

NEWBERRY HALL.

HISTORY OF THE MOVEMENT FROM ITS ORIGIN.

It is to be a Great Ornament to the City.—Game on the Pictures.

On Feb. 28, 1883, our "Students' Christian association" was incorporated under our state laws. The articles of incorporation provided for the election of a board of trustees consisting of nine members of the faculty, which should have the management of the affairs of the association. The board was elected Mar. 1, 1883, and its first meeting was held Mar. 3, of the same year, at which time a permanent organization was effected by electing Prof. M. L. D'Ooge, chairman; Prof. V. M. Spalding, secretary; and Dr. W. J. Herdman, treasurer. On Mar. 13, the board decided to purchase the lot now owned by the association, for the consideration of $2,500, and also decided to build of stone when they did build.

A subscription paper was then circulated among the faculty and citizens and the amount needed to pay for the lot was soon pledged. Without delay, a movement was put on foot to raise money for the erection and furnishing of a building which, when completed, should cost $15,000. The steady growth of the association, however, soon made it evident that the plans which had been adopted were entirely inadequate to the need of the organization. In the meantime, subscriptions came in but slowly until in July, 1887, Mrs. John S. Newberry, of Detroit, very generously gave $15,000 for the erection of "Newberry Hall." It may be remarked here that the Hon. John S. Newberry, in whose memory this building is to be erected, was a graduate of the University and held the honorable position of orator of the class of '45.

The present plan, a cut of which is shown above, was designed by Spier & Rohn, architects, of Detroit, and accepted by the building committee about Mar. 18. The building, as planned, when finished and furnished, will have cost at least $30,000. It is to be built of stone, two stories high above the basement, and 2x91 ft. on the outside. The cut stone used is to be "Ohio blue," and "Forest City" (brown) stone. The basement will contain the heating apparatus and will be used for such other purposes as may be desired.

The first story is to be divided into six rooms, a reception room, reading-room, ladies' parlor, and three prayer-meeting rooms, so arranged by means of folding doors that they may be thrown into one large room for use of social gatherings. The main room of the second story which is to be used for general meetings is to have seating capacity of about 550. It is hoped that they may be able so to arrange and furnish this room as to make it one of the most pleasant and comfortable in the city. In front of this there are to be three rooms for the use of students who may have charge of the building. There is to be a commodious committee room in the tower.

The excavation for the basement is already made, and the footings for the

S. W. Farmers' Club.

The ninth annual meeting of the Southern Washtenaw Farmers' club was held at the residence of S. M. Merithew, in Sharon, April 4. The attendance was large despite the rain. E. O. English presided. S. M. Merithew was elected president; C. M. Fellows, secretary; Frank Spafard, treasurer; and B. G. English, Mrs. F. Spafard, and H. R. Palmer, vice presidents. The treasurer's report showed the club's finances, despite the hard winter and poor corn crop, to be in a good condition. An invitation from the Norvell Farmers' club to meet in joint session at "Fair View," the residence of L. D. Watkins, was accepted. The date fixed is June 7, and the subject for discussion is, "What constitutes a practical education for farmers' sons and daughters?" A committee, consisting of O. M. Fellows and wife, B. G. English and wife, and George Rawson and wife, was appointed to prepare a program for the coming year. There was a short discussion on how to cultivate potatoes. C. M. FELLOWS, Sec'y.

The Nashville Daily American, of May 1, in speaking of Normal college of which Prof. W. H. Payne is at the head, says: "The college never had a more prosperous outlook, and it is needless to add that the new chancellor has the credit, and justly so, of it all."

DR. DUNSTER'S DEATH.

Another of the University Professors Taken Away—Funeral—Life How the Soldiers Liked Him.

The funeral services of the late Dr. Dunster were held in the Congregational church, Monday afternoon at three o'clock. Before that hour all available seats in that capacious edifice were filled, a large portion being occupied by medical students who wore crepe in memory of the deceased. After the voluntary by Prof. Kempf, who presided at the organ, Mrs. Kempf sang a solo, which was beautifully rendered. Rev. Dr. Ryder then offered prayer, after which the choir of four voices sang an appropriate hymn. Dr. Earp, of St. Andrews Episcopal church, read from the 15th chapter of 1st Epistle of Paul to the Corinthians, words that have been, and ever will be, solace to grief-stricken hearts. The choir then sang that sweet hymn, "Jesus, lover of my soul," when a touching and effective prayer by Dr. Ryder closed the exercises. The remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of friends, among whom were the entire University faculty and senate. The floral offerings were handsome and profuse, one of the most noticeable being a bank of immortelles, sent in by the Psi Upsilon fraternity, of which the deceased was a member.

Dr. Edward Swift Dunster, M. A., was professor of Obstetrics and diseases of Women and Children, and Clinical Gynecology in the U. of M. He succeeded Dr. Ssger in that chair in 1873.

He was born in Springville, Me., Sept. 2, 1834. He was named for Dr. Edward Swift, an eminent physician of Easton, who was an intimate friend of the family. His parents removed to Providence, R. I., and he entered the high school there at 12 years of age. He entered Harvard college in 1852, graduating with high honors in 1856. In 1859 he graduated in medicine at the New York college of medicine and surgery. He had practice in St. Luke's hospital, and then became demonstrator of anatomy in Dartmouth college. Aug. 5, 1861, he was commissioned assistant surgeon in the Union army, and served with General McClellan's command. He established hospitals and had charge of them, and afterward was appointed by General Rosencrans, medical inspector for the southern half of the department. He was afterwards breveted Captain and Major, U. S. A. In 1866 he resigned from the army, having attained the grade of full surgeon.

Going to New York city he practiced medicine and was editor of the New York Medical Journal from 1866 to 1871. He was also connected with Bellevue hospital about this time. He lectured in the University of Vermont two years; and from 1869 to 1874 he lectured on obstetrics and diseases of women in the Long Island college hospital. He next came to Ann Arbor. Dr. Dunster has written much in his chosen line of work.

In 1863, Dr. Dunster was married to Rebecca Morgan Spole. They have had four children: William Spole Dunster, who died in 1867; Clara, Bessie M., and Annie E.

The University senate, Saturday, passed resolutions reciting the history of Dr. Dunster's life and saying:

"As a teacher in the study of medicine he was at home with his classes, clearly doctored in the order of his subject, lucid and forcible in exposition, giving life to his theme, as he spoke directly from the stores of his learning and his personal experience. As a contributor to the literature of his profession he was esteemed for an impartial and exhaustive collection of actual evidence, making an unsparring rejection of extrinsic matter, reaching conclusions only so far as supported by established proofs, and holding a consistent force in the exercise of his judgment. As a physician he was most sympathetic with the afflicted, kindly, frank in his announcements, true and unswerving in his deductions, a benefactor in numberless households. In educational affairs, as a counsellor and an advocate of the best aims of professional culture, his life of 54 years has given good earnest of his direct lineage from Henry Dunster, the first President of Harvard College. To us, the members of this senate, he has endeared himself by the consistent integrity of his personal relations and a most genial bearing in the occasions of daily intercourse. As a Senate we desire to extend to the family of our departed colleague our sincere and heartfelt sympathies, while we know that in this time of their most severe trial consolation and support can only be given to them by the Infinite Hand."

Resolutions adopted by the Medical faculty:

WHEREAS, While the sense of bereavement is still heavy upon us, God, in His all-wise Providence, has again seen fit to remove from our midst another of our older and most honored associates, Edward Swift Dunster, A. M., M. D., Professor of obstetrics and diseases of women and children, and

WHEREAS, During the fifteen years of faithful service he has rendered in this and other departments he has exhibited a breadth of learning and ripeness of scholarship and a capacity for teaching seldom equalled, and

WHEREAS, He has ever been an earnest and able promoter and defender of the cause of advanced and liberal education for those who are seeking to join the ranks of the medical profession, and

WHEREAS, Both in scholarly attainments and in private character he personally represented in a marked degree those qualities which combine to form the honest man and the true physician, be it

Resolved, That in his death, apparently so premature, this department and the University have lost an able educator and a judicious counselor and we, each and all, a friend and helper in our time of need.

