Hos. N. W. Cheever Replies to Rev. W. H. Ryder.

In reply to the further questions of Rev. W. H. Ryder, contained in your isne of March 24, I shall be obliged to ask the reader to refer to that paper for the uestions, as they are too lengthy to quote n this article. To the first question we answer, no. Still the amendment by force of its own provisions, destroys all property ghts in liquors, except for certain specified purposes, and this will check the liqfor traffic, more than the present tax law. Destroy all property rights in ready-made clothing, and the business would be sadly orippled, if not destroyed. The liquor deslers have unanimously concluded that this would be the result, and are acting

To the second question, I answer, that I have never seen a copy of the state constitution of Iowa, and have had no ocession to become familiar with the decisions of the Iowa supreme court in regard to that constitution. It would take more time than I can spare now to make such examinations. We are justified however, in concluding that there is some difference in its provisions or in the construction of its provisions by the courts, because, in Michigan, the rulings of the courts rendered the old prohibitory law practically inoperative, while in Iowa the law is practically operative and effective. We have only stated, in the previous answers to questions, that it is very doubtful, whether under our present constitution, a statute could be passed that would destroy all property rights in liquors. We are justified in these doubts, among other things by the fact that after these decisions of the supreme court, the so called "search and seizure" sections of the statute were repealed, and no attempt was made to amend the statute in that regard.

To the third question we answer that in Maine for many years before the constitutional prohibitory amendment was passed the "search and seizure" clauses of the statute were maintained and enforced, while in Michigan they were not. We can only say that the course of legislation and the decisions of the courts in this state, render it extremely doubtful whether such provisions could or would be sustained under the present constitution. The people now propose to remove these doubts at once, by passing the prohibitory amend-ment, and not wait for years of legislative and judicial wrangling over the ques-tions. It should also be noted that the people of Maine became convinced, after many years trial, that constitutional pro-hibition was best, or at least was necessary to render statutory prohibition fully effective, because after these years of experiment with statutory prohibition they have passed, by a large majority, a prohibitory constitutional amendment.

To the fourth question we answer, yes. Certainly the courts without any statute, have confiscated or destroyed property that was proved to be a nuisance and likely to endanger the health, etc., of the people residing near the nuisance. But will the courts hold that the sale of liquors is a nuisance? I believe they never have done so, and if they would to what extent and under what circumstances would they determine that it is a nuisance? The whole matter is full of doubt and uncertainity, and it is to settle these doubts at once, that the people propose to establish con-stitutional prohibition.

To the fifth question we answer, no, because the constitution destroys all property rights in liquors and prohibits the manufacture and sale of liquors except for certain purposes. A statute will be passed making it unlawful to keep liquors for sale except for the purposes specified, and giving authority to search for and seize and destroy any liquors kept unless kept for lawful purposes. The rule seems to be quite well settled, that where a law prohibits the sale of an article generally and then contains an exception of a few specified purposes for which it may be sold, or requires a license to authorize the sale, the burden of proof is upon the de-fendant to show that he is within the exception, or has the license, in all civil suits, and in all criminal prosecutions, to recover penalties for violating the law. And in any event the amendment would authorize statutes, to be framed, that the burden of proof would be upon the person having the liquors, to prove that he has them for lawful purposes. A simple test will determine that the liquor found is mtoxicating liquor, and then the person complained of must show that he is within

On the other hand take a case under the present law against selling to persons in the habit of getting intoxicated, etc., where the business is lawful and the burden of proof is upon the prosecutor. Some one hangs around a saloon two or three days and finally sees the person in the habit of getting intoxicated, go up to the saloon bar and get a drink. Complaint is made.

The person who saw him drink is put apon the stand. Ques. "You saw A go into the saloon of B yesterday?" Ans. "Yes sir." Q. "Well, what did A do there?" A. "I saw him buy and drink a glass of whiskey." Cross examination. Q. "How far were you from A when he drank?" A. "About twenty feet." Q. "Could you smell the liquor?" A. "No." Q. "Didn't taste it?" A. "No sir, but it looked like whiskey." Q. "Yes, but there are a good many things, are there not, that look like whiskey?" A. "Yes, certainly." Q. "Will you swear then that you know that what A drank was whiskey?" A. "Well, really, no I canwhiskey?" A. "Well, really, no I cannot." That ends the case. A doesn't the military bands of the world.

know that what he drank was whiskey, and the bar keeper could not remember that he sold A any whiskey, and the jury smile and say "not guilty." That farce has been acted over so many thousand times in this state under the present law, that the people are tired of it and propose to put the shoe on the other foot, and they know, for it has been tried, that the farce will end if the amendment is carried. Where all property rights in a given article are destroyed by a constitutional provision, you can easily restrict and control that article, you can make and enforce more speedy and effective remedies in regard to it. While, if the article possesses property rights or is property, you can only deprive a citizen of it, if at all, by due process of law, which we have all learned is a very long, tedious and expensive proceeding and practically inopera-tive at least as regards the liquor traffic. It does not require a lawyer to know that giving intoxicating liquor all the characteristics and rights of other property will strengthen it and make it more cult to restrict and destroy it, while, if you take away all such rights you render its restriction easy and its final destruction

The sixth question contains the oft repeated suggestion that the statutory provisions are more desirable than the constitutional provisions, in the main, because they are broader, stronger and more effective. If we can obtain statutory prohibition, we certainly can obtain constitutional prohibition, with statutory enactments to make it completely effective. In theory, con-stitutional prohibition is broader, stronger, more effective and much more easily executed. In practice, Maine, after years of experiment, has adopted constitutional prohibition as the best and most effective method of dealing with this evil. The constitutional provision enlarges our powers against this evil, and does not take a single valuable weapon from our hands. It only does away with the liquor tax which is vicious in principle and onpells, the men who earn from a dollar to two dollars per day to pay about eight or ten thousand dollars of the taxes in our city, more than they ought to pay, and I believe since the law was enacted, according to Duffield, these poor men in our state have paid $8,166,921 over and above their just portion of the taxes. I do not now thirk of another provision of our present law that is not in harmony with the amendment. We all know that all the liquor dealers prefer the tax law to the constitutional amendment, and is it really worth while to favor their measures on account of at least very uncertain in-dividual preferences for one of two proposed measures against their traffic. war we never adopt the suggestions of the opposing generals.

The seventh and eighth questions I confess, surprise me a little. The proposition they contain is in substance this: "You have no reasonable ground to suppose, that our legislature will pass a given class." of statutory enactments, until you have constitutional provisions under which, you can convict the members of the legislature of perjury, unless they obey the constituhardly necessary. It is contrary to all ex-perience in this class of legislation, and all other classes of legislation. Society could not exist if men were thus constituted. Members of the legislature are very sensi-tive to public opinion expressed at the ballot box. It only required twenty-five thousand votes in Michigan, to compel the submission of the prohibitory amendment.

The ninth question we answered before, or thought we did. It is true that under the tax law the number of saloons in the state have decreased, still the best evidence we can obtain shows that the amount of liquor used per capita, has steadily an l greatly increased. It should also be noted that the liquor makers and liquor sellers have unanimously decided that constitutional prohibition will be enforced and will prohibit. To a man, they prefer statutory prohibition to constitu-tional prohibition. They have an unwavering affection for the present tax law, and they fight nothing so desperately as

Lastly follows three fical injunctions to

To the first, we say that by the amendment we only lose the power to tax the traffic, which the people are satisfied is worthless as a restrictive measure, while we gain the destruction of all property rights in liquors, with few exceptions, which will cripple the traffic by rendering all contracts in regard to them void, will give us a permanent policy which can only be changed by a vote of the people, will render restriction easy and final destruction possible.

To the second, we say we propose to do the very thing suggested, by passing the amendment, which will perfectly accomplish this object.

