PROF. OLNEY AT REST.

A BUSY AND USEFUL LIFE PEACEFULLY ENDED.

Edward Olney, LL. D., Found Dead in His Bed Sunday Morning.

Our community was startled and pained to learn, on Sunday morning, that our greatly revered Professor Edward Olney had passed away from earth in the quiet watches of the night before. He occupied an upper room alone, and on failing to respond to a call from a member of the household, it was found that he had evidently been dead several hours, and from all appearance, life passed away without a struggle. Though his health has been poor for several years, he retired the evening before in his usual spirits. Although sudden death was not expected at this time, it by no means surprised his friends who understood his case.

An autopsy held Sunday afternoon showed the immediate cause of his death to have resulted from degeneration of the arteries of the brain, interfering with the proper circulation of the blood, causing effusion of serum of the blood.

The funeral services will be held in University Hall, this afternoon, at three o'clock, local time. The exercises will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Haskell, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which deceased was a member. Short addresses will also be delivered by Prof. Daniel Putnam, of the State Normal school, Ypsilanti; President Brooks, of Kalamazoo college, and President Angell, of the University. The remains will lay in state in the lower hall of the University building from two until three o'clock, where the public will be permitted to view the remains.

The following honorary pall bears have been selected: Rev. L. H. Trowbridge, D. A. Waterman, and Schuyler Grant, of Detroit; Rev. Dr. Brooks, of Kalama zoo; Prof. H. S. Frieze, Prof. A. B. Palmer, Prof. W. W. Beman and A. W. Britten, of Ann Arbor.

The active pall bearers consist of the following students: J. E. Hodge, '88, R. W. Moore, '87, A. H. Hopkins, '89, A. E. Jennings, '89, G. W. Lacea, '87, and P. E. Derr, '89.

BIOGRAPHY.

Prof. Edward Olney was born in Mor-eau, Saratoga county, N. Y., July 24, 1827. He is a lineal descendent of Thomas Olney, who came to this country from England in 1600, and was one of the earliest Baptist ministers in America. In 1833, he moved with his parents to Oakland county, Michigan, and after a few months residence there they removed to Weston, Wood county, Ohio., where they perma-nently settled. His school education consisted of what he got in a log school house, only going to school six weeks after he was 13 years of age. Even to secure this small amount of education he hired a boy to drive an ox-team while he went daily two and a half miles to school, teaching an evening class in arithmetic at home, to obtain means to pay his substitute. In those six weeks, Day's algebra was gone through. At the age of 19 he commenced teaching a country school at $12.50 per month, boarding around. While working at home summers he pursued his studies in mathematics and natural science; in winter he sat down to Latin without a teacher. At'21 he took the school at Perrysburg, and during the following year it was established as a graded school, the first one in that section. At first he was principal of the grammar department, and two years later was appointed to the professor-ship of the school. Having Latin, as well as the higher English to teach, the utmost as the higher English to teach, the utmost diligence and application to his private studies was required. His proficiency in varied studies and his eminence as instructor became such that the Madison University, of New York, conferred upon him the degree of M. A. In 1853 he became professor of mathematics in Kalamaron colleges and 10 years later or 24 years came professor of mathematics in Kalamazoo college, and 10 years later, or 24 years ago, accepted a similar position in Michigan University. In 1861 he was made an LL. D. by Kalamazoo college, and he was author of a complete series of mathematical text books, including "First Lessons in Arithmetic," "Practical Arithmetic," "Science of Arithmetic," "First Principles of Algebra," "Complete Algebra," "Tes t
Examples in Algebra," "University Algebra," "Elements of Geometry," "Elements of Trigonometry," and "General Geometry and Calculus."

Prof. Olney was an ardent Baptist.

Prof. Olney was an ardent Baptist. While in Kalamazoo he owned and edited the Michigan Christian Herald, the state paper of that religious denomination, and was president of the Baptist state convention from 1875 to 1879.

In 1853 he married Miss Sarah, daughter of Hon. Elijah Huntington, who survives him, as does, also, their adopted daughter. In Memoriam.

At a meeting Monday evening, of the University senate, the following high tribute was prepared and ordered placed on the records:

Professor Edward Olney, LL. D., who for more than twenty-three years has held the chair of mathematics in the academic epartment of the University of Michigan, died at his residence in Ann Arbor on the died at his residence in Ann Arbor on the sixteenth day of January, 1887, in the sixtieth year of his age. Though his decease was sudden at the last, and without immediate warning, the state of his health during the last three years of his life had made him conscious of momentary dauger; and there is reason to believe that he was constantly looking for that great change, for which certainly no Christian could have been better prepared.

Professor Olney had already won a distinguished reputation as a mathematician, and was employed as a teacher of that science in Kalamazoo College, when he was appointed to the chair of mathematics in this University, and entered upon its duties in September, 1863. He immediately took high rank amongst his colleagues both on account of his profound insight into the science which was his specialty, his absolute command of the subject, his admirable system of instruction, his precision and clearness of statement, and his gift of inspiring enthusiasm in his classes; and his preëminent worth as a teacher is still further attested by the high attainments of the large number of stu-dents who have passed out from under his instruction to take enviable positions as teachers of mathematics in colleges and high schools. It is, perhaps, a still greater honor to his name and to this University, that he has contributed, during his con-nection with it, a long series of masterly works to the literature of mathematics. works to the literature of mathematics. These books, embracing as they do a large part of the field of pure mathematics, both in its elementary and higher departments, the result of many years of exhausting labor, now widely known and used in the institutions of various grades for which they were designed, constitute a monument to the memory and same of our departed colleague which time cannot

In the advancement of the University in its educational work, and especially that of the academic department, no one of our number has ever taken a livelier interest or made more earnest endeavor. He has heartily cooperated in every measure of progress, and been fruitful of ideas and suggestions; and to him we are in-debted for much that is valuable in the most characteristic of all our innovations on old methods—our system of electives and credits. But he was not less active in the promotion of the work of education outside of the University, and in the state, and his person was familiar to the members of our state teachers' association, in which for so many years he took an active and efficient part. His activity, however, was by no means confined to the interests of education. Scarcely any clergyman of the denomination to which he was at-tached devoted more time and zealous labor to the cause of religion and morality than Professor Olney; and, not contenting himself with the sacrifice of time and toil, he contributed largely, too, even profusely, of his limited financial means to the cause he so much loved. Kindred to this, also, was his indefatigable activity in creating and promoting organizations of every kind for ameliorating social evils and for advancing social reforms; and his efforts in behalf of religion and morals were directed not less to the University than to the community at large.

In his relations to his colleagues Professor Olney was always genial and cour-teous, sympathetic and helpful; and all with whom he was so long associated will sadly miss his wise and faithful counsel, and his hearty friendship and support.

All the activities of his remarkable life, the work which he achieved as an educator, and that, scarcely less fruitful, which he accomplished as a christian philanthropist, were the outcome of an earnest spirit devoted to truth and knowledge and duty. His convictions were strong, and with him conviction was action. Whatever he believed to be true or right he fearlessly expressed and maintained, and he led on in any cause which he espoused, from his sense of duty without regard to popularity or to the number of adherents. He was a good man, and a brave christian soldier, and has left to us and to all men a shining

The state funeral directors met in their thirty-eighth annual session, in Fireman's hall, in this city, Wednesday afternoon, for a two days' session. The convention was called to order at two o'clock, by the president of the association, who introduced Rev. Dr. Ramsay, who delivered prayer.

Mayor Robison was then introduced who spoke as follows:

MR. PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN.-It is generally understood that it is a grave un-dertaking to welcome one funeral director. Then what shall I say to the Association of funeral directors for the whole state? suppose, gentlemen, you meet in voluntary association for the purpose of mutual improvement in your vocation. As such, gentlemen, in behalf the city of Ann Arbor, I bid you a hearty welcome.

In the funeral paraphanalia of our resident undertakers, I think you will find much to commend. You will also find our bier accommodations superior to most cicies in the State.

Of course, gentlemen, with your fond-ness for the dead, you will feel more at ness for the dead, you will feel more at home in the presence of dead bodies than with the living. At fifty or more dissecting tables in our medical department of the University you will find objects of particular interest to you, and I have no doubt your especial friends, the doctors, will show you the usual courtesies on this

Dr. Nagley, of the pickling vat, will be more than pleased to show you the one hundred or more cadavers he has under his immediate charge. You will also visit among other places, the museum connected with our University, and will look with delight on the Egyptian mummies, thousands of years of age, that have been preserved to the present time through the embalmer's art. There seems to be a shroud of mystery about the object of this meeting of all the funeral directors of the state. When the coal mine owners meet in association it means dearer fuel. When the nail manufacturers meet it means an increase of price in nails. When railroad magnates meet it is fair to presume it has something to do with an increase of freights, and so on with nearly all associations of this character. But of course, the object of this association is not for the purpose of increasing the expenses of burial. increasing the expenses of burial. They have been so high for years as to amount nearly to a "strike," "lockout" or a "boycott." The first thing you will do I presume, will be to order a reduction of from ten to twenty-five per cent. in the cost of burial, then a man can afford to die. Now it costs less to live than to die.

