VISITS THE UNIVERSITY.

GOV. LUCE ADDRESSES THE FARMERS OF WASHTENAW COUNTY.

And Visits the Different Departments of the University—The Guest of Mayor Smith—His speech at the Fair.

Friday was the last day of the fair, and there was a much larger attendance than usual on the last day. Many had come for the purpose of hearing Gov. Luce, who arrived in the city about noon, and was conveyed to the residence of Mayor Smith, whose guest he was during his stay in the city. After dinner the Governor, the Mayor and President Braun, of the Agricultural Society, drove to the fair grounds, where at two o'clock the Governor addressed the large concourse of people there assembled. His speech is given herewith.

After he had finished his speech he, in company with the Mayor, visited the University, where he was cordially greeted. Under the guidance of Prof. Frieze, Prescott and Pettee, the different departments were visited. At the law department he delivered a short speech and was vociferously cheered by the students. At the medical department he also spoke a few words to one of the classes. At the mechanical laboratory the Governor seemed to be much impressed with the work being done there. After the Governor had completed his visit to the several buildings he expressed himself as being much surprised at the magnitude of the institution, and expressed none but the best of good will for its success.

In the evening he attended the S. C. A. social, where he spoke for a few minutes. Late in the evening he left for his home in Lansing, and when parting with friends said he should visit the University again this fall and learn more about it.

On being introduced by President Braun, the Governor spoke as follows, which will be of interest especially to our agricultural friends.

Mr. President and Fellow-Citizens: After much and varied experience in talking, I desire to assure you that talking at fairs is the most difficult task I ever assumed. The competition presented by graceful and feet-footed horses, lowing herds, the bleating flock, the grunting swine, all combined are too great an attraction to be overcome by a speech from me. I have been invited to come here and meet with you and speak briefly to you this afternoon, chiefly in relation to questions of agriculture. The best thing that I can say will be that the talk shall be brief. I have sometimes talked at great length, but this afternoon I am on my honor to speak briefly to you.

It is now two hundred and seventy-five years since the eyes of white men gazed off from the lake upon the shore of Michigan. It is only within the last half century, however, that Michigan has assumed the position and the relations now existing with other states and countries. For two hundred years almost, we were taught that Michigan was one vast swamp, that it was totally unfit for human habitation; the old geographers said that in this swamp resided a few roving bands of Indians, many wolves, a few deers and a great number of massaugas; but it was totally unfit for human habitation. Now we behold one of the grandest states. Standing where I do, speaking in the name of the state that I do—I claim today that Michigan is one of the grandest in the whole sisterhood of states. We have more lake coast, better fishing and can tell bigger fish stories than they can tell in any other section of country. [Laughter.] We have many mines of many kinds, of copper, of iron and of others, and we make more salt than any other place on earth. And as you all know, we have the HARDEST MEN AND HANDSOMEST WOMEN that can be found on God's earth.

And right here in the Athens of this grand state, standing, I will not say in the shadow of your University, but in the sunlight of this beautiful afternoon, I feel proud that I can speak to you in relation to agriculture; for after conceding the manifest advantages of the University and of these grand advantages of minerals and fish, of salt, of copper and of iron, I come here to claim to you what the statistics will prove is true, that agriculture is really the principal product of this state; that it is upon its agriculture that all our people rely for their prosperity, and anything that stimulates and improves agriculture is in the line of the best interests of our people in its varied and all of its diversified interests.

Now, a fair, conducted at the present time with the present methods, is a modern institution. Fairs have existed down through all ages, but originally they were widely different from the fair of today. The fair of today is, or should be, largely educational; it should be particularly stimulating; it should be partially social, but it should above all things give us new ideas of the best way in which we can improve our farms and our stock. No one should come here without some fixed purpose, let that fair be state, district

ON THE CAMPUS.

The engineers are indignant at the excessive price charged them for mathematical books.

The class of '90 and the freshmen will play a game of foot-ball on the campus, Saturday afternoon.

The University base-ball club was beaten by the Browns, Saturday, on the fair grounds, 14 to 15.

The class of '90 held a meeting in room A, last Saturday, and elected Messrs. Ball, Harless and Bulton, captains.

The class of '91 will meet in room A, Saturday morning, to elect class officers for the ensuing year. They will probably also challenge the sophomores to a game of foot-ball.

Examinations for the Choral Union took place last Monday evening, and for the class in choral master pieces examination, took place Saturday morning; a large number attended.

The Lecture Association are trying to secure dates with the following gentlemen: Waterson, Joe Howard, Dr. Vincent, Royal Spanish Troubadours, Chas. Dickens and Dr. Joseph Parker.

The Chronicle will make its first appearance on Saturday as a weekly. The list of editors for the ensuing year is: H. Williams, managing editor; F. Livingstone, secretary and treasurer; Mitchell, Duffy, Grousel, Kiefer, Parker, Burke, Hubbard, Brown, Parks and Powell.

The base-ball association is in a flourishing condition, and if new students will come out on the campus and practice and show their ability to handle a ball and wield a bat, the management will soon present another club, without doubt as good in every respect as that of last year.

Dr. H. R. Arndt, of the homoeopathic medical department of the University, received quite an ovation on last Thursday, when students from both departments, besides several professors, listened to his lecture, which was pronounced one of the finest ever given in Ann Arbor. All the lectures by Dr. Arndt are deservedly very popular.

The Argonaut proposes to give the students a newspaper this year, and if succeeding issues are as good as the first number, Saturday last, we have no hesitancy in saying that it will do what it promises. The departments during the coming semester will be in charge of the following gentlemen: S. A. Moran, editorials; T. H. Gale, campus locals; F. G. Plain, C. H. Read and J. N. McBride, the news columns; G. T. Gamble, exchanges; P. J. Sjoblom, alumni notes.

The Lecture Association has passed the following on the death of William W. Parfet, of which he was assistant treasurer: "Since Almighty God hath called unto himself Mr. William W. Parfet, a dear college mate, beloved by all who knew him, and one whose place cannot easily be filled;

Resolved, That the Student's Lecture Board do by these resolutions express their deep sorrow at the death of one of their members, and extend their sympathy to his many sad friends, feeling assured that what is our loss is his gain."

