ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1888.

WHOLE NO. 688.

THE SALOONS STAY.

WASHTENAW CO. TOTES THEM A LITTLE LONGER TIME.

Local Option crtt more Totes in Ann Arbor w'ty than the Amendment Received—Large Tote.

The election day under the local option law in Washtenaw county opened cold and clear, and it remained exceedingly cold all day. A raw wind against which no overcoat afforded complete protection, kept up its attack from morning till night. In more senses than one, it was an unusually "cold" day for the "dry" side of the contest, on which side THK REGISTER was ranged.

The "wets" started in Monday morning in Ann Arbor confident of victory, and the "dry" side had no very strong hope of winning. Many good judges, however, were at fault in estimating the chances. Quite a large number conceded that it would be close whichever way it was decided; and nearly all thought the heaviest "dry" losses, if any, would be in Ann Arbor. All these guesses were wrong. Probably the cold weather had something to do with it. In Ann Arbor more ballots were cast than in the amendment election, and in Ypsilanti there was only a slight falling off; yet in the whole county the total vote is 651 less than in the amendment election—a reduction which was almost entirely in the rural districts. The township of Ann Arbor polled 21 less votes than in the amendment election, and the prohibition loss was proportionately large. It is so in other townships. If the total vote in the county had been as large as that on the amendment, it is likely, from these considerations, that the "wet" majority would have been about 900, the same as before. That is, the "wets" brought out their full strength all over the county, and the "dry" side failed to get theirs out in the rural districts especially, owing to the roads and weather.

The temperance workers in Ann Arbor have reason to congratulate themselves in the general wreck. Ann Arbor made comparatively good record. The "wet" majority was only seven greater than the majority against the amendment, and she actually cast 17 more temperance votes than before. In the noble second ward she cast 26 votes, a loss of only five. In the first, fourth and sixth wards, the "dry" side polled larger votes than for the amendment.

The "wets" polled 52 votes more in the county than they did against the amendment. The total vote in the county was 9,458.

The following table shows the vote on the amendment and on Monday by wards and townships. The official returns may change the figures for Monday slightly, but not materially:

SEJUP WARD TROUBLES.

The unfortunate encounter between some of the students and some of the Polacks and a few Germans not of the better class, around the second ward polling place, needs to be stated carefully lest misrepresentation in regard to it may run. A REGISTER reporter was on the ground most of the time, and is especially familiar with the events leading up to the clubbing in the afternoon. Most of the people about the polls were incensed against the students to begin with on account of Saturday's demonstration. A few of them were "boozy," and the presence of five or six students quietly holding ballots, and showing a disposition to "work," incensed them still more. They undoubtedly were sincere although mistaken in believing that the students had no right to be there. A REGISTER reporter was met with uncordial glances, menacing words, and jostling that was not very genteel. The few student workers were treated in the same way, yet they acted courteously. One of them is a voter in the ward; all of them are sincere prohibitionists; one of them has reasons touching his own family why he desires to see the saloons suppressed. The second ward polling place is quiet ordinarily; but on this question some of the less intelligent of the Germans and "Polacks" are quickly aroused. There would have been no work for these for local option had it not been for the five or six students, one of whom is a voter in the ward. When rudely treated, these students acted like gentlemen. They merely said that they were there to hand out ballots to those who wanted them, and among themselves they determined to see that no one was molested in attempting to vote for prohibition. They quietly told the inhospitable people that they had a perfect right to be there. Their number was too small to make any trouble, and all who know them will testify that they are earnest, sincere young men, who are not spoiling for a fight. The first student struck THK REGISTER can vouch for as a perfect gentleman who had no desire for a fight, and certainly could have had no motive at that time. He did not resent it. The second or third one struck is a powerful and skillful fellow who is amply able to knock three or four ordinary men down; but he refrained.

The students on the campus, hearing that a few of their number had been struck at the second ward polling place, came down about 100 strong in the afternoon, and more reinforcements came later after the fray was really over. Many came out of curiosity, and with books under their arms. The Polacks also came out in force, armed, many of them, with clubs which did execution. Sheriff Walsh and City Marshal Siple, with some citizens, endeavored to prevent a collision; but it was of no avail. The clubs prevailed, and the students retreated up Washington street about a block to a wood-pile. Several of them were hurt, one receiving a scalp wound. A student who was at one side, an innocent spectator, was struck three times. Finally the swaying mass returned to Main-st, some of the angry students now armed with clubs.

THE REGISTER does not attempt to give all the details of the afternoon's fray. Most of the students began to realize that they had better go home. One of them made a short speech advising that the crowd disperse. J. T. Jacobs shouted the same advice from the second story of the block; the sheriff and city marshal lent their influence, and most of the students finally went home. A few armed with clubs remained a short time only, and five remained at the polls to work, among whom were two or three of the morning's campaign.

These five students placed themselves in the alley at the second ward polling place, at a sufficient distance from the window. Among them, and nearest to the "Polacks," was Franz Coe, lit. '79, and a senior medic now, a man who has lived a long time in Ann Arbor and is well known and respected here. He is a married man and the father of a family. He had come down from the University too late to see the hard hitting, but in time to render valuable assistance in preventing another collision. His acquaintance on both sides and his strength enabled him to do much in this way. After the students had gone home, he went down to the second ward polling place and stood with the few student workers. The "Polacks," especially, were exceedingly offensive. The students were unarmed, but the other side had clubs. One man was so demonstrative that an officer ordered him away. He soon returned, however, and the crowd rushed upon the students who, facing them, slowly retreated around the corner up Washington-st to Main. Mr. Coe's feet struck against something and he fell. He was rolled over into the gutter, and as he was rising he was struck on the head with a club. The one who hit him is known. Mr. Coe was so stunned that he had to be helped away. He says that he was not much of a prohibitionist before, but after this he will never lose an opportunity to vote for the principle.