I presume, another object of your association is to educate or initiate new members of your fraternity. Besides the usual work to be learned, I apprehend the most difficult part of a successful undertaker is to cultivate the proper facial expression to be worn on funeral occasions. Grief, pity, disappointment, should be blended in one harmonious whole to make a pattern for the funeral director. I fear, gentlemen, we cannot furnish you with a man to pose for such a model. But plenty of such models can be obtained in Port Huron, Grand Rapids and Manistee, especially the first named city. But seriously, gentlemen, we have a fine city and we are proud of We have a kind and ho pitable peobefore you get through with your work. And now, gentlemen, I tender you the freedom of the city in a casket.

Two deaths of members were reported during the year, those of J. G. Polhemus, of West Branch, and W. B. Lehrson of Real-ford Mich.

and W. B. Johnson, of Rockford, Mich. The evening session was devoted to a general discussion of matters pertaining to their business.

This morning they visited the University, where Dr. Herdman gave them a practical demonstration in the latest and most approved methods of arterial and cavity embalming, the manufacture and formulas of the best preservatives and many other points of interest.

OUR LANSING LETTER.

Friday evening, the 14th, the legislature adjourned until the following Monday evening, when the absent state solons returned to the city and resumed business at the old stand. As they are luxuriating in the possession of railroad passes very few of them remained at the capitol after adjournment. The posession of passes has a tendency to shorten the working week of the legislature at both ends without any noticable bungling in the middle. Many of the members go home Saturday and return Monday, thus losing most of two days out of the week. It is said that perhaps this session, as the spirit of reform is stalking through the land, the members who indulge in this weekly recreation will give the state a rebate of $6 for every such excursion. If I hear of anything of that kind I will notify you at once by tele-

The senators are taking it easy at present, holding only afternoon sessions. Among the more important business thus far transacted by the senate was the introduction of a bill by Mr. Wisner to create a superior court for East Saginaw, and a bill by Mr. Seymour to establish a prison for infamy for the confinement of life prisoners exclusively, for which an appropriation of $200,000 will be asked.

In the house there was introduced a bill providing for capital punishment for murder and rape. Representative Grinnell gave notice that he would introduce a bill to do away with the superior court of Detroit and a bill to put an end to the board of councilmen of the same city. The same member also introduced a bill to exempt from garnishment the wages of all heads of families. Mr. Ogg gave notice of the introduction of a bill to prohibit the payment of employes with script or store orders, the bill also providing for the payment to employes of their wages at least once in two weeks. Mr. Hosford introduced a land grant forfeiture bill; also a bill making an appropriation to carry on and complete the capitol decorations. A bill was introduced requiring a civil license in order to marry legally; a bill making an appropriation for the expenses of a state weather service; a bill to prevent swindling in promissory notes; and notice was given by Mr. Grinnell of a bill to prevent the manufacture of adulterated candy, and a bill to repeal the law exempting church property from taxation. The petition of Henry Chamberlain praying that Gov. Luce be impeached was referred to the judiciary committee.

Directly after the routine business in the house Thursday morning Representa-tive Chapman moved to suspend the rules and put the resolution to submit a prohibitory amendment on its immediate pas-sage. The motion prevailed, and a call of the house recorded 72 "ayes" and 21 "noes." Nine fusion members voted with the republicans, and one of the latter—Bettinger, of Detroit—recorded his vote against the resolution. The same afternoon the resolution was laid before the senate and by that body referred to the committee on liquor traffic. It is probable the senate will take action on the resolution this week

In a previous letter I made reference to the new political party now incubation, which, when fairly under headway, is expected to make this mundane sphere vibrate from centre to circum ference. He was named as organizer for the states of Michigan, California and Oregon. The last two states are undergoing manipula-tion by substitutes commissioned by Mr. Potter, and Michigan will be brought into line at a mass conference to be held at Flint, Feb. 9, to perfect plans of organization and appoint one delegate from each congressional district to the convention at Cincionati Feb. 22. I understand Senator Babcock's bill to prohibit the sale of intoxicants within one mile of the Soldiers' Home will be championed by a strong lobby of the woman's relief corps. Mrs. A. N. Moffet, of Detroit, well known throughout the state in connection with temperance work, will lead the lobby.

I notice the ladies are contriving in various ways to get a finger in the pie this session, and I am mistaken if they are not heard from early and often. In addition to championing the bill above referred to, the W. C. T. U. of the state have prepared and are signing a petition to the legislature to change the age of consent for females to 18 years. Several Lansing ladies are just now finding time to work up a bill to provide a state home for feeble-minded children. They also have another scheme upon the anvil to which I am not at liberty to refer. The prohibitionists of this city have determined upon the publication of a local organ, the initial number of which will chip the shell about the first of next month. It will appear weekly during the session of the legislature and after that fortnightly.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

From our Regular Correspondent.

The President is again in the best of health and spirits, and has been able during the past week to attend to all the duties of his office, including the very important one of hand-shaking in the East

The first state reception for the year 1887 at the White House was held on Thursday evening. It was a very successful agair, and reflected great credit upon all concerned. The most elaborate preparations in the way of decorations were made. Aside from the members of the diplomatic corps, arrayed in their gorgeous uniforms, resplendent with gold lace, ribbons of brilliant colors and in numerable decorations, more than two thousand persons, all high in official, army and navy life, were presented to the president. One of the noticeable teatures of the reception was the display of jewelry, and it is generally conceded that never before has there been such a display of diamonds. Mrs. Senator Stanford fairly sparkled with precious stones, and it is said that her diamonds cost upwards of $500,000. Mrs. Frank Leslie was another lady whose diamonds attracted attention. The stones which she wore in her ears were as large as good sized bird's egg. Perhaps the least said about the dressing the better; at any rate if the description ware abbreviated as the dresses them selves, it would not occupy much space in your columns. It is safe to predict that had the Chicago ministers who protested against the American opera ballet been present and witnessd the display of necks, arms, and busts, that they would have rendered a unanimous verdict to the effect that ballet costume was, comparatively speaking, a very tame affair indeed. There seemed to be a rivalry among the ladies present as to which could wear the least clothing without taking cold, and like the display of diamonds, it may be justly said that no such decollette show was ever before witnessed at the white

Much to the astonishment of people who had expected that there would be a long discussion of the Anti-polygamy bill in the house of representatives, the house substitute for the Edmonds-bill was passe on Wednesday without a division, and without so much as a roll-call being demanded. The bill as passed makes the lawful husband or wife of any person prosecuted for bigamy, polygamy, or unlawful cohabitation, a competent witness against the accused. Provision is also made for the registration of marriages, and it is declared to be a misdemeanor to violate such provisions.

At a meeting of the medical society of the District of Columbia, held during the week, a committee was appointed to consider the question of the best management of inebriates, and to suggest legislation to that end. The committee, in its report. says: "The inebriate is a public nuisance to be abated. A man can not do what he to be abated. A man can not do what he likes with his own. The social compact is a public trust, and society demands protection from violence and from the deterioration of the race. * * Confinment should be for a number of years, or for an indefinite period. Less than a year will seldom prove of any benefit." The committee recommends that a home for the inebriates be built upon a farm in the neighborhood of Washington, and further suggests that the liquor licenses should be doubled in price, and that revenue derived therefrom to be applied to the maintenance of the inebriate asylum, thus rendering apparent the relation between cause and effect.

On Friday last the interior of the Wash ington monument was brilliantly lighted with seventy-five incandescent electric lights, the object being to test the lighting apparatus. The monument will no be regularly lighted until provision is made by congress for running the elevator.

TERMS ALWAYS REASONABLE

Klapka's Proposal to Gen. McClellan. Soon after Gen. Scott retired I received letter from the Hungarian Klapka informin me that he had been approached by some of Mr. Seward's agents to get him into our army, and saying that he thought it best to come to a direct understanding with myself as to the terms, etc. He said that he would require a bonus of $100,000 in cash and a salary of $25,000 per annum; that on his first arrival he would consent to serve as chief of staff for a short time until he acquired the language, and that he would then take my place of general commanding in-chief. He failed to state what provision he would make for me, that probably to depend upon the impression I made upon him. I immediately took the letter to Mr. Lincoln, who was made very angry by it, and, taking possession of the letter, said that he would see that I should not be troubled in that way again.

Cluseret—afterward minister of war

under the Commune—brought me a letter of introduction from Garibaldi, recommending him in the highest terms as a soldier, man of honor, etc. I did not like his appearance and declined his services; but without my knowledge or consent Stanton appointed him a colonel on my staff. I still declined to have anything to do with him, and he was sent to the mountain depart-ment as chief of staff, I think.—Gen. Mc-

A Pawnshop for the People.

