

THE CONCLUSION.

CLOSING EXERCISES OF COMMENCEMENT.

Address by Hon. J. H. M. Curry.—Presentation of Diplomas.—Honorary Degrees.—Alumni Dinner.

The final exercises of the forty-fifth annual commencement of the University were held last Thursday. At nine o'clock in the morning the graduating classes formed at the various departments, and at 10 o'clock the procession marched to University Hall where the commencement exercises were held.

After President Angell had offered prayer, he introduced Hon. J. L. M. Curry, D. T., LL. D., of Richmond, Va., as the orator of the occasion. The title of his address was "Causes of the Power and Prosperity of the United States."

After stating that our system of a free electoral college was a puzzle to foreigners, Dr. Curry made a good point of the fact that the aborigines of America were so inferior in all respects to the immigrants from Europe that the latter did not have to overcome any old customs established by the natives. They were thus left free to work out their destiny according to their own conceptions and plans, without being hindered by tradition.

The government had disposed of land to settlers, with secure title and fixed boundaries and at very nominal rates. But it was of great importance that the congress of confederation had, in 1787, reserved lot No. 10 of every township for the maintenance of public schools. In 1848 this amount of land had been doubled, and to each state admitted to the Union since 1800, with the exception of Maine, Texas and West Virginia, and also to New Mexico, Washington and Utah territories, two or more townships had been granted for the enjoyment of universities.

After paying the University of Michigan a high tribute and tracing the causes which have made this country prosperous, he stated that another cause little appreciated in its potential and far-reaching influence upon National power was the separation of the state and church. A struggle of centuries, marked by bloodshed and all the atrocities of the Inquisition, was required to establish what all civilized nations were now beginning to recognize as the very essence of free and just government.

Asking the seniors to rise, Dr. Curry concluded in the following words: Graduates—To you and such as you are committed a solemn trust. Whatever may be your vocation you cannot withdraw from the public and decline to take interest in public affairs.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of the Fifth ward cemetery, reported that the terms of office of all commissioners have expired, and recommended that three commissioners be appointed, their terms to expire in one, two and three years respectively, from Jan. 1, last.

The City Clerk was authorized to purchase a clock for the council chamber. On motion, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, That we recommend to the Board of Fire Commissioners that the services of Jacob Hauser be dispensed with, as the engine house, as we think his dismissal a saying to the city."

The resolution was adopted unanimously. The council then adjourned.

upon William A. Baker, of Coloma, Mich., as a member of the class of '68.

After the exercises were concluded, the alumni formed in line and marched to this law lecture room where the alumni dinner was served, 408 sitting down to the tables. After dinner, short speeches were made by President Angell, Ex-Gov. Jerome, Mayor Beakes, Rev. J. F. Dickie and Hon. J. L. M. Curry.

An ordinance granting a franchise for another 30 years to the Ann Arbor Gas Co. was read by title and second reading. An ordinance relative to licenses was given its second reading. This ordinance is very complete, and endeavors to make the cost as low as possible to residents, and more expensive to non-residents. The licenses are to be granted by the mayor and countersigned by the clerk. It provides for bonds to be given in various sums to the city. The licenses prescribed are as follows for residents: Auctioneers, $5 per year; peddlers going from place to place, $1.50 per day if on foot, $3 per day if with one horse, $5 per day if with two horses; selling goods in the public streets, $25 dollars per year; butchers, $10 per year; pawnbrokers, $25 per year; hacks, etc., $1.50 per year; drays, $3 and $5 per year; billiard tables, $5 each per year; circuses, not exceeding $50; whirling, shooting gallery, etc., $1 per day; opera house, $50 per year; other entertainments, $5 for first day and $1 per day for each succeeding day. DR. FROTHINGHAM'S SUCCESSOR.

The Name of Dr. Flemming Carrow Suggested by Several Papers of the State. A Short Sketch of His Medical Record.

Although Drs. McLean and Frothingham have not yet presented their resignations as members of the medical faculty, nor have the regents declared their positions vacant, yet it is generally conceded that their successors will be chosen before the University opens in the fall. Both are men of ability and their places will be hard to fill.

For both positions there will be numerous names presented, and already friends of men whose names will be placed before the regents, are bringing them before the public. As a fitting successor to Dr. Frothingham in the chair of materia medica, ophthalmic and aural surgery, and clinical ophthalmology, the Detroit Evening News and the Bay City Times mention the name of Dr. Flemming Carrow, of Bay City, as one of the only two residents of Michigan who are capable of filling the position. He will have strong support with the regents, several leading papers having pronounced for him and the leading man in the Saginaw Valley urge him for the place.

Regarding Dr. Carrow as a successor to Dr. Frothingham, the Bay City Times says: "We are glad to know that the friends of Dr. Carrow will urge his appointment as Dr. Frothingham's successor. They can do it conscientiously and at the same time place in the field a person who, since becoming a resident of this city, has proven himself an honorable gentleman with character and habits above reproach."

"Dr. Carrow came to Bay City about five years ago, comparatively a stranger in Michigan. He found little encouragement at first, but was not disheartened. Merit, however, wins, and in the case of Dr. Carrow it was a triumph. No professional man, we venture to state, has in the space of five years, procured the practice that has come to Dr. Carrow. His success in eye, ear and throat diseases has been phenomenal. Patients have come to Bay City from all parts of Michigan and from other states to be operated on."

"Dr. Carrow is a man of fine personal appearance, a ready and experienced speaker. He has lectured before the state medical society a number of times, before audiences in this city, the Saginaws, Lansing, Detroit, and elsewhere."

"After graduating in medicine in this country, Dr. Carrow fitted himself for the special work by a course of study abroad under the best masters, and later had extended opportunities for practice in a large hospital in Canton, China, covering a period of seven years. While engaged in the hospital work for special hospital surgical attainments, he was made a member of the Royal Medical Society of Lisbon, and of the Anthropological Society of Paris. After his return to this country an honorary membership in the Philadelphia College of Physicians and Surgeons and of the Medical Society of Detroit, was conferred upon him."

"The Times bespeaks for Dr. Carrow the backing of the medical societies of the state, should he strive for the vacancy at Ann Arbor. It is stated that Dr. Gibbs met Dr. Carrow during his travels through China, and that he pronounces him a man eminently qualified to fill the position."

