ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 1889.

WHOLE NO. 745.

DEMOCRATIC WEATHER.

DEMOCRATS EMST THEIR VIZ TICKET ASDFOITK AIDEKMEK.

The Council Will Be Democratic by One Majority-Be-ubltc-nic Elect Two Supervisors-Conny Returns.

The Democrats will run the city government for the first year under the new charter, and thus will be responsible for any mismanagement which may occur. Mr. Beakes' good work in drafting the charter and securing its passage made him a favorite candidate. There were those, however, who, apprehensive of what his attitude might be towards the liquor interest, were loath to place such great power in his hands as the appointment and removal of the city marshal, and thus some voted for Dr. C. G. Darlin, the Republican candidate. Mr. Beakes' plurality was 45 less than last year. The prohibition vote for mayor was 98 smaller than one year ago. Mr. Beakes was elected, however, by the handsome plurality of 225. There were only one larger plurality, that of Fred H. Belsler, for president of the council, who received a clean one thousand votes, leading his Republican opponent, A. M. Clark, by 348. Mr. Clark is a comparatively new comer in Ann Arbor.

There was a very warm struggle over the office of city clerk. The Republicans had as a candidate Daniel O'Keefe, who, incapacitated in a most distressing way for manual labor, is yet competent to do the clerical work of the office of city clerk. There was much sympathy excited in his favor, his photograph, with a printed card stating his acquirements, were posted at each polling place; and hard work was done for him. Yet James R. Bach had 114 more votes than Mr. O'Keefe.

For assessor, Albert Gardner made a splendid run, his opponent, Mr. O'Hearn, leading by only 108. For justice of the peace, N. A. G. Butts, Democratic, beat Eugene K. Frueauf by only 98.

Of the aldermen, the Democrats elected Christian Martin without opposition in the Second; Wm. G. Snow by 35 plurality in the Third; John O'Mara in the Fourth; and Oscar C. Stafford in the Fifth. These four, with the president of the council and the two Democratic aldermen, Messrs. Herz and Miller, who hold over, give the Democrats; seven votes in the council. The Republicans elected W. G. Dieterle in the First, and A. F. Martin in the Sixth. Mr. Martin had no opposition, as the Democrats selected no candidate after Dr. Vaughan declined to run. The Republicans have four members of the council who hold over, and thus they will have six votes.

The Republicans elected two supervisors, and the Democrats four.

For the amendment increasing the governor's salary, Ann Arbor gave 704 votes for, and 243 against. For the constitutional amendment giving Kent county an extra circuit judge, the city gave 509, and 34 against it. The amendment, relative to corporations had 322 for and 87 against.

As was expected, Judge Grant ran far ahead of the ticket in Ann Arbor, coming within 59 of carrying the city.

There were 63 more votes cast for mayor than last year.

Following is a statement of the vote in detail:

It-i-k Mended Ills Cistern.

The typical old backwoods Democrat who is still voting for Andrew Jackson was more than quailed on Monday by a man who walked up to the Fourth ward polls and asked for a ticket with which he could vote for "raisin' th' guv'ner's salry."

"I believe he had ought to git more pay," said the generously inclined voter as the polite inspector handed him a ballot.

"I'm acquainted with the guv'ner."

"O, you know him, do you?"

"Wall, I should think so. He's ben a hard worker, and there ain't cutthi'small ba'nt him. He's a fine man. Why, I fixed up a cistern for the guv'ner one' and when he wanted to know the price, I said $2 We!), what did the puv'ner do but hand me out $3 and he said it was dirt cheap at that."

"Where did you ever mend a cistern for the governo'?" Slid a by stander, looking at the loquacious citizen curiously.

"Why, where do you suppose? Up here on State st. You know whar« Guv'ner Fitch lives don't you?"

And the old citizen deposited his ballot in the firm faith that ex-Gov. Felon's income was to be increased by his grateful recollection.

It-ulMii li-illpi's Tnxch.

For the year 1887, Reuben Kempf paid taxes in Ann Arbor city, to the amount of $233 53, of which $18150 was for personal property, $30 25 for bank stock, and $21.78 for real estate.

For the year 1888, he paid $1,357.16 as taxes in Ann Arbor city, an increase in one year of $1,123 63, an amount large enough to make any one squirm if he isn't used to it. Of this amount $1,257 60 was for persona' mortgages; $26 20 for bank stock; and $73 36 for real estate.

Mr. Kempf paid the tax, but filed a p-o-test, and last week he gave notice of his intention to commence suit against the city of Ann Arbor, to recover what he claims was unjustly assessed against him.

Of course the increased assessment was due to the new mortgage tax law. In his protest, Mr. Kempf says that the mortgages asses-ed, which amount to $65,737, really belong to the firm of Kempf & Bros., of Chel-et, of which firm he is a member. He attacks the legality of the whole tax roll.

Mr. Tora Mogi, a student in the University, has presented TUB RKGISTEU with a copy of "The Mameitici Sh in jum" of Feb. 17, a Japanese paper. This number is of especial interest, because it contains an English translation of the new Japanese constitution, a list of the new Japanese cabinet officers, a picture of Viscount Mori Arinori, the Mins'er of State for Education, who was assassinated on the day the new constitution went into effect.

DOLPH HEYLIGER.

By WASHINGTON IRTISH.

It was on a point of the western shore that he landed, and, scrambling up the rocks, he threw himself, faint and exhausted, at the foot of a tree. By degrees the thunder gust passed over. The clouds rolled away to the east, where they lay piled in feathery masses, tinted with the last rosy rays of the sun. The distant play of the lightning might be seen about the dark bases, and now and then might be heard the faint muttering of the thunder. Dolph rose, and sought about to see if any path led from the shore; but all was savage and trackless. The rocks were piled upon each other; great trunks of trees lay shattered about, as they had been blown down by the strong winds which draw through these mountains, or had fallen through age. The rocks, too, were overhung with wild vines and briars, which completely matted themselves together, and opposed a barrier to all ingress; every movement that he made shook down a shower from the dripping foliage. He attempted to scale one of these almost perpendicular heights; but, though strong and agile, he found it an Herculean undertaking. Often he was supported merely by crumbling projections of the rock, and sometimes he clung to roots and branches of trees, and hung almost suspended in the air. The wood pigeon came cleaving his whistling flight by him, and the eagle screamed from the brow of the impending cliff. As he was thus clambering, he was on the point of seizing hold of a shrub to aid his ascent, when something rustled among the leaves, and he saw a snake quivering along like lightning, almost from under his hand. It coiled itself up immediately, in an attitude of defiance, with flattened head, distended jaws, and quickly vibrating tongue, that played like a little flame about its mouth. Dolph's heart turned faint within him, and he had well nigh let go his hold, and tumbled down the precipice. The serpent stood on the defensive but for an instant; it was an instinctive movement of defense; and finding there was no attack, it glided away into a cleft of the rock. Dolph's eye followed with fearful intensity; and he saw at a glance that he was in the vicinity of a nest of adders, that lay knotted and writhing, and hissing in the chasm. He hastened with all speed to escape from so frightful a neighborhood. His imagination was full of this new horror; he saw an adder in every curling vine, and heard the tail of a rattlesnake in every dry leaf that rustled.

At length he succeeded. In scrambling to the summit of a precipice; but it was covered by a dense forest. Wherever he could gain a lookout between the trees, he saw that the coast rose in heights and hills, one rising beyond another, until huge mountains overtopped the whole. There were no signs of cultivation, nor any smoke curling amongst the trees, to indicate a human residence. Everything was wild and solitary. As he was standing on the edge of a precipice that overlooked a deep ravine fringed with trees, his feet detached a great fragment of rock; it fell, crashing its way through the tree tops, down into the chasm. A loud whoop, or rather yell, issued from the bottom of the glen; the moment after, there was the report of a gun; and a ball came whistling over his head, cutting the twigs and leaves, and burying itself deep in the bark of a chestnut tree.