While all this talk is on about a people's pawnshop I want to say that here is an oppawisnop I want to say that here is an op-portunity for a goodly number of the young men of Chicago to do a good thing for themselves. The object will be simply to have a concern which will loan money on miscellaneous articles of value, and, perhaps on furniture without removal, at fair rates of interest, with none of the robbery or rapacity which now disgraces that business conducted in this city by private concerns. Such an enterprise, managed with skill and discretion, would surely be a profitable one. It is just such a business as 200 or 300 young men of Chicago should engage in on the cooperative plan, with a savings feature. The suggestion is that an association be organized after the general model of the building associations, the stockholders to pay weekly dues on their shares, and the funds thus ac-cumulating to be loaned out on the Mont de Piete or Parisian public pawn shop plan. Interest at the rate of 1 per cent a month could doubtless be realized, which would be much bettter for borrowers than the 2 or 3 per cent. now charged by the brokers, and still high enough to afford handsome returns to the investors.—Chicago Herald.

Stage Folks and Sickness.

The wonder is that sickness so rarely causes absence from the stage. Surely these industrious people who make up the numerous companies catering to the public enjoyments must be of different clay from their fellow mortals. Night after night one finds the same names on the bills and the same faces on the stage, and it seems as if they were blessed by some special protection from the aches and the disorders which drive the sturdiest in other pursuits to gruel and blankets.—Philadelphia North American.

A new swindle is being practiced on the farmers of some of the adjoining counties. Two men drive up to a house and talk about the high price of groceries. A barrel of sugar is taken from their wagon and offered for sale at about half price. The farmer buys the sugar and in a few days he discovers that he has purchased common salt, with a few pounds of sugar on top.—Ex.

A Chicago Heiress to Wed Spies, the Condemned Anarchist.

The Story of Their Courtship a Romantic One-The Prospective Bride a Vassar Graduate, and Worth $400,000.

THEY MET BY CHANCE. CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—The social world will be electrified by the announcement of the marriage next Thursday in the county jail of August Spies, the condemned leader of Chicago Socialists, to

南原

Miss Nina Clarke Van Zandt, the daughter of James K. Van Zandt, of James S. Kirk & Co., the soap manufacturers; the com-ing bride being descended on one side from the Knicker-AUGUST SPIES. bocker families of New York, and on the mother's from the royal family of Stuart, besides being the prospective heiress of $400,000. Miss Van Zandt is twenty years of age and said to be very handsome. She is a graduate of Vassar College. She was born in Philadelphia. Her mether was a daughter of Thomas S. Clarke, the Pittsburgh millionaire, whose vast property, now in the possession of an aunt, will descend to her. The acquaintance, which was destined to have so romantic an ending, began in a rather peculiar manner four years ago.

Miss Van Zandt had a pet poodle which strayed away from its mistress. The young lady called at several newspaper offices to advertise for its return. Among them was the Arbeiter Zeitung, the Anarchist organ, of which Spies was the edi-tor-in-chief. Here she met Spies the acquaintance continued four years, in a casual Strange to say, however, Miss Van Zandt did not learn the name of her handsome German acquaintance. Meantime the riot of May 4 occurred and Spies was thrown into jail. The indictment and commencement of the trial followed, all without Miss Van Zandt's discovering the identity of August Spies, the Anarchist, indicted for the murder of Mathras Degan, with her German acquaintance. Throughout the trial it will be remembered that the busy court-room was daily graced with the appearance of a bevy of young ladies, to whom Judge Gary extended every courtesy. Among these were Nina VanZandt and an intimate friend.

The recognition took place in the court-room while the fair visitor was carelessly inspecting the countenances of the prisoners, and made a strong impression upon a naturally mantic disposition. Day after day found the young lady in a seat near the judge until the conclusion The long arguments had all been made, the stern verdict of the jury read, and the condemned men returned to their cells. Miss Van returned to their cells. Miss Van Zandt called at the

MISS VAN ZANDT. county jail shortly after the conclusion of the trial, and said that she was a friend of August Spies. Jailer Foltz obligingly allowed her to speak with Spies in private, and the visits were often renewed. The entire courtship has taken place in this manner since the end of the trial. In an interview Friday Spies admitted that he was soon to make Miss Van Zandt his bride.

The wedding will be as private as possible under the circumstances. Few friends will be allowed to witness it, and the presence of strangers will be carefully guarded against. The ceremony will probably be performed by Rev. M. Wolsey Stryker of the Fourth Presbyterian Church. A dispatch has been received from Pittsburgh, signed by Mrs. John Arthur, Miss Van Zandt's aunt, whose heiress the young lady is, asking the county clerk to refuse to issue a marriage license to Spies and his intended bride. It is said Mrs. Arthur will disinherit the young lady. Miss Van Zandt, on being shown the telegram, reiterated her intention of keeping her word with her affianced, no matter what the consequences might be.

Urging the Passage of the Price Bill. COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 17 .- The Ohio Legislature has adopted resolutions requesting Ohio Senators and Representaives to urge the passage of a bill introduced by Con-gressman Price, of Wisconsin, which would refund to Northern States the amounts paid by them on the direct war tax assessed August 5, 1861, and would relieve Southern States of the proportions assessed against them and still unpaid. The amount of the appropriation to carry this into effect will not exceed $15,000,000.

Cluverius Hanged.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 15.—By the legal strangulation yesterday of Thomas J. Cluverius for the murder of his cousin, Fanny Lillian Madison, the last chapter was ended of a most sensational crime. The crime was committed to cover up Cluverius' criminal relations with Miss Madison, who was a relative of President Madison, and the conviction was largely on circumstantial evidence.

Bismarck Beaten.

BERLIN, Jan. 15 .- In the Reichstag, yes terday, the Army bill was amended by limiting its duration to three years, instead of the seven demanded by the Government, by a vote of 186 to 144. INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION.

One to Be Held in Cincinnati Feb. 22-Its

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 14.—The National Industrial convention will meet at Cincinnati February 22. Its principles and aims are set forth in a circular which the National Committee is distributing among labor organizations. It arraigns in severe terms and at great length both the Republican and Democratic parties for having catered in every way to the rich at the expense of the poor, and renounces all allegiance to them. The circular asks for the alliance and co-operation of the Knights of Labor, the various agricultural and sol-diers' organizations, the National Greenback, the Anti-Monopoly and Peo-ple's parties, the trades unions, tem-perance reformers, and all other persons who are in sympathy with the objects sought. The plans of organiza-tion are an organizer for each State and Territory, the State organizer to appoint a district organizer for each Congressional district in his State, and the district organizers are to appoint local organizers. Each Congressional district will be entitled to one delegate to the convention.

A PUBLIC PAWNSHOP.

Synopsis of the Bill to Be Introduced in the Illinois Legislature Establishing Pawners' Banks in Cities of the State. CHICAGO, Jan. 18,-The committee of the Citizen's Association having in charge the establishment of a Pawners' Bank in Chiago met on Saturday afternoon, with Comptroller Schwab in the chair. It was decided to authorize James W. Beach, attorney of the association, to draft a bill for presentation to the Legislature providing for the establishment of such banks in all the cities of the State. The bill will be general in its character, and will limit the capital of each bank from $25,000 to $1,000,000. When this act is passed the Chicago corporation will obtain a charter, and proceed at once to take stock subscriptions and open an office. The bank, when started, will loan money to any needy applicant who has col-laterals to offer in the shape of jewelry, household goods, or any other species of personal property. The interest charged will be moderate, and every person hypothecating any article will be required to prove the ownership of the property and to be fully identified. It is the intention of the organizers of this bank to prevent the pawnbrokers from charging ruinous rates of interest, and to effectually prevent the pawning of stolen goods.

AN UGLY CHARGE.

A Chicagoan Under Arrest on Suspicion of Having Poisoned His Three Wives and a Stepdaughter.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Lawrence Krug, the man who has buried three wives within a year, and whose stepdaughter died under peculiar circumstances last Monday was taken into custody Friday evening. It is thought that two and perhaps all of these deaths may have been unnatural. Testimony to warrant such suspicions was brought out Friday at an inquest over the death of Lucy Heidelmeyer, the nine teen-year-old daughter of Krug's first wife, One witness, a nurse of the dead girl during her sickness, testified to actions of Krug tending to show that he had tampered with her medicine. A physician swore that Mrs. Krug No. 8 died from the effect of arsenical poisoning. The body of Miss Heidelmeyer has been exhumed for

TONS OF ROCK DISPLACED

A Break in the Bank of the Niagara

River-The Entire Scenery Changed. NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Jan. 17.—Over 223,has fallen out of the bank of Niagara river, near Horseshoe Falls, on the Canadian side. The mass fell with a tremendous crash, which was heard and felt for miles around. The break has considerably changed the appearance of the bank, and now the dark chasm can be seen behind the falls from the bank above. The mass of rock which fell was 60 feet wide by over 100 long and 170 feet deep. Its fall from the main rock has left a perpendicular wall. The tremendous weight of ice which has accumulated during the last three weeks, with the steady frosty weather and low water, was the cause of the break.