The prospects for re-opening the gymnasium are not very flattering. The apparatus is as yet stored in the cellar of the law building, but we are in hopes to soon see it in place in a suitable building. The board of officers say that they shall have to have $1,500 to run it, without a trainer, and that sum they must procure from the students, which means 300 students at $5 apiece, and the 'Gym' an assured fact for another year. Last year the great fault found was that no one used the apparatus the second semester, and of course the officers, under such circumstances, do not feel very much encouraged to renew the struggle this year.

All interested in the literary work of students are invited to Alpha Nu hall next Saturday evening, for which place and time the following programme has been provided: Beginning promptly at eight o'clock, essay, "Alaska," H. W. Fairbanks; oration, "What we think of the Men of '61 to '65," J. N. McBride; vocal solo, R. S. Smith; recitation, "Jimmy Butler and the Owl," E. C. Warriner. Debate—Resolved, "That debating should be made the main feature of our Alpha Nu work." A. F. J. Matthews; neg. P. J. Sjoblom. At 9 o'clock a general discussion of the above question.

REGISTRATION.

The following figures show the number of students registered in the different departments, yesterday at noon, and at the same time last year:

Literary department.....	1887.	1886.
Medical department.....	654	626
Law department.....	291	299
Dental department.....	103	89
Pharmacy department.....	92	62
Homoeopathic department.....	64	59
Total.....	1,307	1,442

If as many register after this date as did last year, the entire enrollment will be 1,637, against 1,572 in 1886.

RUGBY ASSOCIATION.

Argonaut: The Rugby Association is thoroughly alive and proposes to make a record this year. Northwestern is negotiating with the Association for a game or two at Chicago, and our eleven will probably eat turkey in Chicago during the Thanksgiving recess. Games will also be billed for the home field.

Morrow and Jaycox will be greatly missed, but Townsend, formerly lit '83, and a member of the eleven that Michigan sent east in 1883, is now a member of the Law Department; and '91 is happy in the possession of McPharron, the captain and half-back of the Phillips' Exeter Academy eleven of last year.

The Association earnestly desire that every one that has ever seen a foot-ball shall come out and "put his foot in the ball" as often as possible. With the champion kicker and such promising material, the Association believes that it can put as strong a team into the field as the one that went east. And if it can do so, why not send them again?

A BUTTER AND CHEESE FACTORY.

Farm and Garden—Premiums at the County Fair.

Farmers and horticulturists, please allow me to direct your attention to the establishment of a butter and cheese factory at Ann Arbor for the following reasons:

1. We have a country that is able to support such an enterprise. Our hills and dales, our springs and water privileges, so essential for stock-raising, our facilities for transportation, are inviting.

2. We have, as the exhibit of cattle at our fair shows, valuable experiments with stock for milk and butter.

3. The fertility of our lands, threatened in time to become impoverished by continual rotation of cereals, especially wheat, would be increased by stock-raising. Our fruit trees need more and better nourishment in order to bear larger and better fruit. Every fruit grower can keep some stock.

4. Our already overburdened farmers' wives and maidens should be relieved of butter making and carrying of milk up and down stairs.

5. Grasses growing on hills are generally sweeter than those on lowlands unless well-drained. Upland grasses and roots produce richer milk.

6. Our intelligent housekeepers and butter consumers long for a sweet article which can be had year in and year out in a scientifically arranged creamery. The same is the case with rich, sweet cheese. The Swiss cheese which is manufactured in Monroe county, Ohio, on the hills bordering the Ohio river from Sunfish to Baresville, equals the imported article. In a conversation with one of the Swiss farmers who cultivated these steep hills which the Yankee would never set foot on, I was informed that cheese manufactured there was even richer on account of the timothy hay which grows so perfectly sweet on these hills. Also certain root crops were raised.

In a conversation on the above topic at the fair ground with Mr. Paul Suckey, I learned that this gentleman, who is a chemist and practical horticulturist, has the erection of such a factory on his farm in contemplation. But we need such a factory in this city. Large quantities of milk would come in by railway. This is a central place for the farmers.

I hope the above reasons will invite capital and intelligence to an industry which will justify the investment. I desire to give expression to my gratitude toward the farmers and horticulturists for their rich exhibit, which exceeded that of any other previous county fair. I only wish the judges could award a premium to every worthy article exhibited.

More money spent in that way and less in races, which seem to benefit the smallest class of exhibitors, would make the fair more attractive. At any rate we all should make more of an effort to make our fair a success. Farmers and horticulturists should heed the words of the governor that they have reason to be proud of their profession just as much as the lawyer, doctor or professor. How could they subsist without our honest and intelligent hand and brain work?

Let us prove our gratitude toward the kind providence, which has cast our lot in such pleasant places where on farm and garden our industry is well rewarded, by doing good, "and let us not be weary in well-doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." EMTL BAUR. Ann Arbor, Oct. 8, 1887.

Good Templars.

The Michigan grand lodge of good templars will hold its annual session next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the 18th to 20th inst., in Nickels' new hall, 44 and 46 State-st. A John B. Finch memorial service will be held Tuesday evening, probably in one of the churches. The Baptist people have kindly offered the use of their church to the grand lodge for a public temperance meeting Thursday evening. The lodge has 12,000 members in this state, and the good templars are the strongest temperance organization in the world, having its lodges in nearly all civilized countries.

which consists of sixty head of cattle, of which the most are pure thoroughbreds, selected with great care from the stocks of the best breeders in Michigan, and the noted stocks of Kentucky. The cattle were critically observed by all present, and only words of approval were uttered by any one.

Mr. Boyden's flock of sheep consists of about 200 head of merinos, descendants from the stock of T. Stickney & Son, Wm. & E. N. Ball, and F. and L. E. Moore.

H. D. Platt was present and requested the privilege of exhibiting the corn, (which was here shown), at the meeting of the National Grange, to be held in Lansing in December next, in the name of the Webster Farmers' Club.

It was voted to hold an institute in the Webster congregational church some time this winter.

The only thing on the programme in the way of a literary effort was a

PAPER BY C. M. STARKS.

It was one of that gentleman's best efforts and was received with marked attention by his hearers. It was too long for us to give in full, but the following is a synopsis of it:

The lamp of experience is a good one—one never to be extinguished—but as this is one of the dearest modes of tutoring, a desire to avoid its bitter passages should be the aim of every sensible individual. With farmers experience is too often routine, or at best, a blind imitation of some model their minds have set up.

ideas, can make it or them subservient to their will; that can reduce order from chaos, bending natural forces and making them servants to the human mind, conquering success from adverse surroundings, causing the waste places to blossom and bloom as the rose. Standing here on the

with all its pleasant adjuncts of well-tilled fields, shady lanes, overflowing barns, and homes of comfort, with the added luxury of beauty, I find an apt illustration to the point. More years than I can remember, and while the world lived without me, Luther Boyden, the founder of Springbrook Farm, came to Michigan and pitched his tent just north of this spot.