Dolph did not wait for a second shot, but made a precipitate retreat, fearing every moment to hear the enemy in pursuit. He succeeded, however, in returning unmolested to the shore, and determined to penetrate no farther into a country so beset with savage perils. He sat himself down, dripping, disconsolately, on a wet stone. What was to be done? Where was he to shelter himself? The hour of repose was approaching; the birds were seeking their nests; the bat began to flit about in the twilight, and the night hawk soaring high in heaven, seemed to be calling out the stars. Night gradually closed in and wrapped everything in gloom; and though it was the latter part of summer, yet the breeze, stealing along the river, and among these dripping forests, was chilly and penetrating, especially to a half-drowned man.

As he sat drooping and despondent in this comfortable condition, he perceived a light gleaming through the trees near the shore, where the winding of the river made a deep bay. It cheered him with the hopes that here might be some human habitation, where he might get something to appease the clamorous cravings of his stomach, and what was equally necessary in his shipwrecked condition, a comfortable shelter for the night. It was with extreme difficulty that he made his way towards the light, along ledges of rocks down which he was in danger of sliding into the river, and over great trunks of fallen trees, some of which had been blown down in the late storm, and lay so thickly together that he had to struggle through their branches. At length he came to the brow of a rock that overhung a small dell, from whence the light proceeded. It was from a Ore at the foot of a great tree that stood in the midst of a grassy interval or plat among the rocks. The fire cast up a red glare among the gray crags and impending trees, leaving chasms of deep gloom that resembled entrances to caverns. A small brook rippled close by, betrayed by the quivering reflection of the flame. There were two figures moving about the fire and other things scattered before it. As they were between him and the light they were in complete shadow; but one of them happening to move round to the opposite side, Dolph was startled at perceiving, by the full glare falling on painted features and glittering on silver ornaments, that he was an Indian. He now looked more narrowly, and saw a body lying on the ground.

Dolph began to doubt whether he was not in a worse condition than before; here was the very foe that had fired at him from the glen. He endeavored to retreat quietly, not caring to intrust himself to these half human beings in so savage and lonely a place. It was too late. The Indian, with that eagle quickness of eye so remarkable in his race, perceived something stirring among the bushes on the rock. He seized one of the guns that leaned against the tree; one moment more, and Dolph might have had his passion for adventure cured by a bullet. He hallooed loudly with the Indian salutation of friendship; the whole party sprang upon their feet; the salutation was returned, and the straggler was invited to join them at the fire.

On approaching he found, to his consolation, that the party was composed of white men as well as Indians. One, who was evidently the principal personage or commander, was seated on the trunk of a tree before the fire. He was a large, stout man, somewhat advanced in life, but hale and hearty. His face was bronzed almost to the color of an Indian's; he had strong but rather jovial features, an aquiline nose and a mouth shaped like a mastic. His face was half thrown in shade by a broad hat with a buck's-tail in it. His gray hair hung short in his neck. He wore a hunting frock, with Indian leggings, and moccasins, and a tomahawk in the broad wampum belt round his waist. As Dolph caught a distinct view of his person and features, he was struck with something that reminded him of the old man of the haunted house. The man before him, however, was different in his dress and age; he was more cheery, too, in his aspect, and it was hard to define where the vague resemblance lay—but a resemblance there certainly was. Dolph felt some degree of awe in approaching him; but was assured by the frank, hearty welcome with which he was received. As he cast his eyes about, too, he was still further encouraged by perceiving that the dead body, which had caused him some alarm, was that of a deer; and his satisfaction was complete in discerning, by the savory steams which issued from a kettle suspended by a hooked stick over the fire, that there was a part cooking for the evening's repast.

He now found that, he had fallen in with a rambling hunting party, such as often took place in those days among the settlers along the river. The hunter is always hospitable; and nothing makes him more so than the uncertainty of the wilderness. The commander of the party poured him out a dram of cheering liquor, which he gave him with a merry leer, to warm his heart; and ordered one of his followers to fetch some garments from a pinnace, which was moored in a cove close by, while those in which our hero was dripping might be dried before the fire.

Dolph found, as he had suspected, that the shot from the glen, which had come so near giving him his quietus when on the precipice, was from the party before him. He had nearly crushed one of them by the fragment of rock which he had detached; and the jovial old hunter, in the broad hat and bucktail, had fired at the place where he saw the bushes move, supposing it to be some wild animal. He laughed heartily at the blunder; it being what is considered an exceeding good joke among hunters; "but, faith, my lad," said he, "if I had but caught a glimpse of you to take sight at, you would have followed the rock." Antony Vander Heyden is seldom known to miss his aim. These last words were to amuse a clown; to Dolph's curiosity; and a few questions led him completely into the character of the man before him, and of his band of woodland rangers. The commander in the broad hat and hunting frock was no less a personage than the Heer Antony Vander Heyden, of Albany, of whom Dolph had many a time heard. He was, in fact, the hero of many a story, being a man of singular humors and whimsical habits, that were matters of wonder to his quiet Dutch neighbors. As he was a van, of property, having had a father before him, from whom he inherited large tracts of wild land, and whole barrels full of wampum, he could indulge his humors without control. Instead of staying quietly at home, eating and drinking at regular meal times, amusing himself by smoking his pipe on the bench before the door, and then turning into a comfortable bed at night, he delighted in all kinds of rough, wild expeditions, he was never so happy as when on a hunting party in the wilderness, sleeping under trees or bark sheds, or cruising down the river, or on some woodland lake, fishing and fowling, and living the Lord knows how.

He was a great friend to Indians, and to an Indian mode of life; which he considered true natural liberty and manly enjoyment. When at home he had always several Indian hangers on, who loitered about his house, sleeping like hounds in the sunshine, or preparing hunting and lusing tackle for some new expedition, or shooting at marks with bows and arrows. Over these vagrant beings Heer Antony had as perfect command as a huntsman over his pack; though they were great nuisances to the regular people of his neighborhood. As he was a rich man no one ventured to thwart his humors; indeed, he had a hearty, jovious manner about him that made him universally popular. He would stroll a Dutch saddy as he tramped along the street; had every one a mile off, and when he entered a house he would slap the good man familiarly on the back, shake him by the hand till he roared and kiss his wife and daughters before his face—in short, there was no pride nor ill humor about Heer Antony.

Besides his Indian liangers on he had three or four humble friends among the white men, who looked up to him as a patron, and had the run of his kitchen, and the favor of being taken with him occasionally on his expeditions. It was with a saddy of such retainers that he was at present on a cruise along the shores of the Hudson, in a pinnace which he kept for his own recreation. There were two white men with him, dressed partly in the Indian style, with moccasins and hunting shirts; the rest of his crew consisted of four favorite Indians. They had been prowling about the river, without any definite object, until they found themselves in the highlands; where they had passed two or three days, hunting the deer which still lingered among these mountains.

"It is a lucky circumstance, young man," said Antony Vander Heyden, "that you happened to be knocked overboard today, as to-morrow morning we start early on our return homeward, and you might then have looked in vain for a meal among the mountains—out come, lads, stir about! rtrabout! Lefs see what prog we hare for supper; the kettle has boiled long enough; my stomach cries cupboard, and I'll warrant our guest is in JIG mood to dally with Ms trencher."