The Constitution Centennial.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Senate special committee on the centennial celebration held a meeting Saturday, and decided with reference to the centennial of the promulgation of the constitution, that the celebration shall consist of an address and some civic and military displays, the de-tails of which are to be settled hereafter. With respect to the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, it was decided to recommend that a joint committee of the two Houses be raised to take the subject of an appropriate celebration in 1893 into consideration.

Terrific Explosion.

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—The schooner Parallel, loaded with fifty tons of giant powder, was wrecked Sunday on the Scal rocks. The powder ignited, and the explosion which resulted demolished the signal and life-saving stations and the Cliff House and shattered the conservatory of Adolph Sutro. The crew abandoned the vessel before the explosion occurred. Three members of the life-saving crew were budly hurt.

Death of General Hazen.

Washington, Jan. 17.—General W. B. Hazen, the chief of the signal service corps, died last evening, aged 57 years. A graduate of West Point, he entered the last war as Colonel of the 41st Ohio volunteers, and rose to the rank of Major-General. His widow, now in France, is a daughter of Washington McLean.

No More Sunday Performances. COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 15.—The House Thursday morning passed Mr. Greeve's bill relating to theatrical, dramatic and other unlawful performances on Sunday. This bill prevents all kinds of theatrical performances, concerts in concert halls, gardens, and panoramic exhibitions. It passed by 69 yeas, 11 nays.

Will Sue for Damages.

TIFFIN, O., Jan. 14.—Mrs. Joseph Pos-tlethwaite, who lost her husband and two sons in the Baltimore & Ohio wreck, will begin suit against the company for $25,000 damages.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1887.

THE weather of this winter will bear a very favorable comparison with that of the most rigorous of its chilly predecessors. It is aptly termed a "regular New England winter."

THE Marshall Statesman began the publication of a handsome six-column folio daily last Saturday. It's first words are, "we're here to stay," and if it continues its present excellence it will be entirely worthy of a patronage that will cause it to

GEN. ALGER had already earned the repntation of being one of the most generous men in the world, but not satisfied with that he now invites Gov. Luce, the state officials and all Michigan to an informal reception at his Detroit residence on Feb-

One of the most noteworthy indications of the great indus rial progress of the Gulf States is the marked attention of their public men to agriculture and the efforts they are making to bring the theory and the methods of agriculture in those States into harmony with the teachings of science and the highest demands of a pro gressive civilization. The South is gradually waking up to the fact that it has superior advantages for all that pertained to material growth and prosperity, and it is a pleasure to note that its leaders are beginning to take active measures for the promotion of its varied interests. One of the most recent events that prove the correctness of our statements is the calling of an interstate convention in the interest of stock-raising, dairying, fruit-growing, and general agriculture, to be held at Lake Charles, La., on the 22d, 23rd and 24th of February. It should be largely at-

LANSING REPUBLICAN: -Congressman Hiscock, of New York, has introduced a bill in the house which may be destined to make Morrison and the democratic free traders squirm. It proposes to reduce the surplus and relieve the people of unnecessary taxation by cutting down the tariff on sugar, paying small bounties to encourage American sugur producers; to abolish the taxes on tobacco; and to abolish the taxes on spirits used in the arts provided they are methylated, which process renders them nauseating to drink without injuring their other qualities. This proposition is substantially in the lines laid out by Senator Sherman, and with more or less modification is likely to combine a great strength in the house, both north and south. All the prese indications are that something like this proposition will become a law. With the abolition of the tax on tobacco, the last of the war taxes except that on liquors will disappear; and the internal revenue bureau with its great army of office holders all over the country, and its methods of prying into private business, will be put in the way of abolition. The government will be brought back nearly on the lines which prevailed before the war, when all its revenues were derived from indirect tariff duties. And the repeal of taxes on sugar and tobacco will be taking taxes more directly off the poor man's principal necessity and principal comfort than any other two taxes it is possible to name.

PROFESSOR EDWARD OLNEY.

The announcement of the sudden death of Professor Olney on Sabbath morning last was received with profound grief by all our citizens. The event, though unexpected at the time, was not altogether a surprise, for we had been aware of the fact that for a long time he had been in feeble health and from the nature of the disease it was not unnatural to conclude that he might at any time pass from among the living. Since his first attack, three years ago, he has been an invalid and in a good measure has retired from all the active duties of life. As a citizen he has not had the strength to engage in the work in in which he had formerly taken a delight and as a professor he has been compelled to give over his accustomed labors into the hands of others. It has been sad to mark the feeble steps of a man yet in the vigor of life as he passed along our streets, and to read in all his movements the sure progress of an incurable disease. He has passed away very quietly, as his friends could wish, and the hundreds who have looked upon his pleasant and composed countenance realine the beautiful image of the scriptures which represents the closing up of a good man's life as a sleep.

Professor Olney was not an ordinary man, but one of nature's noblemen. He was, in the true sense of the term, a selfmade man, and by virtue of his own industry and self-reliance has taken his made amout the first instructors of our in a special department, that of anticipated.

mathematics, he has long stood in the front ranks of American scholars and his name is familar in every institution in the land, and not only here but in Europe as well. But he had a reputation in other lines of thought and it has been known by his friends that had he taken up any other branch of study he would have been equally distinguished. His reading was quite extensive and he was at home in history, in some branches of philosophy, and his carefully selected library shows us that he was familiar with all polite litera ture. For a considerable time he undertook the work of conducting a weekly religious journal and he made it a success. His editorials were bright, timely and shaped to a considerable extent the policy of the denomination to which he belonged. He was engaged at the time of his death in preparing the exposition of the Sabbath school lessons for this paper, a work for which he was eminently fitted, and it is interesting to learn the fact that this was his last literary production, the manuscript for the next Sunday's study lying upon his table. He was a leader in the Baptist church, not only in this city but througout the state. In the annual conventions he was a moving spirit and was more familiar with the internal working of the denomination and its needs than any member of the organization. The beautiful stone structure on Huron Street is a monument to his wisdom and forethought, for it is well known that largely through his own personal efforts and pecuniary sacrifices, far beyond his ability, was that edifice erected.

As a citizen he interested himself in every good cause. He was the friend of the poor, the advocate of the cause of temperance, the promoter of friendship amoung all parties. He will be greatly missed among us. In the University one of the most popular and valuable professors has fallen. Honored by his associates and loved by the students no man could have attained a higher position than he. In all assemblies of worship his presence and voice were familiar. Often in the absence of the pastors in the city and neighborhood Professor Olney was called to fill the pulpit, and the people were always glad to hear him. It is not often we are called to record the death of one so much esteemed and of such eminent usefulness. Long will the name of Professor Edward Olney be remembered as a Christian gentleman without a flaw in his character.

Prof. Frieze's Giovanut Dupre.

The many interested friends of Professor Frieze, will be pleased to learn that his delightful "Giovanni Dupre; the story of a Florentine sculptor," has been very cordially received, and that the first edition ordered from his London publishers, where the work was printed, is about exhausted and an order has been sent for more. It is a charming biography, written in pure English, and replete with de-lightful thoughts. It is well worthy of the many excellent commendations it receives from the highest sources. A quotation from the Boston Transcript, just received, says: "This life of Dupre is a valuable contribution to the history of art; but it has a wider scope by virtue of in-trinsic merit, and becomes a contribution of great worth to the resources of life and Sermons by the Monday Club.

Among the admirable works in the department of Sunday school helps, we place high on the list these sermons by the Monday club. They occupy a field entirely different from the ordinary expositions of the lessons given in our religious journals and monthly magazines. They are designed to present in a condensed and popular way the main thoughts of the lesson and in a practical manner enforce the instruction in the mind. The chapters, or sermons as they are called, are short, pointed and clear in style and are always suggestive and stimulating to the Bible student. Each chapter is prepared by a clergyman of the Congregational church, who has obtained distinction as a worker in this special department. Some of these sermons are especially thoughtful and reliable in their expositions, and they are all most valuable. A copy should be in the hands of every superintendent and teacher, while members of the advanced Bible classes would find this a most admirable and timely help. The volume for 1887 is prepared with remarkable care and is furnished at a moverate price by the Congregational Sunday School and Publication Society, Boston. That it is a standard work may be learned from the fact that this is the twelfth year of its publication.

Representative Manly.

The Evening News relates the following incident of Washtenaw's gallant representative at Lansing: Mr. Mauly made his maiden effort in the house yesterday, and it established him as one of the most vigorous talkers in that body. A resolution has been introduced to provide the employes with badges to cost $2 each. It was amended by Manly, with a provision that the badges should cost but 25 cents each. Thereupon Diekema, the cleverest talker in the house, ridiculed the idea of a 25-cent badge.

Why, the idea," said he, "that in this hall, so gorgeously gilded, with luxurious furnishings, carved desks and easy chairs, we should think of making employes wear a 25-cent badge. Perhaps, Mr. Speaker, we might do our work at pine tables with rough quill pens, but would it be becoming the occasion?"

