sufficiently recalcitrant disposition to offer actual objection to anything savoring of dictation. There are cases on record where men have kicked vigorously against irritation of this very nature; and, therefore, the knights and all other organizations having in view such measures will do well to make haste slowly.

Senator Babcock, of Sanilac, proposes to push his prohibitory constitutional amendment through both houses at the most rapid rate such things can possibly attain, and expects it will take about ten days to do the work. If he fails in this he will introduce a square toed prohibi-tory law, which may be passed by a ma-jority simply instead of a two-thirds vote. Maybe the senator will succeed and maybe he won't; but in the meantime he intends to "hump himself."

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

Washington is covered with a mid-winter mantle of white now, but the gay world of fashion is in motion once more, and up at the capitol you hear much about tariff reduction plans and an extra session. The president has become alarmed at the condition of affairs in his party in con gress, and realizes the necessity of doing something as soon as possible. It is said Senator Vest and Hon. S. S. Cox will be his mouthpieces in each end of the capitol to get the tariff question again up for discassion. If they fail, the president threatens to call an extra session of the fiftieth congress upon the expiration of this, hoping that it may carry out his wishes. Representatives Mills, of Texas, and Cox, of New York, will be the rival candidates for the chairmanship of the ways and means committee in the fiftieth congress and the result will indicate whether it is the disposition of the party to adopt a bold and aggressive tariff policy or one more conciliatory. As to the republicans and tariff reform, for the remainder of this session, their members of the ways and means committee have decided to adopt as a platform a revenue bill which favor a reduction of internal revenue and an adjustment of tariff.

Attorney General Garland, who had not been in the senate chamber since the Pan Electric investigation, attended the Logan funeral in company with the other mem-bers of the cabinet. It is claimed that Mr. Garland is not harassed by the criticisms upon him which appear in print, for the reason that he knows nothing about them. He does not read the newspapers, and is consequently ignorant of what is said and thought in the world.

Public Printer Benedict, who has made himself notorious by the wholesale discharge of government clerks, will soon be tried in the furnace to see if he himself is not wanting. Representative Farquhar, on the part of the printers' union of New York, is conducting the fight against his confirmation in the senate. Opposition to him is based upon the grounds that he is not a practical printer, which the law stipulates a public printer shall be. Mr. Far-quhar argued that unless Mr. Benedict could earn the average wages in a composing room he could not be considered a practical printer. This he said, would be rating a practical printer very low.

A few days ago Senator Mitchell, of Pennsylvania, asked the senate to pass a bill giving a pension of $2,000 a year to the widow of Senator Logan. The bill failed then through the interference of Senator Coke, of Texas, but yesterday it was brought to a vote and passed. The sum fixed is the same amount as that given to the widows of Gen. Hancock and

It is probable that a new Inauguration day will be determined upon by congress. Last June the senate voted to extend the president's term of office to the last Tuesday in April, and also to substitute the last Tuesday in April for the fourth of March as the commencement and termi-nation of the official terms of vice presidents, senators and representatives. Some of the reasons given for this change were that the first president was inaugurated on the 30th of April, that it would be a fitting celebration of George Washington's inauguration to inaugurate the president in 1889 upon the same day, and that the fourth of March as the day for in new government unduly curtails the secession of every congress.

In the house of representatives this resolution passed by the senate, came in contact with the so called Crain resolution. This proposed that the constitution be so amended that the term of the fiftieth congress shall end on Dec. 31 at noon; that the fifty-first congress shall meet immediately thereafter, and that the meeting day of each succeeding congress shall be the second Tuesday in January. Mr. Crain's plan would bring the fifty-first congress together about two months after the members had been elected, instead of thirteen months, as is now the ease, It shortens the term of the next congress two months, but it affords all future congresses an opportunity for sessions of twelve months if desirable. The senate proposition adds one month to the second session of each session. The house judiciary committee is now considering both of these plans and it is thought they will report a resolution containing the best points in both.

General Sherman was non-committal when asked about an alleged correspondence between himself and Mr. Blaine in which the latter offered to personally sup port Gen. Sherman for the presidential nomination in 1884. "If any such letter exist," suggested the old soldier, "it will be time to publish them after Mr. Blaine and I have passed away." Just before the general was retired, he was heard to say one day at the war department, that he had no political ambition. "I have had enough to satisfy a soldier's ambition, added he, "why should I endanger the record I have made by an attempt to get the presidency?"

LITERARY NOTES.

The February Century will contain an article by George Parsons Lathrop on "The Bailing of Jefferson Davis." It presents for the first time the complete and curious history of his influences and occurrences which led to Davis's liberation and the abandonment of his prosecution, show ing how extreme Abolitionists like Greeley and Gerrit Smith cooperated with extreme Democrats in bringing about this result. The material for this article is mainly derived from the recollections and mentary evidence of Ex-Chief Justice Shea, of the Marine Court, who was the attorney of record in the Davis case, with Charles O'Conor as senior council. A facsimile of the power of attorney given to George Shea by Greeley, Gerrit Smith, and Cornelius Vanderbilt to sign the bailbond accompanies this paper.

The unprecedented sale of Boschee's German Syrup within a few years, has astonished the world. It is without doubt the safest and best remedy ever discovered for the speedy and effectual cure of Coughs, Colds and the severest Lung troubles. It acts on an entirely different principle from usual precriptions given by Physicians, as it does not dry up a Cough and leave the disease still in the system, but on the contrary removes the cause of the trouble, heals the parts effected and leaves them in a purely healthy condition. A bottle kept in the house for use when the diseases make heir appearance will save doctor's bills and a long spell of serious illness. A trial will convince you of these facts. It is positively sold by all druggists and general dealers in the land. Price, 75 cts., large

—J. J. Britton in London Spectator. WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Even the Sound is of Consequence-Some Names Fatal to Success.

Life with a good number is a struggle at the best, and the success that attends us is influenced more than people sometimes think by the name we bear. Even the sound of a name is of consequence. "Harsh names," says Isaac Disraeli, "will have, in spite of all our philosophy, a painful and ludicrous vexatious that the softness of delicious vowe or the ruggedness of inexorable consonan should at all be connected with a man's happiness or even have an influence on his fort

Some names, indeed, are almost fatal to success; they simply suggest jokes and en-courage familiarity. A man has no hesita-tion in proving "by thumps upon your back how he esteems your merit" if you are called Twigger, or Tapp, or Trundle, or Littleboy, but he would hardly venture on it were you a more aristocratic Montgomery, or a Gasoigne. For a man to inherit an absurd or insignificant name is to have a stone tied round his neck in childhood to keep all his life in the depths of obscurity. It would be difficult to find a famous character in literature, art or anything else with a surname at least approaching in character to say, Tooth-aches, or Bang, or Baby. Who could fancy a Squib or a Gabble visited at any time by the inspirations of genius? John Wilkes expressed this idea once in conversation with Dr. Johnson. They were speaking of Elkenah Settle, the last of the city poets. 'There is something in names, " said Wilkes, "which one cannot help feeling. Now Elkonah Settle sounds queer; who can ex-pect much from that name? We should have no hesitation to give it for John Dryden in preference to Elkenah Settle from the names only, without knowing their different merits."

