AGAINST THE SALOONS

AS EARNEST AND ENTHUSIASTIC COUNTY CONFERENCE.

IT BECIOES THAT »8» MAJOKITT CAN BE OVERCOME IN WASH-TENAWcoratr.

The Saloon Must Go.—A Son-Partlaan Conference Says So.—Committees Appointed, and another Conference Called.

The circuit court room wag crowded by a representative gathering, last Saturday, of people who believe in abolishing the saloon. It was a non-parlizan conference. The prohibitionists were mainly instrumental in bringing about the meeting; but republicans took an active share in the proceedings; some democrats were present and many more expressed sympathy with the movement.

The best of fetling prevailed on all " sides. There were a few who felt it to be unwise to bring on an election at this time, and singularly a majority of the committee were of this kind. They were perfectly willing to take part in the contest if the conference were to decide to do so, but in their otherwise acceptable resolutions, they embodied doubt of success. No one knew positively, of course, that the friends of prohibition would win in the election; but the conference was not in the mood to enter the campaign by Bending notice to the enemy in advance that they expected to get whipped. On the other hand, many expressed the greatest confidence-of success.

Before the adjournment for dinner, the conference chose (Jeo. S. Wheeler, of Salem, for permanent chairman, and Howard M. Holmes, of Ann Arbor, for secretary. A committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of Geo. 0. Smithe, editor of the Ypsilftntian, Rev. T. Holmes, of Chelsea, Geo. W. Merrill, of Webster, N. W. Cheever and J. Q. A. Saesions of Ann. Arbor. Meesrs. Geo. 8 Sessions, of Ann Arbor, Messrs, Geo. 8. Foote, of Ypsilanti, John Schumacher, oC Ann Arbor, and Jas. H. Murray, of Salem, were appointed to report relative to the number of signatures which had already been obtained to the petition for an elec-

Mr. Wheeler, on taking the chair said that it was time to consider the question of temperance again. It will not down. It is bound to be the prominent question of the day. As for him, he thought the circumstances favorable for an election now. We can now pass updn it on its merits, and can concentrate all the temperance element in the county.

In the afternoon Mr. Poote reported that the committee had petitions bearing 674 names, and they knew of others which had not been handed in. Probably at that time there were 900 signatures secured, one-half the required number.

Rev. T. Holmes, of Chelsea, as chairman, made the report of the committee on resolutions. The resolutions express the opinion that county prohibition will do much to advance the cause of temperance, and that an effort should be made to use it in every county in which there is a reasonable prospect that it can be carried. The committee recommended measures for the campaign providing the conference should decide to enter upon it. The resolutions expressed doubt about the advisability of bringing on the struggle at this time; and as this did not suit the conference, a substitute, offered by W. B. Thompson, of Salem, was adopted as

Rtsolved, That it is the expression of this meetIng that the best interest of temperance demands that immediate action be taken to canvass the county of Washtenaw under the local option law of the state, and that a vote be taken on the subject at the earliest opportunity.

DISCUSSION.

Rev. T. Holmes, of Chelsea, and Geo. C. Smithe, of Ypsilanti, spoke in favor of delay. Mr. Holmes thought that it would discourage other counties if we should try and fail, and he thought that one or two years hence the chance of winning would be greater. Mr. Smithe went over the gains and losses in counties where prohi-bition had been carried,—gains and losses compared with the vote for the amend-ment and 2 aid that in order to win in ment,—and ?aid that in order to win in Washtenaw county we must make as great a gain as was made in Barry

B. S. Shaw, of Ypsilanti, made a strong upeech in favor of having the election as noon as possible. He said that we could carry it now. He had talked with a doaen men who voted agaijst the amendment but who would vote on their side this time. The professors of the University and Normal would help.

J. Austin Scott said that be had no doubt prohibition could be carried in Washtenaw county. There were a thousand who voted against the amendment and who voted against the amendment are represents a young lady that resembles each member of the class, yet is a picture of no one in particular. Of course it is good looking.

who would vote for prohibition under the local option law. He had talked with the local option law. He had talked with a great many of them. Better try it now than a year hence.

George S. Foote of Yps-ilanti said that hundreds ot our German citizens would vote for closing the saloon, because some of their SODS were ruined by the saloon. Mr. B eed made an impassioned plea for the election now. John Schumacher «aid that he had 100 names on the call for this meeting and on the petitions of men who voted against amendment. Divid B. Taylor, of Chelsea, said that be had looked up the question carefully and was convinced that this was the best time. Quiet reigns ia politics and business. Oue year from now some one will be defeated in politics and will be mad. Now, every one expects to get elected, and there will be no party jeal-ousy aroused. Now we will have the moral effect of victories in other counties which will vote j tst before Washtenaw

Geo. S. Wheeler, the chairman, called Mr. Schumacher tj the chair, and then made a regular old war-horse of a speech in favor ot fighting it out now. He bad listened to the arguments on both sides, and thought that they were in favor of immediate action. The ?novement must be kept non-part.zan, and then we can mass the temperance sentiment of Washtenaw. He goes for the enemy every time he gets a chance. Ail moral advance has been gained by aggression. This is a moral advance to make the control of the c question that we can't agitate too much. Mr. Whepler stirred up the souls of all present. Even if he knew we would be defeated, he would go for it just the same.

I.MI.IHS OF LABOR.

Speeches by Capt. Manly and fh»«. K Whitman.—A Pleasant Event.

On Tuesday evening, in Hangsterfer's hall, Huron assembly of K. of L. held a public meeting, which was fairly well attended and proved a success in every way Capt. Manly presided and made a short speech in which he said that capital bac been organized for many years and reapec the benefit in being able to lower or raise prices of products. The organisation o the knights ol labor was for the sole purpose of influencing legislation that the laboring man might get his just dues. It is not for the purpose of creating discorc in business affairs, nor to interfere with any legitimate bui-iness. Like the G. A, R., they had no reference to either of the great political parties. They wanted to influence legislation so that it should be in the interest of the general public instead of capital and corporation?. He hoped to see a law pa?aed by the present. congress providing for a commission of arbitration that could settle disputes between capital and labor.

