

THE ANN ARBOR REGISTER.

VOL. XIII. NO. 27.

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1887.

WHOLE NO. 654.

WASHTENAW POMOLOGY.

Report of Committees on Fruit Factory—Secretary Garfield's Request Granted—L. A. Goodman Secretary of the Missouri State Horticultural Society Present—Exhibit of Fruit and Fruit Packages—U. S. Cook Stove Drier.

Vice-president Baldwin presided over the July meeting. Mr. Ganzhorn being absent, the corresponding secretary was chosen to take his place.

The committee on fruit preserving factory reported that Allmendinger & Schneider had erected the largest size of Acme Drier and were ready for any surplus black raspberries and the coming fruit crop. The chairman and Rev. S. Clements were appointed a committee to investigate at what price raspberries could be dried profitably. Mr. Baldwin stated that dried black raspberries were worth 25¢ cents per pound in Chicago. It takes three quarts of berries to make one pound of dried berries. He would send his raspberries to the factory if they would not net him six cents per quart. S. Mills: "Raspberries do not pay if sold below eight cents."

The report on transportation will be published next week. Prof. B. E. Nichols, the secretary of the committee, being absent. The oral report by the chairman was very favorable to shippers of fruit. The rates of the Express Co., on the different routes of the Michigan Central, Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan and Pere Marquette roads, with other statistics valuable to the fruit growers, who were mostly absent, were given by the chairman.

The work which the above committees have accomplished is much greater than the fruit-growers generally are aware of. If to nothing else these gentlemen who have given their time, talent and money to benefit all fruit-growers, are entitled to the sincerest thanks of those interested. Why the majority of the fruit-growers never pay a cent nor give an hour's time to organized work of this kind is a profound mystery to the writer.

Evert H. Scott read a letter from secretary Garfield, asking this society to contribute at least 150 plates of fruit to the Pomological exhibit at the coming state fair. Mr. Scott stated that the horticultural exhibit was cut down by the officers of the fair from $2400.00 to $1400.00. The society resolved to contribute 150 plates or more if no premium was paid.

The society had the great pleasure to have L. A. Goodman, secretary of the Missouri State Horticultural Society, in their midst. Mr. Goodman is an alumnus of our State University. He graduated twenty years ago. He was the guest of Major Soule, his brother-in-law, during his stay in our city. He joined his class to honor his Alma Mater in her semi-centennial jubilee. One of the leading men and writers in horticulture in the United States, he represents, with the president of his society, a fruit orchard of 5,000 acres. A Good-man by name and deed. Good for the University!

We had the pleasure of a personal inspection of our pear orchard and vineyard by this gentleman, who was pleased with the pyramidal form we give our standard pear trees and the success of Missouri and other grapes in this northern latitude.

The absent fruit growers of Washtenaw missed a great treat, so did Mr. Goodman. The thanks of the society were tendered to Judge Noah W. Cheever, for a donation of his claim for services to the society.

Mr. S. Mills exhibited Fay's Prolific and White's grape currants. The specimens were very fine. He stated that Fay's prolific was one of the exceptions of the many new small fruits that had been sent out of late, with high praises and prices—proving mostly failures.

Mrs. E. Baur exhibited her raspberry shrub, of which all present were invited to partake as a pitcher of ice water was procured.

Rev. S. Clements had his cook stove drier on exhibition. It weighs twenty-five pounds and can be used for drying berries, vegetables and fruits of all kinds. E. Baur ordered one at once. Every family should have one. It will be on exhibition at the next meeting.

Palmer & Son, of Dexter, exhibited one-fourth of a bushel round basket, four quart basket, berry crates for quarts and pints, berry baskets and their fruit basket with handle, which last year gave such good satisfaction.

Evert Scott was of the opinion that we should ship by the Michigan Central as soon as we have 200 bushels of berries to ship per day. We have time to load the car till 8 p. m. and the railroad company guarantees the delivery of the car so that the commission men can get the fruit early in the morning.

The fruit growers of Washtenaw are respectfully requested to attend the next meeting of the society which occurs the 6th of August. EMIL BAUR, Cor. Sec'y

Having had a conversation with Prof. Nichols, we understand that a car to Detroit costs 18 dollars. To this has to be added the fare and expense of a man who takes charge of the car, delivers the fruit and returns empty crates and baskets. Shipping by the hundred pounds costs 9¢ cents, but packages are not returned gratis as is the case when a car is hired.

Echoes of Commencement Week.

The board of regents will convene tomorrow.

Over 400 alumni registered in the memorial volume of the association.

Prof. Steere and party will sail from Vancouver, for the Philippine Islands, July 11.

The receipts of the Elijah concert were $1,168. The net proceeds, nearly $500, will be used to extinguish the debt of the musical society.

The Detroit Tribune contained a full and complete report of each day's doings, something never before done by any newspaper, and is deserving of much credit for its enterprise in so doing.

Tom S. Applegate, in his Adrian Times says that the Alumni of the U. of M., "gathered from near and from far; from Ypsilanti and the Sadnwich Islands, from China and from Adrian, from Detroit and from Australia."

A large force of workmen were put to work on the Campus, Friday morning, and by Saturday evening there was nothing left to indicate that one of the largest college jubilees this country ever witnessed, had been indulged in.

The current number of Harper's Weekly contains a double page of illustrations of the University, with cuts of Tappan, Angell and Frieze. The work is finely executed and will be a valuable advertisement for the University. The same issue also has a column article descriptive of this institution. Friends of the University everywhere will want this number of Harper's.

J. A. Otte, of the medical class of '86, was in the city about three hours to-day. He has been traveling nearly all the time since he graduated, mostly in France and Germany. To illustrate how migratory his habits have been, he stated that since he left here ten months ago, he had slept in ninety-three different beds. Next September he will go to China as a medical missionary.

