

ON THE CAMPUS.

Regents' meeting next Wednesday at 2 p. m.

The university calendar will probably be out early next week.

Prof. J. W. Lanley was given a reception in the Ladies' library building, Saturday evening.

Prof. and Mrs. M. E. Cooley gave a reception to Mr. Miner and his mother last Thursday evening.

Seventy-five Ann Arbor students attended the Nye-Rjey entertainment in Ypsilanti Saturday evening.

The Oracle is expected next week. It contains a portrait of Prof. Elisha Jones and his biography by Prof. Frieze.

Prof. Robert W. Moore, '87, was president of the eighth annual convention of the Y. M. C. A. of Kentucky, which met at Georgetown this month.

The museum is open from 8 to 4 o'clock p. m. every day except Sunday. The art gallery is open from 2 to 4 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Hon. John Russell will speak before the University Prohibition club, Saturday evening in Firemen's Hall, on "The history and philosophy of political parties."

Librarian Davis is in New York city, delivering a course of lectures before the Columbia College school of Library Economy. He will probably return on Saturday.

Prof. B. A. Hinsdale went to Jacksonville, 111, last Thursday, returning this week. He read a paper there before the Central Illinois Teachers' association, on "The practical in education."

Six members of the homeopathic senior class want class day exercises. They are protesting against the action of the class in voting to dispense with them, and, electing J. B. Wheelock president, they have decided to have the exercises anyway.

Professors Frieze, DeWitt and Walker have awarded the Palladium prizes as follows: Song, first prize, F. N. Scott, "O Alma Mater Mine;" second prize, Charles M. Gayley, "Birds of a Feather;" Poem, first prize, "I Lave," E. L. Miller; second prize, "To a Morning Glory," Miss Susan Jones.

James M. Barrett, lit. '75, now lives in Fort Wayne, Ind., and is a Democratic member of the Indiana Senate. The Indianapolis Sentinel says that he is a young man of extraordinary ability. During the session of the legislature just closed he was one of the most conspicuous figures. He took an important part in the passage of the bill for electoral reform.

Rev. Samuel G. Smith, D. D., of St. Paul, Minn., will give the second address in the course before the Wesleyan Guild of the university Sunday evening, March 24, at half past seven o'clock, at the Methodist Episcopal church. His subject will be, "The Basis of Reward and Punishment." Dr. Smith is said to be one of the most eloquent and scholarly young preachers of the day.

We should like to enter a protest, ineffectual though it will be, against the cutting down of the willow trees along the river banks. Several years ago "School Girl's Glen" was as pretty a spot as one could wish to stroll through. But since the trees have been felled, its beauty has disappeared and its charm is gone. It seems too bad that for the sake of a few cords of wood one of the prettiest parts of the river should be deprived of its attractiveness.—Chronicle.

Prof. M. E. Cooley says of Asst. Engineer Leo D. Miner, who has been sent by the U. S. navy department to teach marine engineering in the U. of M: "Mr. Miner is a native of Toledo and about 30 years of age. He entered the U. S. Naval Academy in 187-1, graduating in 1880, two years after myself. About half of his time since graduation has been spent at sea, his last cruise being in the South Pacific on board the U. S. S. Iroquois. For the past year he has been on duty at the Norfolk Navy Yard from which place he comes here, accompanied by his mother who will make this her home during her son's stay. They have pleasant quarters at Mrs. Forsyth's on N. State at., Prof. Olney's old home."

The Detroit people did not intend to lose that one position on the board of regents, and so, before the dead regent had been consigned to the tomb, they pounced upon Gov. Luce and his private secretary and nearly made them wish they were in the tomb. The governor made the appointment with such unseemly haste probably to stop the deluge of letters and appeals sent to him; he had to have some time to devote to the Ann Arbor charter. The appointment of Dr. Hermann Kiefer, of Detroit, to the place made vacant by the death of Regent Moses W. Field, is probably all right. The doctor is a retired physician. He is a graduate of Heidelberg university.

The Chicago Journal of yesterday said: "The annual banquet of the Chicago Alumni Association of the University of Michigan (Ann Arbor) will occur this evening at 7 o'clock at the Richelieu. The following gentlemen will respond to toasts: Hon. James B. Angell, President of the University of Michigan; Dr. Donald McLean, Detroit; Professor Mortimer E. Cooley, late of the United States navy; Dr. A. B. Prescott, of the Pharmacy Department; Hon. William P. Wells, Detroit; Dr. Jonathan Taft, of the Dental Department; Professor Edward L. Walter, of the Literary Department; Dr. Richard Dewey, Superintendent of the Kankakee Insane Asylum; Hon. William Warner, of Kansas City, Mo., ex-Congressman, Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, etc."

The enterprising young hardware men, the Eberbach brothers, have purchased the building and grounds where their store now is, of F. Rattich, sr., for $12,000, and have begun making changes in the building which will greatly improve its appearance. They have 38x08 1/2 feet on the corner of Main and Washington-sts., and 181x111 feet on Washington-st.

THE MICHIGAN CENTRAL R. R.

An Important Meeting.—Michigan Central R. R. Petitions.—street Railway Matter.—Water Mains.—No Tennis Court on Hanover Square.

A special meeting of the common council was held Monday evening, and business of considerable weight was brought forward. All the aldermen were present except Messrs. Barker and Ware.

NO TENNIS COURT ON HANOVER SQUARE.

The following persons petitioned that they be allowed to have a tennis court on Hanover square: Mrs. B. W. Cheever, Nina B. Henley, Carlton B. Rose, L. C. Hill, Bird Williams, Mrs. E. B. Lewis, Gertrude Rose, Grace F. Haven, Alice L. Haven, J. J. Goodyear, E. B. Lewis, Leila B. Goodyear, Mrs. L. L. Comstock, Alice Paine and Mrs. S. G. Paine. The petition was denied.

THE MICHIGAN CENTRAL R. R.

The Michigan Central Railroad company presented a petition asking for the privilege of building a spur track in Ann Arbor for freight purposes. Aid. A. U. Mendinger pas armed with a map showing the path of the proposed track. The spur track will leave a side track on Depot-st., run three or four rods on Depot-st.; cross the street and strike Thomas J. Keech's property; cross Main-3t. and strike Hugh McGuire's property; on through Spencer Sweet's property; cross Felch-st., pass over 1,000 feet of E. A. Gott's land to Miller-ave. In time it is hoped to take it as far as the Central mills.

Aid. Ailmendinger explained the advantages which would accrue to the city from this spur track. Most of the land over which it will pass is valueless on account of its being so low and wet. Mr. Ailmendinger is certain that the railroad facilities which the new track would give Ann Arbor would induce manufacturing establishments and warehouses to locate here. Mr. Gott will give the railroad company the right of way over his property, and the remainder of the way can be obtained on reasonable terms.

This petition was referred to the street committee and city engineer, with instructions to report in one week.

THE STREET RAILWAY.

Two changes seem to be necessary in the route of the proposed street railway, one on account of the new T. & A. A. depot and the opening of Second-st., and the other to avoid the steep hill on State-st., leading to the Michigan Central depot. To avoid that hill, the company wants to run the track from State-st. on North-st. to Division, and on Division to Detroit-st. The matter was referred to street committee.

KXTENINGO THIRD STREET.