J. E. Harkins put great life into the meeting by his songs, and was recalled many times by the enthusiastic audience.

Chas. R. Whitman made the main address of the state of dress of the evening, after which there was dancing till a late hour, to music furnished by Gibson's orchestra. The following is an abstract of the speech:

CHAS. B. WHITMAN'S SPEECH.

Mr. Whitmaa made the points that capital is only accumulated labor, and money is merely the medium of exohange of one man's labor for another's. Capital becomes valuable only as it enables a man to secure for it the labor of another. Or the other hand labor requires the aid oil capital to provide the material upon which labor may be expended. Capital and la-bor can only enjoy the products of each through a fair and equitable partnership. in which, as in any other partnership, e»cl shall enjoy its fair proportion of the joint profits, and in seasons of disaster, each should bear the same proportion of loss. But any system which denies to labor its fair proportion of the products of toil, and awards to capital the entire surplus and accumulation of their joint endeavor; which multiplies capital and impoverishes labor; which makes the rich richer and the poor poorer, is in violation of the spirit of our government and a perversion of our civilization.

The solution of the impending problem is to secure by intelligent agitation and discusion, and in awakening of the public sense, legislative enactments which may, perhaps by arbitration, secure to labor itt fair and just proportion of the combined profits of capital and labor. President Cleveland, in a message to the senate and house, in April, 1886, recommended the creation of a labor commission, consisting of three members who should be resulted. of three members, who should be regular officers of the government, charged among other duties with the consideration and settlement, when possible, of all controversies between labor and capital. is a practical solution for all difficulties between capital and labor. There should be no contest between them.

It is the tendency of man to be selfish and to seek his own advancement by trampling upon his fellows. Justice may be obtained by making it for his interest to deal fairly with either, but the.-e is yet a greater force: the development and growth of a public sentiment so universal and so intense that no man shall dare to violate it. The rights of labor are not to be won by violence, however great the injustice. The story of liberty has been penned since the world began by the growing intelligence and education of the people. Slavery and ignorance have ever gone hand in hand, and so have liberty and knowledge. A most valuable liberty and knowledge. A most valuable feature of the organization of the Knights of Labor is and may be the bringing together of laboring men, in thought and discussion, to assemble together not in heat and bitterness, but in a spirit of concession and fairness. To study, to deliberate, to gain power aiid knowledge, is to make a distinctive gain in the purposes of the order. Scattered here and there, each by himself, the kights of labor have no more - wer than a million grains of powder when separately ignited. As those grains of powder united may lift a mountain into fragments, the laboring men by organization and unity may burst the bauds of monopoly and class legislation and secure an equal recognition in the law with the richest of their fellows.

The Unitarian.

No 1 of the third volume of this publicacation comes to as in a new dress, 48 pages instead of 24 as formerly, and with a cover, in all presenting a very attractive appearance. The Unitarian is a credit to Ann Arbor in appearance and in editorial work. Even those who belong to the evangelical denominations would readily find much pleasure in its pages, however much they might differ with the Unitarian in many things.

As mot of our readers know, Rev. J. T. Sunderland is the active editor and publisher of The Unitarian: The journal is printed at THE REGISTER office. In the two years of its existence, the journal has gaiced a circulation of over 6,000, the largest of any of the numerous journals that go out from the Ann Arbor post-office. It is sent to all parts of the civilized world. Of the January number before us, 12,000 copies were printed.

Among the contributors to the Unitarian during the coming year are the following: James Freeman Clark, Robert Collyer, EJward Everett Hale, Mary A. Liveraiore, E. L. Rexford, H. W. Thomas, S. W. Sample, and Daniel Utter.

The Unitarian was already one of the leading exponent of the views cherished by the so called liberal churches, and in it* doubled size and finer appearance, it is sure to take a more prominent still among the religious journals of the country.

J. G» zhorn opened the topic, "Keeping up and increasing the fertility of the soil," with a paper which treated of the small value of the stable manure drawn from town. It often fills the land with noxious weeds. Rotten stable manure drawn into the grapery caused grape rot. 13is experiments with clover in alternate rowe, in orchard as well as grapery, proved perfect success. The rows not Beeded down, he kept stirrring with the cultiva-tor. The result was large and well developed peaches, perfect foliage and the largest crop of grapes he ever had. Prof. Nichols spoke of the practice of sowing corn in rows in the orchard, so that the cultivator could be kept going. The crops when up a foot or more should be plowed

W. F. Bird: How can I subdue hard >an clay soil? I have used ashes but have not overcome it yet.

J. Allmand: To get my ground mellow and clean I sow buckwheat, which is)lowed under when large enough.

J. H. Clough had 100 loads of manure llauled from town last winter, which did not cost him hardly anything and is doing the same this winter. It is all in one lleap yet.

J. Ganzhorn and J. Allmand considered it nearly worthies?, as the ammonia llad escaped. If it had been composted with alternate layers of muck or sod, the ammonia would have been retained.

Mr. Clough was in favor of rotting manure to destroy the noxious seeds. The majority believed in drawing fresh manure o the land at once.

Charles Treadwell met with good suc-:e*s in corn by drawing coarse manure in the spring and plowing it under, and, after corn was up, by top dressing with finer manure from the bottom of the manure The writer asked J. Austin Scott, who sat near him, what he thought on this topic. His answer was: "Manure should be housed like grain." Now, there truth. is in this remark not only a bushel but a

E. Baur believes in heavy mulch around fruit trees. He drew during the dry season of last summer muck around the trees, and after that for three weeks water with llorses. His pears, which began to drop prematurely and the leaves, which turned rom the heat of the sun, picked up at once and the crop was saved.

CREAMERY AND CHEESE FACTORY.