In giving the reunions of classes last week we inadvertently overlooked the reunion of the class of '78' at Mrs. Stowell's Wednesday evening. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Judge Steere of Sault Ste. Marie; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Stowell of Ann Arbor; A. J. Volland, of Grand Rapids, was appointed to gather class statistics. They subscribed $455 for the fellowship fund. Thirty-five were present.

In speaking of President Angell's commemorative address Tom S. Applegate, of the Adrian Times, pays him the following well deserved compliment: "Then came the event of the day, the address by President Angell. It was largely historical in its scope, as was demanded by the occasion, was elevated, scholarly and eloquent. The honored head of our University is the fortunate possessor of a voice so finely trained and nicely modulated as to make itself heard, and this without any apparent effort, by every person of even so large an audience as faced him on Thursday. The effort was worthy of the man and the occasion. If I were to criticize it at all I should say that in his laudable anxiety to give offence to none he sacrificed somewhat the virility of his almost perfect effort."

Many letters of regret written by those who were unable to attend the semi-centennial exercises were received during commencement week. The following extract is from a letter written by a member of the class of '67 who is now prominent as a physician, electrician, inventor and teacher. It shows how helpful the university has been to poor men:

"I have always been proud of my relations to Michigan University and acknowledge that I am profoundly indebted to it. If she had been other than the generous old mother she was who gave me what I wanted when I was poor, as the grandfather of poverty, a kind of beggarly tramp asking for intellectual nourishment, it is not probable I should ever have been able to get it. The cost of getting what I wanted at other institutions that could have provided it, would to me have been prohibitive. Doubtless many have in like manner profited by the generosity of Michigan and feel under similar obligations to it. If I were rich I would certainly build the University a gymnasium, or in some way return with interest its investment in me."

Killed by the Apaches.

William Diehl went west from this city about twenty years ago. His aged mother, Mrs. M. Diehl, still resides at No. 14 South Ingalls street. Sunday, June 12th, while at his own home about 40 miles from the San Carlos reservation, he was foully murdered by some Apache Indians. He was evidently a man of considerable influence, and much respected in the community in which he lived. The Tombstone Arizona Daily Epitaph devotes a column to a very elaborate account of his funeral and a rehearsal of his many virtues. He was buried with high honors by the G. A. R. post of Tombstone, and a long procession of representative citizens followed his remains to the grave. The paper in speaking of Mr. Diehl says: "His is another name added to the list of innocent victims who have needlessly been sacrificed to the near-sighted Indian policy of our government. Wm. Diehl was one of Nature's noblemen. His private life exemplified the virtues, truth, industry, honor and fidelity; and when, in his youth, the struggling Union needed his services in the suppression of the rebellion, he promptly gave to its defense four years of courageous, uncomplaining soldier service."

The three meanest men we know of live in Dexter. They quietly sat on a log near the river a few days ago and saw a girl fall into the water and made no attempt whatever to rescue her.

It was formerly owned by McNaughton and Lathrop, who were engaged in land speculations here years ago, and has been in litigation of late years. Mrs. Lucy W. S. Morgan, of Ann Arbor, recently deceased, being the other contestant, the case was carried to the supreme court, which ordered the sale. It was bid in largely by the executors of Mrs. Morgan and brought not far short of the value stated above."

Although not a very distant neighbor, the republic of Venezuela is little known to Northern Americans. A land of perpetual summer, it presents many and varied attractions to the tourist which are to be pleasantly set forth by Dr. W. F. In the forthcoming July Harper's the strongest article is the opening one on "A Printed Book," which makes a "prover" sequel to the June article of "A Sheet of Paper," in the series of "Great American Industries." With admirable conciseness, and yet with cyclopedic thoroughness, R. R. Bowker indicates the various substitutes for printing in the ages before Gutenberg, and the European invention of movable type which has revolutionized the world. All the departments of labor combining to produce the modern miracle of a printed book are clearly explained: the manufacture of type, the compositor's work, the preparation for the press by stereotyping or electrotyping, the printing-press, with the secrets of their operation, of course the most essential portion of the subject is the evolution of the printing-press from the early embryonic hand-machine to the magical Hoe cylinder-presses, which perform the feat of printing "four, six, eight, ten, or twelve page paper of various sizes, six, seven, and eight columns in width, delivering the same, cut at the top, passed down the center margin, folded as desired, counted in lots, at a speed of from 12,000 to 72,000 perfect newspapers per hour, depending on the size and number of pages to be printed." The less familiar subject of engraving is also fully unfolded, and the various styles of reproduction which have recently been developed for the uses of illustrated publications. The Typographical Union and the economic features of printing have their share of attention. Twenty illustrations render the article peculiarly attractive and valuable.

THE BLUE AND GRAY.

Former Foes Clasp Hands at Historic Gettysburg.

Northern and Southern Veterans Meet as Friends and, Arm in Arm, Visit the Memorial Battle-Field—Monuments Dedicated.

A MEMORABLE OCCASION.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 5.—Yesterday was the first day of the reunion of the Philadelphia brigade and Pickett's division. The Philadelphia brigade was first to arrive, but soon after the Southerners arrived and were met at the depot by the brigade whose guests they were. The Confederate veterans were marched to the square, where a rousing reception was given them. Then the blue and the gray marched arm in arm to the court-house, where they were welcomed by short speeches and an address by Colonel A. K. McClure, which was responded to by Colonel W. R. Aylett, of Pickett's division. A letter was also read from President Cleveland congratulating the fraternal spirit which prompted the reunion.