This seemed decisive, and the $2 badges would have been bought had not Manly thrown back his coat lappel and shown the small bronze badge of the G. A. R. It is about the size of a cent, with raised figures of two soldiers grasping hands.

"And there are men in this gorgeous and gilded chamber who are wearing a badge costing less than 25 cents," said Maniy, with feeling. "It is this regulation badge of the grand army. It cost but 10 cents. If such a badge is good enough for such men to wear, then it is not too cheap for the employes."

Unlike most soldier speakers, Manly did not slop over about those who had fought and bled and died on the battle field. It was merely an apt sally to the oily Diekema, and Manly won a round of applausethe first yet accorded any speaker on a legislative measure.

A Magician's Performance in Cheyenne. "One of the funniest incidents that ever came under my notice," said D'Alvini, the conjurer, " was out in Cheyenne a week or two ago. In our magic performance we use a cabinet, and while the 'spiritual manifes-tations' are going on therein all the lights are turned off in the building. This evening two or three of us were feeling a little glum, and we put our heads together and made up our minds that we'd do something to liven up the performance. In all conjuring shows, you know, there is a board walk from th stage down into the center aisle of the auditorium. We call this the 'run down.' Well, when this cabinet act was on two of us who were not engaged started out to have some sport. The lights were to be out only thirty seconds, and so we find no time to lose.

"As soon as the gas was turned out we skipped down the runway and into the aisle. There we banged around lively among the spectators, hitting one a flat hand elip on the face and then another, pulling their hair, bumping two men's heads together, and playing all such pranks, and as quick as lightning. Just before the lights were turned on we skipped back onto the stage and into the wings, and there stopped to watch the sport. As soon as the light came we saw that there was great commotion in the house. Fifteen or twenty men were on their feet, and half a dozen were fighting with each other. One man had knocked his neighbor down under the seat, and another had his two hands into the hair of the man sitting mext to him. Revolvers were drawn, and is seemed that everybody was accusing everybody else of having taken advantage of the darkness to play mean tricks. It was quieted."-Chicago Herald.

A young man was detected masquerading in woman's clothing in Boston the other day. Buspicion was excited as he was standing in front of a millinery window. The young woman next to him exclaimed: "Oh, do you see that perfect love of a bonnet?" And he replied: "Yes, it's pretty enough, but it costs $35." Then all the women about him screamed, for they knew at once that he was a man in female disguise. - Somerville Jour1886.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

RAYNHAM, MASS., Aug. 12, 1878.

C. I. Hood & Co.: Gentlemen—

I have had ringworm humor and salt-rheum so badly that my body was covered with raw sores; so, also, my head and face. I have had any number of doctors in the last seven years, and none of them could cure me. One day my mother was in the city of Taunton, and found one of your cook books, and in reading it I found many people testifying to cures from the use of your Sarsaparilla and Olive Ointment. I lelt forced to try it, although I had seen many things advertised that never did me any good. I have now taken two small bottles and one large one of Sarsaparilla, and used three boxes of Ointment. I now call myself cured. Nothing can be seen of the humor but the dim outlines of the sores. I shall take two more bottles, and then the cure will be complete.

I am gratefully yours,

EDGAR F. WHITMAN. Ringworm Humor and Salt-Rheum.

Biliousness, Sick Headache.

Messes C. I. Hood & Co.: Gents-Please send me by express two bottles Hood's Sarsapantla and a few Cook Books for distribution. Your preparation has worked wonders in the case of my wife, who has been troubled with sick headache and biliousness for years. She only took one-half teaspoonful at a dose, and has not been so well for five years as now. She found that within a week after taking it she felt very much better, and is now entirely free from those severe headaches. She has not taken any of any account since last spring, and what little she had is lent to do some others some good, and we must have it in the house.

Yours truly,

Senatorial Nominations Made by Caucusing Legislators

Farwell and Morrison to Contest for Logan's Vacant Chair-Harrison and Turpie Rivals in Indiana-Nominees in Other States.

FOR LOGAN'S SEAT. SPRINGFIELD. III., Jan. 14.—Charles B. Farwell, of Chicago, was nominated for United States Senator from Illinois yestermy to succeed to the vacancy, caused by the death of John A. Logan, in the Repub-Scan caucus at Springfield on the second hallot. The first ballot resulted as follows:

Farwell, 37; Hamilton, 14; Payson, 12; Can-son, 11; Henderson, 10; Carr, 8; Burchard, 5; Eaum, 2; Medill, Plumb, Shuman, Morrison and Baker, 1 each. Number of votes cast, 110; necessary to choice, 56.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 14. - The joint Demoratic Senatorial caucus met Thursday evening at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Seventy-Ive of the eighty-one Democratic members of the Legislature were present. R. L. Mc Kinley presided. An informal ballot taker for Senator and resulted: W. R. Morrison, 28; A. E. Stevenson, 16; R. W. Townshend,8; Judge Prendergast,11; Judge Allen, 2; General Black, 1; N. E. Worthington, 5; Judge Phillips, 3; M. W. Fuller, 1—total, 75. As there were seventy-Eve voting thirty-eight votes were necessary to a choice, and there was no nominaresult. The third bailot stood: Morrison, Stevenson, 32; Townshend, 1. Total, 16. Morrison's election was then made ananimous amid considerable enthusiasm. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 14.—The United Labor members, ten strong, met in secret saucus at the St. Nicholas Hotel Thursday right, and upon the nineteenth ballot nomin ated Benjamin W. Goodhue, of Chicago, for United States Senator. The contest was between Goodhue, Streeter and Dixon.

The ballot will be taken for United States Benator in each house of the Legislature on the 18th, and as there is now a certainty that an election will take place on that day the joint assembly on the 19th will have but to announce the result.

TURPIE'S LUCK.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 14.—The Demogratic caucus for the nomination of a candidate for the United States Senate met Thursday night and was in session until ten An informal ballot was taken, in which a dozen men were voted for, McDonald eading with 26 out of 73 votes. McDonald, Siblock, Turple and Holman were then placed in nomination, the first ballot resulting as follows: McDonald, 24: Niblock, 25; Turpie, 19; Holman, 5. Second Ballot-McDonald, 25; Niblock, 32; Turpie, McDonald was then withdrawn, and mother ballot was taken, McDonald, howsot 33 votes and Turpie 38. This was a majority of all present. It was decided that the nominee ought to have a majority of all the Democratic mem-bers, and another ballot was taken, Turpie meceiving 45 votes and Niblock 27. The mominee is at present United States District Attorney, and is one of the best law-gers in the State. He filled an unexpired erm in the Senate a number of years ago.

The Republican Senatorial caucus will probably be held on Monday night, and among the members there is comparative serenity. Harrison will doubtless command the full Republican vote, although there is some talk about opposition to him by two or three members. The total Re-publican defection is estimated by the Democrats at three. Republicans concede

Washington, Jan. 17.—House—In presenting the Inter-State Commerce bill to the House Saturday, Mr. Crisp (Ga.) announced that he would call it up at an early day. That it will pass by an overwhelming majority is generally conceded. Bills were reported for the collec-tion of more accurate statistics of exports, em-igration and immigration; for the consolidation of customs districts, and for the retirement and recoinage of the trade dollar. The joint resolution for the investigation of the books, accounts and methods of Pacific rafiroads which have received aid from the United States was called up but no action was taken.

Washington, Jan. 18.—House—The lower branch of Congress yesterday refused, by a vote of 113 yeas to 137 nays, to take up the Interof 113 yeas to 137 nays, to take up the InterState Commerce conference report to the exclusion of motions to suspend the rules.
The House passed, under suspended rules, the bill for the relief of dependent parents of honorably discharged soldiers and saliors. It affects about 33,000 persons, involving the disbursement of $6,000,000 per annum. Bills were introduced for a pension of $25 per month to Walt Whitman, the poet, to sppropriate $600,000 for the colored people's world's fair at Birmingham, and to negotiate for world's fair at Birmingham, and to negotiate for a site for a custom house and appraiser's stores in New York. Mr. Belmont (N. Y.) introduced a bill "to protect American vessels against un-warrantable and unlawful discriminations in the ports of British North America." The President is authorized to pro-hibit vessels bearing the British flag and coming from such ports from entering the ports of the United States or from exercis-ing such privileges therein as he may defin-

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefited the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufactures Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boshee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.

Mark Twain.

The American press generally appears to have lost conceit of Mark Twain. One reason for this change of feeling may be that Mark has grown rich. It is an unapardonable error for a humorist to be rich. He ought to live in a garret, like James Triplett, be the happy professor of one thread bare coat, and shoes that let the water in. But even under these direful circumstances, 25 cents would purchase him from that most painful of all complaints, Rheumatism. They are advertised everywhere. For Sale by H. J. Brown, Dist. expresses the feeling of many victims of rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica and neryous or sick headache. Having tried numberless so-called remedies, and physicians of all schools, without relief, there seems to be no hope. Many such have as a last resort tried Athlophoros, and to their surprise and joy have found that it was a safe, sure and quick cure. Athlophoros is not an experiment; thousands have been cured by its use and they testify as to its value.