The question of extending Third street caused a lively dispute, Messrs. Reeves and Hunter, of the foundry and iron works, protesting that it would necessitate a bridge over their race, and that they didn't want one to be made. When asked if the bridge would interfere with the use of their water power, they could not say yes; they have a lease of nothing but the use of the water power. On the other hand aldermen claimed that the street extension was necessary, that the right of way could now be had for $400, while in future years it might require a much larger sum. The Council voted to take measures for obtaining the right of way.

WATER MAINS

R. F. Sanford, Geo. W. Bailey, George Lutz, sr., Paul Tessmer and other citizens of the Second ward, petitioned that the Ann Arbor water company be directed to extend its water mains 1,400 feet on W. Madison st. from Main-st.

C. H. Manly, S. D. Lennon, Charles Dunn, and other citizens of the Fifth ward, asked that water mains be extended 700 feet on Broadway.

Eugene B. Hall, Inuis P. Hall, J. R. Efinger, for Phi Kappa Upsilon fraternity, J. Austin Scott, M. L. D'Ooge, and other citizens of the Sixth ward, asked that the water mains be extended 1,400 feet on Washington-ave. from Orleans st. east.

The Emmanuel Mann estate, D. B. Brown, and others, asked for water mains 1,400 feet from corner Hill and Main-sts. south on Main st.

These petitions were referred to the fire department committee.

Aid. Miller said these extra mains would cost about $320. It was decided to meet in one week to hear the report of the committee.

THE NEW CHARTER.

The city recorder was instructed to secure bids for printing the new charter in pamphlet and book form.

Banqueted in Detroit.

Last Monday afternoon a large delegation from Golden Rule Lodge No. 159, F. 6 A. M., left Ann Arbor over the T. & A. A. for Detroit, reaching that city about 7 o'clock. The officers of Ashlar Lodge of Detroit escorted them to the Griswold House, where they took supper. After working on the third degree in the lodge room, they with the Ashlar lodge repaired to the banqueting room. About 450 people sat down to the tables. After plenty of speaking and music our Ann Arbor people returned on their special car, reaching home about 3 o'clock in the morning. The following persons went from Ann Arbor:

W. W. Watts, R. H. Curthbert, Will S. Loomig, Paris Banfield, Sam Langsdorf, B. F. Watts, A. C. Nichols, Kirk H. J. Clark, Jno. R. Miner, Lew H. Clement, I. C. Handy, A. W. Gasser, F. W. Blake, J. D. THE NEW CHARTER

Ann Arbor at Last Is Off with the Old and on with the New.

Last Friday morning an Ann Arbor REGISTER representative called at the executive office in Lansing. Governor Luce was out of town, but was expected back that afternoon. Private Secretary Campbell was sweetly wading through the immense document in manuscript which, now bearing the signature of Cyrus G. Luce, governor of the commonwealth of Michigan, will hereafter prescribe and limit the powers of the Ann Arbor city government. Mr. Campbell had nearly completed the reading. He averred that he should read every word of the charter, as it was a rule to closely and critically inspect the bills that come before the governor. After gazing at the bulky charter, THE REGISTER man thought that the private secretary had no sinecure.

In the afternoon Gov. Luce put his name on the charter, and hence Ann Arbor will drop her old and antiquated methods of city government for something better adapted to the needs of a bright and growing city.

On Dae. 20ch last THE REGISTER gave the main changes contemplated by the new charter. They are briefly as follows: 1. Mayor with appointing, removing and veto power, who has no seat or vote in the common council.

2. City clerk, with term of two years, who is made the clerk of all committees, commissions, and boards, and who will have no vote in the common council. He will have a salary equivalent to $900 per year.

3. Aldermen who have none but legislative powers.

4. President of council and city assessor elected by the people.

5. One supervisor for each ward.

6. Board of public works, which will have charge of street work, but which does not handle the purse.

On Saturday, SUD'N, James N. Gilbert came up to THE REGISTER, and attempting to smile, said: "You people just compare the new charter with the old, and see if the junketing committee didn't accomplish something? You may change your mind."

As a matter of fact the main point which distressed Supv. Gilbert was the increase of Ann Arbor's representation in the board of supervisors. This point Ann Arbor maintained.

Objectiona to Horses and «able Can.-Varlooa Electric Sysfnw.-Ovrhrad Conductors XeeU not be Unsghtly.

At a recent meeting of the Buffalo Electrical society, Frank Kitton, of the Western Union telegraph company, read the following, which is of considerable interest to Ann Arbor people in view of the proposed street railway. The railway will probably have horse-power for a time, but the question of another power is sure to arise:

The objections offered to horses and mules, he said, were numerous. They are expensive to maintain, liable to epidemics and sickness, occupy considerable space in stabling, and require for their care an army of employes. Their efficiency is always a minimum in times of extreme heat, or after great storms, when their full working capacity is generally needed. The horse-car cannot make up lost time as can a motor-car, without a tremendous taxation of endurance on the horses; nor can it be reversed without turning the car or transferring the team to the other end.

Although the cable system has been operated in some places with economy and success, when compared with horse power there was the disadvantage that a very large percentage (in some cases as much as 80 per cent.) of the energy required to operate it was expended in moving the cable alone. A great objection was the fact that any damage done to the cable itself, or any cause of stoppage to any part of the power plant, puts the entire system out of service at once, while even the breaking down of a car will suspend traffic on a line, as a car cannot turn off the track and go around the obstruction, as with many of the other systems. The life of a cable is not over a year on busy lines, while the cost is quite high, as is also the conduit in which the cable runs. The cable which is the most successful in operation cost $125,000 per track mile.

Electricity, said Mr. Kitton, offers several advantages over the difficulties enumerated. There were no fewer than 72 electric street railways in this country and Canada. Among the advantages which each of the different electric systems offer are, that with electricity the expense for "feed" in the shape of fuel is regulated by the number of cars in actual operation at the time and not by the size of the plant, as with horse power. During strikes, or at times of plague in the stables, the advantages of electric-motor power are most apparent, for the power plant can then be shut down and the consumption of fuel stopped until the trouble has passed, where otherwise the barns would have been filled with horses "eating their heads off."

There were those who were skeptical as to the practicability of operating electric cars in localities where snow and ice abound, said Mr. Kitton. Experience, however, had shown that snow and ice offer little, if any, opposition to their working. At Des Moines, Ia., recently, the motor cars of the broad-gauge railway company made their regular trips every 15 minutes during a severe snowstorm, when the horsecars, with four horses to each car, could not run on time, and the steam motor which ran out into the north end of the town was ditched.

One of the severest storms which St. Joseph, Mo., ever experienced occurred on November 9th, when the telegraph, telephone, and electric light wires broke under the strain of the accumulated damp snow on them, but left intact the overhead wires of the electric railway, the cars of which continued to make their regular trips without stoppage or delay, which goes to prove that a well-constructed overhead system cannot be easily disarranged and that the tractive powers of the electric cars are surprisingly great.