Considerations such as these, not to speak of testamentary injunctions and conditions attached to deeds of entail, have induced people from time to time to change their names. The world being as it is, and man's instinct leading him to fasten on and worry the ridiculous, it is often a sensible proceeding. Cuthbert is made to take the place of Cuddy; McAlpine of Halfpenny; Belcome of Bullock; De Winton of Wilkins, and Ephraim Bug is transformed into the aristocratic Howard.—Leisure Hour.

One of the Cruel Events. Thomas W. Knox, of the New York Herald, did not accompany the movements against Forts Henry and Donelson. He accompanied Gen. Curtis in his chase after Price from Springfield, Mo., into Arkansas, where in due season, after much marching, skirmishing, countermarching, maneuvering, advancing and retreating, there occurred the bloody, long contested and de-cisive battle of Pea Ridge. There were but two correspondents with the Federal army-Knox and Fayal, of The St. Louis Democrat. These two followed the Federal columns for several weeks; they underwent extraordinary hardships, they witnessed the final battle and then started for St. Louis, writing their let-ters as they traveled. They had to travel on horseback for a distance of nearly or quite 200 miles before reaching the railway at Rolla. The two correspondents, knowing that they were the only newspaper representatives in the field, were reasonably happy. Being from widely separated towns, there was no rivalry between them, and they strengthened each other's letters by a free interchange of facts, so that their accounts were probably as near perfect as a product of the kind could be Filled with satisfaction at the certainty of having the only accounts and of being the first to give the record of the march and battles to the public, they reached St. Louis, and found a New York Tribune that had arrived the same morning and which contained a full page account of the battle of Pea Ridge! Fancy the situation of these two men who had traveled hundreds of miles, had suffered all possible hardships, had witnessed the battle, and who knew that no other correspondent had been on the ground! It was the most cruel event of the war, so far as it related to the experiences of the correspondents.—"Polinto" in Chicago Times.

Complexions of Cincinnati Women Cincinnati women have perfect complexness a clubman there said: "It may be that our proximity to Kentucky has something to do with the matter. You see, Covington is only across the river, and we are able to import handsome women without any trouble. But Ohio is not indebted to Kentucky alone for the beauty of her women. She is the oldest of what were once termed 'the new western states.' Some of the best and bluest of New England blood came here in early days. This has been improved from year to year until you see the result before you."

It is certainly wonderful how Cincinnati women can keep or preserve such clear and brilliant complexions in such a city. The rolling mills and factories so fill the air with black smoke that even the sun is obscured. The soot from the soft coal smoke finds its way into the houses through every open window and door. The waiter at your hotel covers up the mouth of your bottle in order to keep out this all pervading soot. Ladies when out upon the street, or even at home are obliged to exercise great care to avoid touching their faces with their hands handkerchiefs. The presence of a big black smootelt on a woman's face is the commonest kind of sight, but is not conducive to personal beauty.-New York World.

A Clean Newspaper. Occasionally, when we discover a journal that has too much self respect to cater to the vicious tastes of readers, we are almost sure to find another proof of the axiom that "the good die young." That a paper can be too clean I have no doubt now, though there was a time when I thought differently. In the innocence of youth I once edited a paper, the columns of which were never besmirched by an item that would displease the most prudish and fastidious taste. Even now, with more years of experience, I will not admit that it was a dry paper, for I know that it was extensively read, widely quoted and often praised. It had a good circulation among the best people, but to our requests for advertisements the local merchants said: "Your paper is too decent; it circulates only among the most intelligent people and they are not the ones we are fishing for. Don't be so high toned—make your paper to suit the masses, the riff-raff—everybody—and you'll make money."

I heeded not the merchant's advice, and that paper is now in heaven. - William Reginald Ream in The Journalist.

PERISHED AT SEA.

A German Vessel Wrecked off the Coast off Virginia.

All on Board, Twenty Persons in Number, Lost-A Crew of Five Life-Savers Drowned in an Attempt at Rescue.

HEROES MEET DEATH. Norfolk, Va., Jan. 10.—The German ship Elizabeth, from Hamburg for Baltimore, went ashore Saturday morning on the Virginia beach fourteen miles south of Cape Henry, and every man on board, numbering twenty, together with five members of the life-saving crew, Station No. 4, which attempted to rescue the mariners, were drowned. The names of those of the vessel's crew are unknown. The five heroes who sacrificed their lives in endeavoring to save others are as follows:

J. A. BELANZA, J. W. LAND,

GEORGE W. STONE, JOSEPH SPRALLBY. A terrible storm was raging at the time of the disaster and the morning was bitter and cold. The wreck was discovered by the patrolmen of station No. 4 and Dam Neck, who fired rockets and gave the alarm. The life-saving crews ran imme-diately to the scene and fired six lines with-and under the command of Captain Bel-anza started for the wreck. The vessel was safely reached and four of the ship's crew were taken into the life-boat A ship's boat was launched and the rest of the ship's crew entered it. Both boats made good headway through the boiling surf until suddenly a wave of great force struck and capsized them. Then began a desperate struggle for life, and with many of the men it was a prolonged one. The horrifled life-savers on the beach were powerless to assist their drowning comrades or the unfortu-nate strangers. The drowning men were carried southward by the seas, and some of them were WASHED ASHORE. As they came within reach they were picked up, and endeavors were made to revive them. Two of the life-saving crew—John Etheridge and Frank Thetford, of station No. 4-alone reached shore alive. They were un conscious when picked up and only recovered their senses yesterday.

Etheridge is badly hurt.
The bodies of the five men of the life-saying crew and four of the snip's crew were recovered Saturday. They were in lifepreservers.

Not a word of conversation passed between the ship's crew and the life-say-ing men when the latter boarded the vessel in their desperate attempt at rescue, and the cause of the wreck can never be positively known, although it is supposed that in attempting to make the capes of Virginia under reefed sails sufficient allow-ance was not made for the strong currents, which have caused several disastrous wrecks along the lower Virginia and North Carolina coast during the last few years.

He served in Congress as Representative of the Twenty-seventh Pennsylvania district during the seventh Pennsylvania district during the war, and was a warm personal friend of Lincoln. He continued practicing at the bar until a few months since, when he was confined to his house. It was invariably the custom of the members of the bar to rise as he entered the court-room. He leaves seven children.

Mashington, Jan. 11.—The weather last night was bitter cold. Ice has formed to a thickness of from four to five inches, and large quantities of it is being harvest-ed. The river is tightly frozen, and navigation to the city by water is stopped. It is feared that the extremely cold weather has killed large quantities of game of all kinds in the adjoining counties. There has been more snow and ice during the last month or two than has been known so early in the season for many years. There is a great deal of suffering among the poor, and the City Council has made a special appropriation for the purchase of fuel for them.

THE COAL SUPPLY.

A Limited Amount on Hand at the Seaboard - The Fight Between the Coal Companies and the Knights of Labor.