Sunday morning soldiers from both sides spent the morning wandering over the battle field and exchanging reminiscences. In the afternoon the procession headed by adjutant Whitecar, marched from the Eagle hotel over the route taken twenty-four years ago to the scene of Pickett's famous charge. Colonel O'Brien, of the Sixty-ninth Pennsylvania, then called the assembled soldiers together and read a list of the killed and wounded of the regiment. He introduced General G. T. Owen, who delivered an eloquent oration. Colonel Kelly then presented the Sixty-ninth's monument to the care and keeping of the Battle-Field Memorial Society.

The Seventy-first then took the platform. General Burns was introduced as orator and spoke for some time, after which General Wistar presented the Seventy-first's monument to the Battle-Field Association.

Yesterday morning the survivors of Pickett's division held a meeting at the court-house, at which thanks were voted to the Philadelphia brigade and Gettysburg authorities. The Confederate and Union veterans then united in a procession—a Union and Confederate army in arm. At the Eagle Hotel the veterans entered carriages, and led by Mrs. Pickett and son, rode to the battle-field where, on the scene of Pickett's charge, Mrs. Pickett held a reception. In the evening a religious service was held, and Mrs. Pickett held a reception at the Pickett division headquarters. Then the camp-fire was rekindled, and speech-making and toast-offerings were the order until late in the night, when the reunion came to an end. All in all, it was an occasion never to be forgotten.

A DARING LEAP.

Tom Baldwin Drops a Mile from a Balloon to the Earth.

QUINCY, Ill., July 5.—Baldwin, the balloonist, caused a tremendous sensation yesterday by jumping from a balloon nearly a mile in the air and descending to the earth holding to a parachute. The balloon was free, instead of being anchored as intended. The jump was the most startling exploit ever witnessed here, and was made in the presence of probably 30,000 people. For 100 feet Baldwin dropped as though shot from a gun; then, as the parachute filled away, the velocity of the fall was lessened. Baldwin landed in entire safety at the expiration of three minutes, a mile and a quarter from the fair grounds above which he left the balloon. The extreme height from which he jumped was owing to his inability to reach the valve cord of the balloon. When relieved of his weight it shot up into the clouds and sailed off east without an occupant.

Dr. McGlynn was, July 5.—Dr. McGlynn was last night shown the cable dispatch from Rome instructing Archbishop Corrigan to excommunicate him without delay. When asked if he had expected the news, he said he had not. He had kept himself always passive in the matter, and the views of his publishers by newspapers were not his own. Questioned as to what he would do now the doctor said he could not do any thing but to take it with the quietest resignation.

Man wants but little here, but wants that little strong.

This is especially true of a purge. The average man or woman does not precisely banker for it, as a rule, but when taken, wishes it to be prompt, sure and effective. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets leave nothing to be desired in point of efficacy, and yet their action is totally free from any unpleasant symptoms, or disagreeable after-effects. Purely vegetable, perfectly harmless.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known in the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. THE FOURTH OF JULY.

A General Celebration of the Day Throughout the Country.

Parades, Speeches, Reunions, Ball-Games and Fire-Works Enjoyed by Enthusiastic Observers of the Holiday—The Day in London.

THE NATION'S BIRTHDAY. It is safe to say there was not a village, hamlet or town in all the United States that did not celebrate the Fourth of July.

In Cleveland 3,500 Knights of Labor paraded the streets yesterday, each wearing a small American flag. The Declaration of Independence was read to them in the public square.

President Cleveland spent the Fourth of July very quietly, riding in from Oak View in the morning as usual and rejoining Mrs. Cleveland there in the afternoon.

There was an old-fashioned celebration in Philadelphia, with a military parade in the morning, followed by an oration and the reading of the Declaration of Independence in Independence Square.

In Terre Haute, Ind., Robert Schilling, editor of a Socialist organ in Milwaukee, was one of the invited speakers, but the various organizations refused to parade while he remained in the procession, and he was obliged to retire.

In England a reception was held in London in honor of the day in Grosvenor Gallery. Among the guests were Mr. Blaine, Consul-General Walter and Minister Phelps. Mr. Phelps proposed "The Fourth—No Country to an American Like Home," which was responded to by Mr. Blaine, who said: "The United States is the only country with a known birthday. All the rest began they know not how and grew into power they know not how. If there had been no Fourth England and America combined would not be so great as each actually is. There is no Republican, no Democrat, to-day; all are Americans." Great enthusiasm was manifested.

ANN ARBOR, July 6, 1887. REV. RICHARD H. STEELE, D. D.

DEAR BROTHER:—I was requested by the pastors of the city, at their meeting on Monday last, to give to you some written expression of our fraternal love which you have won to yourself through all the years of our association in this place, and of our deep regret that you are not to continue on with us in this relation, as we had hoped.

Very Sincerely Yours, SAMUEL HASKELL.

43 SOUTH FIFTH-ST., July 6, 1887.

DEAR BROTHER:—The kind notice you have taken of the termination of my pastoral relation with the Presbyterian church of this city, in a letter received on this date from Dr. Haskell, is most gratefully acknowledged.

As I am to remain in the city it will give me pleasure to co-operate with you in all good works and render any service to which I may be called.

A Church Showing.

At Sunday morning's services Rev. Dr. Earp read his annual report showing what had been accomplished during the past year. It was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Category and Count. Includes: No. of families in the church (217), individuals (602), communicants added during the year (109), etc.

The report also showed that there were 243 students under pastorate care, 96 of whom were communicants, and 19 had been confirmed.

A PLEA FOR PENSIONS.

Give Them to Disabled and Aged Teachers—Respectfully Submitted to our National Legislators.

To the Editor. If we admit the justice of the claim of peace having victories as great as those of war, then we must acknowledge the equity of the plea preferred, namely, pensioning invalidated and superannuated teachers while in the service of our public schools, either by national or state enactment.