The motors are placed on the cars in such a manner as to greatly augment the traction, and to leave available for general traffic all that space ordinarily occupied by the horses. The electric car can increase its speed when necessary, without detrimental effect, and at very little additional cost. Upon grades it has proved itself equal to any reasonable emergency, and it can be moved backward as well as forward at the will of the driver. Electricity has none of the disadvantages of the direct application of steam power, and is vastly superior to the cable system. There is but slight waste of electrical energy in transporting it to the cars, each of which moves perfectly independent of all other cars, and an accident to the conducting wire only renders a small section of the road temporarily inoperative.

Mr. Kitton spoke of the other advantages in favor of electricity, which he said may be furnished either by means of storage batteries or by dynamo machines at a power station supplying a conducting-wire with the necessary current. The storage-battery system was undoubtedly the ideal one, but Mr. Kitton did not think it had yet arrived at that stage of perfection where its use could efficiently and economically supplant horse-power under all conditions.

The under-ground conduit system was mostly in favor with the public, but aside from the increased cost of such a plant the fact that it is in the experimental stage, and could not be considered an assured success, would deter railroad officials from adopting it. He was himself very much in favor of the overhead-conductor system, which had proved eminently successful in all respects and under all conditions. That system, however, suffered under the great disadvantage of public prejudice, although recently a disposition of toleration, even in the larger cities, had been indicated in favor of the proposition to erect overhead conductors for the purpose of propelling street cars. When that prejudice was entirely removed, the greatest difficulty at present encountered in adopting electric traction to street cars would be removed. It would then be clearly established that electricity offers advantages in cost of plant, in point of maintenance and operation, in public safety and convenience, and in humanity, that are offered by no other known system. When the public mind ceased to associate overhead conductors for street-railway pur-posers with the erection of unsightly, rough masts, towering upwards in all their native crookedness, to which were affixed cross-arms of various lengths and sizes, and conceive instead ornamental posts constructed of steel or iron, graceful in shape and which may be combined with the lamp post now erected, this prejudice should disappear. The possibilities in ornamental design of such posts were unlimited, and Mr. Kitton showed by means of a number of photo-engravings that the overhead system was not such a disfigurement to the streets as might at first be supposed. It was a growing belief that public demand—public necessity for a better system of street-car service, will soon sway public sentiment, and that the electric-motor will replace horses, even here in Buffalo, probably the most conservative city in the adoption of new and advanced ideas.

Nearly all of the seventy-two roads mentioned are operated by the overhead system. These roads are located in sixty-two different cities and towns, and operate 517 cars over 330 miles of track, and embrace eight different systems, each of which Mr. Kitton described in detail, as well as the series of interesting experiments recently conducted by Mr. Daft in connection with electric propulsion on the Ninth-avenue elevated road in New York.

Wow! In Tie Spring of the Tear.

During Winter, Nature wisely arranges that we should live on foods containing much fat, as they are known, hydrocarbons, for the purpose of supplying heat to the body; the chemical operation necessary to transform fat into heat is the exclusive work of the liver, and so during the time stated it is constantly congested. With the approach of warm weather our diet changes to muscle-producing food, and the work of the liver is much lessened. In the majority of cases, however, it is "J6S" unable to completely brook off the excess of bile, but remains congested, causing that 8Eg-lazy, tired feeling which many have in the Spring months, when the weather becomes warm.

fi@-This is evidence of an unhealthy condition, and though people appreciate the necessity of an alternative at this period, the common idea is to take drastic pills and produce a cathartic effect, only to make matters "J6T" worse. The liver must be unloaded, and its proper action restored before hot weather, if you wish to "B6T" preserve health, and if this distinct call of nature is unheeded serious results will occur.

J6T The blood will become loaded with bile and lithic acid, and as "every drop of vital fluid passes through the kidneys to be purified, they soon break down and are unable to carry out the deadly poison. Warner's Safe Cure and Warner's Safe Pills have not only a "leg" specific action on the kidneys, but on the B6f liver also.

B8f They thin the thickened bile so that it will pass out through its ducts, enable the glands to unload themselves, act as a solvent on all bilious acid and in a word, "tag" fit these great organs for the season's work, 8@- preventing blood poisoning, inflammation, abscess, and all affections to which they are so liable.

J6yAs you value the blessings of health, do not allow the summer to approach without giving your system a "general house-cleaning," in the manner we have indicated. "To be forewarned is to be forearmed."

A Horse Who Can Talk! Everybody has heard of a "horse laugh," but who has ever seen an equine gifted with the power of speech? Such an animal would be pronounced a miracle; but so would the telegraph and the telephone have been a hundred years ago. Why, very recently a cure for consumption would have been looked upon as miraculous, but now people are beginning to realize that the disease is not incurable. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure if taken in time. This world-renowned remedy will not make new lungs, but it will restore diseased ones to a healthy state when all other means have failed. Thousands gratefully testify to this. All druggists.

So disease, in myriad forms, fastens its fangs upon the human race. Ladies who suffer from distressing ailments peculiar to their sex, should use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive cure for the complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural Suppression, prolapse, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weaknesses," retroversion, chronic congestion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "Internal heat."

PENSIONS.

Who Am Enll'ed to Them—Increase of Pension—How Obtained—Declaration of Pension—What It Should Contain.

HE soldiers and widows of all soldiers who served in any war prior to the late civil war are all pensioned. All Mexican war veterans, officers and enlisted men, including marines, militia and volunteers, of the military and naval services of the United States, are not apply to any person who under the pension-roll of the United States. They must have been duly enlisted, actually served sixty days with the United States Army or Navy in Mexico, or on the coasts or frontier thereof, or en route thereto, in the war with that nation, and were honorably discharged. Widows of such veterans can obtain pensions if they have not remarried. Where any person has obtained a land warrant on account of Mexican war service, such land grant shall be considered prima facie evidence of his service and honorable discharge. These provisions shall not apply to any person who under the political disabilities imposed by the fourteenth amendment, to the constitution of the United States.

Pensions are given the family and legal heirs of sundry discharged United States soldiers and certain of the Missouri militia murdered by guerrillas at Centralia, Mo., in 1864. Veterans who lost one foot and one hand, or are totally and permanently disabled in a war, can receive a pension for each disability, at full rating. The widow, children or heirs of a man who aided in any way the late rebellion are pensioned, if the man afterward voluntarily enlisted in the Union army and was disabled in the line of duty. (This does not apply to sailors.) Every volunteer who joined the United States forces in the Territory of Montana during the war with the Nez Perce Indians, and who was wounded or disabled in such service, is entitled to all benefits of the United States Pension laws. And the widows or legal heirs of any such volunteer killed in such war, in the line of duty, can receive all pension allowances. If an insane invalid pensioner have a wife or children dependent upon him, the Commissioner of Pensions can pay the pension to the wife, or if there be no wife, to the guardian of the children. Invalid pensioners while imprisoned for crime must have their pensions paid to their wives or the guardians of their children, if the Commissioner so direct. All pensions to widows, which have been or may be planted them in consequence of death occurring from a cause which originated in the United States service since the 4th day of March 1861, commence from the date of death of the husband. A guardian fraudulently converting the pension of a ward is liable to a fine of $2,000 and imprisonment at hard labor for five years.

TO OBTAIN AX INCREASE.—The pensioner must file a declaration setting forth the ground upon which he makes the claim. Such declaration may be taken before any officer duly authorized to administer oaths for general purposes, except where a new or different disability is alleged, then the claim must be executed before an officer of a Court of Record.

