SENATE.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The Senate met at 11:30 yesterday morning, and after prayer by the Chaplain proceeded to the hall of the House of Representatives to attend the funeral of Chief-Justice Waite.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—In the Senate yesterday bills were passed providing additional regulations for homestead and pre-emption entries of public lands; appropriating $250,000 for a public building at Sioux City, Ia.; to extend the southern and western boundaries of Kansas; in aid of the Centennial and Memorial Association of Valley Forge and to secure the Washington headquarters mansion and grounds occupied by the Continental army of 1777-8; appropriating $20,000 for the completion of the monument to Mary, the mother of Washington, at Fredericksburg, Va. Bills were introduced for a public building at Lansing, Mich. ($100,000); to establish courts for the Indians, and to extend the protection of the laws of the States and Territories over all Indians; authorizing and directing the President to make a proclamation prohibiting the importations from any nation which practices discrimination against America.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Bills were passed in the Senate Saturday appropriating $50,000 for the establishment and maintenance of an Indian industrial school in Michigan; appropriating $200,000 for a public building at Bsy City, Mich.; for a celebration at the National Capital in the spring of 188 in honor of the centennial of the constitution of the United States. The total number of bills passed was 184. A large majority of them were pension cases, one of them being for increase of pension for the widow of a soldier of the war of 1812. A bill was introduced for the issue of specie certificates redeemable half in gold coin and half in silver bullion.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—In the Senate yesterday the House bill for the purchase of United States bonds by the Secretary of the Treasury was further considered, and the bill (which has passed the House) to give a pension of $2,000 to the widow of General John A. Logan was passed.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The Bond-Purchase bill was further discussed in the Senate yesterday; and a substitute was agreed to for the whole bill which provides that the Secretary of the Treasury way at any time apply the surplus money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, or so much thereof as he may consider proper, for the purchase or redemption of United States bonds; provided that the bonds so purchased shall constitute no part of the sinking fund, but shall be canceled.

THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—At 11:30 yesterday the Speaker called the House to order, and prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Cuthbert. The arrival of the Senate was announced, and business was suspended, and the House officers carried on a bier containing the remains of Chief-Justice Waite and placed it on the space in front of the Clerk's desk. The burial service of the Episcopal church was read by Bishop Paret. At the conclusion of the services the casket was borne from the chamber and the ceremonies were closed. The House then adjourned.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—In the House yesterday a bill was reported to prohibit aliens from acquiring title to or owning lands within the United States. The Indian Appropriation bill was considered.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—In the House yesterday the House bill granting a pension of $1000 per annum to Mary G. Logan, and the Senate bill increasing to $2,000 a year the pension of Appollina Blair was passed. At the evening session twenty-four pension bills were passed.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The bill to establish a land court was discussed in the House Saturday without action, and the River and Harbor bill was referred. The Union Pacific Railroad Funding bill was further considered.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Mills Tariff bill was presented in the House yesterday, and Mr. McKinley submitted the minority report, which denounces the refusal of the majority to receive and consider the views of manufacturers and others affected by the reductions, and charges the Democratic majority with favoritism toward the South—that it lowers the tariff on but two articles of Southern production—sugar and rice—while heavy reductions are made on every thing produced in the North and Northwest. Consideration of the bill will commence on the 17th Inst. Bills were introduced for public buildings at Kezia and Middletown, U.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—In the House yesterday the Direct-Tax bill was considered, and bills were passed for the retirement of Alfred Pleasanton with the rank of Colonel, and for the promotion of officers of the army after twenty years of continuous service in one grade.

OTHBR NOTES.

WASHINGTON, Haroh 30.—Commissioner Bookslager, of the General Land Office, has sustained the findings of the register and receiver of the land office at Humboldt, Oal. In the cases of forty-one timber tracts in that district covering 6,500 acres of redwood timber land, in which fraud is charged, and has ordered that the tracts be canceled. The land is worth $2,000,000.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The new Chinese treaty, made public yesterday, prohibits for twenty years the coming of Chinese laborers to this country. It also agrees to pay Jo the Chi. we government the sum of $276,679 for loss of property in the West by Chinamen in riots.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The President feent a message to the Civil-Servloe Commission yesterday recommending that the limits of the classified service be extended. Be also signed the Urgent Deficiency bill.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Public-Land-Committee of the House has decided to re-ort bills for setting about 40,000 acres Of the Northern and Southern Pacific rail-rod land grants and the Ontonagon grant.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The Hennepin canal enterprise was smashed in the House Committee on Railways and Canals Monday morning, the committee voting 6 to 4 against the measure, which will therefore never see daylight again.

A Lawyer Murdered.

STEVENS POINT, Wis., April 4.—W. W. Haxeltine, a prominent young lawyer of this city, was shot dead yesterday morning by John D. Curran. An old grudge caused the deed.

SO I-IIMC WITH OUR FOOD.

A Phosphite Baking Powder Theory that is OoKeronalfoot Biddenona.

This is rather a dangerous proposition, put forth by the manufacturers of some of the patented or proprietary articles of food, that their products possess a superior wholesomeness because they contain a drug of some particular medicinal property. Phosphates, alum, lime, arsenic, calomel, etc., have their places as specifics for different diseases, and are invaluable medical remedies, each in its place. But they are not cure-alls.

The physician who should prescribe either calomel, or strychnine, or war-barb three times a day to man, woman and child, sick or well, because either of such drugs is a well known remedy for some certain disease, would receive but little honor from the fraternity and less praise from the community.

No one will controvert this statement; yet we find manufacturers of baking powders claiming superior hygienic virtue for their productions and urging their continuous use because they are alleged to carry the phosphate used in making them (a cheap substitute for cream of tartar, procured from the bones of dead animals) into the food, although well aware, as they must be, of the fact that with the constant use of such article this drug must pass into our systems daily, no matter what may be our physical conditions or requirements, or whether or not we may be suffering from some ailment wherein the use of such drug would be positively detrimental.

The fallacy of this claim of the manufacturers of phosphatic baking powders will be apparent to all when the fact, well known to physicians, is stated, that in average health and with ordinary food the body gets more phosphates than are required or can be assimilated, as is evidenced by the fact that they are constantly being expelled in the excretions, both solid and liquid; likewise the statement that it is necessary to add phosphates to the baking powder to restore to the flour those which have been lost in the milling, for it is true that fine flour as at present made actually contains a larger percentage of phosphates than the grain of wheat itself.

The object of baking powders is not to provide the body with a medicine, but simply to vesiculate or make light the mixture of flour, so as to render it when baked easy of mastication and perfectly digestible. The most celebrated experts in the business have worked for the perfection of an article that should do this mechanically, adding to or taking from the flour nothing in any way effecting a change in its properties or constituents. When this has been done the perfect leavening agent has been discovered. The manufacturers of the Royal Baking Powder have succeeded in this so far as to make a leavening agent and vesiculate and raises the loaf most perfectly, and without changing the properties of the flour, while the residuum from it has been reduced to a minimum. The acid employed, however, to produce this result is not phosphatic, but the acid of highly refined cream of tartar, which, the health authorities agree, renders that powder perfectly pure and more reliable and healthful than any other. The recent official tests show, on the other hand, that the best phosphatic baking powder makers can do is to produce an article that is one-third or more residuum or impurity.

We want our food pure; especially do we not wish to take alum, lime and phosphates with it at the dictum of manufacturers who may find it cheaper to claim a virtue for the impurities than to remove them.

THE POLITICAL GKIST.

What the Mills of the Wire-Pullers Are Turning Out.

Numerous Calls for State Convention.—The New York Legislature Sit Down on Woman Suffrage—Other Notes.

AMONG THE POLITICIANS.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 29.—The bill concerning municipal suffrage on women on final passage in the Senate was yesterday killed by a vote of 15 to 15. The bill re-opening the Saturday half-holiday law and providing for Saturday half holidays during June, July and August passed the Senate by a vote of 22 to 7.

BOSTON, March 29.—The License Suffrage bill, permitting women to vote on license, which passed the House, was killed in the Senate Wednesday afternoon by a vote of 14 to 13, with six pairs. The President of the senate did not vote on the question.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 30.—On a strict party vote the Republicans of the New York Assembly passed the High-License bill, which now goes to the Senate.

HAETFOED, Conn., March 30.—The Prohibitionists will meet in convention in this city August 1 to nominate a State ticket. PORTLAND, Ore., March 30.—The Prohibition State convention in this city yesterday nominated Prot. G. M. Miller for Congressman.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 30.—The Republican will meet in this city May 14 to elect delegates to the National convention. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 31.—Governor Oglesby has ordered an election for June 4 in the Thirteenth Illinois Judicial circuit to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Eustace.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 31.—On a strict party vote the Republicans of the Assembly have passed the High License bill.

PETERSBURG, Va., March 31.—The Republican convention to elect National delegates will be held in this city May 17.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—President Cleveland is positively reported to have expressed a desire to have Governor Gray, of Indiana, on the ticket with him.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 31.—Governor Jackson has pardoned seven Democratic election officers who were sentenced June 27, 1887, to two years imprisonment for election frauds.

DTEOTT, Mich., April 3.—The result of the spring elections in this State Monday are, if any thing, favorable to the Republicans, although there is little significance attached to them as a whole. The local-option towns elected some Republican tickets where the Democrats have heretofore been successful. In the larger places the Democratic majorities were cut down. S. M. Weston was elected mayor of Grand Rapids. There was no election in Detroit.

CINCINNATI, April 3.—The municipal elections here Monday were unprecedentedly quiet. It was a beautiful spring day, and yet the vote cast was only about 38,000. The Republican city candidate was elected by an average majority of about 5,000 each. The entire board of thirty aldermen, for the first time in its history, is Republican, and gains have been made in Board of Councilmen and Board of Education.

DITBQUE, Ia., April 3.—The city election Monday resulted in a victory for the Union ticket by majorities ranging from 250 to 350. The Knights of Labor, who put up a straight ticket, were completely routed. Considerable scratching was done.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 4.—The election in this city was the quietest known for years. Captain Many was re-elected trustee on the Republican ticket by about 1,000 majority. The Union Labor vote was not prominent and the Prohibitionists made no showing at all. Republican gains are reported from Washington, Orange, Henricks, Jefferson, Floyd, Henry, Hancock, Fayette, Parke and Johnson. Democratic advances report gains of fourteen trustees.

