

THE ANN ARBOR REGISTER.

VOL. XV. NO. 4.

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, JANUARY 24, 1889.

WHOLE NO. 735.

ON THE CAMPUS.

Minstrel show probably some time next month.

The sophs, Saturday morning, accepted Mr. Kelly's resignation as class president, and then chose Mr. Page.

The Adrian Chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon came over recently and established a chapter in the literary department here.

The Choral Union have decided to give a concert in F-buury, in which will be rendered Gade's "Crusaders" and several parts a. ngs.

On Saturday next at 2 p. m., the university branch of the Michigan club will meet in the law lecture room for election of officers and to see about attending the great banquet in Detroit next month.

"Sol," Liepmannsohn, of THE REGISTER bindery, died at his home in Ann Arbor, Tuesday afternoon. "Sol" was always a favorite with the Argonaut boys, and we gladly pay this humble tribute to his memory.—Argonaut.

John William Keating, publisher of the Physician and Surgeon, and a member of the senior medical class, has been appointed medical examiner of division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians of Washenaw, and has already made over fifty examinations.

The Argonaut says: "If anything were needed to show that many of our college customs are fast dying out, the effort of '90 this week is a sure sign. When out of a class of over a hundred only three plugs appeared, in deference to as time-honored a custom as swing-ing, it certainly seems that college men in general need a bracing up."

The junior hop difficulty between the Argonaut and Chronicle frats has been patched up, and Feb. 15 is fixed for the great event, which will take place at the rink. The officers are as follows: J. K. Kemp, general chairman; W. L. Mann, chairman reception committee; T. N. Jayne, chairman arrangement committee; F. B. Close, chairman invitation committee.

Hobart Guild held a business meeting last Friday evening, followed by a social. At the business meeting there was some plain talk from Dr. Harp, and then it was decided that every member who did not attend at least five business meetings during the year, should be expelled. At the social Mrs. Warden sang, and Warden, '92, played a cello solo. There was also some dancing.

A new society to be called the Philological society of the U. of M., has been recently organized among a number of the professors, and will soon get into working. The membership is to be open to such students as are likely to be interested in the work to be pursued, and the regular monthly meetings are to be thrown open to the public. Papers are promised by Prof. Walter on Dante, by Mr. McCabe on the Philology of the Roman Languages, by Mr. Miller on Archeology, by Prof. Thomas on the English of Robert Elsmere, and several others are also in preparation.

Secretary Wade has on hand a strange case. In 1882 a young man entered the dental department under the name of W. T. Hathaway. On being asked what the initial "W" stood for, he said that he had always been called Willie, and supposed his name must be William. He was entered and graduated under this name. Now a letter is received from him from a hamlet in Kentucky, stating that he has discovered that his name is not William, but Wilbur Thomas. But even of this he does not seem to be certain, as in one place in his letter he says it is Wilbur Thomas, and in another Thomas Wilbur. But of one fact he is sure, his name is not William, and he wishes to have a diploma of graduation issued in his own name in place of the one he now has. The secretary has decided to issue the new diploma, but says this is the first time that he ever heard of a man who really did not know his own name.

The Detroit University club, 83 Fort street west, held its first annual meeting Tuesday evening. The following directors, to take office February 1, were elected: Wm. A. Butler, Jr., Geo. S. Hosmer, Cyrus E. Lothrop, Harry F. Lyster, Sidney T. Miller, Truman H. Newberry, Frederick W. Whiting, N. G. Williams, Jr., and Richard Storrs Willis. The treasurer's report showed the club to be in excellent financial circumstances. Upon the recommendation of a committee composed of S. M. Cutcheon, H. M. Duffield, W. Aikman, Jr., R. Mason and C. A. Lightner, appointed to draft a plan of organization for literary and scientific work, the club was divided substantially into eight equal sections, as follows: 1. Physics, abstract and applied, industrial arts; 2. political economy and sociology, 3. literature; 4. art; 5. law; 6. medicine and the sciences, not herein otherwise assigned; 7. history and geography; 8. ethics and metaphysics. Members will be assigned to the respective sections as nearly as possible in accordance with their choice. The club as a whole will give one literary entertainment during the month of January of each year, and each section will give an entertainment respectively on the fourth Tuesday of February, March, April, May, September, October, November and December. The report also includes an invitation to President Angell to address the club during the present month on some topic bearing upon the subject of post-graduate studies.

VOCATIONS AND AVOCATIONS.

