

Anon, he saw a face, and dreams were done. When Jennie's voice spoke tremulous and low. A light broke round him like the cheery sun. And Venus murmured, 'Cupid, bring your bow!'

"Rats!" said I; "it's lucky I took the peppermint. I don't feel very well as it is. When I began to feel a little better I decided that that poem had got to be fixed. It didn't seem to me to breathe the spirit of the writer. It needed something a little more definite about his personal appearance and that sort of his. Besides, I didn't like to be entirely left out of it myself; so I eat down and wrote a revised edition of it. I had to hurry up, for Algy wasn't going to stay long that night, because he was coming on the next. So I stirred up the muse, as Algy would say, as lively as I could, and this was what I put down:

The poet wrote his girl a little song; It was so pretty that it made him proud. The poet's form was thin; his hair was long; His old plaid ulster was a trifle loud. Aron, gadzooks, he was a holy show; He sat with Jennie till the rising sun. And when it seemed as if he'd never go The old man murmured, 'Johnny, get the equal!'

This struck me as being too true to nature, and besides, it gave me a show, so I folded it up nicely, put it into the envelope and sealed it. Then I slid down stairs and put it back where I found it. I wasn't any too soon, for Algy came out in two or three minutes and put on his coat. He took the letter out of his pocket, and struck an attitude while he looked at it. Jennie wanted to see the address, but he wouldn't let her. "Not yet," he said, and then he sighed. "Ah, it is a fragment of my soul." Then she giggled, because she knew it was the valentine, but I simply gazed over the banisters and smiled to think whose soul those lines were really chopped off of.

The next day I made it a point to get down to the postoffice before anybody else and get the mail. I had begun to have some suspicions. Jennie might know my handwriting, in spite of all the pains I'd taken with it, and if she did, I was afraid I might not live to see the fun in the evening. So I took the mail for the family and went off and had a snowball battle. Jim Hewitt gave me a part of his supper, according to an arrangement we have in case one of us is afraid something is waiting for him at home, and I didn't show up at the house till after 7 o'clock.

I gave Jennie the valentine just as Algy rang the door bell. She put it into her pocket and I ran and crawled under the sofa in the parlor, where I could see the fun. It's easy enough to hide in that parlor, because they never have light enough to see a fellow with. At first they didn't say anything about the valentine; they just talked nonsense. Algy appeared to think that it was a special occasion and he must let himself loose. He talked sentimental stuff and quoted poetry till our cat got up off the rug, crawled out to the medicine closet and pulled the stopper out of a bottle of Jamaica ginger with her teeth.

Finally Algy said: "Did the post bring you me lines?" "Yes," said Jennie, and I could see that she didn't feel easy about it. She was afraid to confess that she hadn't read them. The poet hove a eigh with a question mark after it. "They were so sweet," said Jennie, "so like you; so full of soul."

"Ah, yes," murmured the poet, "that is; brief but full of soul. I flow sweet is appreciation!" "They were sort of brief," said Jennie, catching at this 6crap of information. "Why didn't you make 'em longer?" "The muse, the muse," said Algy, "she bade me whisper only one soft word into your shell like ear."

The shell like ear tickled Jennie nearly to death, but she didn't understand about the one word. Could it be possible that Algy had written a poem with only one word in it? That was the question she was thinking of so hard that I could almost hear her brain go. I didn't wonder that she was in doubt, because Algy is capable of anything when he gets started. "It was a—a very—soulful—word," she stammered, finally, "Uio soulfullest word I almost ever saw."

It was getting too warm for her, and she had to excuse herself for a minute. I knew what she was after. She went out and read my soulful poem under the hall lamp. There wasn't much light, and Jennie was pretty well muddled in her mind, so that she didn't notice that anything was the matter with the verses. She got an idea how long they were and that there was a poet mentioned in the first part of it, and a gun in the last. "I thought my idea of Cupid's arrow and the fateful shot was rather clever," said Algy, as she got back. (Concluded on Second Page.)

Detective Inlarrt. of Jackson, Comes to Ann Arbor About the Crouchi Murder.

During this week, an old, seedy-looking individual has been around the city apparently very busy, but at the same time very secretive. Yesterday it developed that the man was detective Ballard, of Jackson, and that his business here was following a clue in the mysterious Crouch murder, in Jackson county, several years ago. Ballard was at one time in the employ of the Crouch family hunting for the murderers, but feeling himself handicapped, he has been working for the rewards for the past three years.

Ballard was convinced that there was one man living, who although perhaps not implicated in the crime, undoubtedly knew more about it than had ever been made public. This man was named Hiram Winchell, and he was about Jackson at the time of the murder. He had traced Winchell all over the country but had never been able to locate him.

Ballard traced the history of the man about the time of the murder, and found that he was in Jackson the morning following. He was met driving out of the city by a farmer whom he had had dealings with, early on the morning after the murder. The farmer told him to stop at his house and get something to eat, and he would see him when he returned from Jackson. The farmer learned of the Crouch murder on arriving at Jackson, and on getting back home told his wife that the whole Crouch family were stabbed that night. The visitor spoke up and saw, "No, they were shot." Although he has been at the house all the morning, he had not mentioned the affair until this time.

The detective asserts that his man was at the Crouch homestead a short time before the murder, and that he warned the servant girl (who said on the trial that she had heard no pistol shots) that if she heard anything strange that she must not mention it or she would be killed. The detective asserts that he had knowledge of other damaging circumstances concerning the affair and is satisfied that if the suspect was not an accessory to the murder, at least he knows the details and who the murderers were.

The detective had a photograph of the man that he was after, and yesterday morning asked Philip Duffy, who lives near Whitmore Lake to identify it. Mr. Duffy pronounced it a likeness of a man named Hiram Winchell, who was working for him on his farm. He said that the man had worked for him at different times during the past six years, but was not working for him at the time of the Crouch murder. He says Winchell is a quiet, hard-working man, about 39 years old and unmarried.

Detective Ballard, feeling sure that he now had the man he wanted within his grasp, left immediately for Mr. Duffy's farm, accompanied by ex-Sheriff Walsh. They were to have returned by six o'clock last evening, but had not returned at noon today, and it is impossible to say whether they had the right man or not. The officers returned today after taking Winchell's statement. They claim that he imparted information which will be valuable in tracing the clues they now have.

A KNIGHTLY VISITATION.

Northville Knights Templar Visit the Ann Arbor Commandery.

Tuesday was a day of activity and bustle among the local knights templar, the occasion being the visitation of Northville commandery, No. 39, K. T., to Ann Arbor commandery, No. 13, K. T. At 4:30 in the afternoon, Ann Arbor commandery turned out with forty men in line, and headed by the Chequamegon band, marched to the T. & A. depot, where they met their guests, who came, 36 strong, by special train. After extending knightly courtesies to each other, the two commanderies formed in line and marched to the asylum of Ann Arbor commandery making an imposing appearance in their handsome regalia. Supper was served at the Cook House to the guests of the evening. Northville commandery was officered with Wm. Harlan, Eminent Commander; Frank Clark, Generalissimo; Dr. J. M. Collier, Captain-General; and Rev. Henry Hudson, prelate.

In the evening, Northville commandery exemplified the order of the Temple upon one of the oldest residents of this city, James M. Wilcoxson, doing the work in points of execution and precision far superior to any that our local knights had ever seen. After the work, two lines were formed and the commanderies marched to the drill room where a sumptuous banquet had been prepared. The tables presented a handsome appearance, being formed in the shape of a cross, and pyramids of flowers and fruits were displayed on every side. Covers were laid for a hundred, and every seat was occupied. During the banquet the Chequamegon orchestra discoursed sweet music, and the famous Apollo quartette sang several selections.

After the banquet, Chas. E. Hiscock, Eminent Commander of Ann Arbor commandery, acting as toast-master, called for responses from the prominent members present. The responses were all impromptu and were bright and lively. H. F. Adams, P. E. C., responded to "Northville Commsndery." Wm. G. Doty, P. E. C., who is Grand Generalissimo of the Grand Commandery of Michigan, responded to "Our Grand Commandery."