The scribe gave bis opinion that the preceding question could be solved best by the erection of a creamery in Ann Arbor, which would induce us to keep more stock and make our own fertilizers. Many families on a small piece of land could make a living by keeping cows. This would create quite an interest in stock raising, and, producer as well as consumer, in fact this whole town, would be benefitted by this

W. C. Olcutt, of Ypsilsnti, representing D. H. Roe & Co., of Chicago, manufacturers of butter and cheese apparatus, thought Ann Arbor a very good point for a butter and cheese factory. The way to get at this was to raise a stock company, His company is also erecting cold storage. and, in connection with the creamery, a cold-storage room could befitted up where fruit could be kept until the usual glut in the market is passed.

John H. Sperry: I think Ann Arbor could afford a creamery. I shall go in for it. All the ladies present were in favor of a creamery. Judgp Kinne was consulted. After satisfying himself that it would benefit the Iraternity, his decision was: "Let us have it by all means."

The society passed a resolution favoring the projected creamery and cheese factory, and encouraging the creation of a stock company for said purpose. It is lor the f>rm«rs and capitalists to say whetner this factory shall be a reality.

Charles Treadwell deserves praise for his enterprise in destroying the codling As the noxious insect question will be discussed more fully this winter, we will give his aud other methods at a fuiure time. It would pay the state of Michigan well, if a popular circular, without much Latin, were prepared on noxious insects and modes of prevention and destruction. Such a pamphlet should be placed into the hands of every family that owns a piece of land however small. All have to engage in this warfare; individual effort will not rid us of the worm in all our fruit. It is a disgrace to every grower ana consumer. We all should pray acd

Governor Larrabee's message was read in the Senate, but not in the House. It is a document of extreme length. The Governor reports the finances of the State to be in excellent condition and the public in-etitutions to be well managed. Registraition in cities is approved as a promoter of the purity of elections. He recommendi the experiment of municipal suffrage foi women; the abolition of the railroad pass; that maximum passenger fares be fixed at two cents on first-class roads; that maximum freight rates be also established, with power to railway commissioners to reduce rates. In closing the Governor says much progress has been made in the enforce's ment of the Prohibitory law; many judges give strong testimony in its favor, showing that there has been marked reduction ii criminal offenses, and also in court expenses; there has been great improvement I in the condition of poorer people, especially I in the families of laboring men addicted to strong drink, and he recommends that the law be strictly enforced.

The joint caucus of the Republicans of the Senate met at 7:30 p. m. and renominated Senator James F. Wilson to represent Iowa in the United States Senate for six years from March 9, 1889. G. H. Ragsdale, of Le Mars, was nominated for State Printer.

Total Suspension of Mining in the Reading District.

Both Sides Kefuso to Yield-The Stock of Coal on Hand Kxhausted - One of the Most Complete Strikes on Kecord.

THE READING STRIKE.

READING, Pa, Jan. 11.—Not a single colliery, either owned by the Reading Railroad Company or by individuals, were at work yesterday. There was a total suspension of mining everywhere. The strikers are very firm and claim that they are are very firm and claim that they are now in a position to dictate terms. Prominent Reading officials said that the miners would drop the cause of the striking railroaders Mr. Corbin would treat with them, but he will never consent to the re-employment of his old hands who have been discharged. The miners say they will not forsake their brethren on the railwill not forsake their brethren on the rail road, and the breach is apparently growing wider daily. The Reading officials are not as cheerful as they were a week ago. The; did not think it possible that the minent would turn out so solidly. It is one of the most complete strikes on record. That of 1875 was nothing to compare with it

Sunday's shipments completely exhaustecl the stock of coal on hand and no more can be shipped until it is mined, either at individual or Reading Company collieries. In the meantime furnacernen and others are finding their supply growing less every day, with no prospect of getting any new stock

Chairman Lee said Monday: "I feel that we have this strike in our own hands. All of the Reading Railroad Company's collieries are practically idle. The miners of the Wyoming region have not been called upon to strike, and will not be."

Manager McLeod says that he is informed that five collieries are working. The men have great hope6 from the result of the coming meeting of business men's committees with the officers of the Reading. It, is de-clared by the managers of the strike that all the mines whose product goes over the Reading must shut down. The miners at the individual mines, while in sympathy with the railroaders, are not at all unanimous in their approval of thif move. They are willing to contribute to help the strikers, but object to themselves striking when their demands have been granted. Whether they will yield to pres-

Bure and quit work remains to be seen.

The City Council Monday night appointeel a committee to wait upon President Corbin and urge him to submit the questions at issue to arbitration at once to save mancial disaster to Reading's business.

READING, Pa., Jan. 11.—At no time since the inauguration of the Schuylkill miners strike have the men been more thorough masters of the situation than now. Every one of the forty-four Reading Company's collieries is closed. Only a few of the individual collieries were worke<1 yesterday. They did not turn out more than 125 cars of coal The miners have assumed a more positive stand than ever before and at meetings held all over the region yesterday it was decided not to go to work, even if the 8 per cent advance was granted, unless the 1,000 or more non-union railroad menmostly engineers, firemen, brakemen an(1 conductors, all recently employed—are discharged and all the Knights dismissed during the recent railroact trouble are taken back. The miners will likewise refuse to work if non-union men haul the coal they turn out. Next Saturday the company will now its miners for the trfe company will pay its miners for the two weeks ending with December 31, so the men do not yet feel the effects of the strike.

In a conversation with three stockholders of the Reading road President Corbin is re ported as saying that no compromise wouk be made with the miners, and that they could stay out as long as they liked. A committee of Shenandoah business men who telegraphed asking him if he would see them received no answer.

ADULTERATED FOOD AND DRINK

The Commissioner of Agriculture Makes Another Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The Commissioner of Agriculture has Just issued the third of a series of reports on adulterations of food, drinks and drugs. This report treats of adulterations of fermented alcoholic beverages, malt liquors, wine and cider. The chemist and analyst by whom the report is made concludes that beer is gen-erally adulterated with acid poisonous and injurious to health. Of thirty-threa samples of beer analyzed, six American samples of beer analyzed, six American beers contained salicylic acid, of which two were bottle beers, samples of Milwaukee beer, two from St Louis, one from Alexandria, Va., and one from Philadelphia, which latter was also soured. In Philadelphia beer only were hop substitutes found. Of beers brewed in Washington one contained sulphite and one carbonate of soda; the lattler article was also found in Alexandria beer. One foreign beer contained salicyic acid. The use of glucose and sugar in malt adulterations is condemned as injurious to health. The preserving agents used by brewers are still more severely condemned as means of put ting bad beer on the market Wines and cider are also reported to be extensively

Some Striking Situations Into Wtaich Well Informed Persons Are led.