The man that gets to the top in any business is the one looking out for better methods. Invention is a necessity in all vocations. The close scramble of rival interests, with the intense competition compel the manufacturer to invent shorter lines of transportation and consequently cheaper rates. Take the one commodity, to which we have hitherto pinned our faith. Look at the wasteful production on our farms. Does it speak much for the ingenuity of its raisers when I assert, and I believe you, gentlemen, will say I draw it mild, that in harvesting this precious crop we leave enough on the ground to pay for the labor of gathering; that much is wasted in stacking and no small amount finds its way into the straw-stack. The old conservative miller who today attempts to manufacture flour by bars gets left. New processes have superseded the old-time stone with its giant timbered husk.

lying there as our fathers found them over a half century ago. How many of you have cursed your forty, eighty or quarter section for its being so broken up with marshes? Does it need, after the few last dry seasons, the papers to tell us about Kalamazoo celery, or the onion beds of Ann Arbor and Eaton Rapids? I believe I demonstrated to you personally at our two last annual fairs that corn, wheat and terrific vegetables grow upon these despoiled bottoms.

are disgusted with wheat raising try draining some of those submerged mines of agricultural wealth on a limited scale and see whether it will pay or not? Suppose the tilling and plowing and first working cost as much per acre as the price of upland, when you bring them into fertility you certainly have your land more compact, save extra fencing, and when you pay your real estate tax, you pay for something that returns you value received. In these later days, we hear much agricultural colleges being started for experiment and the like. Now I have in my mind an old, illiterate farmer who always has to put his cross to his signature, who can fell a bullock, size up the soil, raise any of the cereals and get a yield bushel for bushel with the best educated book-farmers, and why? Is it mere luck? Nay, verily; this old granger has made his business a life study and is better educated than half the agricultural college presidents.

Easy, slow-going, sleepy old Ann Arbor, of a half century's association with dead languages, where it is popularly supposed the city fathers wrote the city ordinances in Greek and chop logic in the vernacular of Enos' biographer, or the immortal Virgil, where college dons are as plentiful as brigadiers in the civil war, and Angels might give tone to its classic disquisition, is waking up. The hum of wheels, the grinding noise of machinery, the black smoke of factory and forge, the heavy tread of the dray, the shrill whistle of the locomotive and stationary engine, in the different hives of mechanical industry, indicate that the boom has struck the Athens of the West.

Sec. 26. It shall be the duty of every person or persons engaged in the manufacture and sale of malt, spirituous, or alcoholic liquors, or in rectifying or preparing the same in any way, to brand on each barrel, cask or other vessel containing the same, the name or names of the person, company, or firm manufacturing, rectifying, or preparing the same, and also these words, "Pure, and without drugs or poison."

HALL'S $100 Reward. $100.

The readers of THE REGISTER will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known in the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The Proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars, for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists & 75 Cts. CATARRH CURE.

Hot Weather Notes.—Don't run for the train. Miss it, and keep cool about it. Avoid the bobtail box horse car unless you are short of change. Eat whatever you please. You will then be able to hear the delightful sounds of the night.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1887.

FRATERNITY Grange of this county, will meet at Augusta, Wednesday evening, Oct. 26. The question for discussion will be on the governor's veto of the University appropriation. Geo. McDougal, of Ypsilanti, will sustain the governor, and Andrew Campbell will lead the discussion in the negative. As we understand it the debate is supposed to involve, to a considerable degree, the propriety of the state supporting a school or university for the advancement of higher education. As an intelligent farmer expressed it on the fair grounds last week, the governor did not appreciate the magnitude of the University and the great work it is doing for the cause of education. If he could have been here a week or two before he signed his veto for a liberal appropriation, and seen to what grand and noble uses the funds appropriated for it were being put, that particular document would probably never have been issued. The University is worth to the state and the world at large every cent it has cost, and more too.

PROFESSOR W. H. PAYNE.

The University, city and state will join in regrets at the loss of our eminent and greatly respected Prof. Payne, and will be prepared to appreciate the following notice of his departure to another educational institution, found in the Religious Herald, of Richmond, Va.: Prof. William H. Payne has had charge of this department and raised it to its present exalted rank. Experience as a superintendent, wide and accurate scholarship, great success in teaching, have given him exceptional qualifications for his chair. Prof. Payne has recently been elected to, and has accepted, the Presidency of the Normal College in Nashville, Tenn. This College, the child of the Peabody Educational Fund, to which the Southern States send select pupils for training as teachers, has been fortunate in securing, as its head, such a distinguished educator. The President and faculty of the University and the town will give him up with deepest regret. Prof. Payne is a Christian gentleman, an elder in the Presbyterian Church, a successful lecturer in Teachers' Institutes, a wise, prudent, patriotic citizen, full of enthusiasm and energy in his special work, and will enter on his new field with the ambition and the determination to make the College the best Normal College in the United States.

Coming Events.

Rev. Dr. Eddy will supply the pulpit at the Presbyterian Church until further arrangement shall be made.

Next Sunday evening Rev. Dr. Ramsay will deliver the first of a series of two sermons on a "Students' Life."

"Bible Reading" will be the topic, at the prayer meeting in the M. E. church, Wednesday evening, October 26.

A social will be held in the evening of the Congregational church, this evening. Supper will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

The ladies' prayer meeting of the Congregational church will be held in the mission room, Friday afternoon at three o'clock.

Prof. M. L. D'Ooge will discourse on "The Higher and the Lower Life," before the Students' Christian Association, Sunday morning.

The young ladies of the Congregational church will meet with Miss Lizzie Dean, No. 57 E. Liberty-st., Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock, to work for the missionary fair.

There will be a meeting of the board of directors of a Washtenaw Agricultural and Horticultural societies, in their room in the court house, tomorrow afternoon.

The Grand Lodge of Good Templars will hold a memorial service in honor of the late John B. Finch, at the Baptist church Tuesday evening, Oct. 18, to which the public are invited.