To the third, we say we propose to fol-low the example of the good people of Iowa. We are going to make such a con-tinued and determined fight for the amendment that we will get it.

Bandmaster Gilmore defines the relations between the String Orchestra and the Military Band, in the following pleasant vein: "Figuratively speaking," said he to a reporter, "the string orchestra is feminine, the military band masculine. The string orchestra may be as coarse as a very coarse woman, or made as refined as the most accomplished la y. So, too, the military band may remain as a rough street tramp, or he may undergo a polishing that will make him a perfect gentleman, equally fit from a critical standpoint, to occupy the drawing room with his more sensitive sister. This is what I have tried to make of my band," continued Mr. Gilmore, "and you can say, if you will, that somebody may bring the string orchestra to such a degree of per-fection as to make it a very Queen among its kind, but (and here his eye flashed)
My military band shall be King!" and this is the position, that by common consent, Gilmore's Band now holds among

P. S. Gilmore was leader of the "Boston Brigade Band," the "Suffolk Band of Boston," and the celebrated "Salem Band," previous to the organization of his own band in 1858, bringing each organization, for the time, into great prominence. He gave several seasons of Promenade Concerts in the Boston Music Hall with great success. His band was present at the inauguration of Presidents Pierce, Buchanan, Lincoln and others, and at most of the political conventions, including the last democratic convention, held in Charleston. S. C., before the war, which broke up after several days, without making a nomination. As the convention adjourced angry calls were made upon the band to strike up a war hymn. "Give us the Mar-sellaise," shouted a stentorian voice, to which Gilmore reponded by striking up "The Star Spangled Banner," alternating it with "Hail Columbia" and "Yankee Doodle," until the last man had left the

John J. Robison, Esq., and others:

GENTLEMEN—I observe in he Detroit Free Press of this morning a request with your names appended that, in connection with Prof. Kent, I should "address public meeting * * * upon the advantages of a system of taxation of the liquor traffic overprohib tion." Had I been consulted before this petition was circulated my name would not have appeared in it. I am not in favor of a system of taxation of the liquor traffic as opposed to prohibition. I believe in prohibitio. I hold that every drinking place is a nuisance and a curse and should be closed up as soon as possible. Taxation may be of profit as a half-way station to be held for a little while as we pass from an untrammeled traffic in liquor to absolute prohibition, but in my judgment it is not the ultimate policy, nor is it to be opposed to ore intrastediwith prohibition. My opposition to the proposed amendment is due to the conviction that it will introduce legal complications and difficulties which will delay the day of securin the extinction of this mischlevous business. But while I have my own convictions concerning these legal questing involved, I have not the technical knowledge which is essential to that comprehensive and profound discussion of the subject to which its importance entitles it. I should be very glad to listen to such a discussion from so sound a lawyer and so excellent a man as Prof. Kent. I must decline, however, to be more than a listener at such a meeting. The publicity given to my name in this connection entities me to request that the same publicity be given to this letter.

Yours very truly. in the following letter:

A Sad Accident.

The citizens of Pittsfield were startled last Thursday by the announcement that John George Schlee had been killed, by a tree falling on him. The facts were these: The deceased was working for Amos Lohr, and about nine o'clock shouldered his ax and went to the woods to cut down trees. At dinner time the bell was rung but he not putting in an appearance in proper time the bell was again rung; after waiting for him some time a boy was dispatched to the woods to look for him. The boy had no sooner entered the woods than he saw the young man lying on the ground, evidently suffering great pain, and just able to speak. He could talk enough to say that when the tree fell it struck him, but where he could not say, but indicated that the back of his neck hurt him. The boy immediately procured assistance and carried him to the house, when medical aid, and his parents, who reside in Lodi, were summoned. Dr. Darling, who was called, found his left limb broken in two places, and a severe fracture to the skull, which caused concussion of the brain, from the effects of which he died about seven o'clock in the evening. An inquest was held Friday morning by Coroner Jenkins, who found that the deceased met his death in accordance with the above facts. The remains were taken to the home of the parents in Lodi, where the funeral was held Sundsy morning.

The deceased was a German, aged 21 years, and was spoken of, by those who knew him, as an honest and hard working young man, of a kind and genial nature, and was accumulating some money. To his parents his sad death was a severe

OUR LANSING LETTER.

Wednesday the legislature will adjourn until next Wednesday, April 6, at 9:30 P-M. The members desire to go home to vote, and it is barely possible some of them may have more or less fence repairing to look after.

The "age of consent" bill has been engaging a good deal of attention the past few days, and the end is not yet. The discussions in the house have called out large audiences daily, the larger proportion being ladies. There is a difference of opinion between the house and senate in regard to the age at which the protection of the law in the matter of consent should stop, the former favoring 14, the latter 16 years. The joint committee to whose consideration the bill was consigned reported 15 years as a compromise between the house and senate, but neither body seems to be in a compromising mood, and when the bill reached the house it was amended and passed at 14 years. This action is unsatisfactory to the promoters of the measure, who realize that if the bill passes fixing the age at 14 years it is destined to remain there for many years to come, and that any efforts to change it at future sessions will be futile. It is their hope the senate will force the house to make the age 15 years or fail to pass the bill. In the event of the failure of the bill to pass at this time it would give those who favor 16 years, an opportunity to cultivate a stronger public sentiment in favor of their views and insure their adoption two years hence. It is my impression, however, the bill will be disposed of this session.

Some tip-top speeches were made anent the bill, notably that of Representative Diekema, of Holland, who made an eloquent plea for placing the age at 16 years. He believes every possible protection should be thrown around the morals of the young, and that as matters are at present there is too much laxity all around. Mr. Diekema is a good speaker, and when an earnest advocate of sound morality, as on this occasion, says things that are good for men to hear and heed. He was load-ly applauded on taking his seat. Among the speeches which occasioned unusual remark among the ladies was that of Representative Cass E. Herrington, of Pontiac, not alone that he was on the wrong side of the question, but because of his remarkably plain way of giving expression to ungallant things. He oarries some old fashioned, unvarnished English about with him for emergencies, and when he wants to make a point indulges in no circumlocution in getting there.

After the bill had passed the housethe vote being 89 ayes, nays 0-several members felt it incumbent upon them to explain their votes, and some of the ex planations were new, amusing and peculiar; the queerest, perhaps, being that of "Pat" Stuart, of Wayne, who said: "Mr. Speaker, with the understanding the sen ate will raise the age of consint' to 16 years I voted aye." Pat, like Sampson, Pat, like Sampson, brought down the house.

The railroad men met with the house judiciary committee last week and discussed the Barker and other railroad bills. Then they went home to return in force next week Thursday. As there are somewhere in the vicinity of 50 bills effecting railroad interests it is quite natural the capitol should be frequently visited by large, earnest and anxious railroad lobbies. It is stated that when a member runs short of material from which to construct a bill he tackles railroads.

One of the schemes leveled against the railroads to which the public will inter-pose no objection is the reduction of passenger fares to two cents a mile. If the legislative passes are rescinded as proposed such a reduction may be chalked down among the certainties. Other states pro-pose to wield the same retributive knout,

So mote it be. Representative Ogg's bill providing for blowers which shall carry away all dust arising from emery wheels in use in factories, has been approved in committee of the whole. It enforced this act would undoubtedly tend to prolong the lives of all polishers who have to constantly breathe in the dust; and as these blowers can be provided at a small cost there is no valid reason why the law should not be enacted.