J. M. Collier responded to "Advantages of Fraternal Visitation." B. F. Watt?, Past Grand High Priest of the Grand Chapter of Michigan, responded to "The Grand Chapter." Remarks were also made by Frank M. Clark, a member of the State Board of Fish Commissioners, Julius E. Beal, Kev. Henry Hudson, John R. Miner, and the candidate of the evening, James M. Wilcoxson, who enjoyed the distinction of being the oldest and at the same time the youngest member of Ann Arbor commandery. After a song by the Apollo quartette, the exercises concluded, and the guests departed for their distant homes.

Jail Inspection. The inspectors of jails for Washtenaw county visited the county jail on Monday and made a thorough inspection of the buildings and examined the records for the six months preceding the examination. The board consists of J. Willard Babbitt, judge of probate; D. B. Greene, county agent of the state board of corrections and charities; and Elisha Loomis, E. P. Mason and C. H. Kempf, county superintendents of the poor. They found the building in good condition, excepting that the cellar is not properly drained. They also found that no special room is provided for prisoners arrested under a civil process, as is required by law. There are eight persons now confined in jail, five serving sentence and three awaiting trial. Prisoners awaiting trial have been held in jail 32 days, three days and two days, respectively.

The record of the jail shows that during the past six months 209 prisoners have been confined in the county jail. The offenses charged against the prisoners confined during that time were as follows: Drunk and disorderly, 51; assault, 2; assault and battery, 6; disorderly, 10 males and 2 females; larceny 14; drunk, 98 males and 2 females; larceny from the person, 4; vagrancy, 7; receiving stolen property, 2; insane, 1; beggary, 2; forgery, 1; burglary, 2; keeping house of ill-fame, 3 females; threat, 1; bastardy, 1. Total, 202 males and 7 females.

The inspectors recommended that the cellar be tiled and the bottom cemented. They also recommended that special rooms be assigned prisoners confined on civil process? Wright's Myrrh Tooth Soap gives pearly white teeth, purifies the breath, prevents teeth from decay. Sold by all druggists.

THE POET'S VALENTINE.

"Yes, it was clever, av'nt? crier; > like you," said Jennie, more confused than ever. "I noticed right off that somebody got shot, but I thought it was with a gun."

The poet evidently took this for a bashful maiden's joke, and he smiled a weird, ead smile.

"No, it was a bow," he said; "Cupid's bow. Venus calls to Cupid, don't you remember?"

"Was his other name Johnny?" asked Jennie, who isn't very well up in mythology. "I thought she called him Johnny."

"No, his name isn't Johnny. After a little experience with your brother, I can't imagine how you could think anything nice could be called Johnny. I am afraid you would make mock of my lines."

Jennie was indeed in tears. "Oll, no; almost I'm not," she said. "It was ever so sweet, and I'll keep it always. It was so very in its sentiment. I never saw anything so delicately worded as that apology for your ulster. But you needn't have said a word. I think it's a pretty one."

"My ulster," said Algy, opening his eye very wide; "excuse me, but if the poet's cloak of dreams is going to be called an ulster, and if the poet is expected to apologize for wearing it, perhaps we would better part even thus."

"No, no; don't go," pleaded Jennie. "I'm sure you said something about your ulster. Please let me read it to you."

The poet subsided into a chair and Jennie took out her little valentine and sprung it on him. At first he started all the time. At the first line he faced to say something, but he couldn't; his jaw dropped lower and lower, until it rested on his shirt bosom. At the end he shut it with a snap, and started up.

"Who has tampered with my verse—who, who?" he howled, and then his tone changed to the sarcastic. "So these are the soulful lines that were so like me. Go, woman, we are apart."

"Why, aren't they yours?" sobbed Jennie. "Mine? Oh, horrors! Come, let me see them under a brighter light," and he turned up the gas.

I regret to state that all this light on the subject revealed the author. Algy saw my feet sticking out from under the sofa. I do not propose to humiliate myself by relating what followed. He is a good deal bigger than I am, any way, but I'm growing all the time, and some day I will break a certain low down poet I know of right square in two.

I don't care, any way. Jennie's done with him, and perhaps the next fellow she fascinates will know enough to make himself solid with her brother.

HOWAUJ FELDINO.

St. Valentim's. In 1667. Pepps in his famous diary has something to say about St. Valentim's day, 1667.

"This morning came up to my wife's bedside (I being up dressing myself) little Will Mercer to be her valentine, and brought her name written on blue paper in gold letters done by himself very pretty, and we were both well pleased with it.

"But I am also this year my wife's valentine and it will cost me £5, but that I must have laid out if we had not been valentines."

Two days after he adds: "I find that Mrs. Pierce's little girl is my valentine, she having drawn me, which I was not sorry for, it easing me of something more than I must have given to others. But here I do first observe the fashion of drawing mottoes as well as names, so that Pierce, who drew my wife, did draw also a motto, and this girl drew another for me. What mine was I forgot, but my wife's was, 'most courteous and most fair,' which, as it may be used as an anagram upon each name, might U> very pretty."

An Omission. To maidens fair the day assign? A choice of glowing valentines, And you are sure among that lot To read these words: "Forget me Not. On valentines for every year Unfailing do they appear, And yet how funny this request— The sender is most fearful lest You should forget Yet to his sham He Dover thinks to send his name."

"Jim, The Limit it."

A. M. Palmer's company in "Jim, The Penman," which comes to us shortly, it said to be a new departure in English type writing, and make what one kinerely hopes will be a period of literary art-tie production among English draughtsmen. It is now some years since reformatist and naturalness were demurded in the art of acting; but the play Wrights were behind in progress and preserved the old British language and the forced situation which belonged to the era of artificiality. Here at last is a play which is melo-dramatic in essence although clothed in the habiliments of high comedy; it is written in language of every day use, which is yet so handied as to be pointed ami effective; it depends for its power not upon the work of the carpenter or scenic artist, and it holds the interest by the ingenious development of the plot and with no appeal to the morbid curiosity which is satisfied by the revelation of moral or material slums. Take Wilkie Collins' skill in telling a story of mystery, and suppose it transferred to a dramatist, and one has before his mind's eye the quality of talent displayed by Sir Charles Young in this great work.

Mr. Daily's case.

To the Editor of THE REGISTEK.

MR.—NOW H A> U K S. Daily has recovered from small-pox, been discharged, returned home, I wish to correct a few statements that have been made concerning him. 1st. "That Mr. D. knew he had been exposed to small-pox and then allied to Ann Arbor." This statement is false; he had no knowledge of exposure, he happened to be in Lyons, N. T., where here were a few cases, but did not go within half a mile of houses containing small-pox patients; he was vaccinated there before he came here. 2d. "The uses in the city; for the same reason that nisi y in A. A. have been recently vaccinated." His first knowledge of exposure came with the expose. 2nd. It had been stated that it was a case of "mistaken diagnosis." This statement, also, is false; diagnosis from the first was, mild case of HHHH pox (Tarioloid) and there occurred no reason for changing it. As attending physician, I had opportunities to know inn; the board of health did all that could be done to prevent spreading of disease and to make Mr. Daly comfortable. The good results in both cases speak for themselves.

Respectfully yours, J. N. MARTIN M. D. ANN ARBOR MICH F b 11, 1889.

LIT I IAHV SOTES.

I will be remembered that two prizes, one of $700 and the other of $300, were offered by the Congregational Sunday school and publishing society for the two MSS. best suited for Sunday school books. As can readily be inferred, the offers excited a large number of competitors. The committee of award has but recently completed its difficult and taxing labors. The first prize has been awarded to "Rose Hill of Thorn," by Katharine Lee Bates, of Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass., and the second to "A Titled Maiden," by Mrs. Caroline A. Mason, of Brockport, New York.

Mrs. Oscar Wilde appears as a contributor in "The Woman's World" for March (Cassell & Cjtnpan), as does the famous novelist "Ouida" and the equally famous author of "How to be Happy Though Married."

Wide Awake has this year taken a new hold on popularity—if such a thing could be possible. The capital serials of Trowbridge and Margaret Sidney furnish one reason for this; the unexcelled character of all the contents provide another. No household can afford to be without it.

Margaret Mather as Juliana.