Resolved, That we tender to Mrs. Dunster and family our most tender sympathy in this great sorrow with the assurance of our abiding interest in their welfare.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to Mrs. Dunster and be given to the press and that they be spread upon our minutes.

Dr. Dunster was one of the most useful of the army surgeons. He always went unarmed. The sick and wounded gave him unbounded confidence and named him the "Little Doctor." One of the wounded whittled from a shingle pine stick a pair of pliers and pinners, which he gave to Dr. Dunster. It was all he had to give. It is preserved as a specimen of West Virginia whittling. A southern officer, who was taken prisoner at Rich Mountain, gave the doctor a fine set of surgical instruments in gratitude for his care and kindness to the confederate wounded. The ladies of Philadelphia appreciated his attention to the sick at Turner's Lane, and presented him with a silver-headed cane, with his monogram beautifully intertwined.

Dr. Ramsay will preach at the Methodist Episcopal church, next Sunday evening, on the "Evils of the Tongue," being a second sermon on the same topic.

WEBSTER'S FARMERS.

A FEW OF THEM SEEN BY OUR CORRESPONDENT.

What they are Doing.—No Free Trade for Them.—Spring Work.—Fine Farms.—Crop Prospects.

To the Editor of THE REGISTER:

SIR:—Last Saturday afternoon, the genial warmth of May's glad sunshine suggested that it would be a good time to spend half a day among our farmers, as they would surely be found improving such beautiful weather, which would afford one a good opportunity of learning how spring work was progressing, what the crop prospects were, and other things, perhaps, of interest to the readers of THE REGISTER.

Acting on the mutely offered suggestion, and being in the vicinity of some of Webster's best farmers, I started out for a few hours' drive in that township, making my first stop at the large farm of Mrs. A. M. Chamberlain. Here I found Mrs. C's two manly sons, William and Louie, hitching up their teams for the afternoon's work in the corn ground. They will put in about forty acres of spring crops. Their sixty acres of wheat look well, and will be an average crop. They have wintered 125 sheep and 25 head of horses and cattle, and all are in good form. The boys said though times were close, they were making a little money every year, and wanted no free trade on their plate.

At the next farm we found the owner, John Haab, performing a kind of labor that is ever present on the farm, "fixing fence." Mr. Haab has 145 acres of fine land, 45 of which are into wheat, and will be about two thirds of a crop. He will put in 25 acres of spring crops; wintered CO sheep, and thinks they have paid as well as anything. He was not posted on the tariff question, but was opposed to any reduction by any means of the price of farm produce.

Win. Kilts, whose farm joins the last one mentioned, was not at home, but from the road his wheat looked as though it would be half or two-thirds of a crop. He has 60 acres under good cultivation. Driving to the next farm, I found Theodore Haab and wife making garden, or rather Mr. H. was doing the making, and Mrs. H. was kindly giving directions.—womanlike. This young couple are pulling together on an 80 acre farm, and keep things up in good shape. The wheat, 33 acres, looks well considering the season. Mr. Haab wintered 40 sheep, and they are not free trade sheep either; clover seed is coming on finely. Will put in 17 acres of spring crops.

Johnnie Stanton, who is proprietor of the adjoining farm, had gone to Dexter to buy his Sunday's groceries, and I did not see him. Mr. Stanton has a splendid farm and fine buildings. From general appearances it is safe to say that he knows how to make farming pay even in these hard times.

As I stepped from the buggy at the next farm house, Wm. Easton, one of Webster's well known young farmers, met me at the gate, with a hearty shake of the hand. He looks after a farm of 160 acres, and does it well. He is putting in 30 acres of spring crops, and thinks his 45 acre of wheat will be two-thirds of an average crop. Wintered 85 sheep, and stys there's no use taking to him about free wool. Mr. Easton has some fine thoroughbred cattle in which he takes just pride.

Ray Buckalew and his estimable wife, who live just across the road, were also "gone to town," and I was obliged to content myself with a mental comment on the general air of "sickness" that pervaded the entire premises. At Charles Goodwin's, I found Mrs. G. in the midst of spring house-cleaning, while in a field near by, Mr. G. was wrestling with a big stump with a good prospect of victory. His wheat is equal to the average, and clover seed coming on all right. Will put in about 25 acres of spring crops. Mr. Goodwin's two sons, Austin and Clayton, left last week for Washington Territory to make their fortune. No free trade here. John Vaughn was looking over the yards, and picking up loose odds and ends, while in the house I found Mrs. Vaughn, one of the good-souled, old fashioned kind, making candles by the old fashioned process,—dipping them. During the few moments' pleasant stay here, I learned that Mr. Vaughn was owner of 120 acres of land, had 35 acres of good wheat, and would put in about 35 acres of spring crops. He keeps 140 sheep, and wants no free wool. On the road I met Olean Vaughn, who purchased Mr. Goodwin's place in Dexter, who informed me that his 200 acres were in good shape; wheat about half a crop; had 100 good sheep, and didn't like the Mills bill.

Charley Van Kiper was preparing corn ground, and will put in 25 acres of spring crops. His 40 acres of wheat will be about two thirds of a crop. Thinks sheep pay well, and had rather have a good home than own a national bank.

The farm of William Johnson shows careful supervision on the part of its owner. Wheat was looking well, and grass rank and green. About 25 acres of spring crops will be put in, which means on this farm, a good yield. No free trade here.

At Wm. Easton's I met his father, Oscar Easton, a well known farmer of Lima township. He has 24 acres of wheat, looking well, and will put in 33 acres of spring crops. Keeping 140 sheep and says everything is cheap enough now, including wool.

This brought me to the end of my drive, and brings me to the end of my chapter.

The Washtenaw Baptist association met in Dexter last week, Rev. Dr. Cheney, of Ypsilanti, preached the annual sermon.

WASHTENAW PONOLOGT.

Fruit Prospects.—Destruction of Injurious Insects.—Tiae English Sparrow.—Strawberry Culture.—Overdone.

At the monthly meeting of the society J. Baldwin presided, J. GaDzhom being absent. The corresponding secretary took his place and read the minutes of the March meeting and stated that he had published Prof. V. M. Spalding's paper before the March society meeting on "Recent progress in the study and treatment of Disease of Plants" in the Michigan Farmer, where it reached the greatest number of those benefitted by this very interesting and useful treatise. He also sent Prof. Mark W. Harrington's paper on "Climatal effects of forest" to Senator Palmer, chairman of the committee which has to report on the Forestry congress. The Senator in a letter March 31, returned the papers stating that he had read them with interest and approval and thanks for the courtesy extended.

Prof. B. E. Nichols, chairman of the committee on fruit exchange, whose absence from the meeting was excused by the chair, is still at work maturing plans for a successful distribution of fruit and will report at the June meeting.

J. J. Parshall: I never had such flattering prospects of a peach crop. If nothing happens I expect 3,000 bushels of peaches. The public should be informed that Lord Palmerston and the Wager peaches are great humbugs.

S. Mill*: Forty-two years ago spring frosts killed peach buds, but since that time such a calamity has not happened.

J. D. Baldwin: Even the tender and shy bearers of the peach family are full of fruit buds. My 1G varieties of plums look very promising.

E. A. Nordman, of Lima: Apples in our vicinity look very promising, if we only can check the noxious insects.

H. Sessions: My plums never looked better. The prospects of a peach crop are very good.

J. T. Ellis, of Manchester: It is astonishing to see the thrift and fruit buds of all classes of fruit trees.

D. Strickler: We have the garden of Eden in this vicinity.

E. Baur: My pears are not as prouising as other trees. The sparrows fed on pear buds last winter and did much damage. Whoever introduced the English sparrow into this country should never be prayed out of purgatory. Grapes are way behind, but I have never seen grapes fall in my experience of 20 years.

Mr. Palmer of Dexter: The "basket" crop will be equal to the fruit crop, which is very promising about Dexter.

The culture of strawberries about Ann Arbor was considered unprofitable and altogether overdone. They can not be shipped to Detroit as the market there is glutted by Parker Earl, from Illinois, who ships a car load daily. Besides Detroit market gardeners and farmers raise more than enough to supply the demand.