Another Golden Wedding.

On June 30, 1839, August Hutzal and his wife, a sister of the late Emanuel Mann, were united in marriage, in the then small village of Ann Arbor. Mr. and Mrs. Hutzal have been spared to enjoy half a century of wedded life in the place where they were married, and last Sunday being the anniversary of the event they celebrated their golden wedding by a family reunion, at the residence of their son, Herman Hutzal, on W. Huron-st. There are eight sons and daughters living, who were all present with their families, excepting one grandson who is in Manitoba. The number of direct descendants, who gathered at the celebration was just 50, one for each year of their wedded life. Four generations were represented, Mr. and Mrs. Hutzal, their children, grand-children, and one great-grand-child. Besides these five sons-in-law and two daughters-in-law were on hand, making a family of 57 persons who sat down to the table.

Mr. Hutzal has spent nearly his whole life in Ann Arbor and has been one of the most influential German citizens, in business, social and church circles. He and his estimable wife have raised a family of whom they may feel proud, nearly all of them being residents of this city. The children are Herman and Titus Hutzal. Who have succeeded their father in business; M-s. Sophia Spring, Mrs. Fred Wurster, Mrs. E. K. Frueauff, and Miss Charlotte Hutzal, of this city; Mrs. Charles Steubach, of Chelsea; Mrs. Henry Heim, of East Saginaw. After a most enjoyable reunion, a family group picture was taken, and the party dispersed.

LITERARY NOTES.

The July issue of Scribner's Magazine is a Midsummer Fiction number, containing seven complete short stories, four of them richly illustrated by such artists as Frederic Remington, Robert Blum, and Chester Loomis; and an unusually exciting instalment of Mr. Stevenson's serial, "The Master of Ballantrae."

Mr. Justice Miller of the Supreme Court of the United States engages in the important work of "explaining America to Americans and to the world," by describing "The State of Iowa" in the July number of Harper's Magazine. The article is marred by the absence of any allusion to one of the most eminent citizens of the state and country, George William Curtis, however, supplies the unavoidable omission by a graceful tribute to Mr. Miller in the "Easy Chair."

In the Forum for July, Bishop Potter, of New York, treats of the place and prospects of "The Scholar in American Life." The Riv. Dr. Edward E. Hale writes of "A Market for Books." Senator Justin S. Morrill contributes the political article—"Republican Party Prospects." Mr. W. S. Lilly has another of his very remarkable papers on Ethics, the title of his article for the present month being "The Ethics of Journalism."

Famous Women.

It is a significant fact that most of the women who have achieved fame in art, literature, or "affaire," have enjoyed vigorous health. This shows that the mind is never capable of the severe and continued application necessary to creative work, unless the body is at its best.

Great Little Men.

Some of the greatest men that ever lived were of small stature and insignificant appearance. The reader will readily recall many instances. Very small are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, but they are far more effective than the huge, old-fashioned pills which are so difficult to swallow and so harsh in their action.

A Friend in Need.

Carpenters, builders, laborers and in fact all kinds of working men who are particularly liable to Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Backache, etc., should always have close at hand a Pomeroy's Petrolin Plaster. In nearly every case the result is instantaneous. There is no remedy equal to them. For over five years they have been in general use and stood the test of public criticism, and are today more firmly established than ever in public estimation, and steadily increased in favor.

The Accident Occurs Near Latrobe, Pa.—The AVrock Takes Fire and Causes Additional Horror—Ten Hodies Recovered.

A KAMVAY HOLOVY PITTSBUURH, Pa., June 27.—A freight train which left Latrobe at 5:00 a. m. Wednesday with about forty-five men coming from Johnstown aboard collided on the Pennsylvania railroad bridge near Latrobe with an extra freight train. The wrecked trains toppled over on another freight train which was side-tracked on the bridge, and thirty-one cars went over the bridge into the water fifty feet below. It is almost certain that twenty-five or thirty people were killed and many others were hurt.

The water in the creek at the point where the accident occurred is about twelve feet deep, and it is expected that a number of bodies will be found at the bottom of the creek under the wreckage. John H. Miller, a flagman on the freight, says that the proper signals were given, and Engineer Caldwell answered, but the speed was too high. When the ill-fated train left Bolivar about forty workmen boarded her, but Conductor Barnhart put them off at Derry.

LATROBE, Pa., June 28.—The loss of life at the Latrobe freight wreck will be probably larger than was first reported, and the death list may reach forty-five. Engine 1313, which was supposed to be lying at the bottom of the Loyal Hanna river, was found resting on a box-car which was supposed to have contained ten or twelve tramps, and it is probable that a number of bodies will be found when the car is taken out.

A WEEK IN TENNESSEE. GALLATIN, Tenn., June 27.—The Chesapeake & Nashville passenger train due here at 11 a. m. jumped the track at Bledsoe Wednesday morning and the passenger and baggage coaches went down about sixty feet. Conductor E. B. Buck and Mail Clerk Henry Peacock jumped and were badly hurt. About eight persons were seriously injured and several children were more or less hurt. Th9 wrecked cars were badly smashed and it is feared there are a few bodies under the wreck.

DEATH OF SIMON CAMERON. The Aged Statesman Passes Away at His Home in Donegal.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 27.—General Simon Cameron died at his home in Donegal, Lancaster County, at 8 o'clock last evening, aged 90 years. Mr. Cameron was born near the place where he died. He first entered political life in 1845, when he was elected United States Senator, and was re-elected in 1856. Mr. Lincoln formed his Cabinet in 1861, and he was appointed Minister to Russia, but returned to the United States the same year. He was re-elected to the Senate in 1865 and again in 1870. In 1877 he resigned his seat, which is now held by his son, J. Donald Cameron.

Canadian Alillera Want Protection. TORONTO, Ont., June 29.—Canadian millers have called a mass-meeting here to protest against the action of Parliament in refusing to protect them against American millers. The duty on flour is fifty cents a barrel, while the duty on the amount of wheat necessary to make a barrel of flour is about sixty-seven cents, a clear discrimination in favor of the American millers of about seventeen cents a barrel.

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH.

Under a spreading chestnut tree The village blacksmith stands, And in a brimming basin he Would wash his brawny hands; But something else thnn water clean His sooty palm demands.