Miss Mather assumed the part of Juliana in "The Honeymoon," last evening in the Union Square theatre, and made a very favorable impression on her audience. The passion of Juliet and the woe of Leah have displayed her ability in tragedy and lugubrious melo-drama to such advantage as to win her the genuine and continued favor of the public, and her efforts last evening earned for her an added fame as a comedian. In comedy, as in tragedy, Miss Mather makes her effects by force of stage intelligence and physical attractiveness and power—not by, in any sense, making herself the character she seems to be. Her success with the audience is therefore the more creditable to her energy and persistency, for she plays her roll with unflagging industry and determination, and so compels recognition. Her chief scenes, her by-play, and all are well learned and carefully executed, and she conquers. Her Juliana is, at all events, an interesting performance. She has already so thoroughly enlisted the regard of the New York public that those who have seen her Juliet or her Leah will desire to see her Juliana, and will be repaid.

THE CLorDS ABOVE US.

Low the Reflection of the Klrtrric LigUKOI Itelroit mid Y>silanti Aid In f-cleillific Kes-ar-eli—An Inter-trentint Interview with I'ml. Harrington.

"How high are the clouds above the earth's surface? Well, that depends on what day or at what time you measure them," remarked Prof. Mark W. Harrington, director of the university observatory, last Friday evening in response to a query from a RECITER reporter. "You see the clouds vary greatly in the altitude they attain. But I'll tell you one thing: I don't believe much in these measurements that tell us that the lower side of the cloud is twelve or fourteen miles above this earth. I have been making a series of observations (recently) and the highest cloud that I could discover was only about three miles and a half above us. Of course the clouds extend much higher than this, but the lower side is what I measure."

"Do you know how we figure in estimating the height of the clouds and other things above us?" he continued. "It is all done by triangulation, the same method a surveyor uses when surveying across a lake or river. There are several methods in vogue of obtaining the angles to work on, but none have been proven satisfactory. One way has been to establish two stations about a mile apart and having the operators get the angles on the same spot of a cloud at the same instant. Having the angles and the base line, it is an easy matter to figure out the height. But the trouble in these calculations is that the observations will not be made at exactly the same instant, or that the two observers will not get the angles on the same spot in the cloud. Another method is to photograph the cloud from two different points at the same time, the same results being obtained as in the first method. Another trouble with this method is that it is almost impossible to locate the same spot on the two negatives. Still another way is by taking the shadow of the cloud on the ground and triangulate it with the sun."

"All these methods are faulty, but I have recently discovered a method by which I can measure the height of the clouds accurately and with little trouble. Perhaps you remember of reading an article some time ago regarding our being able to see the reflection of the electric lights at Detroit and Ypsilanti on the clouds above? Well, those same electric lights at these two places have proven a boon to us and have enabled us to make our measurements of the floating bodies by a very simple method. We know the distance to Ypsilanti from the observatory to be just 5.8 miles, and to Detroit about thirty-five miles. We make our observations of the reflection of these lights on the clouds above and by triangulation easily discover their altitude. The Ypsilanti lights being so near, the reflection is greater and more easily observed. The reflection of the lights at Detroit appears to be about the size of a man's hand and is not easily seen. In fact, we can make no observation of the reflection of the Detroit lights unless the state of the atmosphere is about right. The reflection of the Detroit lights appears just above the horizon, and nearly due east from the observatory. Sometimes the horizon splits the reflection, it is so low, but we cannot make our observations then. Only when the clouds are high up in the air can we see this reflection from the Detroit lights. Hence, in all our observations made on the Detroit reflection the clouds have proved to be far higher than when we made our observations on the Ypsilanti reflection. This discovery of measuring the clouds in this method was like many discoveries of science, a mere chance. At first we saw nothing of importance in these reflections, but it gradually dawned upon us that there could be no better or more accurate method of measuring the height of the clouds than by measuring this reflection. This idea had never been brought out before, but since I discovered it, I have written to numerous astronomers who are situated so that they can see the reflections of the lights of distant cities and they pronounce it a success in their observations."

"The results of our measurements have shown the highest altitude of any cloud so far to have been 17,580 feet above the earth's surface, and the lowest 770 feet. Usually the clouds are only about a half mile above us."

"We often find one singular thing about the height of the clouds—it is continually changing in one direction. In a series of observations made every half hour the first measurement may show the clouds very close to the earth, but each succeeding measurement shows them rising until by midnight they probably will have attained an altitude twice as high as the first observation shows. Or, if the first observation shows the clouds high in the air, by midnight they will undoubtedly be much closer to the earth. They are always gradually rising higher or falling lower. The electric lights in this city neither bother us or assist us in our observations, unless we are following a star close to the western horizon. Then the light is often too strong and interferes with our work."

Little Cupid, sprightly elf, At this season shows himself. There are signs of his mischief. But we catch a glimpse today Of the little fellow's work— And, indeed, he is no shirk. At all other times we know He is always "on the go." But today, 'tis plain to see, Little Cupid's on a spree. Weeks ago, in his spare time, He began composing rhyme; Then before an easel stood Till his valentines were made. An I today, when they are done, Little Cupid has his fun. He distributes with great rare Valentines for maidens' mail.

Little one, you ask: "Is this not a dreadful task For poor Cupid all alone?" It would turn a heart of stone." Ah, but let me tell you, dear, A little bird breathed in my ear That young Cupid, in this plight, Blows a horn with all his might, And from every sylvan glen Come a host of little men. Each one to the task is bent. Thus the valentines are sent. Is it not a pleasant thought? Bow a valentine is wrought? TOM MADDEN.

THE MADDEKN TWITTER—A reporter of—read the "Madden Twitter" paragraph in The Play of last week, and he strolled into the office of the Labor opera house, where he met the distinguished Ingene's business manager, Mr. Fred Miller, who is the originator of this very popular trifle.

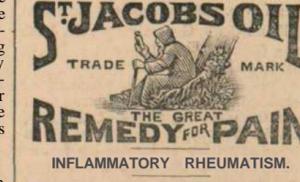

"Mr. Miller, will you kindly enlighten an inquisitive Bohemian more fully upon your latest 'Miss Madden Twitter?'"

"Why, certainly, my boy. As near as I can describe it, it is simply a nervous peculiarity or shrinking commotion which Miss Minnie does in Caprice immediately after the rise of the curtain on the third act. The scene presents a picture of the plain, simple, everyday home of a newly married couple, from which you can imagine for yourself of the many pretty things told us in the Hymeneal Encyclopedia. She is seated on a sofa, when suddenly she expresses an unexpected thought of unadorned innocence and Simon pure happiness, by giving vent to an eccentric twirl of her form, and in a flash about two-thirds of the great Ingene disappears, or shrinks into a knot, so to speak. With a grace and smoothness that would make the gilded lady on Bartholdi's statue drop her torch and slide right off the pedestal. I have had applications by the dozen for a photo of Miss Madden, and every solitary one has an amendment: 'I would like one in the third act, please, where she does the twirl.' Rather embarrassing, my boy, to have to refuse all the ladies and misses, but the fact is there is no one manipulating the camera obscura who is swift enough to catch the little Madden twitter."

Miss Madden has received a letter from a world-renowned prima donna, who in writing of Miss Madden's singing "In the Gloaming," in the third act of Caprice, says: "The hush that fell upon the audience at the close of your song was more eloquent than the cheers with which I am greeted. You cannot sing, and yet I could almost envy you your voice."

HAPPED hands result from two causes. Too much alkali in the soap, which draws the natural oil from the skin, leaving it harsh, dry, and liable to crack, or the fats, from which the soap is made, are not properly combined with the alkali, so, from its greasy nature, it is impossible to rinse off the soap after washing. Prof. Leeds, Ph. D., Stevens Institution of Technology, says: "The IVORY SOAP, while strongly cleansing, leaves the skin soft and pleasant to the touch, instead of harsh, uncomfortable, and liable to chap."

A WORD OF WARNING. There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory," but they ARE NO. I, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it. Copyright 1886, by Procter & Gamble.

THE second annual convention of the state Republican league will be held at Detroit on Feb. 22nd. There are about 500 branches in the state and each branch is entitled to three delegates. The president will deliver an address, and the annual report of the secretary will be submitted. Short addresses will be made by some of the distinguished Republicans of the country.

KNOWLEDGE IN ACCURACY.