At an early hour the next day, therefore, after a hearty morning's meal, the encampment broke up, and our adventurers embarked in the pinnace of Antony Vander Heyden. There being no wind for the sails, the Indians rowed her gently along, keeping time to a kind of chant of one of the white men. The day was serene and beautiful; the liver lifted out a wave; and as the vessel left the glassy water it left a long, undulating track behind. The crews, who had scented the hunters' banquet, were already gathering and hovering in the air, just where a column of thin, blue smoke, rising from among the trees, showed the place of their last night's quarters. As they coasted along the bases of the mountains, the Heer Antony pointed out to Dolph a bald eagle, the sovereign of these regions, who sat perched on a dry tree that projected over the river; and, with eye turned upwards, seemed to be drinking in the splendor of the morning sun.

Their approach disturbed the monarch's meditations. He first sprang on wing, and then the other, balanced himself for a moment, and then, quitting his perch with dignified composure, wheeled slowly over their heads. Dolph snatched up a gun and sent a whistling ball after him, that cut some of the feathers from his wing; the report of the gun leaped sharply from rock to rock and awakened a thousand echoes; but the monarch of the air sailed calmly on, ascending higher and higher, and sailing widely by as he ascended, soaring up the open bosom of the woody mountain, until he disappeared over the brow of a beetling precipice. Dolph felt in a manner rebuked by this proud tranquility, and almost reproached himself for having so wantonly insulted this majestic bird. Heer Antony told him, laughing, to remember that he was not yet out of the territories of the lord of the Dunderberg, and an old Indian shook his head and observed that there was bad luck in killing an eagle—the hunter, on the contrary, should always leave him a portion of his spoils.

Nothing, however, occurred to molest them on their voyage. They passed pleasantly through magnificent and lonely scenes, until they came to where Polopoli's Island lay, like a floating bower, at the extremity of the highlands. Here they landed, until the heat of the day should abate or a breeze spring up that might supersede the labor of the oar. Some prepared the midday meal, while others, reposed under the shade of the trees in luxurious summer idleness, looking drowsily forth upon the beauty of the scene. On the one side were the highlands, vast and cragged, feathered to the top with forests and throwing their shadows on the glassy water that dimpled at their feet. On the other side was a wide expanse of the river, like a broad lake, with long, sunny reedies and deep headlands, and the distant line of Shawungunk mountains waving along a clear horizon or checkered by a fleecy cloud.

But I forbear to dwell on the particulars of their cruise along the river; this vagrant, amphibious life, careering across silver sheets of water; coasting wild woodland shores; banqueting an she pronounced with the spreading of her overhead, the river curling its light lo-1 to one's feet, and distant mountain, at d rock, and tree, and snowy cloud, and deep blue sky, all mingling in summer beauty before one; all this, though never cloying in the enjoyment, would be but tedious in narration. When encamped by the water side some of the party would go into the woods and hunt, others would fish—sometimes they would amuse themselves by shooting at a mark, by leaping, by running, by wrestling, and Dolph gained great favor in the eyes of Antony Vander Heyden by his skill and adroitness in all these exercises, which the Heer considered as the highest of manly accomplishments.

Thus did they coast jollily on, choosing only the pleasant hours for voyaging; sometimes in the cool morning dawn, sometimes in the sober evening twilight, and sometimes when the moonshine spangled the crisp curling waves that whispored along the sides of their little bark. Never had Dolph felt 60 completely in his element; never had he met with anything so completely to his taste as this wild, happy life. He was the very man to second Antony Vander Heyden in his rambling humors, and gained continually on his affections. The heart of the old bushwacker yearned toward the young man, who seemed thus growing up in his own likeness; and as they approached to the end of their voyage, he could not help inquiring a little into his history. Dolph frankly told him his course of life, his severe medical studies, his little proficiency, and his very humble prospects. The Heer was shocked to find that such amazing talents and accomplishments were to be cramped and buried under a doctor's wig. He had a sovereign contempt for the healing art, having never had any other physician than the butcher. He bore a mortal grudge to all kinds of study also, ever since he had been hogged about an unintelligible book when he was a boy. But to think that a young fellow like Dolph, of such wonderful abilities, who could shoot, fish, run, jump, ride and wrestle should be obliged to roll pills and administer jolups for a living—was monstrous. He told Dolph never to despair, but to "throw his prodigious talents could never fail to make his way." "As you seem to have no acquaintance in Albany," said Heer Antony, "you shall go homo with me, and remain under my roof until you can look about you, and in the meantime we can take an occasional bout at shing and fishing, for it is a pity such talents should lie idle."

Dolph, who wasat the mercy of chance, was not hard to be persuaded. Indeed, on turning over matters in his mind, which he did very sagely and deliberately, he could not but think that Antony Vander Heyden was, "somehow or other," connected with the story of the Haunted House; that the misadventure in the highlands, which had thrown them so strangely together, was, "somehow or other," to work out something good; in short, there is nothing so convenient as this "somehow or other" way of accommodating one's self to circumstances; it is the mainstay of a heedless actor, and tardy reasoner, like Dolph Heyliger, and he who can, in this loose, easy way, link foregone evil to anticipated good, possesses a secret of happiness almost equal to the philosopher's stone.

On their arrival at Albany, the sight of Dolph's companion seemed to cause universal satisfaction. Many were the greetings at the river side and the salutations in the streets; the dogs bounded before him, the boys whooped as he passed, everybody seemed to know Antony Vander Heyden. Dolph followed on in silence, admiring the neatness of this worthy burg; for in those days Albany was a city of gray, and the most distinguished of its descendants and of the origin! Dutch settlers, for it had not as yet been discovered and colonized by the restless people of New England.

There was a rustle now in the little encampment. One took of the kettle, and turned a part of the contents into a huge wooden bowl; another prepared a flat rock for a table; while a third brought various utensils from the pinnace, which was moored close by; and Heer Antony himself brought a flask or two of precious liquor from his own private locker—knowing his boon companions too well to trust any of them with the key. A rude but hearty repast was soon spread, consisting of venison smoking from the kettle, with cold bacon, boiled Indian corn, and mighty loaves of good brown household bread. Never had Dolph made a more delicious repast; and when he had washed it down with two or three draughts from the Heer Antony's flask, and felt the jolly liquor sending its warmth through his veins, and glowing round his very heart, he would not have changed his situation, no, with the governor of the province.

The Heer Antony, too, gazing cl'ring and joyous; told half a dozen fat stories, at which his white followers laughed immoderately, though the Indians, as usual, maintained an invincible gravity. Everything was quiet and orderly, everything was conducted calmly and leisurely; no hurry, no bustle, no struggling and scrambling for existence. The grass grew about the unpaved streets and relieved the eye by its refreshing verdure. The tall sycamores or pendant willows shaded the houses, with caterpillars swinging, in long silken strings, from their branches or moths, fluttering about like coxcombs, in joy at their gay transformation. The houses were built in the old Dutch style, with the gable ends towards the street. The thrifty housewife was seated on a bench before her door. In closed crimped cap, bright flowered gown and white apron, busily employed in knitting. The husband smoked his pipe on the opposite bench, and the little negro girl, seated on the step at her mistress's feet, was industriously plying her needle. The swallows sported about the eaves, or skimmed along the streets, and brought back some rich booty for their clamorous young; and the little housekeeping wren flew in and out of a Lilliputian house, or an old hat nailed against the wall. The cows were coming home, lowing through the streets, to be milked at their owner's door; and if, perchance, there were any loiterers, some negro urchin, with a long dog, was gently urging them homewards.

Over The Unlarnet.

When the brave Stanley and his tireless followers were pushing their way into Central Africa, they came one day, to the bank of a mighty river. Focussed and weary they quickly launch their boats, and find rest and change in floating upon the smooth surface of the stream.

Soon, however, the watchful eye of the great explorer sees unmistakable signs of the near presence of a cataract. The current grows swift, tiny bubbles float by. The signal is given to land, and the party seeks safety on the low, shelving bank.