Prof. Burke Hinsdale Before Unity Club.—Art and Music.

At Unity club, Monday evening, a tall, large, and powerful man, with a full flowing beard, stood before the audience and talked about vocations and avocations. Prof. Hinsdale has been in Ann Arbor less than a year, in the chair of the university formerly held by Prof. W. H. Payne. His fame had preceded him here, however; for, as the personal friend and biographer of Garfield, whose memory he tenderly cherishes, he had become widely known.

"The words vocation and avocation," said Prof. Hinsdale, "are widely separated in the dictionary, and are widely separated in meaning." Vocation is the ordinary, customary work selected by one to insure a support. An avocation is a pursuit aside, separate and apart from the ordinary pursuit or vocation. The two words are commonly confounded in conversational language, and there is lately the same tendency in literature. But they are distinct, and it would be unfortunate if the distinction were obliterated.

A well regulated life, Prof. Hinsdale thinks, calls for both a vocation and an avocation. So far as we can judge, the necessity for toil will never be lifted; men must continue to have vocations with which to support life. It is nature's law. According to Edward Atkinson, we in this country are constantly within one year of starvation, within two years of lack of clothing, and within three years of destruction, if production were to cease and consumption continue. The richest state in the union has not and probably never will accumulate more than a supply sufficient for three years. Some one went into the Rothschild's bank in Germany and complained of our system which permitted so much accumulation when the masses were poor. "How much is our accumulation here?" asked the banker. "$40,000,000." "How many people in Germany?" "40,000,000." "Well, here is your dollar."

A vocation is not miscellaneous activity. One may be active but not have a vocation. There never was a time when a vocation was so necessary to every one, as now, in a time of concentration, of specialized effort, and of competition. One's bodily and mental health demands employment, and it is a wise ordination of nature. Happiness is never obtained by an exclusive pursuit of her; she is a shy nymph.

But experience teaches that constant employment in one line narrows one's powers and dwarfs one's nature. As division of labor, and specialization of effort, are made necessary by our system, one should see the necessity for an avocation to draw him aside for a little while from that severe concentration which tends to make him strong but narrow. Unremitting application to a vocation tires and wears. Physiology tells us that unrelieved constant employment in one line wears. An avocation rests; it gives respite; it restores strength.

It is said that Rufus Choate, the great Massachusetts lawyer, translated every day some Latin or Greek passage into English.

According to General Garfield, Salmon P. Chase, when most wearied after a hard day's work as secretary of the treasury in war times, at night would read Tennyson or some other master of song.

Some have been renowned because of their vocations who would never have been known by their vocations. Spinoza's regular business was that of grinding lenses; but we know him as a philosopher.

Charles Lamb was employed in writing in ledgers for the East India company; but we love him for his essays.

John Stuart Mill is not known for his business, but for his avocation. George Grote was a banker; he is not known as a financier, but for his history of Greece. Antony Trollope is not remembered because of his skill in extending the post-office facilities of Great Britain, which was his regular business or vocation, but for his novels which he wrote at intervals in a business life.

It is worthy of remark that even those who are not engaged in what are classed the more dignified pursuits need avocations. He knew of a man whose business was to drive an express wagon, but his avocation was the study of birds, in which he found rest and cheer. There are only a few men who really know Shakespeare and one of them is Joseph Crosby, of Zanesville, O., who keeps a grocery store. Prof. Hinsdale closed his talk with a quotation upon the subject from Wilhelm Meister.

Mrs. C. M. Stone then read an essay to the club on art. The Baptist choir, composed of Prof. W. M. Skinner, A. D. Colgrove, Mrs. W. W. Beman, and Miss Allie Cramer, rendered two selections, and Prof. Skinner sang a solo.

Found in a Well.

On Tuesday as Michigan Central employees were cleaning out an old well or cistern opposite the freight depot, they found the body of an infant male child floating on the water. The well is 22 feet deep, and there was six feet of water. The well had not been used for eight years, and is located in a small building formerly used for pumping water. The building had been locked for two months except when it was opened to get a switch light. Dr. Kapp, after an examination of the lungs, testified before the coroner's jury that the child was born alive, and the indications are that it is a white child, having little if any African blood.

The Business Men.

The Ann Arbor business men's association held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening. It was well attended and much enthusiasm prevailed. Through some misunderstanding some members have not paid their dues for year ending June, 1888, but on the whole they have paid up well. The association is in a vigorous condition.