The Democrat last week devoted considerable space to "correcting" a correction of THE REGISTER of the week previous. Now, were these criticisms in any way true, we could accept them gracefully, but the explanation is by far more inaccurate than the original statement that our contemporary made and which we corrected at the request of interested parties. The item referred to in both papers was in regard to the erection of a club house at Strawberry lake by Ann Arbor Commandery, K. T. THE REGISTER reported this item as false. The Democrat said it was true.

The Democrat has gained an unenviable reputation for the general inaccuracy of its news, and always gets muddled if there is a chance. In this case it is considerably muddled. It is true that another club house is contemplated at Strawberry lake, but it will not be erected by the "K. T. lodge." A club is being formed for this object, and because several members belong to the knights, the Democrat jumped to the conclusion that the Commandery was the party. With a little investigation, that paper could have found out that this was not so, and even that several of the members of this club are not knights templar.

The criticism says, "When the Democrat publishes an item of news it always aims to be correct, and the local reporter of THE REGISTER for last week was grossly in error." Our local reporter "for last week" was not in error on this item at least. He happens to be one of the parties interested in the project mentioned, and is thoroughly posted on the subject.

We are glad to see that the Democrat aims to be correct, but a perusal of the columns of that paper will prove that the editor must be a poor marksman. For an example see the item in the Democrat of Feb. 1st, giving the annual report of the "Allmendinger and Organ company." The capital stock is given at $2,500,000; paid in, $1,200,000; invested in real estate, $636,461; personal estate, $89,091; and amount of credit, $3,536,566. If this "item" is correct, it would be well for the stockholder to investigate the affairs of the company. From the figures given by our contemporary, a deficiency of over $550,000 appears in the funds. But fortunately the figures are far from correct. The company is in excellent shape, and the report is only a specimen of the stupidity of our contemporary.

ALLMENDINGER OKUAX WORKS.

A VINT to one of our Cronk Industries.—Sketch of the Business mid Gronth.

By invitation the local papers sent representatives to the works of the Allmendinger Organ Co., last Friday afternoon. The object of the invitation was that our citizens might know more about one of the enterprises of the city that has thrived here and, for the third time within a few years, has outgrown its quarters.

The works cover 40 feet on First and 116 feet on Washington-st. The front floor is occupied as an office and show-room, being filled with pianos and organs of their own and other make. Next comes the tuning room, which is far too small and not adapted for the use that is made of it. The action-room, where the parts of the organs are put together, the action put in and made ready for the cases, is in the rear of the tuning room. In the rear on this floor is the light machine shop, where fluffs machine work is done. This is a room containing the heavier machinery. One machine here which does a vast amount of labor before done by hand, is the invention of D. F. Allmendinger. It is called an emory machine, and is for polishing off the rough edges. The boiler room and engine house is built on the rear. A 25 horse-power engine and 35 horse-power boiler are used, and ate of the best make. A dry kiln adjoins the engine room, the capacity being about 6,000 feet.

On the upper floors are the finishing and varnishing room, and the cabinet shop where the cases are put together. Everything about the newer portions of the building is arranged for convenience and protection. On each floor an iron door opens into a flue which carries all the shavings and waste to the engine room, thus preventing accidental fires. Stand pipes and plenty of hose are on each floor, and should a fire occur it could be quickly extinguished.

The growth of the business has been remarkable. In 1872 D. F. Allmendinger started it, doing the work in his house and employing one assistant. Most of the work was done by hand, as he did not have the capital to invest in machinery. In 1880, he managed to erect a portion of the present building, 22 by 42 feet, and put in a mill engine and a tile machinery. He gave employment then to three or four hands. In 1885, he erected the front of the present works, and used the upper floor for a show-room. In erecting this part he was fortunate enough to provide against fire, by building a solid brick wall between the two parts, and thus saved a heavy loss when the buildings were discovered on fire on New Year's night, 87.

The business increased rapidly, and all that was needed was more room and capital to make it a strong competitor of many older factories. Last spring a stock company was organized, $12,000 of the $25,000 capital stock being paid in. A three story brick addition, 48 by 40 feet, was built, and a number of new machines put in. The works were started running again in September, and have been rushed ever since. To show that it is a paying investment for capital, nine per cent has been cleared since the organization of the stock company, although the factory has only been running a few months during that time. The company make eight different styles of organs, and build on an average one complete organ a day. During the past year they have built several pianos, and in tone and style these compare very favorably with those of other firms. The works 23 hands are now employed, with D. F. Allmendinger as superintendent. Two salesmen are employed on the road in selling the goods. More room is needed, as is also more capital, and with a little financial aid Ann Arbor would have an industry of which it may well be proud.

Republican County Convention.

Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, the Republican county convention was held in the court room. 21 delegates were chosen to attend the State Republican convention, which meets at Detroit on Feb. 21, to place in nomination candidates for the office of associate justice of the supreme court and two regents of the university, in place of Justice Sherwood and Regents Draper and Blair, whose terms expire.

The convention was called to order by W. M. Osband, of Ypsilanti, chairman of the county committee.

A. W. Hamilton, of Ann Arbor, was chosen as temporary chairman, and G. T. Pencil, of Ypsilanti, as temporary secretary.

The following committees were appointed:

Credentials.—E. K. Frueauff, of Ann Arbor; Albert Graves, of Ypsilanti township; R. Snulsbury, of Pittsfield.

Permanent organization and order of business.—Geo. S. Wheeler, of Salem; Dr. C. G. Doring, of Ann Arbor; Chas. Blackmer, of Milan.

The convention then adjourned until 1:30 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The temporary officers were made permanent.

Hon. A. J. Sawyer was chosen delegate at large, after which the convention divided into two districts for the purpose of choosing delegates, with the following result:

FIRST DISTRICT.

John F. Lawrence, E. D. Kinne, J. C. Knowlton and J. E. Beal, Ann Arbor; Evert H. Scott, Ann Arbor town-ship; Win. Jucison, Sylvan; M. W. Manly, Superior; Lester Canfield, Lyndon; Geo. S. Wheeler, Salem; A. W. Williamson, Chelsea.

SECOND DISTRICT.

Andrew Campbell, Puttind; Henry S. Bnutell, J. B. Wortley and Ed. Thompson, Ypsilanti; Ja9. Bem's, Ypsilanti town-ship; T. J. Thom (ind A. F. Freeman, Manchester; J. W. Blake-lee, York; Ed. Aldrich, Salme; Geo. Burkhardt, Saline.

The following resolution was passed as the sense of the convention:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that Judge O. B. Grant is a fit and proper nominee for associate justice of the supreme court, and that W. J. Cocke is a fit and proper nominee for the office of regent of the University of Michigan, and that they should be nominated by the committee at the coming state convention.

ON THE CAMPUS.

Junior hop tomorrow night
Geo. Dellaven, lit. '90, has returned to enter with his class.

Both of the literary societies elected officers Saturday evening.

L. K. Comstock, '88, of Ann Arbor, is in the employ of the Westinghouse company, at Pittsburg.

Prof. C. E. Greene read a paper on "Pavements" before the engineering society, last Friday evening.

Prof. M. E. Cooley, with four of his students, went to Wyandotte Saturday, to witness a launching.

The Dramatic club will produce another comedy during the second semester, probably the first week in June.

By the retiring of P. R. Whitman, the Argonaut loses one of the most efficient managing editors the paper ever had.

Justice Stanley Mathews has been compelled by sickness to reconsider his decision to deliver a lecture before the political science association.

Alpha chapter of Nu Sigma Alpha has been organized among the students of the homeopathic department. Every department now has a fraternity of its own.

Although the first semester closes tomorrow night, according to the calendar, one of the junior professors holds an examination on Saturday, much to the disgust of his students.

The invitations for the junior hop were late in arriving and were only sent out last Saturday. They are very handsome in design and are entirely different from any previous invitations.

The seniors of the high school swung out in their new class hat this week. It is a handsome three-cornered mortar-board of olive green velvet with an ornamental tassel. A. L. Noble furnishes them.

The university committee of the house of representatives expected the university building's last Thursday and Friday. A committee of the regents met them and discussed the needs of the institution.

W. J. Connerly, the medical student who went to Azalia to nurse small pox patients and who was stricken with the disease, has entirely recovered. He returned Saturday night and is now attending his classes in the medical department.