RENEWAL OF PENSIONS.—Such applications must be made to the Commissioner by the army or navy in active service, will be accepted without affidavit; but all other witnesses must testify under oath. If an attorney does not prosecute a case given him in one year from receiving it the Pension Office must inform the claimant. With the blanks and directions obtainable from the United States Departments nearly every claimant, of any class, can make out his claim and prosecute the same himself. But where, through necessity or preference, an attorney is employed, one of standing and high repute should be selected. An agent or attorney can only collect ten dollars for prosecuting a pension claim (or twenty-five dollars where the claimant voluntarily gives that amount, and a contract to that effect is signed and approved by the Commissioner of Pensions), and no agent has a right to demand any fee before the case is settled. Higher charges than these are illegal and those making them are subject to heavy penalties. No agent or other person is entitled to any compensation for services in making application for any arrears of pension; no agent or attorney can assign a claim to another agent or attorney without the written consent of the claimant. When an agent or attorney is disbursed a claimant may appoint a new attorney and no fee is due the former one. If an attorney called on for new evidence in a case does not furnish it in ninety days, the claimant can file the same through another and the first forfeits all fees.

A fee will not be allowed to a guardian who prosecutes the claim of his ward, nor to a firm of attorneys of which the guardian is a member.

promise (upon any pretext whatever), or shall refuse to sur-oider said certificate upon the demands of a U. S. Pension agent, the pensioner, such person shall be fined $100 and the costs of the prosecution.

All applicants for invalid pensions shall be presumed to have had no disability at the time of enlistment, but such presumption may be rebutted. The payments of pensions to Indians in the Indian Territory must be made in standard silver coin, at least once a year. Officers of the Missouri State or Provisional Militia, wounded or injured while co-operating with the U. S. forces in the Civil war, and their widows or children, are entitled to all benefits of the U. S. Pension laws. But no such pensions shall commence prior to March 3, 1873.

If a soldier, while prisoner of war, joined the Confederate army, even if he deserted therefrom and rejoined the Union forces before firing a shot, he can not, nor can his heirs, receive a pension. A pensioner whose name has been dropped from the rolls can apply for its restoration thereto at any time, no matter for what reason his name was so dropped. No officer, clerk or employe of any United States Department can act as counsel, attorney or agent for prosecuting any claim against the United States; nor aid in prosecuting such claim while in the department for two years after leaving it.

Pensioners under Special Act of Congress are entitled to the benefits and subject to the limitations of the general pension laws. Such pensioners can not receive in addition to the special act pension, any pension under the general law, or arrears of pension, unless the special act expressly states that such are to be granted. The invalid claimant should carefully state his Company and Regiment, names of commanding officers, and dates of his enlistment and discharge. (In Navy cases the vessel, etc., etc., on which the man served should be given.) The nature and locality of the wound or injury, the time, place where, and circumstances under which it was received and the duty in which the man was then engaged. Every minute detail should be given. If the claim be for disability from disease, state when the disease first appeared, the place where he was when it appeared and the duty he was then engaged upon. He should detail the circumstances of exposure to the causes which, in his opinion, produced the disease. He should give the names, numbers and localities of all hospitals in which he was treated and the dates of his admission thereto, as correctly as he may be able. He will state if he was in the military or naval service of the United States prior to or after the term of service in which his disability originated. He will give his exact post-office address, and the street and number of his residence if in a city.

COURTS, MAGISTRATES, WITNESSES, TESTIMONY, ETC.—Swear to your declarations and claims if possible before a Court of Record and have placed on them the seal of said court. When magistrates and others administer oaths their authority to do so must be verified by the Court of Record. Any one acting as deputy of an officer of a Court of Record and administering an oath to a witness must sign his own name to the certificate of the fact and not that of the person for whom he is acting. In prosecution of a claim the witnesses should be, if possible, oVer persona than near relatives of the claimant, and every witness must state whether he or she has any interest, direct or indirect, in the prosecution of the claim in which he testifies, and give his post-office address. Witnesses should give a detailed statement of facts known to them and how they obtained such knowledge. The officer taking the depositions must certify to the credibility of the witnesses and must state why he considers them entitled to belief, he must certify that the contents of their depositions was made known to them, and that he has no interest, direct or indirect, in the claim. Alterations or interlineations or erasures must be accounted for by certificate of the oath administering official, that they were made with knowledge and sworn consent of the affiant. Surgeons or physicians making affidavits in support of claims should detail the nature of the disability, dates of treatment and death, symptoms and opinions as to connection between disease, or injury and disease, and it should be in the handwriting of the party signing it. The official certificates of judicial officers using a seal, or of commissioned officers of the army or navy in active service, will be accepted without affidavit; but all other witnesses must testify under oath. If an attorney does not prosecute a case given him in one year from receiving it the Pension Office must inform the claimant. With the blanks and directions obtainable from the United States Departments nearly every claimant, of any class, can make out his claim and prosecute the same himself. THE SULTAN.

A Sultan sat by Danube's tide And sore distressed aloud he cried; While like the waters to the sea His tears ran down both fast and free. A passing stranger said: "My friend, Why do those tears so fast descend?" "Alas!" he sobbed, "I've lost all hope; I've lost my cake of IVORY SOAP. No more it: pride through town I'll go, With garments clean and white as snow;

But in disgrace must move about. By scornful fingers pointed out. "Not so," the noble stranger cried: "I have a piece and will divide;" And from his coat-tail pocket drew: A cake and broke it fair in two. Then rose in joyitic Sultan gray, And made that man a Turkish tiuy, With servants kind and Viziers sa'e. And fifty wives to cheer his ace.

BILIOUSNESS. Bilious symptoms invariably arise from indigestion, such as furred tongue, vomiting of bile, giddiness, sick headache, irregular bowels. The liver secretes the bile and acts like a filter or sieve, to cleanse impurities of the blood. By irregularity in its action or suspension of its functions, the bile is liable to overflow into the blood, causing jaundice, sallow complexion, yellow eyes, bilious diarrhoea, a languid, weary feeling and many other distressing symptoms. Biliousness may be properly termed an affection of the liver, and can be thoroughly cured by the grand regulator of the liver and biliary organs, BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS. It acts upon the stomach, bowels and liver, making healthy bile and pure blood, and opens the culverts and sluiceways for the outlet of disease. Sold everywhere and guaranteed to cure.

The auction sale of Wm. Howard's live stock and perishable property, held at Milan Tuesday, brought $436.50, exclusive of eight tons of hay, which brought $5.50 per ton, and 400 pounds of corn sold at nineteen cents per bushel. The stock went exceedingly cheap. For instance, a Jersey calf, which Mrs. Howard a short time ago bought for $50, sold for $8, and a pure blooded Durham bull was thought to be worth only $16, and the remainder of the stock in proportion. The sale was held by order of the court in the matter of the Electric Sugar Company vs. Wm. E. Howard.

Crop Report.

In the southern counties where eighty-five per cent of the wheat crop of the State is grown, the ground was not sufficiently well covered with snow during February to afford entire protection to the wheat plant. The higher and more exposed parts of the fields were generally bare. Forty-three per cent of the reports from this section show that the ground was not well covered, and thirty-one per cent show that the plant was injured.