One daring spirit, however, pushes his little canoe into the middle of the stream and goes resolutely forward, with the seeming intention of finding whether the river is navigable. In vain his comrades shout and gesticulate, rushing wildly along the river bank in pursuit. Not until the loud thunder of falling water breaks upon his ear does he attempt to turn.

Alas, it is too late. The oars are wrenched from his hands, the boat is tossed wildly about, a mere atom in the seething waters, and in a brief moment, which seems an age to the lookers on, it is dashed to pieces against a huge boulder on the very brink of a frightful precipice.

In vain our comrades are kindly warning us of our dangers. Our columns have often portrayed the fearful scourge that surrounds us. Often we hear the expression "Is this fearful scourge more prevalent than in olden times?" "We lay 'No.'" In Brutus and Julius Csesar's time, in the dark ages, we read of powerful men being stricken down. The same obstacles are met. The victim succumbs to the disease. The recent discoveries of the microscope has developed the real cause of so many terrible fatalities and brought out the fact that many of the symptoms which are called diseases are but symptoms of kidney disorder.

People do not die because of the kidneys ulcerating and destroying their spinal column, but because the poisonous waste matter is not extracted from the blood as it passes through the kidneys, the only blood purifying organs, but remains, forcing its way through the system, attacking the weakest organ.

The doctors call this a disease, when in reality it is but a symptom. Understanding this, the reason why Warner's Safe Cure cures so many common diseases is plain. It removes the causes of disease by putting the kidneys in a healthy condition; enables them to perform their functions and remove the poisonous acids from the blood; purifies the blood and prevents the poisonous matter coursing through the system and attacking the weaker organs and producing a malady which the unsuspecting victim fears is, and the heartless practitioner pronounces, a disease, because of his inability to remove the cause.

He avoids the real cause and keeps his patient in ignorance because of his inability to cope with an advanced kidney difficulty.

Any honest practitioner will admit that there is nothing laid down in the old or in the modern medical works that is a specific for advanced kidney disorder. His bigotry and code prevent him from publicly adopting any preparation not discovered by his kind, and not recommended by his instructors 25 or 30 years before. He forgets that this is a progressive world, and that most of the great scientific and medical discoveries of the present day have been made outside of the medical profession.

The public, knowing these facts should heed the warning and seek safety from the great danger that surrounds them and look for help outside the profession too bigoted and too self-reliant to learn or concede that science is outstripping their materia medica and leaving them and their obsolete methods far behind.

"This is your true life, my boy!"

"This is your true life, my boy," said he, slapping Dolph on the shoulder; "a man is never a man till he can defy wind and weather, range woods and wilds, sleep under a tree, and live on bass wood leaves!"

And then would he sing a stave or two of a Dutch drinking song, swaying a short snub Dutch bottle in his hand, while his myrmidons would join in chorus, until the woods echoed again—as the good old fong has it:

All they with a shout made the elements ring, So soon as the office was o'er; To feasting they went with merriment, And tumbled strong liquor gillere.

In the midst of his joviality, however, Heer Antony did not lose sight of discretion. Though he pushed the bottle without reserve to Dolph, yet he always took care to help his followers himself, knowing the beings he had to deal with; and he was particularly granting but a moderate allowance to the Indians. The repast being ended, the Indians having drunk their liquor and smoked their pipes, now wrapped themselves in their blankets, stretched themselves on the ground with their feet to the fire, and soon fell asleep, like so many tired hounds. The rest of the party remained chatting before the fire, which the gloom of the forest and the dampness of the air from the kite storm rendered extremely grateful and comforting. The conversation gradually moderated from the hilarity of supper time, and turned upon hunting adventures, and exploits and perils in the wilderness, many of which were so strange and improbable that I will not venture to repeat them, lest the veracity of Antony Vander Heyden and his comrades should be brought into question. There were many legendary tales told also about the river and the settlements on its borders; in which valuable kind of lore the Heer Antony seemed deeply versed. As the sturdy Dutch hunter sat in the twisted roots of a tree that served him for a kind of arm chair, dealing forth these wild stories, with the lire gloaming on his strongly marked visage, Dolph was again repeatedly perplexed by something that reminded him of the phantom of the haunted house; some vague resemblance that could not be fixed upon, any precise feature or lineament, but which pervaded the general air of his countenance and figure.

The moon had just raised her silver horns above the round back of old Bull hill, and lit up the gray rocks and shagged forests, and glittered on the waving bosom of the river. The night dew was falling, and the late gloomy mountains began to soften and put on a gray aerial tinge. The dewy light hunters stirred the fire, and threw on fresh fuel to qualify the damp of the night air. They then prepared a bed of branches and dry leaves under a lodge of rocks for Dolph; while Antony Vander Heyden, wrapping himself up in a huge coat made of sluns, stretched himself before the fire. It was some time, however, before Dolph could close his eyes. He lay contemplating the strange scene before him; the wild woods and rocks around the fire; throwing fitful gleams on the faces of the sleeping savages; and the Heer Antony, too, who so singularly, yet vaguely, reminded him of the nightly visitant to the haunted house. Now and then he heard the cry of some animal from the forest, or the hooting of the owl, or the notes of the whip-poor-will, which seemed to abound among these solitudes, or the splash of a sturgeon, leaping out of the river, and falling back full length on its placid surface. He contrasted all this with his accustomed nest in the garret room of the doctor's mansion, where the other sounds he heard at night were the church clock telling the hour, the drowsy voice of the watchman, drawing out all was well; the deep snoring of the doctor's clubbed nose from below stairs, or the cautious labors of some carpenter rat gnawing in the wainscot. His thoughts then wandered to his poor old mother; what would she think of his mysterious disappearance? what anxiety and distress would she not suffer? This was the thought that would continually intrude itself, to mar his present enjoyment. It brought with it a feeling of pang and compunction, and he fell asleep with the tears yet standing in his eyes.

Were this a mere tale of fancy, here would be a fine opportunity for weaving in strange adventures among these wild mountains and roving hunters; and, after involving my hero in a variety of perils and difficulties, rescuing him from them all by some miraculous contrivance; but as this is absolutely a true story, I must content myself with facts and keep to probabilities. One daring spirit, however, pushes his little canoe into the middle of the stream and goes resolutely forward, with the seeming intention of finding whether the river is navigable. In vain his comrades shout and gesticulate, rushing wildly along the river bank in pursuit. Not until the loud thunder of falling water breaks upon his ear does he attempt to turn.

Alas, it is too late. The oars are wrenched from his hands, the boat is tossed wildly about, a mere atom in the seething waters, and in a brief moment, which seems an age to the lookers on, it is dashed to pieces against a huge boulder on the very brink of a frightful precipice.

In vain our comrades are kindly warning us of our dangers. Our columns have often portrayed the fearful scourge that surrounds us. Often we hear the expression "Is this fearful scourge more prevalent than in olden times?" "We lay 'No.'" In Brutus and Julius Csesar's time, in the dark ages, we read of powerful men being stricken down. The same obstacles are met. The victim succumbs to the disease. The recent discoveries of the microscope has developed the real cause of so many terrible fatalities and brought out the fact that many of the symptoms which are called diseases are but symptoms of kidney disorder.

People do not die because of the kidneys ulcerating and destroying their spinal column, but because the poisonous waste matter is not extracted from the blood as it passes through the kidneys, the only blood purifying organs, but remains, forcing its way through the system, attacking the weakest organ.