We have heard much—there have been long pulls and strong pulls lately; executive and senatorial eloquence used for and against the pension bills presented by those who fought to save their country in time of peril—who dared all and braved all, and in their decline should not feel the bitterness of national ingratitude.

Since our government rests its arms upon the education of its youth, recognizes triumphant intellect as its best weapon against prejudice, ignorance and untoward influences; since it concedes that internal happiness and external peace can only be procured at the price of universal knowledge; that the bases of our self-government are built upon these, and therefore, wisely, has set apart public domains, the proceeds of which go to create public schools and to maintain them, as its safest bulwarks for all time to come.

Where begin to enumerate the necessities of such a claim? There are many and feasible reasons to be put forth for it, and the wonder is that no step in that direction has been made. It would hardly come from our teachers themselves who are no blatant demagogues, and perhaps, the last to arrogate to themselves the preferring even of just demands, which, until rightly understood, might appear presumptuous. Real merit is modest. We hear some objector claim that the government did its duty when it gave that young man or woman the where-with-all to take up the profession of teacher, that the state's obligation ceases when she promptly makes her monthly payments.

Now, we have an army of thousands of teachers—male and female—in America, composed largely of the latter. Their merits of fitness vary, that is not our province here to decide. To some it is only a stepping-stone, perhaps an hiatus—until a better business venture turns up or until Prince Charming appears upon the scene and carries them off from their uncertain positions. The lady teacher does not receive the same salary as the male teacher, even when able to do the same work, or at least, rarely does, and the schedule is made up on quite a different basis. It certainly should not, for setting aside merit, she is in the majority here. But why is this position an uncertain one? To answer this we must remember that to a conscientious person there is no greater mental or physical strain than the one which the profession of teaching brings with it. It fascinates, it engrosses, but it also absorbs.

The absorbing of mind—making a breathless impress here, an intellectual one there, requires no mean artist. She must be up and about, inspecting all the inlying and outlying pickets along her line and not flag or weary. This daughter of the intellectual regiment, while on duty, must always be neatly and becomingly uniformed—that is one essential element—be her salary what it may. Oftener than not she has some members of her family dependent upon her. She must prepare books, periodicals, keep up with the topics of the times, besides the branches she teaches, for a well-rounded pedagogue is not one-sided. She is probably there, a church member, and should give her a refinement of manner and taste which makes it necessary to live in a more expensive manner than she might if otherwise employed. It also makes her look upon life more seriously, gives her little time to desire to mingle in society, or to contract ties which are but natural to either sex. With the female teacher, marriage is considered rather a bar to appointment. She feels independent of others, and thus it happens that we see the much-disparaged, that dread monster, the "old maid" in the teachers' ranks, with all of the above obligations to meet on comparatively small pay. These enumerations might seem mere verbiage, if they were not meant to show that under these circumstances little can be saved. There are a favorite few who have good homes, and can use their earnings as they will; they are in the minority.

The time comes when the teacher falls by the wayside in this march of progress. It is not always with added years, either. The nerves are unstrung, debility, an educator's greatest foe, sets in while on duty in the army of letters, with no arrears or pension to look to. Possibly a leave of absence is granted, but the salary ceases; and unfortunately, money is the world's lever, and a vacation without means does one about as much good as seeing a waving wheat field when one is hungry and craves bread at once. Until these sheaves are garnered, milled, put to rise and baked, starvation has stopped the grinding at the stomach.

Our western states, like all large bodies with healthy souls in them, do nobly as compared with some eastern states in respect to salaries paid their teachers. If an instructor with a family depending upon him, break down after having given his best years to his work, the case is deplorable.

able. For whoever heard of a rich teacher! Yes, if he left the ranks and applied his wits to other branches—putting forth richer foliage than the pedagogical one. But not if he kept marching on in the realm of the rule of three. He fought, was wounded and left to make the best of the situation on the field.

It is true, these men and women were not drafted into service. They are volunteers and generally enlist with a patriotic warmth—more their credit—greater their claim upon a government, they, Atlas-like, help uphold in order and in progress.

Whether these claims, which are just and entitled to be heard and acted upon, to be discussed and agitated, be state or government affairs, or both, is an after consideration. When, at what age, for what causes, a teacher would be deserving of a pension, could no doubt be as easily adjusted as is done in the cases of our soldiers by the various examining boards. Merit and long service should stand vouchers in any case. Even Germany—niggardly as a rule in her payment of her teachers—pension those grown old in her service, as do other European countries. In fact, we see no reason why our pension agencies, whose business must have contracted as the widows of pensioners remarried, their minors became of age, their veterans joined the silent majority in these last twenty years, why they could not become the distributing medium for this, our project. We should go further; we would like to see national homes erected where necessary to house those so unfortunate as to be left without one.

Putting aside the real duty in the case; not looking at it from the humanitarian standpoint, it has yet a greater one which a government so far seeing and noble as ours, should not lose sight of. It would insure the best and fittest talent for its school service. The teacher who could look forward to calm evening—not harassed by what the night might bring to him and his family if he were disabled and no longer a bread-winner, not expecting to be thrown aside as a sucked orange, would be happier in his or her life work; more content to remain in it. Never a paying calling, as the world goes, it probably with the rare exceptions, gives the least money for the greatest returns. Happily, pedagogues are too engrossed to be rapacious. The state owes them a living when their energies cease or when old age finds them still at their work, unless larger wages are paid, so that they can make provisions for these emergencies themselves. These tried servants of the government would then have time to be, what they always should be, its moral as well as mental agents. They would turn over to the state yearly crops of thinking men and women along with this higher education of latter days, who could not be influenced into anarchical, nihilistic or communistic movements at the beck of any fool of a political leader who wished to raise down all hills; discented, perchance, because nature threw up some earthworks and interfered with his plowing.