INJURIOUS INSECTS.

This important topic was discussed at the request of Mr. Nordman. The writer last winter addressed his Excellency, the Governor, to have a short, popular pamphlet published on this subject to be placed into the hands of every farmer and fruit grower. The governor promised to lay the matter before the state board of agriculture. Prof. A. J. Cook's "Injurious Insects of Michigan" is a very important document.

J. D. Baldwin thought that inasmuch as paris green and London purple are often adulterated and consequently ineffective in spraying trees, pure arsenic should be used which costs 10 cents per pound wholesale. While one of London purple was used for 100 gallons of rainwater, 5 or Q ounces of pure arsenic would be sufficient. Great care has to be taken in the use of these arsenites. The first spraying should be done when the blossoms fall, and the second two weeks later.

S. Mills: Chop all the thornbushes down; they are the propagators of the curculio.

E. Baur: We could dispense with the arsenites, if we would use the band system for the codling moth systematically and the Ransom process for the plum curculio first week in May and later on the jarring process after blossoms fall. It is impossible to do any justice to this topic in this report. It is certainly a humiliating fact that these small pests cannot be controlled by the lords of creation. A cardinal remedy is found in Malechi, 3, 10, 11.

Mrs. Mary A. Judkins, who died recently in Portland, Me., was a native of the state in which she died, and was born 117 years and seven months ago.

Mrs. Oscar Wilde is making green the only color of her garments. She has suits of half a dozen shades of the verdant hue, with bonnets, hats, gloves and parasols to match.

The crown princess of Sweden will ultimately inherit the large fortune which her grandfather, the Emperor William, bequeathed to her mother, the grand duchess of Baden.

Mrs. Mary Hurley, of San Francisco, is 105 years old and without any one to care for her, having outlived all her family. Some time ago her only son, aged 80 years, died, and a few days ago she lost her only remaining child, a daughter of 68.

Actresses are especially noted for their fondness for pets. Sarah Bernhardt likes a tiger cat; Fanny Davenport used to fancy a doll that she could dress and undress; Rose Coghlan loves babies, and Mrs. Langtry likes horses and dogs. As for Mrs. Potter, she is always in "a pet" with her manager.

Mrs. James Brown Potter is an expert seamstress and frequently made portions of her own gowns before her stage career enabled her to employ French dressmakers. She recently remarked: "The southern woman does not know as much about house-keeping as the northern, but she generally does know how to sew, and doesn't think it much of a feat to cut and make her own clothes."

FANCIES IN JEWELS.

In pencil cases a pine cone of gold is a peculiar pattern.

Egg shaped pearls make scarf pins appropriate to the season.

Lace pins of alternate pink pearls and diamonds are much in favor.

A dainty, well cut bust of moonstone is a novelty in scarf pins recently seen.

A diamond stamened Easter lily in jet makes an attractive top for a hairpin.

A spray of grape leaves sown with seed pearls is a dainty pattern in lace pins.

A miniature Indian arrow head of flint, bound to a gold shank by a silver cord, is an oddity in scarf pins.

Louis Quatorze brooches of white enamel, rimmed with dark gold and bearing portrait heads, are much admired.

A half opened fan of gold, showing four folds set alternately with turquoises and diamonds, is a costly brooch.

A perfect globe of highly polished moonstone, set within a cage of gold wire, is a peculiar pattern in scarf pins recently seen.

Calla lilies in jet, with stamens of pearls, gold, diamonds or jet, are among the most pleasing patterns offered in Easter brooches.

A soap dish of frosted silver recently seen represent a large sized egg. The interior is fitted with the usual tray, and is highly polished.

In new designs in brooches a smiling Cupid, standing erect within a handsomely rayed sea shell of translucent garnet enamel, is artistic and unique.

Two interlaced hearts, one set with diamonds and one with turquoises, make a lace pin appropriate for an Easter offering to a fiancée or sweetheart.

In bar pins nine handsome rubies set in a straight line, divided into thirds by two transverse lines of small diamonds, make a pattern pleasing and attractive.

A pin much fancied by horse lovers among the fair sex consists of a bar formed of a whip stock of gold, having a silver horseshoe at each end. The whole is topped by a jocky cap, with moonstone top, diamond peak and gold rim.

Flowers, medallion heads, cherubim and mythological subjects, in a translucent enamel which admits of all the high lights found in the Ceylon moonstone, are dainty brooches offered for Easter trade. Aqua marine, mandarin yellow, rose pink, electric blue and garnet are the favorite colors.

Whit* Swelling.

Mr. M. S. Hamlin, one of the best known insurance men in North Carolina, writes from Winston, as follows: "Ever since I was seven years of age I have had what the doctors call hip disease and which I call white swelling. My hip was drawn out of place. There was a swelling at the knee-joint, where there is a profuse running, which has been there for years. Of course this has greatly depleted my system, together with surgical operation on the leg bone. I tried every known blood purifier to build up my system, but none did me good until I took S. S. S. I use it every spring. It always builds me up, giving me appetite and digestion, and enables me to stand the long, trying, enervating, hot summer days. To me there is no such medicine for purifying the blood and building up the wasted system as S. S. S. On using it I soon became strong of body and easy of mind. My color changed from a pale, worn look to a healthy, robust complexion."

Mr. G. N. Frizzel, of Farmersville, Texas, writes: "About August 1st, 1865, an eruption appeared on my arms and legs, which pained me much and seemed to affect my physical condition generally. SENATOR CULLOM, of Illinois, is one of the few men in public life who find time or have the inclination to leave the work of partisan politics long enough to contribute to the philosophical discussion of larger public questions. He distinguished himself early in his senatorial career by his authorship, in collaboration with Senator Reagan, of the Inter State Commerce bill. A few months ago he contributed to the Forum an elaborate and firmly-knit argument for Governmental ownership of a telegraph system, and in the May number of the same magazine he has an analysis of the evils of the present system of promoting public works, and suggestions of a remedy therefor that is as far from mere partisan discussion as the Inter-State Commerce Law itself. The broad consideration of such questions lies entirely outside the routine duties of senatorial life, and are of a piece with the larger work done by our public men in former generations.

ATTORNEY OR NEWSPAPER?

The account given by the Argus of the common council meeting last week, is exceedingly contrary to the truth. It gave the impression to the reader that the only point of difference was a strict or loose construction of the liquor law, and leaves the reader to infer that it is at least a debatable difference. There is no chance for debate about it at all when the case is stated honestly. The Argus did not tell its readers the point, and thus acted as an attorney for the saloon rather than as a newspaper which is desirous of giving its readers the news. It is a mighty bad attorney too. The point is that August Herz's liquor bond bean the name of a man as surety who does not reside in Ann Arbor, and therefore he cannot, according to the express terms of the law, go on the bond. We quote the law: "There shall also be annexed to each bond required by this act an affidavit of 8ach surety thereto, which affidavit shall state that the affiant * * * is a male resident and freeholder of the township, village, or city in which such bond is offered." It is Billy in the Argus to talk about liberal construction of this. There is only one construction possible. It becomes a question of fact whether the bondsmen are or are not male residents of the city, as well as having the other qualifications required by the law. It was publicly admitted before the council that one of the sureties did not reside in Ann Arbor; the city attorney told them the bond could not be legal with non-residents for sureties; and two members of the council gave the most solemn warnings concerning the wrong and short-sightedness of defying the law; yet a majority, including the mayor, voted to accept the bond. What do the people of Ann Arbor think about it?

IN THE magazine called "Woman," Helen Campbell has started a series of articles on "Prisoners of Poverty Abroad." She tells the horrible story of London's unemployed, children with no shelter whatever, women living in dust bins, men willing to work but who are starving. The names of 17,000 unemployed are registered. She says: "Their names represent a total of over 50,000 who are slowly starving; and this mass is known to be but a part of that which is still unregistered." This is in London, the richest city in the world. Before this terrible fact, how ridiculous seem the figures of the Giffens, the Wells, and the Atkinsons, who assure people that everything is all right! And it is in free trade England. Surely, free trade, however beneficial it may be, will not abolish poverty.