The report of the committee on fisheries recommends an appropriation of $27,-102 for current expenses of the fish commission for the two current years, and a special appropriation for certain permanent improvements, which include $100 for the Detroit station, $175 for the Petoskey station, $110 for the Glenwood station, $4,500 for the Paris station and $150 for the examination of waters. The report and accompanying bill were referred to the committee on ways and means. This is about the amount usually appropriated for piscatorial purposes. The appropriations for the deaf and dumb institute had a heavy cut in the house committee. Items for special buildings, aggregating $47,000, were cut down to $23,000, and an allowance of $18,000 for extra land cut to $6,000. The hospital and cottage were also cut from $18,000 to $5,000, and the $5,000 asked for the electric light plant and the $5,200 for a railroad side track running to the institute were both struck out. The amount for carrying on the institution was allowed at $52,500, or $175 per inmate.

The senate bill appropriating $30,000 for completing the freecoing and decoration of the capitol has been favorably reported by both committees.

The senate has tabled and will kill the resolution requiring an investigation of the insurance companies. This is another case wherein the senate feels the house was "too fresh."

A bill to prevent persons from unlawfully using or wearing the badge of the G. A. R. has been reported.

Representative Oviatt's capital punishment bill got 50 votes in the house. One more little "aye" was all it needed to pass. It is not dead.

Building and loan associations can now be organized and incorporated. The act takes immediate effect. Lansing, March 29, 1887.

To the Editor.

In replying to Rev. Dr. Ryder's second communication, it is with no hope of adding any "information" to the stock already in his possession, nor of moving him from the foregone conclusion announced at its close, to do what he can to "vote the amendment down." Dr. Ryder's queries this time are too long, to be answered as in my last, question and answer in one, and I desire to trespass lightly as possible on your courtesy and space.

Dr. Ryder's 1st, 7th and 8th questions concern a single contingency and may be embraced in a single reply. If a mandatory amendment to the constitution of Michigan providing in explicit terms that the "legi-lature shall enact laws" to enforce its provisions, is duly adopted by the people, and the legislature refuses to comply with its commands, there will be a power in the state superior to the people. There would then be a mountain to consider compared with which the "arrest and conviction" of a few liquor dealers would be a mole-hill indeed. The question would then be one of revolution. In that contingency we should find Dr. Ryder, no doubt, doing as he did on a similar occasion twenty-five years ago. He would stand with the loyal, and do his best to make short work with usurpers. But precisely as before, he would find his efforts hampered by shirks, false peacemakers, the timid and those who keep tellowship with iniquity. One would think that the contemplation of such a contingency as these queries suggest would have had a different effect upon Dr.

However, the supposition involved in these three queries, that members of the legislature of Michigan are capable of swearing to support its constitution and straightway of deliberately ignoring and defying it and the people back of it,—defiantly committing "perjury" in the terms of these queries, may be left to the consideration of future legislatures as being the parties most concerned.

Such things have been, on a national scale. But that was when men's consciences had become so debauched by the recreancy of public teachers to the enormity of another great evil, that they lost the distinction between perjury and patriotism. The recreancy of the profes sional moral and spiritual guides of the nation more than a y other cause, in that instance, cost the nation its half million or more lives, untold suffering, uncounted treasure, but with no loss in the long run, to truth or to humanity. In this conflict, however, with the greater evil of slavery to intoxicants, the people have shaken themselves loose from false conservatism.

This time they have the lead and mean to keep it.

Queries 2 and 3 may be worth a reply to some minds. "The effort to amend the constitution of Iowa" failed, as Dr. Ryder does not deem it necessary to explain, through a legal technicality. The people who had given some thirty thousand majority (I think) for the amendment, were a constitution unto themselves, their legislatures and their courts. Far from showing a treasonable disposition to commit "perjury," the legislature recognized the force and spirit of the amendment, though their oaths did not embrace the letter of its provisions. They simply executed the will of the people, and so at length did the courts. If we in Michigan choose to take a more direct, safe, and certain course, profiting by our neighbor's experience and missakes, what objection can Dr. Ryder interpose? pro vided he is in sympathy with the movement to prevent the trade in intoxicating liquors utterly, really regards that business as sinful, and the use of alcohol, in health, always and everywhere an injury to man.

Maine did "confiscate and destroy" liquors some thirty years, without constitutional prohibition. But her people, by nearly fitty thousand majority, considered that method insecure, so long as it was exposed to the contingencies of politics and partisanship. They testified by the same ballots to their devotion to the principle underlying prohibition, and to their preference for constitutional prohibition over all other methods of fighting the manifold evil. If we are invited by Dr. Ryder to take lessons from the example of Maine he should first open his eyes to the force of his own illustrations.

The statistics in Dr. Ryder's 9th query are specious and misleading. I do not assert that they are intentionally so. They furnish one of the most powerful arguments for constitutional and legal prohibition, state and national, as against any licensing system. I have a boy nine years old, whom a salcon keeper's imp in this University city lately sought to entice into his hell, who could impart "information" to Dr. Ryder over these "statistics." Even he could tell Dr. Ryder that eightytwo breweries, employing six hundred and twenty-seven hands, are capable of producing, and do probably produce, more beer than one hundred and forty-eight breweries employing six hundred and twelve hands. How promptly this busi-ness shows the effect of high license laws everywhere to concentrate it under the control of fewer capitalists, to increase the number of hands employed and the capacity of breweries, these figures show. Numbers are no safe guides in estimates of this sort. The actual evil and extent of the traffic cannot be told in figures. Three English breweries flood all Asia, Africa, South America, Australia and the islands of the Pacific with their poisons. The least valuable of these concerns is held to be worth over sixteen million dollars; and that of Guinness lately changed hands at nearly twice that sum. A single brewery in Milwaukee would gladly furnish Michigan the half million barrels or more she drinks. Under the licensing system nothing may be gained in the statistics of consumption, the soli-

Does the fact that distillers and wine compounders find it more profitable to centralize their business in Chicago and freight their concentrated poisons over Michigan indicate a diminution of their

tary objective point of sincere and ardent consumption? Are watches less common since the Waterbury, Waltham and Elgin factories took the business of their manufacture out of Swiss cottages? Dr. Ryder has so far saved his conscience in the display of these figures, that he nowhere states his belief that the changes and processes of concentration he notes, have diminished the consumption of liquors in

And this is after all the point of departure between Dr. Ryder and those with whom I shall act. Dr. Ryder is satisfied with the present methods of dealing with a damnable system that threatens my dearest interests. I am not, for the inter ests I guard are exposed under it. Dr. Ryder nowhere concedes his belief that the trade in intoxicating drinks as beverages, is an evil, a sin, and should therefore be outlawed and prohibited. I do so believe. Dr. Ryder's timid and temporizing policy may cover some cherished reservation of his own, honorable to himself and which I respect. I am free from any incumbrance of that sort. Holding as I do with the highest and well-nigh universal medical authorities of the world that alcohol is an injury always to the organism in health, to me the use of it in a religious ceremony would be blaspheming.

"Shun drugs and drinks that work the wit abuse; Clear minds, clean bodies need no Soma juice."

expresses my creed as to intoxicants. Dr. Ryder's "ifs" and "supposes" are little to our liking. We have a natural distrust of the prophetic spirit which discounts the future in the interests of expediency, or timidity, or time serving. The lamp by which we prefer to be guided is that of experience, under the high privilege of judging men, systems, and institutions by their fruits. The fruits of prohibition wherever we have seen it applied, in Maine, Kansas, Iowa, Maryland, under our own command Oregon, and on the largest scale possible, in Asia, commend to our judgment that method of dealing with this one of the great evils of the ages. The results of every other method of combatting it makes us tremble for the welfare of our children and of humanity. L. L. JANES.

Henry George's Lecture.

The name of this celebrated gentleman although it has been widely heralded, does not seem to have such a fascination in these western wilds as might have been expected from the stir he has created in eastern cities, with his peculiar views and the position he holds as a champion of a new and strange system of things that is soon destined to revolutionize the world, if his words are true. A comparatively small audience gathered to hear him in Unive. sity hall last Thursday evening, composed chiefly of students. The "laboring men," who were persistently invited and urged to be present to hear their especial "friend," did not put in an appearance, with perhaps a dozen exceptions. Not more than seven hundred persons were present.