And when the soap escaped his grasp, With wonder he did note That on the water's surface dark The cleansing bar did float, As swims upon a turbid lake A pearl white fairy boat.

Week in, week out, from morn till night, He might have rubbed, I trow, Had I not given him a cake OF IVORY SOAP, when, lo! Full soon those honest hands of his Were spotless as the snow.

"Thanks, thanks," said he, "my worthy friend, For this which thou hast brought; No village blacksmith should forget The facts this Ivory Soap has taught; For hands like mine it is the best That can be found or bought."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory"; they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it. Copyright, 1886, by Procter & Gamble.

ANXIOUS CEMENT.

This week a half interest in THE REGISTER Printing and Publishing House is sold to Mr. Selby A. Moran, and he will assume an active interest at once. Mr. Moran began life in an interior Iowa town, when that state was comparatively new and experienced all the discouraging trials of a pioneer. He was early seized with an ambition for an education; and in spite of many obstacles that would have seemed to some utterly insurmountable, and unaided by anyone, he worked his way through the preparatory schools of his state, and into the University in the fall of 1883. His entire capital stook when he landed at the old tumble-down Michigan Central depot that then disgraced Ann Arbor, was some knowledge, any amount of grit and $9.75 cash. To enter the University he found that he had to make up every examination but two. From this inauspicious beginning he fought his way through college and graduated, earning every cent of his expense and coming out at the end of four years of study with more financial capital, than many of his classmates will have after they have pegged away at the fortunes they are seeking for half a dozen years. One of the most successful years of the Argonaut was under the skillful business management of Mr. Moran. He has in the meantime published a popular work on Shortland, and is now nearly ready to put out another. He has been learning the intricacies of THE REGISTER business for several months, and we feel quite certain that his connection with THE REGISTER will add greatly to the prosperity that has attended it in a moderate degree in the past. We are glad to introduce the new member of this firm to our numerous patrons, the business and professional men of Ann Arbor, Washtenaw county and Michigan, and to the newspaper world at large, to whose ranks we believe he will prove a worthy addition. K. KITTREGE.

A SERIES of short letters, beginning with this issue, will appear in THE REGISTER from the pen of a well-known Ann Arbor tourist who started for Europe last week.

WHATEVER may be said against the legislature which has just finished, it cannot be said that they were extravagant in appropriations. The total amount appropriated was $3,085,590.30, which is nearly a third of a million less than the preceding legislature appropriated.

SIMON CAMERON, the first secretary of war in Abraham Lincoln's cabinet, to whose sagacity as a politician, statesman and patriot this nation owes more of its prosperity than we may know, and perhaps its very existence, died at his home in Lancaster, Pa., June 26, aged 90 years.

THE death of Mrs. Ex-President Hayes by apoplexy last Saturday, has removed one of the noblest and loveliest of the women of America. She was a perfect type of the best American womanhood and her brave example while mistress of the White House did more for the advancement of temperance, sentiment than has yet been realized. Her works will live after her all through the nation's history.

AN extra session of congress will be called about the middle of October. This is rendered necessary because of the neglect of the late administration to make provision for the running expenses of the government. They sought to cripple the republican administration in this way, and because of their foolishness the country will have to stand the expense of an extra session.

One hundred and thirteen years ago today—the greatest instrument in the history of this or any other nation, the Declaration of Independence, was signed by our forefathers and the citizens all over this broad country are celebrating the anniversary of the event as only Americans, with the great love of home and country, can celebrate. The pride of the American in his country is proverbial, and well may we be proud of a country which has risen, in a little over a century, from a weak dependency upon Mother England to a nation strong and mighty, with a place among the first nations of the world. Never has history recorded such a remarkable growth and prosperity in so short a time, and every patriotic citizen should assist in celebrating the wisdom of our forefathers on this glorious Fourth of July.

ONE of the most important measures which passed the legislature during the closing hours, was the senate election bill which provides for a new system of voting in this state. The bill will, without doubt, work good results in purifying the elections in Michigan. It provides for the printing of the tickets by the state. The election room is to be divided by a railing, with gates for entrance and exit, and a gate-keeper, who is to admit but one elector at a time and each in his turn. The elector must pass through a booth supplied with all kinds of tickets and slips, and here, unobserved, he can select his ticket and fix it to suit himself. Having voted, he must pass and will not again be admitted. Challengers of each party are allowed in the room where the election board sit and the board is empowered to preserve the peace and commit offenders to jail, if not obedient to the commands of the peace officers.

SHOT THE KAIUS.

The Thrilling Experience of Our Correspondent as he Steamed Down the Rapids of the St. Lawrence.

EDITOR REGISTER:

Left Ann Arbor at 10:15 Saturday morning and arrived at Kingston dock at 2:30 Sunday morning, where we had to await the arrival of the steamer for Montreal. At 5 o'clock we began one of the pleasantest journeys to be had on this continent. Leaving Kingston just as the morning sun was pouring a flood of light across the calm bay, we steamed down the majestic St. Lawrence. The Thousand Islands burst into view, not all at once but in small doses at times and at times in large doses. Through winding channels and among well wooded islands, our journey lay during the afternoon. At one o'clock we came into the Galop Rapids, not very formidable to be sure, but a good introduction to what followed. A special pilot took us through these rapids and on down till we reached the Long Sault, when the "old Frerichjan" took the helm and directed the ship into channels all but uncharted. We shot the Long Sault, over two miles long, at rapid speed depending solely upon the angry current.

As we proceeded we could see the hill of water down which we had come, lying behind us with fury unabated. Rounding to our guide books we awaited anxiously the greatest event to all who take this ride down the St. Lawrence, the shooting of the Lachue Rapids. Turning around at the pilot, one could mark his anxious face. Drawing nearer, the waves danced higher, the waters grew more turbulent, the rocks crowded to the bow, and the excitement with the view around them. Rounding a sharp bend in the river we came suddenly upon a living chaldron of water. Billows rose up angrily, wave conspired with wave against our trusty ship. Gallantly the boat slipped down into a narrow channel of the river. It was a perilous time, not twenty feet away on one side could be seen the angry gray rocks lurking beneath the surface. A little further and to the right could be seen the same angry rocks provoking the waves to battle. The pilot at the helm with eye fixed upon some well known landmark on shore, swung the boat sharply between these rocks and we pitched down twenty feet within a very short distance. Then rising above the waves we rode through this narrow gate of Death into another equally as menacing. Swinging "hard a-port" we scaled the sunken rocks again and finally came out safely into quiet waters. We were nearing Montreal and the double spires of Notre Dame were seen guarding this historic city.

