THANKSGIVING DAY.

THE ORIGIN AND HISTORY OF THE DAY OF THANKS.

In This Country It Properly Dates from the Fall of the Year 1663, but the Custom Is a Very Old One and Goes Way Back.

Thanksgiving day is the American evolution of a long line of predecessors, both pagan and Christian. It dates as an annual national holiday from the fall of 1863. In that year President Lincoln sent a message to congress recommending the observance of a national day of thanksgiving, not only on account of the victories which had followed the Union arms, but also for the plentiful harvest. Since then the custom has taken deep root in many parts of the United States where it did not previously exist. Now it stands unique in history as a day on which a great nation, without respect to political party or religious creed, acknowledges with thankfulness the continued prosperity which God has been pleased to shower upon it.

Over 3,000 years ago the Israelites wandering in the desert were instructed by Moses to observe a holiday similar in character to the modern American Thanksgiving day, when they came to the Promised Land. It was called the Feast of the Tabernacles and took place about the end of harvest time.

Later in the world's history a feast answering the same purpose was held by the ancient Greeks in honor of Demeter, the deity who owned the earth in their eyes. The rallying point for this feast, which lasted nine days, was at Athens. All except murderers and barbarians took part in it.

About the same time of year the Romans held a feast in honor of the goddess Ceres, who, though of feminine gender, seems to have presided over their department of agriculture. The Romans had no turkeys, and could not, of course, kill and eat the sacred geese, but managed to get along very well on fat capons and Falernian wine for all that.

More direct in the line of ancestry of the American Thanksgiving day was the Saxon harvest home. It began as soon as the crops were saved and lasted till the moon was at its full. Barbecues of oxen roasted whole, home brewed ale, bonfires and dancing made up a programme not to be sneezed at even by Nineteenth century folk. But this feast was rather one held by individual families than the realm of England as a whole.

The first Thanksgiving held on American soil was by the Pilgrim Fathers, in the year 1621, shortly after they landed at Plymouth rock. It was not very much of a thanksgiving, for they did not feel that they had very much to be thankful for, but was rather a revival of the English harvest home. Matters were about the same in 1622, and with much about the same result in giving thanks. In 1623, however, an expected ship failed to arrive with provisions when they were likely to be most wanted, and the prospects of famine were so bright that Gov. Bradford, acting in the undoubted exercise of his prerogative, ordered a day to be set apart for fasting, humiliation and prayer.

But before the day appointed had come, provisions turned up all right, and the day was turned into one of thanksgiving. Mr. Winslow, one of the pilgrims, in a letter gives an interesting account of this memorable day in American history. The celebration was held with "glory, honor and praise, with all thankfulness to our good God which deals so graciously with us." Ninety Indians, headed by King Massasoit, arrived at the settlement in the nick of time and shared in the feast. This celebration was somewhat previous, for not long after the pilgrims were down to plain lobsers without bread, and spring water, "which," said Governor Bradford, "somewhat impaired the freshness of our complexions." As well it might.

The Puritan settlers at Nantasket fared little better than the Pilgrims some years later. On Feb. 9, 1631, provisions had reached a vanishing point. The last flour in the colony was baking in Governor Winthrop's oven. It was the day appointed for a public fast. At the last moment the ship Lyon was sighted. The fast was immediately changed into a feast. This is generally held as the first regular Thanksgiving day in New England.

After this date thanksgivings were held every now and then, as the occasion for them arose. A general day of thanksgiving was held in all the churches in New England on June 15, 1637, to celebrate the signal victory over the Pequod Indians at Fort Mystic. The success of the synod in settling the religious creed of all New England was also celebrated in a special thanksgiving on Oct. 12 of the same year.

Forty years later Governor Andros attempted to make the New England colonists give thanks in obedience to his commands. He appointed the first day of December, 1687, as a day of thanksgiving. People were about tired of the governor's arbitrary ways by this time, and nobody thanked worth a cent. Several of those who would not dance to Governor Andros' piping were hauled before the courts to answer for their contempt. One sturdy old Puritan answered that "he was above the observation of days and times."

This was not the last of the high handed governor's attempts to make the colonists give thanks for tilings they didn't want. When James II expected in heir in direct succession the English throne the stubborn Puritans of New England were told to be thankful on April 18, 1688, that they were to be ruled by a race of Catholic kings. They seemed to appreciate the prospect so little that Aug. 24 in the same year was also ordained as a day of thanksgiving by the governor to commemorate the birth of the ill-fated wanderer who was afterward known as the elder pretender.

On this day the colonists weren't any happier than the pretender would have been himself if he could have foreseen his own future.

Queen Anne gave some more favorable opportunities of observing national thanksgivings. April 5, 1703, was thus held with great rejoicings to celebrate the first of Marlborough's victories over the French, in Holland. All the American colonies had a good time on Aug. 2, 1704, when salutes were fired and general illuminations were held to commemorate the great victory of Blenheim by the same commander.

Of all the Thanksgiving days held in obedience to orders from the English crown, that of Nov. 13, 1759, touched most nearly the hearts of the future American nation. For in that year the gallant Gen. Wolfe, aided by some of the best blood of the colonies, had stormed the heights of Abraham and taken Quebec from the French.

The beginning of the end was seen in the Thanksgiving held by the colony of Rhode Island on June 15, 1763. That day was proclaimed a general holiday by the governor at the request of the general assembly, "in acknowledgment to the Supreme Being for the repeal of the late act of parliament imposing stamp duties."

Thenceforward national Thanksgiving days rested on the surer foundations of the people's will. During the revolutionary wars, the observance of an annual national holiday was recommended by congress, and faithfully kept by the whole people. In 1789, Washington, in a message to congress, recommended the setting apart of a day of thanksgiving to celebrate the adoption of the constitution. The overthrow of a local rebellion in 1795 was similarly observed, in accordance with the tenor of another message by the president.

In 1815 President Madison proclaimed a day of national thanksgiving on account of the peace which closed the war of 1812. For forty-eight years no such day was observed, until the custom was revived by Lincoln in 1863.

During all this time the New England states were holding annual Thanksgivings on their own account.

It is but fitting that in the evolution of this truly national holiday the original occupiers of the soil should have their part. The Protestant Episcopal prayer book of 1789 gives the first Thursday in November as the day for the observance of the annual thanksgiving, except some other day is selected by the civil authorities.

The time now taken every year by the latter is the last Thursday of November. It was about this time each year that the American Indian was wont to build great fires in the woods and roast the flesh of the deer and bear and boil the corn and stew the pumpkin and make the welkin ring with the noise of his feasting, singing and dancing before the long winter closed down.—New York Sun.

THANKSGIVING DINNER.

It is not necessary that the Thanksgiving feast should be sumptuous. There need not be turkey on the table, nor mince pie, nor plum pudding, nor ice cream. The plates and dishes need not be of fine porcelain, nor the spoons and forks of solid silver. No colored man need stand behind any of the chairs, to deprive people of the pleasure of waiting upon one another.

All may be very plain, cheap and simple. Last Thanksgiving a father who was in pecuniary straits took home for his boys' dessert two quarts of hot peanuts, and they were received with shouts of laughter and applause. He says they were the pleasantest Thanksgivings he ever made in his life.