There will be a meeting of the board of managers of the agricultural society at the court house, Tuesday, October 18, at 1 o'clock p. m., at which time all bills must be presented, otherwise they will stand over for one year.

Services on Sundays, in St. Andrew's church, hereafter as follows: 7:30 a. m., holy communion and litany; 10:30 a. m., morning prayer and ante-communion service; 12 m., Bible classes and Sunday school; 7:30 p. m., evening service.

The Unity Club holds its opening social in the parlors of the Unitarian church Monday, Oct. 17. Good music will be provided and entertainment will be furnished by the "Budget" committee. Refreshments will be served during the evening. All are cordially invited. Parlors open at 7:15; admission free.

The experiment tried the latter part of last year of having Mrs. Sunderland's Bible class at the Unitarian church on Sunday evening, was so successful that it will be repeated this year in a modified form. She will give this season, fifteen lectures on the "Origin, Growth and Meaning of the Bible," occupying every other Sunday evening (alternately with Mr. Sunderland), beginning next Sunday.

HE VISITS THE UNIVERSITY.

or county, and this object should be in relation to improvement of ourselves and our farms. Here is to seek an education in relation to the conduct of our own affairs and those of the farm. We come here to see how our prosperous neighbors succeed in the prosecution of their calling. We come here to view good cattle, good hogs, good sheep, and I suppose, fast horses. Now we all understand distinctly some in the prosecution of our calling, some may succeed better than others. I know that man nowhere accomplishes all that he desires, or realizes all his hopes; but no man succeeds in claiming a competency, surrounding himself with comforts of life, while another man, on the farm, goes through a long life of industry working hard all his life, and his wife and children work hard, and they are discouraged with the work and all that concerns them. Now there is some reason for this difference in the existing condition of the men who were originally surrounded with similar conditions, and we ought to come here and study the way of our more prosperous neighbors. We ought to visit farms everywhere for the purpose of observing what it is that makes the difference between the successful and the unsuccessful farmer.

I am going to talk to you this afternoon, not from the governor's office, but from the farm, from my experience of long years on the farm. I am going to tell you that it better, requires deeper knowledge to properly conduct a farm than it does to conduct any other business that mankind is engaged in. A man may be a pretty fair lawyer, or a good doctor—and I want to be on the good side of the doctors, because I am the guest of one—a man may be a good preacher, and still not be possessed of all the knowledge that is required to conduct a farm. A man may be a railroad man, or a contractor, or a successful superintendent, and yet not know enough to manage a farm. He may indeed be, and yet not have as much knowledge as the farmer has got to have before he can secure the highest success that the tillers of the soil require in this grand state of ours.

I knew a well-known successful business man. He bought a farm and went on it for three years. He put in his time and his money, he said he thought he knew enough to run a farm. He ran the farm three years, or rather, it run him. At the end of three years when he sold it he said that all there was on it was a row of timothy in the fence corners that the other man hadn't mowed, and that would go but a little ways in supporting a family. Now we farmers have to meet emergencies as they arise; we have to be prepared to meet the changes in the elements; to destroy the insects that infest or overcome the crops, and thus protect ourselves against death. It is the solemn duty of every tiller of the soil to maintain and increase the fertility of the land as we cultivate it. It is a duty imposed on us by high heaven itself. It is a duty we owe to ourselves. It is a duty we owe to the business interests of this country. It is a duty we owe to the millions of unborn, to cultivate these fields in such a way that they will be better for our posterity. Let them be better when we are through with them than when we took them from the hand of nature. For thirty-seven years I lived on the same farm. I felled the first tree. I took it from the hand of nature, and it was pretty good land in the first place. You may charge me with vanity if you like, but I tell you it was more fertile, richer, with more of the elements of fertility in the soil than when I took it from the hand of nature. So I know that it can be done. I know that some of you in this rich fertile county of Washtenaw, renowned for its fertility, distinguished for the INDUSTRY OF ITS PEOPLE.

I know that some of you have succeeded in doing as well as I have done. What I want to impress on you is that we don't need commercial fertilizers or if we do it is standing evidence that we have not performed our duty wisely and well. If we have to resort to commercial fertilizers to increase the fertility of our soil, or renovate our worn out soil, it is evidence at once that we have not performed our duty. The best fertilizer for our soil is human brains, and the more cultured the brains the better fertilizers they make; and one of the queerest things about this kind of a fertilizer is that it never wears out on the farm. Some of these men over here, some of these professors possibly, may become insane with too much use of the brain; but if he will give four hours a day to work on the farm—and that is all a man ought to be required to do—he will never become insane. But you must keep up your physical energies, and you needn't be afraid of going to Pontiac. The more you use your brains the better will be your farm.

But, you come here for another purpose—to stimulate you in the use of the knowledge which you possess. I have no doubt you have all found something more or less to stimulate you, whether in the art hall or elsewhere—something to stimulate the knowledge within you to improve yourselves and your farms. I am not here to decide upon breeds of cattle—I have had too much experience to undertake to decide that question right here before 500 people; but I ask you when you get any of these kinds of cattle get the best. I have been fattening cattle for 28 years, and I may say that my specialty (if I have any specialty) is fattening cattle; and you know as well as I do that in order to have cattle that will fatten, you must select a good stock; for no man, I care not how much he does with them, can fatten any of these pot-bellied, cat-hammed, razor-backed steers. If you want to sell milking cattle you want to select for that purpose. This has affected cattle improvement everywhere. Always get the very best. That's what I am telling these young men when they marry; if you marry at all, marry the best girl, and get the best land. And to the girls I say, never marry a fellow that has to eat cayenne or cloves so that it can't be told where he has been. I don't think you ought to do it. [Laughter.] Those farmers that don't succeed don't select their stock with judgment. I believe in this grand state of ours we ought to preserve the forest. Let the trees stand and the leaves put forth their moisture in the spring; don't prevent its running off on the soil. I believe the farmers would be vastly better off if they left the forest stand. I have traveled through Clinton county, originally a thick, heavily timbered county. The farmers there wanted to raise wheat so as to get quick returns, and they cut down the trees and burnt them into ashes, and now they are groaning for the results of that destruction of the forest. If we haven't any trees, let us find a spot somewhere and set out some trees.