OSKALOOSA, Kan., April 3.—A city ticket composed of women for the council and a woman for mayor, was elected here Monday by 66 majority. They are representative ladies, and a reform administration is looked for.

CITY OF MEXICO, April 3.—Congress convened yesterday, and President Diaz, in his message, expressed an earnest desire for friendly relations with the United States.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3.—The Prohibitionists will hold a convention in this city May 2 to nominate State officers.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 3.—The Democratic State convention will be held in this city May 15.

CHICAGO, April 4.—The Republicans swept the city yesterday and elected all their town tickets except Umbdenstock on the North side, who was beaten by Chase. In the aldermanic contests the Republicans elected nineteen aldermen and the Democrats eleven. This leaves the party representation in the new Council thirty-two Republicans, fifteen Democrats and one Socialist.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 4.—The Democratic State convention will be held in this city May 23 to nominate candidates for President's electors and State officers.

NEW YORK, April 4.—The date of the anti-saloon Republican National convention in this city has been changed from April 18 to May 2.

MILWAUKEE, April 4.—The entire Citizens' ticket was elected yesterday, complete returns received at midnight showing a majority of 931 for Thomas H. Brown, the Citizens' candidate for mayor, over H. K. Roger, the Union Labor party candidate. Besides electing the entire city ticket the Citizens' party have also secured control of the Common Council and county board.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 4.—In forty-four counties the gains of trustees are equally divided between the two parties, but the increase of the Republican vote is greater.

CINCINNATI, April 4.—The labor vote in this city aggregates 3,000, against 15,000 a year ago. The Telegram has returns from every county in the State which shows decided Republican gains. The Democratic cities of Newark, Columbus, Sandusky, Logan and Defiance are revolutionized. Tiffin, Findlay, Lancaster, Newark, Chillicothe, Pomeroy, Marietta, Hamilton and other towns show large Republican gains. The Republicans lose only one city in the State. The Republican majority in this city averages 5,000.

Floods and Fires in Hungary.

LONDON, April 3.—Several more villages in Hungary have been flooded and the inhabitants are starving. At Hethhrarus 120 houses have been burned and 700 persons rendered homeless. Two lives were lost in the flames. The villages of Mezzo-Berony and Hunsdorf have also been destroyed by fire.

A Great Fire in China.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 3.—A steamer from China bringing news of a disastrous fire at Nagasaki February 28, resulting in the total destruction of seventy-three houses and the death of three persons.

The Mine Horror.

Bic* HILL, Wia. April 2.—Twenty-four dead bodies have been taken out of the mine here in which an explosion recently occurred, and others are still in the mine.

LITTLE NEW YORK GIRLS.

A Cynical Bachelor Dinesse* the Way Their Mothers Clothe Them.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—I am quite discouraged at the present styles of female dress. And it is not alone the grown women who are burdened and deformed by the present modes. The curse falls quite as heavily on the little girls: misses of 10 or 12 years, as if harnessed in the parks or seen in their carriages, are crushed by the weight of their social position. Their precocity in dress just now exceeds anything heretofore known. Incredible reader, the accompanying cut is neither a burlesque, an exaggeration nor a fashion plate; it presents the girls of the middle class (not the richest, by any means), exact types of thousands. Just suppose, fond mother, that your child had been born with that hump on her dorsal vertebrae—how you would have wept at the sight, how you would have hastened to Paris and London, if you had money enough, to employ the finest surgical talent to get it excised. And imagine the grown up woman with such a natural hump, like Nott & Glyndon's "Hottentot Venus." And it is only less deformable (while it is on) because it is a removable? (Classic mythology tells us of a perverse artist who always molded hideous things; once he combined all the elements of ugliness in the animal kingdom into a monster statue of horror, when Apollo, to punish his bad taste, endowed the creature with life and made it the artist's companion. Is there not some such punishment in store for those females who so horribly distort themselves, and thus pervert the public taste? Oh, I could find it in my heart to pray the gods of good taste that one such woman might be made a lasting warning—That Gorgon, rising from the infernal lakes, With horrors armed and curls of hissing snakes, Blight fix her, stiffened in eternal sight, A stony image of supernal spite.

Then, when the present fashion had passed away, all women might see how hideously unnatural it was, and avoid similar sins. Unfortunately this is not to be desired rather than expected. HENRY ALLMAN.

Deafness Can't be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way of curing Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that we can not cure by taking Hall's Catarrh Cure. Sand for circular, free. P. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

A Tremendous Sensation

would have been created one hundred years ago by the sight of one of our modern express trains whizzing along at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Just think how our grandfathers would have stared at such a spectacle! It takes a good deal to astonish people now-a-days, but some of the marvelous cures of consumption, wrought by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, have created widespread amazement. Consumption is at last acknowledged curable. The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only known remedy for it. If taken at the right time—which, bear in mind, is not when the lungs are nearly gone—it will go right to the seat of the disease and accomplish its work as nothing else in the world can.

A doctor's report would properly come under the head of news of the weak.—Duluth Paragraph.

"Clive Him & Let Him Guess." We once heard a man complain of feeling badly, and wondered what ailed him. A humorous friend said, "Give a doctor $2, and let him guess." It was a cutting satire on some doctors, who don't always guess right. You need not guess what ails you when your food don't digest when your bowels and stomach are inactive, and when your head aches every day, and you are languid and easily fatigued. You are bilious, and Dr. Pierce's Plea&nt Purgative Pellets will bring you out all right. Small, sugar-coated, easy to take. Of druggists.

Newspaper* in 1888.

From the edition of Geo. P. Rowell & Co's "American Newspaper Directory," published April 2d (its twentieth year), it appears that the Newspapers and Periodicals of all kinds issued in the United States and Canada, now number 16,310, showing a gain of 890 during the last 12 months and of 7,136 in 10 years.

The publishers of the Directory assert that the impression that when the proprietor of a newspaper undertakes to state what has been his exact circulation, he does not generally tell the truth, is an erroneous one; and they conspicuously offer a reward of $100 for every instance in their book for this year, where it can be shown that the detailed report received from a publisher was untrue.

What Am I To Do?

The symptoms of Biliousness are un-happily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A Bilious man it seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquors but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events.

The digestive system is wholly out of order and Diarrhea or Constipation may be a symptom, or the two may alternate. There are often Hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower; it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.

EX-GOVERNOR PARKER.

A Long Career of Political Prominence Ended. NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The name of Joel Parker is a household word in the state of New Jersey.

He entered the state legislature from Monmouth county in 1847, and was the youngest member in the house and the only lawyer. This latter fact brought him to the front at once, and he was advanced to the leadership of the Democratic party.

He was elected governor in 1860. In 1861 he became prosecuting attorney for Monmouth county, and it was during the period of five years in which he held this office that he gained his reputation as a lawyer.

THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1888.

THE UNITARIAN for April is an interesting number. The table of contents shows, among other things, a sermon on "Thy Kingdom Come," by James Freeman Clarke; and an article by Geo. Leonard Chaney on "Men of Convictions vs. Men of Opinions." Thomas Van Ness has, in this number, the first of a series on "The Jewish People." This magazine, edited and published by Rev. J. T. Sunderland, of Ann Arbor, is indispensable to those who desire to keep up with liberal religious thought.

WORK FOR THE COMMON COUNCIL.

The new common council will have important work to do. There is the duty of appointing a city treasurer. So far as we know, there is no objection to the reappointment of Mr. Moore, and the ordinary custom demands it. He has just become used to the work, and ought to be continued. Then the question of having a police that will make the saloons fearful of violating the laws is important. The council is called Republican, and some Democrats are calculating on its failure to enforce the laws. The responsibility, they say, rests on the Republican party, and they are chuckling to themselves over the predicament in which they think it leaves the Republican party. If the laws should be enforced, then the Democratic party will be still more solid with the saloon influence, if such a thing be possible; and if the laws are not enforced, then they can point to it to the detriment of the Republicans. Well, if the common council is truly Republican, the party will have to shoulder the responsibility, we suppose; and if it fails to do its duty, it deserves to suffer. It would seem like suicidal policy for the party to act in an uncertain manner, or to act in the interests of the saloon.

There is the question of providing for the health of the city. We ought to have a medical health officer at a salary of $2,000 per year who should devote his whole time to the health interests of the city. It would be a grand stroke & > T the prosperity of the city; and unless it be done, we shall expect to continue chronicling deaths from scarlet fever and diphtheria. Typhoid fever, too, will become more destructive in Ann Arbor unless the nuisances of privy-vaults and cess-pools are abolished.

GREAT NEED, OF WOMEN.

The International council of women, which has just closed its eight days' session at Washington, is without doubt the most notable gathering of women the world has yet seen. Many countries were represented, various themes were discussed, and all were treated with an ability and dignified earnestness which must command respect.

The names of many of the speakers have been familiar to the public for many years. Some are new, but all the speakers seem to be thoroughly conversant with their chosen themes, and they speak with a simple directness that is pleasing, and, at times, convincing. One other fact is worthy of mention in this connection: a very large majority, in their nearly all of these women, are wives and mothers. They have experienced the happiness, felt the cares, and performed the duties of domestic life, and there is evidence of this broadening and deepening experience in all their thought. In the discussions of the subjects of education, philanthropy, temperance and industry, we see the woman's intuition united with a practical sagacity which suggests business.

Woman's place is doubtless at home; but it seems we are to have a new reading of the old word, and that they are now attempting the work of making a home of our nation. We should none of us gainsay the mother who in her home should take vigorous measures to secure such ends as are sought by the discussions of the subjects named above. We should admit it to be womanly work; it seems then that woman's influence is to change, not its character, but its scope. Well, we shall see! It would certainly be unreasonable to expect old-time women in new-time conditions. We have opened the doors of colleges to them, and they have entered, and it seems that the end is not yet. They may never secure the political right for which a portion of them are seeking, but it will occur to the thoughtful man that the arguments against such a course that were quite formidable a few years ago, are unavailing today.

