JOHN G. SAXE.

Interesting Sketch of the Poet's Later Days.

The death of this famous poet, last week, an evening of whose readings the writer remembers to have enjoyed in the M. E. church, now the "Unity building," twenty-four years ago, called to mind the fact that a sketch of the poet was lying in the editorial desk contributed by our popular young author, Mr. George Newell Lovejoy, but which a press of other matters had crowded out of our columns for a few weeks. We publish it now and it will be found very interesting and appropriate at this time.

The Editor:

Is the gifted author of "The Proud Miss MacBride," "The Money King," "The New Rape of the Lock," "The Briefcase Parrot," and other sparkling and captivating productions, both in prose and in verse, indeed forgotten? And if not, how indeed how many people today know of the whereabouts and wordy condition of this poet who, a quarter of a century ago, was the one rival of Oliver Wendell Holmes, and a writer of universal and well-merited popularity since, through the medium of his verse, he threw about the hearts of men and women the witchery of that spell which makes laughter and tears. As for me I had known for several years that John G. Saxe was a resident of Albany, living with an only son—now his only surviving child—and family, at No. 238 State-st., in that city, by reason of ill-health and sorrow a recluse from all society, patiently awaiting the one hour of honor or later to come to him which would call him away to another life.

A sojourner recently for nearly a week at the capital city, I determined, if possible, to call upon Mr. Saxe, and therefore addressed him by note, asking when—if agreeable to him—he could make it convenient to receive me. The next day I received a very courteous note from Mr. Charles G. Saxe, the poet's son, informing me that his father's health was so poor he was reluctantly compelled to forego receiving a call from me as from every one.

Desiring very much to learn all I could respecting the present condition of one whose verse I had always admired, I at once decided to call upon Mr. John A. Howe, jr., Mr. Saxe's private secretary. I did so and for an hour and longer the latter very pleasantly entertained me with matters relating to the poet during the past dozen and more years.

Somewhat over twenty years since, after several years residence in Albany, whither he had come with his family from his native state, Vermont, where he had been not only a lawyer, editor, poet and lecturer, but a candidate at one time for governor, Mr. Saxe moved to the city of Brooklyn, there to devote himself wholly to literary work and the vocation of lecturer. For a goodly number of years prior to this latter date, as for many years afterwards, Mr. Saxe's reputation stood very high and his work as a literary man had met with most signal success from an appreciative public everywhere. So far as good investments and a splendid income each year are concerned, he was indeed well-to-do in the world. He owned a pleasant home on First Place, in Brooklyn, besides he was surrounded by a most interesting family, and life to him was as delightful as he could wish. He traveled a good deal, and each summer was a sojourner at that most fashionable of resorts, Saratoga, where his society—as it had been at other places—was much sought after, and where his ever abounding wit and genial presence caused him to be lionized to such an extent that a much less degree of attention on the part of the public would have made vain and foolish many another not so highly endowed as he was. But thanks to good common sense Mr. Saxe's head was never in the least turned, for there, as ever afterwards, he maintained the same manly, dignified bearing which had always characterized him. During these years, however, with all their good things for him, age was stealing on, after all, and Mr. Saxe was nearing three score, yet the reflection that youth, young manhood and middle life were already things of the past, did not, it would seem, serve in the least degree to make him less buoyant and happy. At a banquet given by the Psi Upsilon fraternity, of which he was an honorary member, at Delmonico's in New York, in 1875, the poet then in his fifty-ninth year, responded to a toast in his honor, and the following sentiment in verse, will serve to indicate how he had come to look upon old age:

Is he old who in spite of his fast-fading curls,
Has a joke for the boys and a smile for the girls?
Is he old who owes nothing to fraudulent art?
Above all, is he old who is young at the heart?

But ere long the somber shadows of deep affliction darkened the poet's heart and heart. One by one three beautiful daughters passed from earth, and the home circle was not what it had been. Then in an hour that followed not long after, the lovely wife and close companion of her husband sickened, and one day a little later on, she, too, was laid away to rest beside the other cherished ones, in the family lot in Greenwood cemetery. The once happy man's cup of sorrow was now full to the brim, and with a severe injury received sometime previously in a railroad accident at the west, he speedily became so changed in mind and body that a new residence among other scenes, was deemed necessary to his welfare. So one day in 1881, all alone—for he desired no attendant,—the broken-hearted man returned to Albany to reside with his two sons. Strange, however, as it may seem to outsiders, but few of the people of that city, know, or indeed take pains to know, that John G. Saxe, the once brilliant wit, is living in their very midst. Yet this very hour within a stone's toss of the state capitol building, this same man, once so rugged in health, light-hearted as a summer bird, and the admired of countless numbers everywhere in our land, in the preferred solitude of his chamber now passes his time, bowed in form, feeble in step, a sufferer not alone from physical ailment, but that saddest of all maladies—Melancholia.

Only a year or so ago one of Mr. Saxe's sons, residing in Albany, whose health had long been in a most precarious state for a long period, died very suddenly. For some time the intelligence of his death was kept a profound secret from his father through fear of the effect it might produce on his mind. But, at last, one day he was quietly informed of the new loss which had come to him. With a surprised air, quickly succeeded by a look of intense aversion he exclaimed, "Oh! why did you tell me about it? I don't want to know!" Aside from the temporary shock upon his mental condition, however, the sorrowful intelligence appeared to have no farther effect than that herein described, and I believe he never after referred to the subject in any way. Literary people at a distance, as also those who are merely admirers of the poet, none of whom are aware of his actual condition, for years past have been flooding out Mr. Saxe, with letters quite as various in character as their number. Some of these contain simply expressions of warm sympathy for the family physician, others kindly request his autograph, others still ask him to do them the favor of transcribing some favorite poem for their album, or solicit information respecting their own, and under what circumstances such and such a poem of his was written, while others expressing sympathy for him accompany the same with direct prescriptions in the way of medicines for the cure of his disease. Wisely enough but very few of these letters ever came to the notice of Mr. Saxe, and it is rarely the case that any of them are answered by his attendants, but all are sacredly preserved in a letter-book for purposes of reference from time to time. Mr. Saxe is visited every few days by the family physician, though but little can be done for him save to make him as comfortable as possible. At times he appears disposed to be sociable, then again he is very much disinclined to converse with any one, while again he gives the strongest evidence of the fact that he is not wholly in a rational condition of mind. He usually takes his meals with the rest of the family, and occasionally, though very rarely, sits with them and joins in conversation. But he never goes out upon the street either to walk or ride, will see no company whatever, and in the main prefers the retirement of his chamber where he can be entirely removed from everybody and everything which can serve to remind him of the world. He no longer cares for literature and those matters which once were a pleasure to him, or for friends, even those who once were dear to him. In other words the poor man may be regarded as having become dead to every endearing tie on earth, even to the extent of being dead to himself. How singular and regretful a termination of an existence once so very far removed from all that could savor of sadness and misery.

GEORGE NEWELL LOVEJOY.

Election Echoes.

Dr. Smith received 1,000 votes for mayor.

The republicans made decided gains all over the county.

Judge Kinne received one vote for justice of the supreme court.

Geo. H. Pond received one vote in the fourth ward for justice of the peace.

In the third ward there were 135 straight republican and only 59 straight democratic tickets.

D. Cramer: "If the democrats had only nominated me for circuit judge what would the result have been?"

Densmore Cramer, Geo. Schwab and M. J. Martin did noble work for Mr. Landon. For proof see returns.

In the first ward 179 straight republican city tickets were voted, and 180 straight republican state tickets. Last fall Luce had 21 majority, this spring Campbell has 44.

The labor vote in the different wards was as follows: First ward, 9; second, 1; third, 80; fourth, 35; fifth, 31; sixth, 5; total, 161.

James Murphy received two votes in the fourth ward for recorder on the prohibition ticket. Paul Snauble received two for mayor.

"If there had only been one more issue of the Argus," said a prominent democrat, Tuesday morning, "Landon wouldn't have got a vote in the county."

Coroner Jenkins will immediately proceed to the Argus office and hold an inquest on the late candidacy of Geo. M. Landon, alleged to have been running for circuit judge.

The editor of the Argus writing to the Evening Journal before election, said: "Washtenaw county will give 1,500 against the prohibitory amendment." Pretty good guessing for a democrat editor.

J. J. Gibson: "The heavy democratic vote given Mr. Kinne in this county is no reflection on the legal ability or party preference of Mr. Landon. Mr. Kinne was voted for generally as a personal compliment to him as a citizen, and because of his especial fitness for the place, and many thought it a good time to rebuke Monroe for giving an almost solid vote against Joslyn at the last judicial election."

THE CITY ELECTION.

The election, Monday, was one of the most exciting ever held in this city, and a very full voted was polled, notwithstanding the cold, raw wind that prevailed most of the day. A more than usual amount of electioneering was done, and no stone was left unturned by the workers to secure votes for their favorite projects and candidates. The interest in the liquor amendment overshadowed all others, and the presence of ladies at the polls added an unusual feature to the occasion. With the exception of a little rowdyism at the second ward polling place, there were no disturbances worth mentioning. The liquor amendment was defeated by 427 votes; amendment relative to salaries carried by 301 majority. The democrats had a majority of 90 on the state ticket. Almost everybody esteemed it an honor to vote for Hon. E. D. Kinne for circuit judge, and his majority reached 1000.

Sky Wonders.

Dr. Ramsay will deliver his lecture on "Sky Wonders" in the audience room of the Methodist church, on Monday evening April 11th. This lecture has been delivered in many places in Michigan and everywhere has been commended in very high terms. It will be an excellent opportunity to hear Dr. Ramsay at his best, and we advise all who can to attend.

The Lapeer Democrat says: "It was a lecture of superior merit, logically conceived and splendidly delivered; full of ripe reflection recent research; instructive and increasingly interesting from introduction to peroration. * * * Some of the leading people of our city affirm it to have been one of the finest lectures they ever heard."