I would like to talk in relation to many things connected with the fertilizing of the field. I noticed in coming from Charlotte—I met a fair, yesterday, and talked to them a little just as I am talking to you—I noticed as I was traveling down from there men who were making, in my judgment, a in piling up, without care, piles of manure, in reality destroying it for all fertilizing purposes. We should treasure all the manure we can get. We should husband it as we would husband gold. We should never draw it out and pile it in large heaps and let the rain fall on it and drive the fertilizing principle into the ground. That is a mischievous mistake. 40 years ago when we took the Michigan Farmer we believed in it as we did in our Bibles. The Michigan Farmer told us that we must pile our manure in great heaps, and when we got ready to plow to apply it just as often as we cared, and if we plow in the rain it would be a great deal better. I followed this advice because we were ignorant of the true value of manure. I have followed the plow many a time when it was raining, in order to save the manure. You needn't be afraid of scattering and distributing your manure up to the clouds, for they don't need it, but dispose of it so that it will get into the soil. It should be placed as near the surface as possible. Top dressing is the best.

We should come here for the purpose of learning how to ornament our homes. The farmer's wife likes to have her home ornamented and made cheerful, even if it be a log house. It makes the heart of a good wife glad to see her home made bright and cheerful. That is why we should look at the people and observe them and their ways. I think that one-third of the enjoyment of life is secured by looking.

Now I want to say something more; and here where you are

SO WISE AND SO SKILLFUL.

I apprehend that what I am going to say will not apply. But I may be they need something of the kind over in Livingston, or Lenawee, or Jackson county, perhaps it will fit somebody there. I went down to Indiana to talk once on agriculture. I didn't care what I said down there; I had nothing to gain and nothing to lose. As I reached the little town where I was to talk one cold November night just as the sun was setting in the west, snow flakes were falling, and the north wind was blowing, and by the roadside in the field I saw a roller, a reaper, a horse-rake, a spring-tooth rake standing out there in the cold November storm. There was no eye to see but the stars and they looked coldly down upon the suffering of these implements. I gave a groan, and thought that the iron and steel would rust, and the rain and moisture would cause the wood to rot. I dropped a tear to their memory. I talked that evening in relation to this very episode; I dwelt for fifteen minutes upon the necessity of caring for our implements. I noticed the audience looking at a man who sat back a little ways, and I observed that he was apparently very uneasy. In the morning I passed back over the same road, but early as it was those implements had been removed. I ask you to take care of your implements.

I keep a book of my farm so that I know when I have been successful and when I have not. I know that the year 1887 has been the hardest on the Michigan farmers of all the years taken together since 1861. There have been light crops; entire failure in many departments; low price for what we had to sell; beef is down, and wheat is down.

Gov. Luce contained that in his travels over the state he had only found one county that was filled with prosperity, that being Allegan county, on the western border of the state; there the peach crop was abundant, the corn was abundant, and the farmers are fat and sleek. He requested his hearers to diversify the products; to try the cultivation of everything that might be raised, and not put their eggs all in one basket. He exhorted them to refrain from burdening themselves with unnecessary burdens; cautioned them to be aware of speculation, the lightning rod men, the Bohemian oats swindle, and other kindred schemes. On the young men he urged pride of their occupation, contrasting the pride and persistence of the various walks of life with the usually meek demeanor of the country lad. In conclusion he said that ownership in land begets patriotism, and he hoped that no farmer would think of giving up his calling, as it was the noblest that he could follow. [Applause.]

Old Deacon Dobson boasted that he was always "prepared for the worst;" and so he was, for he always kept Dr. Ball's Cough Syrup in the house, the only safe remedy for coughs and colds.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR.

The Chief Executive of the Nation Visiting the West.

He is Accompanied by His Wife and a Select Party of Friends—The Tourists Cordially Received All Along the Route—Receptions and Parades.

ON THE ROAD.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The President's trip from St. Louis to this city was uneventful. Crowds thronged the depot platforms of the towns along the Chicago & Alton road through which the train passed after daylight. The Presidential train reached this city at 9:10 a. m., and the visitors were escorted to their carriages and participated in the great parade. At the review stand Mayor Roche welcomed the President to the city, and Mr. Cleveland responded in a happy manner. In the afternoon a public reception was held at the Palmer House, and in the evening a card reception took place at the Columbia Theater. The city during the day was densely crowded with people.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 7.—The President and Mrs. Cleveland arrived here at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The city was handsomely decorated for their reception. After the parade a formal address of welcome was delivered by Mayor Walber, and the President made a brief response. A public reception was held at Schiltz's Park. At 6 o'clock Mrs. Cleveland was tendered a supper at the residence of Mrs. J. L. Mitchell, and at 7:30 a formal reception was held at the residence of James Keenland. The President was entertained at a banquet by the Merchants' Association at the Plankinton House. About 10 o'clock Mrs. Cleveland graced the company with her presence. President and Mrs. Cleveland were taken for a carriage drive about the city this morning, and left for Madison at 10 o'clock.

MADISON, Oct. 8.—The President and his party reached this city a little after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. An enthusiastic crowd of people met them at the depot. The procession followed soon after the arrival of the distinguished guests. The formal address of welcome was made by Chief Justice Erasmus Cole, of the State Supreme Bench, to which the President responded briefly. After the public reception the President, the Postmaster-General and Governor Risk drove to the grounds where the county fair is being held. In the evening a well-dinner was given at the Vilas residence in honor of the guests. To-day the party of gentlemen will go bass fishing on the lake. A small lunch party for ladies alone will be given in the afternoon and in the evening a public reception will take place. Sunday morning the President and his wife will attend the Episcopal Church.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 11.—President Cleveland and party left Madison, Wis., yesterday morning. A short stop was made at La Crosse. In this city Mayor Smith welcomed the visitors and the procession was reviewed at Bridge square. A public reception was held at night at the Hotel Ryan.

DEFENDED THE TENN.

A Sensation in a Nashville (Tenn.) Church Caused by Emma Abbott's Reply to the Minister's Criticism of the Theater.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 11.—Rev. W. A. Candler, pastor of the McKendree Methodist Episcopal Church of this city, bitterly denounced the theater in his sermon Sunday. Emma Abbott was in the audience. At the conclusion of the sermon she arose, and with suppressed indignation protested against the very general character of the pastor's denunciation. She declared the minister's charges against players unfounded, and said that her life was as free from blame as that of any living woman. In all the operas of the last week, to which the minister had referred, there was no impure or improper thought. The great lights of the stage, such as Jenny Lind, Modjeska, Alboni and countless others had been good women, model wives and mothers. She defied any one to say that aught had ever been said against the fair fame of Emma Abbott. There was considerable applause at the conclusion of her remarks. Before it subsided Mr. Candler answered that he could not answer the lady because she was a lady. The affair caused a great sensation and is the talk of the town. Many members of the church upheld the pastor, but many others commend the course of Miss Abbott.