The election of editors of the Chronicle for the second semester was held Saturday morning, the following being chosen: P. Lafue, Zsila P.-i; Mr. Rich, B'ta Theta Pi; J.-hn Rogers, D. K. E.; E. L. Miller, R. P. Lamont and Mr. Hubbard, independents.

The programme for the literary Adelphi society for next Saturday evening is as follows: Music; Reading, Mr. Bowen; E.-ay, "Wellsley or U. of M. for g'h, which?" Miss Lomsbur; debate, "Resolved, that our higher institutions of learning should not at present receive state support." Affirmative, Mr. King; negative, Mss Barney; music.

President Northrop, of the University of Minnesota, was greeted by a fair sized audience who listened attentively to his lecture on "Lawyers and Orators," at university hall, last Friday evening. He rather confounded the officers of the students' lecture association who had billed him as a "U. of M. man," by stating that he never attended this university.

The Argonaut board has organized for the second semester as follows: R. P. Birlind, managing editor; R. E. Danbar, business manager. The editors in charge of the different departments are Misses Andrews and Penn, "Literary Miscellany;" Messrs. Sheldon and Worceser, "Editorial;" Messrs. McLwain, Loomis and Millman, "Campus;" Mr. Worcester, "Argonautic;" Mr. Dixon, "Other Colleges;" Mr. Wood, "Alumni Notes."

The ninth meeting of the Michigan schoolmaster's club will be held in this city on Saturday, Feb. 23. The following program has been arranged: The Library and the School, Supt. David Howell, Lansing. Discussion, Prin. F. T. Wright, Jackson. Examinations, Supt. H. M. Slauson, Coldwater. Discussion, Supt. E. M. Russell, Battle Creek. The Inductive Method of Teaching Cicero, Prof. Lewis Smart, Alma Colleye. Discussion, Prin. F. M. Wixom, Saginaw. Astronomy in the Graded School, Prof. A. E. Hayne, Hillsdale College. Discussion, Mr. W. W. Campbell, University of Michigan. All interested in higher or secondary education are cordially invited to be present and take part in the discussions.

Miss Madder melts into an embrace and hangs on to a kiss in a way that sets one to wondering why people ever talk about the Abbott kiss when something so much more scientific is illustrated by Miss Madder. Abbott's kiss is a mere noisy splutter, that might be heard a block off. It arrests attention with its effusion and demonstrativeness, but it is nevertheless flat, stale and empty, and the marvel is that, as a progressive woman, Abbott hasn't got on to something different. Her osculatory fireworks sink into insignificance compared with the linked and long drawn-out sweetness of Miss Madder's kiss—a kiss that merges a man's very soul into a single caress. At the opera house, Feb. 19th.

One of the best performances in town this week is that given by Miss Madder and her excellent company. Miss Madder appears in roles which she created in New York and played at the Lyceum Theatre. She is a unique and, in several senses of the word, a surprising actress. Her wonderful sincerity, her exemption from all the trammels of theatrical traditions, her artistic comprehension of pathos and womanliness, and her exceptional means of natural execution, entitles her to the most critical attention. Miss Madder has all that inward comprehension for which one looks in vain in the ranks of other American actresses, and a face and voice that reflect feeling along the entire compass of sweet and lovable womanhood. There are points in this young actress' work we can think of no other actress who could excel.—Boston Home Journal.

"Jim, The Penman."

We are to have this brilliant drama at the Opera House, tomorrow evening. The first production of this play took place at McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, Ill., on the 19th of September, 1886. The success of the play was instantaneous.

ous. Both the press and the public of Chicago received the first performance with most enthusiastic praise and unstinted applause. The Chicago Tribune, Inter-Ocean, News, and Tiraee seemed never to weary in their commendations of the absorbing interest in the story of this play, and the spacious auditorium of McVicker's Theatre proved too small to accommodate the continuously increasing audiences which thronged to see the work, from the city and surrounding towns. With some changes in the cast, the play was produced at the Madison Square Theatre, New York City, and had a run which lasted 300 nights, by Manager Palmer, on November 1, 1886. The reception given the play in Boston, both by press and public, was simply an endorsing duplication of its receptions in Chicago and New York, and for four weeks at the Park Theatre in Boston, like the Madison Square Theatre in New York, proved ridiculously unable to contain the people applying for seats and "standing room." We predict for it the same success here.

Margaret Mnhlt In "The Honeymoon."

"The Honeymoon" is too well known to need any words of description here. The tale of the Duke Aranza's love for the beautiful and shrewish Juliana, and his masquerading after his marriage to her as a poor peasant, without lands, without castles, without servants, without any of the attractions which had allured the daughter of Balthazar, is a familiar story; but when we are sure of its all being well done, of the many minor parts being well filled, there is a satisfaction in listening to the old tale which always reminds one of the "Taming of the Shrew."

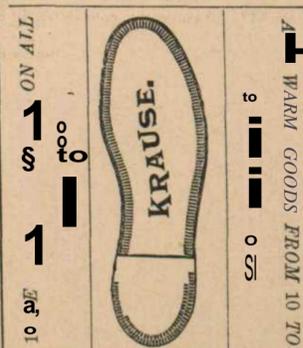

It was all this and more last evening. Miss Mather still retains all her fire and energy, all those many attractive little gestures which have made her so perfectly delightful, and which she uses only now and then, that they may not become too common by familiarity. In the merrymaking on the green with the village "lads and lasses" she becomes one of them and skips about so gaily that her audience long to join in the dance from the very spirit which she puts into it. Miss Mather has always been a favorite, she will always remain one, and so long as she has the usually excellent company which support her during her present engagement, she will never lack for an appreciative audience.

Dan Maguinns, who played the part of Jacques, the false Duke Aranzi, during the absence of his lord, was heartily welcomed. He is one of those few actors who never fail to enter completely into their parts. Miss Bonner had the pleasing part of Volante. She has a merry laugh and careless, go- manner, and from them made her parts pleasing. The rest of the company, particularly Miss Virginia Marlowe as Zamora, Mr. J. N. Long as Lopez, and Mr. J. C. Padgett as Dr. Lampedo, were exceedingly good.

The reading circle to be held at Geo. Phelps next Saturday evening will debate the following question: "Resolved, that woman suffrage would be a detriment to our country." Leader of affirmative, Jessie Williams; leader of negative, Eliza Smith.

Milan.
We have not seen a single horse in our village this winter which has been subjected to the inhuman practice of clipping.

The Queen Esther cantata has again been postponed by reason of difficulty in securing costumes. It looks as if Milan had been asleep in this matter, as other places have met with no such trouble.

It now begins to look as if the outside world had come to know that Milan and East Milan were two places. Our streets have assumed their wonted appearance; school has started and people may go to church.

Report says that the small-pox at East Milan is abating. The rig which Dr. Mesic visits them in is enough to scare most anything clear out of Michigan. But the moving power under that hideous garb is doing a noble work.

Saline.
Miss Edna Aldrich spent Sunday in Brooklyn.

Albert Hamlin, of Manchester, was home over Sunday.

Last Thursday a disgraceful street fight was the center of attraction Query: Where is our mar-hal?

Herb. Lindsley left Saline Monday for Washington Territory, where he expects to remain several years.

A donation visit for Rev. W. E. Caldwell will be given next Tuesday evening, at the Presbyterian parsonage.

The donation for the benefit of Rev. D. H. Yokom, was held at the residence of J. W. Hull, Wednesday, Feb. 13th.

Fred. Gauntlett and Miss Rena Westfall were married last week Thursday at the M. E. parsonage, by Rev. Yokom.

Wilbur E. Valentine, who returned home from California a few months ago, died last Wednesday, aged 27 years.

Cort. Blanchard who has been away for three years, came home last Thursday to visit his parents; he will remain here a month.

The first of a series of afternoon socials to be given by the Presbyterian ladies, was held at B. W. Mills', Tuesday afternoon.

At a business meeting held in the Presbyterian church, Feb 5th, a call was extended to the pastor, Rev. W. E. Caldwell, to stay another year.

The last Farmers' club meeting was held at Serene Bassett's, Friday. There was a large attendance. The next meeting will be at the house of Egbert Harper.

The Cleary Business College has 22 students.

Miss Etta Grey, of Grosse Isle, wa

the guest of Mrs. D. C. Bitchelder, the first of the week.

Doctor Post has returned from a Florida visit.