William Blair, train dispatcher of the D. G. H. & M. railroad, Detroit, Mich., says: "For about fifteen years I have been almost a constant sufferer from neuralgia, many times unfitting me for my business duties as well as making life a burden. e strain on my nerves was so great that I nearly lost the use of one of my eyes. I was suffering very much, and had never succeeded in getting anything that would give me but temporary relief, and that was of very short duration. The first bottle of Athlophoros made a very decided change, in fact I had some relief from a few doses probably have used a dozen bottles, and is six months since I had a severe at tack. I keep the medicine on hand all the time: I have some at my office and some at home, so that in case I should need it I am well prepared. I have had times dur-ing my use of this medicine that my neuralgia would come on during my business hours, and by having the medicine close at hand a dose or two would drive the neuralgia away. For neuralgia Athloneuralgia away. For neuralgia Athlo-phoros is undoubtedly the best medicine and I think I ought to know, as I have during the many years that I have suffered had occasion to try about every thing in the line of medicines for this complaint.

Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlophoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle was drowned in the Sacramento river, several months ago, while attempting to rescue a companion. Miss Anderson resided in this city/during her college course, graduating in the literary department of the University, class of '75, and leaving many friends and acquaintances, who will be interested in this story, which was one of her latest productions, and an incident of her own life.]

I was born with the instincts of a true sportsman.

For a long time I was at a loss to know from what source had come my passion for guns and gunning. My father was anything but a connoisseur of deadly weap ons, and my mother never knew the butt from the muzzle of a gun, and was equally afraid of each. After careful digging at the roots of the family tree, the scientific basis for hereditary transmission was vindicated, for I found that my grandmother was a cousin of Kit Carson, the great American hunter and trapper.

While I was a child, it amused my brothers to hear me discuss the merits of choke bore shot guns and breech-loading rifles, but when I grew to woman's estate this highly unfeminine taste displeased and even slarmed them. They were very proper young men, and did not relish the idea of a young lady sister who could take a snipe on the wing, or pierce the bull'seye with a revolver at sixty paces. Dear boys, they feared, too, that such a propensity might seriously endanger my being settled in life.

They remonstated, they scolded; they brought me the accounts of all the dreadful accidents that resulted from the use of fire-arms, and tried to extort from me a promise that I would never touch a gun again. I might have yielded had not an unfortunate circumstance occurred that made me deaf to all entreaties.

An uncle who had heard of my skill, and was queer and old-fashioned enough to admire it, sent me, on my eighteenth birthday, a handsome Winchester rifle, which he had ordered made for me. From that day I ceased to struggle against

Bryant's "Lines to a Water-Fowl" always brought to my imagination other thoughts than those commonly suggested to feminine readers; and not only in thought, but in rubber boots and with game-bag, have I hunted that classic bird on lake shore and river bottom. At one time it was a canvas-back, slowly veering to the south, with neck outstretched and eye of faith; at another, it was a stately mallard or jaunty teal, a spoon-bill or sprig-tail. But I panted for nobler game, I longed for the excitement of the chase; to be where

"The stag at eve had drunk his fill"; to see and be the belted hunter. When I should have been devising patterns for sota cushions, and learning to paint on silk and china, my heart was away on the boundless plains, chasing deer and ante-lope. As Cædmon was haunted by a vision, in which he was told to sing; as Socrates was pursued by a daimon who insisted that he should make music-so, by some strange law of psychology, I felt that my life would never be complete un-til I had hunted the deer or tracked the grizzly in his mountain home.

The opportunity came. Some friends invited me to spend a few weeks at their home in the Sierra. They had a little house among the pines, in one of the most romantic regions of the range.

A hunting-party was formed for my special entertainment, and the night before, as a prelude to the morrow's excite ment, we listened around the fire to the wild stories of the mountaineers. "Old Clubfoot," a grizzly who had been known in the region for fifteen or twenty years, was a favorite topic. No one had had the hardihood to attack since he had pursued a hunter a long distance and killed him with a stroke of his gigantic paw. An enormous trap had once been set for him, and he had caught his foot in it, but with wonderful intelligence, he had gone to the nearest rock and beaten it off. He was seen occasionally in the passing years, and now and then he helped himself to a sheep or calf unmolested.

There was also a white doe among the neighboring mountains which seemed to bear a charmed life, for many hunters had shot at it, but always missed. A superstition had naturally grown up about it and the mountaineers held that some great calamity would attend the person who killed the white deer. These stories aroused my imagination so that I could scarcely wait for the dawn of day, and I lay awake long after the house was still, but was the first one stirring in the morning.

An old hunter, whom we called Uncle John, was the leader of the party, and to his care I was assigned. He had always wished to see a woman shoot, he said, and should have a grand chance to show what I could do.

"Don't kill the white deer!" some one called after us. "No, no," I laughed back; "we'll take the greatest care.' We rode in silence till we reached the crown of a little hill where there was an open, grassy spot. I was close beside Uncle John, when I saw him gaze fixedly shead for a moment. Then, without turning his head, he said, in a whisper:

"Get down quick! Here's your chance! As fine a shot as ever I see. I was down before he had fairly begun to speak, but trembling all over, and my teeth chattered in a most unaccountable

Slip up behind that sugar pine and blaze away," was the whispered order; and, hugging my rifle, I obeyed, all the time with that dreadful shaking. It was "buck ague," as I afterward learned, a nervous affection experienced by young hunters during their first shot at a deer, and even old hunters have suffered from

The beautiful creature, a two-year old buck, stood quietly feeding, outlined against the sky. I leveled my rifle, never noticing that I had not raised the hammer, and pulled with all my strength. It did not "go off." At last discovering the reason, I righted the hammer with a click. The deer raised his lordly head, snuffed the air, and was gone in a series of mag-

"How beantiful!" I cried, forgetting in the novelty of the sight my own stupidity, of which, however, I was not long to re-main unmindful. The look of contempt that greeted me as I turned to Uncle John

"You'll never kill a deer! Never see such a chance since I was born; not ten yards off. Pooh!" And the irate old hunter rode off, leaving me to follow or go back, as I chose.

I have been mortified several times in my recollection; have been "spelled down" as a child in school; have missed the target in archery tournaments, and have been snubbed by a prospective mother-in-law; but never do I remember that my pride was so lacerated as now. The sunshine suddenly lost its brightness the fresh, fragrant stillness was no longer a delight, and desperate thoughts flashed through my brain of putting an end to my wretched existence.

A last I determined that instead of returning home to brood over my sorrow, I would strike off by myself into the woods, and redeem my reputation by taking home at night some trophy of my skill. The soothing sunshine and delicious air by degrees restored my equanimity and hope was high in my bosom. I scanned all the ravines closely, and looked wisely on the ground for tracks of beasts. I rode long and far, and when the sun was high threw myself beside a little spring that bubbled from the rocks, and ate my luncheon, allowing my horse to graze near me. On my right was a small patch of green herbage, across which the tall pines cast a sombre shadow. There was not a sound except that of the horse feeding. I was too high for birds; they were below in the valleys, though now and then a vulture sailed majestically around some distant peak. The loneliness and silence of the place began to be oppressive.

Suddenly there was a rustle in the tall grass under the pines. Looking up I saw the head of a deer. I seized my rifle, and, leveling it, fired with a steady hand. A deafening report crashed through the stillness, and there escaped into the air a white deer! I sprang to the place. In the blood-stained grass lay the noble animal, struggling with death. I felt a thrill of superstitious horror; something as an old Egyptian must have felt when he killed unwittingly the sacred ibis, or the Ancient Mariner when he slew the albatross. I tried to stanch the blood, but the murderous ball had done its work too well. Hardly knowing what I did, I took the head of the dying creature into my lap. In the large soft eyes were reflected the rocks and the swaying pines. As the breath grew fainter the head turned with a convulsive movement, and the fast glazing eyes looked into mine with a gaze so human in its intelligence, that I was almost crazed with grief and terror. hurried from the spot, only to find that my horse, probably frightened by the rifle-shot, had disappeared. I was alone and miles from home.

I discovered, too, that I lacked one of the most necessary requisits of the true hunter—ability to find my way under all circumstances.

It was already afternoon. I started to go back on foot the way I had come as nearly as I could remember it. When I reached a point high enough to command a view I did not feel reassured, for the mountains looked all alike, and range after range stretched away on every side, silent and relentless as the tomb. There was not a living thing in sight but a buzzard circling about a far-off peak.

At last I set off in a direction where l thought I recognized familiar rocks. The killing of the white hart weighed heavily upon my spirits, and filled me with vague fears. The stories of the night before added to my uneasiness. There was the danger that I might meet a bear. I had my rifle and three dozen cartridges in my belt, but Uncle John had said: "Give grizzlies a wide berth.' What could I do if I met one?"