The Free Press of Detroit says: "It was one of the most entertaining and instructive platform discourses ever delivered in Detroit. * * * The discourse showed wonderful thought and memory, and dealt with the planetary system and its effect on the earth in a most exhaustive and comprehensive manner, the speaker using no notes and having, apparently the statistics, distances, measurements, etc., seemingly at his tongue's end, with a remarkably pleasing facility of expression."

OUR LANSING LETTER.

The resultant quiet of the adjournment of the legislature last week was broken in upon at frequent intervals by the slogan and pibroch of the several political clans as they prepared their cohorts for the impending battle of ballots. The leaders and fuglemen of all the armies were at least sanguine if not sanguinary, and fully as demonstrative as on previous occasions. Alas! how different today! While some are more than elated with the intoxication of success, coupled with other things they may have incidentally absorbed in the course of the struggle, others are sitting restlessly under the dark cloud of despondency and brooding upon the bitterness of defeat. The erstwhile confident candidate who went out Monday morning with buoyant hopes and pockets full of slips is cast down from the tower of hope into the dismal valley of humiliation, and the eager worker, deprived of whose services the country would go to ruin in no time, or quicker, is as dispirited and dejected as a Brahma rooster in a thunderstorm without shelter, while his tail feathers droop and draggle as though he felt there was never to be any more sunshine in all the world. But 'twas ever thus—in politics; and perhaps some of you know how it is yourself. Now that the election is over, and the frequently repeated operation of saving the country has been duly performed, we are at liberty to again turn our attention to legislative matters. While I have nothing particularly exciting to recount, there are some matters I may mention that will not be uninteresting to the general reader.

Previous to adjournment for the Easter holidays Representative Damon introduced a resolution to adjourn May 27. It is not likely, however, that any such resolution will be adopted. The members are not simple enough for anything of that sort. Every session, about this time of year, such resolutions begin to make their appearance and keep dropping in to relieve the monotony at intervals of a fortnight or so. But they are never passed; they simply go into a convenient pigeon-hole in the senate and stay there till long after they have passed the "age of consent." The date of adjournment will probably be fixed along about ten days before the session really ends.

Gov. Luce has signed the resolution to pay Mrs. Robertson the salary of $2,000 which would have been drawn by her husband had he lived to hold office for the term which he had recently entered upon. There is a question as to whether the legislature has any right to make a gift of this kind; and there is a further question as to the legality of the manner in which the resolution was passed after the 50 days' limit for the introduction of new business. But the object is so meritorious the governor decided to brush away his objections and sign the resolution.

The fact that bucolic members are frequently given to claiming that the farmers pay all the taxes, has caused Senator Crosby to undertake a little figure work, the result of which does not appear to bear out the assertions of the rural members: Taking the census of 1884, Senator Crosby finds that the population of the state was 1,853,658, of which number 46 per cent. lived in cities and villages and paid 44 per cent. of the entire state tax. This goes to show that the farmers do not carry the financial burden entirely on their shoulders.

There is a bill before the house that is for its purpose the extinction of the ancient and dishonorable fraternity of dead beats. In order to escape the presence of a more powerful lobby than has yet been here the bill was skillfully disguised under the title of an amendment to the statutes relative to the liability to garnishees in justice courts. By the terms of the amended bill, employees of school districts, townships, villages, cities, and counties, of this state, shall be liable to garnishment. That is to say, the dead beating clerks in political offices are to be made liable for their just debts.

The last day of the legislature previous to adjournment was the day Representative Webber, of Ionia, got mad. He is championing the bill for the purchase for the state of $7,000 worth of land adjoining the Ionia prison. The bill had rough sailing from the outset. Mr. Watson cast a stumbling block in his path by stating that the land was disgustingly swampy in some places and altogether unfit for farming; and Mr. Ogg made some remarks similar in purport which still further impeded the progress of the bill. The result was the house struck out the enacting clause, and that's what made Mr. Webber mad.

No sportman that I have met questions the propriety of adopting the proposed amendments to the game law, which passed to a third reading previous to adjournment. The one preventing the killing of quail is especially meritorious, as that handsome little bird, once so commonly known in the state has nearly become like the buffalo in the west, a thing of history only. A senator was heard to remark the other day, that he had imported a hundred quail, placing them on his farm; but that they were nearly all captured and killed in one day by a couple of pot-hunters.

For so ancient a question the matter of text books is decidedly unsettled in its habits. Just now two bills dealing with text books are engaging the attention of the legislature—those of Representatives Manly and Dillon. Mr. Manly had his bill called back from the committee to be discussed in committee of the whole, claiming it was being smothered in committee at the request of a prominent state official. Mr. Dillon's bill seems to be a good one. It provides for a contract being made for a series of books at a low price, which books shall be kept at some central point in the state and promptly furnished at contract prices. No other books than those selected shall be used after Sept. 1, 1888; and said books are to be furnished free to the pupils and paid for by the general fund of the district. Cities are exempt from the provisions of this bill until the question is voted upon by the electors.

The granting of the use of Representative Hall evenings for miscellaneous purposes having become a great annoyance to the industrious corresponding clerks and other officers of the house, and to those members who desire to work at their desks, on motion of Henry Watson a resolution was adopted that for the remainder of the session the hall be reserved exclusively for the use of the house, and for such hearings as have a direct bearing on pending legislation.

Among other bills passed by the senate were two railroad bills reported favorably a short time since, one to require safety couplers on freight cars and the other to forbid the use of stoves or open heaters in passenger cars unless placed in a separate fire-proof compartment. As it reached the third reading this bill allowed until February, 1889, to make the change in the cars, but the senate amended it so as to fix the limit in November, 1888.

The senate in committee of the whole has favorably considered Representative Oviatt's bill providing the proceedings of county boards of supervisors shall be printed in some newspaper. This will give the people an opportunity to know what their local legislature is doing, which they are not likely to know under the plan of printing the proceedings in pamphlet form.

The house ways and means committee has favorably reported a bill making the fiscal year end with June 30 instead of September 30, as at present. It is supposed the state officers could then get their reports all out before the legislature convened. Mac.

LANSING, April 5th, 1887.

LITERARY NOTES.

Mrs. Harriet Taylor-Upton, daughter of Hon. Elijah Taylor of the house, has been engaged in Washington for some months upon an important historical series for Wide Awake, entitled The Children of the White House. The articles will be fully illustrated from original sources. In this work Mrs. Taylor-Upton has the cooperation of many members of the various Presidential families.

Mr. Mason, Curator of the National Museum at Washington, appears in the April Wide Awake with an interesting ethnological paper, "Indian dolls and their Cradles," with twenty-two illustrations by Chandler.

A wise lover of children has picked out nearly a hundred little poems and parts of poems to read to children going to sleep, and has named the book Bedside Poetry.

Such a book without an index, however full of entertainment, would be of little use for instruction. Little sleepy-head would be gone before the sought-for verse could be found. And so there is an index of authors' names, of first lines, and a key to the moralities.

It makes not only a charming book for fathers and mothers who love to be with their children, but a source of increasing delight and growth of the highest sort for the children. Compiled by a son of a man whose love for his brother man has never been and never will be excelled, William Lloyd Garrison. Published by Lotthrop.

"The Popular Science Monthly" for April contains many articles in which everybody will be interested. Dr. Wm. A. Hammond, than whom no man is more competent to form a correct opinion, draws, in the opening article, on "Brain-Forcing in Childhood," a vivid picture of the evils of the book-cramming process which prevails too much in our schools, and pleads for fewer studies, more direct contacts with Nature, and less of the intervention of books. In "Astronomy with an Opera-Glass," Mr. G. P. Serviss shows how much can be done with the simple instruments, and gives plain directions for studying the sky of the season with the one indicated. Every member of the family may be practically benefited by reading his article. In "Social and Physiological Inequality," Dr. H. D. Chapin views scientifically a problem with which the trades-unions are trying to cope. Mr. Barton W. Evermann, in "Bird-Migration," explains the method recommended by the American Ornithologists' Union for the study of the periodical coming and going of birds, and lays out a plan of work which every lover of the observation of Nature can follow intelligently. A sketch and portrait are given of Professor Leo Lesquereux, the distinguished paleontologist, the sketch being by L. R. McCabe, of Columbus, Ohio. The Editor's Table is occupied with discussions of "Science and Statesmanship," and "The Growth of Industrialism," and the other departments are quite up to their usual standard of fullness and excellence. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents a number, $5 a year.

Scribner's Magazine for April opens with the first installment of the long-expected "Unpublished Letters of Thackeray," which more than justify the great interest aroused by their announcement. These letters were written chiefly to Mrs. Brookfield, who is still living in London, and her husband, the late Rev. W. Brookfield, who were among Thackeray's most intimate friends, and they are marked by a freedom that is simply charming, while in no case do we feel that anything is made public which should not properly be revealed. The great novelist's overflowing humor is everywhere apparent in the letters, they abound in shrewd and wise observations on men and things, and are especially interesting for their allusions to literary matters, and to Thackeray's own works in particular. Some of the letters are enveloped by original sketches, the reproduction of which adds much to the interest of the publication, and there are many other illustrations, including a full-page portrait of Thackeray from the painting by Samuel Laurence.

STRONG EVIDENCE.

Starting Facts Drawn Out in the Nichols Murder Trial.

The Jury Listen to a Sensational Sermon on Sunday—An Eavesdropper Tells of a Damaging Conversation Between Schwartz and Watt.

WHAT MISS LEWIS HEARD.

MORRIS, Ill., April 2.—The Schwartz-Watt murder trial yesterday developed a number of interesting and somewhat sensational features. Judge Withrow was put on the stand to detail his conversation with Schwartz. Withrow testified for the benefit of the court while the jury were out that he made no threats to Schwartz to induce him to squeal. Then, to the surprise of everybody, Schwartz himself was put on the stand. He swore point blank that Mr. Withrow had threatened over and over again to give him the fullest extent of the law for bigamy unless he gave up all he knew as to the robbery.

The judge decided to admit Withrow's testimony, and the witness said that he asked Schwartz to account for the large amount of money in his possession since the robbery, but that he would not do so. He then questioned Schwartz regarding his marital relations, and the latter admitted that he had had three wives within the past two years, without a legal separation from either of them. Witness then called an officer and had Schwartz arrested for bigamy.