New York, Jan. 11. - The Sun says: There is about 250,000 tons of coal now on the seabord at Amboy, in the Central dock, at Elizabethport, at Bergen Point, and at Weehawken. This is distributed about as 75,000 tons at Weehawken, 100,000 tons at Hoboken and 50,000 at other points. This is nearly all hard coal. This is about week's supply for this city and surroundings. Conferences were held between several of the coal companies and the Arbitra-tion Committee of the Knights of Labor on Saturday, but no understanding could be reached. There will be fun in the camp within a day or two if the companies do not yield. No effort will be made to prevent by force the employment of new men on the coal docks. The Knights will meet a fight of this kind by stopping the supplies of coal both from the Cumberland valley and Pennsylvania coal fields. If they can do this by calling out the miners or the railroad brakemen, New York and all the New England coast will be out of coal in ten days. If the strikers are able to call out the miners, the operators must yield. Their contracts will pinch them and they will squeal if they can not stop the supply from the mines, the strike will fail, but unless the companies yield the strike will last at least another week. Should the miners in the Cumberland valley and the Pennsylvania coal fields be called out it would force idleness upon upwards of 150,000 men."

New York, Jan. 11.—There is yet no sign of a settlement of the trouble between the Jersey coal companies and their 2,000 em-ployes. Numbers of train hands have been the fact that the tracks at the Jersey end of the lines are already crowded with ischarged. An advance of twenty-five cents per ton was made yesterday by all retail coal dealers in this city, which makes a total increase of seventy-five cents per ton since last Friday morning.

REPRESENTATIVE Rumsey, of Leslie, who came within three votes of the speakership of the house, will introduce a bill to make the selling of Bohemian oats a States prison offence. If there is a member of the legislature who will not vote for such a measure he ought to be relegated to the shades of oblivion mighty quick.

An organization known as the Michigan Sickness and Accident insurance company has been started at St. Louis, and Rev. Theodore Nelson, late superintendent of Public Instruction, is one of the directors. If there isn't trouble shead for the managers of that conglomeration it will be because of lack of membership. Niretenths of the race need no more encouragement to be sick than they already have. How much more sensible to give a premium for keeping in good health and being of some benefit to the world.

Muskegon Chronicle: Grant and Logan both requested, before they died, that they should not be buried at any place where their wives could not be buried beside them. There is a lesson in this, and it proves once again that the brave are always tender hearted. Some people think that a warrior is rough, cares only for camp and field, and very little for women and children; yet history all the way through proves the falseness of this shallow view and sternly rebukes it. The love of these courageous and lionhearted men is worth more for a moment than that of the average lisping dude is for an age. With them devotion is a part of the strong character which distinguishes them, and they are true to the woman they love as to the land which they defend and serve. One year as the wife of such a man is better than an eternity of dawdling, spindle-headed, fawning fops.

JUDGE JOSLYN, at Owosso, last week, in sentencing young Hadden for killing his father, in substance said: "I have studied the whole history of your life, and find that you have always been int mperate and often intoxicated, and that you were intoxicated when the crime was committed, and because of your worthlessness, on account if your habits, I have been urged to give you the full extent of the law But I cannot help recognizing the fact that the people are not without fault in this matter, since in every little town in the state they have legalized one or more saloons, and in the largest cities thousands of them, to make just such criminals. Therefore, I have concluded to sentence you to twenty-five years in prison, leaving the people to stand the remainder or larger portion of the full penalty." It seems our worthy judge is something of a prohibitionist, and we are glad of it. It would be well for the world if the sentiment expressed in his remarks were universally accepted and practiced.

"Jupoz not lest you be judged" is hard advice to follow. At the rate of progress made in the past, it may be possible that in about six thousand years more the world will begin to see itself enjoying a practical application of this much to be desired condition of things. What a glorious thing it would be if the north and south would shake hands in good fellowship, let the past become a blank in their memory, and work together as one community for the prosperity of the whole! We are all willing to acknowledge that the north has given a great deal of advice to the south; they certainly ought to be willing to take a little in return, and perhaps this from the Nashville American is fully deserved: "While we are listening to so much rant and cant about the "new south" by all means let us have a new north. What this country really needs is a new north-a north that will have less of Puritanibigotry, intolerance, arrogance and less of the Puritan disposition to depreciate others and boasts its own virtues. If the people of the north could be conwinced that they are really no better than some other people whom God has made, and they have some very serious imperfections of their own that need mending; if they could be persuaded to stop monkeying with the mote in their brother's eye and give some little attention to the beam that is in their own, we should come to a better understanding and have a better feeling all around."

An Explanation.

It has come to me, directly and indirectly, that Mrs. May Biddlecomb D'Ange, in 'Mignonnette" was intended to personify the typical American woman: It scarcely seems necessary to state that the contrary was actually simed at. It may be remembered that Robert says, when speaking of American girls in general "The French girl is vivacious, the German sentimental, the Italian passionate, the Spanish roman tic, the English queenly; but blend together the English queenlness, the Spanish romance, the Italian passion, the German sentiment, the French vivacity; add beauty, grace, wit; then spice the mixture with a dash of irrepressible independence,-and then you have that most charming creature, the peerless American girl." Again, speaking of his wife, Robert says to Mignonne: "To tell the truth my American friends at Lucerne would have absolutely nothing to do with her." And again, when Professor Melchior speaks of May to the Countess, he says: "If you will pardon me, Madame, I look at her with the eye of a scientist. You have perhaps read in our French works and dramas descriptions of the received." pernaps read in our French works and dramas descriptions of the so-called 'American type of woman.' For years, Madame, I have been seeking for this creature with all the avidity of an entomologist on the back of a rare bug. In my travels I have met hundreds of American women of every degree of culture and intelligence, and I am con-vinced that in Mrs. Robert D'Ange, I have found the only living specimen of the great "American type" of woman as portrayed in French literature." And again: Countess: "And this

Bowery, where her parents reside, what is that?" Prof. Melchior: "That, I take it Madame, is their ancestral Chateau.'

In conclusion, the villain in an American drama is always a French count. In "Mignonnette" the wicked character, Mrs. May Biddlecomb D'Ange, is almost an angel, comparatively speaking, but, of course, not as angelic as true American women are. ALFRED HENNEQUIN.

The Silver King,

On next Monday night, the 17 inst., will be presented, by the King Hedley and Harrison company, that sterling melodrama, "The Silver King." This play is one of the few dramas of recent years which at once teaches a moral lesson and tells with dramatic force an interesting story without becoming mawkish. The company interpreting this beautiful play has been selected with a view as to the individual merit and is composed of the very best dramatic talent attainable. The company carry all their own scenery and effects, and will make the production as strong as though presented on the stage of the metropolis.

The synopsis of incidents has been published so often that is is familiar to every one. As presented by this organization, it has been received everywhere with more than favorable comment. It is a play of intense feeling, arousing the noblest sentimen, and teaching a lesson never to be forgotten. It has made a suc-cess never equalled in the history of the stage, and is deservedly and proverbially a great favorite everywhere. The company is under the management of King Hedley and Harrison, and as a proof of successful management, the record recently made by The Silver King in New York city has seldom been beaten by any company, which speaks volumns in their favor. The Silver King is one of the strongest and most interesting dramas of the time and never fails to receive the endorsement of all who see it.

Provisions of a Measure Introduced by Mr. Hiscock - Free Delivery for Small Cities-Work in the Senate and House.