Mr. George is a gentleman of unprepossessing appearance, about five feet eight inches tall, and weighs about one hundred sixty pounds; wears a full beard of a light, sandy color, and displays a large bald spot on his head. Taking him all in all, he would not be picked out, from a group of men of ordinary ability, as a man of unusual intellect.

On the rostrum he has a very pleasing way, and has the faculty of stating his ideas clearly and forcibly, but not eloquently. For an hour he strode back and forth upon the rostrum, with his hands either behind his back or in his pockets, and delivered in almost a colloquial style his lecture on "Land and Labor."

Mr. George's ideas on this question are so well known to every newspaper and magazine reader that we need not dwell upon them here. When he concluded his address, he gave an opportunity to all who wished to ask questions concerning matters discussed in his address, which several proceeded to do. He responded readily and in a pleasing manner, making clear his views on the topics mentioned.

Prof. Wm. P. Wells, lecturer on constitutional history, among others gave him some "nuts to erack," for most of which he seemed well prepared. In reply to the first question, Mr. George said: I wouldn't change the state of affairs as to the present owners of the land. It is not the intention to take the land and rent it out. Let things stand as they are, but by putting a tax on land value we can collect the value and leave the management of the land to the individual just as it is now. No disturbance in our present arrangements as individuals is intended; nothing

Prof. Wells: Your answer to the last question apparently explains the difficulty that I was laboring under. I understand Mr. George, that your fundamental proposition is that no man should occupy more land than he can use. Am I right in that respect?

Mr. George: You are partially right, yes. I would say that no man should occupy more land than he can use. But I wouldn't enforce that directly. I would enforce that merely by taking the value of the land and then there would be no temptation to take and occupy more land than he can use.

Prof. Wells: That being the case, the fact that the present ownership—or if you call it a monopoly of land-is recognized under our existing system—in what way would you work it out? What compensa-tion to present owners? Or must they surrender to those who come to occupy it, without compensation?

Mr. George: Oh, no compensation to them. I would simply increase the tax, then they would probably sell out. Prof. Wells: Sell to whom?

Mr. George: If they couldn't sell, they could give it away.

Prot. Wells: Then it is simply (to see if I apprehend you correctly) that they are called upon-the present owners to carry out your present system-to give it away without compensation: (Applause).
Mr. George: No. I would give no compensation. Prof. Wells: Then you would call upon the existing owners of property to divide what is recognized property under the law with new comers without any compensathat way, yes.

Prof. Wells: Then I ask you how long would the new comer be permitted to retain possession after he had dispossessed the former occupant to whom the owners gave way, and to which owner no compensation had been given?

Mr. George: If you choose to put it

Mr. George: There is to be no dispossessing of occupants.

Prof. Wells: But the land is to be taken without compensation-

Mr. George: That is to say no occu-pant would be dispossessed. The man might be compelled to give up the land that he is not using. Prof. Wells: How long would he have the right to use it? Mr. George: Forever. As long as he paid his taxes.

Prof. Wells: As long as he pays his taxes? but if he doesn't use it, he must surrender it to the first comer.

Mr. George: No, but whenever he chooses to decline to pay the tax.

Prof. Wells: Suppose two new comers claim the right to occupy the same land; both latoring men, both with the same faculties, capable of the same earning how are you to de ide between them? Mr. George: Then when two men want the same piece of land, that land has a value, and that value I would tax. Prof. Wells: Then I understand that the answer to my inquiries is that the present owners of the property on land are called upon to give it away to new comer and so the next series of occupants have the right to demand it of the first

my answer to your questions. In the first place let me explain to you. I propose to dispossess nobody; I don't propose to turn anybody out or to make a condition in which one man may say that he wants this or that particular piece of land which you are using and that you must get out of it. What I propose to do is to abolish all other taxes and to concentrate taxation upon land value and to bring it up just as quick as may be and take the full annual valuation. Under that state of things a man who was using 1 nd would have the same incentive to use it that he has now and the same right to use it; but it would no longer be profitable for a man to hold land that he was not using, in the expectation of profiting by its further increase in value. Valuable land would be held then by men who were usi g it and would pay the taxes, and land having merely a speculative value would be dropped-eith er sold by them at a nominal sum or given away or abandoned, so that those who wanted to use it could go in and take it. It is just the same principle as that in volved in slavery. I could never hold, though a man had bought another and paid his money for him, that the slave had not the right to make off without paying any compensation, whenever he chose to go. (Applause.) I hold that there should be no compensation, it should be made to the men who have been injured lost. As Emerson puts it: "Pay a ran-som to the owner? Aye, fill the bag to the brim; but who is the owner? The slave is the owner; pay him." (Applause.) There would be no loss to the user; there would be no dispossession of the user; the only men who would lose under this system would be the men who are holding land that they are not usingholding land for speculation. They would be the only losers; and they would be losers only in as far as they hold land for speculative purposes pure and simple; but not the user. Now as to the matter of compensation, I hold that no compensation is to be given. I hold that no one has the right to claim compensation for any change that would redound to the well-being of the whole community and that accords with the natural rights to which other people are entitled.

THE HADDOCK MURDER.

H. L. Leavitt's Damaging Evidence Against Arensdorf.

His Former Confession, to the Effect That He Saw the Accused Fire the Fatal Shot, Corroborated-A Dramatic Recital of the Tragedy.

LEAVITT ON THE WITNESS-STAND. Sioux City, Ia., March 29.—The proceedings in the Arensdorf case yesterday were by far the most interesting yet recorded. Harry L. Leavitt, the theater manager, who confesses to participation in the conspiracy against Haddock, was called to the stand at 10:45 a. m. and was still on when court adjourned for the noon recess. Con-densed into a mere narrative, Leavitt's testimony was as follows: In the latter part of December, 1885, he came to Sioux City, but went away and returned in the first week of January, 1886. He opened his variety theater on Pearl street in February. In June he went East and came back to this place a few days before the killing of Dr. Haddock. Witness knew John Arens-Dr. Haddock. Witness knew John Arensdorf; he became acquainted with him in January, 1886, and bought beer of the Franz Brewing Company to the extent of $50 or $75 a week. Arensdorf was seen at the theater and about town frequently by witness. Leavitt proceeded to describe in detail how he Leavitt proceeded to describe in detail how he became a member of the Saloon-Keepers' Association. After he joined several persons, among them Arensdorf, the defendant, agreed to the proposal that something should be done to rid the town of temperance workers. Arensdorf said there was $700 or $800 in Junk's safe, which he thought sufficient to effect the purpose. Arensdorf said that something must be done, and suggested that Haddock's or Turner's house be blown up or burned down.

The next day witness went down to the St. Paul railroad yards to see Dan Mor'arty and try to get him to whip Dr. Haddock. They were willing to give him $100 for the job, and witness thought him to be the proper person witness thought him to be the proper person for the work. Moriarty refused to whip any-

Witness testified to seeing Dr. Haddock on the stand as a witness in the injunction cases then on trial. The day before the saloon-keepers' meeting, on the evening of August 3, Leavitt met by chance Plath, Treiber, Fred Munchrath, Jr., and two Germans, whom he afterward knew to be Granda and Koschnitzki. They were stand-ing on the Sioux City National Bank corner on frought street talking about Haddock's trip to Greenville. Leavitt joined in the conversation. Witness described the hack ride to Greenville "to see how the preacher got his evidence in the whisky cases."