There is no end of witchcraft and deception. Years ago persons suspected of the "strange infatuation" were thrown into the water-if guilty of witchcraft, they would drown. For many years the world was shocked at such inhumanity of man to man, but if we were to declare that people are persecuted to-day quite as remorselessly as were the so-called witches of old, our statements might be received with great incredulity.

But it is a fact.

If you do not believe it, enter any one of the schools of medical practice and attempt to use a preparation which the code does not recognize, or even to recommend indirectly any popular remedy, such for instance as Warner's celebrated kidney remedy, and then relate your experience.

Then you'll admit the fact. Let us be frank with you, reader. We Merit demands and is entitled to recognition, wherever found. If geologists tell us that diamonds must always be found in sand, would you not be a fool, if you found one in gravel, not to take it and "realize" on it?

Your friends would call you foolish. The trouble with the doctors is that they can't cure advanced diseases of certain forms and they know it. And yet they will not allow the use of any outside proprietary medicine, which they know has cured the disease.

For instance: Kidney disease has no marked indi-Kidney disease has no marked individual symptoms. It produces all sorts of symptoms of the commonest diseases. Not being able to treat the disease itself with success the bigoted physician treats these symptoms!

But what good does that do? In order to stop the freshet, you must stop the flood! It won't do to try brushing it away with a broom.

Dr. J. G. Holland, whom all the world admired as a teacher of sense, wrote in Scribner's Monthly: "It is a fact that many of the best proprietary medicines of the day are more successful than many physicians, and most of them were first discovered and used in actual medical practice."

Dr. Robson of the Royal Navy of England, enthusiastically endorses Warner's safe cure, as indeed do many hundreds of thousands all over the world. The late Dr. Dio Lewis, who almost never used medicines, commended it highly and said if he had any kidney disease he would use it.

This evidence is conclusive.

This evidence is conclusive. Paralysis, consumption, pneumonia, apoplexy, heart disease, general debility, rheumatism, all these common disorders are often only symptoms of kidney disease. Instead of admitting their inability to cure this disorder, doctors give their attention to the symptoms. give their attention to the symptoms. If they cure one another comes, and finally death takes the case out of their hands. Then they disguise the fact that it is Bright's disease of the kidthat it is Bright's disease of the kidneys and say that death came from paralysis, apoplexy, pneumonia, consumption, general debility, rheumatism, heart disease, blood poisoning, or some other of the names of the direct effects of kidney disease. They are not the real disease itself.

LOCAL OPRIOM CONFERENCE.

The conference was a success. Those who have attended other county local option conventions say that this one compares favorably in every respect. Here the workers had a majority of 889 staring them in the face, while in other counties success in the election has been assured.

It is not at all surprising that a few temperance people should attempt to postpone the inevitable struggle. At first glance it does seem like a large undertaking to carry prohibition in Washtenaw after the adverse vote of last spring; but the debate in the conference on the question of time for the election unquestionably demonstrated that there will be no better time in two years than now. A defeat will have no particular effect on other counties, while a victory in Washtenaw county would be of immense importance to temperance workers elsewhere.

Will success crown the efforts? We think the chances are very good. The fact that but one county (Barry) has 6hown a gain which would be sufficient to carry Washtenaw, is not significant. It is not fair to compare Washtenaw county with any of the ten in which prohibition has been carried. All those ten counties were practically 6ure for prohibition. No county has yet voted under the local option law that gave a majority against the amendment; hence there is no comparison to be made by which we can judge of .heprobable outcome of an election in this county. Washtenaw will be the first of the kind to vote on the question, and great will be the honor should the vote of last spring be reversed. In view of the loneliness of the situation, the struggle here will attract wide attention.

It is extremely doubtful if the antiprohibitionists can poll 4,000 votes again in this county. If they poll 3,700, they will have to work hard. We do not Bee why they should feel confident of success and thus be led to make a desperate effort to retain this one county. They reached their maximum strength last spring, and certainly cannot hope to reach it again.

The only point for the prohibitionists, then, is, Can they do as well, or a little better, than last spring? The experience in other counties has been that the full vote is not drawn out, but as we have already said, that is not a safe guide, because in those counties it wasn't apparently necessary to get out the full vote. Here the prohibitionists know just what they must do, and they probably will do it. They must poll at least 4,000 votes.

If the admirable spirit of conciliation, and respect for others' views, which characterized the conference, will prevail during the canvass, and every friend of temperance looks out for the doubtful voters around him, there can be no question as to the result. The party prohibitionists certainly have shown a very good spirit in this matter. Although they regard the local option law with suspicion, most of them will work very hard, and all of them will vote straight. Now, it is for the temperance people in the democratic and republican parties to meet them half Above all things, frown down any attempt to introduce party feeling in the canvass. If any one does try to arouse it, he does it to help the saloon. There will be plenty of party feeling next fall.

A. LANGUAGE WITHOUT SLANG.

Volapiik? O, that's the language of the trainmen on the Lake Shore road, when they call out stations! Not quite; it is an unknown tongue, but is,—is to be.—the universal language. It was born in the polyglot brain of Johann Martin Schleyer, a Swiss linguist, and is-designed, we suppose, to facilitate international communication and bring in the thousand years of peace, when the lion shall lie down with the lamb.