The committee reported upon the new charter for Ann Arbor, and a resolution was adopted requesting the legislature to pass the charter as soon as possible. Great satisfaction was expressed with that document.

A committee consisting of Eugene K. Frounoff, Henry S. Dean, and Frank Allmendinger, was appointed to draft suitable resolutions on the death of Christian Walker, of the firm of Walker Bros.

A resolution was adopted recommending the common council to erect a hospital for contagious and infectious diseases.

The publication committee was instructed to see to the distribution of what pamphlets describing Ann Arbor may yet remain.

Among the accounts ordered paid was about $65 premium on the insurance policy for the foundry operated by Reeves, Hunter & Co. The association had agreed to pay for the policy the first year, with the understanding that they employ 25 men.

FOOLING THE LITERARY CRITICS.

How Elmer S. Crawford Deceived the New York World and Shocked the Critics.

Elmer S. Crawford is publisher of the sensational Saginaw Telegram and son of Isaac Crawford, of Ann Arbor. He divides his time between concocting sensational stories for his paper and in admiring a poet friend and lawyer in Saginaw named Clarence Ladd Davis. Davis spends his time impartially between briefs and scribbling verses. The verses have been "sat down upon" by the cold critics of the press, who intimated that they were as devoid of poetic worth as the moon is of heat.

This grieved Mr. Crawford more than it did the poet. He decided to have revenge upon the people who presume to decide upon one's claim to literary fame. Getting hold of one of Davis's poems, he prepared a copy of it in such a manner that it seemed like an ancient manuscript purporting to have been written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. It contained the great poet's signature, apparently, and was dated 1835. He sent it to the New York World with a plausible explanation of finding the manuscript while settling up an estate, how the manuscript got there, and why it had never been published.

The editor of the World sent the poem to Rev. Samuel Longfellow, a brother of Henry, and asked for his decision as to its genuineness. The reverend clergyman replied that he was inclined to believe it genuine, but thought he had better correspond with some of the parties before pronouncing definitely. This was enough for the World. The poem was published as a great "find" and two columns of explanation and of self-laudation for the World's superior enterprise, were added.

The poem is entitled "Two Offerings." It was published on Jan. 6, by the World, and was caught up by the press generally at once, receiving much praise. Crawford was revenged, and the critics can hardly with decency deny the Saginaw lawyer some little merit.

He Knows How It Is.

The editor of one of the college papers, the Argonaut, has been there and in long-ling anticipation broke out as follows last week: "Perhaps the general student public does not know that Ann Arbor will soon possess one of the handsomest boulevards in the state. The new drive around Cedar Bend, which Professor Davis has surveyed and laid out, gives by far the most beautiful view of the river and hills that can be obtained anywhere. It will undoubtedly prove an extremely popular place for a Sunday walk with one's sister (?) when the f. b. a."

Small-pox in Ann Arbor.

Small-pox struck Ann Arbor last week, but not hard. A pharomic student named C. S. Daly was exposed in Lyons, N. Y., when at home during the holidays, and was vaccinated on the same day of the exposure and because of it. His arm troubled him severely, and last Saturday he called a physician who discovered that he had small-pox, there being a typical eruption on his back. The board of health immediately took charge of the case, vaccinated all who had been near him, and on Sunday evening removed him from his room in Frank Howard's house on Catharine st., to a vacant house on Mann st., where everything is done for his comfort. The wildest rumors have been circulated, but there was no foundation for them. There seems to be the most absurd fear of small-pox on the part of people who evince no alarm when diphtheria is around. There was some objection raised to placing Mr. Daly in the house on Mann st., by a few residents on that street, and one of the persons who remonstrated had diphtheria in his house not long ago and failed to report it. There is really no danger from small pox if one is vaccinated and does not unnecessarily go near a case. Diphtheria and scarlet fever, which are in Ann Arbor all the time nearly, are more to be feared.

NOTES IN A SUNBEAM.

As I lay on my couch in the glad noonday, Watching the sunbeams play, The atoms that danced in each separate ray, Exultingly seemed to say:

"Though humble we be, if the Infinite plan Most closely you will scan— All important, you will find, we have been to man, 'E'en since the world began.

"Indeed! In God's world it is clearly defined, That Adam, the first of mankind— From atoms of dust, most deftly combined, Was formed by the Infinite mind!"

If God in His wisdom, I musingly thought, With such as these hath wrought, My life hath a mission I'm unerringly taught, Though often sore distraught.