If its civil service reform is no sham; if it is what its projectors claimed for it, then here is a case in hand where it could be most aptly applied. The competitive branch has long been, but neither politics nor tidal changes, neither arbitrary rules nor favoritism should appoint or remove these scholastic soldiers. Merit and service alone should be the appointing powers, not influential friends nor social position, a consideration in itself. Even here party spirit has dared to enter. If you would keep the public schools undefiled, then along with the pension apply the provision of civil service, which can remove for cause only. This great Republic can, least of all, afford to be ungrateful to her teachers, they who stand next to the parent in human relations, almost interchangeable terms.

The public schools, the principles they uphold, make it possible for the United States to carry out the policy of good will toward all men—have made arbitration possible—have made the constant changes in our governmental affairs possible without the upheavals we see in sister Republics.

We point to the teachers in our public schools as our standing army; to our school children as our reserve corps. This our answer to these foreign potentates who are constantly laughing in their sleeves at our unprotected state. As long as they do their duty well, and the state towards them, no need of mobilizing every available male, of draining the fields and the workshops, of desolating homes, making work do man's work, impoverishing the land to keep up a defensive against some future enemy. Honesty of purpose and intellect need but few sentinels to stand guard over their movements. No call for half a million strong men in soldier's livery while our public schools and public teachers stand at the outposts.

And this, most worthy senators and congressmen, is our strongest argument in favor of a liberal pension to disabled or aged public teachers, irrespective of creed, color or sex. Self-interest will often stir a nation as well as an individual, and we maintain that it is to her interest to look well to the welfare of this division of her army. The wisdom of it must be apparent; the people's hearts, whose good impulses are usually to be found on the right side of a question, will beat in unison with this demand. Mrs. S. M. SIMPSON, Denver, Colorado.

William R. Post aged 86 died at the residence of his son Samuel, June 30th, after a few hours illness. He was one of the oldest settlers of this city, and among the first and the best of the early business men.

Darwin Griffin is owner of the fine residence recently owned by A. M. Noble on Huron-st. Some think this to be "a sign of the times" and means a future matrimonial venture, but in all probability it simply means a future business speculation.

The announcement of the death of L. A. Barnes, last Friday, was a terrible shock to every one, as no one dreamed that he was ill. He went to Detroit to have removed a portion of a diseased jaw-bone, after which operation blood poisoning set in and he died very suddenly. He was greatly respected and honored as a loyal citizen and faithful friend, and his family have the deep sympathy of all.

After much competition and great deliberation the common council of Ypsilanti have awarded the contract to put in an electric light plant for the purpose of illuminating Ypsilanti's streets, to the Jenney Electric Light Company of Indianapolis, Ind. At present fifty lights will be furnished, including one tower light in each of the five wards. Operations will begin at once and it is expected to be ready for use within two months.

The glorious Fourth passed off quietly; the evening was made sufficiently patriotic especially on the business streets, where the small boy, tall young man and Ethiopian met in brotherly union and exploded a few barrels of fire crackers, gave a protracted series of war whoops, drank lemonade, (the front doors of the saloons were closed) and went home at midnight when the big thunder storm came up.

Last May we mentioned the fact that Janitor Ferguson had received serious face injury from some unknown rough who, in company with some girls, was making night hideous on the Seminary porch; since that time officers have been on the lookout for the offender, and through the agency of the girls he was recently found in Detroit, arrested, and sent to Ionia for ninety days, in default of not being able to pay fine and costs. His name was Amos M. Dunlap.

Chas. Burkhardt has moved to his beautiful farm residence, one-half mile west of the city. Charley, and many of his Ann Arbor and Salina friends enjoyed a splendid visit at his grove the 4th.

What is the matter Argus? Saline is democratic by eighty, but we see you fall back on the old reliable party for timber for a correspondent. A republican partner and republican correspondent will, without doubt, save you.

I see my friend Deputy County Clerk Brown had a little brush with the sheriff and the report says Brown came out ahead. Good Art, and if you want I'll come over and play partner with you. "Save Saline by all means."

Chelsea.

The huckleberry season is here.

No Fourth of July accidents to report from this region.

Mrs. Hoyt, of Hastings, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. Kaley.

Fred Everett was home from Kalamazoo last Sunday and Monday.

A number of our citizens attended the great University jubilee festival at Ann Arbor last week.

Mrs. Ames, of Ann Arbor, sister of Mrs. Aaron Durand, was one of the Durand family party, at Kavanaugh lake, last Monday.

A number of our citizens, who are able to stand the racket, made displays of fireworks at their homes, on Monday evening. Just to please the children, you know.

Mrs. Dr. Robertson, of Battle Creek, with her two youngest children, spent three days, including the "glorious Fourth," with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Durand.

Miss Hattie Noyes, who was thrown from a buggy by a frightened horse, at Ann Arbor, last Wednesday, received but slight injuries, from which she is now fully recovered.

There was a general turnout of Chelsea citizens, old and young, last Monday, to attend the Fourth of July picnic at Kavanaugh lake. Quite a display of fireworks was made upon the island in the evening.

Rev. Wm. Campbell, pastor of the M. E. church, has gone to Bay View for a long vacation, hoping thereby to improve his failing health. Rev. Dr. Holmes has been engaged to supply his pulpit during his absence.

James M. Kress, of Bridgewater, claims that he had 35 fleeces of wool stolen from his granary, and other farmers throughout the county complain of having had wool stolen.

A mare belonging to Wm. Pease, living on the Ypsilanti road, was found Friday night, with a broken hind leg, and had to be killed. The mare was running with her colt in the road.

That Tired Feeling

The warm weather has a debilitating effect, especially upon those who are within doors most of the time. The peculiar, yet common, complaint known as "that tired feeling," is the result. This feeling can be entirely overcome by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives new life and strength to all the functions of the body.