Arriving along side the dock at 7 p. m. we immediately looked up our ocean steamer and found her at her dock, ready to sail Tuesday at 4 a. m. Will write you later of that voyage.

Yours Truly,

The Wool Market in Ann Arbor. Wool has been marketed in large quantities in Ann Arbor during the past week, the market being two weeks ahead of what it was last year. The prices paid range from 28 to 30 cents. A comparison with last year shows that the highest price paid, during the early part of July, for the same grade of wool, was 22 cents, and during the latter part of the month 24 cents.

Mack & Schmid have purchased the largest amount, 150,000 pounds in this city and 75,000 pounds at Manchester. Kempf & Herz have purchased about 60,000 pounds, 72 loads amounting to 40,000 pounds being taken in by them on Saturday. Heinzmann & Laubengayer have bought 37,000 pounds.

In answer to a query "Whether it pays the farmer to raise sheep or not?" Mack & Scheidt gave the case of George Reed, of Pittsfield, who purchased 183 sheep last fall, sold the wool this spring for $355, and then sold the sheep for a larger sum than he paid for them. The wool market is now in a firm and steady condition, and the farmer is assured this year of a paying price for his wool.

To the Fruit Growers of Ann Arbor.

The Committee on Transportation has made arrangements with a reliable man in Detroit to see that our fruit car is in its place by 5 o'clock each morning, ready for the delivery of the fruit. We have also made arrangements with a man at this end of the line, to telephone our Detroit man the number of the car and to do everything that is necessary here to insure a prompt delivery and achieve complete success. We trust that the fruit growers will all avail themselves of the cheap and safe facilities thus provided, and cheerfully pay their ratable part of the small additional expense of thus securing prompt delivery of out fruit in the market.

Ample arrangements have been made to ship as freight on the T. A. A. R. R. to East Saginaw, Bay City; and all places on the road as far north as Cadillac, freight must be at this depot by 4 p. m. and at the A. C. R. R. by 6 p. m.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

SURFACED THE BARBER.

A Detroit Clean-Mower Finis That His Clara Kills, a dress-maker, was arrested in Detroit a few days ago for disorderly conduct and, pleading guilty, was sentenced to ten days in the House of Correction. On the arrival at the prison the superintendent cut peeled that Clara belonged to the male sex and this proved true. The man, Clara, arrived in Detroit two years ago and worked as a chambermaid at several hotels. Six weeks ago he launched out as a dress-maker. A barber became enamored of the "good-looking" dress-maker and they were to have been married in a short time. The creature refused to explain why he donned feminine apparel, but makes frequent threats of suicide.

MORE GOLD FOUND.

A Lead Struck Bearing: 67,000 to the Ton—Ispheming Work! A ton of gold in fifty pounds of quartz, carrying gold at the rate of $7000 a ton, were brought in to Ishpeming from the Michigan gold mine the other day. A new shaft was started, and at a depth of four feet a pocket of quartz carrying gold was struck. The vein at the point where the find was made is three feet wide—double the width of the vein at points previously worked. The discovery had caused much excitement and was regarded as the most important yet made in the Ishpeming gold range.

Indians Celebrate a Victory.

At White Rapids, twenty-five miles from Iron Mountain, nearly six hundred Menominee Indians gathered recently from all parts of the tipper Peninsula and held a grand pow-wow in which the victory of the Menominee Indians over the Chippewas, near the end of the last century, at a point near White Rapids, was celebrated with dances, feasts and speeches. The battle which gave the Menominees the ascendancy arose out of a dispute over the right of the Menominees to catch sturgeon at the mouth of the river, before they could reach the Chippewas, who were located further up the river.

A Soldier Found Dead.

The dead body of Henry Fraulling, a Michigan veteran, was lately found in the Arlington Cemetery at Washington with a bullet hole in his head, apparently having committed suicide. Later on it was discovered that his pension money, ninety dollars, which he had just drawn, was gone, and it is now supposed that he was robbed. Some Michigan people at the Capital were looking into the matter.

Health in Mirihitjan.

Reports to the State Board of Health by fifty-eight observers in different parts of the State for the week ended June 22 indicated that diarrhea, bronchitis, remittent fever and erysipelas increased, and diphtheria, measles and influenza decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twelve places, scarlet fever at seventeen, typhoid fever at five, and measles at six places.

Press Association.

The West Michigan Press Association concluded its meeting at Muskegon the other day. The following officers were elected: President, Robert Smith, Ithaca; Vice-President, J. Hedden, Dowagiac; Secretary, M. T. Woodruff, Cadillac; Treasurer, Otis Fuller, St. Johns; Executive Committee, E. N. Dingley, Kalamazoo; T. E. Edgers, Eavenna; E. d. Shaw, Newaygo.

The green midge is putting in his work in the wheat fields of Michigan and Indiana; just how much damage the new pest will do is quite uncertain. He works in the head and will probably cause the berry to shrink. The outlook for farmers at present is not very favorable.

Eugene Franklin Slayton mourns the loss of his "toy" mule recently purchased for him by his father, J. F. Slayton. Wednesday morning the little animal was found dead in his stable, having suicided during the night by hanging—probably disgusted with his failure to kick the boy's head off.—Dundee Reporter.

Mr. Deubel, the Ypsilanti miller, speaking of the wheat louse which is reported as having damaged the grain, says: "The wheat louse that there is so much talk about, has been almost if not quite as thick on the wheat the past five years as it is this year, and there is no reason to fear that they will do the crop serious injury. They are also to be found on the oats and rye, but seem to be almost harmless."

J. H. Carter, of Tecumseh township, has a cow which, on April 14, gave birth to two lambs and a calf. The lambs are to all appearance perfect, but larger than ordinary. The calf, a male, is also perfect. The expression of the face of the lambs has a peculiarity, while considerable hair is mixed among the wool, both in the fleece and on the legs. Mr. Carter has already refused an offer of $600 for the dim and family. So far as known there is no parallel case on record.—Ex. A good story but it should be taken with a grain of allowance.

The Catholics are making great preparations for their picnic, and everybody is looking for a great day the 4th.