The way grew more and more intricate. Now I had to climb over bolders, and now force my way through tangled undergrowth, from which I emerged into the shadow of pines so gloomy that twilight seemed suddenly to have fallen.

There was a crashing of bushes, as of some heavy body pushing itself through. I tried to run, but the roughness of the ground made me stumble at every step. The noise came nearer. I knew that it could be nothing but a bear, and every other anxiety was swallowed up in present terror. I remembered that grizzlies do not climb unless the tree is neither too large nor to small. Ten yards to the left stood a slender tree, with trunk clear for fifteen feet.

I sprang toward it, and although I had never been able to climb a tree before, I climbed now without a moment of hesita tion, and scrambled to a seat among the branches. I shook so violently that I had to hold on by main force to keep from talling. I had been there probably thirty conds when there shuffled from the bushes, with awkward but impressive gait, a monstrous grizzly bear.

I had dropped my gun in the excite-ment, and even had I kept it I should not have dared to fire. As the great beast snambled along I saw that he was lame, It was old Clubfoot, the terror and autocrat of the mountains. He was headed directly for my tree. My blood curdled and my breath stopped. I have no distinct recollection of the next few seconds. He approached within ten feet of my hiding-place, rolling his heavy head from side to side as if aware of an unseen foe. Then he passed on and was lost among the trees. remained motionless for nearly an hour, fearing to descend. Then I crept noiselessly in the direction whence old Clubfoot had come. My rifle, which must have fallen against the prostrate trunk by which I found it, was broken short off at the breech, the bear having struck at it with his paw in passing.

Imagine my surprise when I emerged from among the trees to find the same little grass plot where I had killed the deer. At first I could not believe it, but there was the spring with the rock by which I had sat, and the remains of my luncheon lay scattered on the ground. I was tired, as well as weak and nervous, after the fright the bear had given me. But it was becoming a question of life and death, and I was not willing to die. Carefully gathering the scraps of bread and meat that I had thrown away, I resolved to follow the nearest cañon down to its mouth, which I was sure would lead me out into the open country somewhere. The sides were so steep that I had to let myself down by clinging to roots and overhanging branches. I plodded on doggedly. In the heart of the cañons unnumbered horrors lurked, and the rocky walls rose on each side of me, toweringly in-surmountable. I began to wonder if I had to go back, when I was startled to see open before me what seemed almost a bottomless pit. The declivity was probably not more than fifteen feet, but it looked very terrible to me. I could not leap that distance, nor could I climb around the steep and slippery sides. A tall tree grew from the lower level, however, and by leaning far ou: I caught a branch and thus climbed down. I felt certain that now I must be very near the valley floor, for I had been des-cending a long time. Behind me, in the hollows of the cañon, the shadows of evening were already lying. I had sprained my ankle in the descent-an injury that at any other time would have disabled me. but now could not be allowed to impede my progress I limped along, hoping and fully expecting to see, at a turning not far off, the valley before me, the green fields, and the dwellings of men.

How were my hopes mocked when I found, instead, a precipice fully sixty feet deep. With a cry of horror, I drew back and wrung my hands in despair.

Had I been saved from the jaws of savage beast only to die more terribly by starvation, or to be dashed to pieces in a rocky chasm?

Nature had never seemed to me so piti-

The stony walls looked down at me in awful silence. The yawning precipice at my feet seemed waiting with a sickening expectancy.

Before this I had been afraid to speak aloud, for fear of rousing some wild ani-mal; but now I felt that I should be glad to see or hear anything with life, even i it were a savage. I shouted myself hoarse but only strange echoes answered me from the frowning woods.

The shadows grew deeper. I must do something—anything.

It occurred to me to make a rope of some of my clothing, and thus descend. It was the work of but a moment to take off my long stockings and tie them together, and then to add my scarf. All this made only four or five yards in length. I tore the skirt of my stout waterproof suit into strips, which I tied together, until I had what seemed enough. Then, fastening a stone to one end, I crept to the edge and let the rope down to measure the distance. It still lacked a little. The deficiency was soon supplied from the sleeves of my jacket. The root of a pine afforded a convenient place for attaching the rope; and, having first tested every foot of it, to make sure that it would bear my weight, I was ready to swing off.

Several times I look over, and my head grew dizzy. I decided to go backward, to obviate that difficulty. Fearing my shoes would be a hinderance in my cling ing to the rope, I pushed them over, to-gether with my cartridge belt. Another hesitation and heart-sinking, and I was fairly off. I reached the bottom sore and breathless, but safe. Another trial awaited me. In the gathering gloom I could not find my shoes, and the stones cut my tender feet at every step. Moreover, I dreaded rattlesnakes, and listened with painful acuteness for the warning rattle. I did not hear anything, and soon lost that fear in my overpowing anxiety to reach some human habitation.

It grew dark so rapidly that I had to use my stick at every step, as a blind man does, to feel the way before me. Before had groped along many rods my guide gave me timely warning of a chasm. Feeling for a stone, I hurled it forward and heard it strike far down below me.

I could go no farther-at least until daylight-so, drawing back a few feet, I sat down to wait. I was so weary that I fell immediately asleep. I was awakened by a rifle-shot, followed quickly by a second report, but they sounded a long way off.

I started up and tried to shout an answer, but my over-strained throat could make no noise except a hoarse croaking, like a child with croup. I was sure the shots came from my friends, searching for

In the pocket of my jacket were some matches that I had not before remembered. It was not a moment before I had scraped some dry leaves together and set fire to them. A number of cones had fallen from the pines above, and there was a mass of dry chaparral, so that I had no lack of fuel. By the blaze I could see the nature of the place around me. I was standing on a platform much like the one from which I had descended. On one side was the cheer wall, on the other the precipice.

I was hemmed in by prison walls. I heaped on branches till the flames ran high and made a roaring sound, whole canon was illuminated, and the tall pines shook like spectres in the fantastic ight I stretched my hands toward the genial warmth, and felt that salvation was near, for my friends must see the light.

A cracking noise at a little distance drew my attention. Chaparral cones, the pines themselves, were ablaze. I had set the canon on fire. Dismay succeeded my short-lived gleam of hope. In front was the chasm, behind the fire. I was two rods from the ledge, and the flames crept toward me. I moved forward. This sudden and awful danger gave me a voice. I screamed wildly as the fire reached out long, adder-like tongues for

A voice above shouted to me. "Quick, quick!" I cried, "or it's too

The fire had driven me so near the edge that a step would have hurled me over. I felt the terrible calm that comes to one when hope is dead. I saw two snakes leap upward in the blaze and writhe about each other in agony.
"Catch this, and tie it under your arms," shouted a voice, and a rope fell at my feet. I was saved; but never since have I cared for hunting. I was cured by the dying look of the white deer.

EGYPTIAN LUXURIES.

PREPARATION OF COFFEE IN THE LAND OF THE NILE.

A Delicious Brownish Black Liquid with Light Colored Froth on Top-Modus Operandi of Smoking a Narghileh-An Alexandrian Cafe.

Inquiry into the method of preparing the delicious coffee of Egypt—coffee served in minute cups, even smaller than the after dinner coffee cups of France and of the same straight sided shape—brought to light the following facts: First, the coffee should be pure Mocha from the little island so near out in the Mediterranean—and, by the way, it is almost impossible to get the real article, since it is all engaged years ahead. Then the coffee is ground as fine as flour. Next a small amount of the coffee and the necessary amount of sugar are put into a brass or copper vessel shaped exactly like an ordinary baby's tin rattle with the cover taken off of one of the ends. The cup thus formed and containing the mixture of coffee and sugar is filled nearly full of water and is held by the handle over the fire until the coffee boils, then it is withdrawn and allowed to cool a moment, and is then held over the fire and the coffee allowed to come to a boil again; once more it is cooled and after the coffee comes to a boil the third time it is ready and is poured into little cups. The brass coffee boiler generally holds enough for two cups, though larger ones are sometim used, some holding four cupfuls. The liquid is thick and brownish black with a light colored froth on the top, and it is delicious.

After the coffee is drank at the bottom of the cup remains about three teaspoonsfuls of sediment that is like thick mud and is the coffee deposit. This coffee and a glass of water and an amber mouthpiece on the end of the ten foot long flexible stem of the narghileh are the sights above the tables in all directions, and, searching below, we find scattered around the glass vessels half filled with water to which the snaky stem may be

THE NARGHILEH.

It is decidedly a lazy man's smoke, as the tobacco is very mild and half an hour is required to get half a smoke, and how long a pipe will last no one knows. An hour and a half is as long as I have smoked on one, and then it was puffing away better than ever. It may take an inveterate smoker to enjoy one of these water pipes, but when the inveterate does get one he obtains a real treat after he has gotten the hang of it and does not tire himself out drawing too hard. Smoking a narghileh differs from other kinds of smoking in that the smoke all goes through the water below and is thus purified, and also in the method, because in place of short puffs is substituted a deep breath and the smoke is taken into the lungs. It is not possible to smoke the narghileh as a pipe is smoked, so that those fearing to inhale tobacco should never attack this water pipe, also called the "hubble-bubble," which seems a very good name and appropriate, too, as it expresses the noise made by the separate bubbles as they rise to the surface of the water from the bottom of the vertical pipe that leads up to the tobacco.