THE county poor-house now is under the management of the new keeper, Charles McCormick, of Ypsilanti, and the board of superintendents met him there last Tuesday. Mr. McCormick may become a very able keeper, and in all that we have said concerning the county poor-house we do not wish to be understood as implying that he will not do well. Our complaint was that a tried and experienced keeper was turned out and an inexperienced keeper put in simply because one happens to be a Republican and the other a Democrat. We will stick to our logic in this. If Mr. McCormick becomes a capable keeper we will never favor kicking him out just because he is a Democrat. It doesn't make the slightest difference to the inmates of the poor-house what ticket the keeper votes.

JUDGE WALTER O. GRESHAM.

Harper's Weekly evidently has started out to give full-page pictures, and biographical articles, of the Republicans who are mentioned for the presidency. Its article on Senator Allison, of Iowa, was appreciative. The independent Republicans represented by Harper's Weekly would support Allison. Last week Harper's presented Judge Gresham.

Of all the candidates, Judge Gresham could most easily unite all shades of thought in the Republican party. He has always acted with the Republican party, and yet has not been so actively engaged in "politics" as to make enemies. He is not an officer-seeker, having declined most flattering offers from President Grant. He accepted a judgeship from President Grant, and two cabinet positions and his present exalted position on the bench, from President Arthur. His military record is excellent. Judge Gresham is one of the ablest men this country has ever produced. Only great opportunities are needed to bring him out. He is personally very attractive. If he were placed in the White House, it would be graced as few have graced it since its first occupant.

The probability of nominating Judge Gresham is not great if the Indiana delegation gives part of its support to the light and volatile Harrison. If Indiana supports him solidly, and if the Blaine feeling subsides, Judge Gresham is most likely to be nominated. It is very desirable to have a strong Indiana man as candidate for first place.

THE MORNING TRIBUNE is the name of a new daily paper in Lansing which appeared last Monday for the first time. It was started by the 35 printers who recently walked out from the State Republican office where the state printing is done. Its appearance is bright; it is edited with ability, and on the whole it is calculated to win friends to their side of the controversy with Messrs. Thorp & Godfrey, of the Republican. The paper has an air of moderation and candor. We shall not attempt to decide as to the merits of this especial dispute. It is really only a pretext; as the real cause of the "walk-out" is Mr. Godfrey's unbearable treatment of the printers. They have been looking forward to this and saving their money for a year, expecting to make a hard fight when once they were out. Thorp & Godfrey secured some non-union printers, called "rats," from Chicago, and there seems to be no hope of a settlement of the trouble. Some of the striking printers have families and houses in Lansing, and have worked in that office 15 to 20 years. Some of them have not happened to have any abuse from the manager, but they give up good positions in obedience to the orders of the typographical union to which they belong. Some of the printers have attempted to make a political question of it, and thus force the Republican party leaders to bring pressure upon Thorp & Godfrey to yield. The Republican party has nothing to do with it, and the printers are foolish who make any such claim. The contract was let to the lowest bidder, and a Democrat can get the work as well as a Republican.

IT IS interesting to note how the great daily journals treat Powderly, Arthur, and other leaders of organized labor. For a long time Arthur was the pet of all the daily newspapers. Even the New York Evening Post and its elegant and aristocratic weekly, The Nation, condescended to mention him with slight praise. He was the true friend of labor, the wise man who knew what was best for the hand-laborer. But just as soon as the locomotive engineers started a great strike and Arthur assisted them, then the flood-gates of their abuse were opened on him. Powderly, too, is alternately abused and praised in a foolish way. His recent letter against strikes raises him in the estimation of the city press. The papers make more of it than it deserves. Powderly, and other knights of labor, be clearly enough the evils of strikes, and the order has not strikes for its main end. Like revolutions, however, strikes are sometimes necessary. It is probably true, as the New York Labor commissioner says, that strikes have been useful in keeping wages up and in forcing discussion of the labor question. The trouble with The Nation and other city papers is that they want each laboring man to bid against every other laboring man for work and to treat singly for work. Anything in the shape of labor organization annoys them, although organization of capitalists does not seem to jar upon them. Their political economy places the individual laborer at the mercy of the blacklist. Organization on both sides is a good thing.

THE city election in Lansing developed some interesting features. The Republicans came out squarely for the enforcement of the prohibitory law against the saloons which will go into operation next month. They nominated a man who is noted for his "back-bone" and enmity to the saloon, and he accepted on condition that they would accept his platform of driving out the saloon nuisance. The Democrats put up a man for mayor who is personally unobjectionable, but whose probable course in regard to the saloon was not well known. The Prohibitionists withdrew their ticket in favor of the Republican ticket, and did all they could to elect it. The Democrats won in spite of this clear issue. Some of the temperance Democrats would not bolt their ticket, and the printers' strike there hurt the Republicans. However, the Republicans and Prohibitionists acted in a very sensible manner. It was the manly thing to do, and they will win by it in the end. The city has given a majority for banishing the saloon two times, and this Democratic victory may be considered a sort of reaction. But if the Democratic administration there during the coming year fails to do its duty in regard to the saloons, then another Republican-Prohibition combination on the square issue will be sure to win, and good local government will be advanced.

Stephen Yates has resigned his position as superintendent of the Detroit and Saline plank and gravel road com-pany, and John Foster, of Dearborn, will succeed him. Mr. Yates has been connected with the road 33 years.

In Clinton township, Lenawee county, Francis C. Rector was the Republican candidate for supervisor; and his wife, Frances D. Rector, was the Democratic candidate for school inspector. Francis is school inspector, but Francis is not supervisor.

The German Lutherans of Ypsilanti want to build a parsonage worth $1,000 for Rev. M. Kionka, their pastor, and have a building committee consisting of Chas. Rinehart, L. S. Esslinger, George Riche, George Otto, and L. C. Foerster.

The congregation consists mostly of poor working people, who cannot bear the expense of this undertaking alone, so a committee has been appointed which will soon ask assistance. Chas. Rinehart is treasurer of the committee.

The Rawsonville correspondent of the Ypsilanti Commercial says: "Albert Bucklin, of Delhi, but formerly of this place, the young man who lost a limb by the cars in Ann Arbor last year, was on his way last Saturday to visit his mother who lives here, but after going through the painful experience of last year he could not resist the attractions of one of Ypsilanti's saloons, and the consequence was he spent all his money, and in order to ride down here he stole a horse and buggy that was hitched in the street; but pursuers were on the track, and he was easily caught. His widowed mother paid the fine."

Willmore Lake.

John Higgins, our veteran shoe-maker, has applied for admission to the Soldiers' home. He was unable to secure a shop here.—The boating season has commenced.—Frank Barker sold a $200 farm horse to a Toledo man, and drove it to that place Tuesday and Wednesday.—On account of the condition of the roads, the social that was to be held at the residence of G. M. Field, in Green Oak, last Friday evening, was postponed.—A valuable set of charts for assistance in the study of the human body has been purchased by the school board at the cost of $35. Dr. Elias Smith has offered gratuitously to explain the structure of the human body from these charts.—The result of Northfield's meeting, Monday, was the election of the Democratic nominees for all offices excepting that of super-visor which will be filled by Frank Duncan of the Citizen's ticket. A great deal of surprise is manifested at the defeat of Mr. Purtell, who had been elected by large majorities for nine years in suc-cession.

Vigilance Association.

The Farmers' Vigilance Association of Superior, Ann Arbor, and Salem town-ships was organized May 27, 1884, and for nearly the same reason that led to the formation of the Washtenaw Mutual fire insurance company. Whenever a farmer lost a house by fire, or when his barn was raided by a horse-thief who covered his trail successfully, sympathy would lead to the circulation of a subscription paper to make good the loss as much as possible. The farmers began to think it was an expensive way of paying for such losses. The mutual insurance companies are largely the result of this fact; and cer-tainly it lead to the organization of the vigilance association, which is merely a society whose members pledge themselves to do all they can to protect the property of each other from thieves; to hasten to capture any thief that might prey upon them; to return the stolen property; and when the property cannot be recaptured to pay to the owner two-thirds of its value. It is a sort of mutual protection and insurance society of the simplest kind. As the society now numbers 40 farmers who are all well acquainted with each other's horses and other light property, it is a rather formidable obstacle to the horse-thief.

Since its organization, the members have not had a chance to test their powers in pursuing a horse-thief, for they have been let alone by that night prowler. The history of the association has, therefore, been rather uneventful; but, undoubtedly, it has had a deterring influence upon horse thieves.

The following gentlemen organized this vigilance association: Ira Crippen, Wm. Geer, P. P. Galpin, John G. Rooke, O. Lathrop, and A. H. Collens, of Superior; Fred. Braun and E. Popkins, of Ann Arbor township; and T. Walker and H. Forshee, of Salem. The society will hold a meeting at Dixboro, April 6.

The New Board of Supervisors.

The board of supervisors elected last Monday has two more Republicans than its predecessor. The Republicans now have ten members and last year but eight. The Republicans made a gain in North field township of one supervisor; lost one in Ypsilanti city, first district; and gained one in Superior. Salem township, which was represented by a Greenbacker last year, now has a straight Republican su-pervisor. The following is the list:

Ann Arbor city, 1st dist.—A. R. Gardner, R. Patrick O'Hearn, D. N. Q. Butts, D.

Ann Arbor town.—Fred. B. Braun, R. Augustus—William Dausburg, R. Bridgewater.—James M. Kress, D. Dexter.—Chas. Dwyer, D. Freedom.—Jacob Brezming, D. Lima.—J. V. N. Gregory, D. Lodi.—George Mann, D. Lyndon.—Thomas Young, Jr., D. Manchester.—Horatio Birch, D. Northfield.—Frank Duncan, R. Pittsfield.—Morton F. Case, R. Salem.—P. Thompson, R. Saline.—Edward Deque, D. Solo.—A. T. Hughes, D. Sharon.—B. Osborn, D. Superior.—Ira Crippen, R. Sylvan.—J. L. Gilbert, R. Webster—Edwin Ball, R. York.—Alfred Davenport, D. Ypsilanti town.—Albert R. Graves, R. Ypsilanti city, 1st dist.—Phlander Stevens, D. 2d dist.—Stephen Hutchinson, D.