The "flying Dutchman" has been moved from Ann Arbor to the Lake. Lots of fun for tile boys and girls now.

D. Smith, of Salem, had quite an eventful visit to the Lake, last Sunday.

He drove into the lake on the south side, when one of his horse became mired in a quicksand bed. The result was a good deal of sprawling around and some wet people. Again as his team was standing in front of the Clifton house, they took fright and ran, only a short distance however and with slight damage, as they soon stopped at the barn. Another horse in the barn became frightened at the disturbance and ran, and little Henry Mangie, running after him, received a kick in the forehead which might easily have been very serious but which proved to be only slight.

The Excelsior in its last edition gave a neat little write-up of Whitmore Lake, but several errors appear in the historical part of the paper. It has the name of the surveyor from whom it was named as Whitmore, which is absurd. The item reading as follows is interesting but is not exactly correct: Thirty-three years ago next Thursday, July 4th, a celebration was held at that place and that day witnessed the first and only accident by drowning ever recorded on that water, where thousands had before and since enjoyed themselves. The drowned were Owen Trainor and a Mr. Fitzsimmons, brothers-in-law, who in a drunken squabble capsized their boat and went down together. The drowning occurred July 4, 1857, 32 years ago instead of 33, and Owen Trainor and William Somerville were the unlucky ones.

The colt did not seem to mind the train until it started up, when it jumped and broke some of the harness, letting the thills up on its back. This scared the horse and it commenced kicking and backing. Mrs. C. thought she had better jump out, and in so doing the horse kicked her on the leg just below the knee hurting it badly. Mr. C. escaped unhurt, but the buggy was badly demolished.

Lake road have recently been put into good order, superinduced by the Catholic picnic the 4th.

The ladies of the Home Missionary Society gave a social tea party Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Wm. Latson. Tea was served from six to eight o'clock.

Last week the Webster folks listened to a lecture on Gettysburg and Johnston by Rev. W. T. Beale, of Ypsilanti. By use of charts, a good geographical description was given. The movements of the armies preceding the battle of Gettysburg were well illustrated, as also was the course of water preceding the destruction at Johnstown. Mr. Beale recently visited the places which formed the subject of his discourse, and brought with him a few relics for mementos which were exhibited.

Rev. S. H. Adams is not improving at the sanitarium as rapidly as his many friends had hoped he would. Still he is able to be around and take his usual exercise.

Wedding Hbils.

On Wednesday, June 26, at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Caldwell, of Saline, Mich., Dr. H. D. Heller and Miss Fannie Caldwell were united in marriage.

At half past eight o'clock, the bridal party marched in to the sound of Mendelssohn's wedding march, which was finely played by Miss Vesta Mills. The short but impressive ceremony was performed by the bride's father. The floral decorations were beautiful and artistic, especially the wedding bell of white and green, and the large canopy of ever-green, under which the bridal party stood.

The bride was attended by Miss Jeanette Caldwell as Maid of Honor, Miss Allie Caldwell as first bridesmaid, and Misses Ella Watkins, of Ionia, and Viola Stone, of Mason. Dr. Kotts, of Manchester. Prof. Townsend, of Annapolis, and Prof. Shuler, of Ypsilanti, were usher. The bride looked lovely in a gown of white brilliantine, en trains, heavily trimmed with white silk cord, with veil and white roses. The maids wore cream wool and surah, and carried blush roses. The presents were numerous and expensive.

After congratulations and refreshment, Dr. and Mrs. Heller departed, amid showers of rice and old slippers, for a short wedding trip.

About one hundred guests were present, among those from abroad were Mrs. Heller, mother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Caldwell, of Centreville; Miss Viola Stone, of Mason; Miss Watkins, of Ionia; Prof. Stiuler, of Ypsilanti; Prof. Townsend, of Annapolis, Ind.; Dr. Kotts, of Manchester.

FOURTH OF JULY

BY J. H. CONNELLY.

Bradley, landlord of the Golden Eagle hotel, where I stopped, had told me all about the arrangements for the celebration and enlisted my co-operation in carrying them out, as he was rather over-weighted with the burden of details, Abner Joyce, the originator and moving spirit of the affair, having been inopportunistly taken down with a fever. Joyce, I learned, was an eccentric Yankee, who chose to consider himself the local schoolmaster, and was so recognized by everybody. It was quite true that there were, as yet, no children there for him to teach, but he was on the ground and ready to receive them when they should come.

from force of habit, unthinkingly and innocently plug a friend and neighbor." An Irishman named Michael Garrity came in from a prospecting tour the evening of the 3d, and was wild with eagerness to be enlisted in the patriot army, but even Bradley thought he was "too excitable to be permitted to mix in the proceedings if the health of others was any consideration." By dint of great persuasion Michael was induced to forego the pleasure of "taking a pop at even a sham Englishman," and to lend his invaluable aid in certain work Bradley and I had cut out for us as soon as the tide of battle should have swept through the town. When that was satisfactorily settled I started out for a stroll.

[Copyright, 1889, by American Press Association]

Business took me out to California a couple of years before the Transcontinental railroad was opened, and, after a fortnight in San Francisco, I found it would be necessary for me to go away up toward the northern end of the state to examine some hydraulic mining property, in which parties whom I represented had an interest. Of course, I kept my object to myself and passed for simply a "tenderfoot" vaguely prospecting around for an opening. Day after day I rode on the box of the stage with the driver, whom I conciliated with burnt offerings and libations—cigars and brandy—and from whom in return I got not a little useful and entertaining information. One afternoon, while we were slowly toiling up the steep slope of a mountain, he remarked:

He had announced himself as a schoolmaster when he came there among the earliest arrivals to work a "rocker" on Grizzly Run, and it was at his insistence that the name of Jupiter was given to the camp that had subsequently developed into the town. Everybody liked and respected him, so that his present illness was deeply regretted for his own sake as well as the consequent deprivation of his directing genius suffered by the enthusiastic celebrants. How sick he was may be inferred from an incident that occurred the day before my arrival. Opinions were divided among the committee as to the number of stars that should appear in the field of the flag to be borne by the Continental soldiers in the sham battle, and there was nobody who had a clear idea of how an English