An encouraging word I can give to the heart That's pierced with sorrow's dart, And thus though shut in from the world's great mart, Can patiently set my part.

St. Louis, Jan. 22.—A terrible tragedy, resulting in the lynching of an old farmer named Henry Thomas, is reported from the little village of Boler, in Mercer County, this State. The particulars of which are given as follows: On Wednesday night Mr. Thomas having discovered that two of his four daughters had eloped with Charles and Samuel Hasbrouck gave chase, and overtaking the party shot and killed both the Hasbrouck boys and wounded one of his daughters, who has since died. On returning to his home with the two girls Thomas found that the other two daughters had eloped with Thomas Allison, an Edward Glasgow. Leaving the girl he had with him Thomas again started in pursuit of the others, whom he overtook and secured the girls without conflict, and when near his home he was taken prisoner by a mob of persons and hanged from the limb of a tree until he was dead. Public sympathy is strongly in favor of the lynchers.

ORIGIN OF CHAMPAGNE. The Discovery of the Effervescent Beverage Purely Accidental.

Champagne was discovered or invented by accident, like so many other things, says a writer in L'opinion Publique. About 1663 one Perignon was cellarer in a Benedictine convent in Hautvillers, Champagne. Providence had evidently marked him out for that position, and bestowed on him a strong head and a discriminating palate. The products of the neighboring vineyards were various, and, like a true Benedictine, Dom Perignon hit upon the idea of "marrying" the various wines. He had noted that one kind of soil imparted fragrance, another kindness, and discovered that a white wine could be made from the blackest grapes which would keep far better than the wine from white grapes. Moreover, the happy thought struck him that a piece of cork was a more suitable stopper than the flux dipped in oil which had heretofore served that purpose. His wine became famous and its manufacture extended throughout Champagne. Then he happened upon a still greater discovery—how to make an effervescent wine, a wine that burst out of the bottle and overflowed the glasses, whose fragrance and exhilarating qualities were doubled by this process. At that time the glory of the Roi Soleil was on the wane, and with it the splendor of the court of Versailles. The King, for whose special benefit liqueurs had been invented, found a game of his youthful energy as he sipped the creamy-foaming vintage that enlivened his dreary tete-a-tete with Mme. Maintenon. It found its chief patrons, however, among the band of gay young roysters, the future routes of the regency, whom the Duc d'Orleans and the Duc de Vendome had gathered round them at the Palais Royal and at Anet. At one of the famous suppers in the latter place the Marquis de Sillery who had turned his sword into a pruning-knife and devoted himself to the cultivation of his paternal vineyards—first produced the wine which for two centuries has made his name famous among wine-drinkers. At a given signal a dozen blushing damsels, scantly arrayed as Bacchante, loaded the table with bottles. They were raised with rapture, and henceforth champagne became an indispensable adjunct to all petits soupers.

Candidate at Washington found this question before him: "How far is the moon from the earth?" His reply was: "I don't know exactly, but it is so far that it won't influence me if I get my floor."

Popular Education. We sympathize with the feeling which often leads citizens to boast that no child born in this country need grow up in ignorance, and yet it is a fact many people who have learned to read and write have never taught themselves to think. A man who suffered from cough, consumption, bronchitis, scrofula, or "liver complaint," might read, till his eyes dropped out, how these and many other diseases have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, but if he had not taken the lesson to himself and test the virtues of this great medicine, his time would be thrown away.

For the Ladies. There are some complaints to which women are peculiarly liable, and from which they will suffer in silence for years, when they could be easily cured by the use of Pomeroy's Petrolene Plasters. Its healing and soothing properties have met with universal and unqualified commendation from all using them. Ladies who have never used them will find it to their advantage to try them. If they once do so, they will never be without them again. For sale by H. J. Brown, Dist. Agt. for Ann Arbor.

Fire-Insure Yourselves.

It is an established fact that the finest fire department in the world is that of New York City. Their champion fire engine company can harness up and get out of the engine house inside of two and one-half seconds. But this record is slow as the vengeance of the gods compared to the time made by Pomeroy's Petrolene Plasters in curing Rheumatism and Neuralgia Affections. 25 cents buys it from any druggist. Insure yourself at once by putting a plaster, have it in the house, and "Damp cold and storm, From night till morn, will not bring on Neuralgia." For sale by H. J. Brown, Dist. Agt. for Ann Arbor.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION IS ALSO THE BEST COUGH MEDICINE. If you have a Cough without disease of the Lungs, a few doses are all you need. MESSES. PROCTER & GAMBLE, CINCINNATI, O.