The Stair opera company presented La Mascot Monday evening to a good audi-ence. Frank Deshan and Osborn kept the auditoee in a roar. Tuesday evening they were equally successful with Erminie under another name.

Beware of Scrofula

Scrofula is probably more general than any other disease. It is insidious in character, and manifests itself in running sores, pustular eruptions, boils, swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, sore eyes, etc. Hood's Sarsaparilla expels all trace of scrofula from the blood, leaving it pure, enriched, and healthy.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles Hood's Sarsaparilla, and am cured." C. E. LOYEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

C. A. Arnold, Arnold, Me., had scrofulous sores for seven years, spring and fall. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured him.

Salt Rheum

Is one of the most disagreeable diseases caused by impure blood. It is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier.

William Spies, Elyria, O., suffered greatly from erysipelas and salt rheum, caused by handling tobacco. At times his hands would crack open and bleed. He tried various pre-parations without aid; finally took Hood's Sar-saparilla, and now says: "I am entirely well."

"My son had salt rheum on his hands and on the calves of his legs. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. Stanton, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Mrs. Peter Burke, a widow, was shot and instantly killed on Tuesday at Norway, Mich., by Patrick Wade, because she refused to marry him. The Comptroller of the Currency has authorized the National Exchange Bank of Kansas City, Mo., to begin business, with a capital of $250,000. The strike in the Michigan State Printing Office at Lansing has been settled by the discharge of the strikers and the importation of non-union men.

David Jennings, of Lyons, N. Y., having spent twenty-one years and $5000 in experiments, claims to have discovered a means of perpetual motion. John T. Stone, manager at Philadelphia of a branch of the Pennsylvania School Supply Company, was arrested on Tuesday, charged with embezzling $50,000. Simeon P. Cooper has been sentenced in Madison, Ind., to ninety-nine years imprisonment for the murder of Gustave Stewart in Florence, Ind., in November, 1884.

Eight hundred Cincinnati (O.) house painters struck Monday for thirty cents an hour, an advance of five cents, and nine hours instead of ten for a day's work. J. M. Chaplin, the bigamist, under sentence at Findlay, O., to a term in the penitentiary for marrying eleven women, attempted to commit suicide Sunday, but failed. David N. White, ex-editor of the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Gazette, and the founder of the Republican party, died at his home in Sewickley, near that city, on Saturday, aged 83 years.

Prof. E. A. Paul, principal of the District high school, was run over at Washington Saturday night by a horse in charge of Senator Onslow's coachman, and died Monday morning. The jury in the Welch-Vilas libel suit at Minneapolis disagreed Monday after being out forty hours. Welch, the defendant, is jubilant, and looks for an acquittal as the result of the next trial. George Dennison, boss carpenter of the Western steel works at South St. Louis, Mo., was shot and killed Monday night by John Conners, a workman whom he had discharged for incompetency.

A Deserted Town. SARATOGA, Kan., April 4.—This place has at last succumbed to the pressure of the county seat fight and is barely a memory of a town now. A year ago it contained 2,500 population, now not 150. Of the fifty-one business houses all have been moved away except four brick buildings that can not be moved at a profit. The remaining citizens are wrecked commercially, bankrupted in business and credit, each one endeavoring to embrace the first opportunity to desert the rapidly thinning ranks. A Priest Robbed. MARLBOROUGH, Mass., April 4.—Burglars entered the residence of Father McKenna, a parish priest, and robbed his safe of over $1,000 of money taken in the Easter collection the day before, besides a gold watch and chain.

Carpenters Strike. BURLINGAME, O., April 4.—The carpenters of the city have demanded nine hours' work and ten hours' pay. The planing mills are stopped and building is at a standstill.

THE OLD SETTLER.

A Characteristic Letter by Ed Mott from Pennsylvania's Wilds. [Special Correspondence.] HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—"Iz I kin by your plantation this mornin', major," remarked the Squire as the Old Settler came in the tavern, looking solemn and despondent. THE OLD SETTLER.

A Characteristic Letter by Ed Mott from Pennsylvania's Wilds. [Special Correspondence.] HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 16.—"Iz I kin by your plantation this mornin', major," remarked the Squire as the Old Settler came in the tavern, looking solemn and despondent. "I think I noticed that you'n the ov woman had a leetle company, didn't you?"

The Old Settler took off his hat and mopped his head with his red bandana. Without any apparent reference to the Squire's inquiry, he finally said: "It strikes me poety squar' atwixt the eyes," said he, "th't thuz some folks wanderin' derin' thuz v'ale ov' tears ez gits more th'n their sheer ov' tribulation an' vexation ov' sperrit. Yes, dum sight more th'n was ever 'clated in the beginnin' th't thuz was to be cut'n fitted for. I tell ye 'tain't no fair shake. Wen I see some folks—an' not count 'count folks, nuther, some on 'em hain't—a swimmin' 'long, b'gosh, day in an' day out, a missin' ev'ry snag th' t'sticken up in the current, an' a keepin' 'way out ov' the suck an' back swirl ov' ev'ry d'ot rotted treach'rous eddy, an' a floatin' 'like a bobber on a fish line over the places whar th' hain't no end ov' dum risky bars, an' a slippin' slick an' safe through shallers whar the rocks can't hardly hide their slimy of heads; w'en I see sech folks—a swimmin' 'long like that, an' then see a passel ov' the bes' kin ov' fellers—fellers, b'gosh, ez never de cae nothin' to nobody ez wa'n't 'cordin' to the law an' the prophits—w'en I see them fellers a gittin' carried agin ev'ry snag th' is in the stream, an' washed just ont'er this rock an' then plumb ont'er that bar, an' swished an' swashed hither an' yon, ev'ry 'ornary flood th' comes b'lin' along, th' they'd take it ez a mercy if they could be swallowed up an' done with it, I toll ye, boys, w'en I see this I can't fetch myself to b'lieve th't things is manny-factur'd quyte on the squar', an' it makes me feel jesh ez if I wanted to lay right down an' cast gravel, an' swar' the sap out'n a side hill plow, I don't want'er go flyin' in the face ov' the good ol' orthodox doctem I was borned an' r'iz in, but I'll be gum wizzled if I hain't a tellin' ye th't jurisprudence o'sumpin' is wrong! The perphidic hain't straight, an' thuz an everlastin' screw loose some's, b'gosh, an' ye kin tell 'em I said so!"

The way in which the Old Settler whacked his cane on the floor emphasized the fact that his despondency was gone and that his dander was up. "Wat's gone wrong, major," asked the Squire. "Has somebody's chickens ben playin' bot wi' yer garden?" "Boys," continued the Old Settler, ignoring the Squire's inquiry, "I'm nigh onto seventy year ol'. If I live to see nex' Thanksgiving an' it comes on the right day ov' the month, I'll be sixty-nine. I kin rekommend the best way to live, that an' a kip or a break, an' in all that time I can't rekommend a day th't I didn't hate a yaller dog. Fer sixty year yaller dogs has ben gall and wormwood to me. An' yet, so fur ez I know, th' haint a single yaller dog never laid a straw in my way. But I was alms pison agin 'em, an' I s'pose it was borned in me, same ez the azmy. But un'erstan', boys, w'en I say yaller dogs I don't mean houn's. Some folks mowt say th't houn's is yaller, but they haint. They'm buckskin color, houn's is, an' their hides is slick an' glossy, an' their eyes is bright, an' their voice is music, an' they know more in a minute, b'gosh, th'n any consarned man th't I own a gamine yaller dog kin lam in a month ov' Sundays!"

"But talkin' o' houn's, boys, gosht'mighty! Don't it carry me back nor nothin' to the days w'en 'thuz wuth wile a livin'? Fifty year ago! Then th' was deer! Then ye K'd sen' yer dogs out on the ridges an' hear 'em sing! I kin see myself now, on some bracin' frosty mornin', standin' on theol' Burnt Chesnut run-way, clutchin' my flintlock, an' waitin' fer Muse to sen' a deer to me. Muse was a houn' ov' mine, an' the race o' houn's died out w'en he was gethered to his fathers. He had a voice ez clear ez a bugle, an' jist ez sweet, an' to hear it a swellin' up from back on the ridge was sootherin' to me th'n balm ov' Gilyud." The louder an' clearer them notes o' his'n r'iz, the nigher I know'd th't Mr. Deer was swingin' 'long to'ards me, an' the sooner of flintlock'd jine the chorus. I b'lieve th't Noar's ark wouldn't ha' hel' all the deer ez that dog sent to me in his day a generation, an' if I k'd hear his bugle break over the ridge wunst more, an' k'd Stan' agin on the Burnt Chesnut run-way with my ol' flintlock ready fer the deer w'en it kim a rearm' an' a tearin' at me through the brush, jist ez I did fifty year ago, w'y, dum it, boys, I'd be willin' to go hum the very nex' minute, bid the 'ol' woman good-by, an' turn my toes to the sun!"

"So ye see, boys, I didn't mean houn's w'en I mentioned jailer dogs. I was speakin' o' dogs the color o' dirty putkins, with long hair, an' their tails 'twixt their legs, ez if th' y was afeerd ev'ry minute th't some body was gointer tie a tin kettle to 'em. Them's the dogs I mean, an' if th' was ever any thing nex' to them th' I was tee totally down on it was sleepin' more'n two in a bed. "Wen I lef my hum in the Sugar Swamp doctin' to hoe my own row an' hew out a fortun', I w'as 10 year ol'. My poor ol' pap' prenticed me to a tanner down in Jersey. The very first night I was thar my boss sent me to sleep with three other prentices in a bed 'bout ez wide ez my ol' woman's margo' bed, an' a three-year-ol' young un kin straddle that, easy. I says to the tanner, I says: "I'll go bunk in with the calf," says I; 'or I'll go halves with the dog in his coop,' says I; 'or I'll take a piece ov' the barn floor,' says I; 'or I'll hang up with the hams in the smoke house,' says I, 'but I'm gummed,' says I, 'if I'll sleep four in a bed,' says I.