A NEW MEASURE. WASHINGTON, Jan. 8 .- The revenue reformers, or free-trade Democrats, having failed of accomplishing any revision of the tariff, or even proposing one that would certainly reduce the revenue. Mr. Randall and his friends have agreed upon a measure by which the free list shall be enlarged and internal revenue altered as to reduce the taxation by about $50,000,000. The following are the figures of tax reduction as agreed upon by the conference: Repeal of tobacco tax, $28,-900,000; repeal of tax on fruit spirits, $1,-$00,000; free alcohol for use in arts, $12,000,-800; repeal of all licenses, $700,000; free list, $5,000,000; total, about $47,000,000. A committee of three, with Mr. Randall at its head, has been appointed to formulate a bill and see if a greater reduction can not be agreed on, $80,000,000 being the objective

POST-OFFICES TO BE FILLED. WASHINGTON, Jan. S .- The commissions of 115 Presidential postmasters will expire in February and forty in March. The principal offices on the February list are: Oakland, Cal.; Muncie, Ind.; Flint, Mich.; Butte, M. T.; Gallipolis, O.; New Philadelphia, O.; Warren, O., and Zanesville, O. On the March list are Fargo, D. T., Sharon, Pa., and Cleveland, O. These lists complete the expirations until the assembly of the Fiftieth Congress, December 5, HISCOCK'S BILL Washington, Jan. 10.—Representative Hiscock's bill to reduce internal revenue taxes and the duties on raw sugar, introduced in the House Saturday, provides that all sugars not above No. 13 Dutch standard in color, all tank bottoms, sirups of cane juice, or of beet juice, melada, concrete and concentrated melada, concrete and concentrated molasses, testing by the polariscope not above 75 degrees, imported into the United States shall pay a duty of 70-100 of 1 cent per pound, and for every additional degree or fraction of a degree shown by the polariscope test they shall pay 2-100 of 1 cent per pound additional.

It is provided, however, that sugars imported from countries levying an export tax shall pay the rate of duty now in force. For the encouragement of sugar cultivation it is pro-wided that a bounty of ₹2 shall be paid for every 2,000 pounds of sugar-beets or cane raised by any farmer or planter in the United States. For the encouragement of sugar manufacturers the bill divides domestic sugars into five grades, on which bounties will be paid ranging from 67 to 97 Another section of the bill abolishes the internal revenue tax on manufactured tobacco and the special taxes paid by dealers in the same. Also the internal revenue laws limiting, restricting or regulating the manufacture, sale or exportation of tobac

Other sections allow grain distillers to methylate certain spirits with wood alcohol or naptha, and authorize the importa-tion in bond and the free withdrawal from warehouses of methylated spirits for use in the arts and manufactures.

The eleventh section provides that all articles, preparations or compounds intended for sale or use in the United States, except wines, liquors, spirits, cordials and other alcohol compounds used and sold as beverages, may be made and manufactured in internal-revenue manufacturing warefree of internal-revenue tax, provided that the spirits so used shall be of an alscholic strength of not less than 170 de-

The remaining sections of the bill relate to the employment of gaugers, penalties, bonds, etc.

AN ADDRESS TO MR. MORRISON. WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.-The American Tariff-Reform League has sent a New Year's letter to Hon. William R. Mor-It is signed by representatives from York, Connecticut, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, and other States, and can not but carry weight. The point of the letter is in an urgent appeal to Mr. Morrison not only to repeat his motion for the consideration of tariff reform, but to cause it to be clearly understood that opportunity will be offered for the division of the bill proposed in committee of the whole, and for the con-sideration of separate measures of revenue reform as separate bills in the House.

ARLISLE'S VIEWS ON THE SENATORSHIP. Washington, Jan. 10.—Regarding the published reports from Kentucky that he would be a candidate for United States Senator, Speaker Carlisle, in an interview, says that, while he would enter into no scramble for the place, he would serve if his friends should see fit to elect him. This deciaration is virtually equivalent to an an-poincement of his candidacy against Mr. Beck. The contest is still at very long range, as Mr. Beck's term does not expire until March 3, 1889.

AFFAIRS OF STATE.

Members of Various State Legislatures Assemble for Work.

Messrs. Stockbridge, Davis, Quay, Hale and Stewart Nominated for the Senate in Michigan, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Maine and Nevada.

SOLONS ORGANIZE.

The Illinois Legislature met at Spring-field on Wednesday. The House organized by electing Mr. Calhoun, of De Witt County, as Speaker, and the Senate by the elec-tion of Mr. Berggren as President pro-tem. On Thursday the Governor's message was delivered and the returns of the election for State officers were canvivsed in joint session, the result being the mal declaration of the election of John Tanner State Treasurer, and Richard Edwards Superintendent of Public Instruction. Tuesday, January 18, was fixed as the date for balloting for a successor to Senator Logan, and Tuesday, January 24, as the date of services in memory of the dead Senator.

The Indiana State Senate was organized on Thursday by Senator Smith, President pro tem, of the last Senate, in spite of the law and precedent, which designates the State Auditor as the proper person to or ganize the body. The Republicans protest ed strongly against the action, but being in a minority were helpless. A resolution was adopted declaring Smith President of the Senate. This action will compel Colonel Robertson, Lieutenant-Governor-elect, to establish his claim to the Presidency by quo warranto proceedings, and this can hardly be accomplished before the Assem-bly adjourns. The House organized by electing Warren G. Sayre, of Wabash County, Speaker.

In the Indiana House, Monday morning Speaker Sayre announced "the Senate" im-mediately after prayer, and the nineteen Republican members of that body entered and took seats on the Speaker's right. The attempts of Democrats to secure the attention of the Speaker were futile, and the vote of the recent election was canceled, the Speaker next making the announce-ment that Mr. Robertson had been elected Lieutenant-Governor. The latter was sworn in by Judge Walker, of the Supreme Court, and proceeded to deliver his inaug ural address amid the greatest noise and confusion. After announcement had been made that the joint convention would mee January 19 to ballot for United States Sen ator, the House adjourned.

The Michigan House of Representatives elected D. P. Markey speaker, and the Senate chose Charles J. Monroe President pro tem. On Thursday, the message of the retiring Governor, Alger, was read, and the new Governor, Luce, was inaugurated The Republican caucus nominated Francis R. Stockbridge, of Kalamazoo, to succeed Mr. Conger in the United States Senate.

The Missouri Legislature convened at Jefferson City on Wednesday. Thursday night the Democratic caucus nominated Senator Cockrell to be his own successor. The Minnesota Legislature met at St Paul Tuesday. Governor McGill was in augurated. Mayor Ames, of Minneapolis late Democratic candidate for Governor, filed a notice of contest. Thursday night ex-Governor Cushman K. Davis was nominated by the Republican caucus to succeed Senator McMillan.

Pennsylvania legislators met at Harris burg Tuesday. Wednesday night the Re publican members in caucus nominated for United States Senator State Treasurer M S. Quay.

The Republicans of the Maine Legislature have nominated Eugene Hale to succeed himself in the United States Senate. The Democrats will vote for W. H. Clifford.
William M. Stewart was nominated for

DOWN ON THE KNIGHTS.

A Texas Official Denounces the Great Labor Organization and Recommends Their Suppress by the Militia.

Sr. Louis, Jan. 10.-Adjutant-General King, of Texas, in his annual report to Governor Ireland of that State very strongly urges the Legislature to make liberal appropriations and encourage the militia that it may be an eff cient military force in case of necessity. The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefited the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufactures. Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boshee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspensia and Liver Complaint. and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.