"I could not sleep; had no appetite. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon began to sleep soundly; could get up without that tired and languid feeling; and my appetite improved." R. A. SANFORD, Kent, Ohio.

Strengthen the System

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over." J. P. THOMPSON, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." J. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

ABOUT WOMEN'S WAISTS.

WHAT THEY WERE LIKE IN THE MIDDLE AGES.

When the Corset Came in—Fashions as They Were in Days of Old, When Knights Were Bold and Barons Held Their Sway.

In the matter of waists ladies have always gone to some trouble to improve on nature. Yet their efforts have never been rewarded with success.

CATHERINE DE MEDICIS. In the light of the present it was very clumsy humor, but it suited the times, no doubt.

Pictures of court dames made in the Fifteenth century have waists so small that only corsets of the most yielding type could have produced them.

A book compiled in 1871 reveals the fact that women then painted their faces, bleached their hair with wine, pulled out hairs to make their foreheads high and went into the vain and frivolous in costume to great lengths.

The Normans introduced the corset into England. It can be traced back to the Twelfth century. A caricaturist represented the Devil as a fashionable lady, making the corset conspicuous by putting it on the outside of his clothes.

Girdles were worn low in the Twelfth century. The form of the girdle indicated the subjugation of woman. If encircled the waist and had a piece depending therefrom, it signified that the wearer was bound to a man who had the right to lead her about at will.

In the earlier Middle Ages they never pinched their waists. During the Eighth and Ninth centuries they wore loosely fitting robes which concealed the figure.

Classic waists were never small. And today, among some of the more intellectual women, there is a tendency to return to the "big classic waist" and abjure the corset altogether.

Things One Would Rather Have Left Unsaid.

She—No! I can't give you another dance. But I'll introduce you to the prettiest girl in the room!

He—But I don't want to dance with the prettiest girl in the room. I want to dance with you.—Punch.

The Limekiln Club. The secretary of the state board of health of Illinois wanted to know what progress, if any, the colored people of Michigan were making in sanitary matters.

Several other members spoke in the same strain, and related vivid personal experiences, and the president finally said: "De Secretary will answer to de effect dat we ar' improv'in' in sanitary matters in de rappest manner, an' dat de time ar purty nigh at hand when a black pusson sleep'in' in de garret of a house doorn' de hot nights of July an' August will verry probably remove de feather bed an' dispense wid abut fo' comforters."

Filial Scruples. On the avenue—"Know him?" "Who?" "Old chap in the queer clothes that just passed."

Poetry and Prose. She—What a lovely summer afternoon. How resplendent the bright orb of day hangs in the blue vault above.

Plantation Philosophy. I'lobe dat ef I wuz on er race hoss an' had two hours de start, debt could jump on er cow an' overtake me.

A Pleasant Feature. "I am afraid, madam," said a gentleman who was looking for country board, "that the house is too near the station to be pleasant."

An Enemy He Has Made. "The first mosquito of the season visited me last night," observed the snake editor, "and I made him my enemy."

BILL NYE'S HORRORSCOPE.
He Pays a Brief Visit to a Professional Star Reader.

"Ring the bell and the door will open," is the remark made by a small label over a bell handle in Third avenue, near Eighteenth street, where Mme. La Foy reads the past, present and future at so much per read.
Love, marriage, divorce, business, speculation and sickness are there handled with the utmost impunity by "Mme. La Foy, the famous scientific astrologist," who has monkeyed with the planets for twenty years, and if she wanted any information has "read it in the stars."

I rang the bell the other day to see if the door would open. It did so after considerable delay, and a pimply boy in knee pants showed me upstairs into the waiting room.

"Mme. La Foy De Grav," said I, bowing with the easy grace of a gentleman of the old school, "would you mind peering into the future for me about a half dollar's worth,
not necessarily for publication, et cetera."

"Certainly not. What would you like to know?"

"Why, I want to know all I can for the money," I said in a bantering tone. "Of course I do not wish to know what I already know. It is what I do not know that I desire to know. Tell me what I do not know, Madame. I will detain you but a moment."

"You can tell me what year and on what day of that month you were born," said Mme.
La Foy, "and I will outline your life to you.
I generally require a lock of the hair, but in your case we will dispense with it."

I told when I was born and the circumstances as well as I could recall them.

IN THE CLAIRVOYANT'S DEN.

"This brings you under Venus, Mercury and Mars. These three planets were in conjunction at the time of your birth. You were born when the sign was wrong and you have had more or less trouble ever since. Had you been born when the sign was in the head or the heart, instead of the feet, you would not have spread out over the ground so much."

"Your health is very good, as is the health of those generally who are born under the same auspices that you were. People who are born under the reign of the crab are apt to be cancerous. You, however, have great lung power and wonderful gastric possibilities. Yet, at times, you would be easily upset. A strong cyclone that would unroof a court house or tip over a through train would also upset you, in spite of your broad, firm feet, if the wind got behind one of your ears."

"You will be married early and you will be very happy, though your wife will not enjoy herself very much. Your wife will be much happier during her second marriage."

"You will prosper better in business matters without forming any partnerships. Do not go into partnership with a small, dark man who has neuralgia and a fine yacht. He has abundant means, but he will go through you like an electric shock."

"Tuesdays and Saturdays will be your most fortunate days on which to borrow money of men with light hair. Mondays and Thursdays will be your best days for approaching dark men."

"Look out for a low sot man accompanied by an office cat, both of whom are engaged in the newspaper business. He is crafty and bald headed on his father's side. He prints the only paper that contains the full text of his speeches at testimonials and dinners given to other people. Do not loan him money on any account."