M. E. Stone, editor of the Chicago Daily News, testified to holding conversations with Schwartz in the jail at Chicago, and said he asked Schwartz to tell where he got the large amount of money he was known to have, but he would not do so. On cross-examination Mr. Stone was asked what he knew about a light punishment of one year being given to W. J. Gallagher in consideration of his giving testimony for the State in this case. Mr. Stone replied that Gallagher had made statements on an entirely different matter of much importance to the State of Illinois. Afterward witness learned from Pinkerton that he had done some service also in this case. The fact was that Gallagher had undertaken to designate the guilty parties in the Chicago election fraud cases, and had done valuable service to the State in that connection.

MORRIS, Ill., April 3.—Assistant Superintendent Chamberlain continued his testimony at the trial of Schwartz and Watt Saturday. On the Tuesday after the murder he found two panes of glass in the trunk of Watt's car broken. He identified the piece of a canceled draft found in the satchel and said he had often seen Watt and Schwartz together.

Coroner T. A. Hand testified to the condition of the body of Nichols when first viewed by him, describing the wounds and personal effects found on the corpse. He thought Nichols had been dead an hour when found. The fatal wound was made on the temple with an iron bar. To the best of his recollection, witness said the hair found in Nichols' hand was sandy.

The jury attending the Methodist Church yesterday, in which Dr. Axtell, presiding elder of the Joliet district, officiated. Dr. Axtell's discourse treated of the power of circumstantial evidence, and included many apt illustrations. One illustration used was the case of an escaped California swindler, who was arrested in India, having in his possession a small piece of paper which completed the chain of evidence against him. This story forcibly recalled to the hearers the little scrap of paper found adhering to the catch of the valise hidden by Schwartz on the train returning to Chicago from Davenport. This scrap fitted exactly into one of the stolen drafts, and is the strongest evidence thus far introduced. The attention of the court would undoubtedly be called to the sermon, and in case of conviction, counsel for the prisoners would urge the point of undue influence being brought to bear upon the jury in an attempt to secure a new trial.

MORRIS, Ill., April 5.—The principal witness in the trial yesterday was Miss Emma Lewis. She said she was acquainted with both Watt and Schwartz; had known the latter since August, 1885; he was living in plain style in Chicago; then moved to Hyde Park, and after the murder of Nichols furnished his house in fine style. His wife also began to dress better and wear costly jewelry. Witness said she went to the house of Schwartz one evening in July last, and that, while there, Watt came in, and he and Schwartz had a consultation in an adjoining room. The door was slightly ajar, and she heard Schwartz say: "You want to shove all the suspicion on me." Watt replied: "No, I don't. You are safer; your father is rich, and you can account for your money." Schwartz then said: "Why did you not bring me two fifties instead of this hundred?" To which Watt replied: "It was dark when I got it, and I took the first I came to." Schwartz said he had not spent any $50 bills yet. At this point witness was interrupted by the entrance of Mrs. Schwartz, and did not hear any more of the conversation. A rigid cross-examination failed to shake her testimony. Miss Lewis also said Schwartz bought some meat at the store where she was cashier, and in paying for it took out a roll of bills of large denominations. He requested her not to mention that he had any large bills, saying that he was shadowing him every since the robbery, and they might make something out of it.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Rev. Dr. Axtell, in a card to the Times, declares that his sermon at Morris, Ill., on Sunday last had not the remotest allusion, either in subject, text, matter or spirit to the trial of Schwartz and Watt. It was, in fact, a sermon written several years ago, and which had been delivered by him in a number of places.

True Bills Found. OTTAWA, Ill., April 4.—The La Salle County grand jury Saturday concluded its work of investigating charges of fraud and corruption in certain of the county offices. Indictments were found against Sheriff Milligan, charging him with perjury and withholding public money; against Treasurer Raymond, charging him with embezzlement and withholding public money, and ex-Probate Clerk Bartels, embezzlement, falsifying the record and withholding public money. No arrest has yet been made.

Armour Fighting a Boycott. PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 2.—The threat of Armour & Co., of Chicago, to start half a dozen meat shops in Akron on account of the boycott against them by local union men has been partly carried into execution. Armour's agent announces that he will sell meat at half the price of local butchers, who are badly scared lest the working-men will not stand by them under such a big cut.

Labor in Illinois. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 4.—The annual report of the Secretary of the Board of Labor Statistics shows that at the beginning of the present year there were 634 labor organizations in the State, with a total membership of 114,305. A record is also given of 160 strikes, in which 42,716 men were engaged.

THE ELECTIONS.

Probable Success of the Prohibitory Amendment in Michigan.

Republicans and Labor Men Both Claim the Victory in Cincinnati—Results in Other Ohio Cities—The Knights of Labor Carry Dubuque, Ia.

IN MICHIGAN. DETROIT, Mich., April 5.—Michigan electors cast their ballots yesterday for two Justices of the State Supreme Court, two Regents of the State University, and two amendments to the constitution besides county officers.

It is almost an impossibility to give definite returns. All reports so far received are scattered and incomplete. However, enough is known to show that the Republicans have elected their State ticket by a safe plurality.

2:30 a. m.—Election returns from one-fourth of the State show a vote of 30,000 against prohibition and 16,000 for it. The counties voting against the amendment are those which contain the large cities, the Lake Huron shore and Lake Superior counties—viz., Sanilac, St. Clair, Houghton, Kent, Wayne and Saginaw.

CINCINNATI, April 5.—The most interesting, uncertain and surprising election for years was that of yesterday. The weather was fair and a large vote was polled. Many manufactories were closed to allow the men to vote.

The first footings made by the board gave Stevenson, the Labor candidate for mayor, a plurality of 10 over Smith, but on re-voting the count a mistake was discovered which overturned the result.

CLEVELAND, O., April 5.—The election in Cleveland yesterday for municipal officers was a surprise to the Republicans. The entire Democratic ticket headed by B. D. Babcock, candidate for mayor, was elected by about 3,000 majority.

TOLEDO, O., April 5.—The election this year is a political revolution in this city. The Republicans have elected the city ticket, strongly Democratic last year, by majorities ranging from 500 to 1,000.

A VICTORY FOR THE KNIGHTS. DUBUQUE, Ia., April 5.—The Knights of Labor ticket made a full sweep at the city election yesterday. Every man on the city ticket and every Labor candidate for alderman were elected.

Sale of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad. NEW YORK, April 4.—The negotiations which began about a week ago between H. H. Porter and President Stephens, of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, were consummated Saturday by the sale of the stock of the company except 4,000 shares at 110.

Tired of Life. BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 4.—Word has been brought from Indian Creek township, this county, of the distressing suicide of Miss Nannie Boruff, a young school-teacher well known in this section.

Opposed to Muzzling the Press. NEW YORK, April 4.—It having been announced that a boycott had been placed by the Knights of Labor district assemblies upon the New York Sun, Typographical Union No. 6 has adopted resolutions denouncing any such attempt to muzzle the press and declaring for the expression of honest opinion of the press upon all matters of public importance.

A Fine Hotel Destroyed. MONTEBERT, Cal., April 4.—The magnificent Hotel de Monte, erected here by the Southern Pacific Company at a cost of $350,000, was totally destroyed by fire during Friday night. Three hundred guests were rescued, but most of them lost their effects.

A NOTED BURGLAR CAUGHT.

Arrest in New York City of John Talbot and Recovery of $300,000 in Bonds and Securities Stolen by Him.

New York, April 2.—John Talbot, one of the most dangerous and notorious burglars in the country, was arrested early yesterday morning by central office detectives on a charge of being implicated in numerous robberies which have been committed in different parts of the United States and Canada during the past year, the principal one being the robbery from Miller & Co.'s safe several weeks ago at Philadelphia of $400 in cash and $300,000 in bonds and securities.

THE BUFFALO HOTEL FIRE. Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.—The First Commissioners and Hotel Proprietors Censured.

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 2.—The verdict of the coroner's jury investigating the Buffalo Hotel fire says that the electric wires and cable proved of great danger to life, impeding the efforts of the firemen, and recommend that the city authorities take immediate action for their removal. It also says that the means of escape were entirely deficient, there being only one fire escape in the building, and censures the chief engineer of the fire department and the fire commissioners for not enforcing strict compliance with the law, and the hotel proprietors for gross neglect of duty.

Over Forty "Boodlers" Indicted. CHICAGO, April 4.—The special grand jury handed in another large batch of indictments Saturday evening and wound up its labors. The investigation is ended for the present. The cases against Ed McDonald, Warden McGarigle and Warden Varnell are on the calendar for the April term, and will be taken up a week from Wednesday. The charges are conspiracy and bribery. In its report to Judge Anthony the jury expressed surprise at the widespread demoralization it had discovered in all Cook County affairs, want of system and almost total lack of honesty.

Death of John G. Saxe. ALBANY, N. Y., April 1.—John Godfrey Saxe, the noted poet, died at the residence of his son, in this city, yesterday. He had been practically a recluse for ten years, the many family bereavements which he suffered undermining his reason to some degree. Mr. Saxe was born June 2, 1816, at Highgate, Vt., graduated at Middlebury College in 1839, and was admitted to practice law in 1843. In 1852 he gave up the law and devoted himself to literature and lecturing, winning world-wide fame as a satirical writer.

Bloody Fight with Texas Timber Thieves. AUGUSTINE, Tex., April 2.—Willis Conner and his three sons fired upon Captain Scott's State Rangers while the latter were hunting timber thieves near Hemp Hill, in Sabine County, Friday morning. A fight resulted, in which three of the Conners and a ranger named Rogers were killed, and Captain Scott and another of his men were badly, if not fatally, wounded. One of the Conner boys escaped, but the rangers are in pursuit.

A Low Rate of Interest. INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 2.—Thursday was the time for opening the bids for the $340,000 loan authorized by the State. Only one bid was received, and after waiting for late mails, it was accepted. The proposal comes from Moller & Co., of New York. They take it at three per cent., but pay a premium of $2.70 on $1,000, which reduces the interest to less than 2 1/2 per cent. This is believed to be the lowest rate ever made by any State in the Union.