IT IS WONDERFUL

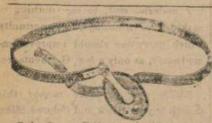

how easily rheumatism begins, and how insidiously it grows in the system, until one is startled to find himself its victim in either the acute or chronic form. He then learns the fearful tenacity of its grip and the utter powerlessness of the ordinary remedies to give relief.

Probably to no disease have physicians given more study, and none has more completely baffled their efforts to provide a specific; and until Athlophoros was discovered there was no medicine which would surely cure rheumatism, neuralgia and nervous or sick headache. Thousands of testimonials like the following prove beyond question that Athlophoros is the only reliable remedy, and that it will do all that is claimed for it.

East Saginaw, Mich. About four weeks ago I was tak a severe attack of rheumatism. My feet were so swollen that I could not wear my boots; in fact, I could just hobble along, and got very little sleep at night, as I suffered intense pain whether I sat up or laid down. I went out and bought a pair of crutches to enable me to get around. After buying them, when on my way home, I stopped in at W. B. Moor's drug store, and noticing Athlophoros for sale I decided to try a bottle. After taking half a bottle I laid my crutches aside, only using them the one time—on my way home. The swelling is all reduced, and I now wear my boots with perfect case. I have not had any pain since. I would not take $20 for the balance of the bottle if I could not get more. Any one suffering with rheumatism need not suffer any longer if they will take Athlophoros. JED GRIGWARE, Mate of Steamer W. R. Burt, running be-

INDICATIONS THAT THE RACE WILL SOON BE EXTINCT.

He Writes of Gotham's Callow Striplings Who "Mash," Smoke and Drink-Girls at Matinees-Dissipation After the Play.

We are in the midst of winter, with un-questioned snow drifts in the streets. A great storm has covered the earth, extending from New Orleans in the south to Portland in the east. I saw it snow in Boston: I saw it snow in New York. I have been up and down the streets, have driven through the parks, have speeded a modest roadster along our magificent boulevards, have seen hundreds of boys and girls, but not one snowball have I seen thrown, not a single statue molded from the tempting mass, not a cave, not a huge rolly-polly gathering to itself as it passed from boyish hands along the pathway, no tracks made by nimble feet across unbroken fields, not a solitary slide, not a sled down hill, not a pair of skates, nothing, absolute ly, which would suggest the existence of a real weather braving boy or a fair, ruddy cheeked, sport loving girl. Nevertheless the boys and girls are here.

What do the young people of to-day look to for entertainment? I find upon inquiry and observation that riding is one of the fashionable amusements of the day. We have first rate riding schools, and have had for many years, but about them, as about everything else, there is fashion. For years nothing was more common than to see filing through the sequestered paths of Central park, and now and then out upon the road, classes of young ladies from ten to twenty in number under the convoy of a riding master. That sort of exercise is entirely done away with. In its place we have club riding. A class of ten or twelve girls and a class of ten or twelve boys, or young gentlemen I suppose they sake by the riding master, go out together and have jolly good times. There can be no objection to this; on the contrary, it is healthful, entirely decorous and most enjoy-

Every now and then an English fad comes into such general acceptance as to be almost universal. Just now the particular weakness is for long walks, and the girls in different sections of the city, each with its own party, of course, arrange to take each other up at the corners of their several streets, as policemen are gathered in at night or sentineis are taken up by relief guard, and form-ing in procession, walk, regardless of the weather, in sun, in rain, in snow, in wind, up Fifth avenue to Central park and beyond for that matter—not through the park, but up the avenue by its side and back again. They disdain male escort, affect the manly type of dress, wear wholesome shoes and plant the seeds of pulmonary trouble with great enthusiasm.

Girls also find entertainment in matines attendance. If you study matinee audiences here you will find that 95 per cent. of the attendance is feminine. It is a rare thing to see a young man at a matinee, or a boy. The men who affect matinees are either un-worthy of the name or have passed the line of manhood. Not that gentlemen may not visit theatres at matinees if they choose or if their occupation is such that they can go at no other time; but it seems out of place, and whether that seeming is based on common sense or not there is a general feeling in the community that a man who goes to a matinee goes for some unworthy purpose. He is either an idler, and an idle man is the meanest work of God, or a masher, and if there is anything smaller than a masher I have yet to encounter it, and nobody understands this more thoroughly or better than the

The girls save their money for matines seats. They crowd every theatre in which pretty women are displayed upon the stage. They visit in thronged houses of entertainment in which spectacular pieces are given, and after the performance promenade the streets, joining the great army going up town and the other great army going down town, the ceaseless beating of the human tide upon the shore of endeavor and of effort. I look in vain for the occupation of the boys and entertainment of the young men. I don't recall a boy with a hoop, a boy with a sled, a boy with a kite in five years at the very least. In the skating season thousands of boys and girls of the poorer classes go to Central park, and they are met in cars and on the streets with their skates slung over their arms, but skating in New York is an exceptional occurrence. Some winters we don't have an hour of it, other winters we have a few days. Thus far this winter not a moment.

Actually I am staggered to tell what the boys do with themselves.

Sitting in John Stetson's box the other night, during the performance of "Princess Ida," I looked through the audience and remarked at the time that there were over 150 boys there not over 18 years of age, all dressed in the height of fashion, and every one of them went out, as a sensational writer would say, "between every act," took his drink and his smoke, and going out for those cheerful purposes they actually couldn't wait until they got outside the door, but pulling cigarette case from one pocket and a match from the other, passing the door struck the match, lighted the cigarette and started forth upon the process of healthful

After the theatre I went around to George Brown's, where one can get an appetizing Welsh rarebit, a good dish of terrapin and a succulent pig's foot, but the boys—bless my heart—it would make you'll to see them. They absolutely troop in flocks after the theatres. Each dressed a la mode, white tie, white waistcoat, pronounced shirt front dangling seals, lahdy dahdy manner and stinking cigarettes, loud, hilarious, impertinent, intrusive, obtrusive, disgusting sugges tions of what the coming generation will be, if, indeed, they are able to secure a coming generation at all. How do our boys and oung men amuse themselves? By drinking, by smoking, by sitting up late at night, by idling their time in all manner of extraordinary avenues to premature decay.

It seems to me as if, little by little, the race, so far as cities are concerned, is losing its grip. It is refining itself to too small a Do you remember the story of the lady floating over the sea in a boat, woke suddenly to find her magnificent rope of pearl necklace by some accident unfastened one end, and from the loose string hang ing down into the water pearl after pearl slipped off forever into the abyss? That would seem to be a fair illustration of the losses to mankind in general by the gradual falling away of boy after boy, or girl after girl, slipping from the solid substantialities of old fashioned honor, modesty, decency, courtesy. Drink and tobacco are undermining the physique. Idleness, dissipation take hold hand in hand with these curses on the race, with the certainty that sooner or later this defrauder will be exposed, that gambler will blow his head to fragments, that scoundrel will dee the country with the wife of his friend, the cash box of his employer, and with the equal certainty that this flirt will find herself in the embrace of a selfish fortune hunter, this indiscreet will wake to the realization of a frightful publicity, that reck less dissipator will wallow in the very mud of degradation, and when he goes and when she sinks the others laugh, heedless of the warning.