Russell Spencer, of Charlotte, spent Sunday with his parents.

Miss Agnes Walter, of Clarkston, is visiting Misses Lee and Bellows.

Messrs Humpherys and Hyynes of Calamazoo, are visiting friends in the city.

Our streets have been lively with sleighing and coasting parties, this week.

Sherman Enos, living a short distance from the city, is said to be down with small-pox.

T. C. Owen lives in fond hopes of storins; ten or twelve tons of ice before the May thaw.

Rev. M. S. Woodruff held Episcopal services at Belleville, last Sunday; Prof. Sill supplied his place at St. Luke's.

Messrs J. M. B. Sill, Samuel Post and Irlemy McCormick, were delegates from this city to the Episcopal Convention, at Detroit.

The Conservatory has a fine male quartette, composed of M. J. Pease, L. B. Nichols, J. A. Miller and E. B. Spauldlog.

Fred. Williams, recently with P. J. Sherwood, will soon go to Chicago to take charge of a new supply store, in the suburbs.

The "Chicken Show" is very well attended, but if exhibitors would only make one half the noise their feathered charges do, there'd be considerable enthusiasm aroused.

Chelsea.

The ice crop is all secured.

Jas. L. Gilbert is in Detroit.

Will Emmert, once of the Chelsea Herald, was in town Monday, prospecting.

Five ardent Republicans from this township attended the convention at Ann Arbor yesterday.

Rev. T. Robinson had a fall in his barn one day last week that nearly disabled him for last Sunday's services.

A. F. Freeman, Esq., of Manchester, passed through Chelsea, Wednesday, on his way to the county convention at Ann Arbor.

Mrs. James McLaren returned Monday from Plymouth where she has spent the last three weeks nursing a very sick daughter-in-law.

Rev. J. E. Reilly and Rev. T. Holmes have been chosen to represent the Congregational church in a council at Ovid, called to ordain Rev. J. W. Carson.

Pittsford.

David De Pue celebrated his 81st birthday on Monday last. His daughter and grandchild from Detroit were present, together with a number of aged friends, who like himself, are nearing bound of life.

Thirty or more of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Warner surprised them on Thursday evening last.

Frank and Fred Hanford received a number of friends at their home on Monday evening last, the occasion being their twenty first birthday.

Henry Paul will remain on his farm, though the land is leased to several of his neighbors, and farm implements will be disposed of at auction some time next month.

About six dollars worth of groceries were stolen from the cutter of Lester Warner, on Stalest., last Friday evening.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. ATHERTON, Passaic City, N. J.

Princo Bismarck in No Hurry to Resign - Ireland Lifting Depopulation - Langer's Plans - Other Items of Interest.

NEWS FROM FOREIGN LANDS.

PAKIS, Feb. 10.—General Boulanger. In an interview Friday, declared that his programme was the adoption of the American constitution but with a ten-year Presidency; the formation of a council of state to prepare and submit laws to a non-deliberative council of 100 members, half to be elected by universal suffrage and half to be chosen by the provinces, and to sit only one month in the year, and the granting of limited local government to the provinces.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Telegrams from Berlin indicate that Prince Bismarck is not inclined to enter into further negotiation with the American Government with regard to Samoa until after the inauguration of President Harrison. Information obtained from official quarters here indorse the belief that Lord Salisbury has urged Count Von Hatzfeldt to permit negotiations between Germany and England to lie over for the same reason, the Premier believing that an entirely different view will be taken of the Samoan difficulty by the incoming American President and his Cabinet.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—During the month of January, as shown by the official returns, sixty-eight steamers took 2,000 emigrants to Buenos Ayres. Most of these were Irish, but there was a fair representation of almost every other nationality. A very small proportion of the total number were skilled workmen. The Dublin Press, in commenting on this emigration to South America, deprecates the fact that the greater part of the emigrants were Irish, and warns the Government that its policy toward Ireland is rapidly depopulating the country.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 9.—The whole foreign population of Chin-Kiang-Foo, except a few officials, have fled here for safety. The American chapel, which was situated outside the conceded limits, is among the buildings destroyed by the mob.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—An important conference of Liberal and Radical Unionists was held at Glasgow Tuesday, the attendance, which was large, comprising many leaders of both factions. Among the other matters upon which the conference took action it was resolved that the maintenance of the legislative and executive connection between Great Britain and Ireland was a paramount consideration. It was the subject of the meeting, however, that local government should be extended to Ireland and Scotland in such a form as to meet their respective requirements.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Rome says the Duke of Norfolk has decided to pay another visit to the Vatican, which is much displeased with Lord Salisbury's refusal to renew diplomatic relations between England and the Holy See. It is asserted that Irish influence at the Vatican is rapidly gaining ground.

ROME, Feb. 18.—It has been proved that the recent riots were instigated by French agitators.

BETH, Feb. 13.—Rioting on the part of students was renewed Tuesday. The military charged upon the rioters and arrested a number of the ringleaders.

ROME, Feb. 13.—The Pope's allocution, just published, refers to the loss of the church and the modern world. The powers should now more than ever take common cause with the church for the preservation of peace. The sciences of war are not sufficient to preserve the peace which ought to be observed by rendering to every one his rights and strictly adhering to the dictates of justice.

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—The Reichsanzeiger publishes a list of the losses among the crews of the German men-of-war Olga and Eber in the battle at Ajia on December 18. There were ten killed, thirty seriously wounded and nine slightly wounded.

DUBLIN, Feb. 13.—In Donegal yesterday Mr. James O'Kelly, member of Parliament for North Roscommon, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for inciting tenants to adopt the plan of campaign. Mr. O'Kelly entered an appeal.

PAKIS, Feb. 13.—Thorsie of the Seine has flooded the suburbs of Paris and greatly impeded travel. The grounds of the exhibition, together with several of the buildings, have been slightly damaged by the overflow.

TOKIO, Feb. 13.—The new constitution of Japan has been promulgated from the throne by the Mikado. The constitution establishes a House of Peers with 300 members. The right of suffrage is given to men of the age of 35 years and over who pay taxes to the amount of $2 yearly. Liberty of religion, freedom of speech and the right of public meetings are established.

Is unanite in New York. NKW YORK, Feb. 9.—About 5:30 last evening Stevenson's brewery was shaken up and newly every window for a block in all directions broken by a terrific explosion. There was a boycott on St. Venosa's ale for a long time, due to allegations that non-union wagon men did not bring it, and Stevenson's wagon men did not join in it, and stuck by him until the boycott was declared unjust and was removed.

When Spring Comes

This is the way a horse and a poor blanket look at the end of winter.

Why is it that of two horse blankets which look and feel equally well one won't wear at all, and the other wears well?

This % Trade Mark shows why.

Horse Blankets which are strong and have a reputation are always imitated in poor qualities which look like them, but having fewer warp threads are not as strong.

Some dealers buy these poor imitations for a few cents less and by saying they are "just as good," sell them at the same price as the strong blankets to parties who do not know the difference.

You cannot tell whether horse blankets are strong by the look or feel, as the warp threads do not show on the face. How then are you to know?

In order that you can tell a strong blanket from a weak one, the manufacturer of 5 Horse Blankets sews the above 5 Trade Mark inside of each blanket. This is a guarantee that it is the strongest blanket made for the money and will wear well.

Many poor imitations have been sold as 5 blankets. Remember none are genuine unless the 5 Trade Mark is sewed inside.

Four of Washington Irving's Best Stories.

Washington Irving.

[The above Portrait is a remarkably good likeness of that Famous Author. You have no portrait of Irving, cut this one out.]

We shall shortly present four of the most popular of WASHINGTON IRVING'S many delightful stories in these columns. These sketches will be:

- The Legend of Sleepy Hollow.
- Rip Van Winkle.
- Dolph fleolyger.
- The Devil and Tom Walker.

The type used in these tales will be a new and large-faced Brevier, splendid for the eyes.

These Novelettes fill Be Superbly Illustrated.

By the Best Newspaper Artists, and, altogether, will form a most unique and popular feature.

We need not remark on the quality of Irving's writings. There is nothing better. And yet a large majority of our readers have, probably, never read more than one, or at most, two, of the stories we shall present. This is the age of revival of good things, and we urge everybody to read these WASHINGTON IRVING NOVELETES from beginning to end. If you have read either or all of them once, read them again. It will do you good.