GENTLEMEN:—Although a stranger to you, and my testimonial entirely unnecessary, as it certainly is unsolicited, yet I take great pleasure in testifying to the excellence of your IVORY SOAP, and thanking you for putting it on the market at so low a price. It has entirely supplanted the use of Castile and other fine soaps in my household for several years past, being in no way inferior and from fifty to seventy-five per cent. more economical. A good test I find for the purity of a soap is to try it with a brush for cleansing the teeth, and the taste of the Ivory so used is perfectly sweet and clean.

Very Respectfully Yours, W. S. BAKER, M.D.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it. Copyright 1886, by Procter & Gamble.

GENTS:—I feel it my duty to say respecting Burdock Blood Bitters, that it is the best medicine I ever took. I suffered two or three years from stomach troubles and dyspepsia as well as from liver and kidney complaint. I was not able to attend to my business. My wife was afflicted in much the same way. We read of your Bitters in the papers and made up our minds that we would try them. The result is, my wife and I began to improve at once, and I am now able to do more hard work than before in ten years. I would have my kidney troubles as well. We feel a wish you, the maker of it, God speed. JOSEPH L. BROWN, Lowell, Vt.

VOTING BY MACHINERY.

Is it possible to vote by machinery? The discussion of the Australian method of voting has brought forward an ingenious voting machine, for which great things are claimed.

This machine was invented by John W. Rhines, a printer of St. Paul, Minn., since last May. Considering the perfection machinery has reached, there is nothing improbable in the idea of recording one's vote by touching a series of buttons.

THE UNIVERSITY CLINIC.

The Evening News of Jan. 16 attempted to throw discredit upon President Angell's report on the question of removing the clinic to Detroit.

President Angell cited certain European medical schools, as Tubingen, Bonn, Jena and Wurzburg, as proof that medical colleges can be successfully carried on in small cities.

Well, that acknowledges all that we want to prove by citation to the German schools, and all, we imagine, that the president thought of proving.

While we can cite to medical schools having fair clinical facilities in small towns, we do not know of a medical school that conducts part of its work in one town and part of it in another.

It may be considered, then, as settled that there is no great obstacle to securing fair clinical facilities in Ann Arbor.

We can say in reply to this that Detroit's clinical facilities, as shown by President Angell and as acknowledged by the president of the state medical society, are not so vastly greater than are now afforded in Ann Arbor.

There ought to be a good vigorous kick against such a proposal. The small-pox outbreak in Azalia now includes 14 cases. The town is well guarded, and no one is allowed to leave except one or two whose business it is to provide necessities.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR MACDONALD, for whose sad death by a railroad accident the flags in Ann Arbor have been at half mast this week, was born in northwest Invernesshire, Scotland, nearly 57 years ago.

clinical advantages than are supplied by our medical department, we think it would be inadvisable to attempt running the department in two places.

Furthermore, with the medical department removed to Detroit, there would be seen the necessity of duplicating some of the chairs; for the medical department fits into other departments here.

"A large number of the professors who do work in the medical department are engaged in work in other departments. The clinics are matters referred to by lecturers every day, and these lectures are often illustrated by subjects from the hospitals or by reference to them.

It was a little less than two years ago, when the Times suggested the name of Prof. W. J. Cocker as a candidate for the position of Regent of the University.

And we bring his name forward at this time with more readiness, from the fact that we have distinct assurance that Gov. Blair will not, under any circumstances, be a candidate for re-nomination or re-election.

At this time, Prof. Cocker is 42 years old, and, as is well known here, is a graduate of the university, in which his respected father held a professor's chair for so many years.

In 1878 A. S. Barnes & Co., of New York, published a "handbook on punctation," of which he was the author. A "text book on the civil government of Michigan" was published in 1880 by the Richmond and Backus company, of Detroit.

The Harpers, of New York, have now in press for him, and will issue probably within a fortnight, a "work on the government of the United States," and we are told that prominent critics, to whom the Harpers submitted the manuscript before taking the publication, pronounced it the best book of the kind ever written.

Mr. Cocker is a gentleman of ample means. In addition to his literary labors he devotes himself to the management of his important business interests, and is at present president of the Commercial Savings Bank.