"Wall, the boss he reckoned th't I would, an' I reckoned, b'gosh, that I wouldnt; an' wile he went to git a strap to give me; my fist lesson in tannin', I cut fer the woods, whar I felt at hum, w'as wunst, an' I sleep in a hollow log ez snugg ez a bar's cub. An' I said then, an' I've stuck to it ever sence, th't things'd hef to be goin' poety dum tough with me w'en I bunked in with more'n one. An' so I've swum along through life, boys, for nigh ont'er sixty-nine year, steerin' clear o' yaller dogs, an' never havin' ben brung face to face with the d'lemmy ez to w'ich I was gointer do or sleep four in a bed, until—"

Here the Old Settler paused abruptly and rose to his feet. He got red in the face and handled his cane nervously for a moment. Then he turned to the Squire and fairly howled: "Yes, sir; b'gosh't mighty I. You did see com'ny to my house, Squire! Thuz com'ny thar! My Streeter, my wife's brother, is thar! Mag Streeter, his wife is thar! An' seven young uns o' theirs, they'm thar! An' they've brought the 'ornariest o' all 'ornary yaller dogs with 'em. An' he's thar, an' not only thar, but runnin' the hull dum plantation! An' to stow 'em all away, I've either got to sleep with my ol' woman an' two o' the young uns or take to the barn with the cow! Sit down, b'gosh, ye celebrat' gen'le to skin out my own house fer four in a bed an' a yaller dog at last! I tell ye, boys, th't this v'ale ov' tears hain't big enough to hold all the tribulations th't some folks has got to bear?"

And the Old Settler laid ten cents on the bar, and before he could stop had poured twenty-five cents' worth of consolation in his glass, his hand trembled so.

MAY GOD BLESS YOU!

A HoHu Paper-Manser's Trouble and How He Got It—It—Plain Words From the Snnnrj Soitili.

When we are in trouble we cry for help. When we are relieved we often forget to be thankful. But not always. Mr. W. W. Griffin, of Trout Creek, St. Clair Co., Ala., writes: "I had a bad attack of chills and fever. My system was full of malaria. For two years I was scarcely able to work at all. Some times my heart would palpitate for two hours at a time. My legs would get cold to the knees, and I fully expected to die. In September, 1881, I bought a bottle of Shaker Extract of Boots, or Seigel's Curative Syrup, of your agent, Mr. E. M. King, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt better, and in a short time was able to go to work. May God bless you for the good you have done."

Mr. Wm. J. MacCann, 99 Railroad-st., Boston, writes: "Six months ago I began to throw up my food after eating. I thought I was going into consumption. I soon began to have pain in the chest, stomach and sides, got little sleep and woke all tired out. I once lost five pounds in four days. I began using Shaker Extract of Boots, or Seigel's Curative Syrup, and finished the sixth bottle. I could eat three square meals a day, and go to sleep the minute I struck the bed. I am a paper hanger by trade, and now I work every day. I took the second bottle, and gained eighteen pounds. I ought to be thankful and I am."

This remedy opens all the natural passages of the body, expels the poison from the blood and enables nature to rebuild what disease has destroyed. Shaker Extract of Boots, or Seigel's Syrup, is sold by all druggists, or sent to the proprietor, A. J. White, 54 Warren street, New York.

CORNER LOTS.

BY ROBERT HOWE FLETCHER.

Tulita Anita da Lunavarita stood in the garden, picking lavender. Although the sun shone, and the waters of the bay sparkled, and the distant Coronados Islands and the hills of Mexico floated in a blue haze before her, Tulita had no eyes for the pretty picture. Her mind was occupied with weightier matters. Perhaps she was not even aware that she herself made a much prettier picture with her girlish figure relieved against the white adobe house behind her, and her shapely head poised on one side, as she critically examined, with her big dark eyes, each spray of lavender. She may even have been unaware that the young man walking on the other side of the road was evidently of this opinion, although when he made a mistake into a chuck hole full of dust, through having his eyes on her, Tulita's rusky lips puckered themselves up, and a suspicious little movement of her shoulders suggested that she was not entirely ignorant of the young man's mishap.

But, as has been said, her mind was engaged with weightier matters, and secretly vouchsafing a second glance at the retiring figure of the young man, she entered the white adobe house. Placing her fragrant load upon a table, she took up an old copy of The Fashion Guide, which she had left face downward when she went to gather lavender, and consulted it with a studious frown. Then going to a chest of drawers, she procured some odds and ends of ribbons, and, seating herself with a business like air, proceeded, with many references to the instructions, to braid the sprigs of lavender together with the ribbons.

"These useful as well as ornamental little articles," the book said, at the end of its disquisition, "are rapidly becoming indispensable in every household. In fact, we know of several young ladies who derive a comfortable income from the manufacture and sale of lavender sticks."

"I don't know," said Tulita, to herself, as she regarded her first effort disparagingly, "it seems to me that anybody would be a fool to buy that. But, there," she continued, more hopefully, "you never can tell about these Americans."

And, proceeding with the work, she soon exhausted her lavender and ribbons, and soon attained a neat little pile of lavender sticks. "Madrede Dios!" said Tulita, as she ran her chin over them and gazed at the result of her labors, "if that little mother of mine was to catch me at this, how quickly those things would go out of the window," and she laughed softly at the thought. "Although," she continued, "if she can do sewing for money, why should not I also work? At any rate, I must have one shoe, that is the truth." And thrusting her foot out, she leaned over the table to look at it. It was a dainty slipper foot with an arch and instep, but the shoe upon it was unmistakably, and hopelessly ragged. "Ah! go hide yourself," said Tulita, severely; "you make me ashamed."

Then sinking back on her chair, she rested her chin on her hand once more, and thought: "Ah, if only I could make enough to buy a pair of shoes." And after awhile a tear rolled down her cheek and fell on the lavender sticks.

But at this moment the click of the latch on the garden gate made Tulita spring to her feet. With a quick movement she swept the lavender sticks into a drawer, and when the new comer entered the room, Tulita was before the mirror singing to herself, while she braided her long hair, which had fallen as suddenly as a southern night.

"Is it thou, madre?" she said. "Yes, it is I—all that is left of me," said the lady who had entered, a woman whose still handsome face was lined by grief and trouble. "Sainted Mother, but it is warm in the sun," she continued, fanning herself with that indolent, graceful sweep of the wrist peculiar to women of the south. Then, pausing a moment, she elevated her head and said: "What is that odor in the house, like sage brush?"

"Perhaps it is this bit of lavender," said Tulita, hiding her guilty face behind her hair. "Paugh!" said her mother. "It is too strong. Throw it away."

And as she obeyed, Tulita's heart went down into her ragged boots at this unexpected disparagement of the odor of lavender. "Sage brush," indeed! It disheartened her so that the idea of attempting to "derive a comfortable income from the manufacture and sale of lavender sticks" was at once dismissed in scorn. Even the possibility of new shoes grew very faint.

But with the next morning's sun the hope and high spirits of youth returned, and when Tulita started to walk in to San Diego to make some purchases for her mother, the lavender sticks were hidden beneath her shabby little black mantle. Last night, after she had gone to bed, she had lain awake for at least an hour deciding where to offer them for sale. Senna & Squills' drug store was the favored place. It was on the principal street, and had fine large windows full of fancy goods. It would be a very simple matter to walk in and ask them to sell the sticks for her. Of course she would pay them something for their trouble. Then, too, she had heard that very morning there were an unusual number of eastern tourists in town, and she hurried her steps so as not to lose any chances.

But when Tulita came in sight of Senna & Squills' establishment her enthusiasm ebbed. She chided herself for walking so rapidly and getting heated and out of breath. What would the people in the store think of her? Slower and slower grew her pace, until, arriving in front of her destination, she stopped and looked at the display of fancy goods in the window. The comparison was not favorable to her lavender sticks.

"Perhaps, after all," thought Tulita, "the idea of anybody wanting to buy such things is absurd." Suppose Senna & Squills should laugh at her! She concluded to think about it a little more and walked on.

The further Tulita went, however, the more her courage returned, until, telling herself she was behaving ridiculously, she resolutely retraced her steps until the store was once more reached. But again she paused irresolutely before the window. Then she crossed the street to look in the window of a book store that might perhaps be better adapted to her purpose. Deciding against the book store, she returned to the drug store. Then the dreadful thought occurred to her that her movements must be attracted attention. The policeman on the corner had certainly looked at her very hard. What if he should speak to her! This idea was so appalling that Tulita hurriedly walked on down the street, without looking to the right or left. It was not until she had turned the first corner she came to that she recovered her equanimity. Then scolding herself severely for this panic, she continued on slowly around the block, until once more she found herself in front of Senna & Squills' establishment. Bracing up her treacherous courage with a great effort she walked in.

One of the clerks, observing the hesitation of a young and pretty customer, advanced toward her, and, in his suave manner, said: "What can I do for you today, miss?" "Is—a—is Mr. Senna in?" faltered Tulita. "Mr. Senna, miss!" exclaimed the young man, with a look of surprise. "Mr. Senna is daaa."

"Oh," murmured Tulita, "I am very sorry."

And, with burning cheeks, she found herself in the street once more. How far or where she walked after that Tulita was never quite sure. When her thoughts were sufficiently collected she discovered that she was in front of one of the principal hotels. She saw a news stand near the main entrance. On the impulse of the moment she stopped, and, showing her bundle of lavender sticks, she asked the proprietor to sell them for her. He was an elderly man, and while not enthusiastic over the prospects of a brisk business in lavender sticks, he was very kind to the girl and readily agreed to do all in his power to advance her little venture.

Rid of her bundle of lavender, which she had begun to hate, Tulita turned her steps homeward in high spirits. How easy it had been to arrange the matter, and what a little fool she was to have worried herself so. After all, though, it was much better that she had not left the sticks with Senna & Squills. This news stand was by far the best place, being right in the hotel, where the eastern tourists would be sure to see them. And Tulita fell to wondering whether the man would sell any that day, and how many, and how long it would be before they were all sold. And when she passed a shoe store she stopped and looked at the display in the window to see what kind of shoes she should buy—although, to be sure, the variety of shoes to be had for $3 was not great.