The doctors call this a disease, when in reality it is but a symptom. Understanding this, the reason why Warner's Safe Cure cures so many common diseases is plain. It removes the causes of disease by putting the kidneys in a healthy condition; enables them to perform their functions and remove the poisonous acids from the blood; purifies the blood and prevents the poisonous matter coursing through the system and attacking the weaker organs and producing a malady which the unsuspecting victim fears is, and the heartless practitioner pronounces, a disease, because of his inability to remove the cause.

Any honest practitioner will admit that there is nothing laid down in the old or in the modern medical works that is a specific for advanced kidney disorder. His bigotry and code prevent him from publicly adopting any preparation not discovered by his kind, and not recommended by his instructors 25 or 30 years before. He forgets that this is a progressive world, and that most of the great scientific and medical discoveries of the present day have been made outside of the medical profession.

The public, knowing these facts should heed the warning and seek safety from the great danger that surrounds them and look for help outside the profession too bigoted and too self-reliant to learn or concede that science is outstripping their materia medica and leaving them and their obsolete methods far behind.

H. P. Glover, of Ypsilanti, has presented the Normal museum with a pair of full grown deer, handsomely mounted.

J. D. Vanduyn, J. F. Nestell, S. M. Case, and Albert Robison are talked of as candidates for the Manchester post-office.

Richard McGinn, of Scio, was kicked in the face by a horse, and his lower jaw was broken on one side and fractured on the other.

H. J. Bartis' lease of the Goodyear house in Manchester expires this month, and the Enterprise fears he does not intend to remain another year.

The York Prohibitionists ran A. R. Dexter for supervisor, and A. B. Smith for clerk. The York Republicans had J. V. Blakelee for supervisor, and J. N. Lawrence clerk.

L. A. VVilcox, Harve Hitchcock and L. Burnham were invited down to Detroit, Wednesday, by a deputy U. S. marshal to answer the charge in the U. S. district court of having sold tobacco without paying the tax.—Milan Leader.

The Ann Arbor town board on Tuesday found that during the past year 82 sheep have been killed in that township by dogs, and they will pay $211.75 to the owners. Fred. Braun says that all the dogs belonged to Ann Arbor city.

A party started for Denver, Col., Tuesday evening. Two, David Laubengayer and son, of Scio, go for their health. The rest go to find new homes, and they are Emanuel Staebler and his wife and two sister?, of Lima, and Christian Reule and Fred. Stollsteimer, of Scio.

Dr. Pinkham has commenced proceedings against James Vescelins, Frank Babcock, Frank Thorp and J. H. Kearney to recover about $180 which was won from him by the slick methods of gambling. A. J. Sawyer, of Ann Arbor, is the doctor's attorney.—Milan Leader.

The Chelsea Standard is the name of a new paper just started in Chelsea by Win. Eminert. It is an eight page paper, of live columns to the page, and is well put together. The first number dated March 22, has a bright appearance, and has a good collection of news. The Standard will not dabble in politics.

The next meeting of S. W. farmers' club will be held at the residence of J. G. English, south of the village, on Saturday, April 6th, at 7 p. m. There will be select reading by Mrs. W. H. Henion, and an essay by Mrs. Frank Spafard. The topic for discussion will be "Cultivation of small fruits, and best variety." Paper by D. Woodward.—Manchester Enterprise.

Michael Buehler, son of Jacob Buehler, residing about one and a half miles north of town, died March 30, of consumption, aged 21 years.

Miss Minnie Davis returned last week Wednesday from Olivet college, where she is pursuing a course of study. She will return next Monday.

Charley Depew, one of Chelsea's most substantial young men, received a commission Monday morning as railroad mail agent between Detroit and Chicago.

Geo. P. Glazier is attending a sale of imported Jersey cattle at the Oakland stock farm, near Hamilton, Ontario this week. This is said to be the finest collection of imported cattle in America.

H. O. Wills, of Detroit, is holding forth the "terrors of the Lord" in our town hall every evening to astonished and wincing crowds. How they do grumble! He is rough, but so was the prophet Elijah.

The old wooden building formerly occupied as a hotel, has been removed to another lot, near the depot; and a nice brick block will soon stand in its place. When the other wooden hulk that now stands there is removed, of which there is hope and promise, and the whole corner occupied by a fine brick block, the appearance of the town, as seen from the railroad, will be greatly improved.

YpKilnall.

The Normalites are enjoying a rest from their labors, this week.

Mrs. M. S. Hall and daughter are visiting relatives in Manchester.

Rev. McCorkle resigned his pastorate of the Presbyterian church last Sunday, and will depart for Detroit early in May.

A regular kindergarten will be opened at the Normal, April 8, with Miss Mary Lockwood, late of Alma college, in charge.

The Prohibitionists rallied round their candidate for mayor, Cdas. Fellows, nobly. But the party is too small to make much of a showing just at present.

Three reading rooms have been established in this city within three months. The Y. W. C. A. rooms on Washington-St., the Y. M. P. A. on Congress-st., and the one on Huron-st.

Ypsilanti has a minister who keeps up with the times, with sermons on valentines, Robert Elsmere, city elections, etc. He believes in tackling matters that lie near people's hearts.

9. W. Parsons & Co.'s safes were cracked open by burglars recently, but as no money was deposited, the scamps were mad and vented their spite by breaking up fine tools belonging to workmen in the mills.

Milan.

Milan citizens who were arrested and taken to Detroit last week for an alleged violation of the revenue laws were immediately discharged upon making their showing, it being shown plainly that no fraud was perpetrated or intended.

For several weeks past there has been a strong effort made to induce Milan capitalists to invest in a stock company for the manufacture of the "Begole Improved Lightning Fence Machine." The required number of shares have been taken, and the work is likely to go right along now and Milan manufacturers will be booming a fence machine second to none in the United States. The inventor is Gordon Begole, and with him are Frank J. Salisbury and Herbert Belden who are interested in the patent and machinery now on hand. These gentlemen will take 75 shares, and Milan's own capitalists will take 125 shares, the price per share being $25. The following gentlemen have taken 10 shares each: C. H. Wilson, J. H. Ford, O. A. Kelley, Thomas Richards, L. C. Allen. The following gentlemen have taken 5 shares each: H. J. Zimmerman, W. F. Allen, J. W. Blakeslee, H. C. Sill, C. B. Hobbs, B. W. Marble, J. D. Forsythe, Barnes & Co., Edwan! Pfarr, Jerome Allen, A. B. Smith, H. Whitmarsh, J. L. Marble, Webster.

Mr. Burnham is able to ride out, and enjoy the fragrance of out-door air.

There was a maple syrup social March 27, at the residence of Rev. Mr. Lincoln. The town voted to give a bounty of 20 cents per scalp for woodchucks. They must be in before the last Saturday in September.

Highway Commissioner Litchfield is instructed to purchase two more road graders, making three in all. The town is to be divided into three districts, each entitled to one trader.

On March 23 the Webster farmers' club "public" was held in Webster Congregational church. Lieutenant Governor Ball read an interesting paper, the central thought of which was the necessity of having pluck and vim. Mrs. Blanche Butler and Dorrr Queal gave recitations. There was a discussion as to whether farm life is pleasant, and the affirmative was held up by C. M. Starks, Lieutenant Governor Ball, Johnson Backus, Avm. Smith of Dexter township, and Rev. G. E. Lincoln. Wm. Tubbs, who was alone on the negative, did, according to one of the affirmative speakers, beat them all. The next meeting of the club will be held at Daniel Lyon's, in Scio, and it will be a joint meeting with the Scio Association. The question of taxing mortgages will be continued.

Dexter.

The cantata of Queen Esther will soon attract the attention of a Dexter audience.

Supt. Thompson, of the Saginaw Schools, with wife and little daughter, are visiting with the Murdocks.