On returning from "Greenville," which is near the eastern limits of town and is a local designation, the party was driven directly to Junk's saloon. The four men went into the saloon. Arensdorf, Grady, Scol-lard and Junk were there. Then all seemed to start for their homes; at least witness did so. As they reached the street "Bismarck" came up and said the buggy had returned. Arensdorf said: "Let's go up and see." Arensdorf, Peters, Treiber, Plath and Leavitt went toward the stable on Water street, Arensdori and Peters leading. Sherman walked with Leavitt. This was the first time wit-ness saw Sherman. Leavitt saw John Ryan on the street and spoke to him. The party stopped by the board fence corner Fourth and Water streets. Munchrath was seen there by witness and heard to say: "If you lick Haddock, just give him a black eye or something that won't hurt him or get any of us in any trouble." Witness heard Arensdorf say something about "a drunken Dutchman."

The witness described how Haddock came from the stable, moved north on West Water street to the corner of Fourth, turned eastward, and midway on the crossing was met by Arens-dorf, who had walked out from the fence to en-counter him. "They met, and Arensdorf looked into Haddock's face; Haddock raised his hand; the hand came down; Arensdorf passed; then came the shot."

Mr Marsh caused Leavitt to leave the stand and impersonate the assassin. He did this in a highly dramatic manner, illustrating to the jury how the shot was fired by first approaching Marsh, gazing in his face, passing him, and then turning quickly from behind with raised hand against the attorney's neck. This scene corresponded with the one enacted pre-viously before the jury by Witness Fitzsimmons, who saw the shot fired. The witness continued his story:

After the shooting the crowd by the fence stood spell-bound for an instant and then fied. Leavitt ran northward to Ryan's house. The last seen of Arensdorf by this witness he was oing west toward the bridge. Henry Peters followed Arensdorf out from the fence corner, and after the shooting went in the same direction as the defendant on trial.

Witness saw John Arensdorf the next day be-fore the latter appeared at the core ner's inquest. He asked Arensdorf how he felt, and the latter replied: "Very badly." He asked witness if he had seen the deed. Witness anwered in the affirmative adding that it was a bad thing, and he ought never to have done it. Arensdorf asked witness to remain quiet. He said he couldn't fix Henry Peters for any evidence, and thought about sending him over to Nebraska for a few days, and from there to Leavitt testified to having told his wife about the conversation with Arensdorf. At another time he asked Arensdorf if it would not be a good idea for him to plead guilty or self-de-fense. Arensdorf replied that every body had better keep still and then it would be all right. Leavitt told Arensdorf that the matter had been mentioned in the papers and the thing would have to come out. Mrs. Leavitt had advised him to tell Arensdorf not to send Peters or anybody else away. Defendant replied that it was all right and that he would not send that it was all right and that he would not send anybody away. The remainder of the direct evidence related to the time prior to the shooting, when the attempt was made to secure men to whip Dr. Haddock.

Leavitt endured a searching cross-examination for three hours without perceptible change in his manner, and sticking to his story throughout the ordeal. The defense closed its long and bitter interrogation by referring to the fact that his evidence is adduced because of promised immunity by the State. During the story of the killing Arensdorf did not move a muscle. The audience was breathless with interest.

CALLED HOME.

Sudden Death by Paralysis of Dr. Ray Palmer, the Celebrated Hymn-Writer. New York, March 29.-There died in this city yesterday a man whose works are known in every land where the human voice is raised in praise of God-Rev Dr. Ray Palmer. His hymns are in every Christian hymn-book in every language. He was born at Little Compton, R. I., on November 7, 1808. At Phillips academy in Andover he had Oliver Wendell Holmes for a fellow-student. He was graduated from Yale College in 1839. Immediately after leaving college he began teaching in a young ladies' institute in this city, and at the same time turned his attention to versewriting. He had been accustomed to giving expression to his thoughts in verse from early youth, but it was not until his twenty-second year that he wrote his first hymn and the one which is still the most popular of the many he wrote. It was the familiar hymn, beginning "My Faith Looks Up to Thee."
This hymn has been translated into a dozen foreign languages, and is known and sung in every civilized land. Dr. Palmer also published two volumes of verse, one of which was dedicated to Prof. Mark Hopkins and the other to Rev. Richard Storrs. During his long life Dr. Pal-mer had presided over a number of Congregational churches. Sixteen years ago he retired from the ministry, and had since lived quietly in a pretty cottage at New-ark, where his wife died two years ago after a happy wedded life of fifty-three

FAMISHED FOREIGNERS.

A Remarkable Scene at Castle Garden on the Landing of the Passengers of the Wrecked Steamer Scotia.

New York, March 28 .- Five hundred and nineteen of the Italian passengers the wrecked steamer Scotia arrived at Castle Garden late Sunday afternoon. The scene that followed beggared description. They rushed into the rotunda pellmell, shricking and howling for food like ravenous wolves. They crowded around the lunch-tables, climbing over each other and trampling on the helpless women and children.
Pandemonium reigned supreme for fully an hour. The force of the mass of people was so great that the officers who were stationed to keep order were swept aside like straws. It was impossible to regulate the distribution of food. The strong men crowded to the front, with uplifted arms and their eyes starting from their sockets, crying in Italian: "Bread!" "Bread!"

Valuable Discoveries of Mineral Paint, Kaolin and Iron in Pierce County, Wis. Madison, Wis., March 28.—The residents of Pierce County and neighboring places are greatly excited over discoveries of ore in that vicinity, and expect at no distant day to rival the far-tamed Go-gebic range. Veins of mineral paint and iron have been found varying from two to twenty feet in thickness. A fine bed of kaolin has also been discovered there. A new town has been laid out between Knapp and Wilson, in which building lots are now selling at $50. The presence of copper, iron and gold has been known for years, but not in sufficient quantities to pay for mining. It is now believed that large veins exist, and all the farms are sold on "options" at prices ranging from $3,000 to $6,000 for forty acres of worthless farming

164 186 THOS. J. KEECH, Ch'm. A RINGING APPEAL.

To the Republican Voters of Michigan from their State Committee.

TO THE VOTERS OF MICHIGAN:

Notwithstanding recent National and State successes, the Democrats and their allies were signally defeated in November, 1886.

That victory left the opposition divided and dis-

That victory left the opposition divided and disheartened.

The methods adopted by the leaders, the alliance with the Greenbackers, the course of the General Administration have all received severe, unstinted and open censure.

This eritacism culminated in the recent Democratic State convention.

The leaders demanded fusion, the rank and file repudiated it; the methods of the leaders were denounced and their schemes were rejected.

Fusion in Michigan is a reminiscence.

On the other hand, the Republican State convention was perfectly harmonious and satisfactory.

Its platform is wise and conservative, and its

Its platform is wise and conservative, and its candidates are unexceptionable.

The first name on the ticket is that of James V. Campbell, who for nearly thirty years has adorned the supreme bench and rendered illustrious the judiciary of Michigan.

Rising above those who would injure him, he stands a monument of personal and judicial purity and wisdom. His re-election will be a just tribute to a life devoted to the welfare of the whole people of our state.

The next on the ticket is the name of that gallant and able soldier lawyer, Charles D. Long.

Uniting the qualities of a brilliant soldier with the solid acquirements of a studious, painstaking lawyer. Colonel Long will bring to the supreme bench qualities which will give him high rank among the learned jurists of our state and nation. The candidates for Regents of the University are Chas. Hebard and Roger W. Butterfield.

Both of these gentlemen are admirably fitted for the trust which the voters of Michigan will soon place in their hands. Honest, earnest, broad, manly men, they will bring liberal education and practical business experience to bear on the government of our great University.

Taking advantage of this most excellent state ticket, and the absolute lack of harmony in the ranks of the democracy, we can keep Michigan in line with the republican states.

Then we will be ready for the presidential campaign of 1888.

Active, united effort is required.

Then we will be ready for the presidential campaign of 1888.

Active, united effort is required.

Persistent, untiring work will accomplish it.
On election day let the countersign be: "We want one more vote,"
Will you go to the polls?
Will you go to the polls?
Michigan is a republican state.