But there are some things which are essential to the success of a Thanksgiving festival. Every one must be present who ought to be there—the whole family circle within reasonable reach; the unpopular members of it, as well as the popular; the ill favored and the handsome; the unfortunate and the fortunate; those whom nobody particularly wants to see, as well as those whom everybody delights to see; welcome all on this glad day!

There is a strange pleasure in the occasional meeting of the most incongruous people, provided the spirit of innocent gaiety gets into the ascendant, and remains there. Every one says, "Who could have thought that old Cousin Dick and cranky Aunt Abigail could have been so agreeable!"

Each person must, of course, leave his troubles at home with his old clothes, or button them up close and tight in his innermost pocket. We all have troubles, and there are times when it is proper to tell them; but on occasions of family festivity it is good to forget, for a few brief hours, that there is such a thing as trouble in the world.

Family affection is a source of so much happiness and help to us that no fair opportunity of strengthening and increasing it should be allowed to pass unimproved.—Youths' Companion.

"Here, Jack," said the butcher to his boy, "take this leg of mutton around to old Jones'; and be sure to carry it in a covered basket, so that the neighbors won't know that they haven't a turkey for Thanksgiving."—New York Evening Star.

DEENSON'S THANKSGIVING.

BY CHARLOTTE ROGERS.

The afternoon sun was doing its last and most effective work of the day; for this was the only hour that anything like beauty could be said to touch the settlement.

Half a dozen cabins divided by a dusty roadway, a blacksmith shop, and a store, constituted the settlement. The road was never empty from a procession of pigs and chickens, with occasionally a cow—the property of the inhabitants. It was a kind of public barnyard.

The store and smithy ran each other close as to which should have the latest bit of gossip to retail to its customers. It was a not unfriendly rivalry, however, and one proprietor was never too proud to listen to what the other had to say. The settlement did not pretend to be a mining village. Its men were hunters in a desultory way, and had lived there some time before the gold fever broke out around them. Some had caught it and gone away, but the majority preferred the old way of life—it involved less worry and responsibility.

The place was unusually lively this evening, for some miners had come up the valley with wonderful tales of a claim down there that was paying out gold by the handful. They stood in the center of an eager group that completely surrounded and filled the doorway of the store.

Presently a girl came up the path, with a bucket on her head and her sun bonnet under her arm. She was small and dark and very pretty, but sad looking.

"I wish you all would let me in," she said.

The men separated, and as she entered the store one of the newcomers asked who she was.

"She's Deenson's daughter," said a member of the settlement, running his thumb under his suspender and giving it a hitch. "Ain't you never heard of old Deenson—him as lives over on 'Poverty Flat'?" He's mad, they say, an' I guess he must be or he wouldn't go on livin' on a worked out claim. He says the gold's there yet; but the other man as owned it hadn't patience. Lord! he's got patience, but that's about all. Deenson's so poor and the claim so low down poor we calls it 'Poverty Flat.'"

An embarrassed silence fell upon the group as the girl passed through it; but if she had heard she gave no sign, and she now wore the large limp sun bonnet, which completely hid her face.

As soon as she was gone, a man detached himself from the edge of the party, and hurrying round the store, struck a trail that a few minutes would cross the one that Deenson's daughter was following.

He was a tall, fine looking fellow, of any age between twenty and thirty. He wore the typical miner's clothes, but walked with an easy grace that suggested much mountain climbing.

When they met she expressed no surprise at seeing him.

"Ye can carry the pail if ye want ter," she replied to his offer, "but there's not enough in it ter-night to make it heavy. I wonder what we're goin' to do this winter, Jack?" she went on, with a sigh. "Dad will stick to the old claim, though that's nothin' in it. He ain't much fit to work, if that war. Sometimes I think as how he's a little teched right here," she said, pushing back her bonnet and putting her hand to her head.

Jack wondered uneasily if she had heard what they said at the store.

"Tell ye what 'tis, Doll," he began, hurriedly, "it's a dreadful lonely life fur ye down 'ere on the Flat, with no one but the old man fur company."

She didn't seem to think this required any answer, and they walked on for a time in silence.

The path that they were following was a very pretty one, but it is doubtful if either noticed it. The tall, dark pines keel overhead, their soft brown slippery "needles" made a carpet under foot, while the hazy November sunshine, now slanting through the tree trunks, cast their long shadows across the path.

After a while he began again, but slowly, as if wishing to impress her with the earnestness of what he was saying.

"I've knovved ye now, Doll, this six months back, an' I dun know how ye feels—but, afore God, I'd rather hear you say, 'Jack, I love ye,' than strike the best payin' claim in the state."

She stopped with a little gasp, and her hands tightly clasped before her; down went the old sunbonnet all unheeded. "Jack," she cried, "Jack, do you mean it?"

"I ain't got no Bible, Doll," he said, solemnly, laying his hand upon her head, "but I swear it by the next one of God's works I hold most sacred, and that's ye."

"Then, Jack," she sobbed, "I do love ye. I've most-a-died fur fear ye wouldn't care fur me. Let's go home an' tell dad, Jack—an' ye'll stay to supper," she added, returning to the practical.

Outside the cabin they lingered for a time, unwilling to interrupt the first charm of their happiness by another presence. The pine woods lay behind them, the mountains before them, with a long stretch of rocks and isolated pines between. Where they stood it was already twilight, but on the mountain tops the sunshine still lingered. It was a desolate outlook, and calculated to subdue the most buoyant spirits. No wonder Doll's eyes were sad.

When they entered they found the old

National Educational Association.

The National Educational Association and Council of Education have decided to hold their next annual convention at St. Paul, Minnesota, July 4 to 11, 1890. HOD. James H. Canfield of Lawrence, Kansas, is president of the association. It is expected that there will be twenty thousand teachers present from all points of the Union. The western railroads have already agreed to give half rates, plus $2.00 membership fee, to all persons who attend, and eastern and southern roads will make low rates which will be announced at an early date. St. Paul has organized a local executive committee and the most complete arrangements are being made to give the teachers a splendid welcome to the Northwest, and to make the meeting a grand success. There will be ample hotel accommodation at reasonable rates. Local excursions are being planned to all important points of interest in the Northwest and on the Pacific Coast, which will furnish teachers with the finest summer holiday trips that they ever enjoyed. The official "Bulletin," containing programs, rates and full particulars, to be issued in March, will be sent free. Address S. Shern, Sec'y Local Executive Committee, St. Paul, Minnesota. Headquarters, Hotel Ryan.

You will not have to hunt for bargains at the store next week. On all sides you will see stacks of seasonable goods going out at tempting prices—prices that are low by reason of fortunate and large purchases. Come and see what all this means. There's money to be saved and that in the next two weeks. The last of November.—The winter months at hand—supply yourselves while prices are running so low. There is no humbug about us when we pronounce these values the best ever offered. 'T would be impossible for any house to give greater bargains. We put our shoulders to the wheel to obtain for our patrons something not obtainable elsewhere at the prices we are naming and we have succeeded beyond a doubt. We prefer to call your attention to those we have at prices mentioned, each week in a weekly paper, because they are such as will not alone prove good goods, but also be the direct means of proving our claim of being the cheapest house in the county. Should anything you buy of us prove different from what we advertise or from what you are told by any of our employees return it at once and we will refund your money to you. We give an account each week of new and different bargains. Maybe one of them is just what you have in your mind.