Meantime the newsdealer had sold all of Tulita's lavender sticks. Not that they had filled one of the public's long felt wants, for they had all been bought by one person, that person being Mr. Brown, of Philadelphia. Mr. Brown, while leaning idly against the news stand, had seen Tulita come up, and on getting a sight of her face had said to himself in surprise, "By Jove! That is the pretty girl I saw in the garden yesterday afternoon." And although he politely moved away out of hearing of the conversation, he furtively watched the pretty girl, and had no difficulty in understanding the nature of her transaction with the old newsdealer. "Hard up, of course," said Mr. Brown, sympathetically. Then as Tulita tripped away he returned to his lounging place by the news stand, and picking up one of the lavender sticks with an air of idle curiosity, asked what they were for.

"They are made of lavender," replied the dealer, "and you put them in the bureau drawer to make your clothes smell nice, at any rate that is what the young lady who left them here says. I never saw any myself before. I guess I'll sell 'em for souvenirs of southern California. They are made by a native Californian, and it will be a change on bored tourists."

"That is a good idea," said Mr. Brown calmly. "In fact I have an aunt at home who would not like horned toads, so I will take some of these. How many have you got? A dozen? Well, you can let me have the lot."

As the pleased dealer was wrapping up Mr. Brown's purchase that gentleman flipped the ash from his cigar and said, after a pause, "What do you mean by 'native Californian'?" "Is not every one born in California a native?"

"Well, yes," said the dealer, with patient forbearance for the ignorance of this tender foot, "who was so good a customer. I suppose they are. But when we say native Californian we mean the Spanish or Mexican people, who lived here when the country belonged to the grangers. Have you ever read 'Two Years Before the Mast,' by Mr. Dana? If you haven't I have got a copy here I would like to sell you. Mr. Dana was in San Diego back in the thirties. I have was not much here then except a few adobe houses in Old Town and the mission, but he gives you a pretty good idea of the native Californian. Some of them came originally from Spain, and had grants of land from the king, so big that they could ride for days as the crow flies, and not leave their ranches. They lived like lords that you read about, with a hundred or so Indians to herd their cattle, and every one that happened along was welcome to the best. Helen Hunt gives you a good idea of that in 'Kamona.' I would like to sell you this copy; it's the last I got left. You have read it? Well, as I was saying, when the Americans commenced coming in here the native Californians began losing their land. They found it necessary to have money to keep up with the procession, and the most of their ranches got pretty well plastered, so that one way or another the big grants got broke up, and so did the natives. I guess there are mighty few of them now that could pan out anything but law suits. I shouldn't wonder now if the father of that young lady once owned a million or so of acres, and can't tell. But, you bet, if he had any of it left, now that the boom has struck the town, she wouldn't be making those things," touching Mr. Brown's parcel. "Not," he added hastily, "but what they are a first class article in their way. In fact I must get her to make some more. I guess they'll take pretty well. You don't want to buy Helen Hunt's book? Mr. Dana's? Well, so long."

Tulita sat upon the door step of the white adobe house looking out upon the shining waters of the bay. The sun was sinking into the Pacific behind Point Loma and the soft air was full of a golden haze. The Coronados islands and the distant hills of Mexico were outlined in a purple silhouette against the evening sky and everything was still and peaceful—everything except Tulita's poor little heart. Her mother had not been very well for the last two or three days, and the death of her father was recent enough to cause the slightest illness to fill Tulita with alarmed foreboding. Then they were so lonely, she and her mother, with no one to care for them, and they were so poor; they were alone and they had just been crying over it together, they two, in the twilight. And now, with that vague interest which the mind after great emotion feels in trifling matters, Tulita sat on the door step and idly watched the sea gulls fluttering and squabbling over some scraps thrown from a passing steamer, and then her eyes followed a jack rabbit which leaped across the road and disappeared in the sage brush; then she saw two men come along and stop at the house next to hers. This latter incident rather aroused her curiosity, because, while sea gulls and jack rabbits were plentiful enough in that neighborhood, gentlemen were not, and these appeared to be gentlemen. Evidently, from their gestures, they were inquiring for some one; but what was her surprise when these gentlemen left the other house and coming directly to her garden gate opened it and approached her.

"Is this where Mrs. Lunavarita lives?" said the elder of the two gentlemen, as they both politely removed their hats. Restraint an impulse to take refuge in the house, Tulita replied that it was. "If it will not disturb her," continued the gentleman, "may we see her for a moment?" At this juncture the senora herself, hearing the voices, came to the door and answered by bidding them enter. "I hope that we are not intruding," continued the stranger who did the talking; "my name is Benton and this is my friend Mr. Brown."

The senora bowed in a stately way. "My friend here," continued Mr. Benton, "bought some lavender sticks at the Blank hotel this morning which we understand were made by you."

"This don't happen to be breakfast day," said Benton, "this is lunch day; but we will have it early, in fact, I was only waiting for you to come in. We dined off the last of my watch last night, you know, so as not to break that $5 piece of yours."

At this Brown's face changed, and his eyes sought Tulita's lavender sticks, which lay upon the unmade bed. "I'll tell you what it is, Tom," he said, finally, looking up at his friend comically, "you ought to break my neck."

"Why?" said Mr. Benton. "Simply because I am not to be trusted alone. I threw away $3 of that money this morning. You see," he continued more earnestly, "I never had an experience of this sort before, and I keep forgetting."

"Of course," said Benton, sympathetically. "We can't expect a leopard to change his spots in an instant." "Here," continued Brown, taking out his purse, "you take charge of the rest of this." "No, I'll be hanged if I do," replied Benton. "You forget our agreement in San Francisco after that unlucky stock deal into which I got you."

"And in which you lost fifty thousand to my five," interrupted Brown. "You forget our agreement," continued Benton, without heeding this remark, "that we were to pool our resource," and share equally gains and losses, from a two bit piece to a hundred thousand dollars." "A hundred thousand dollars," repeated Brown, meditatively.

"That is nothing," said Benton, "I have made as much as that before now."

"In stocks, yes," said Brown, "but they have no stocks here." "No," said Benton, "but they have something a hundred times better; they have a magnificent climate, and harbor, and everything to make a big city. And you mark my word, there is going to be one of the biggest booms right here that the world has ever seen. Kansas City won't be a circumstance to it. Why the climate alone?"

"Oh, come down!" interrupted Brown, irreverently. Benton laughed and said, "Seriously, Frank, if we only can manage to get hold of some kind of fortune is made, I am as sure of that as that at present we are dead broke. If that wealthy father of yours back in the respectable village of Philadelphia only knew what a glorious chance there was to make a million or so right here"—and Mr. Benton sighed.

"Well, he won't know through me," replied Brown. "If the worst comes I can always drive a team, but I won't ask him for help." "I think you are wrong, old man," said Benton. "Not on account of the money, but on general principles. However, we will make our stake just the same. And now about lunch; I am starved."

"I think I ought to be made to eat the lavender," said Brown, looking ruefully at his purchase, as he disclosed the contents of the bundle to his friend. "There, how is that for a $3 investment?"

"But what is it?" said Benton, picking up one of the lavender sticks and looking at it suspiciously. "Dynamite? Phiz'zz! For the old woman?" with an expressive reference to the region occupied by the landlady. "No, you old Anarchist," replied Brown. Then in a fine lady's voice he said: "This sweet lavender. Placed in your bureau drawer, it will give a pleasing odor to your linen. That's right," he continued in his own voice, "laugh! I was going to give you one. I shan't now."

"Did they throw a bureau in?" said Benton; "otherwise, it is not much use to us." "I see," said Brown, scornfully; "think of a man who goes to go without his breakfast buying $3 worth of a vender!"

"Don't make me laugh any more," said Benton; "it is weakening, and we can't afford it. Tell me, how did you come to buy those things?"

Whereupon Mr. Brown narrated the story of his purchase.

"Young," said Benton, at its conclusion, "and pretty."

"I did not say so," interposed Brown. "It was not necessary," replied his friend; "we must get acquainted with her."

"Why?" said Brown, in not altogether pleased surprise.

"Because she may have friends among the natives here, who have land that we can handle for them. Land, my dear boy, land, that is what we want. You don't seem to fancy the idea," continued Benton, as Brown remained silent; "but we cannot afford to be romantic just now. It is absolutely necessary to use every chance. You have made a three-dollar investment, and I don't propose to throw it away. I am superstitious in money matters, you know, and I have a fancy that this generous act of yours may bring us luck. Three dollars' worth of bread on the waters, as it were. I shall make a point of getting acquainted with your friend, and I should like to have you stand in with me. If you would rather not, why, of course."

But Mr. Brown said he would "stand in," only, be it understood, for the sole purpose of keeping Mr. Benton's business proclivities within decent bounds.

Tulita sat upon the door step of the white adobe house looking out upon the shining waters of the bay. The sun was sinking into the Pacific behind Point Loma and the soft air was full of a golden haze. The Coronados islands and the distant hills of Mexico were outlined in a purple silhouette against the evening sky and everything was still and peaceful—everything except Tulita's poor little heart. Her mother had not been very well for the last two or three days, and the death of her father was recent enough to cause the slightest illness to fill Tulita with alarmed foreboding. Then they were so lonely, she and her mother, with no one to care for them, and they were so poor; they were alone and they had just been crying over it together, they two, in the twilight. And now, with that vague interest which the mind after great emotion feels in trifling matters, Tulita sat on the door step and idly watched the sea gulls fluttering and squabbling over some scraps thrown from a passing steamer, and then her eyes followed a jack rabbit which leaped across the road and disappeared in the sage brush; then she saw two men come along and stop at the house next to hers. This latter incident rather aroused her curiosity, because, while sea gulls and jack rabbits were plentiful enough in that neighborhood, gentlemen were not, and these appeared to be gentlemen. Evidently, from their gestures, they were inquiring for some one; but what was her surprise when these gentlemen left the other house and coming directly to her garden gate opened it and approached her.