The average depth of snow on March 1 in the southern counties was three and two-tenths inches, but by the third the snow was nearly all gone. In Lansing there has been a "freeze" and a "thaw" every day except one from the first to the tenth of the month.

In the central and northern counties the wheat plant has been so well protected that it is uninjured.

Reports have been received of the quantity of wheat marketed by farmers during the month of February at 454 elevators and mills. Of these 385 are in the southern four tiers of counties, which is 65 per cent, and 53 are in the fifth and sixth tiers of counties, which is 46 per cent of the whole number in these sections respectively. The total number of bushels reported marketed is 1,123,028, as compared with 467,507 bushels reported marketed at the same number of elevators and mills in January. Of the total amount reported marketed in February 308,042 bushels were marketed in the first or southern tier of counties; 267,500 bushels in the second tier; 205,806 bushels in the third tier; 271,190 bushels in the fourth tier; 55,663 bushels in the fifth and sixth tiers; and 4,827 bushels in the northern counties. At 93 elevators and mills, or 20 per cent of the whole number from which reports have been received, there was no wheat marketed during the month.

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in the seven months August-February is 12,286,265, or about 52 per cent of the crop of 1888. The number of bushels reported marketed in the same months of 1887-8 was 8,848,992, or 39 per cent of the crop of 1887. In 1887-8 reports were received from about 50 per cent, and in 1888-9 from about 76 per cent of the elevators and mills in the southern four tiers of counties.

Shade trees—one at least, a foot in diameter—have been moved in Milan to get them nearer the proper line.

In a case instituted here against parties for running gambling hells, the marshal withdrew the complaints upon the arrested party agreeing to behave himself.

In a former case the marshal found much fault with prosecuting attorney for not pushing the matter as he thought he should. When the marshal made the arrest he claimed to have sufficient evidence to convict. Why then did he withdraw the complaint upon condition that the arrested party pay the costs? If all rumors are true the gang could do this and have a good boodle left. If this is the parting salute, of what good is a temperance official? It has grown to be a common saying in Milan that criminals surrounded by the false garb of respectability go scot free, while those with the liquor habit fastened upon them are salted and their families, who at best are but poorly provided for, are robbed by fine money under the plea of vindicating the law.

A young man doing business here sells "tonic" and is arrested and fined over and over again. But a high-toned saloonkeeper from Ann Arbor can come here on big days and sell the clear old "joyful" so freely that our streets are adorned with disgraceful fights, and several persons look as though they had been started through sausage grinders and then pulled out. Of course this is all right. The big law-breakers cannot be detected, but the little ones must suffer. Serve them all alike.

WEATH OF RUTH FARGO AMES. A Simple Tribute of Love In Heinorian, on the Closing of a Short, Sweet Life.

Ruth Fargo Ames, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Ames, was born Sept. 10, 1878. Everybody knew Ruth, the bright face stamped with the bloom and glow of health—bubbling over with fun and wit—endearing herself alike to old and young. Her wonderful perseverance and enthusiasm predicted for her a brilliant future. About a year ago were first seen traces of disease, which gradually developed into a sickness that baffled the skill of physicians, and with all the tender care and untiring devotion of a mother's love, her life was suddenly quenched in the brightness of its promise. Her death occurred on Friday morning, March 15.

Death! How much of earthly sorrow is garnered up in that one little word; yet when applied to the falling asleep of a pure little one who has not learned the sadness and sorrows of life, it is fraught with another meaning.

The funeral services were held at the home of the parents on Williams-st. on Sunday afternoon, March 17. It was truly a house of mourning. Beautiful floral tributes and tokens of love were many, those of the children and school mates being the most touching. A feeling of unspeakable grief filled the hearts of all, as they met to mingle their sorrows in common with the hearts which were most deeply torn.

But in years to come, as we grope our way toward the sunset, among the shadows, when the whole world takes on a sombre hue, we will have in remembrance of the occasion when Ruth was laid to rest amid the flowers, at the close of that lovely spring day, a picture never to be effaced, reaching through the cloud of gloom to the golden sunshine of the beyond—not far away.

The scene was a sermon in itself. It was one of those days with which we are occasionally blessed in early spring—just such a day as Bryant wrote of March:

"And in the reign of blast and storm Smiles many a long, bright, sunny day. When the changed winds are soft and warm, And heaven puts on the blue of May."

The little streams as they danced down the roadsides spoke only "Joy." The green grass springing up on the hillside said, "Resurrection."

The gentle breeze which fanned the faces of friends, and cooled the brows of mourning ones, whispered, "Peace, be still."

The swelling buds said, "Hope." The little birds in the branches whose song mingled with the sad requiem of lincolnd, sang, "Sweet sleep."

The rose buds placed so tenderly on the casket by the hands of children, said, "Rest."

The mellow sunshine said, "Dry your tears."

And above all was heard the voice of our loving Father, saying, "Trust and wait." H. R.

SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons axe entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. If you suffer from scrofula, try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"Every spring my wife and children have been troubled with scrofula, my little boy, three years old, being a terrible sufferer. Last spring he was one mass of sores from head to feet. We all took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and all have been cured of the scrofula. My little boy is entirely free from sores, and all four of my children look bright and healthy." W. B. A Terrible Misfortune.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life. To feel more nerveless, more ripsighted, weaker every day, fee this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions sapped by weakness and infirmity and left unbenefitted by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All form of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

DOLPH HEYLIGER.

By WASHINGTON IRVING.

The toi-toi now felt all the dignity of a landholder rein; within him. He had a little of the German pride of territory in his composition, and almost looked upon himself as owner of a principality. He began to complain of the fatigue of business, and was fond of riding out "to look at his estate." His little expeditions to his lands were attended with a bustle and parade that created a sensation throughout the neighborhood. His wall-eyed horse stood, stamping and whisking off the flies, for a full hour before the house. Then the doctor's saddle bags would be brought out and adjusted; then, after a little while, his cloak would be rolled up and strapped to the saddle; then his umbrella would be buckled to the coat; while, in the meantime, a group of ragged boys, that observant class of beings, would gather before the door. At length the doctor would issue forth, in a pair of jack boots that reached above his knees, and a cocked hat flapped down in front. As he was a short, fat man he took some time to mount into the saddle; and when there, he took some time to have the saddle and stirrups properly adjusted, enjoying the wonder and admiration of the arching crowd. Even after he had got off, he would pause in the middle of the street, or trot back two or three times to give some parting orders, which were answered by the housekeeper from the door, or Dolph from the study, or the black cook from the cellar, or the chambermaid from the garret window; and there were generally some last words bawled after him just as he was turning the corner.

The whole neighborhood would be aroused by this pomp and circumstance. The cobbler would leave his last, the barber would thrust out his frizzed head, with a comb sticking in it, a knot would collect at the grocer's door, and the word would be buzzed from one end of the street to the other. "The doctor's riding out to his country seat!"

These were golden moments for Dolph. No sooner was the doctor out of sight than pestle and mortar were abandoned, the laboratory was left to take care of itself, and the student was off on some madcap frolic.

Indeed, it must be confessed, the youngster, as he grew up, seemed in a fair way to fulfill the prediction of the old clerk colored gentleman, who was the ring-leader of all holiday sports and midnight gambols, ready for all kinds of mischievous pranks and harebrained adventures.