THURSDAY, APRIL 7, 1887.

The amendment got a black eye in Detroit. Out of about 26,350 votes only 4920 were in favor of it.

The Lansing Republican will not be so exceedingly funny for awhile. Its witty man will help enliven the columns of the Detroit Tribune hereafter. The republican papers down in that corner need something stimulating.

PONTIAC GAZETTE: Now is the time for the Evening News to kick. Judge Cooley has been appointed at the head of the list of inter-state railroad commissioners. By the way, at the meeting of the attorneys and managers of railroads in Michigan, at Detroit, two weeks ago Thursday and Friday, under the lead manager of Ledyard of the Michigan Central the whole pass system was thrown overboard, of which, we understand notice will be soon given to those interested. This will be sad news to city papers who have ridden railroads to death, and a certain class of country papers whose business permits of more time spent upon railroads than in attending to their legitimate business. The patronage of railroads will now go to newspapers that have a standing and circulation, and be paid for, the same as any other business.

THE ELECTION.

The returns from Monday's election show that the prohibitory amendment has been defeated by about 5000 majority, and that the republican state ticket has been elected by about 8000 plurality. The campaign was short, sharp and decisive. Party lines were considerably disturbed by the great interest taken in the liquor amendment, and that was the great question that over-shadowed all else. The personal popularity of a candidate, and often his position with respect to the amendment had considerable to do with his popularity and success. On the whole the republicans of Michigan have reason to rejoice at their success in this election. Michigan is a strong republican state yet. The strong temperance sentiment of the state shows this. And it is the spirit of this party to give the people the best temperance laws the sentiment of the masses will sustain.

ALTHOUGH the liquor amendment was beaten by a small majority, the friends of the temperance movement in this state feel that their cause has by no means met with a final defeat. They propose to stick to the cause until victory comes, be it sooner or later. There is much to give them encouragement in the present hold the temperance question seems to have on the people of this state, and if the progress that has been made in the past few years continues they will have no difficulty in conquering the saloon when the next attempt is made. In the meanwhile every effort should be made to enforce the present laws. The legislature should be pressed to pass enactments that will aid the cause, restrict the sale, and render more easy the labor of convicting and punishing offenders, and among the people the work of education in this line should go on until a sentiment shall be aroused that will warrant the adoption into our state constitution of a law that shall meet the demands of good order and temperance.

JUDGE KINNE.

THE REGISTER can not help feeling a trifle elated over the fact that the candidate of its choice for circuit judge, the Hon. E. D. Kinne, has received such a grand majority. When his name was first presented in this paper, it was with the belief that he would win in the contest, although the present incumbent had a majority of nearly 2000 which was to be overcome. The result has proven that Mr. Kinne occupies a large place in the popular heart. He has not only overcome the great majority of his predecessor, but was elected by nearly 2000 majority, a feat which has probably never been surpassed in the state. There is no reason to fear that he will not make as good a judge as he has made a candidate for. He possesses broad and liberal views, a well cultivated and logical mind, and a valuable legal experience, that eminently fit him for the position to which he has been elected.

Furthermore his great personal popularity, which made him the choice of nearly all the voters of his district, will be greatly in his favor in taking a position that should be as nearly non-partisan as possible.

INDEPENDENT: The success of the president in his selection of Inter-State Commerce Commissioners has been frankly acknowledged on all sides. Even the Tribune says that Mr. Cleveland has discharged a disagreeable duty "fairly well." It was a difficult task, at least, if not a disagreeable one; for not only were the men few who possess the proper qualifications, but the salary, $7,500 was too small to tempt many of these. Only two, however, Senator Thurman and President White, who were offered positions, declined; but it is said that some of those who accepted hesitated to sacrifice their present incomes for the comparatively small salary. We are grateful to them for finally accepting. Judge Thomas M. Cooley, of Michigan, who heads the list, being appointed for six years, is one of the most eminent jurists of the country. His distinguished qualities have been shown at the bar, as Justice and later as Chief Justice of the supreme court of his state, as law professor in the University of Michigan, and in his published works. Ex-Congressman Morrison, of Illinois, comes second on the list. No one who has watched his career of leadership on tariff matters in the house can doubt his ability, even though few thoughtful men sympathize with his scheme of horizontal reduction. Mr. Augustus Schoonmaker, of New York, has been a successful lawyer, a county judge, a state senator, an attorney-general, and is now a member of the state civil service commission. His experience in the latter office will doubtless be of value to him in his new work. Mr. Aldace F. Walker, of Vermont, will carry into the commission just the experience that is needed. He is a lawyer who has had a very large railroad practice. To him more than any other man is due the credit of breaking up the corrupt railroad ring of his state. Mr. Walter S. Bragg, of Alabama, the fifth member, has also had railroad experience, being a member of the Alabama railroad commission. Even from these brief sketches it will be seen that the president has shown an acute wisdom in his choice of men. The commissioners have a special fitness for their work, and they rightly represent different sections of the country. We may well believe that politics did not enter into the selection; and yet it is a happy result that finds the commission composed of three democrats and two republicans, the latter being Judge Cooley and Mr. Walker. The duty of these five men will be to execute the Inter-State Commerce law. Under their management it will certainly have a fair test.

Jean A. Wetmore, M. S., lit. '81, of New York, was in the city last week, visiting friends. Mr. W. is working up the business of a large electric light company.

George Sanders, the gentleman who laid the great base stone for the large instrument at the observatory, died at his home in Detroit, Thursday evening, aged 91 years.

The glee club has returned and report that their trip was highly successful in every respect. They were entertained, in every city where they sang, by the very best people.

The name of Mr. Cook, the Boston preacher, need only be mentioned, especially to the American public, to create a desire to hear him. He is known for his eloquence and logical reasoning.

The friends of the glee club, who have been wanting to hear them sing, will be pleased to learn that they will have an opportunity to hear them in University Hall, Thursday evening, April 14th, 1887.

A very interesting article written from Rockford, Ill., in regard to the great "boom" the students' glee club gave Ann Arbor and the University, in that section, was received just as we went to press. It will appear in our next issue, and should be read by everyone.

Professor Mosley of the Grand Rapids schools, and Dean Worcester and Frank Bourns, of the literary department, of the University, will accompany Prof. J. B. Steere to the Philippine islands. The party expect to start at the close of the present college year. They will be absent fifteen months.

If not, Why not?
IF a new merchant enters into business in your city and invites every one to come in and get acquainted and learn his business methods, IS it not FAIR to give him a call?
If not, Why not?
IF this merchant sells you as good goods for as little money, and uses you as well as dealers away from home, IS it not JUST to give him a trial?
If not, Why not?
IF other dealers offer you goods which your home merchants can furnish, and maybe cheaper, or else make the outsider sell cheaper, IS it not POLICY to get your home dealers prices and terms before buying?
If not, Why not?
IF a dealer is established in your own city, where you can always find him to have errors corrected and differences adjusted and who is reliable and responsible, IS it not BEST to buy of him where you can know everything will be as represented?
If not, Why not?
IF a man works to merit the confidence of the people, does everything on the square, tells things as they are, uses you honestly and well, IS it not RIGHT to give him your trade?
If not, Why not?

I am here in your city with a full line of Musical goods. The celebrated Haines Bros. Pianos, the New England Pianos, Famous Celestey Organs, and anything and everything a Music store should have.
I'm bound to sell honest goods at honest prices, tell things as they are, and in this way try and build up a trade. If you do not call on me when in need of goods, I can only ask,

COUNTY NEWS.

Doings at Ypsil.

H. F. Sayles is back from his southern evangelistic work.

A progressive euchre party progressed at Chas. Whitman's Monday evening.

Miss Bell, one of the greenhouse proprietors, is ill at her home in Saline.

Mart Tower is back from St. Louis, Mich., accompanied by his friend, Guy Foote, of Detroit.

Miss Coleman, formerly of the Normal faculty, but now of Jackson, has been a guest at D. C. Batchelder's this week.

Mrs. Sarah Turner, matron of the central cottage at the Adrian industrial home, spent Sunday with friends in this city.

Mrs. Chas. Parker and sister, and Miss Grace Mead were guests of Mrs. John Wilson and Miss Kittie Amsden, the first of the week.

A number of our wide awake capitalists have made quite a speck of pocket money by early investments up at the "Zoo," where the boom is.

Mrs. E. P. Goodrich and Miss Fannie Hall will represent the ladies' foreign missionary society and the young people's mission at Presbytery, in Detroit, next week.

Mrs. T. C. Owen is getting up a masque concert, which will be given at the opera house, next Wednesday evening, for the benefit of the Episcopal society. The entertainment will undoubtedly be pleasing and novel.

Prof. George's building, on Congress-st, near the opera house, which for so long has been used as Bennett's livery stables, is being thoroughly renovated and repaired and will be occupied as a machine and pump factory.

At a gathering of relatives with Mrs. Mary Amsden, last week, there was present uncle John Kanouse, of Saline, who is over ninety years of age. Some of his children, grand children and great grand children were also present.

The ladies library society held a candle social at L. A. Barnes, Friday evening, which netted them $8.10. The first prize winners were Mrs. Prof. George and P. F. Powers; booby prizes were carried off by Miss Goodison and Eben Owen.

The lower end of Congress-st, near the river, will be greatly improved by the building which O. A. Ainsworth and others will erect on the corner opposite King's grocery. It is said that accommodations for Cleary's business college will be made in the new buildings.

As Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Parsons and daughter were driving into the city Sunday morning their horse became frightened and after upsetting the occupants of the buggy, made a quick turn into G. C. Amsden's yard, nearly running over a number of ladies on the way; after trying to climb a tree, the equine broke away from all incumbrances and repaired to a neighboring garden, to listen to the church bells. Fortunately no one was badly hurt, but it was a narrow escape from severe injuries.