This new language is a patchwork out of all manner of tongues, not, however, without a pretty design of its own. Language, of course, as everybody knows, is a growth, and mother-tongues are not likely to be supplanted by any artificial, made-to-order system. Nevertheless, that a considerable number of people are thinking about Volapiik,pronounced Vol-a-peek,-just now, is shown clearly enough by the fact that, within three months, more than a dozen text books on the subject have appeared in this country alone. The structure of the new language is extremely simple. No school boy will ever groan in despair over its etymology or syntax. Every root-word is a noun. Every noun may be converted into an adjective by adding the syllable t*; and, ii we are not mistaken, every word in the language can be converted into an adverb by the addition of the letter o; thus, sleep, sleepy, and sleepily, are slip, tlip-ik, slip-iko. The case-endings good work wherever he is placed. He

are the same for all nouns; thus, noni. man; gen., of a man; dative, to a man accusative, man,—are man, man-a, man-e, man-i; and the plurals are the same with the addition of the letter 8. All plurals are formed in *. The greatest saving is on the verbs. Here the simplicity is calculated to tickle the cockles of a lazy man's heart. Let us see how our great, great grandchildren may possibly conjugate our time-honored verb to love. Present tense, indicative mode; the 1st, 2nd, and 8rd persons singular are, respectively, KJ-ob, lof-ol, lof-om. The endings are the same through all the tenses; thus, ob, ol, om in the singular, and obi, oh, oms in the plural. The tenses are distinguished by prefixes. Thus, I love, I loved, I have loved, I had loved, I shall love, I shall have loved, become lo'Job, a-lbfob, e-lofob, i-lb'fob, o-liifob, u-lbfob. Modes are distinguished in an equally simple way thus, subjunctive, if I love, if I loved, and so on, becoming Vdfob-la, dlb'fob-la, elofob-la, ilb'fob-la. The endings for any other verb are precisely the same.

Will such a language ever come into use? It is already in use in France and elsewhere on the continent for business purposes, and its influence will probably slowly extend. We see no reason why it may not render a service quite similar to shorthand. This is a laborsaving age. If Volapiik will save time, iis adoption is a foregone conclusion.

The fact that the new language contains a hundred thousand words, more or less, need deter none of our linguistic readers from undertaking it, unless, indeed, they are troubled by that "mindwandering," said to be somewhat prevalent since Prof. Loisette's visit.

It has been said that if the saloons are closed, the city will have $10,000 more of taxes to pay each year. It is difficult to keep a Christian temper before such an argument for the saloon as that. By all means, let us take to taxing all businesses which pander to vice. Let us make the gambling shop, the house of ill fame, the cock-pit, the prize ring, and all such, pay a tax, thus relieving honest citizens from taxation entirely. There is no question that the saloon should be classed, and is classed by the majority, among those instruments of vice.

$10,000? What do the honest people of Ann Arbor care for $10,000, compared with the moral ruin wrought by the saloon? 'What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?

If it is economically a good thing to tax one instrument of vice, like the saloon, there is no system of logic by which it can be maintained that it is not economically a good thing to tax all of them. Now, let the people of Washtenaw be consistent in this thing.

It is urged, O, that is clear enough, but the difficulty is that it isn't practicable to abolish the saloon. cawn't do it, ye know.' Neither is the gambling den abolished. All towns of any considerable size have them; but that is no reason why society should take to recognizing them as lawful and to taxing them. We all recognize that prohibition is a better restriction of gambling than taxation. Society is so far advanced that it considers a gambling shop a dangerous institution which should not be recognized. There is not an argument against the gambling shop which does not apply with a hundredfold more force to the saloon. The saloon is far the most dangerous instrument of vice and corruption in the world to-day.

Recognizing this, of course it is the best thing to prohibit the saloon. The best time to prohibit the saloon is the earliest possible moment. There was a time in England and other countries when gambling was an almost universal practice. Prohibiting it then was impossible. Yet, as principles are eternal, gambling was an evil then, and gambling-house keepers were purveyors then, just as much as now. It was desirable to stop the business as much and as soon as possible. It is the same with the saloon business. Intemperance is a fearful evil. Saloon-keepers are purveyors. There can be no question about the desirability of forbidding the business. The only question is, Are there votes enough?

$10,000! On the average each adult man is worth $1,000 to the community, so statisticians tell us. How many lives are immediately destroyed by the saloons? How many men are there in Ann Arbor who could walk the streets with a more fearless and a firmer tread if only the open saloon were abolished? and men who are now certainly going down rapidly largely because of the open saloons? How many paupers is Washtenaw county supporting because of the open saloon?

If there are not votes enough in Washtenaw now to prohibit the saloon. we are quite willing that the $10,000, or twice that amount, shall be collected from the saloons annually in Ann Arbor until there are votes enough to prohibit; for taxing saloons discourages them. But we think there are enough votes in Washtenaw now to wipe out the saloon as a legitimate business.

To the Editor of THE REGISTER SIR:—The communication in last week's REGISTER, in relation to hissing Booth, recalls to the writer's mind another incident very similar to that one. la 1870, or about that time, Charles Sumner lectured before the S. L. Association on the France-Prussian war. The lecture was given at the M. E. church. The house was crowded, and for nearly two hours the audience listened with intense interest. A few now left their seats to retire, and a little stir was created. Mr. Sumner paused a moment to remark that his subject is one of wide scope, and he hoped the audience would be patient 30 minutes more and he would be through. At this remark some idle swell in the rear centre gallery, and near the writer, opened with sinister hoo-o-o. Suddenly a score or more of students and others sitting near drowned him with a thower of hisseR. The hisses were purely intended for the disturber and not for the speaker. Mr. Sumner, however, felt that it was intended for himself, and from what the writer learned afterward, it remained so in his F. S.

Wlilta Swelling. Mr. M. S. llamlin, one of the best known insurance men in North Carolina, writes from Winston, as follows: "Evar since I was seven years of age I have had what the doctors call hip disease, and which I call white swelling. My hip was drawn out of place. There was a swelling at the knee-joint, where there is a profuse running, which has been there for years. course this has greatly depleted my system, together with surgical operation on the leg bone. I tried svery known blood purifier to build up my system, but none did me good until I took S. S. S. I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digestion, and ena-bles me to stand the long, trying, ener-vating, hot summer days. To me there is no such medicine for purifying the blood and building up the wasted system as S. S. S. On using it I soon became strong of body and easy of mind. THE OLD GRIST MILL.