There is nothing so troublesome as a hero on a small scale, or, rather, a hero in a small town. Dolph soon became the abhorrence of all drowsy, housekeeping old citizens, who hated noise and had no relish for waggery. The good dames, too, considered him as little better than a reprobate, gathered their daughters under their wings whenever he was approaching, and pointed him out as a warning to their sons. No one seemed to hold him in much regard, excepting the wild striplings of the place, who were captivated by his open hearted, daring manners, and the negroes, who always look upon every idle, do-nothing youngster as a kind of gentleman. Even the good Peter de Groot, who had considered himself a kind of patron of the lad, began to despair of him and would shake his head dubiously as he listened to a long complaint from the housekeeper, and slipped a glass of her raspberry brandy.

Still his mother was not to be wearied out of her affection by all the waywardness of her boy, nor disheartened by the stories of his misdeeds, with which her good friends were continually regaling her. She had, it is true, very little of the pleasure which rich people enjoy, in always hearing their children praised; but she considered all this ill will as a kind of persecution which he suffered, and she liked him the better on that account. She saw him growing up a fine, tall, good looking youngster, and she looked at him with the secret pride of a mother's heart. It was her great desire that Dolph should appear like a gentleman, and all the money she could save went towards helping out his pocket and his wardrobe. She would look out of the window after him as he sallied forth in his best array, and her heart would yearn with delight; and once, when Peter de Groot, struck with the youngster's gallant appearance on a bright Sunday morning, observed, "Well, after all, Dolph does grow a comely fellow!" the tear of pride started into the mother's eye. "Ah, neighbor! neighbor!" exclaimed she, "that may be what you please; poor Dolph will yet hold up his head with the best of them."

Dolph Heyliger had now nearly attained his one-and-twentieth year, and the sum of his medical studies was just expiring, yet it must be confessed that he knew little more of the profession than when he first entered the doctor's doors. This, however, could not be from want of quickness of parts, for he showed amazing aptness in mastering other branches of knowledge, which he could only have studied at intervals. He was, for instance, a sure marksman, and won all the geese and turkeys at Christmas holidays. He was a bold rider; he was famous for leaping and wrestling; he played tolerably on the fiddle; could swim like a fish; and was the best hand in the whole place at fives or ninepins.

All these accomplishments, however, procured him no favor in the eyes of the doctor, who grew more and more crabbed and intolerant the nearer the term of apprenticeship approached. Frau Hsy, too, was forever finding some occasion to raise a windy tempest about his ears; and seldom encountered him about the house without a clatter of the tongue; so that at length the jingling of her keys, as she approached, was to Dolph like the ringing of the prompter's bell, that gives notice of a theatrical thunder storm. Nothing but the infinite good humor of the heedless youngster enabled him to bear all this domestic tyranny without open rebellion. It was evident that the doctor and his housekeeper were preparing to beat the poor youth out of the nest the moment his term should have expired; a shorthand mode which the doctor had of providing for useless disciples.

Indeed, the little man had been rendered more than usually irritable lately in consequence of various cares and vexations which his country estate had brought upon him. The doctor had been repeatedly annoyed by the rumors and tales which prevailed concerning the old mansion, and found it difficult to prevail even upon the countryman and his family to remain there rent free. Every time he rode out to the farm he was teased by some fresh complaint of strange noipr. and tearful sights with which the tenants were disturbed at night, and the doctor would come home fretting and fuming, and vent his spleen upon the whole household. It was indeed a sore grievance, that affected him both in pride and purse. He was threatened with an absolute loss of the profits of his property; and then, what a blow to his territorial consequence to be the landlord of a haunted house!

It was observed, however, that with all his vexation the doctor never proposed to sleep in the house himself; nay, he could never be prevailed upon to remain in the premises after dark, but made the best of his way for town as soon as the bats began to hit about in the twilight. The fact was, the doctor had a secret belief in ghosts, having passed the early part of his life in a country where they particularly abound; and indeed the story went that when a boy he had once seen the devil upon the Hartz mountains in Germany.

At length the doctor's vexations on this head were brought to a crisis. One morning, as he sat dozing over a volume in his study, he was suddenly started from his slumbers by the bustling in of the housekeeper.

"Here's a fine to do!" cried she as she entered the room. "Here's Claus Hopper come in, bag and baggage, from the farm, and swears he'll have nothing more to do with it. The whole family have been frightened out of their wits; for there's such racketing and rummaging about the old house that they can't sleep quiet in their beds!"

"Donner und blitz!" cried the doctor impatiently; "will they never have done chattering about that house? What a pack of fools, to let a few rats and mice frighten them out of good quarters!"

"Nay, nay," said the housekeeper, wagging her head knowingly, and piqued at having a good ghost story doubted, "there's more in it than rats and mice. All the neighborhood talks about the house, and then such sights have been seen in it! Peter de Groot tells me that the family that sold you the house and went to Holland dropped several strange hints about it, and said they wished you your bargain; and you know yourself there's no getting any family to live in it."

"Peter de Groot's a ninny—an old woman," said the doctor peevishly. "I'll warrant he's been filling these people's heads full of stories. It's just like his nonsense about the ghost that haunted the church belfry as an excuse for not ringing the bell that cold night when Harmanus Brinkerhoff's louse was on fire. Send Claus to me."

Claus Hopper now made his appearance—a simple country lout, full of awe at finding himself in the very study of Dr. Knipperhausen, and too much embarrassed to enter into much detail of the matters that had caused his alarm. He stood wringing his hat in one hand, resting sometimes on one leg, sometimes on the other, looking occasionally at the doctor, and now and then stealing a fearful glance at the death's head that seemed ogling him from the top of the clothes press.

The doctor tried every means to persuade him to return to the farm, but all in vain; he maintained a dogged determination on the subject; and at the close of every argument or solicitation, would make the same brief, inflexible reply, "Ich kan nicht, mynheer." The doctor was a "little pot, and soon hot"; his patience was exhausted by these continual vexations about his estate. The stubborn refusal of Claus Hopper seemed to him like flat rebellion; his temper suddenly boiled over, and Claus was glad to make a rapid retreat to escape scolding.

When the bumpkin got to the housekeeper's room, he found Peter de Groot and several other true believers ready to receive him. Here he indemnified himself for the restraint he had suffered in the study, and opened a budget of stories about the haunted house that astonished all his hearers. The housekeeper believed them all, if it was only to spite the doctor for having received her intelligence so unbecomingly. Peter de Groot matched them with many a wonderful legend of the times of the Dutch dynasty, and of the devil's stepping stones; and of the pirate that was hanged at Gibbet Island, and continued to swing there at night long after the gallows was taken down; and of the ghost of the unfortunate Governor Leisler, who was hanged for treason, which haunted the old fort and the government house. The gossiping kind dispersed, each charged with direful intelligence. The student dismissed himself at a vestry meeting that was held that very day, and the black cook forsook her kitchen, and spent half the day at the street pump, that gossiping place of servants, dealing forth the news to all that came for water. In a little time the whole town was in a buzz with tales about the haunted house. Some said that Claus Hopper had seen the devil, while others hinted that the house was haunted by the ghosts of some of the patients whom the doctor had physicked out of the world, and that was the reason why he did not venture to live in it himself.