01.081 or THE CAMPAIGN.

Col. George W. Bain's appearance in the rink last Friday afternoon and evening before large audiences aroused much enthusiasm among the workers for prohibition.

On Saturday about two hundred and fifty students marched from the law lecture room to the business portion of the city. If the weather had been favorable five hundred would have been in line. They had a line which extended nearly around the court house square. With several banners upon which were displayed sentiments denouncing the saloon, and with a band, they marched up and down the business portion of Main-st. Forming on Main-st at the court house, they gave hearty cheers for Col. Bain and for prohibition. They then proceeded to the rink, where, between 5 and 6 p. m., student orators argued and pleaded for success on Feb. 27 in overcoming the saloon. The rink was densely crowded. The speakers were James Chalmers, of Grand Rapids, lit. '83, who presided; C. K. Cox, of Kentucky, law; Mr. Griffith, AW; L. Z. Cankin, of Sparta, Mich., lit.; and Mr. Lumley, law. The students' demonstration was in every way a success, and it shows conclusively that their sympathy was with the temperance workers.

At the Unitarian church Sunday morning, Rev. J. T. Sunderland preached a very jowetful and unanswerable sermon in favor of prohibition success Feb. 27. In the afternoon the M. K. church was well filled. President Angell presided. He was not enthusiastic. Rev. W. W. Ramsay and Rev. W. H. Ryder prayed earnestly for success, and then there was a sort of go-as-you-please meeting. Some enthusiasm was generated, and the cobwebs spun by the saloon men were pushed away. Rev. S. Haskell, Rufus Waples, Prof. T. C. Trueblood, B. J. Knowlton, Rev. W. W. Ramsay, John Schumacher and others spoke.

The meeting at the rink was very large Sunday evening. The room was cold and it was Sunday evening, two things which prevented many demonstrations of enthusiasm, but the address by Rev. E. L. Lixford amply met the occasion. He was followed by Rufus Waples in a short speech.

The campaign closed Sunday evening with the knowledge, on the part of the temperance workers, that they were not so well organized as the saloonists; they had not enough money yet to pay the light expenses they had dared to incur, and they had been cruelly hampered for lack of funds.

LAND OF BLACK HUNGER.

PROF. CHARLES M. OIVLEY TELLS OF THE INLAND OF ADHILL.

"The Buckle's Land Beneath the Sky."—A lien Own the Island, and 6000 People Starve.

Prof. Gayley delivered his lecture on the Land of Black Hunger before the Unity club recently and in the Congregational church last Friday evening. The portion describing the island of Adhill and the condition of the people is given below in abstract:

I was induced to visit the land whose principal town is Black Hunger. * * * In these villages the dingy cabins are huddled together by hundreds. Generally they have but one room. The chimney is crammed with pent; the windowless chamber is choked with smoke, and reeks with vapors of the sodden earth. The rafters drip and are viscid with soot, the walls but shoulder-high are loathsome to the touch. The atmosphere within is foul; the forms of the inhabitants dimly visible through the gloom. A drain run across the room and serves as sewer for man and beast. On one side are the milk cow, consumptive, scurbutic, and the hog; on the other side the muster of the hut in rags, the mother crouched asthmatic in the filth, the children, large and small, hugging the cinders that s;oulder on the hearth, or sprawling on the tatter-heap of vermin that serves as a bed.

From the doors lean faces peer, and and stunted girls, holding the babes whom it had behoved their mothers never to bear, crane their necks to catch a glimpse of the passer-by. Many such girls full-grown have known the days of utter nakedness—days on which they faced the light of heaven only when the mother lent them her petticoats and stayed herself beside the fire. In the streets of these villages I heard no laughter, I caught no smiles, I saw no children playing. Why should they play in the streets of the Land of Black Hunger?

The hills and the valleys are bare. Juniper, heather and furze bristle by the streams and crown the hummocks of grass that dot the gravel slope. Coarse grass, elbowed out by the rushes; black, boggy, shallow hummocks; and underneath a nasty granite thrusting its back and heaving above the surface one horrid waste of rocks, boulders and stones. Mile after mile, and not a sheep, or cow, or pig, or hut; the barren yawning into black, forsaken pools.

For there is no sap in the Land of Black Hunger to nurture the beings of earth. A sad linnet may glint in the sunshine, songless and swift, but the infrequent sheep that weathers the mountain storms is hard and angular as the quartz on which she may be tempted to feed. The kine are small and ill favoured. There are few horses. The young pigs alone seem normally sound, but they can very rarely be raised from the litter. Stock cannot thrive. The quails subsist upon a regimen of antidotes. They are driven from Arid cliff to poisonous moor, and back again in season. They seldom exchange ban is. Their owners have enough to do to feed themselves and their children. They cannot afford to buy fodder for the beasts. It is a sign of poverty to be burdened with sheep and bullocks. A man drove past me eight or nine cattle one day from the fair. He could find no purchaser. "What sh II I do?" said he, "to kill them for food, such skin and bones—it would be little less than murder!" Their helplessness appealed to something in the poor fellow that was like affection. "I shall let the creatures die, or shoot them myself, and put them under the ground. Many's the cow that I have offed for one bag of meal, but it was no use. It's never any UPC"

Where there are fields a few blades of rye and colourless oats grow. A liny sodden tuber called the "poreen" is also cultivated. It is eaten boiled, and has an apologetic flavor as of a potato stricken with fever. The natives in their simplicity go so far as to believe that it is our potato. Sickly as the vegetable may be, it can only be pampered into existence by annual alternation of the soil—like the cow. And even so, the soil must be perennially enriched. But they have no cattle manure, or very little, in the land. "Scraps" of peat roasted in the oabin chimneys until decomposed as soot take its place; or more often coarse sea-weed. Sea-weed serves another purpose than

The University at the Banquet.