By Willow Brook, beneath the hill, Stands quaint and gray the old grist mill. Spring mosses on its steep roof grow, Where broad their shade the willows throw. The lily pads spread gray and green, The lilies white and gold between, While grinds the mill with rumbling sound, The water-wheel turns round and round.

Among the reeds the muskrat dives, And swift "the swallow homeward flies," The robin sings In cedars near Where Willow Brook runs swift and clear. The children by the school-house play. Where slumberous shadows Boftly sway, And warm and low the summer breeze Is whispering thro' the willow leaves. While grinds the mjll, with rumbling sound. The water-wheel turns round and round.

The crows now wing their southward way, The squirrels in the nut-trees play; With merry shouts the school-boys run; The mountains blush 'neath autumn's sun; Their grain they bring adown the hill, The farmers, to the old grist mill; And faint, from far o'er hill and dale, Falls on the ear the thrasher's flail.

While grinds the mill with rumbling sound,
The water-wheel turns round and round.

Long years have come and past away: Long years have come and past away;
The mill with age is gaunt and gray.
The roof gaps wide to rain and sun;
With cobwebs thick the walls are hung.
The pond is overgrown with weeds;
The marsh wen builds among the reeds. The marsh wren builds among the reeds.
The night winds thro' the willows moan—
The school-house gone, the children grown—
The farmers sleep where wild flowers grow,
Who brought their grain so long ago,
When ground the mill with rumbling sound,
And the water-wheel turned round and round.

AFTERWARD.

I heedlessly opened the cage
And suffered my bird to go free;
And, though I besought it with tears to return,
It nevermore came back to me. It nests in the wildwood, and heeds not my call. O the bird once at liberty, who can enthrall?

I hastily opened my lips,
And uttered a word of disdain
That wounded a friend, and forever estranged
A heart I would die to regain.
But the bird once at liberty, who can enthrall?
And the word that's once spoken, O, who can recall?

HAPS AND MISHAPS OF A LOST SACHEL.

A Story for Young and Old.

BY FRANK H. CONVERSE, AUTHOR OF "PEPPER ADAMS," "BLOWS OUT

TO SEA," "PAUL GBAJTON," ETC. [Copyrighted, 1HSB, by D. Lothrop <t Co., and Published by Special Arrangement.]

CHAPTER V.—CONTINUED. "For this and all other mercies the Lord make us truly grateful," said Captain Flagg, reverently, as he took off his oil-skin hat, in which it was popularly believed he slept while voyaging over the main. This was his invariable form of thanksgiving, as soon as Bixport wharf was sighted, and with its utterance Captain Flagg dove into the cabin, there to throw aside, with his seafaring attire, the weighty responsibilities of the voyage.

Ten minutes later, ns the "Mary J." neared the wharf, where half of the residents of Bixport seemed to have assembled, Captain Flagg reappeared on deck in his go-ashore suit, consisting of a tall hat, a crumpled suit of navy-blue, and low-quartered shoes highly polished. In a commanding voice the Captain gave the necessary orders for bringing the schooner along-side the wharf. Down came the dingy sails, and a half-dozen pairs of hands were extended to catch the lines thrown from the deck. Enthusiastic were the greetings extended to the ship's company, for the quiet of the little inland village had never been disturbed by the locomotive's scream or the sound of a steamer's paddles, and the arrival of the only sailing packet between Bixport and Boston Was an event of considerable importance. There were on board at least three large boxes of dry good, a case of millinery, a hogshead of molasses, and other groceries in proportion, for Mr. Jones, the store-keeper; Mr. Allen, the minister, had a package of books; 'Zlas Nason, a new harness, and the first of its kind ever seen in Bixport. Among those assembled on the wharf, Tad noticed a boy about his own age, dressed in a well-worn suit of tweed. He had curly hair, a pair of very laughing blue eyes, a turn-up nose and a freckled face. Most prominent in voice and action was this youth, who, upon catching sight of Eph, performed a shuffle suggestive of delight, and in a very audible voice called out:

Deacon Whitney, a mowing-machine—

" Hooray—three cheers for Ephraim Small,

First mate, second mate, crew and all 1" "That's my cousin—Joe Whitn«y," laughed Polly, as Master Joe proceeded in vigorous pantomime to express unbounded joy at seeing Polly, who waved her hand in recognition.

CHAPTER VL

Joe was the first to spring on board; and it was evident that Joe Whitney was a youth of considerable vivaeity, to say the least. He slapped Captain Flagg familiarly on the shoulder, saluted the grinning George Washington in a most hilarious manner, and, rushing frantically aft, seized upon Bounce with a shout of jubilation.

" I say, Polly," he exclaimed, "what a jolly little dog—only you orter have him muzzled—he looks savage!"

"There's some boys I know that wouldn't be worse if they were muziled," gravely observed Captain Flagg -rescuing Bounce from the hands oj pbi nephew, wbo was preparing t« stand the small dog on his hind legsthough he tempered the severity of thi# hint by a slight internal chuckle, and a wink of intense meaning.

"No! is that so, Uncle Jeth?" returned Joe, regarding Tad with a look of seeming apprehension. "He don't seem like one of that kind," added the youthful speaker, with affected innocence, as Captain Flagg turned away to hide a smile.

"Oh, Joe Whitney, you're just as bad as ever," Polly exclaimed, despairingly; and then, remembering that the polite usages of society called for a formal introduction, she added:

"Joe, this is Tad Thome-I hope you'll be ever so good friends." "How are you, Tad?" said Joe, with a shy twinkle in his eye.

"How are you Joe?" awkwardly returned Tad, who didn't very well know what else to say, and, on the whole, rather fancying the easy, off-hand man-ner of Polly's cousin. But, then, every body liked Joe, as a general thingeven those Bixport people who insisted that if he was Deacon Whitney's son, he was the worst boy in the place.

Yet Joe's badness was nothing so very bad, after all. He was only one of those restless, fun-loving boys, who are never so well content as when they are in mischief; and neither the protestations of his mother nor the occasional thrashings administered by the good deacon, had any thing more than a merely temporary effect.