Election day passed off very quietly here, and, although there was a great deal of interest taken in the amendment question, we heard no particular wrangling over the subject. The republicans got Clark Cornwell for mayor; the democrats secured four aldermen and the prohibitionists one. Water works project was lost, but the amendment came to the front with 65 majority. We believe the township gave a round hundred majority, so Ypsilanti city and town is evidently bound to be on the side of right.

Webster Whispers.

Wm. Boyden has the measles. Reuben Queal is in Detroit receiving medical treatment.

There will be Easter services in the Congregational church next Sabbath.

Geo. Phelps has finished digging the cellar for his new house. He will have a "bee" next week to draw his sand.

The Webster Reading Circle is growing in number as well as in interest. Thirteen persons have joined the circle during the past two weeks. It has now a good library, and there is talk of having socials in the near future for the purpose of increasing the library. The next meeting will be Friday evening, April 15th, at William Scaddin's. A good programme has been arranged.

COUNTY.

Chelsea has a new tin shop.

A Sunday school has been organized in the Cook school house, in Sharon.

Work has commenced on the new school house to be erected in Dexter, this summer.

Prof. L. M. Parks, principal of the Chelsea union schools for the past seven years, has resigned.

A concert will be given in Salem, Saturday evening. F. L. Mallory, of this city, is the director.

The York Baptist church is being repaired, seats being turned around, etc. An improvement much needed.

"Enlisted for the war" will be presented at the town hall, Chelsea, on Thursday evening, April 7th, for the benefit of Pierce Camp, No. 61, S. V.

Mrs. James Albright, of Stony Creek, captured the prize of carrying the mail between Stony Creek and Milan, the new route since Nora post-office was discontinued.

While Rev. Wm. Campbell, of Chelsea, was speaking in favor of the amendment, at Lima Center, last Saturday evening, some miscreant threw a corn cob and hit him in the face.

The farm residence of Orville Hobart, in Sharon, burned last Sunday morning. The fire was discovered in time to save the contents. Insured in the Eastern Jackson Mutual for $1,500, loss $3,500.

Saline Observer: Two Lodi dudes visited Ann Arbor, Tuesday, and called on Arthur Brown, whom they found happy as ever and well pleased with the deputy clerkship.

Bills are out announcing the first annual masquerade, promenade and military ball of Carpenter Post, G. A. R., and Pierce Camp, No. 61, of Chelsea, at the town hall, Friday evening, April 15, 1887.

Dr. Schuyler, of East Milan, thinks all the people in that vicinity are practical prohibitionists, as he neglected to lock his drug store door one night recently, and the next morning found his liquors all right.

Bernhard Listemann.

Friday evening, April 22, will be given the closing concert of the University Musical society course of this season. The Bernhard Listemann troupe, of Boston, will then give one of its justly celebrated concerts. The company consists of a string sextette and three vocalists, all of whom come highly reported both by the eastern and the European press. The New York Sun in speaking of the troupe says, "As to instrumentalists, we can scarcely speak in too flattering terms. The delicacy, refinement, unity, and beauty of their ensemble playing is wonderful." The vocal part of the troupe is composed of Signor Ronconi, basso, Adolph Sailer, baritone, and Boston's distinguished soprano, Miss Anna Clifford.

Dedication of Hobart Hall.

It has now been definitely settled that this beautiful edifice will be dedicated Tuesday evening, April 17th, at 7:30 o'clock. The following order of exercises has been announced: Anthem; lesson; hymn 424; creed and prayers; hymn 190; inaugural address by the bishop of Michigan; hymn 322; address by the bishop of western Michigan and the president of the University; hymn 277; prayer and benediction. Music will be furnished by the Chequamegon.

THE TWO SAMs.

An Enterprising Business Concern.

From the Democrat: We believe it to be the duty of every business house in the city of Ann Arbor, no matter how large or how small the concern may be, to conduct their business upon pure business principles, and success will follow. No better illustration of this kind can be brought to the eyes of our readers, than to mention one of our leading firms of today, that, several years ago, came here to engage in business, upon pure business principles, which no other house ever attempted in our city. It was said, at the time of their opening, that they could not succeed, but they have succeeded, and today are considered one of the reliable concerns of Ann Arbor. Every business house, no matter in what line, even their competitors, will say that their methods should be followed by all. We speak of none other than Blitz & Langsdorf, "The Two Sams," who are today doing the largest clothing and furnishing business in southern Michigan, and upon that broad plan of strictly one price to everybody. This motto, so firmly carried out by them for so many years past, has brought them into prominence, and "The Two Sams" have become household words. There is not a man, woman, or child in Ann Arbor, or a student in the University, today, nor one who has been graduated in the past few years, but who knows of "The Two Sams." In looking over their stock for the coming spring, we find everything that is new, or that money will buy in eastern markets to make their establishment first class in every respect. It is not worth while to mention all the different kinds of goods that are kept by this firm, as the public know all about the celebrated Youman hats, their fine tailor made suits, also their new top overcoats. The Two Sams have refitted, repapered and painted their store, and we predict a large and prosperous business for them the coming season.

THE TWO SAMs, The Only Strictly One-Price Clothiers in the City and County, if not in the State.

We are not boasting when we say that during our entire business career we have never deviated one cent from any article of Clothing or Furnishing goods ever sold by us. Furthermore, we have never thrown in a single article of Merchandise of any kind in order to make a sale.

Every man, woman or child that has dealt with us has been treated alike, and we are the only house dealing in Clothing, Furnishing goods or Hats that can say the same for themselves in this city. This method of dealing has brought us to the front rank, notwithstanding our competitors claimed for us years ago that such a business could not be carried out. We have carried our point, and the people of Ann Arbor and Washtenaw County have given us their support to such a great extent that our business has grown threefold. We must acknowledge our thanks for the liberal patronage given us and assuring our customers and friends that we shall ever maintain the high standard of our business by keeping at all times the leading styles and correct shapes for each and every season.

Yours truly,

BLITZ & LANGSDORF.

THE HADDOCK MURDER.

The State Rests Its Case for the Present.

Opening for the Defense—Witnesses Introduced to Show That Leavitt was the Murderer—Business Men Testify to Arensford's Good Character.

LEAVITT ACCUSED.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 1.—An immense crowd was present at the Haddock murder trial Thursday. The first witness called was Albert Koschnitzki, "Bismarck." He acknowledged that he got drunk after the shooting of Haddock. The next witness called was Minnie Koschnitzki, twelve years of age, a child innocent in every act. She testified as to how John Arensford had bought their home, how Paul Leader accompanied them to Omaha when they left, and detailed a graphic account of how the defendant had used his money in getting them out of the country to join husband and father in San Francisco. The cross-examination of the child was favorable to the State, and at the conclusion of her testimony the State rested. That the State did the unexpected thing, the request of the defense for a recess until afternoon, is conclusive evidence. As the State's evidence is not in fact closed, it is impossible to pass judgment upon it. They have shown that Arensford was present at the killing; that he was one of the principal instigators of it; that he did actually do the killing; they show by the evidence of two of his companions on that night. They have also shown that Arensford paid all, or nearly all, the money that was paid to take away the witnesses of the deed.

At the afternoon session the defense called Policeman Smith, who testified to having seen "Bismarck" drunk on the evening night, after the murder had been committed. William Metz, his wife, Officers Bridwell and several others testified to the same effect. Matt Francis was introduced to prove "Bismarck's" bad moral character. He was engaged in the saloon business for several years, but was at the time of the murder a dealer in second-hand goods. Mr. Francis was unable to name when asked to do so by Mr. O'Connell any person who had told him that "Bismarck's" character was bad.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 2.—The defense in the Haddock case yesterday introduced several witnesses for the purpose of showing that Leavitt was the murderer, and to prove that "Bismarck's" character was bad. Louis Agnes saw "Bismarck" after the latter's return from California, and said "Bismarck" told him he put the shooting on Arensford to save his own neck. C. Barnes, of the City Mills, gave the first evidence to prove an alibi. He said Arensford's character for peaceableness was good. On the night of the murder witness went into Arensford's saloon and remained until 9:30; took lunch with Arensford left about twenty minutes after five; Arensford went east and witness went west; passed Columbia House at 10:15; "Bismarck's" character was bad. John Davalaon testified to the good character of Arensford. Samuel Ricker saw Arensford and Barnes together on the night of August 3, about ten o'clock, near the corner of Fourth and Pierce streets.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 4.—The defense in the Haddock murder case showed their hand Saturday, and while the attendance at court was less than heretofore, the importance of the testimony was gained. A waiter at the Shepherd restaurant testifies that John Arensford was there eating lunch at the time of the shooting of Haddock. This is two blocks from the scene of the murder. G. W. Smith, a harness-maker, claims to have seen all. His story is as follows:

"I returned to the Columbia House about 10:30 o'clock. Then I went to my room, No. 17. I opened the window. It faced Water street. I could see from the window the cross walk from the Columbia House to Dineen's corner. I heard a shot fired ten or fifteen minutes after I had laid down on the bed. I was looking out of the window north. I saw four persons. Two were close together. I did not notice any one near the middle of Water street. They were not over four feet apart. I saw the man who fired the shot. He was north and a little in the rear of the man that was shot. The man who fired the shot had on a light straw hat, light pants and a rubber coat. I am well acquainted with Arensford by sight; I am positive that the man who fired the shot was not John Arensford; am acquainted with Leavitt by sight. In my judgment Leavitt is the man who fired the fatal shot. An electric light was burning brightly across the street east of the corner of Water street. The two men referred to were between me and the electric light. The gas lamp at the corner of the Columbia House was burning. I refused to make a statement because I was afraid of getting into trouble. H. A. Lyon testified that he saw Arensford coming toward the scene of the homicide soon after the murder occurred. Depositions received from Kansas damaging to Leavitt were introduced, and a number of business men testified to Arensford's good character.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 5.—The tenth day of the trial of John Arensford, the alleged murderer of Rev. George C. Haddock, was completed in the presence of an immense crowd. It is conceded that the State's attorneys have handled their case in an able manner, and made a strong showing. Thus far the defense has only sought to impeach the testimony of Leavitt and "Bismarck," the principal witnesses for the prosecution. Yesterday they offered as impeaching evidence—and it was accepted by the court—Leavitt's confession and his testimony before the coroner's jury, and the same of "Bismarck" as to his confession. In addition to this, impeaching testimony has been given against Leavitt and "Bismarck" by equally credible witnesses and those not suing for executive clemency. Thus far public opinion is about evenly divided as to the guilt of the accused.