"Is this where Mrs. Lunavarita lives?" said the elder of the two gentlemen, as they both politely removed their hats. Restraint an impulse to take refuge in the house, Tulita replied that it was. "If it will not disturb her," continued the gentleman, "may we see her for a moment?" At this juncture the senora herself, hearing the voices, came to the door and answered by bidding them enter.

"I hope that we are not intruding," continued the stranger who did the talking; "my name is Benton and this is my friend Mr. Brown."

The senora bowed in a stately way. "My friend here," continued Mr. Benton, "bought some lavender sticks at the Blank hotel this morning which we understand were made by you."

"This don't happen to be breakfast day," said Benton, "this is lunch day; but we will have it early, in fact, I was only waiting for you to come in. We dined off the last of my

DEACON BURDETTE'S PHILOSOPHY.

IT WAS A COLD DAY.

Great surprise is caused by the announcement that last month a man was frozen to death near Austin, Tex. It isn't the fact of the cold weather that creates the surprise, but rather that the man should have time to freeze to death before he got shot.

THAT WAS SOLVED LONG AGO.

Mr. Taliaferro, of Atlanta, Ga., claims that he has solved the problem of perpetual motion. Ho, ho; the conceit of some men. As though he was the only man in America with a 10-year-old boy.

COMING CLOSER TO HUMANITY.

This must be the missing link. A goat in Berlin has red whiskers. Now let the scientists observe closely to see what effect he has upon the white horse, and evolution may stride ahead, not quite a century, perhaps, but as much as fifteen minutes.

FAST AND SLOW.

All the trains in the west have fast names and slow wires. Possibly this makes the telegraph seem slower than it really is. And do you know it is much harder to wait for a fast train than it is for a slow one. It is irritating to wait one's life at a station and hear an impatient freight conductor extract information from the station agent.

"How's the Cannon Ball?" "Four hours late." "How's the Flyer?" "Three hours late out of Denver."

"How's the Thunderbolt?" "Abandoned." "How's the Sleeping Crab?" "She's running on the Incandescent Thunderbolt's time today; went by without stopping, two hours ago."

RHEUMATIC LIGHTNING.

In all the great, throbbing, pulsing, growing, booming west there is one slow thing—lightning. My experience with the telegraph lines was slow, and to me, very expensive. About 4 o'clock one day, at Topeka, I confided to the Santa Fe, Colorado and Solar System Telegraph company a telegram to Chicago, one to Parsons, Kan., and one to the Coates house, sixty-six miles away, telling the landlord to have my rooms ready at 6:15. The telegram reached the Coates after I had eaten and digested my supper and had gone to bed. The other one reached Chicago some time that same night, and I don't know what became of the one to Parsons. And several other times I tried the telegraph, but only to be convinced that I could have the message delivered a few hours earlier by sticking a special delivery stamp on it and taking it along with me.

IT WAS VOLAPUK TO THE NATIVE.

"That foreman of yours is a queer fellow," said Mr. Penwiper. "Yes," replied the manufacturer, "but he is very bright and intelligent. He is a native, however; was born here in North Carolina forty-six years ago, and has never been outside of the state. Why do you speak of him?" "Why, I gave him a little volume of North Carolina sketches, written by a talented young friend of mine, in the genuine tarheel dialect, and he has just brought it back to me, saying that he can't understand a word of it." And as Silence entered the room with her finger on her lips, a long lost grammar in the bookcase could be distinctly heard, parting its speech in the middle.

AN EXTRAVAGANZA.

Publisher (on the coldest, windiest corner in all the city)—Please, sir, can't you give me a little change for a night's lodging? I haven't had anything to eat all day. Author (bursting in tears and emptying a handful of gold into the outstretched palm)—God bless you, poor man! Here, go to the best hotel in town and board there all winter. P. S.—This is not funny as it stands, but smiles of Momus! How funny it would be if it were true!—Burdetto in Brooklyn Eagle.

Clerk—What's the matter with the one you have? Countryman—The sign says: "Don't blow out the gas, an', b'gosh, I can't sleep with all that light in the room.—New York Sun."

An Ample Apology.

When a Cape Dutchman undertakes to admit that he was in the wrong, he does so thoroughly. Here is a really ample apology translated from Di Afrikaanse, a patriot Transvaal newspaper:

"The undersigned, A. C. Du Plessis, retract hereby everything I have said against the innocent Mr. G. P. Bezuidenhout, calling myself an infamous liar and striking my mouth with the exclamation: 'You mendacious mouth! why do you lie so?' I declare further that I know nothing against the character of Mr. G. P. Bezuidenhout. I call myself besides a genuine liar of the first class."

Witnesses: J. DU PLESSIS, J. C. HOLMES. —European Cor. New York Sun.

Corrigan's Mistake.

Exchange Editor—Here is an interview in a Chicago paper with Corrigan, the man who knocked down that Kansas City editor. Editor in Chief—Er? What does he say? "He says he called at the office and the editor wanted to shoot him, and he (Corrigan) acted only in self defense."

"Well! well! Corrigan had no business to infuriate an editor by calling at the office. Why didn't he send his poem by mail?"—Omaha World.

After a Cause for Reflection.

"What has given you food for such earnest reflection, my young friend?" asked the minister at the Sunday school picnic, meeting little Johnny sitting silently by the roadside.

"I was wondering," replied the penitent young scamp, "whether I had just eaten a mushroom or a toad stool."—Judge.

Total Depravity.

Young Husband—I caught my hunting dog with a piece of that cake you made yesterday.

Young Wife—I guess the new girl gave it to him.

"My gracious! I heard her say she didn't like dogs, but I didn't suppose she was such a fiend as that."—Omaha World.

It is an established fact that the finest fire department in the world is that of New York City. Their champion fire engine company can harness up and get out of the engine house inside of two and one-half seconds. BACH & ABEL.

Probably no event is so much looked forward to by the Ladies as our opening of Satins.

Many consider us the largest handlers of Satins in the State outside of Detroit, and as we have about fifty thousand yards of Satins alone, it would seem to place our display indisputably foremost, and at our prices other stores could not be expected to equal it.

THIS WEEK IS SATIN WEEK, and the grandest display Ann Arbor ever saw is on view at our special prices.

In new Spring Dress Goods, the Black and Colored Henriettas take the lead. We have on sale a full line of colors at 75 cts. At this price they are the best goods in the world.

THE CITY.

Nelson Sutherland has telephone No. 61 at his residence.

Oscar Percy; drunk; $6.09 or jail; Justice Frueauff; March 30.

Repairs have been made in the court house, and some calsoning.

Mrs. Christine Weinmann, of First-st., died of consumption, April 1, aged 51.

THE REGISTER is indebted to Geo. A. Isbell for interesting Denver, Col., papers.

The L. of M. Freshman banquet and Sup will be given at Hangsterfer's April 27.

The U. of M. Glee club returned from its trip Tuesday evening covered with glory.

Will Hatch has been employed in one dry goods store in this city for the past 24 years.

A tea is given at the Presbyterian church this evening at 6 o'clock by the ladies.

The three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Metzger died suddenly Friday of diphtheria.

Judge Grant, who was visiting in Ann Arbor, took Judge Kinne's place one day last week.

Augustus W. Fellows and Mrs. Mary A. Pate, of Ann Arbor, were married Tuesday evening.

Charles T. Briggs, of Dexter, is assisting in the register of deeds' office on the mortgage work.

Clark Bros will have an auction sale of their stock, farming implements, etc., on their farm southwest of Salem tomorrow.

Judge Kinne is in Monroe this week holding court, the Washtenaw circuit court having been adjourned on April 23.

John C. McCarthy has been appointed by Sheriff Walsh a deputy sheriff to keep order among the hackmen at the T. & A. depot.

Hereafter the ladies of Hobart Guild are to have the exclusive use of the gymnasium on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4 to 6 p. m.

Reginald Spokes, the alderman-elect of the third ward, expects to build a residence on W. Huron-st., on land he bought of Walter Hicks.

Mrs. George Roys, an only sister of George Jacobus, of Ann Arbor, died in North Newburg, Shiawassee county, recently, at the age of 69.

Judge Harriman was in Manchester last week to see William Schleede who is alleged to be insane. He refused to send the young man to Pontiac.

E. I. Johnson, of 4th-st., Mrs. Sager, of State-st., and Alanson Moore, of North Thayer-st., have all had their second shock of paralysis within a few days.

One of the doctors who attended the poisoned children in the second ward, ate of the same roots they did and received no injury. Who can explain the cause of this?

The Chequamegon furnished the music at the Knights-Templar grand ball in Jackson last Monday evening. They gave great satisfaction, and will be called there again.

John W. Sanry of Superior and W. E. E. Boyden, of Webster, have each received from the State fish commissioner 4,000 small trout to place in the public streams of the county.

O. M. Martin had 25 funerals on his hands during the month of March. It is an unusually large number, the largest number heretofore in any one month having been 18.

The Ann Arbor savings and loan association closed its first year's work March 31 with 82 members. During the fourth quarter it loaned $1,000 and received dues to the amount of $1,284.

Frank Deshon, as Gaspard the miser, in Chimes of Normandy, last evening, was a success. The Starr opera company is doing a good business this week in Ann Arbor, and deserves its success.

Mrs. Dowdigan, of S. Division-st., placed her hand-bag which contained $55, on the window of her bed-room last week. While she was at supper, some one must have raised the window and taken the hand-bag.

Thomas Burns was drunk, March 29, and slept in a shed after divesting himself of most of his clothing, for which careless disregard of his health Justice Pond yesterday gave him 10 days in the county jail.

"Corner Lots" is the title of the story which begins in this number of THE REGISTER. Read it. It is about California corner lots and their fabulous speculative values, with a pretty little love story mixed in.

The well-known owner of the Unity block, Thomas S. Sanford, was found dead in his bed last Saturday morning. He died of heart disease. He was 67 years old, and leaves no family. His remains were interred in Lodi.

The Carl Schlinamer contested will case was before Judge Harriman, Tuesday, but was adjourned to April 12. Messrs. Sawyer and Lawrence appeared for the contestants, and Messrs. Joslyn and Z. P. King were on the other side.

The nursery and small fruit men are preparing to do a rushing business this spring. Jacob GaDzhorn, at the head of Spring-st., is preparing to put all of his forty acres under cultivation, instead of the twenty acres he has now in small fruits.