"Did you come from Boston?" asked Joe, as Tad, with a home-sick feeling under his jacket, watched Polly and her father getting ready to leave the vessel, for, of coupse, he expected to have to stay on board until some different arrangement was made for him.

"No, from Philadelphia," returned Tad, and Joe began to regard him with a sort of respect; for Philadelphia, in the eyes of Bixport people, was one of the most wonderful cities in the whole

"Come on, Tad; we're all ready, called Polly, and I can assure you that Tad was not more than a minute in running below after the little handsachel, which he determined not to let out of his possession, and returning to the deck.

"Isn't it nice that you're going home with us?" said Polly, as the little party of three walked up the wharf, leaving Joe swarming up the "Mary J.'s" rigging, three ratlines at a step.

Tad thought it was decidedly nice, and his smiling face expressed more than his brief words as, dropping behind Polly and her father, he followed them at a respectful distance.

"This is Main street," explained Polly, turning a beaming face upon him, as, leaving the wharf, they entered the village itself.

"Oh!" said Tad, filled with amazement, and thinking how funny it all was-the narrow plank walk, the grass growing green by the wayside, with cows-real live cows!-feeding on it! Tad caught himself wondering what a country cow would do in a Philadelphia street—say Broad street, for example! And then, too, every thing was so quiet. Occasionally a farmwagon rolled leisurely by, or an oxcart, with a brown-faced man, in shirtsleeves, sitting sideways on the carttongue, jolted slowly along. Tad, who had never seen any oxen before, regarded them as a probable new and superior breed of cows.

At little intervals along the street, great elm and maple trees were growing-trees whose shade in summer nearly hid the quaint old houses behind them from view. Just now their

A WARM RECEPTION.

April sun which shone down through them suggested that soon they would begin to throw out shoot and bud. Already some bluebirds and a robin or two were comparing musical notes in the tree-tops, as they discussed the shortest passages from the south, or began laying their plans for spring housekeeping.

A little further on stood the one store and post-office combined, then came the town pump, the school-house, a small church with a square tower like a sentry-box, and then-

"Our house," rapturously cried Polly, and, dropping Bounce, who waddled along after her as fast as his short legs would carry him, she darted through an open gateway and up a trim gravel walk, and was directly afterward infolded in the motherly arms of Mrs. Flagg, who was short and stout like her husband, and beamed so genially upon Tad, through a pair of brass-bowed spectacles, a moment or two later, that his heart warmed toward her at once.

"Our house" was a funny little onestory building with what the Bixport people call a "gambril roof," making it seem to an imaginative person as though it were shrugging its shoulders with its hands in its pockets. The windows were small, with tiny panes of glass, and the front door, painted a lively pea-green, had a wonderfully bright brass knocker in the center oi the upper panel. There was a weatherbeaten barn at the rear, from whose open doors issued flocks of noisy hens, while a number of doves "courooed" on the roofs in the sunshine; the little door-yard was overgrown with syringa and lilac bushes, and the two or three dilapidated flower-beds were bordered with large clam-shells.

Tad had a good chance to notice all this, because the Flaggs were some little time in getting into the house, as at every few steps Mrs. Flagg had to stop and speak of some bit of news, parenthesizing the same by giving Polly a

Polly had certain Bostonian experiences to narrate-particularly the one where Tad and Bounce were prominent, and even Captain Flagg himself tarried on the doorstep a moment, to illustrate, by penciled diagram on the threshold, the whereabouts of the "MaryJ." when it came on to blow heavy from the west'ard the first night

But finally they all got into the dining-room, where Ted seated himself in a very uncompromising chair made to fit into a corner, and sitting on the extreme verge thereof, with his cap held in both hands resting on his knees, glanced interestedly about him, while the tongues of the others wagged unflaggingly-if I may be allowed the expression.

He soon made up his mind that the inside of the little house was as delightfully quaint as its exterior. In the first place, an oak wainscoting ran around the walls nearly as high as Tad's shoulder. All the furniture was black with age, and of the severest hair-cloth and mahogany order, for, like the house, it had been in being considerably over a century. In the corner stood a tall, pale-faced clock, that had monotonously ticked away a hundred and ten years, second by second. On the mantle were some sea-shells, a pair of china vases, and a small wooden ship, whittled out by Ephraim K. Small. And beneath the mantle was a large open fire-place, where the fire itself leaped up incessantly and rubbed its glowing hands together, with warm smiles that were reflected in the polished faces of the brass-headed andirons. Just such a fire as one likes to sit in front of when it is snowing and sleeting and blowing out-of-doors, and listen to tales of shipwrecks and storms at sea.

The talk went on interruptedly till dinner-time, and then came a meal, to which Tad did more than ample justice. He said afterward that he was ashamed to have eaten so much. But when a hungry growing boy is set down to cold beef, and hot biscuit, and fresh butter, and new gingerbread, with pie and doughnuts besides, what else can be expected?

After dinner Polly took Tad out to make the acquaintance of the pig and hens, while Mrs. Flagg cleared up the dishes, during which operation Captain Flagg, between the whiffs of his pipe, told her Tad's simple story, and mentioned the boy's expressed desire to get work of some kind in the country.

"Why," exclaimed Mrs. Flagg, with enthusiasm in her voice and a dish-towel in her hand, "now if that don't seem providential like; Miss Smith ran up to bring some yeast this morning and she was in a peck of trouble. Dan Crosby-you remember Dan-he wanted to go off to sea with you las' summer?'

The Captain intimated by a grunt that he recollected the youth very well. "Well, Dan had been working there for a year," the good lady went on,
"and Miss Smith said she'd noticed he was getting dretful sort of uppish lately, and because she gave him a talking to for smoking sweet-fern cigars in bed, he told her he wasn't going to be ordered round by no waman, if he knowed hisself, so he up and left, and she paying of him two dollars a week and board!"

"I'd given him something mor'n a talking to," remarked Carptain Flagg, emphatically, as he knocked the ashes from his pipe and rose to his feet. "I guess, Mary Jane," he continued, reaching for his hat, "I'll jest drift down to Miss Smith's and see how the land lays —if she ain't shipped any one, that's the very place for Tad." With which remark the Captain Tolled out of the door and down the street on his benevolent errand, while Mrs. Flagg, having finished clearing away the dinner things, took up her knitting for the rest of the afternoon.