All this put the little doctor in a terrible fume. He threatened vengeance on any one who should affect the value of his property by exciting popular prejudices. He complained loudly of thus being in a manner dispossessed of his territories by mere biggers; but he secretly determined to have the house exorcised by the dominie. Great was his relief, therefore, when, in the midst of his perplexities, Dolph stepped forward and undertook to garrison the haunted house. The youngster had been listening to all the stories of Claus Hopper and Peter de Groot; he was fond of adventure, he loved the marvelous, and his imagination had become quite excited by these tales of wonder. Besides, he had led such an uncomfortable life at the doctor's, being subjected to the intolerable thralldom of early hours, that he was delighted at the prospect of having a house to himself, even though it should be a haunted one. His offer was eagerly accepted, and it was determined that he should mount guard that very night. His only stipulation was, that the enterprise should be kept secret from his mother; for he knew the poor soul would not sleep a wink if she knew that her son was waging war with the powers of darkness.

When night came on, lie set out on this perilous expedition. The old black cook, his only friend in the household, had provided him with a little vessel for supper, and a rushlight; and she tied round his neck an amulet, given her by an African conjurer, as a charm against evil spirits. Dolph was escorted on his way by the doctor and Peter de Groot, who had agreed to accompany him to the house and to see him safe lodged. The night was overcast, and it was very dark when they arrived at the grounds of the mansion. The doctor and Peter de Groot led the way with a lantern. As they walked along the avenue of acacias, the fitful light, catching from bush to bush, and tree to tree, often started the doughty Peter, and made him fall back upon his couch when he heard the mysterious footstep again on the staircase. Up it came, as before, solemnly and slowly, tramp—tramp—tramp! It approached along the passage; the door again swung open, as if there had been neither lock nor impediment, and a strange looking figure stalked into the room. It was an elderly man, large and spinning out themselves into hours. As the night advanced he grew more and more nervous, and he almost started from his couch when he heard the mysterious footstep again on the staircase. Up it came, as before, solemnly and slowly, tramp—tramp—tramp! It approached along the passage; the door again swung open, as if there had been neither lock nor impediment, and a strange looking figure stalked into the room. It was an elderly man, large and robust, clothed in the old Flemish fashion. He had on a kind of short cloak, with a garment under it, belted round the waist; trunk hose; and a pair of russet boots, very large at top, and standing widely from his legs. His hat was broad and slouched, with a feather trailing over one side. His iron gray hair hung in thick masses on his neck, and he had a short grizzled beard. He walked slowly round the room as if examining that all was safe, then, hanging his hat on a peg beside the door, he sat down in the elbow chair, and, leaning his elbow on the table, he fixed his eyes on Dolph with an unmoving and deadening stare.

LITERARY NOTES.

The American Geologist for March has a paper by Dr. Alexander Winchell which treats of conglomerates and conglomeritic appearances in granites. The Geologist maintains the high character, through not to high for the non-technical reader, with which it started out.

Alexander Black's "Story of Ohio," published by D. Lothrop Company, is finding the most practical of all endorsements in the Buckeye State—use. The book has already been adopted in certain schools of the State as text-book or as part of the course of supplementary reading.

The Pansy for March comes to our table freighted with pictures and stories for young folks from eight to twelve. It is certainly a charming magazine, with not a line of reading that the most particular of parents can object to. The subscription price is $1 a year. The publishers, D. Lothrop Company, Boston, will send a sample back number on receipt of five cents.

The frontispiece of the Magazine of Art for April is a fine engraving by M. Morse, one of the most sympathetic wielders of the graver in Paris, of Greuze's famous painting, "The Dead Bird." The original is in the possession of the Baroness Nathaniel de Rothschild, who acquired it in 1880 at a cost of £4,800. The opening paper of the number is from the gifted and careful pen of Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer, who writes of the famous American painter, Washington Allston. To the present generation, to whom Allston is but an honored name, Mrs. Van Rensselaer's paper, with its admirable illustrations from his work, will be a revelation. The notes are full, news and wide-ranging in this number of the Magazine—Cassell & Co. N. Y. 35c a number, $3.50 per year in advance.

The April number of the Century will be devoted largely to celebrating the Centennial of the Inauguration of Washington in New York, April 30, 1789. The contents of the number will include "The Inauguration of Washington," by Clarence W. Bowen, illustrated with views of New York in 1789, the reception at Trenton, portraits, etc.; "Washington at Mt. Vernon after the Revolution," by Mrs. Burton N. Harrison, with a number of interesting illustrations, and "Washington in New York in 1789," by the same author; "Original Portraits of Washington," by Chas. Henry Hart, and "A Century of Constitutional Interpretation," by Prof. John Bach McMaster. Mrs. Harrison's articles are devoted to the social aspect of the subject, and she will describe New York society at the time of the first president. A hundred illustrations will appear in this number of the Century.

DEFIANT BODMERS.

Would-So Settlers of Oklahoma Growing Ugly.

A Band of Colonists Overpowered After a Fight with Uncle Sam's Troops—Fear of More Serious Trouble Expressed.

AHMED RESISTANTE.

PURCELL, Incl. T. March 20.—The first open collision between United States troops and Oklahoma invaders occurred Monday night. The soldiers claim they were attacked and compelled to act in self-defense. The situation is critical and worse conflicts are expected at any moment. Lieutenant Carson and a body of soldiers were sent to scour the country. In what is called the Crutch country, north-east of Oklahoma station, was quite a large party that had gathered around William Beck. Among the number was his daughter, his relative, Samuel Anderson, and an old man named William Adams. Their house and their dug-out had been destroyed in a former raid. Their hiding-place was discovered by an Indian scout and reported to Lieutenant Carson, who sent out a detachment to drive them out or arrest them. The boomers saw the troops coming and determined to stand their ground. Being surrounded and called upon to depart without trouble they commenced paroling, and made threats against the lines of troops. These threats enraged the soldiers and they rode upon the party with gun and revolver in hand, but having orders to avoid a conflict they halted and dismounted. Part of the boomers were disarmed, but Anderson and old man Adams held out and made a desperate resistance with their guns. The former received a pistol wound in the head and the latter in the mouth. Other boomers took up clubs and stones and fought with desperation. They were, however, compelled to surrender. Several of the soldiers received wounds. While the soldiers were tying their captives with ropes to be connected with their saddles and thus lead them to camp Adams escaped. The others were all brought to the camp and are being held swilling further orders. There is great excitement among the boomers since the conflict. They declare they will make resistance and light, if necessary, to remain in Oklahoma.

In view of the unexpected and threatening turn of affairs it is a matter of discussion among officials and old residents what will be done in case the opening of the strip is followed by a reign of terror, and whether the proclamation once issued, the President or Congress would have power to withdraw it in order to stem the tide of settlers and prevent bloodshed. Every day makes the critical aspect of Oklahoma affairs more threatening and more apparent. The United States Attorney here is using every effort through his marshals in the territory to keep the peace, but it is plain to be seen that he is anxious and awaits the arrival of each dispatch with fear.