The Michigan Central has built a fence around their property at Ypsilanti, to keep the people from getting too close to the cars. The fence is not very artistic in design, and the Commercial expresses a hope that something disastrous will happen to it.

The Cornwell Fire Company has been succeeded by the Ypsilanti Fire Department, but the Cornwell company is not ready to turn over their property to the city, at least a part of them are not. At a meeting of the company last week it was voted to turn over the property to the city, but when the council met 18 members sent in a protest.

Fred Webb of Pittsfield is fond of hunting and his indignation was aroused last Sunday at the sight of a party of hunters on his father's premises. He ordered them off and tired at their dog, whereupon the hunters discharged a number of shots at Fred, hitting him about the head and neck.—Observer.

The Congregationalists of Salem know how to draw out a crowd. Rev. Shannon will preach the Thanksgiving sermon tomorrow morning, after which the ladies of the church will furnish a dinner to the congregation. University hall wouldn't be large enough to hold the crowd if such a plan was adopted here.

The Southern Washtenaw Farmers' Club will meet at the residence of S. M. Merithew on Friday, December 6. An interesting programme will be rendered as follows: Select reading, Mrs. H. R. Palmer; essay, Miss Mary Hitchcock; clippings from the press, L. D. Watkins; subject for discussion, "What inducements do farmers offer to young men;" paper, Albert English.

David Haggart teaches the school in the southwestern part of the township, and, of course, is subject to the trials and tribulations of those of his profession. One day last week he punished a daughter of Valentine Mang very severely and in consequence Mr. M. had him arrested. He appeared for trial before Justice Webb, plead guilty, and was fined $5 and costs, but before paying the fine concluded to appeal to the circuit court, notwithstanding he had plead guilty—a rather unusual procedure.—Saline Observer.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff, a young Russian artist who died at Paris in 1884 at the age of twenty-three, and which has attracted the admiring attention of the foremost critics in Europe, will be published by Messrs. Cassell & Company, about Nov. 11th. Among the most enthusiastic in their praise of this journal is the Right Hon. Wm. E. Gladstone, who in an article in the Nineteenth Century, pronounces it "a book without a parallel." The translation has been made by Mrs. Mary J. Serano. A portrait of Marie Bashkirtseff and reproductions from her paintings now owned by the Luxembourg Gallery will accompany this edition. Cassell & Co., New York.

DR. TALMAGE AGAIN AN EDITOR.—Beginning with January 1st next the Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D. will become one of the editors of the Ladies' Home Journal of Philadelphia. The famous preacher will have a regular department each month, written by himself, with the title "Under My Study Lamp." His first contribution will appear in the January number of the Journal. Dr. Talmage's salary is said to be one of the largest ever paid for editorial work.

Ladies' Home Journal, 435 Arch St., Phila.

Drake's Magazine for November has been received and is a good number. Especially noticeable are the article on the national drink of Mexico, Pulque, by Howard Noll, and "English life as Shakespeare knew it." There are also a number of stories.

FOR 1890.—Consider Scribner's Magazine when you are deciding upon your reading matter for next season. The subscription rate is low—$3 a year.

The standard of the magazine is high; its spirit progressive; the illustrations are interesting and of the best.

There is not space here to give even a summary of the features to appear next year, but among other things there will be a new department and additional pages, and groups of illustrated articles will be devoted to the following subjects:

African Exploration and Travel; Life on a Modern War Ship (three articles); Homes in City, Suburb and Country; Providing Homes through Building Associations; The Citizen's Rights; Electricity in the Household; Ericsson, the Inventor, by his Authorized Biographer; Hunting; Humorous Artists, American and Foreign.

There will be three serials. Robert Louis Stevenson will contribute in 1890.

Each subject, and there will be a great variety this year, will be treated by writers most competent to speak with authority and with interest. Readers who are interested are urged to send for a prospectus, 25 cents a number; $1 for four months.

Charles Scribner's Sons, 743 Broadway, New York.

Worthington Co., 747 Broadway, New York, announce a sparkling French novel called "Henriette, or a Corsican Mother," by Francois Coppé. 1 vol. 12mo., half bound, $1.25; fancy paper covers, 75 cents.

This exceptional story, by one of the great modern writers, admirably translated, tells of a high-born mother's intense love for her only son, who, after the death of her husband, decides to devote her life entirely to him. But when the son attaches himself to a young, but poor girl, the mother becomes disconsolate and repudiates the girl. The writer sharply contrasts the mother's devotion with the young girl's love, and has produced a novel of singular beauty and grace.

A Life Saving Improvement.

An important improvement is chronicled in our marine life saving service. After March, 1890, all steam vessels will be required to carry a life line rocket. Heretofore the line rocket appliance has been confined to life saving service on shore. A rocket, to which a line was attached, was fired from a mortar gun to the ship in distress. Sometimes the line became entangled out of reach and was of no use. Sometimes the aim missed altogether. Now, however, the rocket and line will be on board the vessel, and can be fired thence to the shore. At Washington a rocket has been tested which carries a line 1,000 yards. With appliances like this, it does not seem that a ship's crew need very often be lost before the eyes of those on shore, who are unable to help them.

A. Week's Outing on Three Dollars.

If the toilers on small wages who dwell in the great middle basin of the country could have a little period of sea air and sea bathing every summer it would put a new, electric life into them, much of which would stay with them the rest of the year. The trouble is it costs so much to live to the seashore, and so much to live after one gets there.

The first difficulty the railroad companies ought to remove, with the gracious permission of the interstate commerce commission, by making cheap summer rates. The second obstacle was surmounted by a party of four clever young women, in a way told very graphically by one of them. They spent three months at the seashore for $3 a week apiece, and $23 besides, to start housekeeping on. As they managed, others can manage, school teachers, sewing women, typewriters and clerks. Young men could accomplish the same feat if they could do as the girls did, cook for themselves.

To begin: These plucky, merry girls rented a large room for $10 a month at Ocean Grove. Probably Ocean Grove is the cheapest seashore resort. The room was unfurnished, except with matting and window shades. They sent thither their own bedding and a few housekeeping articles that could be packed in a large pine box. One large pine box served them as a table, another as a cupboard. They hired from a village store two large double folding cot beds, a rocking chair apiece, dear to the heart of woman, and four other chairs.

Their room looked on old ocean itself, and had a balcony in front. In one corner of the balcony they set up a small kerosene stove. They veiled it from the public gaze by artistic and beautiful draping. Indeed, the aesthetic quality of the picture is by no means the least of its attractions. They wore their old clothes, and went bathing every day. Their food consisted of sea fish, with the ocean brine dripping off them, and of fresh eggs, berries and vegetables supplied by dealers in abundance. They did their own cooking and some of their own washing on the kerosene stove.