A Minority Report.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—John A. McClernand, and A. B. Tamm, of the Utah Commission, have submitted a minority report to the Secretary of the Interior, in which they express their dissent from some of the views advanced in the majority report recently submitted. They are of the opinion that the anti-polygamy movement in Utah has the support of the majority of the monogamous Mormons, who constitute more than three-fourths of the Mormon population.

A Muskrat Causes a Flood.

NASHUA, N. H., Oct. 8.—The rush of water through a hole dug by a muskrat in a canal bank near here yesterday, swept away a portion of the embankment, resulting in a flood that swept away trees, fences, etc. The mills were compelled to shut down, and 3,000 persons will be out of work until repairs can be made.

Paid the Penalty.

PORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 8.—Silas Hampton and Leabron Green were hanged here yesterday. Green had murdered three deputy marshals and Hampton killed an old man. The hangman who officiated has dispatched ninety-four men.

A Ghastly Discovery.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 8.—The dead bodies of thirteen infants were found Thursday in an old cistern near the corner of Locust and Lagrange streets, on premises formerly occupied by a midwife. The woman is now under arrest. The police will investigate the case.

Ohio Temperance Women.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 9.—The Women's Christian Temperance Union of Ohio, in session here, elected Mrs. H. I. Monroe, of Xenia, president, and decided to hold its next convention at Cleveland. Delegates to the National convention were also chosen.

Revoked's Last Race.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 8.—In the third race at Lantonia Thursday the well-known race-horse Revoked fell, broke his back and had to be destroyed. The jockey, Watson, was badly injured. Three other horses and their riders were thrown, but all escaped unhurt.

September's Fire Losses.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The fire losses for September were $7,937,900, against $6,500,000 during the same month last year. The aggregate losses for the first nine months of 1887 are $93,183,500—$10,000,000 greater than for the same period of 1886.

Robbed by Footpads.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 8.—William A. Wolford, principal draughtsman in the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago railroad shops, in this city, was knocked senseless by a footpad last night and robbed of $850.

THE CRUEL WAVES.

They Claim Many Victims During Recent Storms.

A Large Number of Disasters Reported from Various Places—The Loss of Life and Destruction of Vessels Make a Sad Chapter in History.

DISASTROUS STORMS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Dispatches received here from various points in Michigan report the steam-hull Albion, the schooner Ark, Wallula, Arctic, Pulaski, J. G. Koffage, Reuben Dowd, Garibaldi and many others ashore and badly damaged. The crew of the Koffa arrived at Goderich, Can., Tuesday night. They report having seen a large unknown vessel founder on Lake Huron Monday. The crew was probably lost.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 6.—A schooner flying a signal of distress was driven on a reef off Ripley Tuesday afternoon. Six men were in the rigging when the vessel was last seen, and the sea was breaking over the hull. SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Oct. 6.—No trace has been discovered of the missing screw Mayflower and the schooner Emerald, which were abandoned by the steam barge Thomas H. Smith in the gale Sunday night. The Mayflower had no sails, and was at the mercy of the waves, and it is feared she is lost, with her crew of five men.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 7.—The Henry W. Hoag was reported in distress at Ripley Tuesday night, with her crew of six men in the rigging. After a three hours' hard battle with the waves the endangered seamen were rescued and brought to Erie.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 7.—The Napoleon is probably lost with all on board—Captain Charles Knudson, Edward and Marton Mathiason and a sailor named Knudson. She left Pierpont, Mich., last Sunday, and has not been heard from since the gale of last Sunday night.

MANISTEE, Mich., Oct. 7.—The schooner Jesse Scarra, laden with 26,000 bushels of corn from Chicago, bound for Toronto, sunk in forty fathoms of water Tuesday night eight miles north of Manistee. Captain Roberts and the crew reached here in safety.

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 7.—The tug Orient is reported to have foundered six miles below Port Au Pelee, on Lake Erie, during the recent gale. The captain of the tug Oswego, who arrived yesterday, says he saw a vessel hoist a distress signal. He was informed that a Black Harbor tug had gone down within sight some hours before. The Orient was the only tug that was in the vicinity at the time. Six people were on board. D. Lyons was master and John David was first engineer. No other names are known.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—During the recent cyclone which passed along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico the light-house tender Mignonette, with fifteen persons on board, was blown out to sea from a point near Brazoria on the Texas coast. It has now been nearly two weeks since the vessel disappeared, and as no tidings of her have been received the Light-House Board fear that the vessel and its crew are lost.

VIENNA, Oct. 11.—The Austrian steamer Hapsburg Sunday collided with and sank a Bavarian steamer on Lake Constance. Many passengers in the cabin were drowned. The exact number is as yet unknown. Two bodies have been recovered. Divers are working at the scene of the disaster.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 11.—It is believed that the British gunboat Vasp, from Singapore, was lost with all hands in the recent typhoon. A steamer and three war-ships are searching for the missing boat.

A Bad Effect on the Forests.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—In a report to the Agricultural Department on the relation of railroads to forest supplies and forestry, Mr. M. G. Kern computes that the maintenance of the existing railroad and telegraph lines requires the extinction of about 250,000 acres of timber land annually, and that nearly 50,000 acres of timber must be cut annually to provide for the additional construction of 5,000 miles of track and telegraph lines.

Affairs in Morocco.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The illness of the Sultan of Morocco becomes a matter of some importance because of its possible effect upon European politics. The heir to the throne is a boy of 16, and he has numerous interested relatives who would be glad to relieve him of the cares of government. An internal disturbance in the country might call for interference on the part of England, France, Italy and Spain, all of which nations have interests there.

Counsel for the Anarchists.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Randolph J. Tucker, of Virginia, has been retained in the case of the Chicago Anarchists. The announcement caused considerable surprise in legal circles, and it was generally believed that Mr. Tucker must feel pretty sure of securing a favorable hearing before the United States Supreme Court or he would not have taken hold of the case.