Lots of fun—is there not?—Joe Howard in Boston Globe.

INDIANS AS GAMBLERS.

The Hand Game of the Shoshones and Bannocks-How It Is Played.

The Shoshones and Bannocks, on the Shoshone reservation in Idaho have, like most Indians, a fondness for gambling. To an observer the 'hand game' so common among these Indians would seem more like a recreation than a propensity for gam bling, for no matter how interesting the game may be good humor invariably prevails. A party of Shoshones and Bannocks were encamped near the station one after-noon, five of whom—two men and three squaws—were deeply engrossed in the "hand game." After half an hour's close attention managed to obtain a fair idea of the game The two men were partners and sat facing their opponents, the three squaws. In front of each of the opposing sides was a pile of twenty small sticks, to be used as "counters," and in the center of the space intervening was the money, some $3 or $4. well polished pieces of convex shaped bone as large as a lead pencil in the largest part, and possibly three inches in length, wrapped with cord or sinew for an inch or more in the center and two pieces of the same dimensions unwrapped or presenting the white surface only, constituted the gam bling outfit.

Two of the three squaws grasped a wrapped and unwrapped bone, one in each hand, and together with the third squaw began moving their hands rapidly from side to side, describing a half circle and accompanying the motion with a peculiar nasal humming. The men were now all attention, it being their duty, it seems, to guess which hand of either the three squaws contained the white bone. Whenever the guesser lost one stick from his joint pile of twenty was transferred to the pile in front of the squaws and when he won, the bones, together with one of the sticks, immediately passed into his possession. As soon as his partner was equally successful it became the men's turn to hold the bones. The actions of the two men now were slightly dissimilar to those gone through by the three squaws. The bones were held one in each hand as had been done by their opponents, but instead of swinging the hands back and forth, they were placed under the arms, accompanied by an up and down motion of the body and the same peculiar humming. When a squaw made an unlucky guess she would pay the usual forfeit, and the man by a dexterous movement would throw both bones a short distance in the air, showing which hand held the corded and which the plain bone. When changing the bones from hand to hand be-neath the folds of his blanket or behind his back, his maneuvers were continued until the bones passed out of his possession. And so the game progressed, first one side holding the bones an then the other. As the bones were changed from hand to hand be-neath the blanket or behind the back, no effort being made to cheat, and a lucky guesser being the only requirement of a suc-cessful player, the games were always of infinite duration, this one in particular lasting several hours. I was unable to find out precisely what part the third squaw took in the game, for at no time did I discover the bones in her possession, but as the hands of each of the three squaws were held close together and in the swaying motion often came in close proximity to those of the squaw sitting next, it is probable that the third squaw was used to mislead the men, who, it would appear, were regarded as the more skillful Vanderbilt as a Passenger. Speaking with a veteran conductor on the Hudson River railroad the other day, he said: William H. Vanderbift was the best passenger I ever had on his road. He was al-ways contented, pleasant and satisfied, and not like a good many other travelers, perpetually grumbling because affairs were not right. I will never forget one incident derbilt's death. William H. was on the way to Saratoga and was on a special train. Rhinebeck he received a dispatch. As he opened it and read it the tears rolled down his face. The dispatch said that the com-modore had had a chill and that his position was precarious. William H. told me to go on when I asked him what I should do with

I knew if he went on he could not get back until the next morning unless he took a special engine. Mr. Ellis, of Schenectady, was with Mr. Vanderbilt and called me back and asked me where I would meet a train. I told him I would pass the Saratoga special at Tivoli bound for New York, but that it did not stop at Tivoli, Ellis suggested that I stop at Tivoli and flag the train and com pel it to stop. He said it would be all right, though Mr. Vanderbilt would not like to offer to interfere with the running of trains and the comfort of passengers. I did so, and the comfort of passengers. I did so, and Mr. Vanderbilt was shortly on the Saratoga special and thus arrived at New York about 9 o'clock in the evening instead of on the following morning. As I helped him off the car at Tivoli and explained what I had done he said: "That was well done. I thank you." Mr. Vanderbilt was always thoughtful in his intercourse with his employes .-Albany Journal.

Intelligence of Artillery Horses. I once saw a young soldier who belonged to a battery of artillery engaged in patching the holes in his guidon (a marker's flag) with cloth from the lining of an important part of his uniform. (If he was familiar with the history of France in 1792 he might have thought of the insurgents' standard, which was a pair of black breeches, upon which was the inscription: "Tremble, tyrants, for we, the people, still wear the breeches." When I asked him why he made such a scriffce and spent so much time to repair that old flag his answer was that as we were so far from the base of supplies he could not get a new one, for when the battery went into action with the thirty-six horses and the six guns he always stuck the pike to which the guidon was attached firmly into the ground to mark the line of battle, where the battery was to form and go into action, and even if the man who rode the leading horse was killed or disabled and the din of battle was so great that the bugle call could not be heard the horses were so well drilled that they would wheel around the flag, make or execute the maneuver known as by left in to line, and when the muzzles of the six guns were on a line with the flag, and then as soon as the guns were unlimbered he would again place it about 200 paces to the rear, and the horses would gallop to the rear with the caisons and halt again on a line with it. Perhaps there is not much sentiment in the mending of that old flag by the battery boy, but is there not a beautiful sentiment in the thought of those noble horses doing their share of the fighting side by side with us, learning to know the flag and rallying upon it?--Cor. Chicago Journal.

ABOUT DEER HUNTING.

TALK WITH A HUNTER WHO HAS BEEN IN THE NORTHWEST.

Methods Employed by Hunters-Killing a Rattlesnake-The "Buck Fever." Curious Traits of a Deer-Curiosity and Sneaking Propensities.

A young western deer hunter, tall, broad shouldered and muscular, just from the forests of Michigan and Wisconsin, was met at the Mansion house, Staten Island, by a reporter and asked for some particulars about hunting the deer. 'There are nearly as many deer as ever in the woods of the northwest," he said, "and they are very wild. Shooting them is the popular sport with us, and there are many men who make a living at it. weight of the deer killed out there runs from 150 to 300 pounds. The way we hunt them is this: They have what we call runwaysthat is, well defined paths leading from their different grazing grounds to a creek or river. We find these runways and station ourselves in the woods adjoining. A man is detailed to take the dogs and go a mile or so ahead to start the deer from the feeding ground. The animals at once take to their accustomed runways and are then shot by the hunters stationed in the woods. It is no easy matter to kill a deer when it is running, for you almost always shoot too high. When a deer is opposite to you if you whistle or make an umusual sound their great sense of curiosity will frequently cause them to stop and then is the time to shoot. The deer hunting season extends from October to December long ago I saw two deer shot with one shot. One was a large buck weighing fully 250 pounds, and the other a doe of probably 175 pounds, weight. They were running side by side and the hunter was standing only a few rods from the runway."