LINCOLN'S BIKTHDAY.

It Is Fittingly Observed in a Number of Cities.

Speeches and Banquets to Commemorate the Eightieth Anniversary of the Alar-tvred President—Some of the Notables Who Participated.

TO LINCOLN'S MEMORY.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 13.—The second annual banquet of the Lincoln Club took place here Tuesday night, it being the eightieth anniversary of the martyred President. Four hundred and 170 live Republicans from all over Ohio sat down to the tables. Congressman-elect John A. Caldwell, of Cincinnati, presided. Addresses were made by Attorney-General Michener, of Indiana; James Boyle, of Cincinnati; General Alger, of Michigan; John M. Langston, of Virginia; General William O. Bradley, of Kentucky; Hon. A. C. Hurd, Hon. J. C. Covert and ex-Governor Noyes, all of Ohio.

BKOOKLYN, Feb. 13.—At the Lincoln banquet in the Academy of Music Tuesday night letters of regret were read from Gen. eral Harrison, Senator Sherman, Governor Beaver and others. Colonel Ingersoll, who was to have been the chief speaker, found it impossible to attend. Among the speakers were Hon. J. C. Burrows, Hon. S. V. White, Hon. K. P. Porter and Hon. Theodore Roosevelt.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The Republican Club's banquet in honor of Lincoln Tuesday night at Delmonico's was presided over by M. C. Adams, and letters of regret were read from General Harrison, J. G. Blaine, Governor Foraker, General Alger, Hon. Warner Miller, Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Senators Ingalls and Sherman, C. M. Depew and others. Among the speakers were Horace Porter, Benjamin Buttefworth, C. A. Boutelle, H. L. Burnett and Liev. Dr. MacArthur.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—The eightieth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was fittingly celebrated here Tuesday. Under the auspices of the La Salle Club anniversary exercises were held in the Chicago Opera-House, the chief orator being John A. Kasson, of Iowa; Hannibal Hamlin, of Maine, and other prominent public men were present and spoke briefly.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 13.—The Lincoln League met here Tuesday and re-elected W. L. Taylor, of this city, president. Hon. H. Clay Evans, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; ex-Governor A. G. Porter and Private Secretary Halford made speeches. Chairman J. N. Huston, of the Republican State Committee, ex-Congressman Stanton J. Peelle, and other prominent Republicans were present.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 13.—Lincoln's birthday anniversary was observed by hoisting the flag on the dome of the capitol and a reception at the Lincoln homestead at night.

A Big Failure.

WOODS HOLE, Mass., Feb. 9.—The Pacific Guano Company, whose works are here and Glidden & Curtis, of Boston, settling agents of the guano company and the Ohio & Western Coal Company, made assignments yesterday. The guano company owes about $1,000,000, and Glidden & Curtis' liabilities are also large. Banks and trust companies are the principal creditors.

Did Right in Shooting.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The coroner's jury in the case of the striking street-car employe McGowan, who was killed by Officer Snyder during an attack by the strikers on a street car, brought in a verdict yesterday commending the officer, the conductor and driver of the car for their heroic conduct in repelling the mob in the attack on the car and exonerated them from all blame.

Shaken Up by an Earthquake.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—News comes from San Jacinto, a little mountain town in the extreme northern part of San Diego County, that an earthquake shock a few days ago was so severe there that a ball was broken up and 200 people sought safety by jumping through windows. Many were trampled under foot, others were cut by broken glass, but no one was fatally hurt.

Fire in a Convent.

TEBKE HAUTE, Ind., Feb. 8.—Fire broke out at 9 o'clock Thursday morning in the kitchen at St. Mary's of the Woods, one of the leading Roman Catholic institutions for girls in the State. The fire did $15,000 damage before it could be got under control, fire assistance being sent from this city, six miles distant.

Peach-Growers Despondent.

DENTON, Md., Feb. 9.—The present cold snap has dispirited the peach-growers in this section. RESTORED TO HER HOME.

Annie Redmond, the Little Girl Who WM Kidnaped in Chicago Last May, Found. CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Little 6-year-old Annie Redmond, who was kidnaped last May, was found at the Home for the Friendless in this city Thursday by a neighbor of Mrs. Redmond and restored to her mother. The father of the child became insane on the loss of his child. He was given permission Friday by the asylum authorities at Kankakee to return home. He was overjoyed at the recovery of his long-lost daughter, and it is believed it will have the effect of fully restoring his reason.

The child was kidnaped by a Mrs. Gurley, the wife of a painter or printer. The treatment of the little girl by Gurley awakened the wrath of his neighbors, and last January the child was taken from him and sent to the Home for the Friendless. Gurley was fired Sio, but the officers of the justice court unwittingly allowed him to escape, since when nothing has been learned of his whereabouts.

ALL WERE LOST.

The Steamer Sunk Off Beachy Head Was the Glencoe.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—It has been ascertained beyond doubt that the steamer which was sunk in collision with the British bark Largo Bay off Beachy Head on Monday night was the Glencoe, belonging to the Glen Line, of Glasgow. The Glencoe was bound from Liverpool to London. She carried a crew numbering fifty-two men, all of whom were presumably drowned. She had no passengers. She was last reported as having passed Prawle Point on Monday. The Glencoe was a three-master, iron-screw steamer of 1,901 tons. She was built at Glasgow in 1878, was owned by McGregor, Gow & Co., and was rated 100 A1 at the British Lloyd's.

THE GREEK CINDERELLA.

[The story of "Cinderella" is very old and has passed through many forms. Perhaps it may be surprising to know that the Greeks told this story to their children many centuries ago. Here is the (Greek) version.]

There were once three sisters spinning flax, and they said, "Wobsever spindle falls, let us till her and eat her."

The mother's spindle fell, and they let her alone.

Again they eat down to spin, and again the mother's spindle fell, and again, and yet again. "Ah, well!" said they, "let us eat her now!"

"No!" said the youngest, "do not eat her; eat me, if I flesh you will have."

But they would not; and two of them killed their mother and cooked her Car eating.

When they had sat down to make a meal of her, they said to the youngest, "Come and eat, too!"

But she refused and sat down on a sack, which the fowls were covering with filth and wept. Then the youngest, whom they called Little Suddleslut, gathered all the bones and buried them, and smoked them every day with incense for forty days, and after the forty days were out sio went to take them away and put them in another place. And when she lifted up the stone she was astonished at the rays of light which it sent forth, and raiment was found there like unto the heavens and the stars, the spring with its flowers, the sea with its waves, and many coins of every kind.

On Sunday her sisters went to church; then she, too, arose; she washed and attired herself, putting on the garment that was as the heavens with the stars, and went to church, taking with her a few gold pieces in her purse. When she went into the church all the people were amazed and could not gaze upon her by reason of the brightness of her garments.

When she left the church the people followed her to see whether she was what she filled her hand with money from her bag and cast it in the way. Then the crowd scrambled for the coins, and left her alone. And straightway she went into the house and changed her clothes, and put on her old things, and sat down upon the saddle. Her sisters came home from church and said to her: "Where are you, wretch? Come and let us tell you how there came into the church a maiden more glorious than the sun, who had such garments as you could not look on, so brightly did they gleam and shine, and she strewed money on the way. Look, see what a lot we have picked up! Why did you not come, too? worse luck to you!"

Next Sunday they went to church again, and she did the same. Then they went another (Sunday), and just as she was flinging the money she lost her shoe among the crowd and left it behind her. Now the king's son was following her, but could not catch her, and only found her shoe.

Then said he to himself: "Whose ever foot this shoe exactly fits, without being either too large or too small, I will take her for my wife." And he went to all the women he knew and tried it on, but could not manage to fit it. Then her sisters came to her and said: "You go and try it on; perhaps it will fit you."

"Do not make fun of me," she said. However, she went down, and when the prince saw her he knew the shoe was hers, and said to her: "I will take you to wife."

"Do not make fun of me," she answered, "so may your youth be happy!"

"Nay, but I will marry you," said he, and he took her and made her his wife. Then she put on her fairest robes. When a little child was born to her the sisters came to see it. And when she was helpless and alone they put her into a chest and carried her off and threw her into a river, and the river cast her forth upon a desert.