Just outside the town a young woman entering the road from a steep mountain path accosted me, demanding: "Are you the stranger who is helping Bradley get up the fight to-morrow?" I admitted that I was doing what I could in that direction, and, although I said nothing of the sort, I could not help thinking what a superb Goddess of Liberty she would make in an allegorical tableau if we had time to arrange such a thing. She had a magnificent Juno like form, line regular features, full of expression, and a natural grace of movement and attitude worthy of a goddess. "I am glad that I met you without having to send after you to the hotel, as I expected I would have to," she said. "I was so much surprised that I could only stammer some stupid nonsense about either way being good enough for me, which she of course took no notice of and went on:

"There'll be great doin's in Jupiter." I thought he must be dreaming, though his eyes were wide open and he kept flicking the offwheeler mechanically. "On the Fourth," he added after a pause. "Indeed!" I responded, interrogatively, amused and curious as to the course his fancy was taking. "Yes," he went on, "goin' to have a sham battle; Americans and British; and wind up with a dance. Abner Joyce schemed it all out. People comin' from fifty miles 'round to take a hand in."

"I soon found that Si Ransom, the driver, was talking of mundane and not planetary affairs, and that the Jupiter he meant was a little settlement, up among the mountains, started originally as a mining camp, but now the promising center of an agricultural community. While he was telling me about it we came to a fork in the road and there were two sign boards:

THIS WAY TO HOGBACK.

And 7 MILES TO 2F.

"Looks funny, don't it?" commented Si, with a grin; "But that was the way Abner Joyce seed fit to put it up. Swore he'd make the ignorant cusses 'bout here learn one planet's sign; an' I guess he did. Even the greasers that come along this way now know that stands for Jupiter."

"ARE YOU THE STRANGER WHO IS HELPING BRADLEY?"

flag ought to look. They went to him to decide both questions, and found him in red red, glaring and furious with fever. When they asked him about the stars he howled: "As many as there are in the firmament!" and when they just mentioned the English flag the sulphurous decorations of his speech completely shrouded any information it might have contained.

"There is something I wanted to speak to you about—something you must attend to. Two young men have, as I happen to know, agreed to make the sham fight to-morrow the cover for a deadly duel, in earnest, between them. Chance has helped them by putting one on the American and the other on the British side, just as they hoped for. While others will be banging away in the air, just to make a noise, they will be aiming to kill each other. You must find some way to prevent it."

We had a great deal of difficulty in getting a British army. There were in all 137 men enrolled for service, and they all wanted to be in the patriot forces. Yet it was fully recognized that there ought to be a larger British than American army in order that the final victory of the latter should appear in properly bright and historically correct colors. Bradley finally settled the matter in an autocratic fashion, that was reluctantly accepted by all. He wrote the word "British" on eighty slips of paper, "Continentalists" on fifteen and "Patriots" on forty-two. Then he chucked them all together into a powder keg, shook them up and made each man draw an assignment of place in the coming strife, from which allotment by chance no appeal was allowed. The respective forces elected their own officers.

"I am glad that I met you without having to send after you to the hotel, as I expected I would have to," she said. "I was so much surprised that I could only stammer some stupid nonsense about either way being good enough for me, which she of course took no notice of and went on:

I made up my mind that I would stop over and see how a small town with so surprisingly large a name celebrated Independence day. As a result of somewhat extended observation, I am inclined to think that earnest patriotism—or, perhaps, I had better say intense Americanism—does not flourish so vigorously in the "effete civilization" of the east as in the untrammeled freedom of the west. And you find it more pronounced among the mountains than down in the valleys. Appreciative love for our glorious land grows with knowledge of its grandeur and beauty. And how can they help their hearts swelling with affection for and pride in our country's starry banner, who live close up to where the heavens spread it? But I have never anywhere else found patriotism at quite such a white heat as it was just then in that little California town.

"Are the blank cartridges?" I innocently asked Bradley. "Blank nothin'," he replied, with evident surprise at such a question; "the boys all use fixed ammunition and it would be no end of trouble to change it." "But," I remonstrated, "it will be terribly dangerous to have all those fellows pumping lead out in the excitement of even a sham battle." "Well," he responded with calm indifference, "some accidents may happen, but if they do, why, they'll only make the racket seem more natural like and give an air of earnestness to the exhilaration." "At the expense of human life." "No fellow ever gets killed without his time has come; and if it has, a bean dropping off a shelf will do him up just as fine as a cannon ball could."

WE SAUNTERED BACK TO THE BAR. "I am glad to see that you two are friends, as from something I have heard I rather fancied that such might not be the case." They both eyed me very sharply for a minute of very uncomfortable silence, and then the one whose name I had been told was Jim asked, with that intonation of studiously punctilious politeness which one soon learns to understand as the Threshing Machines then in use were almost v.l. of the class known as the "Endless Apron" style. Then it was that Nichols & Shepard, of Eattlo Creek, Mich., invented and began to develop an entirely new and novel style of Grain Thresher and Separator, which they very appropriately named the "Vibrator."

It was a revolution in Threshing Machines, and from a small beginning of five machines in 1858 they soon reached a product of 1,000 yearly.

Their Vibrator drove the "Endless Apron" machine out of market, and all other makers copied it as closely as they dared. Today all Threshing Machines of any reputation or merit use the principles of the old Vibrator. Nichols & Shepard have continued in the business without change of name, location, or management; and during the past three years have brought out and developed another new Threshing Machine for grain and seeds, as superior to all existing machines as their former was to the 'Endless Apron.' They name this new and improved Thresher

Why Should I Go to Montana?

Great Reservation. Because 18,000,000 acres of free Government Land, with a delightful climate, and equally suited for general farming and stock raising, have just been opened to the homeseeker, in the Milk River Valley and near Benton and Great Falls.

Stock Raising. Because the favorable climate and superior grasses of Montana make it the natural home of horses, cattle, sheep and other domestic animals; and because winter feeding is not required, as stock grazes at large the year round.

General Farming. Because a rich soil and abundant summer rains produce wheat, oats, rye, barley and the grasses and vegetables of a quality, size and yield unsurpassed.

Manufacture. Because Montana produces more of the precious metals than any other state or territory, and abundant opportunities remain to secure valuable properties at nominal cost.

Immigration. Because the Great Reservation is the meeting point of settlers from the Pacific Coast and from the Eastern States, and is the only extensive tract of good land left, suitable for settlement.