They had their books and work with them. They had a hammock or two in the balcony. They swung, they walked, they ate, they read, bathed and rested the summer through, and were happy as birds among the trees. They went back home as brisk and fresh as birds, too.

The Nationalist Party.

Edward Everett Hale has defined the platform of the new political party which was recently born in New England. He says in the beginning that the name "Nationalist" badly expresses the scope of the party, and should not have been adopted. "Friends of Government" would have been a better name, he thinks.

He says that the Nationalists do not believe that the least government is the best. They do not think that government should be let out to contractors or independent commissions. They would have every city and town go into the waterworks and gas lighting business on its own account. He says cities can attend to these matters more cheaply than to hire private corporations to do it.

Mr. Hale cites the early days of New England, when the "town" or township taught all the children and built all the roads and bridges. They also vaccinated all the people for smallpox. Where trading and other interests are in the hands of private companies, these sometimes become so powerful as to defy even the government itself. As a case in point, "government" ought never to have let our telegraph service go into the hands of a private corporation.

In brief, in the judgment of the Nationalists, government itself should undertake to conduct all the enterprises that concern the whole people. Thus they believe the whole people will be delivered from the tyranny and dishonesty from which they suffer at the hands of private corporations. But are government officials themselves always wise, honest and capable?

The Hayes administration was the first one to inaugurate the temperance rule at the White House, and that was owing to the strict teetotal principles of Mrs. Hayes. It was not believed that the rule could be enforced, but the quiet, gracious firmness of Mrs. Hayes carried it through. Even those who laughed at her respected her firmness. Not till after her death was it generally known that she was one of the founders of the Soldiers and Sailors' Orphans' home in Ohio, or that she took such active part in many good works. The soldiers in her husband's command during the war regarded her with little short of veneration, and she was made an honorary member of the Society of the Army of West Virginia. As hostess at the White House few have been more successful or more sincerely liked than she was. Her commanding height, dark hair and eyes and fresh complexion gave her a hand, 60me, striking presence, while her gentle, cordial manners won air hearts.

There is a decided tendency towards better Sunday observance in public quarters. Following the example of various railroad companies and of Postmaster General Wanamaker, the army authorities have issued a Sunday order. It is said the president himself is back of general order No. 50. It is that hereafter the weekly inspection of arms, equipments, clothing, and barracks and bar rack kitchens, shall be made on Saturday, instead of Sunday, as heretofore.

Mrs. Dart's Triplets.

President Cleveland's Prize for the three best babies at the Aurora County Fair in 1887 was given to these triplets, Mollie, Ida, and Ray, children of Mrs. A. K. Dart, Hamburg, N.Y. She writes: "Last August the little ones became very sick, and as I could get no other food that would agree with them, I commenced the use of Lactated Food. It helped them immediately, and as soon as well as ever, and I consider it very largely due to the good well." Lactated Food is the best Food for bottle-fed babies. It keeps them healthy and strong, and is more than medicine when they are sick. Three sizes: 25c., 50c., $1.00. 50c. of these triplets sent free to the mother of any baby born this year.

THURSDAY, NOV. 28, 1889.

JUDGING from a remark which Mayor Pingree of Detroit is reported to have made he does not approve of more than a single term of office. Probably the present condition of things in Detroit municipal affairs makes it good policy for Mr. Pingree to hold just such opinions. All good citizens certainly will not object if the mayor elect adheres rigidly to his expressed opinions, and makes a clean sweep of the present appointees who after the first of January will hold office subject to his will.

MANY people will to day sit down to most bountifully prepared dinners. They will all be thankful for what they are allowed to enjoy. How many of them will remember that even in Ann Arbor, there are scores of poor people whose families will be permitted to enjoy but the most scanty meal. A few of the dainties from your well supplied pantry would never be missed, while the gladness they would bring to some poor man's home would afford you more real pleasure than will all the courses you would otherwise selfishly enjoy.

THE new government of Brazil has made a wise provision in restricting the suffrage to those only who can read and write. There is no excuse why people who cannot read their ballots should be allowed to cast them. Even in Brazil it cannot be said that such restriction is a hardship. By disposing of this usually venal element the new government will have less dangers to contend with. A double benefit will result from such a provision. The illiterate and usually purchasable element will be eliminated from politics, while those who desire to take a part in political affairs and who cannot read will find in this restriction an inducement to learn to read at least.

POST OFFICE MATTERS.

IT has been a surprise to many that the appointment of a new postmaster for this city has been delayed so long. Although many have hoped it might be different, no one has expressed a doubt in our hearing as to the final result. They claim that much of the unpleasant talk and ragged-edge anxiety might have been avoided if our Congressman had announced distinctly at the outset his intentions; that it would be very unreasonable to ask him to do otherwise than he has already or soon will do; that the appointment of anyone not agreeable to the Beals would be a most remarkable case of ingratitude for many and valuable expressions of esteem from interested and powerful friends.

On the other hand, Mr. Allen has asserted that he should favor no one in respect to the appointment, but in case there were two candidates a majority of the Republicans who patronize the office, if he could ascertain that majority, should settle the question.

But this does not seem to have brought entire satisfaction to Mr. Sumner and his friends, who claim they have been unfairly dealt with. Mr. Sumner states that he was in the beginning of the contest informed by Mr. Allen that the evident wishes of the representative Republicans of this city would decide the matter. Then letters in abundance, containing the strongest endorsements were obtained. This was not conclusive. Mr. S. says he was then informed that the matter was to be decided in three days by petition from straight-out Republicans who were patrons of the office. Some lively work was then done to see who could get the most numerous signed petition. The two lists contained about 1,200 names, and Beal's list is said to have had 143 more names than the other; but that under the requirements the lists were subject to revision, which Sumner's friends claim would have left his list the larger. The lists were submitted to a committee consisting of, Evert Scott for Sumner and George Pond for Beal, but at a recent meeting of the principals and their second Congressmen Allen and two or three others, no conclusion was arrived at, and the matter seemed to be left in a more tangled shape than before. As we are informed, Mr. Allen took the lists home from the meeting to be re-copied, and then to be forwarded to Messrs. Pond and Scott to examine and decide upon. Sumner claims that the other side have since been furnished with his list, but that he and Mr. Scott had not been furnished with Beal's list and that he cannot secure a fair and equitable treatment of the lists which should settle the contest.

"What Mr. Sumner thinks is due to himself and friends is that the said lists be submitted to a larger committee of prominent Republicans who know well the politics of the signers, and the question as to who has the better list of representative republicans be left to their decision. This plan would accord with that promised by Mr. Allen and would seem to be the best way to settle this controversy. THB REGISTER is not vitally concerned in the matter, except that it would like to see it settled in a way that would be most satisfactory to a large majority of the republicans who patronize the office, even if a "dark horse" has to be brought in to the field, and an intelligent, business like management of the office may be secured.

WHO PAY THE TAXES?

The Amount of Taxes.—What Money is Raised For.—A List of Heavy Tax-Payers.