Gen. Cardenas, the Mexican dwarf, was buried from the M. E. Church, last Sunday. The little general came home from Los Angeles, Cal., about five weeks ago, caught a severe cold, and died with quick consumption. He had formed a good many acquaintances here, was a pleasant little fellow, 31 inches high, 40 lbs weight, and a trifle over 54 years old. He was buried in his gold-trimmed general's uniform.

Four hundred and five votes cast in Dexter township, Monday, showing that about 175 voters stayed away from the polls. One hundred and sixty-one democratic majority. There were 23 Prohibition ballots. For some unaccountable reason the first name on the Republican township ticket was cut 37 times, getting only six on the Democratic ticket.

Miss Sarah Gute and her sister, of Owosso, are visiting at Saline.

Miss Ellen Robinson is spending a vacation at home from the Normal school.

Jno. Hilderbrant is shipping his stock of logs to the Estey manufacturing company at Owosao.

F. S. Homer closed the winter school last Friday. The spring term commences one week from Monday, but no teacher has yet been employed.

Col. Dean, of Arbor, and H. W. Ashley, of Toledo, were here last week looking over the different proposed camp grounds. The idea that there are not grounds suitable in every particular for camping grounds at Whitmore Lake is "all bosh." There could not be nicer grounds than there are here, and these will very probably be used this year.

Stony Creek.

Ed. Rogers has sold his farm to Chas. Schmid, of Ann Arbor.

Mrs. T. Talladay, who has been visiting at Jackson, has returned.

The Methodists gave a sugar social at Barr's hall last Friday evening.

Geo. Delaforce, of Milan, has engaged with Elton Sanderson for the coming season.

Mr. Cohns has moved his house nearer to the street, and is engaged in making repairs on it.

The social which was given by the Baptist society at the residence of Wesley Oaderkirk, was well attended.

Emery.

Mr. E. Fitzsimmons is on a visit to her son in Mason.

The sugar party was a grand success; $19.83 was received.

School in district Xo. ti commenced last Monday, with Miss Carrie Renwick as teacher.

Thad Li-land met with quite an accident at the sugar party. While playing foot ball, someone stepped on his foot and wrenched his ankle so severely that he will be laid up for a few weeks.

The Talrol HKLL.

Ezra F. Kendall, the eccentric comedian, produced for the third time his most laughable satirical comedy of "The Pair of Kids" at Ford's grand opera house last evening, and a large audience was kept in roaring good humor through the entire three acts. As Jiles Button, Mr. Kendall has improved in quaintness and general fun since his last appearance, and the laugh commenced as soon as the top of his frowny head came into view. The piece was embellished with many new songs and dances, and music from Jodd instruments sleighbells and other kinds of bells.—Whilmore American.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CO-VESTIBL.

It will be Held in Ann Arbor April 93. Appeal of the CoromUee.

To Pastors, Sunday School Superintendents find Teachers and all others interested in Sunday School work in Washtenaw County, greeting:

The second annual convention of the Washtenaw Sunday School Association will be held at the Cosgrational chinch in the city of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, April, 23, 1889.

A great and important Sunday School movement, embracing this and other Christian nations, whose ultimate object is to plant Sunday schools within the reach of every family, and bring into these schools as many teenagers as possible of every family, was organized in 1875.

This organization is thoroughly non-sectarian and inter-denominational. Its principles and methods are such as to commend it to the approval and co-operation of every person and of every Christian organization, whose existence and energies are consecrated to the evangelization and salvation of the world.

The aim of this convention is to bring Washtenaw county into complete, earnest, zealous, organic co-operation, and effect, without delay, township organizations. The township organization is the unit of this great work.

It needs no paying that one large, enthusiastic, well conducted convention, composed of representatives from every Sunday-school in the county, and comprising the best, most successful talent within reach, aided, also, by the presence and counsel of the state secretary, must be more inspiring, more instructive, and productive of more lasting good than a denominational meeting of the kind could possibly be.

Gradual failure of strength, extreme pallor of face, puffiness under the eyes, persistent swelling of the joints, abdomen and legs, unaccountable sharp pain in the heart, shortness of breath followed by the lungs filling with water, which the kidneys fail to pass off—any one of the foregoing are symptoms of advanced kidney or Bright's Disease.

Are you a pastor, please give an encouraging notice of this convention to the people of your charge, and further encouragement to the movement by being present on that occasion yourself.

Are you a Sunday-school superintendent, acquaint your school with the nature of our work, have delegates appointed to this convention, encourage all the teachers and as many pupils as possible to attend it, fill out the enclosed blank report, and return it immediately as requested, and take up a collection (giving a week's previous notice) to defray necessary expenses.

Dr. Jekyll and Sir. Hyde.

It is generally considered that Dore Davidson's version of "Good against Evil"—Dr. Jekyll and Sir. Hyde—is the most satisfying to the audience of any that has yet been produced, for the reason that, unlike the other numerous versions, it has a happy ending, and contains a captivating love story, while it consistently maintains the strong dramatic interest of the novel.

VIM America Ever Discovered.

At the time when Columbus started in search of the New World, nearly every man, woman and child in Europe insisted that there was no New World to discover. When he came back, crowned with success, a large proportion of these good people adhered to their theory; and if they were alive to-day many of them would doubtless insist that America had never been discovered at all.

PAY TO PATRIOTS. For U. S. Ex-Soldiers and Sailors and Their Heirs.

for Soldier* and Sailors, Both State and National.

THE Soldiers' Home at Washington receives: Those who have served faithfully, by twenty years or more (including service in the volunteer forces, if any) as citizens in the army. Those who have become disqualified from further service by wounds received or diseases contracted in the service and in the line of military duty as enlisted men in the REGIMENTAL army.

NATIONAL MILITARY HOMES.—Volunteers find homes in these institutions at TORUS, Me.; Hampton, Va.; Dayton, O.; Milwaukee, Wis.; or Leavenworth, Kan.

THE STATE OF NEBRASKA, by law, exempts from any and every execution or attachment $2000 money, property, if the same was purchased and improved by the owner with money received as pension money.

The comforts given are similar to those of the Washington Home. Extra work on the Home farms or in trade pursuits is paid at the rate of from $1 to $15 a month, and skilled artisans can earn considerably more.

Blank forms for application for admission to a Military Home will be furnished by applying to the Governor of the Home nearest to the residence of the applicant or to General Martin T. McMahon, Secretary Board of Managers, National Military Homes, No. 63 Nassau street, New York City.

FOB SAILORS.—The United States Naval Asylum in Philadelphia, Pa. Every person who has served as an enlisted man in the United States Navy or Marine Corps for 30 years, and received an honorable discharge, am) who is disabled, by age or infirmity, from sea service, is entitled to a home in the Naval Asylum, but, in lieu of this provision he may receive a sum equal to one half the pay of his rating when discharged, to be paid him quarterly.

NATIONAL AND STATE HOMES receive disabled sailors, not of the above classes. The regulations given regarding soldiers being the same.

STATE HOMES FOB DISABLED EX-SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.—Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, California, Vermont and Wisconsin all have "State Homes" conducted under the same rules as the National Homes by other States, are erecting institutions of like character. Applicants for admission should address the Adjutant-General of the State.

SOLDIERS' ORPHANS' HOMES.—In very many of the Northern States these institutions are in successful operation, and in other States they are projected. Where the surviving parents, relatives or friends of the orphans or half-orphans of deserving army or navy veterans can not properly care for these children, they are received in the orphans' homes, well fed, well clothed, educated and given such practical preparatory training as to fit them for earning their own livelihood.

For particulars write to the Adjutant-General of your State, or the State Superintendent of Education, or the superintendent of the nearest orphans' home, or inquire of the local post of the Grand Army of the Republic.