The most important witness yesterday was Charles Schmidt. He was playing cards in the Columbia House when the shot was fired. He sprang up to the window, saw Haddock just as he fell, and saw two men run north on Water street. Fifteen minutes after the murder he met Arensford approaching the scene of the tragedy from the east. It is charged by Leavitt that Arensford, as soon as he did the shooting, ran to the brewery and shortly thereafter appeared upon the street. Haddock staggered about several seconds before falling, and this time, added to fifteen minutes, would have given him time to reach the brewery, change his clothes and reappear.

Refuse to Compete with Negroes. MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 4.—The Montgomery military companies—the Greys and Blues—have resolved to withdraw from the Washington drill because negro companies have entered. A telegram from the Atlanta office to the Montgomery military says they will follow Montgomery's example and they will follow.

Mrs. Logan Writing a Novel. New York, April 4.—It is stated on reliable authority that Mrs. Logan, the widow of the late General, has almost completed a novel on Washington social life, and that it will be published in a few days.

PROUD OF THE BOMB.

Herr Most, in a Characteristic Harangue Announces His Satisfaction with the Result of His Teachings as Manifested in the Haymarket Affair at Chicago.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Herr Most, the ex-convict and apostle of anarchy, was given a reception last night in Cooper Union. It was the largest Anarchist meeting ever held in this city, the hall being packed, numbering the legal authorities who convicted and sentenced him and the prison authorities who failed to show him respect. In his remarks Most said: "Are you dogs, and will you allow yourselves to be cut into mince-meat? On the 4th of May our Chicago brethren threw a bomb against those 300 hired murderers, and I am proud of this result of my teachings, and I have neither taught more nor less. Nobody knows who threw the bomb, but eight of our best people were arrested and condemned by a gentleman jury to death, and that soft-hearted judge with crocodile tears said that they had been guilty of bold speeches and that that was enough."

THE FRUIT CROP.

Reports as to Its Condition in Twenty-one States.

ST. LOUIS, April 2.—The Republic publishes fruit and vegetable crop reports from twenty-one States, including all the gulf and Mississippi valley States. They show that the peach crop has been killed for the most part in Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee and Arkansas, but that Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi will produce a full crop. The apple crop will be fully up to the average. The pear yield will be fair, while the grape crop in Illinois, Missouri and adjoining territory will be lighter than for two or three years. A great deal of damage was occasioned to vegetables by this week's cold snap in the South, but the yield there will be fair and the general average high.

A Great Boycott.

ST. LOUIS, April 5.—At midnight one of the most extensive boycotts ever known in this country was inaugurated, being nothing less than the throwing out of the tickets of twenty-nine Western roads by the Eastern Traffic Association. Hereafter through tickets and baggage checks can not be obtained, but persons destined to San Francisco from Boston can only buy tickets and check baggage to Chicago, while persons going from New York to Kansas City will do the same at St. Louis. Among the twenty-nine roads boycotted are the Missouri Pacific, Washburn, Chicago & Alton, Rock Island and others.

A Locomotive Beats the Record.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 5.—A day or two ago between Paris, Ill., and this city on the Indianapolis & St. Louis road, engine No. 12 covered one mile in forty-six seconds, which is the highest speed on record. The highest speed claimed heretofore is fifty-one seconds. This engine has made a number of fast runs, and is credited with being the fastest runner in the country. It was built at the Chicago shops and is under the supervision of Mr. Mechanical Ramsay. The train consisted of three passenger cars.

A Big Saving.

CHICAGO, April 5.—"The 'boodler' investigation will save the tax-payers of Cook County from $50,000 to $300,000," said a prominent member of the special grand jury yesterday. "This will be done by refusing to pay warrants issued against claims that will be shown to be fraudulent and by disallowing false claims. I do not know how much money has been stolen, but the rumor that the 'boodlers' have robbed the county of $2,000,000, I should judge, is much too large an estimate."

Death of a Noted Philanthropist.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Miss Catharine Lorillard Wolfe, daughter of John David Wolfe, and grand-daughter of Peter Lorillard, died yesterday morning of diabetes, aged sixty years. She had been ill for several months, and her death was not unexpected. Miss Wolfe was worth over $10,000,000, and during her life-time gave away between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 for the erection and endowment of many charitable institutions.

Wiggins Predicts Another Earthquake.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 5.—Prof. Wiggins has another earthquake on hand, this time for August 17 and September 19 next. Western Europe and the eastern part of North America are to be affected, but the greatest force will be manifested in the Southern hemisphere. He attributes the predicted disturbance to the law of recurrence and the position of certain planets, which, however, he declines to name.

A Railroad Sued for Killing Jumbo.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Jumbo's value as a piece of circus property is likely to be determined shortly by a suit to be tried in this city. Jumbo, it will be remembered, was run over and killed by a locomotive on the Grand Trunk railroad. Barnum & Hutchinson seek to recover damages of $100,000, at which figure they place the value of the deceased elephant for show purposes.

The Riot Cases in Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 4.—At a special session of the municipal court yesterday morning, Judge Sloan presiding, a habeas corpus was granted in the case of Albert Morsenger, charged with inciting riot last May. A similar motion was entered in the case of Carl Simon, another rioter, but Judge Sloan granted additional time to the district attorney to inquire into the matter.

A Lynching in Iowa.

OMAHA, Neb., April 4.—J. H. McKenzie, who last month killed J. H. Riggs in a quarrel over some cornstalks which both men claimed, was taken from the jail at Cornish, Ia., early Sunday morning and hanged to a maple tree by fifteen masked men. The body was cut down at sunrise. The coroner's jury rendered an equivocal verdict implicating no one.

Twenty Years in the Solitary.

READING, Pa., April 5.—Frank Kerner, who choked his wife to death and was convicted of murder in the second degree, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Brentnont to twelve years separate and solitary confinement at hard labor in the Berks County prison. Kerner stood pale and trembling while the sentence was being imposed.

National Music Teachers' Convention.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 5.—The National Music Teachers' convention is to be held in this city next June. Mr. A. C. McKenzie, the English composer, will contribute an orchestral composition for the festival. Two of the evening concerts will be devoted to the works of American composers.

Fires During March.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The losses by fire last month in the United States and Canada aggregated $10,450,000—$3,000,000 above the average for March in the past twelve years.

April Showers.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 5.—A heavy snow-storm prevailed yesterday throughout Wisconsin and Northern Michigan.

AN EXPERT BRICKMAKER

The Story Told by a Chicago Man. Gathering Methods and Points.

No man in Chicago is possessed of more information on the subject of brickmaking than George M. Pullman. Though probably without personal experience in the mixing and burning of clay, Mr. Pullman might be set down as an expert brickmaker. As illustrating the thoroughness with which Pullman was prepared before embarking in an enterprise, a well known brickmaker tells a very good story. Some years ago, when Pullman was preparing to engage in the brick business on the shores of Lake Calumet, this brickmaker received an invitation to call on the sleeping car magnate and talk brickmaking. Having in view the inferential possibility of a co-partnership, or contract, or other profitable connection with the Pullman town building enterprise, the brickmaker gladly availed himself of the opportunity thus offered. Pullman received him graciously, and in private showed him samples of Lake Calumet clay, asked questions concerning brickmaking methods and materials, and listened quite patiently while the brickmaker, warming up with his subject and naturally anxious to make a good impression, somewhat enthusiastically related his experience during the last twenty years, and described many of the processes which he had hitherto held almost as secrets. The interview over, Pullman said he would take the matter under consideration, and that his caller might expect to hear from him again almost any day. As yet the brickmaker has not heard from Pullman. He was not long in learning, however, that half a dozen other skilled brickmakers had been similarly favored by the ambitious town builder, and that from all of them the host had drawn descriptions of their favorite methods and many valuable points concerning materials and machinery. Moreover, it was soon learned that while these brickmaking gentlemen were thus talking to Mr. Pullman in that gentleman's private office a shorthand man was industriously at work behind a screen making verbatim record of all he heard.

No one of the expert brickmakers was called for a second time by the sleeping car landlord, but in a few months they all heard, with what chagrin may be easily imagined, that Pullman had engaged in the brickmaking business on his own account.—Chicago Herald.

Death by the Garrote.

As I stood on an elevation overlooking the scaffold, I was able to observe all the details of the last scene of the tragedy. The condemned man mechanically yielded himself up to the executioner. The latter made him sit down at the foot of the post, with his back to it, and then tied his hands and feet hard and fast. He did all this without hurrying himself in the least, and with all that dignified indifference which characterizes the Spanish functionary in the discharge of his duty. If the preparations had lasted even a few seconds longer, I believe I should have lost all my own self control. I could hear my heart thumping within my breast, and every moment or two something like a veil came before my eyes. You could not hear even a whisper in the crowd.

While one of the priests pressed a crucifix to the colorless lips of the sufferer, another was murmuring words of consolation and hope into his ear. But the wretched man was not listening. His expressionless face had a waxen pallor, and his eyes, as they wandered over the ocean of faces before him, already dim with the dimness of death. He started considerably when the executioner placed the iron collar about his neck; and I observed his mouth contract. Then, however, a white covering thrown over his features hid them from further observation. The executioner then gave two or three turns of the screw connected with the instrument of death. The bones of the neck cracked, a long trembling ran through the whole body; the arms twisting outward, the legs inward. Alvarez Oliva was dead.—Madrid Cor. New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Remarkable Civility in Paris.

The manner in which civility grows and flourishes in Paris during the month of December is very remarkable. Your congregate, who is more likely than not to be very disobliging ten or eleven months out of the year, will begin to put on gracious manners in the first days of December, and will become steadily more gracious, more smiling, more anxious to serve you, until she has objected on or about New Year's day the object she has had in view in expending upon you a whole month's civility. All manner of people are on the lookout, for etrennes show you various little attentions as the year is drawing to a close which they forget to show at other times.