The city taxes are due on December 1, and it may be of interest to THE REGISTER readers to know who pay the large taxes in this city. The total amount to be raised is $75,343 83, for various purposes as follows:

City takes, $29,804; delinquent personal, $738 34; opening West Second-st., $352; unpaid tax, $773; sidewalk tax, $1271.01; plus of rolls, $18.19; state tax, $10,752.89; county tax, $3,720.80; rejected taxes, $3.02; poor at county house, $699.19. Besides this, $341 worth of dojos are assessed in the city.

The first ward pays the largest tax and the fifth ward the smallest.

About 2,000 names are on the tax rolls, the larger number of them being taxed only for small amounts. The number who pay over $100 each is small—only 155—but these few pay $37,350.41, nearly one-half the entire amount. The list of those who pay more than $100 each is given as follows:

COMMUNICATION.

Mr DEAR REGISTER—I would say to your correspondent of last week that he need have no exercise of mind about Mrs. Newman and her statements concerning Mormonism. Mrs. N. has lived in Utah many years and can substantiate every statement which she makes. The foulness and disloyalty of the Mormon church are too patent to be covered by the testimony of anybody, whether he be a resident of Utah or elsewhere. S.

Mr. ALVIN WILSEY, Dear Sir:

We purchased our Boardman and Gray Upright Piano of you about six years ago. It has never been tuned, never been out of order. No piano could do better.

Yours truly,

Tom. E. Nickels.

Ann Arbor, Aug. 1st, 1889.

From Prof. Francis L. York, of the Ann Arbor School of Music, and Organist at the Church of Our Father, Detroit, Mich.

ALVIN WILSEY, Esq., Dear Sir:

The Boardman & Gray Upright Piano that I purchased of you five years ago has been in almost constant use, much more so than is usual. It wears like iron, and stands in tune remarkably.

The B. and G. is a very reliable piano.

Ann Arbor, March 7th, '89.

The Boardman & Gray stands unrivaled in the esse&tfcls of a first-class piano.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla a? a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed. Hood's Sarsaparilla also builds up the whole system, and makes you feel renewed in health and strength.

Dumplings with Royal Baking Powder

No dessert is more delicious, wholesome and appetizing than a well-made dumpling, filled with the fruit of the season. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the crust is always rendered light, flaky, tender and digestible. Dumplings made with it, baked or boiled, will be dainty and wholesome, and may be eaten steaming hot with perfect impunity.

RECIPE.—One quart of flour; thoroughly mix with it three teaspoons of Royal flaking Powder and a small teaspoon of salt; rub in a piece of butter or lard the size of an egg, and then add one large potato, grated in the flour; after the butter is well mixed, stir in milk and knead to the consistency of soft biscuit dough; break off pieces of dough large enough to close over four quarters of an apple (or other fruit as desired) without rolling, and lay in an earthen dish (or steamer) and steam until the fruit is tender. Bake if preferred.

In all receipts calling for cream of tartar and soda, substitute Royal Baking Powder. Less trouble, never fails, makes more appetizing and wholesome food and is more economical. Royal Baking Powder is specially made for use in the preparation of the finest and most delicate cookery.

PANELED RECEPTION ROOM.

How to Furnish an Apartment Tastefully and Quietly.

A recent number of the Boston Budget gave a very helpful description of a quiet artistic apartment under the title of a "Paneled Reception Room." Some of the cuts and the more essential portion of the letter press are here reproduced:

THE ROOM.

The floor is covered with a carpet of a deep, rich, orange red, in a plain tone. Over this Oriental rug of many dull, soft colors are strewn in great profusion. These afford a pleasing variety and richness of coloring. The walls are paneled to the height of about five feet. They are of dark, polished mahogany, and are enriched by heavy, plain moldings. Above this the mural decoration consists of a wall paper in an inconspicuous design of a conventional whirlin dark green and deep yellow tones.

The doors opening from this room are heavily paneled, with bronze hinges of good workmanship. The fireplace is an imposing feature. It is broad, low and arched, and it is surrounded by unglazed tiles of a deep, warm red. Above these runs a band of rich carvings in a renaissance scroll pattern. On each side of the fireplace panels of different sizes are arranged, while above this carved band a row of small panels is set. The broad, polished shelf overhangs these panels, and has on either side two columns of classic proportions. These in turn hold the broad cornice, which is further supported by rows of paneling on the sides and across the top. About half way between the shelf and cornice two small shelves are inserted between the columns. The tiles of the hearth are of a dark olive gray, highly polished.

For a room like the one shown in the illustration, deep orange red hangings should be used, with sash curtains of white, with pale yellow figures. If you have not a broad ledge to your window, you may substitute something equally pretty and appropriate in the way of a long box, fitting the curve of the window and handsomely upholstered with a blue to match the blue of the portiere. You may object to the blue and red as colors unmanageable in point of harmony, but you need make no mistakes if you study carefully the many examples referred by the Japanese in their ceramic decorations.

In the corner by the fireplace a tall vase will make an effective spot of color. The cloisonne jar is a very beautiful specimen of this branch of Japanese industry. This perhaps is of Chinese manufacture, however, and as it may be of some little interest for us to decide from whose hands it originally came, let us examine it closely. It is of a pale blue at the top, with a spray of conventionally treated flowers, in light greens and pinks, on the side. The surface is broken unevenly into spots, the background of which is in some instances white, again of the pale blue, and at the very base of a deep, rich blue, covered by an all over design. The wire which traces the pattern is about one-sixth of an inch in width, which alone would show it to be, after all, the product of Chinese labor. The Japanese vases are almost invariably of a rich, dark green, Indian red and deep blue. The patterns are arrangements of geometrical forms irregularly disposed upon the surface, while the wire shows as a tiny line.

There is one thing which you owe to society, and to feminine society particularly, and that is a clock in your reception room. Every woman wishes, of course, to make her ceremonious call exactly ten minutes in duration. If she is clever, and has taken advantage of long experience, she will be able so to arrange the topics of conversation that they will come to the proper climax just as the allotted time is expiring. To the woman, however, who is not endowed with this gift, for it certainly is a talent, a clock is an absolute boon. It should be so attractive and lovely in appearance that when her eyes fall upon it she will think as much of its beauty as of its utility. To choose a clock is indeed a difficult matter, they are to be found in such variety of style and material.

There are bronze clocks, supporting a tierce figure or group; there are clocks all gilt and clocks all porcelain, and there are the light onyx ones, made to represent Grecian basilicas, with gilt columns and ornaments. The one shown is both elegant and dainty. The face is of gilt, with the figures in white enamel and with black and gold hands. This is framed in Luneville porcelain with a white ground, on which are strewn garlands and wreaths of flowers in light and varied chintz colors.

Every room which contains a fireplace should also hold a screen. This may be of wood to match the wood work of the room, or of almost any material which the fancy may suggest. It may be tall and folding or small and swinging. The one shown in the sketch has a light gilt frame work with a fairy like design of a wreath and leaves across the top. In this frame is stretched a piece of heavy silk of a deep yellow shade, on which is worked a design in leaves and scrolls. In the center of this pattern the ground work is of a light golden brown, shot with light red.

INTERIOR DECORATION.

An Example For Coimuedition from 117th Avenue, New York.