Keep it so by electing the republican ticket—state, judicial and local.

Belleving you will do this I am yours, very truly,
JAMES MCMILLAN, Chairman.

DETROIT, March 22, 1887.

SEE that the name of Edward D. Kinne is on your ticket next Monday.

WHY did not the Courier published Rev. Dr. Ryder's letter to the citizen's committee?

Vors for the republican candidates and all the amendments, and you will go home next Monday night happy in the corsciousness of having done your duty and used your influence in tayor of good government and good men to carry it on.

ATTEND the caucuses and town meetings and see that the best men are nominated and elected. Every republican in Michigan owes it to his town, county and state, his family and neighbors, and the cause of humanity everywhere, to cast the vote that shows the freeman's will at this important time.

You don't believe that the amendment will pass? then read this: "David Preston of Detroit has received from the working girls, employed at Pingree & Smith's shoe factory, $5.01, raised by penny subscriptions, to aid in providing refreshments for prohibition workers at the polls on April 4th.

Now the ministers will have to shut up, that is those on the amendment side, for one of our esteemed contemporaries said last week: "All this leads us to remark that perhaps ministers are not always the best people to testify in regard to intemperance and evil. They do not testify falsely, but they do not know. They are seldom, if ever thrown in contact with intemperance and wrong doing, and are not the ones from whom to secure evidence." But perhaps it would be well to remember that they are generally the ones who have to preach the funeral sermons of the victims of liquor drinking and for

VOTE FOR HON. E. D. KINNE.

Ann Arbor has an opportunity on Monday next, to show by its vote for Hon. E. D. Kinne for circuit judge, its appreciation of an upright and honorable member of the bar, and no party consideration ought to enter into the contest.

If we approve his professional career we ought to manifest it in terms not to be misunderstood. He has never been an office-seeker, and Ann Arbor ought to be a unit on this vote. Whatever may be the result, let Ann Arbor do her entire duty by her respected citizen and able

IF we could always have as good a mayor as Mr. Robison has made, we would not care very much how he was elected. His official duties have been performed without fear or favor, and yet in a way to offend no one. His administration has given general satisfaction, and he will retire from the office with the respect and good will of the entire community.

Norming short of a constitutional prohibitory amendment will ever make one member of the present city council the right kind of a man to occupy such an important and honorable position. Otherwise our council has averaged fairly well with its predecessors and managed the city's affairs quite satisfactorily. The new council will have important work to do and our best men should be chosen.

THE constitutional amendment relative to the salaries of the state officers, which is to be voted upon at the election this spring, will, if adopted, increase taxation in the state, to the extent of $12,600. This increase is equal to a per capita tax -based upon the census of 1884-of $.00679; or based on the valuation as equalized by the state board in 1886 amounts to $.001332 on $100, $.01332 on $1,000 and $.1332 on $10,000. That is, a man who has property assessed at $10,-000 (on basis of state equalization) will pay 131 cents of this increase.

In the opinion of THE REGISTER, Hon. John C. Finch completely refuted every argument advanced by Messrs. Kent and Duffield, the ablest spokesmen of the liquor interests of the state. Mr. Finch was fair, candid and courteous in all his statements, and fortified them with unanswerable facts. We cannot see how any one can carefully and conscientiously read and analyze the speeches made at the two great meetings at Detroit, and not conclude that it would be for the best interests of a great majority of the citizens of this state to have the amendment prevail.

It is very satisfying to know that in case the liquor amendment should pass, Rev. Mr. Ryder will be one of the foremost and most sealous in its enforcement. It is true he had a long and unpleasant experience with prohibition in his former home in Ohio, but he must recollect that he is living now in a different atmosphere, where the sturdy virtues of a more upright and law-abiding race of men have n irresistable influence towards the en forcement of justice. Michigan is a civilized state, and the amendment laws will be enforced if the people wish them, of which there is not much doubt.

THE farmers suffer about as much from the whiskey traffic as any class of our citizens, and they receive only a very small share of the benefit to be derived from its taxation, consequently they will be quite apt to vote pretty generally for the amendment. Poor people would naturally vote for the amendment, for high license creates monopolies in the liquor business, which only the rich can afford. If liquor is a good thing to have, the poor ought to have a chance to sell it, for that does not require much education, and would not require much capital if it was not for the high taxation. The poorer classes who want to see fair play will vote for the amendment.

Is there is anything that would make a prohibitionist of us, no matter how much we might wish not to be, it is the miserable, sordid arguments used by the Detroit Evening News. It talks just as if it believed the good farmers and intelligent citizens of Michigan could be induced to barter their souls for a little barley or a few hops; as if for a few dollars or cents they would wish to enter the business of drunkard-making and all the miseries it entails on humanity. The News should not talk about the insane vaporings of the prohibition press until it ceases its own ignoble, unmanly utterances about this amendment business. It is enough to stir up the bile of anybody, whether he be prehibitionist or not.

THE REGISTER has cheerfully published all that the opposers of the amendment have offered for its columns, except one article of two columns that its author insisted should appear in a single issue of the paper. We offered to publish the article in two successive issues or in one if it could have been condensed to about one column. We have published about half that has been offered on the other side of this important question, but enough on both sides to give our readers an intelthat reason ought to be allowed to peep a ligent view of the questions at issue. We might have sought out and published more of the arguments of the non-prohibitionists, but as THE REGISTER was the only paper in the city that favored the amendment, we thought it no more than fair to give a large share of its space to the advocates of that side of the question.

OH, Professor Kent! Speaking of the resistance liquor-sellers were likely to offer to a prohibitory law, Professor Kent, at the Detroit mass meeting, said:

And what are the means they are likely to use in withstanding any attempt at enforcement? I will tell you what they will use. They will begin with legal means probably. They will prevent the juries from convicting. They will undertake to overthrow the law and probably they will succeed. If they do not succeed in that, then they will use whatever means God and Nature have put in their hands to defend themselves and what they regard as their most sacred rights.

If that is not encouraging the crimes of arson and murder, what is it? Would the learned professor have our govern-ment deal in the same way with the Mormon question?

The Shah of Persia has asked for a collection of photographs, showing scenery in this country. The collection has been made and among the views contributed by different photographers are some very beautiful ones made by Randall, scenes on the Huron river and around Ann Arbor, and also of our University. One of the leading photographic journals of New York City in referring to Mr. Randall's pictures, says: "The views of Ann Arbor, by Mr. Randall of that city, are beautiful, some of the landscapes, quiet open trees and water, we have seldom seen equalled. It seems as if nature did compose more kindly at Ann Arbor than elsewhere, for these views are nearly faultless pictorialy just as they are, and are full of feeling. The artist shows strongly through them."

Monday morning fire broke out in a chimney, in the Post block on Huron street, and managed to creep into the telephone store room where it cut up so with the electrical apparatus that people were scared well aigh out of their wits and the fire engine was full ten minutes earlier "getting thar" than usual. The fire was extinguished without great loss to any one.

He was sent to the house of correction, Tuesday, to meditate on his evil ways.

Every man, woman or child that has dealt with us has been treated alike, and we are the only house dealing in Clothing, Furnishing goods or Hats that can say the same for themselves in this city. This method of dealing has brought us to the front rank, notwithstanding our competitors claimed for us years ago that such a business could not be carried out. We have carried our point, and the people of Ann Arbor and Washtenaw County have given us their support to such a great extent that our business has grown threefold. We must acknowledge our thanks for the liberal patronage given us and assuring our customers and friends that we shall ever maintain the high standard of our business by keeping at all times the leading styles and correct shapes for each and every season.

The Organization Not Dangerous to the Faith of American Catholics-Injustice of Attributing Violent Demonstrations to the Knights.