The most honored of all the delegations to the republican convention and banquet at Detroit, Wednesday, was the delegation from the university. Again and again (they received the highest compliments of the convention, and the boys certainly did honor to the republican party and to the university. Even in the oratorical contests of the day and evening, participated in by distinguished statesmen from all parts of the Union, the university delegation went clear up to the front, as may be seen by the Detroit city papers. The Tribune says: "The talented orator, James Chalmers, of Kent county, electrified the fringe convention by a stirring speech just before adjournment yesterday. It was full of eloquent republican ideas most eloquently expounded." Mr. Chalmers is a lit. '89, and was called out by Wm. Aiden Smith, of Grand Rapids. He maintained the position that the more the party became the champion of morality and reform, the more enthusiastic will be the support of the republican standard by the young men of the land. C. A. Read, '88, was elected assistant secretary of the convention, and H. B. Dewey, '90, was chosen as one of the vice presidents of the state league. D. K. Cochrane was made chairman of the university delegation.—The Chronicist.

The auditor general of the state has sent word to the county treasurers that those counties which vote against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors will not need 1 quor blanks. He can send them to Washtenaw county just the same. Our county treasurer will need them.

THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1888.

Now that we are not to have prohibition in Washtenaw county, let the tax law be fairly well enforced. The saloon-keepers will be short-sighted if they don't obey its very letter as well as the spirit. Whenever the city marshal knows of any violation of the liquor law, it is his duty to make complaint. He is required to visit every saloon in the city at least once each week and learn if there is any violation.

PAPERS unfriendly to the University may endeavor to make more out of Monday's squabble than is right. The fact is, the students compare favorably with those in any other institution for good behavior. Monday's affair is simply this: Six students of irreproachable character thought they had a right to work in the second ward for local option. It may not have been wise, but they undoubtedly had the right, so long as they didn't interfere with the rights of others. Some of the less thoughtful Polacks and Germans resented their presence there, and struck them. This brought on a lively little scrimmage which ten policemen could have stopped. Worse affairs happen in other towns.

THE VOTE given Monday "For the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors" is probably more than one-half of the actual number of voters in the county. So the decision cannot be misunderstood. There has been no particular change in public feeling in Washtenaw county on this question since the amendment campaign. THE REGISTER accepts the decision as final for the present, with as good grace as possible. The saloon-keepers organized their forces well, and the local option committee were unable to do so because of lack of money; but it seems improbable that this large majority could have been overcome even with better organization. The saloon men worked the cider "racket," the taxation plea, the personal liberty nonsense, the loss of trade humbug; and the local option people were powerless to get answers to these, and other proper influences, where they were needed. If they could have done so it would have reduced that majority largely.

THE ELECTIOK.

The people of Washtenaw county do not want a prohibitory law against the saloon. That is plain. We shall continue to have the open saloon helping trade, as of course it does; assisting us to pay our taxes, you know; and extending its beneficent influence, hand in hand with the pulpit, in causing temperance in the land. The circular issued by the saloon-keepers said that intemperance is "an evil that all wish to suppress," and hence saloons undoubtedly are an agency for good. Who can doubt it?

There have in the past been exceedingly wonderful changes in the beliefs of men. Men have held all sorts of notions on all sorts of subjects, and most of them have been found to be wrong. Is it at all singular that we should come to learn that the popular impression concerning the evil influences of the saloon is, after all, doing those worthy places great injustice? that they are really a great moral agency? a factor in the evolution of man to a perfect state? We admit that it is a violent change which it is difficult for us to make, but the circular above referred to assures us, at least by implication, that the chief anxiety of the saloon-keepers is to promote temperance. They say that under prohibition more liquor would be sold; yet, as they prefer high taxation, a system which reduces their sales, of rouse they are a noble, self-sacrificing set who do not mind smaller sales if only they can reduce intemperance. This amply proves their greatness of soul, to say nothing of their desire to assist the people by paying one-half of their taxes. We have no doubt that a small and select number of saloon-keepers could be found of such noble disposition that they would pay all the municipal and county taxes, thus relieving our citizens from such burdens entirely, providing they were given a monopoly of the saloon business.

This new idea must be true. Great injustice has been done the saloon-keepers. Instead of being despised, they should be exalted; instead of having restrictions thrown about them, they should be given the largest liberty. Liberty! We have heard that word somewhere in this campaign. O, yes; the Washtenaw Post wants people to have liberty to drink. Some people about the second ward polls talked of liberty. To be sure! Liberty is not complete if they cannot drink after 11 o'clock as well as before; and if the saloons are the home of temperance where principles of morality are inculcated, we can see no good reason why they should not be open at all hours.

A majority of the people of Washtenaw county voted with the saloon-keepers, and presumably they did it for the same reasons. The saloon-keepers give their reasons in the circular above referred to. We have given two of them,—their desire to promote temperance and to lessen taxation. There are other reasons given in the circular, one of which is hard to understand. They say that they could not, good as they are, be prevailed upon to obey a prohibitory law; hence the supposition is that they would continue to sell liquor in Ann Arbor just the same in spite of prohibition. Yet they say in this circular that should local option be carried trade would be deflected to places where people could get liquor, possibly to Wayne and Monroe. Business men in Ann Arbor have urged on our hearing that prohibition would drive student trade to Detroit; that every time a student wanted a glass of beer he would go to Detroit and buy a suit of clothes; yet these very men we have entrapped into saying that liquor would be sold here freely under local option. It looks a little strange logically; but then the people have endorsed all these ideas at the polls.