The room in a Fifth Avenue house, here illustrated by a cut from The Art Amateur, is a good example of a rich and aristocratic interior. The drawing gives little more than what is essential—the outlines of things, their arrangement, with occasionally an indication of their material or their ornamentation.

Note, in the first place, that the room, though well furnished, does not look crowded, it is not a very big room, yet it has an air of spaciousness, desirable about all things in city interiors. This is gained principally by leaving the wall surfaces, for the most part, almost plain, the patterning being so small and slight that the artist has found it sufficient to hint at its existence by the use of a little spatter work. Then the long lines of cornice and dado are not broken on the sides that are shown save by the mantel and the door. The top of the mirror over the mantel (and the mantel shelf, too) runs parallel with these lines. It would be better if the top of the door casing did so also, but the disturbing presence of the arch is counteracted to a degree by the transom of Japanese lattice work surmounted by stained glass which is thrown across it.

A FIFTH AVENUE INTERIOR.

This arch apart, nothing can be more uncompromising than the use made of straight lines and right angles in this room; not even the cupboards that jut out from the mantelpiece at either side have a curve in them. The paneling is square; the ceiling is divided off into straight lined compartments, and there does not seem to be the least element of weakness, the arch excepted, in the whole construction. This, it is hardly necessary to point out, not only preserves an air of dignity and simplicity to the apartment, but it actually helps to give a home like appearance by bringing out the numerous curved lines of the furniture and the bric-a-brac. To introduce curves at all freely in the architecture of the room would be to take away from the attractiveness of the chairs and sofa and tables, and to make the eye less inclined to dwell on the graceful shapes of the porcelains and bits of Venetian glass on the mantel shelves.

Let us attempt, with such help as the artist has given us, to create a color scheme for the room, though it will probably be in part unlike the reality. Let the frame of our old beveled mirror be either in gilt wood or in stamped or hammered brass, and the mantel in carved cedar or other reddish wood, with squares of warm toned stamped leather in its panels. The small tiles next the opening of the fireplace will be in various tones of dark green and blue. Those underneath will be in chocolate color, or a warmer and lighter buff. The rug may contain much dark blue, but deep red should predominate. The walls must be very delicately patterned in two or three shades of warm brown and gold. The cornice may be in cream and gold, and a few lightly stenciled ornaments in gold may deck the ceiling.

SECOND STORY.

Estimated cost of building, $1,800.—Artistic Homes, published by National Building Plan Association, Detroit, Mich.

FOR LESS THAN $3,000.

One of I. H. Gibson's Plan* for Pleasant House* at Moderate Cost.

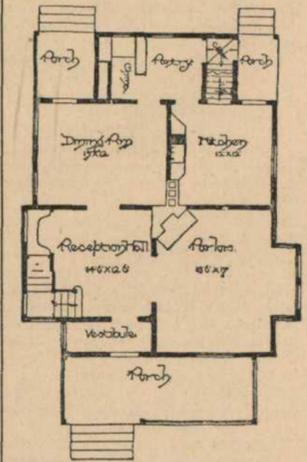

"If a man had plenty of money there would be little trouble in building a good house." This is a statement which sounds as though it were true. It is not. The one who builds the more expensive house labors under more difficulties than the one who has only a moderate sum of money to invest.

VIEW.

In the plan here given we have, as far as it goes, everything that could be wanted in a home. There is the front porch and the four down stairs rooms. In a vestibule where one may deposit wraps, umbrella, overshoes, it makes the hall so named a room; the wraps, etc., are not in it. The china closet and kitchen are as complete in a labor saving way as could be expected in the most expensive house. In truth, anything added would tend to labor making rather than labor saving. There are double sliding doors connecting the kitchen and dining room. The arrangement of tables, sinks and drain board along the kitchen wall makes a complete arrangement for washing, draining and wiping the dishes. The washing process begins at one end and ends at the other next the china closet. The table and sink are convenient to the stove.

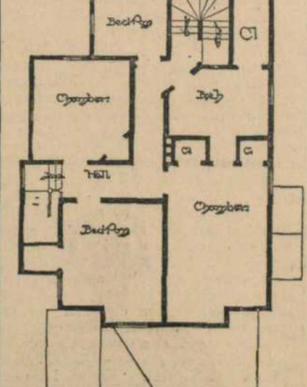

There can be a grate in the dining room, reception hall and parlor, if so desired. In this instance only one is shown. There is a front and a rear stairway. The servant's room is detached from the front part of the house. There are three other bedrooms and the bathroom. There could be two more in the attic if it were desired. They would be as large and as square as the others. A bathroom properly fitted up saves more work than any other arrangement at a house. The necessity for carrying water up stairs and slops down is entirely done away with. The convenience of having hot and cold water near at hand, aside from the other conveniences, which the plumbing apparatus of the bathroom and kitchen afford, are hardly to be estimated from a housekeeping standpoint. An excess of plumbing fixtures distributed all over a house, however, makes rather than saves work. It is a nice thing to have a washstand down stairs. In this plan it might be arranged under the stairway in front, and shut out from the room by a door. There are many variations on this same arrangement which, according to individual taste, may bring about results more or less satisfactory. The rooms may be made larger, the length of the dining room may extend in another direction, and if sufficiently long, may make room above for a bathroom at one end and a bedroom at the other, and in this way give five bedrooms on the second floor. This house has been built where the stairway started up a little farther towards the rear of the reception hall, and in that way gave a view to the front. To those interested, however, all these changes will suggest themselves.

As capital becomes more abundant the means for its profitable investment develops greater ingenuity. This has led to the development of many schemes by which houses may be purchased on monthly or weekly payment plans, and at a cost little in excess of rent. At this time any one who lives in a town of moderate size, where money may be invested with ordinary safety, the payment of rent must be a matter of choice or ignorance rather than necessity. Building associations are much more liberal in plan than they were a year or so ago, and correspondingly more popular. From the fact that there is no first class securities which will pay the same large, legitimate returns as building associations, this plan of sale of property is being largely adopted by capitalists and business men all over the country.

The schedule herewith attached indicates the cost of this house in a detailed way:

Building, first floor finish hard wood, second floor finish pine	$2,000
Privy vaults	80
Cisterns, connections and pump	60
Walks	40
Illuminating gas pipe	50
Plumbing, cellar sink, kitchen sink, bath tub, water closet, wash stand, stationary street washer, city water	235
Gas fixtures	90
Staircases and grates	800
Furnace	200
Total	$3,820

The monthly inspection and hop will be given by Co. A next Monday evening.

Miss Susan B. Anthony will speak at the Unitarian church next Sunday evening.

Thanksgiving matinee will be given at Nickels' hall, from three to five Thursday afternoon.

Rev. J. M. Gelson will address the temperance meeting at Cropsey's hall next Sunday afternoon.

Judge Kinne has issued an order calling the jury for the next term of court to be on hand on Dec 9.

Miss Mary F. Miley has a new "ad." in this issue calling attention to her fine goods for holiday presents.

Dr Studley will continue his lectures on "Patriarchal Times" next Sunday evening at the Methodist church.

The German Kaimers' Insurance Company of this county held a meeting Monday for the purpose of reorganizing.