LAST WEEK, THE REGISTER said: "Nine members of the common council, including the mayor, are on record as voting that they will not obey the liquor law." The Argus, in reply, declares that it would have been silly to vote for a resolution which merely declares what men shall have liquor bonds; for, it says, "the law defines that and the resolution was a useless one." The resolution, far from being useless, was very serviceable, for the haste with which it was placed on the table showed at once that the majority of the council had no intention of observing the law. The result proved it. The Argus says: "The law defines that," and yet it fails to point out the plain violation of the law by the council.

THE Argus says: "No one had any intention of disobeying it," meaning the liquor law. And yet the mayor of the city voted to accept the liquor bond of August Herz when he knew it was not made in accordance with the law. It was said on the floor by Mr. Ortman that one of the sureties did not reside in the city, and as every one knew that invalidated the bond. Mr. Ortman said that before the vote took place, so the mayor when he voted knew the fact. He deliberately defied the liquor law, and now says in his paper that no one intended to disobey it. He also suppressed the main fact in the Argus report of the common council meeting.

ON THE CAMPUS.

A senior law, H. C. Johnson, while scuffling in the law library last Thursday, fell and broke his leg.

It was a pleasant company that assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. VanDyne, March 3, to do honor to Miss Lucinda Francis, one whose genuine kindness of heart has endeared her to all. As she contemplates a journey in the near future, her friends desired to give her a substantial token of their regard. They accordingly put their mites together and purchased bonnet, parasol, material for two new dresses, gloves, handkerchiefs, etc., a complete outfit. All were duly presented by the Rev. Mr. McMahon, accompanied by a few well chosen remarks. It was a surprise to Miss Francis. She responded with many thanks for the gifts, and the kindness and good will which prompted them. After the presentation the company were treated to a sumptuous repast to which all did ample justice. Ypsilanti.

Another Pioneer Gone.
Charles Young, who came to this country from England with his parents in 1833, and settled on government land in the township of Sylvan, about four miles west of Chelsea, in which neighborhood he has resided since, sustained a severe injury to his left hand from a buzz saw on April 17, which terminated in his death May 2, 1888, at the age of 65 years. Mr. Young was a temperate, industrious and frugal farmer, an affectionate husband and father, and a good neighbor. He leaves in sincere sorrow an aged mother, who has completed four score and ten years, four sisters, a widow, three sons and two daughters, all married, and a large circle of more distant relatives. He was buried at Sylvan Center on Friday, May 4, followed to his final resting place by a large concourse of his oldtime neighbors and friends. Sermon on the occasion by Rev. T. Holmes, of Chelsea, from Mat. 6:20, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven."

The Danger Before Us.

We have already alluded to the importance of housekeepers paying more attention to the kind of baking powder used in leavening their bread. This is a matter to which we cannot draw attention too often, because it is something which involves the most serious consequences to the general body of mankind. Temperance apostles tell us—and there is ample foundation for the statement—that there is disease, both moral and physical, in the intoxicating cup; and in the same way there is disease, slow, perhaps, but certain in the time and alum leavening agents employed in many of the homes on this continent.

No punishment is too severe for those manufacturers who place these poisonous alum and lime baking powders before the public with the assurance that they are pure and wholesome articles. In the belief of the truth of such statements such baking powders are largely used in the preparation of food and in this way the poisonous ingredients are taken into the system without a suspicion of their presence. By and by come spells of headache, distress in the stomach, loss of appetite, a fluttering of the heart; the child is seized with an apparently causeless cough. The coating of the stomach is destroyed, perhaps, one of the vital organs is rendered almost useless; the kidneys are attacked with Bright's disease. The health of the child is irreparably broken down; the adult becomes a chronic invalid. These are the doings of the modern cheap baking powders that are composed of lime and alum, or that contain sulphuric or phosphoric acids.

In view of these facts surely all housewives should exercise the care that is, we know, now exercised by some in the selection of a proper brand of baking powder. She who does not do so, whether the neglect is the result of ignorance or recklessness, cannot free herself from the responsibility for the health, perhaps life, thereby endangered. No housewife need be ignorant of the quality and the composition of the article which she uses to leaven her bread, biscuit and cake. The official reports of the government chemists, who are certainly unprejudiced, have been published and show very clearly the quality and strength of all the baking powders in the market. The Royal Baking Powder which is accessible at every hand, is reported absolutely free from lime, alum, phosphoric acid, or any injurious ingredient. It is further stated by the most eminent authorities on food hygiene that food leavened with it is more wholesome than when raised by any other method. Its use is therefore to be commended. It is to be regretted that no other baking powder, when there are so many in the market, some of which will find their way into use, is free from all these substances. The official analysts assure us, however, that all except the Royal contain either lime or alum. The housekeeper who regards the health of her loved ones should not only order the Royal, but make personal examination to be sure that no other brand is sent her in its place.

Republican State Convent! in.

At the Republican State convention Tuesday, in Grand Rapids, Washtenaw county was represented by H. S. Boutelle, A. W. Wilkinson, J. E. Beal, Wm. Campbell, J. T. Jacobs, Myron Cady, J. C. Bemiss, Wm. Judson, R. Kempf, Clinton Spencer, M. C. Lebeau, W. M. Oshand, John Cook, J. B. Wortley, Charles Mansfield, and Howard M. Holmes. The Washtenaw county caucus decided to ask that J. T. Jacobs, of Ann Arbor, be made a member of the state central committee for the second district, and it was accomplished.

Wm. Campbell was one of the vice presidents of the convention, and H. S. Boutelle one of the assistant secretaries. The second congressional delegates had little trouble in getting J. K. Boies, of Hudson, elected delegate at large to the national convention. They had to make very few combinations to bring it about. The great fight of the day came when the fourth delegate-at-large was to be elected. M. S. Crosby, B. M. Cutcheon, James M. Turner and Mr. Dunston of the U. P. had their following, and it was a long and hard struggle. The U. P. man was elected because of location. The election of R. E. Frazer, of Detroit, was conceded generally, because he is expected to present Gen. Alger's name at the Chicago convention. The election of W. Q. Atwood, a rich and respected colored gentleman of Saginaw, as delegate-at-large, was looked upon as a proper recognition of the colored vote in Michigan. The convention was stormy, and the chairman, E. S. Lacey, of Charlotte, had to retire from pure exhaustion.

THE COMMON MIND.

A Meeting—The more Liquor Bonds Approved—The Savings Bank Is the City's Depository—D. Hennin?—wants Damages.

At the common council meeting, Monday night, the following members were present: Mayor Beakes, Recorder Bach, Aldermen Barker, Wines, Ware, Hammond, O'Mara, Spokes, Kearns, Martin, Herz, Aumendinger, and Sutherland. A petition was read from D. Hennin, setting forth that by reason of the closing up of Pontiac street, his property near the depot had been greatly damaged, and he desired an investigation. Referred to street committee. The city attorney was added to the committee for the present. The church of the Disciples of Christ were allowed to occupy one-third of the street in front of their property, for building purposes. The bill of ex City Attorney Joslyn, of $79.50, balance due for past services, was laid on the table. The bill of E. B. Gidley, $75, for services on nuisance committee, was referred to board of health for proper certification.

The report of M. J. Fritz, examiner of the books of recorder and treasurer, showing some clerical errors of no importance, was received and placed on file. On motion of Aid. Allmendinger, a plank side-walk was ordered built on west side of Fourth st. from s. w. corner of Summit and Fourth, to a point eight rods from Summit st.

The following report of the finance committee shows the amounts of the ward funds: 1st ward, $12.75; 2nd, $80.70; 3rd, $04.35; 4th, $120.01; 5th, $268.14; 6th, $175; gen'l s't fund, $193.20; general fund, $05.79; contingent fund, $429.17; city cemetery, $9.00; total, $1244.23.