THE LESSON OF THE STRIKE.

The great Reading strike has fallen through because of the hunger of the poor miners. They could not hold out as long as the company, that is all. Mr. Corbin, the president of the Reading road, has been making some very plaintive statements about the unselfish capitalists and their losses, which no sensible person will believe. In the first place, the owners of the coal lands draw a large royalty on every ton of coal, just for signing their names. The Reading company mines about 40 per cent of the annual output of coal. This mining company and the Reading railroad company are practically one, and hence the railroad company secures a good price for hauling the coal. They own the land and the shanties, and the stores, and demand high rent and big prices.

A few of the great journals have told the side of the miners fairly, and among them is Harper's Weekly. The Nation, with its characteristic inability to do justice, sneeringly said that the miners' wages were $2.60 to $2.70 per day, and nobody would feel very much sympathy for hungry men who refused such wages. The Nation didn't tell all of the truth. The miners necessarily lose much time in the course of the year, and their daily wages they must each hire an assistant. There are other ways in which their apparently high wages are cut down, so that, as a matter of fact, they must live in a most wretched manner. The average miner and his family live in a house of three rooms. It is said that it would be hard to find a home so mean, comfortless, and grimy in an agricultural region. The boys must work in order that the family may have sufficient food, and in the heart of Pennsylvania, in her most beautiful valleys, are growing up thousands of ignorant, ill-fed, and hapless boys, who will one day be men "inspired," as has been said, "by the bitter experience of their youth and the traditions of oppression which they have inherited from their fathers."

This reference to the boys in the mining regions of Pennsylvania is very significant. If the last report of the bureau of labor statistics of Pennsylvania can be believed, there is a most alarming state of affairs among the children of miners and factory operatives. It all goes to show that we have right in this country all the forces which produce socialists and anarchists. Those who don't see this are simply blind to the signs of the times. Some of the miners were interviewed by newspaper reporters. One of the more intelligent of them who was not foreign-born, said that his experience had led him to believe that the government should run the mining business. What is that but state socialism, just like the state socialism brought over from Germany? It sprang up in that man's mind independently of foreign influences: he could see no other way out of the difficulty. It is a significant instance, and illustrates our declaration that there are in the United States all the forces necessary to germinate and develop socialist and anarchistic ideas.

WE WISH it were possible to publish all of Prof. Gayley's lecture, a part of which will be found in this number of THE REGISTER. It will be found to be very interesting, sad, and instructive reading. While the island of Achill may be the "blackest land under the sky," yet its misery, if deeper, is of the same kind as that in Connaught, in the highlands of Scotland, and in the other islands about Ireland and Scotland. One little island is owned by one woman, and the tenants upon it are virtually her slaves, for they hand over to her all that they produce above a mean living. Women haven't a right to rule in that way. Twenty-four men own one large island on which several thousand people live. These landlords live luxuriously, while the people on the island slave and starve. Many of the landlords have lordly castles on the island which they seldom condescend to visit; they live in London, in Rome, or spend much of their time on the Mediterranean in their yachts. They never work. They or their ancestors stole the land from the people. They reserve the best land for deer parks and shooting places. Why this should be permitted in the 19th century is incomprehensible; but it illustrates what has been said about society being yet a sound aristocrat as regards industrial affairs.

A TELEPHONE message to Mr. Keech, at 11 o'clock today, stated that Jackson county gave two to three hundred "dry" majority. The "wets" stole a march, and secured a large majority in the city, but the townships did well. Isosco county probably goes "wet." The large gain in Berrien county is probably due to the democratic judge's letter—a bold and fearless plea for prohibition.

ON THE CAMPUS.

The democrats among the students have formed a strong club. Lively times next fall.

Dr. Herman Ostrander, of Lansing, medic '74, was in Ann Arbor Monday and Tuesday.

Hugh Brown, lit. '84, now principal of the Pontiac high school, was in Ann Arbor last Saturday.

The Michigan Agricultural College baseball team, last November submitted proposals for a Michigan college league to Hillsdale, Albion, and Olivet colleges. They want the University to join. Hillsdale and Olivet have consented, and it is thought, that Albion will do so soon. The Agricultural college team as now organized is a strong one.

The College Journal of the New York college says: "The proposed Columbia gymnasium is to cost $156,000; the new gymnasium at Yale is to be of brown stone, and will cost $345,000; Harvard has 1,812 students* on her rolls; Michigan University gives 242 elective courses to its students; Yale has received by gift during the past year $345,000."

Thomas C. Trueblood, A. M., professor of elocution and oratory in Ohio Wesleyan, and Kentucky universities, has been engaged to give four courses here this semester. The two seasons past, Prof. Trueblood has given these courses here, but as private courses. These, with the course in extemporaneous speaking offered by Prof. Gsley, will enhance the value of our curriculum greatly, and will undoubtedly prove popular.—Arg'J. nat.

President Angell has at last, talked about the fisheries treaty which he helped to make. He thinks the United States will gain substantial benefits, from it. Many of the hindrances and annoyances heretofore imposed upon our fishermen in Canadian waters have been removed. "Why," he said, "when our vessels ran into a port in distress they were not allowed to purchase a single article of food or sell a dollar's worth of their cargo. This is now changed, and they can buy and buy food and get all casual and needful supplies the same as other vessels."