GIBBONS' VIEWS. ROME, March 29.—The text of Cardinal Gibbons' report on the Knights of Labor, as published in the Moniteur de Rome, shows that several additions have been made to the report as originally published. Referring to the objections that in this kind of organization Catholics mix with Protestants to the peril of their faith, the Cardinal says:

"Among a mixed people like ours separation of religions in civil affairs is not possible. To suppose that the faith of Catholics suffers shows ignorance of the Catholic workmen of America, who regard the church as their mother."

It being objected that the liberty of the organization exposes Catholics to deadly influences and associates more dangerous than even atheists, communists and Anarch ists, the Cardinal said it was true, but that one proof of faith would not try American Catholics. To such influences they were exposed every day, and they knew them well and despised them. The leaders of the Knights of Labor related how these violent, aggressive elements strove to gain authority in their councils or iusinuate poison into the principles of the association, and also told of the determination with which they were

Special stress being laid upon the vlo-lence, even to the shedding of blood, which has characterized several strikes inaugurated by working-men's associations, the Cardinal says:

"I have three things to remark: First, strikes are not the invention of the Knights, but a uni-versal, perpetual means by which workingmen protest against what is unjust and demand their rights; second, in such a struggle of the multitudes of the poor against hard, obstinate monopoly, wrath and violence are often as inevitable as they are regretable; third, the luws and the principal authorities of the Knights, so far from encouraging violence or occasions for violence, exercise a powerful preventive influence, seeking to keen str kes within the limits of leprotest against what is unjust and demand seeking to keep sir kes within the limits of le-gitfinate action. An attentive examination into the violent struggles between labor and capital has convinced me of the injustice of attributiag violence to the Knights. Their principal authorities have proved the fact that it is as unreasonable to attribute violence to the Knights as to attribute to the church the follies and crimes of her children, against which she

He recognized that the great question of the future is not a question of war, commerce or finance, but a social question touching the amelioration of the condition of the popular masses, especially working-men. Therefore it is of sovereign importance that the church be found always firmly ranged on the side of hu-manity and justice toward the multitude com-posing the body of the human family. The conditions of the lower classes at present can not and should not continue.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking off of revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefited the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of home manufactures Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Boshee's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty-six cents per dezen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have perhaps, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of the bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.

Can't Sleep Nights is the complaint of thousands suffering from Asthma, Consumption, Coughs, etc. Did you ever try Acker's English Remedy? It is the best preparation known for all Lung Troubles, sold on a positive guarantee at 10c., 50c. JOHN MOORE, Druggist.

Mr. Randall's admiration is said to be divided between Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson.

WHY IS IT
That rheumatism and neuralgia are so prevalent? This question has not been satisfactorily answered, but it is certain that these diseases are not only the most painful but among the most common, and some member of nearly every family in the land is the victim of one of these dread tormentors. Ladies seem to be peculiarly liable to neuralgic attacks, which, in the form of neuralgic headache, pain in the back, or nervous pains are of constant oc-currence. Not until the discovery of Athlophoros had any remedy been found for either rheumatism, neuralgia or nervous headache, and they were generally con-ceded to be incurable, but Athlophoros has been proved to be not only a certain cure for these diseases, in all their varied forms, but a safe remedy. If, in the use of Athlophoros, the bowels are kept freely open, its success is certain, and to aid this, Athlophoros Pills are recommended, which, while providing the necessary cathartic, will be found to be a valuable aid to the action of the medicine. Athlophoros is no experiment, it has been tested and has proved its wonderful efficacy.

The Athlophoros Pills were originally orepared as a remedy for use in connection with Athlophoros, for rheumatism and neuralgia and kindred complaints. Used in connection with that remedy, they are a certain cure for either of these very common and distressing diseases. They have also been found to be an invaluable remedy for any and all diseases arising from vitiated blood or general debility. They are es-pecially valuable for nervous debility, blood oisoning, dyspepsia, distress after eating, headache, constipation, loss of appetite, and all stomach or liver troubles. For diseases of women they are invaluable. These pills are perfectly harmless and may be safely used by adults or children.

Testimonials of those who have been cured will be sent free on application. Every druggist should keep Athlophoros and Athlophoros Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist, the Athlo-phoros Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bettle for Athlophoros and 50c. for Pills.

J. C. HOUGH, HOUGH BLOCK Det it. Mic How to Boom Ann Arbor!

Mr. Editor: The writer, whose business takes him around this big state, has it repeatedly dinned into his ears when try ng to boom Ann Arbor by inducing people to move here, that we have forty open saloons to corrupt the young, and has heard repeatedly of boys from the best amilies in the state who have been ruined here. He could name one of the most prominent lawyers in the state who cried like a child when reciting how his boy had been wrecked in Ann Arbor. We can change all this. We can wipe out the saloons. Vote for the amendment and do it. It will boom Ann Arbor big to advertise in big letters in the newspapers all over the country that our saloons are gone. Shut the saloon and all kinds of business will boom too. Money spent for beer and whiskey will go for dry-goods, groceries, toots and shoes, etc. Hear what Samuel Inman, a merchant of Atlanta, Georgia, a city of 34,648 population, where prohibition is well enforced, and no open saloons, says, March 14: 'Children are wearing shoes who never wore them before. Atlanta merchants have all felt the change, (since prohibition passed.) Money that used to go for whiskey goes for home comforts now." Ann Arbor should give a rousing majority for the amendment, It will boom her to do it. The fact will be published from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Help in this booming, Mr. Editor. BOMER.

Further Queries.

An article appeared in your last issue raising doubts in relation to the proposed constitutional amendment and closing with a statement of the writer's conviction that it should be voted down and some other movement inaugurated. This course seems to me so objectionable that I desire to raise some serious queries in regard to that suggested:

1. Will not the failure of the present effort settle the question and prevent any other for many years to come?
2. Will not all who vote "no" on the amendment be taken, and justly taken, as opposed to prohibition itself, in whatever form it might come up? Will they, therefore, be the persons to aid any further plan to the same end, or be likely to move

Will it not be better to vote "yes on the present proposition, so that if it shall carry, we shall not be thrown upon some doubtful future movement, and if it shall fail we shall be in a position to try

4. Has the querist, or any one else, any right to suppose that his plan will suit the majority of the public better than that now proposed? ANDREW TEN BROOK

Is a Reform Needed?

EDITOR REGISTER: It has come to my knowledge, on a number of occasions, during the past year, that children in the public schools of Ann Arbor, are being seriously injured by the methods imposed upon them, by the system of instruction pursued by their teachers. I have no means of judging to what extent such effects are felt throughout the various departments. How many children are being seriously injured by the requirement made of them in their studies, I can estimate only by the number of those I have had occasion to examine. That the number is large I have reason to fear. If this be so, a reform is demanded. The extent of the evil should be first of all carefully measured. Then the cause of the evil should be brought to light; and in this way, we may hope to find an efficient remedy. If there be others cognizant of cases where children are being injured by their school work, who will give the needed information, something may be done to bring about a better state of affairs. Who of the parents, guardians and others in Ann Arbor, will show any interest in this important matter? T. P. WILSON, M. D.

The Hirmes.

The preparations for the Kirmes goes on space. The programme will consist of nine dances: The Spanish dance, the Hungarian, the Hornpipe, the Highland fling, the German, the Swiss harvest dance, the Tarantella, the Gipsy and the minuet, each picturesque and unique in costume, and representing accurately dif-ferent national dances. As the classes advance in acquiring the steps and figures, and the graceful poses of the different dances, they begin to give promise of the ultimate charming effect that will be produced. When under Prof. de Pont's skillful instruction, every part is perfect, and each figure describes a line of beauty and grace. The opera house is engaged for the 28th and 29th of April for the Kirmes, and the programme which it offers will secure a brilliant success.

Gilmore's Band.