The consideration of liquor bonds was then taken up, and the following bonds approved: Mann Bio's, Millman & McNally, John Kehoe, (some objection was here made to surety A. L. Polhemu), as he was already on another bond. Atty. McKernan, who drew the bond, arose and said that as a matter of law the bond was not good, but under the ruling of the council the bond was good, and he thought should be received. However the council re-considered the bond, Wm. Goetz, Chas. Carey, Fred Reimold, Harry Schable, Wm. Loetz, Geo. Wniterly, Geo. Weidlich.

Concerning the deposit of the city's money, a communication was read from the Savings bank, offering to pay 3.1 per cent, to be credited quarterly. The Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank offered 3 per cent. The first bid was accepted.

Eli Moore complained to the council, that the city had taken so much gravel from the street near his residence, as to endanger his property. It was referred to the street committee with power to act.

The health officer, Dr. Breakey, was allowed $100 for a year's services. On motion of Aid. Kearns, the following board of review was appointed: 1st ward, John Thompson; 2nd, W. J. Clark; 3rd, E. P. Mason.

The question of an extra assessment to provide for the oily funds was referred to the finance committee.

It was moved that the bill of A. J. Sawyer for three years' rent of market, of $150.00, be ordered paid and the market be discontinued. The matter was finally referred to committee, to report at next meeting.

DYSPEPSIA

Causes its victims to be miserable, hopeless, confused, and depressed in mind, very irritable, languid, and drowsy. It is a disease which does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy to throw off the causes and tone up the digestive organs till they perform their duties willingly. Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven just the required remedy in hundreds of cases. "I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla for dyspepsia, from which I have suffered two years. I tried many other medicines, but none proved so satisfactory as Hood's Sarsaparilla." THOMAS COOK, Brush Electric Light Co., New York City.

Sick Headache

"For the past two years I have been afflicted with severe, headaches and dyspepsia. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and have found great relief. I cheerfully recommend it to all." Mas. E. F. ANNABLE, New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Mary C. Smith, Cambridgeport, Mass., was a sufferer from dyspepsia and sick headache. She took Hood's Sarsaparilla and found it the best remedy she ever used.

"MAY GOD BLESS YOU!"

A Boston Paper-Hanger's Trouble and How He Got Out of it—Plain Words from the stuin.v South.

When we are in trouble we cry for help. When we are relieved we often forget to be thankful. But not always. Mr. W. W. Griffin, of Trout Creek, St. Clair Co., Ala., writes: "I had a back attack of chills and fever. My system was full of malaria. For two years I was scarcely able to work at all. Some times my heart would palpitate for two hours at a time. My legs would go cold to the knees, and I fully expected to die. In September, 1881, I bought a bottle of Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Curative Syrup, of your agent, Mr. R. M. King, and before I had taken the first bottle I felt better, and in a short time was able to go to work. May God bless you for the good you have done."

Mr. Wm. J. McCann, 99 Randalist., Boston, writes: "Six months ago I began to throw up my food after eating. I thought I was going into consumption, soon began to have pain in the chest, stomach and sides. I got little sleep and weight all tired out. I once lost five pounds in four days. I began using Shaker's Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I could eat three square meals a day, and go to sleep the minute I struck the bed. I am now a healthy man, and have worked every day since I took the second bottle, and gained eighteen pounds. I ought to be thankful to you for what you have done."

This remedy opens all the natural passages of the body, expels the poison from the blood, and enables nature to rebuild what disease has destroyed.

Shaker Extract of Roots, or Seigel's Syrup, is sold by all druggists, or send to the proprietor, A. J. White, 54 Warren street, New York.

Probate Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WASHTENAW.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, on Monday, the seventh day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight.

Present, WILLIAM D. HARRIMAN, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the Estate of Lorenzo M. Lyon, deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly filed, and the same being read, and a certain instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be admitted to probate, and that he and Arthur S. Lyon may be appointed executors thereof.

Therefore it is Ordered, That Monday, the Fourth day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the devisees, legatees, and heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any, there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; And it is further ordered, that the petition be referred to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor REGISTER, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to the day of hearing.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

In Chun-li.

I feel a solemn sanctity.

Sweet rest of soul is mine.

My heart abides in pious peace.

My bonnet sets divine!

Grace, like a river, fills my soul.

In chastened joy I sit.

I feel religion's deepest power.

My sacque's a perfect fit.

A holy fervor penetrates

My soul's remotest nooks.

An earnest, chastened, fervid joy—

How neat that ribbon looms!

The good man tells of Christian peace.

The organ anthem swells.

I bathe in peace of the delight,

My dress cost more than Nell's!

O holy rest! O Sabbath calm!

O chastened peace serene!

I feel thy deep abiding spell.

How dowdy is Miss Green!

I feel a pure religious glow.

O rapture undefin'd!

I know my bonnet looks so nice

To those who sit behind!

A LILE OF THREE LIONS.

BY H. RIDER HAGGARD.

(CONCLUDED.)

"For at that moment I perceived by the light of the fire a kind of gleam of yellow traveling through the air toward us.

"The lion! the lion!" hollered Pharaoh, and as he did so, he, for it was a great, gaunt lioness, half wild, no doubt, with hunger, lit right in the middle of the skerm, and stood there in the smoky gloom and lashed her tail and roared. I seized my rifle and fired it at her, but what between the confusion and my agitation and the uncertain light, I missed her and nearly shot Pharaoh.

The flash of the rifle, however, threw the whole scene into strong relief, and a wild one it was. I cast my eye toward the seething mass of oxen twisted all around the cart in such a fashion that their heads looked as though they were growing out of their rumps and their horns seemed to protrude from their backs; the smoking fire, with just a blaze in the heart of the smoke; Jim-Jim in the foreground, where the oxen had thrown him in their wild rush, stretched out therein terror; and then, as a center to the picture, the great, gaunt lioness glaring round with hungry, yellow eyes, roaring and whining as she made up her mind what to do.

"It did not take her long, however—just as long as it takes a flash to die into darkness—for before I could fire again or do anything, with a most fendish snort she sprang upon poor Jim-Jim.

"I heard the unfortunate lad shriek, and then almost instantly I saw his legs thrown into the air. The lioness had seized him by the neck, and with a sudden jerk thrown his body over her back so that his legs hung down at the further side.

"Then, without the slightest hesitation, and apparently without any difficulty, she cleared the skerm fence at a single bound, and bearing poor Jim-Jim with her, vanished into the darkness beyond in the direction of the bathing place that I have already described. We jumped up, perfectly mad with horror and fear, and rushed after her, firing shots at haphazard, the chance of which she would be frightened by them into dropping her prey, but nothing could we see and nothing could we hear! The lioness had vanished into the darkness, taking Jim-Jim with her, and to attempt to follow her till daylight was madness. We should only expose ourselves to the risk of a like fate.

"So with scared and heavy hearts we crept back to the skerm and sat down to wait for daylight, which now could not be much more than an hour off. It was absolutely useless to try even to disentangle the oxen fill then, so all that was left for us to do was to sit and wonder how it came to pass that one should be taken and the other left, and to hope against hope that our poor servant might have been mercifully delivered from the lion's jaws. At length the faint light came stealing like a ghost up the long slope of bush and glistened on the tangled oxen's horns, and with frightened faces we got up and set to the task of disentangling the oxen till such time as there should be light enough to enable us to follow the trail of the lioness which had gone off with Jim-Jim. And here you will find that he is footsore; turn him with infinite difficulty, we had got the great helpless brutes loose, it was only to find that one of them was very sick. There was no mistake about the way he stood with his legs slightly apart and his head hanging down. He had got the redwater; I was sure of it. Of all the difficulties connected with life and traveling in South Africa those connected with oxen are perhaps the worst. The ox is the most exasperating animal in the world, a negro slave. He has absolutely no constitution, and never neglects an opportunity of falling sick of some mysterious disease. He will get thin upon the slightest provocation, and from mere maliciousness die of 'poverty'; whereas it is his chief delight to turn round and refuse to pull whenever he finds himself well in the center of a river, or the wagon wheel nicely fast in a mud hole. Drive him a few miles over rough roads and you will find that he is footsore; turn him loose to feed and you will discover that he has run away, or if he has not run away he has of malice aforethought eaten tulip and poisoned himself. There is always something wrong with him. The ox is a brute. It was of a piece with his accustomed behavior for the one in question to break out—on purpose, probably—with redwater just when a lion had walked off with his herder. It was exactly what I should have expected, and I was therefore neither disappointed nor surprised.