THE REG-TRK is indebted to the secretary of the Michigan State board of health for a very neat pamphlet entitled "The first quarterly report of the Michigan State Laboratory of Hygiene." It is made by Prof. Vietot C. Vaughan, of the University, who is a member of the board and is director of the laboratory. It contains a report of Dr. Vaughan's and Mr. Novy's studies of the causation of typhoid, with special reference to the outbreak at Iron Mountain, Mich., the leading features of which TTK REGISTER gave last fall. It also contains Dr. Vaughan's report on the cases of tyrotoxic poisoning in Milan, Washtenaw county, and Mr. Novy's report of the exposure of the stenocarpine fraud.

Care for the Children

Children feel the debility of the changing seasons, even more than adults, and they become cross, peevish, and uncontrollable. The blood should be cleansed and the system invigorated by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Last Spring my two children were vaccinated. Soon after, they broke all out with running sores, so dreadful I thought I should lose them. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured them completely; and they have been healthy ever since. I do feel that Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my children to me." Mas. C. L. TBOMPSON, West Warren, Mass.

Purify the Blood

Hood's Sarsaparilla is characterized by three peculiarities: 1st, the combination of remedial agents; 2d, the proportion; 3d, the process of securing the active medicinal qualities. The result is a medicine of unusual strength, effecting cures hitherto unknown. Send for book containing additional evidence.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla tones up my system, purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite, and seems to make me over." J. J. THORPSON, Register of Deeds, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla beats all others, and is worth its weight in gold." I. BABBDIGTOIS, 130 Bank Street, New York City.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN,
COUNTY OF WASHTENAW.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Ann Arbor, on Monday, the 27th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, WILLIAM D. HARRIMAN, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Carl Schlimmer deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Louisa Osborne, praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that she and Margaret Schlimmer may be appointed executors thereof.

Thereupon it is Ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of March next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the devisees, legatees, and heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any, there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor Register, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

WILLIAM D. HARRIMAN,
Judge of Probate

LAND OF BLACK BUKGER.

that of manure. It is used as food. The game stalk produces both fruits. The upper rack for the foil; the lower leaves for man. And to (his) reth, where the watery bulb of the pore in fails, the natives betake themselves...

The people pray for work, but they get none. They dread the famine that is to come. They are thrown upon the mercy of the world. They inhabit the blackest land beneath the sky. They pay for the privilege of living in that land, and of dying...

The island of Achill is a shame cry it g in the ears of humanity; it is a cancer on the face of the globe. Achill, the Eagle isle, lies west of Ireland, near the coast of Mayo. This washed island extends over 50,000 acres. It has a population of 6,000 souls, living in some thirty wretched huts.

On Lord Cavan's property, land, exclusive of the widest tracts recently taken under cultivation, is rented on an average of £1 an acre. Lord Cavan is sometimes cited as an indulgent landlord. The London Times, in a recent article, recounts the sacrifices which he has made for the improvement of Achill.

These rents, as I have said, are not high. Figures run as low as 7s. 6d. an acre, and never higher than £2. This is cheap even considering the fact that most holdings are not over six acres apiece, and that many of them consist of disconnected fragments.

sheep, now has but one cow. Perhaps, under the present circumstances, he is fifty sheep the richer by their absence. So, with regard to Lord Cavan's "sand bank," and so, with the Major's property in Kildownet. The landlord retains the best lands on his take and for the remnant...

These rents do not cover the sea weed before the tenant's door, or the lusher or the heather that bristle on the steep behind. For all of these some proprietors even row demand extra payment. To be sure, the sea-weed is the natural fertilizer of the land, and has been cultivated by the tenant himself.

What must not the Achillese pay for? If they do not pay for the very water they drink, and the air that they breathe, they come nearer it than any people that ever drank or breathed. Not only must they pay for sea-weed to get it, but at times they cannot get it even for payment.

The Achillese are cramped with restrictions, and tormented by petty tyrant? I know land agents who are good men. But an agent can be a terrible gad-fly even in a land flowing with milk and honey. In the Land of Black Hunger he treats his tenants arbitrarily and harshly; he delights in intimidating them, in serving notices upon them, in dragging them to law.

These rents, as I have said, are not high. Figures run as low as 7s. 6d. an acre, and never higher than £2. This is cheap even considering the fact that most holdings are not over six acres apiece, and that many of them consist of disconnected fragments.

ferred from the surcharged island to lands better able to contain and support them. But during the last five years harvests have been steadily wretched, wages in England and Scotland have failed, cattle have sunk to zero, debts have accumulated and credit has gone.

THE ENGINEERS GO OUT.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—At 4 o'clock this morning, the 2,000 locomotive engineers and firemen on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy system between Chicago and Denver struck for higher wages, and all passenger and freight traffic was at a standstill.

During all the weeks of negotiation Mr. Stone has not been idle. An agent of his road went to Heading, Pa., and employed all the men he could who had recently been thrown out of employment by the strike on the Philadelphia A Heading Railroad Company.

The Chicago, Burlington A Quincy railroad system operates over 4,000 miles of track. In addition to the main line it controls the Burlington & Missouri River railroad in Nebraska, the Hannibal & St. Joseph, railroad, the Kansas City, St. Joseph & Council Bluffs railroad and the Chicago A Iowa railroad.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 27.—[A number of the striking engineers and firemen of the Reading railroad of this city and Palo Alto have left for Chicago to take service with the Chicago, Burlington A Quincy railroad in view of the strike of the Locomotive Brotherhood engineers of that road.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—But very few passenger trains on the Chicago, Burlington A Quincy road were running yesterday, and freight traffic was entirely suspended.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—The Chicago, Burlington A Quincy engine-men are still out, and there is no prospect of a speedy ending of the strike.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—But very few passenger trains on the Chicago, Burlington A Quincy road were running yesterday, and freight traffic was entirely suspended.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—The Union League Club celebrated the 100th anniversary of the birth of Washington yesterday afternoon. Central Music Hall was selected as the place, and Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, was the orator.