Meanwhile, Tad and Polly were wandering about the premises, followed by Bounce, who, being a city-reared puppy, seemed to find every thing as delightfully novel and strange as did Tad himself. "I never thought the country was so nice," said Tad, with an expressive sigh, as the two leaned over the garden fence and looked down the wide quiet street. An old-fashioned stage-coach, drawn by three horses, was rumbling along in the direction of the one hotel locally called a "tahvern," which boasted of a room where General La-fayette had slept. Thrice a week this antiquated vehicle made the journey between Bixport and Middleboro—a flourishing inland town, twenty miles distant-with the mails and an occasional venturesome passenger. Farther down, at the end of the thoroughfare, the masts of the "Mary J." outlined themselves against the sky, and a glimpse of Bixport river, on its way to the ocean, could be seen.

" I'spose you've lived here ever since you were born." continued Tad, a little wistfully. To have been reared in a peaceful home like this, with the loving care of parents continually about one, seemed to homeless, orphaned

Tad the very highest happiness eartfc

Polly opened her eyes very wide indeed.

Why-don't you know? How funny!" she exclaimed, turning a wondering face toward her companion. As Tap hadn't the slightest conception of her meaning, he shook his head in silence.

"Of course, yon don't, though," said Polly, recollecting herself. "Come with me," she said, soberly, touching Tad on the arm; and, curious to know her meaning, he followed Polly through the gate, and across the street to what was locally known as the "meetin'-house lot." Behind the little old weather-beaten wooden church, on either side of which stood a row of solemn-looking poplars, was the village burying-ground, into which, to Tad's great wonderment, Polly silently led

A short distance from the entrance, a flat, moss-grown tombstone w*s raised upon two slight brick elevations at either end, on which, in almost illegible letters, were the words:

' Sacred to the memory of DEBORAH SAYLES.

Killed by ye Indians. June ye 27, A. D. 1734."

Sitting down on the old stone as on a bench, Polly motioned Tad to a seat beside her. Just in front of them stood a plain white marble slab.

"Read it," briefly said Polly, in a very low tone, as she pointed to the inscription.

Awed by Polly's manner, as well as by the solemn stillness, only broken by the breathing of the soft south wind through the leafless branches overhead. Tad read, in a subdued voice:

the body of a very beautiful unknown lady—one of the passengers on board the ill-fated steamer "Pomerania" which went ashore near the mouth of Bixport river, In the great gale of February 24,1862. Seventy-one souls were lost.

" ' Floating hair all tangled and torn Beautiful head laid low on the sand Pride all out of the arching lips Life all out of the marble hands— Oh terrible, restless, trembling sea, tow could you leave her alone with death? Clasping her close in a (told embrace And stealing away the last faint breath?' "

CHAPTER VIL

"Mr. Allen, our minister, took that verse from a paper, and had it cut on the stone—isn't it beautiful!" softly said

"Yes, indeed," returned Tad, considerably bewildered, "only I don't see what it has to do with you."

"Wait! I am going to tell you all about it," his companion responded. But she sat for a moment or two without speaking, resting her chin in the hollow of her small hand, and her dark eyes looking far off seaward. Through the hushed stillness, the distant voice of the ocean came to their ears, sounding soft and low, like the imprisoned echoes that one hears in a sea-shell.

"It was in the great gale of '62, when fifteen vessels and a hundred and twenty men were lost on 'George's Banks' " said Polly, abruptly. "The 'Pomerania' drove ashore on some reefs ;it the mouth of the river, near where the light-house stands now. A fisherman came up to Birport, and told people about it. Every body—the men, I mean—got clown to the point as soon as they could. There wasn't any life-boat, and they say the sea was something awful. But there was n whaleboat that belonged to George Hudson, and so Captain Flagg got five fishermen to go off with him in it, though nobody thought they could ever get through the surf line. But they did, and just managed to reach the steamer as she was breaking up. The poor people were in the water crying,

Here Polly stopped a moment and caught her breath, while Tad felt a curious lump rising in his throat. He touched Polly's small hand with his own rough one in mute sympathy, but, frightened at his boldness, drew it lastily away, and after a little she Hodjcska in Twelfth Night.

Twelfth Night is a comedy which leaves a rich flavor when it is presented well, and it was presented well in Ann Arbor Tuesday evening. Modjeska, as Viola, was perfect graoe, and carried the sympathy of the audience completely, especially in the exquisite passage in which the heroine, in disguise as a boy, tells of her love for the Count, and of the superior love of woman. Modjeska evidently cares BO much for her art that she will tolerate no really poor actors about her. It was an even performance. Wm. F. Owen made an excellent Sir Toby Belch, and is a good actor of the Fal-staffian order. J. N. Long, as Sir Andrew Agnecheek, was a fine coward. Chas. Vanderhoff did the part of the insufferably conceited Malvolia to perfection. Mary Shaw was a beautiful Olivia, and Clara Ellison acted the part of the pert and pretty maid, Maria, in a very clever

The board adjusted a small loss, that of some wood belonging to Peter Cook, of York.

Miss Grace Hill*.

The next Chamber concert which occurs Jan. 21 at Hobart hall, will be a song recital by Miss Grace A. Hiltz, of Chicago, assisted by Miss Julia Caruthers. Her numerous engagements for the remainder of the season isdicate a growing interest in her work, and a constantly increasing demand for ter services. The Chicago Times thu9 speaks of two different appearances of Miss Hiltz in that city: Hiltz sang a group of six songs by Franz, all from memory entirely, with artistic finish of vocal method and with that rare power amoog singers of clean cut individualism of each composition." Grace Hiltz made her first appearance after a rest of six months or more, enforced by illness, singing, "My heart ever faithful," with so much feeling and intelligence that it had to be repeated." Miss Hiltz and Miss Caruthers give a similar entertainment in Fort Wayne, Jan. 20.

What Mr. Norris did in 1887.