Business. Because the rapidly growing towns along the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Rys. offer splendid opportunities to engage in business.

Manufacturer. Because the 1,000,000 horsepower water-power at Great Falls, the extensive coal veins, the wool, mineral and grain raising resources of Montana offer exceptional opportunities to the manufacturer.

Tourist. Because the canon of the Gates of the Mountains, the Great Falls of the Missouri, the Giant Fountain and Continental Divide offer the most sublime and diversified scenery to be found on the Continent. Take a summer tour.

Why Travel by Cite St. P., M. & M.? Because only by it can you travel through the largest body of free land left for settlement. Because it reaches the Great Falls, with the largest water-power on the Continent. Because it reaches Helena, the richest city of its size in the world; and because it is the shortest and best route to Butte, the largest mining camp on earth. Special tourists and landseekers' rates. Daily trains through solid to Montana. Choice of three routes to the Pacific Coast. a very dangerous symptom in a western dialogue!

"May I be permitted to inquire what has given rise to such a supposition?" "Why, certainly," I replied, a little uneasily; "I had been told that you actually contemplated a duel to-morrow."

"Ah!" exclaimed the one known as Bill, in a tone of surprise, and then he continued, in a tone so obsequiously courteous that it had a sort of blood curdling effect. "Excuse me, but may I venture to ask you who has told you so?"

Manifestly delay in explicit explanation would be likely to eventuate speedily in trouble, and I answered promptly: "A very beautiful young woman, well known to both of you, whom, deeming that by so doing she might save a brave man's life, asked me to speak to you and remonstrate with you against what her woman's intuition caused her to fear was your joint purpose."

"They looked at each other with expressions that seemed to say each to the other, 'He is not to blame,' and then Bill said with a smile: 'That's all right. But there is no occasion for you to mix up in this affair. Jim and I are friends, however things turn out, and we know what we're about, don't we, Jim?'"

"Cert," assented Jim curtly, adding to me, "There ain't any hard feelings between Bill and me, stranger, but we've just laid out to shoot this match off in a way that will settle it without Mary getting talked about. And she won't be, for nobody will be any the wiser about it if you keep your head shut, which I would if I were you, for it ain't likely we'll both be wiped out."

ABNER JOYCE IN THE PART OF WASHINGTON.

I realized that although it was not offensively uttered there was in his words a decided threat of unpleasant consequences if I did not keep silence. That, I think, would not have deterred me from speaking if by so doing I could have accomplished anything, but I well knew that I could not. Their minds were made up. If the whole community had known what they purposed, nobody would have thought it his business to interfere.

If the ownership of a mining claim had been at issue they would probably have tossed a "double eagle" or "cut the cards" to decide it. But the stake here was, in the eyes of both, worth more than all the mining claims in the mountains, and they made their game one worthy of its dignity—life or death, for love.

We sauntered back to the bar and took a drink together. As I raised my glass I bowed slightly to each and said, "Whichever," they looked at each other, smiled, touched their glasses, repeated "Whichever," and drank. They understood me. We had drunk to the health of whichever one should have the luck to come out alive.

The sun arose brilliantly on the morning of the Fourth, and the people of Jupiter, who had got up long before him, were full of the excited bustle of final preparation of details. It was Abner Joyce's day for a chill, but he had himself helped out and perched up where he could overlook a good share of the proceedings, hoping to get some satisfaction out of them before the fever struck him and made him delirious.

About 11 o'clock in the forenoon, dropping shots in the canyon away up to the northeast told that the skirmishers of the British line were advancing and the very small Continental guard falling back before them. Soon the latter were driven through the town in full retreat, pursued by the victorious British, whose red flannel blouses and red flannel covered hats made quite an imposing show. The Continental uniforms were simply white flannel facings pinned on the jackets, and floured hats cocked up to three pointed shape with pins. As the British went through the town they fired a log house, stuffed with pine tops and other combustible material, that had been constructed for the purpose. The rapid discharges of the guns, the shouts of the men and the thick, black smoke from the burning house blown across the scene, gave a startling realism to the mimic battle. From all directions then came the patriot volunteers, supposedly called by the sounds of strife from their peaceful avocations, to defend their homes from the ruthless invaders. Out of town they, too, swept, firing and yelling, in pursuit of the British, and among them went Abner Joyce, who had forgotten that he was sick. The explosion of a lot of dynamite cartridges planted in stumps added the effect of cannon to the uproar.

As soon as the battle had moved on Bradley, Garrity and myself set to work hoisting a triumphal arch of light poles covered with red, white and blue flannel streamers and trimmed with evergreens that had been prepared in advance and ingeniously rigged with hoisting tackle so that we three could handle it. Then we ran up an enormous American flag on the tall liberty pole before the hotel, and the strong mountain breeze spread out its glorious stars and stripes as stiff as a board. Hardly were our labors completed when the sound of a drum and fife, coming from the west, heralded the approach of the patriot forces and their prisoners, the British, who had, according to the programme, surrendered at a point half a mile out of town.

At the foot of the liberty pole the little procession halted and the English colonel, speaking for his men, gave fitting expression to their penitence for having borne arms against a people who were striving to be free, and announced their readiness to forthwith and forever repudiate allegiance to the king of England, if the Continental army would accept them as recruits. Abner Joyce—whose excitement, exertions and an opportune pull at somebody's flask had quite broken his chill—had leaped into the part of Gen. Washington, for which he had originally been "cast," and, in response to the English colonel, made such an Independence day oration as raised his hearers to the wildest enthusiasm of patriotic delight. Then the two armies mingled fraternally; the English flag was raised half mast high, union jack down; an effigy of Benedict Arnold was hanged and then consumed in the still smoldering embers of the burned house, and the proceedings wound up with a feast and a dance that lasted all night.

Much to my surprise only one casualty was reported. My quondam friend Jim had had his right arm pierced by a bullet. The wound was a very severe one, but not dangerous, and he had the nerve to show himself for a little while at the dance, but he was very pale, silent and distraught, so much so that it was remarked by some that he "seemed strangely broke up, just for a little thing like that." I knew what they did not, that the ache in his heart prevented his feeling the hurt of his arm. He danced once with Mary. Then he went away, giving his left hand to Bill, who stood by the door as he passed out.

The next morning when I took the stage to continue my journey I found that Jim was a fellow passenger. His right arm was done up in splints and tied to his breast.