From this point the speaker sketched the remarkable growth of the country and the part which the abolition of slavery and the extension of commerce have played in welding the various Commonwealths into one compact and indivisible whole.

On the question of free trade versus protection the speaker took strong grounds in favor of protection, reviewing the birth of the tariff system, its workings, and concluding with the statement that protection was the country's best investment.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

St. Louis Is Chosen as the Place and June 5 as the Time.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The National Democratic Committee met in Willard's Hall in this city yesterday for the purpose of selecting a time and place for the holding of the next National Democratic convention, and St. Louis was chosen as the place and June 5 as the time.

THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE having met in the city of Washington on the 22d day of February, 1888, has appointed Tuesday, the 5th day of June next, at high noon, as the time, and chosen the city of St. Louis as the place for holding the National Democratic Convention.

Prof. C. B. Cady will have charge of the music department at Bay View next summer. He will have a class for teachers of vocal music, and of course will make all parts of his work there interesting.

Charles Nichols, an employee of the Ann Arbor Agricultural company, had one finger of his left hand badly mangled, last Thursday afternoon, in a whittling machine. He will probably lose the finger.

The March term of the circuit court will open next Monday in Ann Arbor. The jury is not wanted till March 12. The docket is very full, containing more than 75 cases. One is a liquor case and there are 50 jury cases.

The surprising strength which local opinion developed among the students has an off-set. Three students celebrated the victory Tuesday by getting gloriously drunk. THE REGISTER could give the name of one of them.

Last Saturday, as the students' demonstration was in progress, a young fellow from the country insulted an old gentleman by the name of Clancy on the corner of Huron and Main, and Clancy's son punished him severely.

A. L. Noble's business is so increasing that he has let the contract to Henry Bliton to extend his store 30 feet back, making the store at least 125 feet deep. The new room thus made will be given up to the boys' department.

Mrs. Frances A. Hnbart, who lived many years in Ann Arbor, died at her home in Big Rapids, Feb. 26, aged 66 years. She was the mother of A. S. Hobart and Marl Hobart, of Big Rapids, who will be remembered by many here.

Marian E. Atchison, of Northfield township, wants a divorce from John Atchison. They have been married eight years. In January she left her husband because of his cruelty and abusive language, and is now living with her father, Mr. Galt, of Northfield township.

There was rejoicing in Beethoven hall, Monday evening, over the result of the local option election. John J. Robison, J. F. Lawrence, Justice Frieauff, County Clerk Howlett, and Paul G. Suckey spoke, and all were happy as larks. There was congregational singing.

This morning at one o'clock, Philander Chandler died at his home in Pittsfield township of heart disease. He died in bed very suddenly. He lived in Ann Arbor for some time, and was landlord of the St. James for a time. The funeral will occur Sunday afternoon.

A very pleasant social of the U. C. W. club was held at the Ladies' library, last Friday evening. The leap year order of arrangement was observed, the young ladies acted as escorts, the gentlemen furnished the refreshments, and P. of. Pettee acted as chaperone. Ten couples were present, and the evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The enterprising merchants, The Two Sams, have seen a good opening at Alpena for a clothing store, and this week they started one there. S. S. Bliti is there now, and their clerk, William Tuomey, who will remain for a time at least. Messrs. Blitz and Langsdorf will take turns in visiting Alpena. The Ann Arbor store, of course, will not be neglected.

Dr. J. H. Vincent, who lectured on "That Boy" before the Student* lecture association, Saturday evening, was entertained over Sunday by Rev. W. W. Ramsay. Mr. Vincent spoke at the M. E. church Sunday morning on some things that were not revealed in the bible, and in the evening on the Chauquaqua circle. The church was crowded both times.

J. F. Lawrence is said to have given the saloon-keepers some excellent advice, Monday evening, at the pleasant little gathering in Beethoven hall. In the course of his speech he told them that they must obey the law hereafter, and it would save much opposition to them. If they didn't, the citizens would have to turn in and make them obey it. That's business.

Andrew J. Sutherland, of Ann Arbor, has secured in Grand Rapids the incorporation of a company to push his fire ladder and truck. The articles were filed Feb. 21. A. O. Crozier is secretary and treasurer. A Grand Rapids paper says that the enterprise is a valuable acquisition to Grand Rapids. Within 90 days, it says, the company will begin the erection of a factory, 40x80 feet.

The Northwestern Tribune, of Mt. Pleasant, has a column extra dated Feb. 17, given up wholly to discussing the character of the Unitarian minister in Kalamazoo. Rev. Chas. E. Ellis. It contains a letter from Rev. J. T. Sunlerland, of Ann Arbor, denouncing Mr. Ellis as being utterly unworthy of a Christian minister. It contains a sermon by Ellis delivered in Mt. Pleasant which is indecent. Charges were preferred against Ellis in his Kalamazoo church, but he is shrewd and secured a vindication. He had formerly preached in Mt. Pleasant, and that is why the Mt. Pleasant paper knows him.

Charles L. Alien, of Milan, Ind., brought suit against Wila P. and Berj. W. Lainkin, in the circuit court. He claims that he holds certain lands in York township under a ten-year lease from the Messrs. Lamkin, and that he erected a building upon the land, suitable for blacksmith shop, etc., which he rented to other parties. He avers that the defendants have constructed a building which stands partly on the land which he leased, and that they rented this building as a blacksmith shop, etc., in competition with the shop he had erected, which it injuriously effects the value of his lease and the building he has erected.