"You would succeed well as a musician or an inventor, but you would not do well as a poet. You have all the keen sensibility and strong passion of a poet, but you haven't the hair. Do not try poetry."

"In the future I see you very prosperous.
You are on the lecture platform speaking.
Large crowds of people are jostling each other at the box office and trying to get their money back."

"Then I see you riding behind a flexible horse that must have cost a large sum of money. You are smoking a cigar that has never been in use before. Then Venus bisects the orbit of Mars and I see you going home with your head tied up in the lap robe, you and your spirited horse in the same ambulance."

"But do you see anything for me in the future, Mme. La Foy?" I asked, taking my feet off the table, the better to watch her feet-work; "anything that would seem to indicate political preferment, a reward for past services to my country, as it were?"

"No, not clearly. But wait a moment.
Your horoscope begins to get a little more intelligent. I see you at the door of the senate chamber. You are counting out your money and looking sadly at a schedule of prices.
Then you turn sorrowfully away and decide to buy a seat in the house instead. Many years after I see you in the senate. You are there day after day attending to your duties.
You are there early, before any one else, and I see you pacing back and forth, up and down the aisle, sweeping out the senate chamber and dusting off the seats and rejuvenating the cupids."

"Would it be etiquette in dancing a quadrille to swing a young person of the opposite sex twice around at a select party when you are but slightly acquainted, but feel quite confident that her partner is unmarried?"

"Yes."

"Does your horoscope tell a person what to do with raspberry jelly that will not sell?"

"No, not at the present prices."

"So you predict an early marriage, with threatening weather and strong prevailing easterly winds along the gulf states?"

"Yes, sir."

"And is there no way that this early marriage may be evaded?"

"No, not unless you put it off till later in life."

"Thank you," I said, rising and looking out the window over a broad sweep of undulating alley and wind swept roofing, "and now, how much are you out on this?"

"Sir?"

"What's the damage?"

"Oh, one dollar."

"But don't you advertise to read the past, present and future for fifty cents?"

"Well, that is where a person has had other information before in his life and has some knowledge to begin with; but where I fill up a vacant mind entirely and store it with facts of all kinds and stock it up so that it can do business for itself, I charge a dollar. I cannot thoroughly read and furnish a mental template for the ground up for fifty cents."

I do not think we have as good "Astrologists" now as we used to have. Astrologists cannot crawl under the tent and pry into the future as they could 3,000 or 4,000 years ago.

The Modern Queen of Hearts.
In the dark ages of his case
Man helped himself to all degrees
Of learned distinction,
Nor dreamed that woman's ear could master
Ho Race, Vir Gil, or Zo Roaster
Without extinction.

But all is changed. In Greek and Latin,
By hives which learned drones have sat in,
Queen bees sip honey.
By classic streams they Homer spout,
And no male don can drive them out
For love or money.

But to our tale. Minerva Bryde
Was of our college halls the pride.
She thought in Greek.
In Sanscrit she could write a play.
The calculus she solved all day
Ere she could speak.

The dons of Cambridge owned that she Could wax 'em on philosophy;
And as for sciences,
Old fossils who could bones compare,
But who had lost in thought their hair,
Sought an alliance.

The fair Minerva, Queen of Hearts,
One day was capped Master of Arts.
She knew them them all—
Logic, divinity and law,
Zoology, deology; but, psah!
She beat old Sol.

Now many suitors sought to win
Minerva with their rapid chin
And polished cheek.
She bowed not on the Applan Way
To any man who could not say
"Ice cream" in Greek.

For she was lovelier than the dawn,
And lithe of figure as a fawn.
Out of his mind
One fellow wrote a song;
His quantities, poor wretch, were wrong.
She cut him blind.

But, ah! a lovely youth there came,
A very Paris, and his game
Was, with a ball of wax, Played by the Greeks in Athens when
The gods were young. Of all the men
He had the call.

A champion he, whose mighty bat
Had laid full many a Hooster flat.
His aim was true
When at a rival head, Rudolph,
With eye unerring, as in golf,
The baseball threw.

One eve he came. Torn were his clothes,
And on a patch he wore his nose,
Arm in a sling.
"Minerva," cried the youth, with glee,
"We've busted 'em. Hoohah!" and she Said "Ting-a-ling."

She was the belle. Ah, it was sweet.
She bade him kneel down at her feet,
And crowned him then.
"My best and truest, Soc of Arts,
The Master gives thee 'bers." No cards.

California Snakes.

The eastern boom, I mean the boom made by eastern people with money, has started up some of the old dead industries of California.
With the easy progress of civilization the good old industry of lying had almost died out. It got discouraged, and so many wonderful things had happened elsewhere that it was hard for the Californian imagination to meet the necessities. It was easier to give up lying to strangers altogether, for even the most un-traveled easterner could ring the bell on the California guide or stage driver. These gentry are now awakening from their lethargy and beginning to make the Yosemite and other trips lively. A friend of mine from the east has just come back from the Yosemite and he relates his experience. The stage driver found out that he was seriously afraid of snakes and immediately proceeded to make his hair stand on end.

"Venomous reptiles! You bet, I don't know what reptiles is, but them snakes, you can just bet your life is, venomous. Why, one day I was acclin' down here drivin'
a wagon, when I catches sight of a snake in the brush, all ready for a spring. My horses starts an' I whips 'em up fast to clear the snake, don't you see, afore he could spring.
He makes one clear spring, the snake does,
an' he misses the horses."

"That was lucky—but you—you—"
"Lucky! You bet your life it was lucky.
He missed the horses, the snake did, but he stuck his fangs clean through the wagon."

"You don't say!"

"I do say, and maybe you won't believe it;
but it's a fact. He stuck his fangs clean through that wagon, an' it swelled up so bad that we had to leave it by the wayside
and take the horses home."—San Francisco Chronicle.