The Chequeamons will furnish the music for a reception to be given by the Ypsilanti light guard to-morrow evening.

Adolph Pinbinder, one of the pupils of the third ward school, died Saturday from the effects of a kick in the stomach.

Up to date 2,858 sparrows have been killed and reported to County Clerk Hewlett. They cost the county $85.77 but they are worth it.

Union Thanksgiving services will be held at the Presbyterian church tomorrow morning at 10:30. Rev. Dr. Studley will occupy the pulpit.

Bishop Foster occupied the pulpit of the M. E. church Sunday evening. His subject was "Man." A large congregation listened to the discourse.

Millman & McNally were arrested Monday on a charge of keeping their saloon open on Sunday, Oct. 6. They were bound over to the circuit for trial.

Elmer Mills, Geo. M. Henion and D. Cramer took an inventory and appraisal of the estate of David Depue yesterday, which footed up about $7,000.

Rev. Henry Tetlock, the new rector at St. Andrew's church, will arrive in the city next Saturday afternoon, and will preach the first sermon next Sunday morning.

Bishop Davies will preach a Thanksgiving sermon at St. Andrew's church tomorrow morning. His next visitation to this parish will be on the third Sunday in December.

In the course of evening addresses at the Congregational church on "The temptations of our Lord," the pastor will speak next Sunday evening on "The second temptation of Jesus."

The fifth ward Sunday School will give a fair at the chapel on Wall-st Friday evening. Fancy articles will be placed on sale, and a short programme will be rendered by the children.

When Congressman Allen left for Washington yesterday he carried with him a handsome gold-headed cane, which was presented to him by Carpenter Post, G. A. R. of Ypsilanti last week.

Next Monday evening the Unity Club programme will consist of a paper, "A Glimpse of Thoreau," and a shadow pantomime entitled, "Villikins and his Dinah." The meeting promises to be excellent.

* Those who say that the fire department, as it now is, is too expensive a luxury, should note the way the department is handled, the time employed in going to a fire and the work done after the fire is reached. The department should be kept intact.

Since the city government was organized in 1851, Ann Arbor has been governed by 21 different mayors. Of this number 13 are still living in the city. Philip Bach, who filled the office in 1858-59 being the earliest of our mayors who still lives here.

Rev. J. T. Sunderland will preach next Sunday morning on the question, "Is Unitarianism a religion to die by?" as well as to live by? The evening lecture on "The Religions of India" will be postponed one week, on account of Miss Anthony's occupancy of the pulpit.

Dr. Frothingham will close his office in this city on Jan. 1 and confine his attention to his Detroit practice. Dr. Weir, who has had charge of Dr. Frothingham's office in this city since last summer, has not decided upon his future plans but will probably locate in New York.

The annual meeting of the Michigan State Sunday School Association will convene at Grand Rapids, December 3, 4 and 5. Leading Sunday school workers from without as well as in the state are expected to take part in its deliberations. Every Sunday school in the state is invited to send delegates and every church its pastor.

The case of the Cornwell Mfg Co. vs. John M. Swift et al, was taken up by Judge Kinne Monday morning. The company is represented by Charles R. Whitman and the defendants by J. F. Lawrence and Sawyer & Knowlton. The case has created considerable interest, and as there is a large amount of money involved it is being fought very hard and is likely to occupy the attention of the court for two or three weeks. If the injunction asked for is granted, the defendant, claim that their property will be rendered of no value for its present use.

Neither Sheriff Dwyer nor the "boarders" at the county jail will go hungry tomorrow, if the following from the Dexter Leader is true: "One of the finest turkeys we have seen this year was exhibited at Gregory & Co's poultry house last week. It weighed, dressed, 25 pounds. The "bird" was presented by H. C. Gregory to Sheriff Dwyer."

The Adelphi Literary Society will give a special vacation program Saturday evening, Nov. 30 at eight o'clock, consisting of music only, as follows: Song, Miss Villoughby; flute, L. Z. Calkin; accompanist, E. M. Doughty; piano solo, Miss Davis; batjo and guitar, A. Tyrroler and F. J. Peck; song, F. J. Peck. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Timothy E. Keating of E. Ann-st died Saturday noon of hemorrhage of the stomach. Mr. Keating was an old resident of the city, having resided here since 1842. He was twice a member of the board of aldermen and always took an active part in the affairs of our city. He was 52 years of age and leaves a wife but no children. He was respected by all who knew him.

While Mrs. J. T. Jacobs was returning one evening last week from an errand of mercy at the hospital, she stepped into the cellar way in the rear of the mill building and received several bad bruises. Had it not been for an umbrella which broke the fall (and also the umbrella) it would have resulted very seriously. A railing should be placed around this opening, and more light is needed on the campus.

A "prominent" business man in company with several friends, all more or less under the influence of liquor, made "Rome howl" and disgraced the streets of our city by their actions Friday evening, no notice being taken of their doings by the authorities. Had it been a party of town boys or countrymen making half as much disturbance, a night in jail and a fine in the morning would have been the sure result.

There will be three sizes of postal cards when all the contracts are taken up—one a fine delicate card for ladies' use, much smaller than those now in circulation and of a much finer quality. Finely calendered paper will be substituted for the old buff blotting paper. An intermediate card of the same size as the one now in use will be retained, and a new and larger card will be introduced that can be used for business purposes.

Congressman Allen was in the city for a short time Friday. He had nothing new to offer on the postmaster question, but said that the die was cast, he had done his best to satisfy his constituents, and that Ann Arbor would have a new postmaster in the near future, but the appointment would not be made before Congress convened. Capt. Allen left for Washington Tuesday, and ere long the change in this city will be made.

During the play at the opera house Monday evening, with the house crowded from pit to dome, a disturbance took place at the door. Some reckless individual yelled "fire" and a panic ensued, nearly everyone in the house starting for the door, and several persons being pretty badly shaken up. Several ladies fainted, but beyond a few bruises and sprains no harm was done. What might have been the result had not the house officials acted promptly can be imagined.

The people of Detroit interested in the successful floral exhibit last year for the benefit of Detroit charities, are busy at work preparing to make the exhibit to be given next April a still greater success. The musical feature alone will require the organization of a chorus of 100 voices, and its art department will be of the dimensions of a notable art exhibition. The chief interest, however, will center in the floral display, and in the 25 floral booths to be conducted by the ladies of the various charities.

Following the example of Ann Arbor, our Greek city down the river is agitating the question of sewerage, and the Sentinel places the total cost at $25,000 for the system. But this is the way they have of doing business there—putting the estimates of any public enterprise ridiculously low and the actual cost painfully high. At least that is the experience the city has had with waterworks and electric lights. Ann Arbor's estimate for sewerage in this city, situated very similar to Ypsilanti, is from $100,000 to $150,000.

The Ypsilantian this week prints extracts from a letter written by William Watts, father of J. C. and B. F. Watts of this city, to his parents in England, shortly after his arrival at Ypsilanti in 1836. The letter contains much of interest to the early pioneers of that city. Referring to B. F. Watts, who was born about the time that it was written, the letter says: "We have such a sweet little boy and we are going to call him Benjamin," a phrase which the "sweet little boy's" friends mention to him now on every occasion, much to his annoyance.