"Do they fight when wounded: "Indeed they do. Let a wounded buck get at you once and it is almost certain death. Their hoofs are as sharp as knives, and they use them as their weapons, jump ing on and striking you with them. I have known of old and experienced hunters being made to climb trees to get out of the way of a wounded buck. You want to see a deer kill a rattlesnake. A rattlesnake cannot strike until it is coiled up. The deer seems to know this and when the snake is fully coiled, ready to strike, the deer will first go round and round the snake, keeping the snake whirling around, and suddenly draw its feet together and springing up into the air with a bound come down with its full weight upon the snake, cutting it to pieces.

THE "BUCK FEVER."

"What is the 'buck fever'?" "It is a sudden trembling and loss of nerve when a deer first comes in range. Every one gets it at first, and even old hunters get it, shaking and trembling as if they had the ague. Yes, I had it the first time I went out. Being inexperienced I was placed on the runway in an out of the way spot, where the deer was not expected to come. luck would have it, the dogs drove the animal directly to where I was. It was a large doe and ran up to within fifteen feet of me and stopped and gazed at me in great curios-To say that I was excited does not half tell the way I felt. I had my gun in my hand and raised to my shoulder, but I could not for the life of me pull the trigger."

"Have you known women to shoot deer?"
"Oh, yes. I remember of one case of a splendid shot. The woman was in her shanty, and hearing a noise outside looked out.

There stood a big buck six or seven rods from the door. She grasped her husband's rifle and aiming carefully killed it at the first shot. She was very proud of her success, I can tell you. Speaking of women, this trait of curiosity in a deer, one would say, shows a remarkably feminine characteristic. They will risk their lives often to gratify it. I recall that riding through the woods just before I came away three large deer ahead of us stopped and gazed at us until we were within twenty feet of them, then would run shead and again wait for us to catch up. They did this for a long dis-tance. We had no rifles or we could easily have killed them. Why, I've seen them so interested in a gayly dressed lumberman that they would let the man get almost close enough to kill them with his ax; and in the lumber camp at night, when the men are singing and 'cutting up,' the deer will often come close up to the shanty to try to get a look in. There is one characteristic about a deer that few people know of-that is, their sneaking propensity. Instead of at once boldly taking cover when pursued they will crouch down and sneak away. They get easily confused, too. I have come on to a deer suddenly and surprise has caused it to run around in a circle of three or four rods, diameter several times."—New York Mail

Failure of the Mery Railway. The great railroad that was to form the main line of the Russian invasion of India is reported to be a gigantic failure, both in a military and financial point of view. railroad that is to connect the Caspian with the Merv and thence proceeding through Bokhara to the confines of Aghanistan has thus far been constructed under military supervision, and it is said enormous sums have been ingulfed in the granting of fraudulent contracts both for material and construct tion. These facts are studiously ignored by the Russian press, but according to a letter written by Gen. Tchernieff to The Novoe Vreyma the new road of communication be tween Russia and her distant Asiatic posses sions is a total failure. The railroad, it now appears, is built over a desert of shifting sand, the desert having in fact a movable and moving surface with which no engineer-ing can contend. On the first section of the road the sand has been consolidated by watering it with a solution of clay, but this is impossible near Merv, where there is neither clay nor water to be found, The only way of preserving the line would be to cover it with sheds like the snow sheds on the American Pacific railway, but this is impossible in a country where there is neither wood, stone, lime nor water. As a military line to assist in a Russian attack on India it would be useless, or it would take three years to convey over it a complete force of 200,000 men with their impedimenta, and as it runs along the frontier of Persia it would have to be guarded by so many men that the line itself would be well occupied in supplying water to the invading forces. The British are also finding almost insurmount-able difficulties in endeavoring to connect Cabul with the Indian system of railroads the projected line in many places being cut in the sheer incline of the precipices forming the passes, while the roadbeds in the valleys are liable to resistless inundations in the spring months. Taken altogether, the attack and defense of British India on the land side form the most costly military problems of the century. -San Francisco Chronicle.

Getting Hit on Purpose.

"I see that one of the new rules of the national game provides that where a batsman is hit by a pitched ball he is given his base. Now, what is to prevent a man getting his on purpose to take his base?" "Have you ever been hit by a pitched ball" "Never!" "I thought not."—Chicago Rambler. THE MEN WHO SPECULATE

Broken-Down Brokers-A Large Number Weak to Begin With.

While one sees occasionally a person who has made money in Wall street and kept it, he more commonly sees the oldest and strongest habitues down there either poor or diseased. The brokers require to be perfectly sober to keep their heads, and the cus-tomers as well, yet the conditions of speculation demand stimulation, and the wildest things are done when the head is drunk. You will find the stock exchange and all other exchanges where speculation rages surrounded by drinking houses, and a large proportion of these break in time because their proprietors and clerks are drawn into the market.

A large majority of the men who speculate are weak to begin with. Here and there you find a hard-brained man, without much sensibility, started in life amid rough associations, and to him the stock exchange is rather a mild and becalming society. He has learned to be reticent, not to talk much, not to show either his losses or his gains, and such a one extending his acquaintance may possibly co-operate in time with his equals of superiors and force the quotations according to his bets, for it is all betting in every event. Politicians, people of literary turns, actors, officers of the regular army, advanced clerks mercantile houses, keepers of saloons, butchers, hotel men, are among the sources of supply for the stock exchange. Many of these have not much training or education and but little moral courage; yet the atmos-phere of Wall street is as genial as that of a gambling house when a stranger enters it. You go into the old fashioned gaming house if any such exist in our day, and you find polite attention everywhere; order and quiet are maintained. The chief gambler is the essence of discretion and composure. So in Wall street you can find the most agreeable exponents of human nature, often useful men: the best age for a Wall street man seems to be about 40. These brokers are not often fools. They have often been merchants, contractors, builders of railway lines, and approach the speculative part of their work from the large and wholesome end.

He who goes to Wall street had best possess some experience of real life beforehand When a man is worn out there and his money lost there is not the least use for him, ever where good charity is exercised, because the business of the street is to buy and sell stocks for commissions, and to work without any security of pay is a bore to the broker and a bad example to his customers, besi les an invasion of his book keeping and demoralization at large. In the ordinary pursuits of life reckoning day comes every quarter or twice a year, but in Wall street it comes every day. It is a rule of the street to follow up margins closely and collect them promptly. The mere sucker who goes down there with a few thousand dollars has but little idea of the huge brute strength he may have to encounter in the very room where he keeps his account. He would hardly go to a private poker room where experts played in order to hide his purse and his hand; why then should he enter a business office where they gamble from 9 o'clock until 3, only six hours out of the twenty-four, consider that he is privi-leged in his communications? No doubt there is considerable honor among the brokers, but a good many of these brokers are themselves operators, and in many cases they have no other knowledge than an ordi-nary newspaper reader or topographical traveler would have of the condition of corporations .- "Gath" in Boston Globe.

How Archer Killed Himself.

In his early days of riding he was so slightly built that he often had to carry as much as two or three stone of dead weight, but as age crept upon him his daily study was to keep below his normal bodily weight of ten stone. To effect this he had to go through shocking privations in the way of sweating, starving and physicing. For the first named purpose he had special Turkish baths built at his private residence while the chief piece of furniture in his library was a pair of very sensitive scales. He would exist for a whole day upon a bunch of gapes, or a single piece of dry toast and a glass of champagne. this treacherous wine he was particularly fond, but he would touch none but the very best brands. He declared that it kept hi alive without in any way interfering with his weight. It must not, however, be inferred that his table was niggardly. contrary, it was always supplied in bountiful fashion, for he was a grand host. self denial was marvelous, for when he must have been simply ravenous with hunger, he would preside at his table surrounded by the most tempting viands and yet merely munch a dry biscuit or his hard burned toast.