Minnie Madden melts into an embrace and hangs on to a kiss in a way that sets one to wondering why people ever talk about the Abbott kiss when something so much more scientific is illustrated by Miss Madden. Abbott's kiss is a mere noisy splutter that might be heard a block off. It arrests attention with its effusion and demonstrativeness, but it is nevertheless flat, stale and empty, and the marvel is that as a progressive woman, Abbott hasn't got on to something different. Her oscillatory fireworks sink into insignificance compared with the linked and long drawn-out sweetness of Minnie Madden's kiss—a kiss that merges a man's very soul into a single caress.—Omaha Wt. Id.

At the opera house last evening, 49 Ann Arbor people were on the stage in a glorious array of tinsel and fine costumes and bright scenery, all assisted by the calcium light from the gallery. It was in the presentation of the operetta, The Naïd Queen, which runs tonight and for the remainder of the week. Mrs. R. H. Kempf was the queen, Mrs. L. M. Stevens was Asticea, the Goddess of Justice—Miss Alice Cramer, dementia, Goddess of Mercy; Miss Eva Herbert, Evaneline a child of Poverty; and Miss Hattie Swift, Augusts, a daughter of Wealth. S. A. Green, C. E. Colver, J. H. Maynard, and others take part. And then there are young misses of all ages down to the little fairies that can hardly walk.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Dr. Arndt lectured in Lansing yesterday.

Col. E. Bowen, of Ypsilanti, was in the city Friday.

John Spard, of Manchester, visited Ann Arbor yesterday.

Misses Jennie and Susie Herey, of Ann Arbor, visited Brighton last week.

President C. K. Adams, of Cornell, has been in the city during the past week.

Mrs. Carrie Hoyt, of Hartford, Conn., visited Mr. A. E. Gregg and family last week.

Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Kyer were pleasantly surprised Monday evening by about 20 friends.

Dr. J. C. Wood was in Lansing yesterday attending a meeting of the Homoeopathic physicians.

Thomas Ashton, formerly of Ann Arbor, now in business in D-ubuque, Iowa, was in Ann Arbor Monday.

Mrs. John Burg, list Saturday evening, gave a party to 45 of the companions of her son John, whose death will be remembered.

In a recent number of The Interior, of Chicago, George Newell Lovejoy, of Ann Arbor, has an excellent article on "Genius and Labor."

Wm. J. Klire, editor of the Democrat in Amsterdam, N. Y., was in the city recently, and E. B. Abels looked out for his entertainment.

Bronson Howard and his wife left for their home in New York Tuesday. Their stay in Ann Arbor has been a great pleasure to many of our citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bycraft, of Albridge, Eng., arrived in Ann Arbor, Sunday from England, and are stopping with their nephew, E. H. Bycraft, N. Main-st.

Mrs. Adria Archer, of the office of the bureau of labor statistics in Lansing, and formerly in the literary department of the U. of M., spent Sunday with Mrs. Hill of State st.

The Frankfort (Kansas) Bee, of Feb. 24, contains a long and highly complimentary notice of James S. Warden who graduated in the literary department of the University in '71. A banquet and gold-headed cane were tendered at the leading hotel of the city, and short speeches made by prominent citizens. Mr. Warden has done a great deal for the prosperity and growth of his town, and his services seem to be well appreciated. He goes to Kansas City to start a bank. He has a sister-in-law and several classmates in this city.

Coming Events.

Rev. W. B. Millard, of St. Clair, Mich., will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sunday.

Rev. R. C. Wylie, secretary of the National Reform association, will lecture in Crosey's hall next Sunday evening.

Dr. Rimsav will preach next Sabbath morning on Old Testament sympathy for the poor, and the following Sabbath on New Testament sympathy for the poor.

All peach growers of Washtenaw should attend the meeting of the county pomological society in Ann Arbor next Saturday at 2 p. m. An expert in peach yellows will be there to talk.

The Helpers Band of the Presbyterian church will give an entertainment, Mar. 9, at 7:30 o'clock, in the parlors of the church. The program will consist of music, tableaux, readings, and short recitations.

At Unity Club, next Monday evening, Capt. L. L. Janes will give a talk on Japan. Capt. Janes was there in charge of government school, and a few of his pupils now in this city will give a reception that evening in their native costume, and will render their native songs, give recitations, etc.

The next Chamber concert will be given tomorrow evening in the law lecture room. The program will be a superior one. C. V. Slocum, tenor, of Detroit, will take part. There will be four or five songs lighter and more pleasing to the lined leader in the music than are usually given in the concerts, besides popular instrumental compositions of Beethoven, Rubinstein, Brahms, Mendelssohn, Haydn, and Viexiamps.

The members of Welch Post, G. A. R., of Ann Arbor, desire to express to their friends their hearty thanks for the generous assistance so cheerfully rendered, by which they have been enabled to furnish and render attractive their new hall, on the S. E. corner of Main and Washing streets, third floor. Their friends may see for themselves what has been done and how comfortably the Post is now lodged. Welch Post will have open doors and an informal reception at the above-named place, over Joe. T. Jacobs & Co.'s store, on Friday, March 2, from 7 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p. m., at which time every one, ladies and gentlemen, will be cordially welcome.

A Young OMVnd.r.

Wesley J. Hamilton, a young man 22 years old, hailing from Canada, has been working for Calvin Austin, a substantial farmer of Salem township, since Jan. 1. He is not bad looking, is well dressed, and evidently has had some education. On Tuesday he came hard-cubed before Justice Pond and plead, guilty of stealing a watch from F. E. J. Barton, also of Salem. He was arrested in Ann Arbor on Monday. Several other petty thefts which he has committed have since come to light. He pleaded hard that his parents in Canada should not hear of his disgrace, and rather than send home for money with which to make a defense, he pleaded guilty, and was sent to the Ionia house of correction for 90 days. He has been in Detroit and O.K. and county has been locked up, and he is evidently a crook, a youthful one; yet tears stood in his eyes as he was sentenced. The tears which were genuine, and his desire to keep his people in ignorance of his disgrace, show that he is not wholly bad; but will the Ionia house of correction improve him any?