The natives take their coffee and a strong pull at the pipe, which is a regular piece of furniture, as soon as they get up in the morning, and seem to keep at it all day, too. They claim also that the narghileh is good for colds, and they deserve credit for having found an agreeable thing that is good for any aliment and that will replace fried onions around the neck of the unfortunate soul with the cold.

The cafe is as great an institution with the people of the orient as it is with the French, and the warm climate makes the shaded outdoor tables the popular ones, and they are crowled all day, whether along the Mohammed Ali square and in the crowded business places or in the back alleyways where the visitors sit or recline on cane bottomed lounges and meditatively draw long draughts of peace. Where all these men get a living is a mystery, as thousands of them seem to do nothing all day but drink coffee and smoke. The shopkeeper in his little 10x10 store smokes his narghileh while waiting for a customer. The thing is as necessary to an Egyptian as his hat, and possibly more so; and the comfortable expression on the face of one of these smoking is good to see, -Cor.

"It is a note worthy fact," said a thought-ful railroader, "that the men who operate the railways of this country get more money out of them every year than their owners. In other words, $400,000,000 is paid to the employes, while the owners of the stocks and bonds get in dividends and interest $350,000,000. As for ratio of reward, however, the capitalists appear to have the best of it. In round numbers $8,000,000,000 is invested in American railways. Three hundred and fifty millions is 5 per cent of that sum, showing that the average annual return made to holders of railway securities is 5 per cent. In point of fact, it is much more. In this country there are about 125,000 miles of railway. That would make their cost $65,000 a mile. The actual cost of road and equipment has not been in excess of $50,-000 a mile, and possibly less. It must be remembered that two thirds of the mileage lies west of Pittsburg, north and west of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and east of the Rocky mountains, where railroads are not very expensive. The employes, on the very expensive. other hand, can't water their stock. And inasmuch as the 800,000 employes earn only $400,000,000 a year, it follows that their average carning is $500. Pay the high salaried staff officers out of that and see where the workers are. - Chicago Herald.

He Had Been Figuring. "Well, it does bent all what fools people are gettin' to be," said an old farmer, who sat in a seat in the corner, pencil and paper in hand, "Here I rend in the paper that Mister Abber gives Patti, the opera singer, $3,000 a night for singin', an' 50 per cent of the receipts above $4,000. At a concert in New York the gate money was $9,000, an' Mrs. Patti grows have got $5,000 of that an' Mrs. Phillippust have got $5,500 of that. Great gosh, what a farm that would buy out in Iowa! But I've been figurin' on this thing, and I want you to take a look at the results. The paper says she sang five songs. Jewhillikens, but that's more than $1,000 a song. It couldn't take her mor'n ten minutes to sing one of her pieces, an' that's $100 a minute or nearly $2 a second. By gosh, Pm goin' to have my darters educated to be singers."—Chicago Herald.

M. de Lesseps' Daughter. On her return to Paris, after her recent visit to this country with her father to see the statue of Liberty unveiled, the little daughter of M. de Lesseps remarked of the Americans sententiously: "C'est un grand peuple!" just as a great poet's golden haired baby is reported to have said—pointing from tan guif and the slopes of Vesuvius—"The lines are fine!"--Chicago Times.

Judge Joslyn came near doing something the other day, that he never did before, i. e., write an article for a newspaper. The Evening News, in a recent ssue, accused him of being a prohibitionist, which is, the judge says, a base fabrication, and he had a big notion to tell

None of our distinguished and respected citizens, who preempted the territory, now known as the 'Varsity city, long before the savage red man knew there was such an earthly paradise, fail to remember when such an enormous depth of snow faithfully and passionately hugged the bosom of mother earth.

The play of "Siberia" has had a very remarkable career. It was produced four years ago, and the very integrity of its performances has retained for it a popularity that is unique. It stands at the head of all dramas. No number two company has ever cheapened its value.

Max Buettner, whom we mentioned as having "worked" several of our German citizens, was found in Detroit last Saturday, by one of his victims, where he is ply-ing the same vocation. Why this fellow has not been arrested and brought to justice is a question that is causing considerable comment.

Orlando Banyer, a colored tough, who has just completed a term in the Ionia house of correction, was arrested yester-day morning by Marshal Sipley, and lodged in jail. He is wanted in Lansing for larceny.

The company belonging to "Siberia," notwithstanding the fact that they have been playing in it for four years, are re-quired to rehearse the whole play every two weeks. A careless rendering is thus corrected or averted.

The city band cleared about $125 out of their dance last Friday evening. Miss Annie Graf received first prize for the lady appearing in the finest costume, Miss Georgia McGuire second and Miss Minnie McNally third. For the gent appearing in the finest costume Will Seery received first, John Miller second and John Weinmann third.

A thrilling story from Miss Anderson, a graduate of the University, is given on another page of this paper. Our interesting Washington and Lansing letters are printed on the second page. More type has been set for The Register this week than for any other paper in the county and that happens about every week.

The teachers of the Zion Sunday School society elected the following officers last Wednesday evening: President, Frederick Schmid; vice president, Mr. Merkle; secretary, Miss Bertha Birke; treasurer, Fred Belser; treasurer of poor fund, Eugene Spoehr; librarian, Frederick Belser; assistants, E. Seyler, Martin Belser and Miss Mary Lohr.

A young lady from Mt. Pleasant, engaged a room at the Cook house, last Friday evening, and to prove that she was from the country blew out the gas upon retiring. She was discovered, however, by attaches of the hotel before anything seri ous occurred. When she left the next morning she took with her a bit of knowledge that will always be remembered.

Bohemian Oats and Red Line Wheat notes are beginning to develop in Washtenaw county, and promise to furnish the attorneys plenty of business. A suit for the collection of a note, $163 87, alleged to have been given for Red Line wheat, was tried in Justice Frueauff's court. A judgment for the full amount was given the plaintiff. The case has been appealed to the circuit court.

The last prosperous play poor Bartley Campbell wrote netted him the foundation of a fortune; but the success of "Siberia" no doub: turned his head. His subsequent plays were carelessly written. Failure resulted. His mind became unsettled, and the famous playwright is now the inmate of an asylum. The hope of his recovery is slender. The history of the drama in America could not be written without giving Bartley Campbell a prominent place.

Under its new management the Detroit Tribune has largely increased its circula-tion and influence. It is a thorough ag-gressive and reliable republican newssaper, and at the same time it contains all that goes to make up an interesting and instructive family paper. Its original and select miscellany, its admirable arranged market reports, its interesting agricultural and household departments are among the many commendable features of this excellent paper. The price of the weekly Tribune is only $1 a year; The Daily Tribune, $5 a year. THE REGISTER will receive subscriptions for The Tribune at the above rates.

At the annual meeting of the German Workingman's society, of this city, the following officers were elected: President, Eugene Oesterlin; 1st vice president, John G. Grossmann; 2nd vice president, Chas. Binder; recording secretary, George Visel; corresponding secretary, D. F. Allmendinger; treasurer, Frederick Schmid cashier, John Meyer; doctor, John Kapp, M. D.; trustees, John Walz, Geo. Koch, Christian Lutz, Geo. Miller, Wm. Herz, Adam Wahl, Frederick Gauss. The report of the treasurer showed the society to have a balance of $3,054.35 to their credit. Fonrteen new members were taken in during the past year.

Captain Allen, of Ypsilanti, is the personification of pluck. Originally hailing from Sharon township, in Washtefrom Sharon township, in Washte-naw county, he drifted down to the Greek named city, where he hung out his shin-gle and where an admiring constituency has been in waiting to shower honors up on him. During a legislative career, his Lansing friends nick-named him "Foghorn Allen." His voice is equal to a locomo-His voice is equal to a locomo tive whistle when signaling down brakes It matters not where he speaks within the state, his voice can telephonically be heard at any point within its borders. That voice, however, has been the making of him. It has landed him in the lower house of congress. Everybody loves Captain Allen-even to the ladies and demo crats, a thousand or more of the latter having cast their ballots for him in No vember. The Captain is an orthodox Presbyterian, able to fill a pulpit on specia! occasions, or superintend a Sabbath school if need be. If he would eschew tobacco, to which he is enslaved, he would be a model man. As a taffy-dispenser at mid-summer picnic gatherings he is pre-emi-nent. Captain Allen's bill against the republican party is a very lengthy one, and beginning with March 4, the account will undergo a process of liquidation at the handsome rate of $5,000 per annum. Un-dismayed by defeat in '84, he re-entered the race in '86; and distanced his competitor.—Saginaw Journal.