When the pangs of hunger got almost past the power of man to resist the temptation to eat, he would adjourn to his library, test his weight on his trusty scales, shake his head at the last obstinate pound which refused to "come off," and then retire to bed to be out of the way of the savory smell from the kitchen. Nature, however, rebelled against this treatment, and the punishment came suddenly and swiftly. The last straw that broke the camel's back was the attempt to get down to eight stone six pounds to ride St. Mirin in the Cambridgeshire. He felt that it was his last chance to win that event, and he had made up his mind to do it at whatever cost. He rode but did not win. On the contrary he was a wreck, nerveless and dispirited, and utterly without stamina. In this condition he went to Brighton and Lewes, and suffered exposure on the bleak downs in a thin shirt and silk jacket, with a pair of hunting breeches. The inevitable chill followed and the fever demon seized upon a frame ill prepared to withstand its

"We have to keep a pretty sharp lookout for thieves these days, said one of the floor walkers of a down town store. "The lifters are up to several new tricks this year, and, working as they do in the great crowds of buyers, it is a difficult matter to spot them at once. Some of their new games? One of them is to roll a five cent piece or some other small coin over the counter so it will fall where the scalady is standing. The latter stoops down to pick up the money for the customer, and while she is doing this the lifter stows away one or two of the articles displayed on the counter. Another trick is to approach the jewelry counter with small package, one end of which is smeared with tar or some other sticky substance. The 'lifter' asks to be shown some rings, which he removes from the trays and distributes about the top of the show case. He drums on the glass with one corner of the sticky end of the package until a favorable op-portunity presents itself, when he suddenly jabs it down upon a gold band and strolls away saying as he does so that he will call around again. Those are two of the new tricks. There may be a great many others, but we haven't got on to them yet."—Chi-

A good christian woman on Washington-st has opened a boarding house for the much abused little English sparrows At first she had only a few boarders, but now has some 30 The birds are highly pleased with their living and are very regular at their meals. If "not a sparrow falls to the ground without our Heavenly Father's notice," why should they not be fed when the frost king shuts off all resources for sustenance.

The almanac for 1887 gives a few items of general interest: New Year's day comes on Sunday; Washingtons birthday on Tuesday; St. Valentine's day on Monday; All Fool's day on Friday; Memorial day on Monday; Fourth of July on Monday; Christmas on Sunday; Easter Sunday on the 10th of Apuil; Lent begins March of Theorem will be four eclipses. March 2. There will be four eclipses, two of the sun and two of the moon; one Feb. visible as a partial eclipse in the United States.

"One of our city contemporaries spells Alpine 'Alphine!' Prof. DePont tells us," etc.—Courier. Didn't "one of our city contemporaries" smile a big smile when he saw how the Courier had made itself somewhat ridiculous by spelling the very familiar name of Prof. de Pont "DePont!" The author of that criticism will probably come out of his hole late in the spring prepared to make another intellectual ex-

The adjourned meeting of the stock-holders of the Forest Hill cemetery was held in Z. P. King's office, Tuesday fore-The treasurer's report was received and accepted, and the finance committee, together with the treasurer, were instructed to put $2,000 more at interest. At the close of the meeting the board of trustees held a session and re-organized by electing J. Austin Scott, president; secretary and treasurer, W. W. Wines. The usual number of committees were appointed.

Some eastern parties are corresponding with business men of Jackson regarding the feasibility of starting a plant in this city for the manufacture of glass bottles, fruit jars, etc. They want to invest from $10,000 to $15,000 in the enterprise, and think this is a good point to command the trade of Michigan in that class of manu-factures.—Citizen. Would it not be well for the business mens' association of this city to be casting their eyes about for such enterprises?

John Burg will refurnish his shoe store for the spring trade, and add a carpet room, where he will put on sale an entire new stock of Carpets.

Charles W. Morgan representing "You-man," the famous New York hatter, was in the city today. The Two Sams feel highly elated as this is the only city in Michigan, except Detroit, he visits.

Circuit court has been in session since Tuesday, with Judge Joslyn on the bench. In the case of the People vs. Geo. Flowers, for stealing clothing from Warren Col-grove in September last, the jury returned a verdict of guilty; the prisoner was re-manded to jail for sentence. In the assumpsit suit of Polland Fletcher vs. Albert irat, the jury disagreed. The attention of the court is now engaged in settling the estate of Geo. Goodwin, situated in the township of Lyndon; it is an appeal from probate court.

James Smalley, a drayman, was given a check, by a student one day last week, to transfer his trunk, and for some unaccountable reason left it at the wrong house. After waiting a reasonable length of time the student made a complaint be-fore Justice Frueauff, Thursday morning, for the arrest of the drayman on a civil warrant, and his examination set down for Saturday morning to give him further time to find it. In the mean time the missing article was found and Mr. Smalley was discharged by paying the costs.

At the annual meeting of the stock-holders of the First National Bank, of Ann Arbor on the 11th, the following persons were unanimously elected directors for the ensuing year: Philip Bach, C. H. Richmond, James Clements, Alpheus Felch, Wm. McCreery, E. D. Kinne, Edward Treadwell, Henry Cornwell and J. W. Wheeler. At a meeting of the directors for the purpose of organizing the new board, Philip Bach was unanimously re-elected president, but declined, whereupon Chas. H. Richmond was elected president, and Philip Bach vice president by a unanimous vote.

In speaking of the proposed street railway ordinance, one day this week, Mayor Robison gave expression to the tollowing language: "It is an unheard of thing for a corporation to go before a council, with an ordiance already prepared and ask to have it introduced and passed the same evening, without giving the matter any thought or investigation." In speaking of the position of the newspapers of this city he used the following emphatic language: "The city newspapers, excepting THE REG-ISTER, have been very unfair to the council in their criticisms on their actions, as they have not stated the position of the council on the question.'

At a regular meeting of the newly elected boar 1 of Directors of company A, held Monday evening, the following civil non-commissioned officers elected for the ensuing year: President, elected for the ensuing year: President,

About four months ago there came to Ann Arbor a very gentlemanly appearing young man, giving the name of Max Buettner. His manuers and mode of liv ing showed unmistakably that he was a gentleman of leisure. He made the ac uaintance of several of our leading German citizens, and as he was a polished convertionalist his company after. After being here a short time he produce? a letter showing that he had money on deposit in a Philadelphia bank, on the strength of which he borrowed considerable sums of money at different times from his newly made acquaintances. One day last week he concluded to make a visit to Detroit and from there he went to Toledo, and from there, no one knows. Our aforesaid leading German citizens soon began to "smell a mouse" and sough legal advice. Telegraphic inquiry was made of the chief of police at Philadelphia who sent word back that no such person was known to the banks there. Prosecuting Attorney Norris was then consulted who deemed the evidence insufficient to issue a warrant. In the mean time their heretofore unbounded devotion for Mr. Buettner has changed into a dire ven-geance for his scalp, either dead or alive.