A record of all surviving soldiers and sailors who served in the civil war has just been established in the Pension Bureau. The Commissioner desires to learn the record of each, and where he can trace them sends a printed request. But as many will not be found by his circulars, every officer enlisted man, whose record should send the following statement, as it may in the future benefit himself or his heirs.

Veterans should attend to this at once. FOB VETERANS' SONS WHO MAT DESIRE TO ENTER ARMY AND NAVY.—Admission to West Point Military Academy or the United States Naval School at Annapolis is open to any young man at least seventeen and under twenty-one years of age, who is of perfectly sound body and mind and who can obtain an appointment from the member of Congress of the district in which he resides.

Sailor boy apprentices, sound in body and mind, are enlisted and placed on a training-ship where they receive a small bounty and an outfit of clothing. They are paid regularly according to their grades, and taught every art pertaining to the navy.

A "school ship," stationed at New York City, receives boys of good moral character only and pays them while educating them in the line of military duty as enlisted men in the REGIMENTAL army.

THE Hon. Secretary of War can be applied to for further information regarding West Point admission; the Hon. Secretary of the Navy in respect to the school at Annapolis and the apprentice system, and the "Commander of School-Ship," New York, in relation thereto.

VARIOUS NATIONAL AND STATE GRANTS. ENLISTED MEN, RETIRED.—Soldiers of the regular army who have served for thirty years (any volunteer service to be counted in) are placed upon the "retired list," and receive 75 per cent. of the pay of their rank. No service pensions are granted.

PRISONERS OF WAR.—All men who were held as prisoners of war during the rebellion are entitled to 25 cents per day, as commutation for rations. Address the Adjutant-General U. S. A., Washington, D. C. The heirs of the soldier can recover on this claim.

[There is a National Association of Union ex-Prisoners of War that furnishes information, aid and comfort to all such. The address of its president is Gen. W. H. Powell, Boston, Mass.]

MEMORIAL FOR THE GRAVES OF VETERANS.—Regular appropriations are made by Congress to furnish headstones for veterans' graves. File the application for such with the Quartermaster General U. S. A., Washington, D. C.

MILEAGE IS NOT ALLOWED TO SOLDIERS, but officers of the United States volunteers during the late war are entitled to commutation of travel, pay and rations from place of discharge to residence, allowing one day's pay and rations for each twenty miles, provided they resigned by reason of disability.

SOLDIERS HONORABLY DISCHARGED from the service are given these same allowances. EXTRA DUTY PAY at the rate of twenty-five cents per day was allowed until March 8, 1863, when it was abolished but was again given by act of July 13, 1866.

LOST IN A STOKM.

Six Naval Vessels Wrecked on the Coast of Samoa.

The American Men-of-War Trenton, Vandallia and Nipsic, and the German Men-of-war Adler, Olga and Kler Co Down in the Hurricane.

MANY SAILORS DROWNED. AUCKLAND, March 31.—Dispatches from Samoa say that the American men-of-war Trenton, Vandallia and Nipsic, and the German men-of-war Adler, Olga and Eber were driven on a reef during a violent storm and totally wrecked.

Of the American crews four officers and forty-six men were drowned, and of the German crews nine officers and eighty-seven men lost their lives.

NEW YORK, March 30.—Dennis W. Mulvan, the Commander of the Nipso, was ordered to that duty October 1, 1887. He entered the service September 20, 1885; was a native of Massachusetts and was of Irish parentage.

The executive officer of the Nipso was B'chard G. Davenport, or, as he is better known in the service, "Dick" Davenport. The other officers were Lieutenant John I. Shearman, of New York, Ensign William P. White, John L. Purcell, Harry Field and Harry Jones, Passed Assistant Surgeon E. Z. Dorre, Passed Assistant Paymaster John Corvine, Chief Engineer George W. Hall, Passed Assistant Engineer Horace E. Frieck and First Lieutenant of Marines D. Glover Fillette.

The complement of the Nipso was 174 marines and blue jackets. The Nipso was a wooden vessel, was built in 1873, and was rebuilt in 1879.

The Trenton and Vandallia were larger than the Nipso. The Trenton was a ship-rigged wooden cruiser of ten guns with 5900 tons displacement. The Vandallia was also a bark-rigged wooden cruiser of 2,100 tons, with a battery of eight guns, mostly smooth-bore.

As far as known the Olga was the most formidable of the German vessels at Apia. Her principal battery consisted of eight 6-inch Krupp rifles and a number of the Hotchkiss revolving cannon.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A dispatch from Samoa confirms the report of the loss of the American ships of war Vandallia, Nipsic and Trenton, and the German naval vessels Eber, Adler and Olga in a recent hurricane. The Vandallia lost four officers and thirty-nine men, and the Nipsic lost seven men. All on board the Trenton were saved. Ninety-six German officers and sailors were drowned. Admiral Kimberly sends the following:

"Vandallia lost four officers and thirty-nine men, namely: Captain Schoonmaker, Paymaster Arms, Lieutenant of Marines Sutton, Pay Clerk John Roach, Henry Baker, Frank Jones, George Jordan, M. H. Joseph, John Kelly, Thomas Kelly, N. Kinsella, W. Brisbane, William Brown, Quartermaster Michael Cashen, M. Cragin, B. F. Davis, T. Downey, M. E. Cron, S. C. Ghring, Adolph Goldner, George Gorman, U. B. Green, Joseph Griffin, E. M. Hammeur, John Hancutt, C. H. Hawkins, W. Hewatt, C. V. Krulzer, Charles Crans, F. Lessman, George Merrage, Aylmer Montgomery, Thomas Riley, C. P. Stallman, C. G. Stanford, John S. H. H. Wells, John Millford, Henry Wixler, Ah Kow, Ah Peck, Pendang, Trecho.

The Nipso lost seven men, namely: George W. Callan, John Gill, Josiah Heah, Thomas Johnson, David Keltcher, Henry Poutsell, William Watson.

"German ships Adler and Olga total losses. Olga beached; may be saved. German losses, a heavy one."

The news of the disaster created a profound sensation at the Navy Department, and everybody from the Secretary down freely expressed his regret. Secretary Tracy could not see cause to condemn any one. The officers in command of the ships were competent men and had doubtless adopted proper precautions against disaster; but these hurricanes, which assumed cyclonic proportions, were simply irresistible.

BEELIM, April 2.—The cruiser Sperber and the corvet Alexandrine have left for Samoa to replace the German war-ships wrecked at Apia.

THE BOSS BURGLAR. Astonishing Work of a Bank Kulliber at Denver, Col.

DENVER, COL. March 30.—At 10 o'clock yesterday afternoon an unknown well-dressed man entered the office of President Moffatt, of the First National Bank of this city, and pulling a revolver from his pocket told Mr. Moffatt that he must have $21,000 or he would kill him and then blow up the Institution with a bottle of nitroglycerine, which he produced from his pocket.

Flocking to the States. STRATFORD, Ont., April 2.—The exodus from the counties of Perth, Oxford and Huron to the States and the Northwest is greater this year than any previous season in the history of these parts. About forty families left the Huron district recently for the Western States; twenty families left Perth, from the vicinity of Stratford, last week; five left Listowel Saturday for the Western States, and still they go.

Used an Axe on His Father-in-Law. CLEVELAND, O., April 2.—A special from Bascon, O., says that William Green, a crippled fiddler, went to the house of his son-in-law, Philip Miller, with whom he had not been on very friendly terms, to invite him to an evening party at Green's house. A dispute arose between them, when Miller seized an axe and struck Green twice on the head, inflicting fatal injuries. Miller is in jail.

Died at the Age of 108. HOLDVAUSBURO, Pa., March 31.—Thomas Keegan, an Irish resident of Juniata township, was buried Thursday at the advanced age of 108 years. He carried a pike in the Irish rebellion of 1798, and came to this country seventy-five years ago.