Against Anarchism.

WABSAW, Ind., Oct. 11.—At the annual reunion of the One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Regiment, Indiana volunteer infantry, here, resolutions were adopted condemning in strong terms the pernicious foreigners who are preaching anarchy, socialism and nihilism in the United States, and calling for legislation to prevent the immigration of such people to this country.

An Arbitration Treaty Favored.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—At the meeting of the Methodist ministers in this city yesterday morning Rev. William Jones, of London, read a letter which he received from John Bright before his departure for this country. In it the distinguished orator warmly advocates the establishment of a permanent arbitration treaty between England and the United States.

Sensational Disclosures.

GREENWOOD, Miss., Oct. 11.—From the disclosures made at the trial of a number of negro Masons for murder here it would appear that the lodges among the colored people in this vicinity are criminal organizations, whose principal business it is to exterminate such persons as have been unfortunate enough to incur the enmity of the members.

The Crops.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The National Agricultural Department estimates that the corn yield will be about 1,500,000,000 bushels, and that the wheat crop will reach 450,000,000 bushels. The conditions of cotton and potatoes are said to have declined, while the tobacco average has increased 5 per cent. since last report.

Choice of the Mormons.

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., Oct. 11.—Wilford Woodruff was continued as president of the Twelve Apostles by the Mormon conference that concluded its labors Sunday. George Q. Cannon and Joseph F. Smith were continued as Apostles. No president of the church was elected.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Annual Meeting of the Order at Minneapolis, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 6.—Michael Davitt, of Dublin, addressed the Knights yesterday. He said that the struggle in Ireland was international, that a victory for monopoly would stiffen the backs of the enemies of labor every where, while a victory for the poor of Ireland would help the working classes every where. Resolutions were adopted expressing hearty sympathy for the Irish people and condemning the oppressive laws by which Ireland is governed and the coercive acts of the English Government.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 7.—Mr. Powderly made his eighth annual address at the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor yesterday. He had the closest attention of the members. He recommended a department of labor be organized at Washington, was in favor of the Government operating railroads, telegraph lines, etc., and said the Knights had nothing to do with Anarchists.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 8.—General Secretary Litchman reported yesterday that there were 485,000 members in good standing in the order, a decrease of 195,000 during the year. The money on hand amounted to $508,647. Reports were also made recommending the establishment of a co-operative saving association and more thorough educational work.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 10.—The General Assembly of the Knights of Labor held a brief session Saturday. A committee was appointed to draft resolutions condemning the absorption of the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph by the Western Union and Jay Gould was universally denounced in the discussion. MERCANTILE AFFAIRS.

Statement of the Business of the Country During the Past Seven Days.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Bradstreet's, in its review of the week, says: Special telegrams, while reporting a fair degree of activity in the distribution of general merchandise, particularly of groceries and hardware, records a noticeable decline, taking the country as a whole, compared with the weekly average during September. At Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Joseph and Galveston, while no special declines are noted (except at Philadelphia and St. Joseph), general trade has been more active within recent weeks, than it is now. There is a moderate check to the movement of dry goods at some Western centers, and the demand for pig-iron is also less pronounced, although prices continue firm at St. Louis, Pittsburgh and New York. The market as a whole is more quiet.

R. G. Dunn & Co., in their weekly review of trade say: "Every condition for a marked advance in prices has now been supplied that Government or operators can control. If the advance does not come it will be clear that the looking up of capital in railroad and other building, in real-estate operations and in speculations of various kinds, has a more depressing influence than many realize."

"The quarterly statement of failures shows that the past disturbance has been more serious than many realized. The average of liabilities to all firms in business ($75.29 for the quarter) was $97.46 in the second quarter of 1884, including the Grant. Ward failure, but with that exception has not been as large in any quarter since 1878. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number for the United States 135 and for Canada 27. The casualties in the East and Middle States are very light, the great bulk of the failures of the week being reported from the West and South."

NYE AND THE DUKE.

The Humorist Interviews a Scion of English Nobility After the American Style—His Grace Does Not Properly Appreciate a Good Joke.

HAVE just terminated a pleasant call upon the Duke of Marbro at his lodgings, says Bill Nye, in the New York World. I write his name Marbro because that is the way we pronounce it here at Newport. In the language of my ostensibly colored friend, Mr. Rankin, the amateur pronouncer would call it Mar-bror-ough, with three grunts, while in fact Marbro, the correct pronunciation of the name, is executed with but one grunt.

I found the Duke seated on a low ottoman, clad in a loosely fitting costume of pajamas. It was so loose and negligible that it was on the tip of my tongue to ask him if his mother made it for him out of his father's old pajamas, but I suddenly remembered that I was in Newport and not in Tombstone, A. T., and I restrained myself.

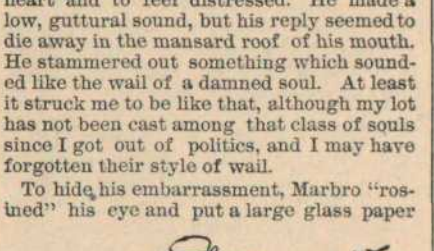

The Duke is suffering from a slight cold which he contracted for during the early part of the week. It resulted from his ignorance of our changeable and froeldecim climate. On Tuesday he took a long stroll, and while several miles from his lodgings and wearing his light summer cane, he was overtaken by a severe and sudden change in the temperature. The Marbros are not a stung race, and I am told that one of the Duke's cousins died of pneumonia from exposing himself to the severity of a Christmas Day frolic clad in an autumn cane.

The Duke rose languidly as I entered, and, taking a reef in his pajamas clothes, looked at me in an inquiring way which betokened that, though of lineage high, he was not entirely at his ease in my presence.

"Duke," said I, showing my umbrella up in the corner, to stand my childlike opinion in him, "how's your conduct?"

"Conduct?" said he. "I would have given worlds if I could have recalled my rash words. I did not mean anything more than to utter a piece of pleasantry, for I am passionately fond of pleasantry even in society, but Marbro seemed to take it to heart and to feel distressed. He made a low, guttural sound, but his reply seemed to die away in the mansard roof of his mouth. He stammered out something which sounded like the wail of a damned soul. At least it struck me to be like that, although my lot has not been cast among that class of souls since I got out of politics, and I may have forgotten their style of wail."