"Yes," said Miss Breezy, of Chicago, "it is a pleasure to dine at the Wabashes. Mrs.
Wabash is naturally hospitable, and aside from the general excellence everything is served in a way that is positively delightful to a person of cultured tastes. And her soups are delicious. Why, do you know, I went on the young lady, 'that last evening I was served to soup three times, and could easily have gone one more.'"—New York Sun.

WANTED NO "MEJUM" IN HIS.
The Sage Conclusion of a Minnesota
Parent Who Objected.

"I don't want no spiritualism in mine," said
a red headed man with long hair, as he sat down in a saloon on Washington avenue.
"There may be something in it, but I know all about it that I want to know," and he leaned back in his chair and looked solemnly at a companion.

"'Wot's the matter with it?' asked the other.
"Gimme a little rye," said the red nosed man; "them's the only sperrits I want anything to do with," he continued, as the glass was set before him. "They're good enough for me."

"'Wot's the matter with spiritualism?'" repeated the companion.

"I ain't a sayin' nothin' 'gainst spiritualism," he announced, guardedly, "but I don't want any of it; I have had a little experience, and that settled me. My wife 'Mandy' went to some of their meetin's and they kinder affected her. One of their hungry lookin' cusses come 'round to the house one day, and told 'Mandy' she'd make a mejum like him if she'd take some lessons for $25. He gave a test, and called on 'Mandy's' dead brother to show up. He come and they had a talk. He told 'Mandy' that when she was a mejum she could call up any sperret she wanted to.
That's what settled me. I didn't wait for nothin' more. I didn't argy with 'Mandy', 'cause I knew it was no use. I watched my chance and got that cuss out in the meeder and told him to git. He said he wouldn't. I just took and pounded him till he was black an' blue. He didn't wait another minit, but set out for the station like a 4-year-old runnin' away."

"Kinder pulverized him, did you?" remarked the listener.

"You bet, an' I did him up in brown with red dressin'."

"But wot made you kick on spiritualism?"
asked the companion for the third time.

"I ain't sayin' anything 'gainst spiritualism," reiterated the red nose man, "but I don't want 'Mandy' to be no mejum. Now I don't want to run down 'Mandy'. She's the best housekeeper in our county. There ain't no dirt 'round our house, and her butter an' bread is famous. But 'Mandy' has her peo-cularities, and they're kinder unpleasant at times. I ain't no fault finder, but still I can't make up my min to have them peo-cularities 'round me all the time. Now 'Mandy's' strong and the chances are she'll live longer'n I will. Now, if she was a meju in she could call up my sperrit to her every time. I wouldn't have no peace in the other world at all. She'd keep me right by her an' I wouldn't have a chance to go visitin' in the next world," and he sighed gently.

Just then a harsh sound was wafted into the saloon. It evidently emanated from a female, and it sounded like a man filing a saw. The red nosed man rose with a wild look in his eye. He glanced at the back door and then looked toward the street. It was only a big colored woman disputing with the small boy. A mighty sigh or spasm of relief shook his frame.

"I—I thought it was 'Mandy,'" he said. "I left her at the hotel."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Ex-pension agent Post: "I don't see why some of Ann Arbor's and Ypsilanti's enterprising capitalists don't form a stock company and build an electric railway between the two cities. I honestly believe it would be a paying investment. After you get your road built there is but little expense in operating it. And then, too, the farmers on the line of it could afford to do the handsome thing if such an enterprise should be undertaken, for it wouldn't be long until business men in both cities would be going out aways to buy eight or ten acres of land, build a house thereon and live there. Yes, sir, it would be a good thing for both cities and a paying investment for those who undertook it." And then the ex-agent branched out to informing his hearers of the curative properties of the "Queen Anne" soap and soon he was left with an audience of one, and that one was ex-pension agent Post.

It is suggested that a reunion of all teachers in attendance at the association, who are now teaching or who have ever taught in Michigan, be held at the Palmer House some time during the meetings of the association. Prof. William E. Sheldon, Boston, Mass., President, writes: "As Michigan is one of the five grand states carved out of the Northwest territory, consecrated to freedom and education by the ordinance of 1787, the one hundredth anniversary of which we celebrate Wednesday evening, July 13, at Chicago, I am specially desirous that your state should be well represented by educators and also by your historical societies." Fred W. Stevens, who graduated in the literary department of the University last year, would very gladly have returned and taken a second degree or a course of study in natural science of which he was enthusiastically fond. He had a great desire to go to the Philippine Islands with Prof. Steere, and at one time fully expected that he would be able to do so; and knowing what we do of his natural ability and success in the study of the animal kingdom, and the genius he has displayed from an early age in taxidermy, and in other lines of work that would fit him for the particular duties that would be required in the enterprise which Dr. Steere undertakes, we believe Mr. Stevens would prove a valuable member of the expedition. But instead of this field for fame opening to him he went home and found his father in poor health, and a county newspaper on his hands that had lately come into his possession in the course of trade. The father retired to his farm and left Fred, inexperienced as he was, to manage the paper. He buried his cherished hopes for the while and bravely took up the duty so different from what he expected and wished it would be. In this, as in everything he undertakes, young Stevens has been very successful, and the Eaton Rapids Journal under his management is one of the most interesting, versatile and attractive papers in the state. In a little but wide-awake city of two thousand people he has gained a circulation of about 1500, and has a large patronage from the business men. Last week during the days of the M. E. camp-meeting he issued a bright little daily and in other ways he is showing the stuff that is in him. There may not be a chance for world-wide fame in the field Stevens now occupies, but he is talking to a large audience each week, and may possibly do more real good to his fellowmen while he remains there, than in all the years of the future that he may give to study and research in the lines of science to which he aspires.