There was a half witted old woman there, and when she saw the chest she thought to cut it up (for firewood) and took it away for that purpose. And when she had broken it up and saw some one alive in it, she got up and made a fire. So the princess was left alone, and heard the wolves howling, and the swine and the lions, and the sat and wept and wvayed to God, "Oh, God, give me a little hole in the ground that I may hide my head in it and not hear the wild beasts," and he gave her one. Again she said, "Oh, God, give me one a little larger, that I may get in up to my waist." And he gave her one. Up she besought him again a third time, and he gave her a cabin with all that she wanted in it; and there she dwelt, and whatever she said, her bidding was done forthwith. For instance, when she wanted to eat she would say, "Come, table, will it: that is wanted! Come, food! Come, spoons and forks, and all things ready," and straightway they all came, and when she finished she would ask, "Ale you all there?" and they would answer, "We are."

One day the prince came into the wilderness in hunt, and seeing the cabin he went to (ind out who was inside; and when he got there he knocked at the door. And she saw him and knew him from afar, and said, "Who is knocking at the door?" "It is I, let me in," said he. "Open doors," said she, and in a twinkling the doors opened and he entered. He went up stairs and found her seated on a chair. "Good day to you," said he. "Welcome!" said she, and straightway all that was in the room cried out, "Welcome!" "Come, chair!" she cried, and one came all once. "Sit down," she said to him, and down he sat. And when she asked him the reason of his coming, she bade him slay and dine.

He agreed, and straightway she gave her orders: "Come, table, with all the covers," and forthwith they presented themselves, and he was so amazed, "Come, basin," she cried, "Come, pour water for us to wash! Come, food, in ten courses!" and immediately all that she ordered made its appearance. Afterwards, when the meal was ended, the prince tried to bide a spoon, and put it into his shoe; and when they rose from table, she said, "Table, have you all your covers?"

"Yes, I have." "Spoons, are you all there?"

"All," they said, except one, which said, "I am in the prince's shoe."

Then she cried again, as though she had not heard, "Are you all there, spoons and forks?"

And as soon as the prince bled her he got rid of it on the sly and flushed.

And she said to him, "Why did you blush? Don't be afraid. I am your wife."

Then she told him how she got there and how she fared. And they hugged and kissed each other, and she ordered the house to move and it did move. And when they came near the town all the world came out to see them. Then the prince gave orders for his wife's sisters to be brought before him, and they brought them and he hewed them in pieces. And so thenceforward they lived happily, and may we live more happily still.

Rev. Mr. Gelston, of the Presbyterian Church, will begin next Sunday evening a series of three sermons on, "The true Idea of God." First, "The Moral Lie"; second, "Practical strength of the Trinitarian Idea"; third, "Summary view of the Trinity."

The greatest dramatic event of the season in Ann Arbor will be Margaret Mather's appearance Saturday evening in the Honeymoon. This beautiful woman and fine actress should be given a fine audience. She will be supported by J. B. Studley.

A. A. Crozier, son of O. R. L. Crozier, of this city, has reached a well merited reputation in the pomological world. He is secretary of the American Pomological society, with his official address at Washington, D. C., although his home and permanent address is Ames, Iowa.

Mr. Sunderland will give his fourth "Robert Elmore" lecture next Sunday evening. Subject: "Reply to Gladstone and the Critics." In the morning Mrs. Sunderland will give the last of her sermons on foundations of religion. Subject: "The Uses of Sacred Books."

The Choral Union will give a concert in Hobart hall, Feb. 28. The program will consist of part song and Gade's cantata, "The Crusaders." The following soloists will assist: Mrs. J. H. Haviland, W. L. Taylor, Hugo P. Geisler. It will be under the direction of Prof. A. A. Stanley.

Clark S. Beal, an uncle of J. B. Beal of this city, died at Kalamazoo last Saturday, aged 45 years. The funeral was held at Plainfield, Tuesday. Mr. Beal was at one time a well-known resident of this city. A number of years ago he received injuries by being kicked by a horse, and has been an invalid ever since.

Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield gave his second lecture in the Presbyterian training course, Monday evening. The speaker sketched in a terse and eloquent way the origin of the Bible. He was listened to with the closest attention and interest. Some nine lectures have been given in this training course, and some seven more are to follow. The attendance has teen large.

The Washtenaw county Republican club held a meeting in the court room yesterday. The club decided to pay the Michigan Club the initiation fee of $25.00 and become a branch of that organization. The club dues were made one dollar per year, and every Republican in the county was invited to join the club. W. M. Osband, of Ypsilanti, W. N. Stevens, of Ann Arbor, and A. F. Freeman, of Manchester, were elected delegates to the meeting of the State Republican League.

Rev. James H. Potts, D. D., of Detroit, editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate, filled the pulpit of the Methodist church last Sunday morning and evening. The sermon in the evening was the annual address before the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of that church. Dr. Potts is a man of fine presence, splendid voice, and appears the natural orator. This is the second time he has filled the Methodist pulpit within a few weeks. On both occasions his sermons produced a profound impression.

The Ann Arbor T.-H. electric company have placed in position this week another large boiler, which was badly needed. The boiler is sixteen feet long and six feet in diameter, with a dome or heater above. It was given a strong test Tuesday, and proved satisfactory. The boiler was made by Reeves, Hunter & Co., who secured the contract for making it in competition with the leading boiler works of Port Huron and Detroit. When the new boiler is running the company will have what they have needed for some time—plenty of power, and will be able to furnish light to more customers.

Friday morning Jerome Shipman, of Ypsilanti, obtained a blank check on the Ypsilanti Savings Bank, claiming E. C. Warner, a building contractor, owed him for services performed in lathing a building and that he would take the check to Mr. Warner, have him fill it out and then call at the bank and get his money. Instead of so doing it is charged that he filled up the check for $23, signed Mr. Warner's name and succeeded in getting Mr. C. Rhodes to cash it. After passing through several hands it was taken Saturday by Wells & Fisk, grocery merchants, where the forgery was discovered. Officers are looking for Shipman, who is supposed to be in Detroit.

THE SENATE COMMITTEE.

A Visit to the University—They Favor a Fair Appropriation and Liberal Expenditures.

Senators Galbraith, Nagle and Blackwell, the senate committee on the University, paid that institution an official visit on Monday. They visited the mechanical laboratory, library and hospitals in the morning. At the mechanical laboratory they were favorably impressed and saw the necessity of the appropriation for new machinery to carry on the work. At the hospitals they made a thorough investigation and were firmly convinced that the present buildings afford insufficient hospital accommodations.

In the afternoon the dental department was visited first. The rooms were crowded with operators and patients, not half the students having room to work in. The dental department wants an addition to its present quarters, and the committee saw the necessity. At the hygienic laboratory Dr. Vaughan showed them the points of interest, and exhibited germs of nearly every disease known to science. The chemical laboratory through which they next passed, was crowded, and as forty of the students of this department are now working on the fourth floor of the main building, the necessity of an appropriation for enlarging the building was apparent to the committee. The next point visited was the anatomical laboratory. At this point Senator Nagle drew the line and wanted to quit; but was induced to take a seat in Dr. Herdman's office while the rest of the party inspected the dissecting rooms. In the lower room 28 ladies were busy at work and in the upper room 116 students were engaged in "carving" for the benefit of science. After visiting the museum, the committee adjourned to the president's office for consultation.

The committee were unanimously of the opinion that the entire legislature should visit the institution before they vote on the appropriations, is they would then be more able to decide on the needs of the University, and an effort will be made to have the legislature spend a day here before a vote is taken on the bill.

Nothing better than "Scour Bright" for all kinds of cleaning. Good for the hands, teeth, black heads on face, etc. For sale everywhere.

It is wonderful how Burchfield keeps it up selling Pants for $4.00 made to order out of such fine goods as he is selling; but nevertheless he is doing it, and they go like hot cakes; now is the time for people to lay in a stock of pants.

"Beats the World." Liddell's fine Castile Soap. Soothing and refreshing. Good for shaving. For sale everywhere.

"Scour Bright" costs less and does more than anything of the kind in the market. Drop everything else and try it for house cleaning and polishing. For sale everywhere.

A. L. Noble must be taking pity on empty pocket books, judging from his "Ad" in this issue.