J How a Play Is Jnlip.

THE REGISTER has not space in which to tell how a play is made; but Bronson Howard told all about it Monday evening, in his delightful lecture given in the Ladies' library building. His stay in Ann Arbor of a few months ended on Tuesday and this lecture was given at the earnest solicitation of a few friends. It is to be regretted that only a few persons heard it. No professional lecturer this season has given anything in Ann Arbor fuller of delicate humor and of instruction. His lecture is entitled "Autobiography of a play," and was delivered in 1886 in Harvard. It deals with the story of his best known play, "The Banker's Daughter," and how the various changes were made in it to obedience to laws of dramatic construction. It is his original form, as presented in 1873 in Chicago, it differs very materially from the shape in which it now is presented. Then it had to be adapted to the English stage, which necessitated further and very radical changes. Those who heard the lecture know considerable of the practical work of the playwright. Mr. Howard undoubtedly originated the main plot, and he gave the play its principal literary features, but the details were the subject of anxious and long consultation between author, literary tact, and manager; whether the heroine should live or die, and which of the two men who loved her should be killed of as well as a number of minor items, were matters of cold blooded calculation between these three individuals. In theatrical form, the heroine dies in the act, but in its present form, she lives and comes to love her husband, while her former lover, Harold, is killed in the last two acts are changed almost entirely, and the quarrel scene is omitted from the first act. The changes were made in strict compliance with what are understood to be the laws of dramatic construction. In revealing the tricks of his trade, Mr. Howard afforded great amusement to his audience, and gave them a valuable insight into dramatic work.

Work of the Saloon.

There is confined at the county jail a young man apparently not 20 years old, named Jacob Waedlich; and in Pittsfield township Michael Weidman has been lying for a week near the point of death. It is the result of the saloon goods turned out in Ann Arbor. Young Waedlich says that he had worked for Weidman and had lived in his house for a time. Last Thursday afternoon they met in Ann Arbor and drank together, becoming quite drunk according to Waedlich's story, and there seems to be other evidence that they had been drinking. Weidman told Waedlich, as the latter avers, that he would give him a job if he would go home with him. When nearing the house, they quarreled, and the farmer struck the boy. This is young Waedlich's version. He declares that he was so drunk that he does not remember stabbing Weidman. His statement is given for what it is worth. The important points are that they probably drank in Ann Arbor, and probably as a result Waedlich stabbed Weidman so severely that his life has been in danger. Young Waedlich is a pale-faced, not a strong specimen of manhood, and has a German accent. He is dressed poorly, and has one hand done up in rags. He has made a bad beginning in life, but part of the money he spent for liquor will go into the city treasury, and that's something.

Interesting Social Event.

No other recent event at Chelsea has created quite so much interest in society as the marriage, on the evening of Feb. 23, 1888 by Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D., of Mr. Lortnz3 Sawyer, residing a mile and a half north of that village, and Mrs. Hullah A. Skinner, of Ann Arbor. Lorenzo Sawyer is a brother of Hon. A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor, and Mrs. Skinner, now Mrs. Lorenzo Sawyer, is the mother of Mrs. A. J. Sawyer. The confusion of relationships created by this happy union, is very peculiar; and by way of helping out those who get tangled in the maze, they are given in detail.

Lorenzo Sawyer becomes father-in-law to his brother, step-father to his sister-in-law, and grandfather to his nephews.

Mrs. Lorenzo Sawyer becomes sister-in-law to her daughter, also to her son-in-law, and aunt to her grand children. A. J. Sawyer becomes son-in-law to his brother, and brother-in-law to his mother-in-law.

Mrs. A. J. Sawyer becomes sister-in-law to her mother, and step-daughter to her brother-in-law.

The sons of A. J. Sawyer become nephews of their grandmother and grandsons of their uncle. Somewhat mixed, but all right according to the Mosaic law.

An Evening with Beethoven.

At Unity Club, Tuesday evening, under the direction of Orin B. Cady, assisted by Ida Belle Winchell, Julia L. Carruthers, Currie I. Ball, Marian Smith, C. B. Cady, Wm. Luderer, of Detroit, and Harold B. Wilson, the noblest of all music was presented in a fitting style.

Adelaide, Beethoven's most famous song, was sung by Miss Winchell in an old-air, sweet voice. The great sonata, Op. 31, No. 2, composed as a musical interpretation of Shakespeare's Tempest, was rendered by Miss Carruthers, in a way that might have pleased the great master himself. Five songs composed in vollied ryle, to words by various German poets, were sung by Miss Ball with spirit and grace. A novel feature, and one which added much to the pleasure of the evening, was the explanatory remarks introducing these and other selections. O. B. Cady also gave a brief account of the composer's life, and in such a happy way that all would gladly have listened longer. "There is very little of the personal element in his music," and "to my mind, he is the only universal genius in music," were characteristic glowing remarks.

Card of Thanks.

To the many friends who gave us such prompt and loving evidence of sympathy in the time of our need and affliction, we desire to offer our heartfelt thanks. We realize that some one must have been very active, else the notice of our brother Stephen Fairchild's death could not have had the general circulation that it did within the short time given, and the perfect arrangements have been made, that were so well carried out. We would like to thank each friend personally, but as this cannot be done we hope each will accept our public acknowledgment in this form. We trust that we may be allowed to make special mention of our appreciation of the sweet music rendered by the organist and choir.