"Going away," he said to me, with a sad smile.

Manfully accepting the fortunes of war, he was going, never to return.

Disarming an Uffecuu Foe. "This was Rometime a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Wherever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cakes, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is its preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defence against which the enemy is powerless. Grief, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

The assignee of John P. Terns, of Ypsilanti, has filed a report showing that he has sold the stock, which inventoried $747.91, for $410 and has turned the money over to Mary Terns to apply on a chattel mortgage. As the stock comprised the entire assets, it looks as though the creditors would not get much.

Ethel M., three-year old daughter of George Warren, of Fosters, died Sunday. The doctors were unable to agree upon the cause of her death. Mr. Warren thinks that she ate some poisonous berries or something of that kind, as the girl and her brother were both taken sick at the same time and in the same manner, with vomiting.

John Keenan became drunk Monday night and went to the residence of his sister, Mrs. John Butler, on E. Ann-st. He grew violent there and smashed the furniture, and was taken to jail to sober off. While being led down Ann-st. about 2 a. m. Tuesday morning, he aroused the residents by yelling "fire! murder! thieves! help!"

There was a good chance for speculation in wood-chucks scalps last Saturday. Hardly two townships in the county pay the same bounty for killing these animals, Pittsfield paying the lowest, 10 cents, and Ann Arbor the highest, 25 cents. As the state law requires the townships to pay a bounty, it should specify the amount and make it uniform.

Michigan University would refuse a student admission, even in the literary department, if he should parse "woman" in the masculine gender, yet its faculty, in solemn convocation, have unsexed a number of innocent girl graduates, and pronounced them bachelors. The last victim is Phebe Ann Isadore Howell, of Easton, bachelor of arts.—Lansing Republican.

If the boys of Ann Arbor town do not celebrate today in glorious shape, it will not be the fault of the township treasurer nor of the wood-chucks. On Saturday, Chas. Parshall, the township treasurer, sat in the basement of the court house and received the scalps of 647 wood-chucks that had been killed in the township, paying $101 75 bounty to the boys that killed them.

One of the articles in the Commencement Annual shows gross carelessness on the part of the editor. The prophecy by Miss Fannie Barker of the senior literary class, contains, as it appeared in the Annual, at least fifty-eight typographical errors. Evidently the "proof" was never read, much less submitted to the author. Miss Barker is justly indignant at the manner in which the work was made to appear.

John Nanry brought several specimens of wheat to TBE REGISTER to show the effect that the bugs are having on it. On part of it the heads were apparently all right, but upon investigation the kernels proved to be shrunken, caused by the wheat-aphis which sucks the juice from the grain. On the rest, the heads were cut off from the grain. The damage done to wheat in this county by these insects cannot be estimated but is very large.

Joseph C. VanValkenburg, Aaron Canine and John Esselman were arrested and taken before Justice Pond, Monday, charged with setting fire to the fence of William Wallace, of Pittsfield. The defendants live in the township of York and the fence burned was on Wallace's farm in that township.—A mistake being made in the dates on the warrant, the defendants were discharged and immediately re-arrested on the same charge, their examinations being set down for July 10.

The Misses Mamie and Nellie Rinsey, daughters of David Rinsey, have returned from St. Mary's academy, Monroe, for vacation. The young ladies are highly elated over their success in securing twelve prizes for proficiency in their various Studies, among them being an elegant gold medal for greatest advancement in Christian doctrine, taken by Miss Nellie. They brought with them and presented to Fr. Fierle, an elegant benediction scarf nine feet long, made of white moire silk, lined with scarlet surah silk, with gold fringes at the ends and a beautiful design worked in the center.

Besides the relics and memories of the battle-field of Gettysburg obtained during the recent state meeting for the dedication of monuments at that place, Robert Campbell procured a large photograph of about fifty of the surviving members of his regiment, the old Fourth Infantry, which took such an active part in that bloody conflict that it lost over forty per cent, of its members in killed, wounded, and missing. The veterans are arranged upon each side of the monument, which is erected upon or near the spot where the column of the regiment, H. H. Jeffords, was killed being thrust through with a bayonet while making a desperate attempt to recover his flag, which the rebels had seized. In the background adjoining is seen the historic wheat field which was within the fatef loop near the Devil's Den, and between Little Round Top and the Peach Orchard where the opposing forces charged and countercharged each other upon the afternoon of July 2, until the field of trampled wheat was literally covered with Union and Confederate dead. Beside trees, am boulders, stone fences, etc, there can be seen a number of the monuments erected by the regiments of other states to commemorate the desperate struggle. No such assemblage of the regiment has been upon that field since the battle, or will ever be likely to occur again. Thus the same faces upon the same field after a quarter century, makes it a historic picture.

Appealed the Case.

The case of William Osius against George Armbruster, which was tried in Justice Frueauff's court on June 11 and a verdict of no cause for action rendered by the jury, has been appealed to the circuit court. The case is a peculiar one. On Dec. 12, 1881, Armbruster gave a note to Osius which he claims to have afterwards paid, but forgot to take the note. After waiting several years Osius began suit to recover, claiming that he has never received the money in payment for the note. The jury in the lower court decided against Osius and the outcome of the case in the circuit court will be watched with interest, as both parties are well-known German farmers of the county.

Did they Steal the Sheep?

Chelsea and Lyndon have a sensation on hand which has stirred up a commotion in that vicinity. John McKune, a Lyndon farmer, lost 16 sheep last week and instituted a search for them. He found traces of them on a farm owned by A. Collins, about two and a half miles from his house. Although traces of the sheep were found, the sheep themselves could not be found for several days, when finally a sheep was seen floating in a marsh on the edge of a lake, on land belonging to Collins. Searching farther the bodies of the 16 sheep were found in the marsh, 11 of them having been shorn of their fleecer. As all traces of the sheep after they left their owner's premises were on Collins' land, suspicion was directed towards him and warrants were issued for the arrest of A. Collins; Otto Dulecl and Albert Harris, who work for Collins; and Bert Wallace, who works in the vicinity and appeared to know to much about the missing sheep. Bail was furnished for all except Wallace, who is now confined in the county jail. The parties will have their examinations on Saturday, at Chelse*. Collins is a wealthy farmer and his arrest was a complete surprise.