"Well, it was no use crying, as I should almost have liked to do, because if this ox had redwater it was probable that the rest of them had it too, although they had been sold to me as 'salted,' that is, proof against such diseases as redwater and lung sick. One gets hardened to this sort of thing in South Africa in course of time, for I suppose hi no other country in the world is the waste of animal life so great.

"So, taking my rifle and telling Harry to follow me (for we had to leave Pharaoh to look after the oxen—Pharaoh's lean kine I called them), I started to go, if anything could be found of or appertaining to the unfortunate Jim-Jim. The ground round our little camp was hard and rocky, and we could not hit off any spoor of the lioness, though just outside the skerm we saw a drop or two of blood. About 300 yards from the camp, and a little to the right, was a patch of sugar bush, mixed with the usual mimosa, and for this I made, thinking that the lioness would have been sure to take her prey there to devour it. On we pushed through the long grass, that was bent down beneath the weight of the soaking dew. In two minutes we were wet through up to our thighs, as wet as though we had waded through water. In due course, however, we reached the patch of bush, and in the gray light of the morning cautiously and slowly pushed our way into it. It was very dark under the trees, for the sun was not yet up, so we walked with the most extreme care, half expecting every minute to come across the lioness licking the bones of poor Jim-Jim. But no lioness could we see, and as for Jim-Jim, there was not even a finger joint of him to be found. Evidently they had not come here.

"So pushing through the bush we proceeded to hunt every other likely spot about with the same result.

"I suppose some must have taken him right away," I said at last, sadly enough. "At any rate, he will be dead by now, so God have mercy on him, we can't help him. What's to be done?"

"I suppose that we had better wash ourselves in the pool and then go back and get something to eat. I am filthy," said Harry.

"This was a practical, if a somewhat unfeeling, suggestion. At least it struck me as unfeeling to talk of washing when poor Jim-Jim had been so recently eaten. However, I did not let my sentiment carry me away, so we went down to the beautiful spot that I have described to me. I was the first to reach it, which I did by scrambling down the ferny bank. Then I turned round and started back with a yell, as well I might, for from almost beneath my feet there came a most awful snarl.

"I had lit down almost upon the back of the lioness, who had been sleeping on the slab where we stood to dry ourselves after bathing. With a snarl and a growl, before I could do anything, before I could even cock my rifle, she had bounded right across the crystal pool and vanished over the opposite bank. It was all done in an instant, as quick as thought.

"She had been sleeping on the slab, and oh, horror! I what was that sleeping beside her? It was the red remains of poor Jim-Jim, lying on a patch of blood-stained rock.

"Oh! father, father!" shrieked Harry, 'look in the water.'

"I looked, there, floating in the center of the lovely, tranquil pool, was Jim-Jim's head. The lioness had bitten it right off, and it had rolled down the sloping rock into the water.

CHAPTER III.

"Poor Jim-Jim! We buried what was left of him, which was not very much, in an old bread bag, and though whilst he lived his virtues were not great, now that he was gone we could have wept over him. Indeed, Harry did weep outright, while I registered a quiet little vow on my own account that I would let daylight into that lioness before it was 48 hours older, if by any means it could be done.

"We buried him and there he lies where the lions will not trouble him any more. So there is an end of the book of Jim-Jim.

"The question that now remained was how to circumvent his murderer. I knew that she would be sure to return as soon as she would be hungry again, but I did not know when she would be hungry. She had left so little of Jim-Jim behind her that I should scarcely expect to see her the next night, unless indeed she had cubs. Still, I felt that it would not be wise to miss the chance of her coming, so we set about making preparations for her reception. The first thing that we did was to strengthen the bush wall of the skerm by dragging a large quantity of the tops of thorn trees together and laying them one on the other in such a fashion that the thorns pointed upwards. This, after our experience of the fate of Jim-Jim, seemed a very necessary precaution, since if were one sheep can jump another can follow, as the Kafirs say, how much more is this the case where an animal so active and so vigorous as the lion is concerned! And now came the further question, how were we to beguile the lioness to return? Lions are animals that have a strange knack of appearing when they are not wanted, and keeping studiously out of the way when their presence is required.

"Harry, who, as I have said, was an eminently practical boy, suggested to Pharaoh that he should go and sit outside the skerm in the moonlight as a sort of bait, assuring him that he would have nothing to fear, as we would certainly kill the lioness before she killed him. Pharaoh, however, strangely enough, did not seem to take to this suggestion. Indeed, he walked away, much put out with Harry for having made it.

"I gave me an idea, however.

"Well," I said, "there is that ox. He must die sooner or later, so we may as well utilize him."

"Now, about thirty yards to the left of our skerm, if one stood facing down the hill toward the river, was the stump of a tree that had been destroyed by lightning many years before, standing equidistantly between, but a little in front of, two clumps of bush, which were severally some fifteen paces from it.

"Here was the very place to tie the ox; and accordingly a little before sunset the poor animal was led forth by Pharaoh and made fast there, little knowing, poor brute, for what purpose; and we commenced our long vigil, this time without a fire, for our object was to attract the lioness and not to scare her.

"For hour after hour we waited, keeping ourselves awake by pinching each other—it is, by the way, remarkable what a difference in the force of pinches requisite to the occasion exists in the mind of pincher and pinchee—but no lioness came. The moon waxed and the moon waned, and then at last the moon went down, and darkness swallowed up the world, but no lion came to swallow us. We waited till dawn, because we did not dare to go to sleep, and then at last we took such rest as we could get.

"That morning we went out shooting, not because we wanted to, for we were too depressed and tired, but because we had no more meat. For three hours or more we wandered about in a broiling sun looking for something to kill, but absolutely with no results. For some unknown reason the game had grown very scarce about the spot, though when I was there two years before every sort of large game, excepting elephants and elephants was particularly abundant. The lions, of whom there were many, alone remained, and I fancy it was the fact of the game they live on having temporarily migrated that made them so daring and ferocious. As a general rule a lion is an amiable animal enough if he is let alone, but a hungry lion is almost as dangerous as a hungry man. One hears a great many different opinions expressed as to whether or no the lion is remarkable for his courage, but the result of my experience is that very much depends upon the state of his stomach. A hungry lion will not stick at a trifle, whereas a full one will flee at a very small rebuke.

"Well, we hunted all about and nothing could we see, not even a duck or a bush buck, and at last, thoroughly tired and out of temper, we started on our way back to camp, passing over the brow of a steepish hill to do so. Just as we got over the ridge I froze up like a pointer dog, for there, about 100 yards to my left, his beautiful curved horns outlined against the soft blue of the sky, I saw a noble koodoo bull (strepiceros kudi). Even at that distance—for, as you know, my eyes are very keen—I could distinctly see the white stripes upon its side when the light fell upon it and its large and pointed ears twitch as the flies worried it.

"So far so good; but how were we to get at it? It was ridiculous to risk a shot at that great dNum-o, and yet both the ground and the wind lay very ill for stalking. It seemed to me that the only chance would be to make a detour of at least a mile or more and come up on the other side of the koodoo. I called Harry to my side and explained to him what I thought would be our best course, when suddenly, without any delay, the koodoo saved us any further trouble by suddenly starting off down the hill like a leaping rocket. I don't know what had frightened it; certainly we had not. Perhaps a hyena or a leopard—a tiger as we call them—had suddenly appeared, at any rate it was running slightly toward us, and I never saw a buck go faster. As for Harry, he stood watching the beautiful animal's course. Presently it vanished behind a patch of bush, to emerge a few seconds later about 500 paces from us, on a stretch of comparatively level ground that was strewn with boulders. On it went, taking the boulders in its path in a succession of great bounds that were beautiful to behold. As it did so I happened to look round at Harry, and perceived to my astonishment that he had got his rifle to his shoulder.