Gilmore's Band, "the greatest in the world is on the way here. Popular and classical selections-music

There are a number of modern solo instruments used in Gilmore's Band, remarkable for the novel and interesting effects they produce.

The New Haven Register says: "There is no other band of musicians in the country so deserving, or which can com-mand the admiration of the music loving public as Gilmore's."

He claims that "no country having railways and telegraphs is so little known as Russia. Every type of civilization and every grade of barbarism are found within its boundaries." The illustrations are by the author's fellow-traveller, F. D. Millet, and are capitally done. The conclusion of the article will appear in the May number.

Since last I heard it; bringing back a smile
That floats like sunshine through the dim defile
Of buried years, since by her side I stood, And dreamed and wakened in a summer wood. Friend of my youth! the dream was not for me! Not mine that smile of girlish ecstasy; Not mine that downward look, that sweet, shy

THE ART OF "MAKING UP."

How an Actor Hides His Mustache and Curls-Value of Grease Paint,

Dion Boucicault is a master of the art of "making up," and in half an hour can renew his youth in the dressing room. He does not use a great deal of paint, but he knows just where and how to put it on. Plenty of red over the whole face, deepened on the cheeks, is the first requisite. Then the lines around the eyes are lightened and apparently filled A curly wig covers his head and his long hair is tucked up out of sight. Boucicault never shaves off his mustache, but nobody can detect any signs of hair on the upper lip of Conn in the play. Some actors use what is called a mustache mask, a thin piece of rubber or parchment that can be stuck upon the upper lip and covered. Boucicault's method is more artistic and requires greater skill. He merely paints his mustache the color of his face and sticks it down flat upon his lip. The ends serve to fill up the deepest parts of the lines running from the nose to the corners of the mouth. That is all the artificiality of the face, but the grease paint is applied with such accurate knowlege of the effects of the footlights that the man's face is completely metamorphosed, and he seems to have drank the waters of the fountain of youth. But paint will not conceal the gout, and when that gets into Conn's toe he does not jump about lively. His legs look steady and plump in spite of age and

There again is art displayed. Boucicault has a pair of stout woven tights, lined with lamb's wool, which he wears for the double purpose of keeping his rheumatic legs warm and making them look like an athlete's limbs. The latter effect is obtained by the distribution of the wool in varying thicknesses, so as to fill up any natural deficiencies and give a well rounded appearance, and the lining i woven in the fabrics so that it cannot be come displaced. These tights are beneath the stockings, and their presence never would be suspected. After the performance Conn retires to the dressing room and passes a towel over his face, his valet pulls off the tights and the white haired old gentleman once more appears.—New York Cor. Congressional Electricity. "I think I'll take my electricity," said a member of congress to-day, as he came out of the house into the lobby. "I feel all worn out; that last speech has almost exhausted me. Won't you come along?" he asked of a fellow member.

"I don't mind," the second congressman re-"I think a little will do me good, too." The two members got on the elevator and went down to the basement to take their electricity. It is quite "the fad" nowadays for the members to take electricity. An electric apparatus has been fixed up in the engine room in the basement, and daily the members avail themselves of the opportunity to get freshened up. A board, with a tooth piece of copper, is placed beneath the great belt of the large engine wheel, and the electricity thus generated is carried off by a wire attached to the board, which is long enough to be grasped by one who sits in a chair near by. The circuit is completed by the person holding the wire grasping a small brass chain attached to the railing around the engine's wheel. The system is thus filled quietly with electricity. The members say it is splendid after they have been out to receptions and suppers all brain power by speech making or listening. A great many members take electricity, and some go to the basement of the Capitol for it every day during the session,-Baltimore

Inquiries for China.

You would be astonished to learn how often we are asked the question, "When does the next steamer leave San Francisco for China?" or "New Zealand?" or "Australia?" People, of course, desire to postpone writing their letters or sending any correspondence until the last day so as to get the latest possible news to send. They are anxious, also, that whatever they are sending should be as short a time as possible in transit, considering it safer in their own hands than traveling over land or water. The inquiries for China come chiefly from those interested in or associated with missionary work. In New Zealand there are many Americans, while in that island, also, as well as Australia, there are many who went from the British Isles and whose friends since removed to this country. Communications be-tween friends so distant must be very sweet, the more so as they are by reason of the dis tance limited to comparatively few. Each year witnesses an increase in these mails, due, I suppose, in a large degree to the increasing Chinese population we are acquiring.—Super intendent of Mails in Globe-Democrat.

Mr. Chang Ven Hoon at Dinner. So Mr. Chang Yen Hoon went to the White House dinner alone, Secretary Bayard did what he could to entertain him and the minister took Miss Sternberg in to dinner. He could not converse with Mrs. Cleveland's attractive friend, but he could and did cast sidelong glances as frequently as state dinner etiquette permitted. It is not known whether his admiration for American women springs from innate gallantry, or whether he is falling into American ways. But the coffee and chocolate the minister can dispose of when offered by a pretty woman has often astonished observing visitors who associate his ex-cellency with tea drinking alone. "Oh, of course it's a dose for him, all this chocolate and coffee," said a girl behind a chocolate pot the other day. "You can see it in the wretched expression of his face; but you know he always drinks a lot when there are pretty girls at the tables."—Washington Cor New York Tribune.

Horses of Quality.

The highest class of carriage and saddle horses to be found in New York city come principally from Kentucky, New York, Vermont, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Canada, and now and then a very choice small lot from Virginia. The Kentucky and Virginia horses have, as a rule, more style and finish, or what is termed "quality," about them than those from other states, for the reason that they have a greater admixture of thoroughbred blood in their veins.—New York Herald,

A gentleman who has long and thoroughly traveled over the state, writes us that he knows that there are hundreds of parents who will not send their sons to Ann Arbor for education because of our saloons. Suppose the saloon is exterminated, as in Lawrence, Kansas, with her state university, and 1200 inhabitants, and suppose liquor must be got, if at all, by criminal stealth, would not even the loss of the lamented liquor tax revenue be compensated? Or shall we continue to offer boys at this Moloch, and be still a terror to the wisest homes of the state?

Fire broke out in one of the paint shops at the Jackson prison Saturday night, and for a time the entire building was in danger. The excitement among the the prisoners was great, but extra guards were put on duty and no serious results occurred. Two paintshops were destroyed, entailing a loss of $3,000 to Austin, Tom-linson & Webster. The fire was the re-sult of spontaneous combustion. Warden Hatch estimates the loss to state buildings and sheds at $3,000, and the creamery package company fix their losses at the same figure.

Richard Clark is a well-to-do farmer of Lyndon, and is the possessor of a wife, two sons and two daughters, all of whom live at home. It is said that one of the sons is very abusive to his father, and at times makes life so burdensome to him that he has, on more than one occasion, threatened to take his own life. A few mornings ago he disappeared, and not returning in due time, search was at once instituted. The neighbors were informed of the state of affairs and the country thereabouts was dilligently searched. He was found three or four days afterwards, however, comfortably seated by a neighbor's fire, about three miles distant from his home, and after considerable persuasion was induced to return.

S. S. Miller, of this city, has large interests, and formerly lived at Storm Lake, Iowa, a place of about 7000 inhabitants. Until the probibitory law passed it was one of the worst liquor cities in the state, and badly in debt. The effect of the new law has been to change the character of the place entirely. And its history an-swers well those who fear that the loss of the taxes from the saloons will be a financial loss to the cities. Toy is an old friend of Mr. Miller From his inaugural address delivered a few days ago we quote the following: "We are the chosen representatives of one of the best and prettiest little cities in this great state. We have an intelligent, aggressive and moral people. We have a people who will appreciate and commend our work well done. It has been thoroughly demonstrated that we can conduct the financial affairs of our city without the revenue formerly received from the sale of intoxicants. We are to-day practically out of debt, and will have the revenue of this year to use in securing much needed improvements."