A favorite bit of strategy is to give you an almanac, so that by the time the new year opens you are in a position to hang a calendar in each of your rooms and offer some more to your friends. People whose occupations you know nothing about, or would rather know nothing about, look up and inform you of the duties they have been in the habit of performing for you as well as others. Together, the new year is a very bad time for those whose incomes are as tightly fitted to normal conditions of existence as a hoop is to a barrel. It is no wonder that some people actually run away from Paris for a month or six weeks to escape the etrennes season.—Paris Cor. Boston Transcript.

The Accident Insurance Craze.

Accident insurance has made a steady, running growth during the present year, and seems to be a popular craze. I know of canvassers who are taking in as high as twenty policies a day. All railroad men are going into it, and I find the workmen following. Men who can carry regular insurance on their lives only take accident policies when going on journeys, but poor men, who cannot afford regular premiums want some guarantee of support if disabled. Speaking about insurance, this branch of insurance has gone into many peculiar ramifications. Did you know that railroads insure more than other corporations?

Railroad Cars are all Insured.

Railroad cars are all insured, and the companies figure very close—so close that there is not much profit in it, the only inducement being the large amount that can be taken, owing to the small quantity of property that can be destroyed at one time. Then there are tornado policies that have a large area of country to cover. When a cyclone strikes a district, the company's agents catch all the farmers. There are also tornado companies, which insure against loss by wind. There used to be live stock companies, but several of them failed so easily that the others lost confidence. It was easy enough to insure an animal, but it was not so easy to insure a dead beef or sheep as the same one insured. Then you can get window plate glass insured—well, I may say, anything of any value.—Globe-Democrat.

Shooting at an Egg Shell.

German photographers have succeeded in graphing a projectile in the course of its flight, and some of the photographs show the head of condensed air which precedes every shot. It is this "head" which prevents even skillful riflemen from hitting an empty egg shell when hung on a long thread. The air blows the shell out of the way of the bullet.

What a Pity that so many attractive, polite, and particular people afflict their friends by the foul and disagreeable odor of their breath, it is mainly caused by disordered digestion, and can be corrected by removing the cause, by using that pure medicine, Sulphur Bitters.—Health Magazine.

ANOTHER SUDDEN DEATH.
Hardly a week passes without the mention by the newspapers of sudden deaths, and of late the alarming frequency of the statement that death was caused by rheumatism or neuralgia of the heart cannot fail to have been noticed. In all probability many deaths attributed to heart disease are caused by these terrible diseases, which are far more dangerous than is generally considered. Is there any positive cure? The best answer to such a question is given by those who have been cured by the use of Athlaphoras.

Mrs. Carrie Lee, Kenosha, Wis., says: "I don't believe any one ever suffered with rheumatism as I did and lived; in fact neither I nor my people expected to see me walk about again, and at times despaired of my life. I was stricken during the month of January. I had taken a severe cold in the cars on my way to Chicago; I had returned home, when one evening I was so suddenly that in a few minutes from its first appearance I was so prostrated that I had to be carried to my bed-room, where I remained until the following May. During the interval of January and May the suffering I bore could not be described. I was treated by the best physicians, also had different ones in consultation without any material change. My arms and limbs were drawn in such shape that I could not lie down, and was helpless to assist myself in any way. I was in the constant care of a nurse both night and day. One of the nurses I had applied magnetism, but that was a failure. I commenced taking Athlaphoras, and could feel its effects upon me as soon as I commenced taking it. It was certainly marvelous. I was soon able to straighten my limbs, and when I had taken five bottles I was free from rheumatism."

Every druggist should keep Athlaphoras and Athlaphoras Pills, but where they cannot be bought of the druggist the Athlaphoras Co., 112 Wall St., New York, will send either (carriage paid) on receipt of regular price, which is $1.00 per bottle for Athlaphoras and 50c. for Pills.

FIGHTING A BANK.

AMUSING STORY OF A PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN'S REVENGE.

A Ludicrous Phase of the Silver Question—A Bank Messenger's Perplexity. A Peremptory Order for a Delivery of Silver Dollars.

An amusing encounter between one of the banks and a prominent business man is being told at the clubs with some unction. Mr. X., the gentleman in question, was called from home on business, and left with his clerk a blank check for any contingencies which had not been provided for. During his absence a messenger from the bank appeared with a draft, and although offered the check, declined to receive anything but the money. The matter caused the clerk some inconvenience, and his employer, on his return, was deeply indignant at the affair. He waited a few days until another draft came through the same bank, when he went to the sub-treasurer, procured the amount due in silver dollars, and turned the coin over to the bank. Soon another draft came along, this time for $15,000. This also was paid in silver dollars, the bank being pretty well filled up with the sacks of specie.

When a third draft was due Mr. X. applied to the sub-treasurer for the amount in silver and was refused. He was naturally indignant, perceiving plainly enough that the refusal was instigated by the president of the bank, and he protested that, as an officer of the government, the sub-treasurer had no right to refuse to sell him as many silver dollars as he wished to buy at any time. The refusal was persisted in, however, and Mr. X. immediately sent a complaint to Secretary Manning at Washington, the answer to which arrived in due course of time, stating that the action of the sub-treasurer was illegal and unauthorized.

BASKETS OF SILVER.
In the meantime, as the draft of course had to be paid at once, Mr. X. had gone to the different banks, collected the amount of silver that he wanted, piling it up loose in cotton baskets. He ascertained that he was not obliged to take the money himself to the bank, and when the messenger appeared with the draft he presented him with the immense pile of silver, remarking that as he had not been able to procure the money from the sub-treasurer in sealed and stamped sacks, he supposed it would have to be counted. "But how am I to carry all that?" the messenger cried in dismay.

Mr. X. replied that he really could not say, and that while a hack might serve his visitor's turn, he really did not regard the matter as any affair of his. The messenger had a hack called, and with assistance got his precious basket to the sidewalk.

"What is all that?" demanded the hackman, eyeing the heavy baskets.
"Why, that's silver."
"Do you take me for an expressman?" asked the driver. "Hi, there, get up!" and away he drove, leaving the unfortunate young man in a worse dilemma than ever.
The messenger managed, however, to get the specie to the bank, where it was presumably counted; and in due time still another draft upon Mr. X. came to delight the officers of the bank. Once more Mr. X. presented himself at the sub-treasurer, and once more, despite Secretary Manning's letter, his demand for silver was refused. This time he sent a telegram to Washington, and with great promptness there came back a dispatch peremptorily ordering the delivery of the dollars. The money was paid to the bank, and feeling by this time a little weary of the affair, and probably satisfied that he had amply revenged the discourtesy shown to him in the original transaction, Mr. X. let the matter drop here, after notifying all his correspondents that he did not in future wish to receive any paper through the offending bank.—Boston Cor. Providence Journal.

Cupid Drowned by a Dam.
A young man who lives over on the north side was telling some of his cronies one night last week how his engagement with a certain belle of Pine street happened to come to an end.
"It was very fond of her," he said, and thought her as sweet and pretty a woman as I ever saw. But you chaps know I am a little squeamish about some things. An unpleasant thing to look at affects me a great deal, you know. In fact, I have a weakness in that direction, but I can't help it. Say, did any of you chaps ever have a dentist's dam put into your mouth? No! Well, then you can't appreciate my feelings. One day I dropped into a dentist's office over on State street, and there was my affianced sitting in the dentist's chair with the dentist's dam in her mouth. If she had seen me she would have had hysterics. I saw her, and came near having them myself.
"So you don't know what a dentist's dam is! Well, it's a rubber contrivance they put in your mouth. They fasten it under your chin so that it is drawn down over your lips, tongue and gums. They punch a little hole in it, and let the tooth they want to operate on stick up through the hole. The effect on the appearance of the subject is something awful. A woman is never pretty when her mouth is wide open and a dentist's fingers are trying to open it a little wider. But the dam adds a hideousness of which you can form no idea until you see one at its horrid work. One glance at the poor girl with that thing in her mouth took all my love for her away. For my word, I had to go home that day with a raging headache, all on account of that awful dam, but before night I wrote her a note stating that circumstances over which I had no control compelled me to break the engagement. It was a deucedly unpleasant thing to do, chaps, but I couldn't help it, you know."—Chicago Herald.

Consumption Among the Indians.
Of the present destroyers of the Indians, according to Dr. Washington Matthews, the chief is consumption. Census returns show that, while the death rate among Europeans is 17.74 per thousand, and that among Africans is 17.28, the rate among the Indians is no less than 23.6; and that, while among the whites 166 deaths in the thousand are from consumption, and among the negroes 186, there are 286 among the Indians. The influence of civilization has greatly increased the consumption rate among the Indians—the effect seeming to be partly due to change of diet, and partly to causes not yet understood.—Arkansas Traveler.

Japanese Journalism.
Newspaper editors in Japan have to send their first proofs of every edition to the mikado's minister of state, who draws his blue pencil through anything that is objectionable. Every paper has a jail editor. He is a dummy. The paper is often involved in suits, and when a process is sued out the officer enters the sanctum and takes away with him the dummy editor, who answers all purposes and whose absence does not deprive the paper of any of its working force.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

AMONG THE MORMONS.

SIGHTS SEEN DURING A VISIT TO SALT LAKE CITY.

The "Co-operative Store"—A Description of the Tabernacle—Fountain Playing During Services—Subjects Treated of from the Mormon Pulpit.

Having a few purchases to make we sallied forth, and our first exploration was of the shops, the most important of which is the new "co-operative store," which bears the following sign: "Holiness to the Lord, Zion's Co-operative Mercantile Institution." A large eye is painted on the sign, with gilt rays diverging from it in every direction. Here our wants were quickly and satisfactorily supplied. We found the prices of dry goods about the same as in San Francisco and Chicago.