"You foolish boy!" I ejaculated, "surely you are not going to—and just at that moment the rifle went off."

"And then I think I saw what was, in my way, one of the most wonderful things I ever remember in my hunting experience. The koodoo was at the moment in the air, clearing a pile of stones with its fore legs tucked up underneath it. All in an instant the legs stretched themselves out in a spasmodic fashion, and it lit on them and they doubled up beneath it. Down went the noble buck, down on to its head. For a moment it seemed to be standing on its horns, its hind legs high in the air, and then over it went and lay still.

"Great heavens!" I said, "why, you've hit him!" He's dead.

"As for Harry, he said nothing, but merely looked scared, as well he might. A man let alone a boy, might have fired a thousand such shots without ever touching the object, which, mind you, was springing and bounding over rocks quite 500 yards away, and here this lad, taking a snap shot and merely allowing for elevation by instinct, for he did not put up his sights, had knocked the bull over as dead as a door nail. Well, I made no further remark—the occasion was too solemn for talking—but merely led the way to where the koodoo lay. There he was, beautiful and quite still, and there, high up, about half way down his neck, was a neat, round hole. The bullet had severed the spinal marrow, passing right through the vertebra and away on the other side.

"It was a very early evening, when, having cut as much of the death of that koodoo to the credit of his own skill. Now, though the lad was a tidy shot enough, this of course was ridiculous, and I told him so very plainly.

"By the time that we had finished our supper of koodoo steaks (which would have been better if the koodoo had been a little younger) it was time to get ready for Jim-Jim's murderer again. All the afternoon Pharaoh told us the unfortunate ox had been walking round and round in a circle as cattle in the last stages of redwater generally do. Now it had come to a standstill, and was swaying to and fro with its head hanging down. So we tied him up to the stump of the tree as on the previous night, knowing that if the lioness did not kill him he would be dead by morning.

"Indeed, I was afraid that he would be of little use as a bait, for a lion is a sportsmanlike animal, and unless he is very hungry, generally prefers to kill his own dinner, though when once killed he will come back to it again and again.

"Then we repeated our experience of the previous night, sitting there hour after hour, till at last Harry went fast asleep, and even I, though I am accustomed to this sort of thing, could scarcely keep my eyes open. Indeed, I was just dropping off, when Pharaoh gave me a shove.

"I was all awake in a second, and listening with all my ears. From the clump of bush to the right of the lightning shattered stump to which the ox was tied came a faint crackling noise. Presently it was repeated. Something was moving there, faintly and quietly enough, but still moving perceptibly, for in the intense stillness of the night any sound seemed loud.

"I woke up Harry, who instantly said: 'Where is she? Where is she?' and began to point his rifle about in a fashion that was more dangerous to us and the oxen than to any possible lioness.

"I hush up! I whispered savagely; and as I did so with a low and hideous growl a flash of yellow light sped out of the clump of bush, past the ox, and into the corresponding clump upon the other side. The poor sick brute gave a sort of groan, and staggered round and then began to tremble. I could see it do so clearly in the moonlight, which was now very bright, and I felt a brute for having exposed the unfortunate animal to such terror as he must undoubtedly be undergoing. The lioness, for it was she, passed so quickly that we could not even distinguish her movements, much less shoot. Indeed at night it is absolutely useless to attempt to shoot unless the object is very close and standing perfectly still, and then the light is so deceptive and it is so difficult to see the foresight that the best shot will miss more often than he hits.

"She will be back again presently," I said: 'look out, but for heaven's sake don't fire unless I tell you to.'

"Hardly were the words out of my mouth when back she came and again passed the ox without striking him.

"What on earth is she doing?" whispered Harry.

"Playing with it as a cat does a mouse, I suppose. She will kill it presently."

"As I spoke the lioness once more flashed out of the bush, and this time sprang right over the doomed ox. It was an exciting sight to see her clear him in the bright moonlight, as though it were a trick that she had been taught.

"I believe that she escaped from a circus, whispered Harry; it's jolly to see her jump."

"I said nothing, but I thought to myself that if it was Master Harry did not quite appreciate the performance, and as I had no blame to him. At any rate, his teeth were chattering a bit.

"Then came a longish pause, and I began to think that she must have gone away, when suddenly she appeared again, and with one mighty bound landed right on to the ox and struck it a frightful blow with her paw.

"Down it went, and lay on the ground. She put down her wicked looking head with a fierce growl of contentment. When she lifted her muzzle again and stood facing us obliquely, I whispered, 'Now's our time, fire when I do.'

"I got on to her as well as I could, but Harry, instead of waiting for me as I told him, fired before I did, and that of course hurried me. When the smoke cleared, however, I was delighted to see that the lioness was rolling about on the ground behind the body of the ox, which covered her in such a fashion, however, that we could not shoot again to make an end of her.

"She's done for! she's dead," yelled Pharaoh in exultation; and at that very moment the lioness, with a sort of convulsive rush, half rolled, half sprang into the patch of thick bush to the right. I fired after her as she went, but so far as I could see without result. Indeed, the probability is that I had her clean. At any rate she did not touch the bush in safety, and once there, began to make such a diabolical noise as I never heard before. She would whine and shriek, then burst out into perfect volleys of roaring that shook the whole place.

"Well," I said, "we must just let her roar; to go into that bush after her at night would be madness."

"At that moment, to my astonishment and alarm, there came an answering roar from the direction of the river and then another from behind the swell of bush. Evidently there were more lions about. The wounded lioness redoubled her efforts, with the object, I suppose, of summoning the others to her assistance. At any rate they came, and quickly, too, for within five minutes, peeping through the bushes of our skerm fence, we saw a magnificent lion bounding along toward us through the tall tumboulin grass that in the moonlight looked for all the world like ripening corn. On he came in great leaps, and a glorious sight it was to see him. When within fifty yards or so he stood still in an open space and roared, and the lioness roared too, and then there came a third roar, and another great black maned lion stalked majestically up and joined No. 2, and really I began to realize what Jim-Jim must have undergone.

"Now, Harry," I whispered, "whatever you do, don't fire—it's too risky. If they let us see, let them be."

"Well, the pair of them marched off to the bush, where the wounded lioness was now roaring double tides, and the whole three of them began to snarl and grumble away together. Presently, however, the lioness ceased roaring and the two lions came out again, the black maned one first—to prospect, I suppose—and walked to where the carcass of the ox lay and sniffed at it.

"Oh, what a shot!" whispered Harry, who was trembling with excitement.

"Yes," I said, "but don't fire; they might all of them come for us."

"Harry said nothing, but whether it was from the natural willfulness of youth, or because he was thrown off his balance by a sudden or frost sheer recklessness, I am sure I cannot tell you, never having been able to get a satisfactory explanation from him; but at any rate the fact remains, he, without a word of warning, entirely disregarding my exhortations, lifted up his Westley Richards and fired at the black maned lion; and, what is more, hit it slightly on the flank.

"Next second there was a most awful roar from the injured brute. He glared around him and roared with pain, for he was sadly stung; and then, before I could make up my mind what to do, the great black maned lion, evidently ignorant of the cause of his pain, sprang right at the throat of his companion, to whom he evidently attributed his misfortune. It was a curious sight to see the evident astonishment of the other lion at this most unprovoked assault. Over he rolled with an angry roar, and on to him sprang the black maned demon, and commenced to worry him. This finally awoke the yellow maned lion to a sense of the situation, and I am bound to say that he rose to the occasion in a most effective manner. Somehow or other he got to his feet, and roaring and snarling frightfully closed with his mighty foe. And then ensued a scene that absolutely baffles description. You know what a shocking thing it is to see two large dogs fighting with abandonment. Well, a whole hundred of dogs could not have looked half so terrible as the situation, and I am bound to say that he rose to the occasion in a most effective manner. Mr. Geo. C. Mahon, of this city, has presented the University with about one hundred volumes pertaining especially to Irish history. Some are very rare, being records of chancery, state tracts, etc. The best modern works bearing on the Irish question of day are also included in the number. A file of the Dublin VVeekly Freeman containing the history of Fenianism, never published in book form, is greatly prized.