Prof. D'Ooge gave an excellent Easter sermon at the Presbyterian church last Sunday. There was a fine display of plants and flowers, the music led by Mrs. Warden was well rendered, and George Newell Lovejoy, with his usual good taste, so handled the organ that he fairly captivated his audience.

Next Monday evening at Unity club, Mrs. Sunderland will give the last of her talks on famous pictures, Murrillo's Ascension. Music, then a paper on Australia, by Mr. D. K. Cochrane; W. & W. Budget, followed by social recess. Mr. P. R. Whitman will then tell about his bicycle trip to the Atlantic.

The choir of the Congregational church rendered excellent music last Sunday, for their Easter services. The choir consists of Mrs. H. A. Vowdley, Mrs. R. A. Kempf, and Messrs. Dodsley and G. W. Renwick, with R. H. Kempf as organist.

Orders from Lansing states that men attending the encampment must be mustered before May 1, and the members must all have a percentage of 75 in attendance on Company drill from May 1 to the time of the encampment.

Monday evening, a Democratic bonfire was made on the corner of Huron and Main-sts. Mr. Beakes, the mayor-elect, was serenaded and made to talk. J. J. Robison, Michael Sheehan, and others, let fly the glorious eagle in congratulating him upon his election.

A friend accosted James M. Ashley, jr., at the Russell House in Detroit, and asked him how he was getting along. For answer Ashley pointed to the quotations of bonds of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern Michigan Railroad in a New York paper. The figures were 101.

Frank Almendinger and Mr. Rinsey, who were on the Republican and Democratic tickets respectively for alderman in the first ward, are very good friends, and wouldn't work against each other, and the generous rivalry extended to voting for each other. One went to Detroit on election day, and the other remained at his mill.

At the Parish meeting of St. Andrew's church last Monday the following elections occurred: Senior warden, Chas. H. Richmond; junior warden, J. M. Wheeler; vestrymen, Dr. S. H. Douglass, Prof. Geo. S. Morris, Prof. C. S. Denison, E. Treadwell, Judge E. D. Kinne, Dr. J. C. Wood, Wm. Cousins, H. J. Brown. The treasurer's report showed that $4,500 had been raised during the year, and that the finances were in a good condition.

At the Democratic city convention, last Friday evening, John J. Robison, Capt. Schuh, Ambrose Kearney, Capt. Manly and Fred Belsler, were all nominated for the mayoralty, and all declined emphatically. S. W. Beakes was then nominated and accepted. James Bach received 61 votes on the first ballot for recorder, and W. W. Watts, 7. For supervisors, Mr. Oesterlin was nominated for the first district; Mr. O'Hearn, 2d; and Mr. Butts, 3d.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Hall are the possessors of a pet monkey brought from Honduras by Israel Hall. It is, as Artemus Ward said of his bear, an "amoooin' little cuss." It is small and young, but it has a preternaturally old face and long tail. As it was caught in San Pedro, it has been named Pedro. It is fast ingratiating itself into the affections of the household. Even the family cat, whose whiskers Pedro pulls in an affectionate and playful manner, takes very kindly to the stranger, and they have some rare frolics.

The Ypsilanti Choral society and the Choral union have finally decided on the date of the joint concert for which they have been preparing during the past month. Every one who has heard the rendition of "St. Paul" by the two societies will surely be glad of the opportunity to hear the two choruses mixed. They have been practising on Acis and Galatea, by Handel, and a quaint and charming cantata by Mr. Farren, entitled "May Day." There will be one performance here in University hall, and one at Ypsilanti. The concert in University hall will most likely take place on Friday, April 27, but may be changed to either April 26 or 28.

A course of four lectures on "Intellectual Development of Woman," is to be given by Mr. George Willis Cooke, of Dedham, Mass., April 9, 10, 11 and 12. Mr. Cooke has been engaged by the Normal school faculty to deliver the lectures there, and is brought here by Unity club, the club, however, taking no share of the proceeds. Mr. Cooke comes highly recommended by Mary Livermore, Julia Ward Howe and the officers of Peabody Institute, Baltimore, where he has just delivered the same series, and by the Eastern press. The club therefore invites all who are interested in the intellectual development of women to give the lectures the patronage they deserve.

Last Friday, it being known that Gen. Alger was to pass through Ann Arbor on the 5:30 p. m. train, a number of enthusiastic Republicans raised money, hired a band, and gathered a large crowd at the M. C. depot. In Ann Arbor Mayor Smith and J. T. Jacobs pulled Gen. Alger out of the car in view of the assembled people. The banners displayed were: "Alger for President," "Alger, the Soldier," "Gen. Alger, Welcome Home," "Alger, an Honest Man," and "Alger, the News-boy's Friend." The general made a few remarks, and then stepped off the car for hand-shaking, during which he narrowly escaped being left by the train.

Librarian Davis, of the University, has returned from his eastern lectures. The Critic of March 24 says of his lectures before the School of Library Economy in Columbia college: "His topic was 'Epic Poetry.' He presented successively the definitions of Max Miller, Miss Helen Zimmern, Shelley and Dr. Arnold, and gave a list of their epic nudes each." Of Paradise Lost, Prof. Davis said: "If we judge it entirely from the extracts that are made from it, it is the very garden of poesy; but when we read it through we find that those extracts are oases in a pretty dry desert." He thinks that Longfellow's "Hiawatha" may have to be accepted as the American epic par excellence.

George Walker, of Freedom, and Miss Emma Blaess, were married Tuesday at 11 a. m. at the residence of the bride's father, Leopold Blaess, in Lodi township. The parties are widely known and much liked. Leopold Blaess is an old, respected and wealthy farmer; the beautiful bride was a favorite in the social circles in which she moved; and Mr. Walker is a young farmer in good standing in Freedom. During the day and evening, between 200 and 300 guests were entertained in fine style at Mr. Blaess' residence in honor of the happy event, and no pains and expense were spared to make it a joyous occasion. Mr. Walker has purchased a fine farm near Saline where he and his bride will go to live.

Easter services by the Delhi Sunday school were a success, with Rev. Wm. Galpin, of Ann Arbor, in attendance, who administered the sacrament of baptism to 16 persons. Scripture readings were given by Miss M. E. Cowden and Miss Lillie Abele; and recitations by Charles Bycraft, Alice Osborne, and James Kay. Easter gifts were presented. A choir of boys and girls, and the whole Sunday school, did some excellent singing. The Delhi Sunday school evidently is in a flourishing condition.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

James Barker is in Jackson.

John Koch was in Detroit Tuesday.

John Long spent Sunday with friends.

Nelson Sutherland went to Ionia Tuesday.

Justice Frueauff was in Detroit Tuesday and yesterday.

Dr. P. B. Rose, of Chicago, was home for the election.

John Conde, of Ann Arbor, was in Milan last week.

Coming Events.

E. Baur announces that the Washtenaw pomological society will meet April 7 at 2 p. m., in the court house.

The Chamber concert tomorrow evening will be given by the Philharmonic club, assisted by Miss Andrus, soprano, of Detroit.

By the request of the University senate, Dr. Ford will give a public address on the Life and Services of Dr. Palmer in University hall on Sunday next at 3 o'clock p. m.

The chorus of the first Baptist church of this city, assisted by their orchestra and quartette, will give a public recital in the audience room of the church Friday evening, April 13.

Rev. George Z. Gray, Dean of the Cambridge Theological School, is to deliver a special sermon next Sunday morning before the Hobart Guild at St. Andrews church at 10:30. He will also preach in the evening.

Prof. W. H. Green, D. D., of the Princeton, theological college, will deliver the next lecture in the Tappan hall course, at the Presbyterian church, next Sunday. Mr. Green is an admirable speaker, and his lecture will be one of the most interesting of the course.

By request Rev. J. T. Sunderland will repeat on next Sunday evening, at the Unitarian church, his lecture delivered two weeks ago, on "The Devil in the Light of Today;" or "The Doctrine of a Personal Devil: the source whence it came, the changes it has undergone, and causes of its decline."

Republican City Convention.

Fifty-seven of the 64 delegates met in Firemen's hall last Friday evening, and made Col. Dean chairman, and L. C. Goodrich secretary; and A. F. Martin and Albert Gardner, tellers. T. J. Keech was first elected chairman, but begged off. The four officers took the oath prescribed by the new law regulating caucuses. On the informal ballot for mayor, Dr. W. B. Smith received 25 votes; Chas. E. Hiscock, 21; J. T. Jacobs, 4; and the rest scattering. Mr. Hiscock most emphatically declined to be a candidate, and on the formal ballot Dr. Smith received 33; Mr. Hiscock, 14; Col. Dean, 2; J. T. Jacobs, 2; others 1 each. Dr. Smith was declared the nominee. On the first ballot for recorder, Geo. H. Pond received 45 votes; W. K. Childs, 4; and the rest scattering. For supervisors, 1st dist., Albert Gardner; 2d dist., left to the city committee to supply; 3d dist., N. D. Gates. For city committee, 1st ward, J. T. Jacobs; 2d, Wm. Frank; 3d, C. E. Hiscock; 4th, Geo. H. Pond; 5th, N. D. Gates; 6th, Dr. C. G. Darling. The city committee chose J. T. Jacobs chairman, and C. E. Hiscock secretary.

High School Notes.

A meeting of the senior class was held Tuesday, to consider the resignation of Mr. Miller as managing editor of the Omega. It was left to the board of editors to elect one.—The appearance of the walls of the hall have been very much improved during vacation, by a coat of paint.—Miss Fisher now occupies the position which Mrs. Sprague held last term as English teacher.—The junior class held a meeting on Tuesday to adopt resolutions suitable to the death of Miss Monroe, a prominent member of that class, and a committee composed of Messrs. Randall, Dyer, and Walker, and Misses Tozer, Seyler, and Bennett was appointed.—The debate for Iyuceum No. 1, on April 13, is: Resolved, that American statesmen have done more for the United States than have the generals. Messrs. Griffin and Severance are for the affirmative, and Messrs. Gormley and A. B. Johns for the negative.