The Republican state convention two years ago was held on Wednesday, Feb. 23d, in Whitney's opera house, in the city of Detroit. The house had been engaged for the evening by an amateur opera company, and the contention over the nomination of candidates for the supreme bench took up so much of the time, that Mr. Whitney finally threatened to turn out the lights on the convention, as it was encroaching too much on the time necessary for preparation for the opera company; and, as it was, the audience to the opera began to arrive within an hour of the time the delegates left the opera house. The nominations for regents were made amid great confusion. Competent observers were of the opinion, and still maintain it, that, had ample time been allowed for the nomination for regents, and had the vote been taken amid less confusion, Prof. Cocker would have been nominated at that convention.

Prof. Cocker will go into the convention to be held in Detroit on the 21st of February, as he did before, with a solid backing from the county in which he makes his home.

He is a man splendidly equipped for the occasion, and we are certain he ought to be nominated.

The Great Comic Opera Success.

"A trip to Africa," after its distinct New York success with a company that contained such a grand quartet as Laura Bellini, Hubert Wilke, Agnes Stone and Harry Brown, would have made certain of a large welcoming audience in "A Trip to Africa," as it was put on the stage, such was the fact with the Duff Opera Company. It was very handsomely mounted and costumed. The Oriental dresses of the chorus were rich in harmonious color; a troop of real mulatto spear-bearers in the ballet, choruses of charming dance music sung in good time and tune, and scenery upon which both artistic taste and mechanical ingenuity had been expended, all contributed to charm the senses with surprise and pleasure and to please all tastes. In the second act the scene is laid in the region known as the "Banks of the Nile." The audience looks due south up that interesting river as far as the Albert Nyanza, over which a full moon is rising. Presently, upon the order of Titania Fanani, who is most amply personated by Miss Laura Bellini, the water begins to rise. Gradually the stream swells into its banks, and by the time the chorus turns to brimming river indeed. It is really a very nice piece of stage effect, and it took by surprise as seen an old stager in theatrical management last evening as ever deserved the thanks of a Brooklyn audience. "Bless my soul," said he, as he had recourse to the glasses he consents to wear only in private, "that river seems to be widening." And so it certainly was. The piece is full of life, because Harry Brown is in it; of beauty and melody because Laura Bellini, in spite of all attempts to make herself look sweet seventeen, is all there; of chic and comedy the talented Miss Agnes Stone has a scene and a song all to herself in the second act. Mr. Hubert Wilke looks and sings magnificently as we know all people on the "Banks of the Nile" usually do when they are not playing tragedy, and dresses gorgeously. The Duff Opera company will be at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night Jan. 31. Sale of seats will open on Monday morning.

LITERARY NOTES.

We understand that D. Lothrop Company have in press a remarkably strong story by a New York lady which is said to be a refutation of much of "Robert Elsmere."

Dakota has 4,065 public schools. They are supported by a direct tax upon the people, amounting in a recent year, to $1,633,561—a sum which Mr. P. F. McClure says, in Harper's Magazine for February, is larger than that devoted to the same purpose by any one of twenty-four States.

The Magazine of Art for February is a notable number. Its frontispiece is one that every American will want to cut out and frame the moment he sets his eyes upon it, for it is probably the best portrait of Mr. Gladstone that has ever been published. The original is Millais' painting and this has been reproduced by the photogravure process with remarkable accuracy. A few pages further on and we are given a paper on "Mr. Gladstone and his Portrait, by T. Wemyss Reid, which is illustrated with capital engravings from various portraits and caricatures, a full page being devoted to the portrait made by Watts in 1858.

To bridge over the dull months of January and February, Koch & Heune have concluded to offer their customers special inducements in furniture and carpets.

Last week Burchfield sold 185 pair of Pants. Burchfield is a boomer, but where his profit comes in is the question. At $4.00 a pair we think the more he sells of them the worse he is off, but that is the public's belief.

DEAR SIR:—I take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the Ohio Fire Ins. Co.'s draft for two thousand dollars with under discount, in full payment for the loss by fire of my house which burned on the evening of the 13th of December last. To the People of Saline.

Mrs. Mary A. Krause wishes to say to the people of Saline that the trouble between herself and Mrs. Elizabeth Corden is finished and that she (Mrs. C.) signed a paper in lawyer Cramer's office saying she was sorry she had made any such statements for she had no cause for them, as she knew nothing of the kind. Mrs. K. has papers in her possession showing that she had signed such papers.