The Ann Arbor lodge, No. 320, I. O. G. T., have elected and installed the following officers for the ensuing quarter: C. T. Miss Sessions; V. T. C. P. Stone; P. C. T. H. N. Holmes; S. J. T. Miss Fletcher; secretary, J. C. St. Clair; A. S. Miss C. Strickler; F. S. W. H. Dorrance; treasurer, Miss Theurer; chaplain, A. J. Sweet; Mar. Harry Watts; D. Mar. Inz. Brokaw; I. G. Mary Blackburn; O. G. E. E. Hallett.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Morgan, corner State and Washington st, were pleasantly surprised, Monday night, by about 50 of their friends who desired to celebrate with them, the fifteenth anniversary of their marriage. Refreshments were served, and, as a testimonial of their good wishes, the assembled friends of the host and hostess presented them with an elegant crystal water set, consisting of water pitcher, goblet, and tray.

A. P. Ferguson, manufacturer of the celebrated Ferguson road carts, has lately been offered several good bonuses by various towns to remove his establishment from Ann Arbor, the latest and best offer having come from Toledo. That city offers $17,000 cash and land enough at the junction for his plant, and will also furnish him natural gas free. He considers this a fairly good proposition and has it under consideration.

Last Saturday by right of chattel, mortgage, Caspar Rinsey took possession of the personal property of the Franklin house, which has been so long conducted by that genial landlord, J. L. Stone. Mr. Stone is at present undecided what he will do, and for the time being will occupy rooms over Watts' store. N. Drake has given up his Huron-st saloon, and for Mr. Linsey is now in charge of the hotel, Lyman James owns the building.

The meeting at Fireman's hall, last Friday night, for the purpose of forming a society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, was hardly a SUCCESS in regard to attendance. Rev. Dr. Earp was elected temporary chairman, and Prof. Perry, temporary secretary. The chairman appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Perry, Nichol, and King, to report permanent organization in two weeks. Prof. Perry made some remarks about the nature of the organization in other places. An agent, or deputy sheriff is to be appointed by the society who will have jurisdiction at his own discretion any one guilty of violent abuse to dumb animals. The next meeting of the society will be on the evening of May 18.

There will be a Song service at the Unitarian church next Sunday evening, with a chorus of about 15 voices, consisting of the two chorus choirs of the church, assisted by Dr. Blanchard. This will close the evening services for the season.

Capt. Sidney W. Millard, of THE REGISTER press-room, was married, Tuesday evening, to Miss Sophie M. Walz, daughter of Ludwig Waiz, of West Liberty-st. Rev. Mr. Belsler performed the ceremony. About 50 friends and relatives were present. The young couple went to house keeping immediately, on West Huron-st, near Second-st. The presents given to them by their friends on this occasion make a fine display, and among them was a handsome clock from Co. A. Among the guests were A. J. Millard and family, of Detroit, and Mrs. Naylor, of Salem, and Mr. and Mrs. George Pfeifle and family, of Northfield.

Quite an enjoyable affair was the annual flower social in the Baptist church last Friday evening. Through the centre of the Sunday school room extended a long stand filled with choice house and foliage plants. Profs. Pattengill and Chute presided over this table, and sold rose-geraniums for Mexican cacti, with the charm and simplicity of Italian flower girls. To their right stood Misses Chaptin and Walker behind a table covered with dainty buttonhole bouquets, while on the other side of the room a crowd of children were gathered around Mrs. Kreeman who was finding a ready sale for her fruit and candies. In the adjoining room the sale of fancy work was going on under the direction of Mrs. Morgan and Miss Goodrich. A musical entertainment was given in the course of the evening, and supper was served between 8 and 9.

Last Saturday during the trial of Jacob Weidlich for stabbing John Weidman, a little fun occurred that was not down on the calendar. Prosecutor Norris allowed C. H. Kline, a young attorney, to open the case, for practice. Mrs. Mary Whiting, the lady attorney, was present, and D. Cramer, attorney for defendant, kindly offered to let her open the case for the defense, for the same reason. But this brought Mr. Norris to his feet with a storm of objections. Mr. Cramer insisted that Mrs. Whiting had the same right to speak, that Mr. Kline had, but Mr. Norris still objected. This was more than Mrs. Whiting could stand, and springing to her feet in tones of anger and contempt she 'rated the peoples' doughty prosecutor fo, his lack of politeness, telling him that hi' was "the biggest coward in the state of Michigan," and was afraid he would lose the case if she was allowed to address the jury. It is needless to add that Mr. Norris was knocked out in the first round.

THE CHAMBER CONCERTS.

What they Have Done for Ann Arbor, The Only Thing Lacking.

The Chamber concert of Thursday evening closed the most successful series of concerts ever given in Ann Arbor. Certainly no concerts have done as much for the real education of those who have been the habitual attendants upon all good musical entertainments, as the Chamber concerts. Outside of a very few large cities, no such series of programs are ever given, so that Ann Arbor is favored. The effort on the part of those who have planned the programs to make them neither heavy nor trivial has been fairly successful. This is no easy task, because the people are too much inclined to expect that each and every number will be within their immediate power of comprehension, forgetting that what will be pleasant to one class may not be to another, and that the programs should therefore aim at some thing for all classes.

The work of the Philharmonic club has been far better than in any previous year, showing growth in both interpretation and finish. Ann Arbor may well claim some credit for this in its faithful support of Messrs. Schultz and Yuncy, by their employment for so many concerts, and this is a pledge of future support.

The only thing lacking for the complete success of such a series of concerts is an accompanying analytical lecture, such as was given Thursday morning. The Saint-Saens quintet was then analyzed, the themes written out on the board, played, and then put in order, then those who had gained something of an idea of the nature of the composition by this study of the themes and their logical relations were invited in the rehearsal in the afternoon. There was nothing of a technical character in the morning's talk, but simply a practical presentation of ideas. The interpretation of the quintet in the evening by Miss Caruthers was not only intelligent but full of enthusiasm, giving a new proof of material for a true interpretative artist and not a virtuoso.

Miss Mary Shafter possesses a very fine voice, well trained, and a truly musical organism. Her interpretation of the "Una voce" was broad and finished, giving evidence, not only of study, but of a solid basis for future development. She won a well deserved encore. For the third time this season, Miss Winchell has brought the people under obligation for her thoroughly enjoyable singing. She shows a marked growth in musical understanding and interpretation.

High school Notes.

There will be a social given at the home of Miss Tichnor on Ingalls st, tomorrow evening, for the benefit of the Christian association.—The high school base ball team will probably play the University team tomorrow afternoon.—The Detroit high school nine has accepted the challenge of the Ann Arbor high school nine, and wish to play in Detroit June 2, and the return game July 1.—The question for debate in the Delta Epsilon society tomorrow evening is: Resolved, That "Further immigration to this country is detrimental." For the affirmative, Mr. Blair will speak, and for the negative Mr. Chaffee.

Licensed to Harry.

I. M. Long & Co. located in the P. O. Block, doing portrait work in India Ink and French Crayon, Pastel and Water colors, no have their reception room in readiness, and cordially invite visitors. Mr. Long himself has had seven years of experience in portrait work. He has with him A. R. Thomas, who spent eight years in the studio of his father, A. P. Thomas of Syracuse, New York, one of the most prominent artists of the East; he also spent two years under G. H. Croughton, a noted artist of London, England.—Mr. Thomas has worked in several of the eastern studios, and much of his work is in the homes of prominent families of New York city. The firm does exclusively portrait work. Their prices are from fifteen to twenty five per cent lower than those of other firms that do work which in any way compares with theirs in quality. The work itself proves its superiority.

No average library contains all in the way of political history and political economy that can be found in the famous Political Cyclopaedia. Besides containing the best thought of the great living authors on such subjects, it has a fine system of cross references which is a great aid to the student. THE REGISTER heartily recommends the work, and from actual use of it. The general agent, S. D. Pierce, is at the Arlington.

The M. C. will sell tickets to Detroit and return at half fare for the round trip on Saturday, May 12, Tuesday, May 15, and Saturday, May 19, on account of the base ball games.