GEUDA SPRINGS, Kan., March 30.—Sunday morning the cattlemen along the border for a great distance on the Cherokee strip awakened to find their fences all destroyed. Sunday night the work of destruction was renewed, and it is thought the stables, corrals and other property will go next. It is thought this is done in retaliation for the driving out of the boomers from the Creek and Seminole ceded lands. The people here and at Arkansas City are quiet and seem determined to stand loyally by law and Presidential orders. They feel, however, if the law-abiding are kept out all others should be, so that all may have an equal chance in the selection of lands.

CRAZY FOR LACK OF WORK.

Though Khorcett Idleness Sing Sing Prisoners Are Becoming Insane. SIN^o Smo, N. Y., March 10.—Edward Broderick, aged 11, and Joseph Trogan, aged 24, have been taken to the Auburn Insane Asylum for convicts. About 11 o'clock Thursday night the prison officials were startled by shrieks coming from the seventh gallery. On going to the cell of Marassa, a convict, who was serving a three years' sentence, the keeper found Donnelly crouching in a corner, calling to some one to save him from the devil. A light was placed in his cell, and Donnelly calmed down. Principal Keeper Connaughten says that the men are going insane owing to their having no work. "I trust," he says, "that the Legislature will do something soon for the convicts. If they don't we will be kept busy all summer sending insane prisoners to the asylum."

Some of the Montreal merchants are also protesting against an increase in the duties on the American article.

Kowall & Co's American Newspaper Directory, to be published April 1, it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds issued in the United States and Canada now number 17,017, showing a gain of 797 during the last twelve months and of 588 in ten years.

Found New Oil Wells. TITUSVILLE, Pa., March 10.—The discovery of new oil wells at East Titusville, the home of the famous "grasshopper wells" of old, has caused great excitement, and every foot of the land within a mile of the little settlement has been gobbled up by speculators.

SALISBURY'S BOLD FRONT.

Nothing but a Vote of Want of Confidence—Ull Dislodge the Tories.

LONDON, March 30.—Lord Salisbury, speaking at Walford, said that nothing short of a vote of confidence would bring the Government to a premature end. Those who thought otherwise were amusing themselves with his ireams.

He said that he would not discuss the forged letters or the murder matters of accusation against the Irish leaders which were now before an eminently competent and impartial tribunal. The Government had no interest in the letters. The commission had been appointed to consider far wider and more important charges. There had been a deal of public embracing of Parnollite leaders, but before expressing an opinion he would wait for the judgment of the commission.

The Daily News says that Lord Salisbury's speech at Walford sealed the fate of the Government, which has drawn the sword and thrown away the scabbard. He is driven by the force of events into a state of desperate fury, and like Juno, is glad to eat his enemies quickly and eat them raw. If Lord Salisbury should be imprisoned for a technical breach of the law and if any Radical referred to him as he referred to Mr. O'Brien, he would deserve to be hoisted ignominiously out of the society of decent people.

QUADRUPLETRAGEDY.

Samuel Itudlle Kill^o Three Persons and Himself Near Austin, Nev.

AUSTIN, Nev., March 16.—A terrible tragedy occurred Thursday between 2 and 3 o'clock p. m. at Italian Canyon, twelve miles from this city. Samuel Itudlle killed his father-in-law, George Hosking, and his brother-in-law, aged 15, by shooting them. A charge of shot entered the left side of the former's neck and tore away the face of the other victim. A boy named John King, hearing the shot, came toward the house and was met by Itudlle. Holding the gun, the latter asked the boy to shoot him. The lad refused, telling him to "go to the house and get dinner." Itudlle then took the boy's horse and rode three miles to a lower ranch, entered the kitchen of the house, and with a pistol shot Mrs. Hosking in the temple and then killed himself. Mrs. Hosking was ironing clothes at the time. The shooting was the result of a division of property and of family troubles. Mrs. Itudlle was here in town at the time of the tragedy and is almost distracted. She has two children, the oldest being only 18 months old.

On Saturday the examination of George Murray took place, John F. Lawrence appearing for the defendant. The prosecuting attorney introduced testimony substantially as THE REGISTER has given, but the defense put no witness upon the stand, claiming that the evidence was not sufficient to justify a trial in the circuit court. There is an "intent industry" at our neighboring city on the west, "lively and kicking." THEY STRIKE BACK.

The FriciMx ana Howards Adit that a Receiver be Appointed for the Electric Sugar Company.

Rev. Mr. Howard of electric sugar fidme is doing missionary work in New York city, and the rest of his crowd are languishing in the Tombs. Circumstances have been against them for some time, but last Friday they Bruck back, and it proved an interesting phase of this electric sugar business.

A. J. Sawyer returned on Saturday from New York city. When asked to explain the latest move, he said:

"After looking the field over I came to the conclusion that there was no way but to institute proceedings. Mr. Cotterill had, by virtue of his presidency of the corporation, a large amount of money which belonged to the stockholders, besides the books of the corporation showing what had been done with the money that had already been raised. He was expending that money lavishly not in accordance with the purpose for which the corporation was organized, and in direct violation of the rights of the stockholders. He had formed the design to compel Mrs. Friene to disclose to him for his individual benefit the secret process for refining sugar and with that view proclaimed that there was no process and that the whole conduct of Mrs. Friend had been fraudulent."

"For Mrs. Friend to disclose that seere would be to deprive her of all the benefits of it and destroy the purpose for which the corporation was organized. Every stockholder has an interest in the preservation of the value of the stock. This conduct of Cotterill and Robinson has already reduced the value of the stock from 300 per cent to 4 or 5 per cent.

"I had an interview with the stockholders in New York city, and called attention to the fact that when Cotterill had squandered all themoneythey had on hand they would be unable to carry on the business for which the corporation was organized, and they then might as well dissolve. They had a right at least to their share of the money then on hand—a large amount of money, and if Mr. Cotterill wanted to have a lawsuit with the Friends and Howards, let him spend his own money and not the money of the corporation in a useless litigation.

"The bill was filed and served before I left New York. It will command Cotterill to deliver over the moneys, books and papers of the corporation to a receiver to be appointed by the court, and to account for other money that has come icito his hands, and it enjoins him from expending any more of the money of the corporation or contracting any debts against the corporation."

The San on March 20.

Our Chelsea correspondent fends us the following clear statement of what the sun did on March 20:

"The sun crossed the equinox and swring began Wednesday morning, March 20th, at about 5 o'clock. For a few days there will be equal day and night over the entire globe. A person standing on the north pole would see the sun skim the horizon entirely around him, moving to the light as he faced it; while to one standing on the south pole, the sun would skim the horizon around, moving to the left, and, to those on the equator, he will rise exactly in the east, stand exactly in the zenith at noon, and set exactly in the west. These phenomena will not all occur again until the 22nd of next September."

Charles L. Davis, well known as Alvin Joslin, will appear in Ann Arbor tomorrow evening in "One of the Old Stock." The Evening World of Oct. 16 says: "The [Dk]y is comparatively new to thecity, having only been played in Harlem. Mr. Davis is the star and the audience recognized him at once as their old favorite, Alvin Joslin. Chas. Stedman, in a part of a miser, gave an excellent performance; in fact he could not have done better. Daniel Jarrett, Arthur Cooke, William Robinson, Miss Connie Thompson and Miss Kizzie Masters also did some good work. The plot of One of the Old Stock is so interesting that it had better be heard rather than read."

J. F. Schuh will, in the future, sell Domestic, Davis and White sewing machines.