Mother and Children Cremated. MILWAUKEE, April 1.—A small frame building in this city occupied by Margaret Kuns-lais, a widow, and her three children, aged 7, 4 and 2 years, respectively, was burned Sunday night, and all four of the inmates perished in the flames.

Stanley Heir'd From. LONDON, April 2.—A letter from Henry M. Stanley, dated September 4, 1888, has reached a friend of the explorer living at Edinburgh. The letter contains nothing of interest beyond that which is already known.

Great Strike at St. Louis. ST. LOUIS, MO., April 3.—Two thousand journeymen carpenters here struck for eight hours a day and a minimum scale of 40 cents per hour. The carpenters are well organized, and a bitter fight is looked for.

Death of an Aegol Pity. KOCKFOUN, Ill., March 29.—Susan Young, a native of Denmark, and for twenty-eight years an inmate of the county poor farm at Bockford, died yesterday aged 105 years.

My Laura's hands are smooth and soft, I love to feel their touch; Yet how she keeps them so I oft Have wondered very much. 'Tis Ivory Soap," she archly cried, "I use no other spell,— And as I clean all else beside. My hands improved as well."

A WORD OF WARNING. There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory'!" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine.

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But you oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he went upon all-hip-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable. The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Alhophorol relieved me, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. HAITY BOOMEKS.

The Opening of Oklahoma Makes Them Wild with Joy.

A General Jollification Imagnated in Southern Kansas—A Land-Onice Agent Tells How to Secure the Land.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM. WASHINGTON, March 24.—The President yesterday issued a proclamation opening to settlement under the recent acts of Congress the lands in the Indian Territory ceded to the United States by the Creek and Seminole Indians. By the terms of the proclamation the lands are only open to homestead entry, and sections 16 and 86 in each township are reserved for public-school purposes. The proclamation goes into effect on April 22 at noon, and all persons are warned not to enter upon or occupy any of said lands before that time under penalty of being forever debarred from acquiring any lands or rights therein. The lands comprise all the western half of the Creek Nation and that portion of the Seminole Nation ceded to the United States by the treaty of June 14, 1881. The Commissioner of the General Land Office has established two land offices in the Territory of Oklahoma. One for the Western district is located at King Fisher Stage station and the other for the Eastern district is located at Guthrie.

WICHITA, Kan., March 29.—The long looked for proclamation for the opening of Oklahoma was received here with demonstrations of great joy. Flags were hung from buildings, cannons were fired and bonfires built. The same enthusiasm welcomed the news all over the south of Kansas. Extensive preparations are being made for entering the country, and some of the towns of Southern Kansas will almost be depopulated.

Wednesday morning Colonel Summers received from Colonel Wade at Fort Reno the new orders from Washington and posted them up in the Oklahoma depot. They were that every person must immediately leave the country and that the names of those found would be taken and kept to defeat future filing. Soldiers had left Fort Reno the night before and were advancing to Oklahoma City, scouring the country as they advanced. As soon as the order was read many commenced leaving, but by the time the train reached Guthrie the news of the issuing of the proclamation was received and they alighted to join the boomers here in their celebration and to be near to their claims.

WICHITA, Kan., March 29.—Colonel J. L. Dyer, who has for years been an official of the United States Land Office at Wichita, was asked regarding difficulties and contests likely to arise in the settlement of Oklahoma. He said that the question of entry upon Territorial lands is not BO complicated as is usually the case in regard to the public lands. It is a plain case, and there is but one course to pursue in regard to the matter. The seeker of a homestead must simply go onto his claim under the Homestead act and stick to it in order to gain a title. The former customs will have but little to do in this case, as the law is plain and will be enforced on its merits as to the question of priority.

The civilian on making a homestead entry must pay the sum of $14, take possession of his claim within six months and stick to it the required time. A soldier may file his declaration papers, which he may do by proxy, through his agent, and which will cost him $2. At the end of six months he must make his homestead entry and pay $14 more, so that it costs the Soldier $2 more than the civilian to make entry, the former only having advantages of six months' time to take possession. The soldier has one advantage over the civilian, and that is that he can deduct from the five years necessary to complete his claim the time he served in the rebellion up to and including four years. This will enable the soldier who served four years in the late war to secure a patent of land in Oklahoma one year after settlement, while it will require five years for a civilian to acquire the same title.

The territory thrown open by the President's Oklahoma proclamation comprises 1,800,000 acres. CHICAGO, March 30.—Colonel E. C. Cole, who has been so long struggling for the opening of the territory of Oklahoma, is at the Grand Pacific Hotel is the recognized leader of the boomers and stands at the head of the 200 men assembled on the edge of that coveted land, with headquarters at Wichita. He said to an interviewer: "The President's proclamation basset the whole Southwest wild. I left Wichita Tuesday night. I have received twenty-four telegrams from the Southwest urging my return. Our intention is to organize a county, which we have already laid out with township map with county seat for the town site. We propose to organize with town and county officers simultaneously. The town is to be called Cimarron. The boundaries contain more timber and water and more fertility of soil than any other spot in the Oklahoma country. Of course, we advise and recommend that no settlers shall attempt to enter the country until the hour of noon on April 22, as set out in the President's proclamation. My aggressive and persistent raids into that country in former days have been for the purpose of bringing before the public the true status of that country, to show the people Oklahoma as a public land, to the recent confirmation of the Creek and Seminole Indians has simply confirmed our former position. The present session is simply an endorsement of the terms of the treaty of 1881. The cattle men who have reigned supreme in that country have been the deadly enemies of the home seeker. The last four years' work has taken out of the hands of the old colonists and elevated into a national and commercial importance the Oklahoma question. The first made road, first dwelling, first school-house, first church, has yet to be built in that promised land.

KANSAS CITY, MO., April 1.—Three Oklahoma boomers fought for the possession of a claim near Guthrie last Thursday, and two of them were fatally shot. Parties who have arrived from the Territory say that while large numbers of the boomers are evincing a disposition to obey the President's proclamation there are still enough stubborn settlers to keep the army busy. The tactics of the more determined intruders is to conceal themselves from the soldiers.

Nino Deaths from Cholera. EAST PEMBROKE, N. Y., March 20.—Nino deaths have occurred in the families of Rev. Samuel Calkins, his son Bradley and Deacon Smith, caused by poisonous gases arising from a mass of decaying vegetable matter in the cellar of the Calkins house.

The Outlook Knight. NEW YORK, April 2.—The visible supply of grain in the United States on Saturday was 30,439,231 bushels of wheat, a decrease of 799,581 bushels since last report, and 16,831,835 bushels of corn, a decrease of 219,639 bushels.

MANY HOUSES UNROOFED.

A March date Does Much Damage in Cincinnati, Dayton and Other Places.

CINCINNATI, April 1.—A terrible gale, accompanied by light rain, passed over the city from the southwest to the northeast between 4 and 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Its maximum velocity as measured at the signal-service office was forty-four and one-half miles an hour. Many houses in the southwestern and northern part of the city were unroofed, and numerous fences were prostrated. Covington and Newport suffered in the same way. The damage, however, was light and no one was hurt.

DAYTON, O., April 1.—A March cyclone whistled over this valley all Sunday, causing anxiety for exposed structures on the hill-tops like the Soldiers' Home and lunatic asylum, but no special damage is reported except to the uncompleted Sacred Heart Church in this city. West prophesies when Harrison's Administration is in working order Canada will be flooded with United States officials whose books can not bear inspection.

CLINTON, MO., April 2.—John Boyles, of the southern part of this county, on Sunday attempted, with his wife and six children, to drive a wagon across Grand river which was greatly swollen with Saturday's rain.