Our next visit was to the tabernacle, where the religious services are held. The building is surrounded by a high wall which incloses a very large space, within which the endowment house and the new temple, then in process of erection, also stand. The tabernacle is an enormous building, elliptical in shape, built of wood and with a round roof, supported on many columns, which surround the exterior of the building. There are an incredible number of exits, and though the building holds 15,000 people, we were assured that in one minute and a half it could be emptied. Shabby as was the exterior of the unpainted building, the interior was even more dreary. The roof was thickly hung with garlands which were green six years ago when they were hung in honor of some special ceremony, and paper flowers of the same date were scattered profusely about. There is a wide gallery running round three sides of the building, and the floor slopes in such a manner as to allow those sitting in the rear to command a good view of the pulpits. The body of the tabernacle is occupied by ordinary pews, but in the middle of the building is a large tank, guarded by four terra cotta beasts which we were told were lions.

During the services a fountain springs from the center of the tank. I could not learn the significance of this novel feature, if significance it has. One lady told me that they "thought it a pleasant thing to have a fountain playing during services, so—they had it." Were the tabernacle a temperance stronghold, this libation would have seemed more appropriate. At one end of the building is a platform with three tables, one above the other, which are called pulpits. At the highest one sit the president and two of his counselors; the second one is reserved for the twelve apostles, and on the lowest the communion is administered every Sunday, water being substituted for wine.

On each side of the pulpits were a number of benches, which the guardian told us "were reserved for those of the brethren who were hard of hearing." At the back of the platform stands the organ, which is the glory and pride of the saints, who claim that it is only second in size among American organs. It is really very handsome, reflecting great credit on the native designer, for the entire organ was made at Salt Lake City. The acoustic properties of the tabernacle are very remarkable. Standing at the extreme end of the gallery, we heard a pin dropped upon the platform and the sound of a low whisper with perfect distinctness. At a convenient point stand several large barrels of water with tin cups attached, for the benefit of the thirsty ones in the assembly. The religious exercises are held in the tabernacle on Sunday. They consist of the singing of hymns, a prayer from the president and a sermon from some one of the apostles.

The subjects treated from the Mormon pulpit cover a very wide range, including all temporal as well as spiritual points of interest. A writer on this subject says: "In the great tabernacle one will hear sermons, or advice on the culture of sorghum, infant baptism, upon the best manure for cabbages, upon the perseverance of the saints, upon the wickedness of the skimming of milk before its sale, upon the best method of cleaning water ditches, upon bed bug poison, upon the price of real estate, upon the teaching of children, upon the martyrs and persecutions of the church, terrible denunciations of Gentiles and the enemies of the Mormons, upon olive oil as a cure for measles, upon the ordination of the priesthood, upon the character of Melchisedec, upon abstinence from plug tobacco, upon chignons, upon twenty-five yard dresses, upon plural marriage, etc."

Leaving the tabernacle, our next visit was to the new temple, a beautiful building then in process of erection. The material used in its construction is a peculiar black and white granite quarried from one of the mountains near by. This granite is to be reserved for the "most sacred rites of baptism and endowment," we learned, marking that the ceremony of sealing or endowment, for so they designate the marriage ceremony, is considered by them more sacred than the services in praise of the Creator. The ceremony of endowment is one that no Gentile is allowed to witness. On asking one of the Mormon ladies whom we met the nature of its rites, she said: "The ceremony of sealing differs from the marriage ceremonies in the world in this particular—that with us it unites the husband and wife throughout all eternity, instead of being only for time, and consequently is termed celestial marriage. The wife's vow of obedience to her husband is not included in the ceremony at all, so that it differs in this particular also." We were anxious to hear concerning the marriage garments worn on these occasions, but our Mormon friend on this point was not so communicative.—Cor. Boston Transcript.

The Infant's Inheritance.
It is no new assertion, this, that we are the result of our inherited virtues and sins, plus our circumstances. We cannot stand alone, we cannot affect to ignore those from whom we have derived our origin, since they have placed upon our brow the ineffaceable seal of their own characters. Take the new born babe, lying so helpless, apparently so unconscious, in its mother's arms. Surely its mind is blank and unimpaired, surely upon its parents' mind write whatsoever they will. How mistaken the supposition! Behind the closed lids burn the fires of untold generations, weaknesses and strength never before suspected, lying dormant for a generation perhaps, are to find their full development in this mite of humanity.

Fifty years ago a sweet-faced woman had strange, fleeting visions of beauty; they flitted across the horizon of her mental conception and were gone. There was within her neither power of concentration nor of execution. Now, fifty years after, within this brain, yet lying lowly, the visions are stored, and in time those little fingers beating the air in impotent anger shall unfold to the world beauties hitherto seen only in dreams. His will be the power of expression, but the first drawings of his keen perception of the beautiful and of his longings after its embodiment had their uprisings in another soul, and were transmitted to him, combining there with elements transmitted from other sources, until that combination was reached which gave to him the power to concentrate these images and to express them.—Julia A. Pilsch in The Current.

HALL'S $100 REWARD. $100.

The readers of THE REGISTER will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh of the Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known in the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The Proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars, for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75 Cts.

CATARRH CURE.

The King of Italy now has a whole Pullman car to himself when he wants to travel, and there is no one to come in and throw out sneers about the railroad hog not yet being dead.

The reason why Acker's Blood Elixir is warranted, is because it is the best Blood Preparation known. It will positively cure all Blood Diseases, purifies the whole system, and thoroughly builds up the constitution. Remember, we guarantee it.
JOHN MOORE, Druggist.

Philadelphia flatters herself that she has "the most critical dramatic audiences in this country." It is easy enough to be critical. All you've got to do is to yell "Rot!" at an actor.

When the snow went off the wheat was left exposed to the winds so that it was injured some, but cannot tell how much. No disease among horses, cattle or swine."

Mrs. M. M. Tuttle, of Ann Arbor, was riding on a 1,000-mile ticket on the Michigan Central, Thursday. The ticket was made out in her name. The usual prefix "Mrs." was wanting, and the conductor refused to accept the coupons as fare. At Michigan City the conductor and two brakemen undertook to forcibly eject the lady, but she wouldn't eject worth a cent, and they gave it up as a bad job. Mrs. Tuttle offered to write her name to convince the conductor that it was the same signature as that on the ticket, but he wouldn't have it that way.—Evening Journal.

A new feature was added to the election, Monday, by the presence of ladies working for the prohibitory amendment. Some of them were quite good natured and had lots of fun with the boys, and were ever ready to meet the arguments of the wily politicians, but there was one at the First ward polls, who, not having learned her lesson well, came up to a prominent crowd and blurted out very emphatically that she had no tickets for red-nosed and blotched faced voters. There was a squirming in the crowd, but the lady had all her intended good work squelched at once, and left the field to those who had a much better knowledge of human nature.

On April 18th, "The Unity Club" are to have a very interesting programme. The entertainment consists of the dramatization of an old English ballad entitled "The Blind Beggar of Bethnal Green." The ballad is one of the most popular ever written in England. Its plot or story briefly is this: Simon de Montfort the great Earl of Leicester was killed in the Battle of Evesham, Aug. 4th, 1265, at the head of the revolted barons. His eldest son, Henry, was reported as slain but was, according to the ballad, saved by a princess who finally married him. Fearing he would be executed for his part in the uprising, he lived for many years as a blind beggar at Bethnal Green. Bessie, his daughter, sets forth to seek her fortune. She has many suitors but they turn from her upon hearing she is the daughter of a blind beggar, except a young knight. He determines to marry her despite the protestations of his relatives and friends. At the marriage feast Bessie's father appears as a minstrel and sings the romance of his life to the astonished company. The ballad will be read by the talented elocutionist, Miss Scrafford. Mrs. Higgins and Mr. Boyle have the management. A great amount of time has been spent upon the acting and upon the costumes of the time. It will probably be the most unique thing given in Ann Arbor for a long time.

Ann Arbor bids fair to witness a bigger building boom this year than last. New residences are going up in every quarter of the city. There is no denying the fact that we have the finest city in the land to live in, and a little extra exertion by our citizens of means in the way of securing additional manufacturing enterprises would double the population in a few years. The fruit growers of Washtenaw county are now endeavoring to raise the necessary capital to establish a fruit drying and preserving factory in this city, which would give employment to a large force of hands. This, itself, would keep a large amount of capital in Ann Arbor which is now shipped out. A Jackson firm who manufactures harness and saddles, employing a large force of workmen, are contemplating moving to this city. This industry is yet in its infancy but is steadily increasing its capacities. We earnestly hope that the men of Ann Arbor who have the means to invest will look to the interests of the city and see that these new enterprises shall not be allowed to "die a bornin'." Besides these two new enterprises the capsule factory should not be lost sight of. Its owners are now seriously contemplating moving to another city, because of inducements offered. All they want is more room to enlarge their business. The proper encouragement will secure these and many more.

Coming Events

The University glee club will give a concert in University hall, Thursday evening, April 14th.

The congregation and choir of the M. E. church will render an Easter praise service, Sunday evening.

Rev. Dr. Ramsay will deliver the sixth of his series of discourses on the Lord's prayer, in the M. E. church, next Sunday morning.

At the meeting of the Unity Club, next Monday evening, in the parlors of the Unitarian church, Prof. J. W. Langley will give a scientific talk, and Dr. H. S. Frieze will speak upon "The University during President Tappan's Administration." Followed by music and social hour.

The annual meeting of the ladies' library association occurs on Monday, April 11, at 2:30 p. m. It is hoped that not only the board of directors, but all members of the association will feel sufficient interest to attend this meeting, and that many others by the payment of the small membership fee of $1.00, may become members at this time.

Easter services in the Presbyterian church: At the morning service Rev. Dr. Steele will deliver a discourse appropriate to the joyful Sunday, on the Resurrection of Christ. In the evening there will be the annual service of songs, with a prelude on the hymns of Easter. At both services a cordial welcome is extended to the entire congregation and friends not worshipping elsewhere.

Resolutions of Approval.

At an open meeting of the Ann Arbor lodge, No. 320, of Good Templars, the following resolution was moved and carried.

Resolved, that we, as good templars, heartily endorse the sentiments that actuated the noble women of Michigan who, fearless of the corrupt attendants of the polls, faced the insults and abuses of the whiskey votaries and labored so earnestly for the success of the amendment."