To hide his embarrassment, Marbro "rosined" his eye and put a large glass paper

weight in it. He then regarded me with some amazement through this piece of bric-a-brac while I poured out a grown person's dose of Rectified Ruin which stood on the escritoire and I drank it with a keen relish which showed that I trusted him implicitly. Everything I did was done to make Marbro forget himself and feel at his ease.

I told him I had known the Marbros in Maine ever since I was a boy, and that we didn't feel above them then, and that it would be a poor time to begin now at my time of life to look down on people, just because I now wrote pieces for the paper, many of which were afterwards printed. We always thought that the Marbros, or Marlbroughs, of Maine, got their name from borrowing in the Marbled on the Piscataquis, for an hour or two without seeming to chirp him up at all.

"Duke," said I, at last, "I know what the Duke must be with you—you are socially ostracized. I knew it as soon as I came into the room. You can not disguise it from me. You are suffering from social ostracism and it is breaking you down. The social demands made by America upon an imported social wreck do not give said wreck time to eat his meals and obtain a necessary amount of rest. I suppose there is nowhere in the world a climate that is so trying on a person who is suffering from social ostracism as that of my native land. In other climes they give a social outcast rest, but here he gets absolutely no rest whatever."

I then drifted into society chat in a social and naive way, which, with others, has never failed to melt the stoutest heart. I told him that I had understood, since I came to Newport, that the demands of society here were so unrelenting that they had kept Mr. and Mrs. Mayonnaise dressing all the time.

A long pause ensued here, during which I could hear Marbro's reason tottering on its throne. After waiting three-quarters of an hour, by my watch, and failing to see that my remark had shored even a ray of sunshine, where erstwhile all was gloom and chaos, I gave him my address and told him that, if in the future, he ever delivered any beneficial efforts from the above joke, I would be glad to have him communicate with me. And even if I were to die before he could truly say that he had been benefited by this joke and grappled with its keen, incisive nub, my grandchildren would be tickled almost to death to know that he had taken it to pieces and put it together again and found out how it was built and laughed at its ingenious mechanism.

I conversed with the Duke for some time about the way his visit to Newport had depressed the price of real estate, and offered him the freedom of New York, hoping that

GERMAN UNIVERSITY DUELS.

Little Effort to Stop Them Made by the Authorities—The Schlaeger's Five Cuts.

The police authorities of the university towns make no earnest efforts to stop the duels if they are not brought under their notice directly, and the fights sometimes take place in beer halls in the towns even. Generally, however, the students go several miles away from the university, and the citizens by discovering that a next day a number of students with gashed and bandaged faces walking the streets. Serious injuries are very rare in duels with the schlaeger, and a student who is really bloodthirsty when he thinks he has been mortally offended resorts to the pistol or curved sword, like a Turkish cimetar. Only a few instances of fatal duels, even with these, have occurred at the universities. The schlaeger would be a weak weapon against a broadsword, or even a cavalry saber or a navy cut-throat. Fighting with it, the duellists must not move from their positions, and there is, consequently, little display of activity of the body. The blow with the schlaeger is not a cut or a thrust. It is a cut with only about one foot of the end of the blade, which is all of the sword that is sharpened, and then a twist of the wrist. The wrist does all the fighting.

There are only five cuts with these schlaeger for the student to learn. All the others are variations. The first cut is directly for the top of the head. If it hits, a piece of the flesh, and sometimes a part of the skull, comes out. A cut for the forehead and nose is another. If it reaches the flesh a serious wound and permanent disfigurement may follow. Duels have been known in which a nose was sliced off completely, and had to be sewed on again. Two more cuts are directed at the right and left sides of the face. These blows may lay open the cheek, cut the teeth, cut the lips off or touch the nose, as the schlaeger is made of such thin steel that it bends around like a whip when a hit is made. Another, and the most difficult hit to make, is an under cut, aimed at the chin and mouth. It may do great mischief to all the lower part of the face, but it cannot touch the jugular vein, as that is protected. Altogether the schlaeger is a mere brutal weapon of offense, without any great power to kill, and dueling with it will continue as long as students at German universities regard the possession of strength and endurance as the only certificates of honor.—Globe-Democrat.

A Young Man of Nerve.

"Speaking of nerve," chimed in another club man, "I will tell you a story of a young man, the son of one of our largest manufacturers, who displayed the greatest nerve of any man I ever heard of. He was an officer in the navy, on one of the old hulks of our boasted squadron, which had the honor to escort Gen. Grant on some of his excursions along the coast of China. The Japanese built most treacherous of all seas, caught in a terrific gale. Everything was done to make her warm the sea, but the violence of the storm continued unabating, and it was found that the boat would go to pieces. The officers and seamen were called on deck, and it was the unanimous opinion that it was only a question of time, and a mighty short one, when she would succumb to the elements. The small boats were all in order, a stock of provisions was placed in each, and the officers and crew were parceled off for the different boats. Everything was ready to put off at a moment's notice, and every one was expecting a terrible struggle for life, if not death by drowning.

"The suspense was something impossible to conceive unless one has had a similar experience. A man can look forward to being hung or shot with comparative intrepidity, but to face drowning is a torture of the soul most harrowing. This young man knew no fear, never knew any, and probably never will. He was born fearless and he cannot help it. While all the other officers and men were on deck, quietly and waiting to jump in their boats, he quietly remarked 'that as there seems to be nothing else to do, I'll go down and take a nap.' And he went down to his cabin and went to sleep. Fortunately the vessel rode out of the storm in a few hours and was safe. This young man of nerve was the hero of those terribly anxious hours, and his brother officers delight to repeat how he said 'there seems nothing else to do, I'll go down and take a nap.'—Chicago Journal.

Head Waiter to His Staff.

"Now, if a cold milk coffee of coffee, don't bring up cold milk unless it is called for. Bring up hot milk with coffee and cold milk for. Always serve pulverized sugar with tomatoes, lettuce, and cracked ice with cucumbers and tomatoes. Watermelon, cantaloupe, muskmelon and berries, of course, need milk or cream and pulverized sugar. A dessert knife and fork and powdered sugar should go with all pastries, while a small piece of American cheese is in order with all kinds of pie. Many men never think of such a thing as putting mustard on the table. Some people like it. There are very few who have yet learned that a boiled potato is proper with baked beans. Don't cover the bread plate with a napkin; it looks as if there were dirt or food around. This matter of laughing and frowning don't make a waiter. I should stop it."