Susan B. Anthony is to deliver a lecture at the new High School hall, Saturday evening at eight o'clock, for the benefit of the Ladies' Library Association. The admission fee will be 25 cents and the large hall should be crowded to hear this celebrated woman. Probably no woman living has fought so hard and accomplished so much for her sex as has Miss Anthony, this fight having commenced over 35 years ago in the teachers' convention in New York state, where she insisted upon addressing the convention, an unheard of procedure in those days.

One of our practical jokers was caught in his own trap Friday night, and received a scare which nearly took his breath away. Pretending that the letter was from a girl, he sent a note to his chum wishing to meet him that evening. The engagement was made and both parties were on hand at the appointed time, the joker dressed as a young lady and playing his part well. They started for a stroll about the city and were met by Marshal Walsh and Deputy Brenner, both of whom were aware of the joke that the young fellow was playing. The officers eyed the couple for a minute and then told them that they would have to go to jail, charging them with being disorderly characters. The boys explained, entreated and begged but the officers were unmoved for some time. Upon the solemn promise of the "joker" to desist from such tricks in future, the boys were given permission to go home, and went gladly too.

ON THE CAMPUS.

The junior pharisees are now working on their "unknowns."

Neither the Argonaut or Chronicle will be issued this week.

The University closed yesterday for the Thanksgiving vacation.

There are 24 Japanese students attending the University at present.

The first inter-fraternity hop will be given shortly before Christmas.

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity entertained a party of friends Friday night.

"Will the rugby eleven win the game at Chicago to-day?" is the great question.

Wicks, Sigma Phi, has been elected chairman of the sophomore hop committee.

A fruit and flower procession has been organized among the young ladies of the University.

The Literary Adelphi will give a special musical programme this week, on Saturday evening.

Takansuke Ireya, a judge of some distinction in Japan, is the latest entry in the law department.

Rabbi Grossman of Detroit will furnish a paper to be read at the December meeting of the Philosophical Club.

The concert given by the Detroit Philharmonic Club last Thursday evening was attended by a large audience.

The meetings held by S. M. Sayford last week were of great interest, but the bad weather interfered with the attendance.

S. M. Sayford of Amherst, known as the "College Evangelist" lectured to the students of the Christian Association Sunday morning.

A copy of the address by Chancellor W. H. Payne at the opening of the 15th session of the Peabody Normal College has been received.

The regents met last Friday, considered some matters relative to the hospital in executive session, made a few minor appointments and then adjourned.

Dr. Hodge has been appointed assistant to the chairs of theory and practice and surgery in the homoeopathic college and will begin work when college opens again.

The juniors will wear the silk-tile as a class hat. The committee has awarded the contract for furnishing them to the Two Sams and the "swing-out" will occur soon after vacation.

The resident members of the Psi Upsilon fraternity at Detroit tendered Bishop Davies, a member of the fraternity, a reception last Thursday evening. J. M. Wheeler of this city was one of the out-of-town members who were present.

The senior class held an election Saturday morning, which resulted in a complete victory for the independents. W. J. Baldwin was elected president; Miss Cator, vice-president; H. B. Dewey, orator. A number of the fraternity men withdrew from the meeting and the election of the remaining officers was postponed.

At the meeting of the Webster Society to be held Wednesday, December 4th, the following programme will be offered: Declaration, W. H. Wadley; essay, W. E. Bailey; oration, W. H. Park; debate—"Resolved, That woman is out of her place in the professions," aff. J. W. Goodwin and C. B. Paolicek; neg., A. J. Smith and R. E. Dean.

The University rugby team left this morning for Chicago where a game will be played Thursday. The Buffalo game was a good lesson to this; boys and the team has improved wonderfully during the past week. The personnel of the team for the game will probably be as follows, several old players being placed at the weak points: Boutwell, center; Harless and Trainor, guards; Prettyman and Malley, tackles; Gliddon and Straight, ends; Abbot, quarter-back; MacPherran and Duffy, half-backs; Vanlnwagen, full-back. The team is the strongest that can be made up here and if they cannot carry off the pennant for the "Yellow and Blue," it will be useless for others to try.

Susan B. Anthony.

As we are to have the privilege of listening to this distinguished lady on Saturday evening, the following incident which occurred at St. Louis will be interesting: The delegates of the different states, through Mrs. May Wright Sewell, founder and director of the Girls' Classical School of Indianapolis, presented Miss Anthony with flowers. She referred in the most happy way to Miss Anthony's untiring devotion to all the unpopular reforms through years of pitiless persecution, and thanked her in behalf of the young womanhood of the nation, that their path had been made smoother by her brave life. Miss Anthony was so overcome with the delicate compliments and the fragrant flowers at her feet, that for a few moments she could not express her appreciation of the unexpected acknowledgement of what all American women owe her. As she stood before that hushed audience, her silence was more eloquent than words, for her emotion was shared by all. With an effort she at last said: "Friends I have no words to express my gratitude for this marked attention. I have so long been the target for criticism and ridicule, and I am so unused to praise, that I stand before you surprised and daunted. If anyone had come to this platform and abused all womankind, called me hard names, ridiculed our arguments or denied the justice of our demands, I could with readiness and confidence have rushed to the defence; but I cannot make any appropriate reply for this offering of eloquent words and flowers, and I shall not attempt it."

Look Here, Citizens or Ann Arbor.

H. J. Brown has just secured the sale of the greatest medicinal discovery of the age, the Dr. R. MacFariand's Indian Pill, a positive cure for rheumatism, sciatic or chronic, inflammatory, sick and nervous headache and stomach disorders.

It positively cures the above complaints when used according to directions. We only ask a trial of one box and if they fail to benefit you, then your money will be refunded. Remember we say refunded. This is a highly concentrated preparation in pill form, entirely free from all deleterious ingredients, a combined alterative and laxative and blood purifying remedy; and those who are afflicted will do well to try this greatest of all discoveries. Be sure and get the genuine, see trade mark design on each box, a pink wrapper and yellow telescope box. Fifty pills in each box, fifty days treatment for one dollar. Sold in Ann Arbor only by H. J. Brown.

Cantion.

Reports having reached us that a young man calling himself Morey and purporting to be in our employ is attempting to repair organs about the country, and having been called upon to correct the damage done by him in such attempts, we take this method of informing our friends that no person by the name of Morey is employed by us or known to us. And that no one is authorized to make repairs for us excepting such as may be sent, in response to orders left at factory or store, when such work can be guaranteed and safety secured from impostors and tramps. A FEW WORDS

FROM

Santa Claus.

Don't expect me to do it all this year. I'm the same old Santa Claus, but there are more people expecting than I can attend to. So everybody ought to make it their duty to help me as much as they can. I have looked over the markets of Washtenaw County, and find the largest assortment of useful presents at

Koch & Henne's

Their store is just filled with beautiful things of the latest designs which they have just received especially for the Holidays. As I have said before, I am the same old Santa Claus. I have been about the country for a good many years but I never saw a lot of fine, useful goods, appropriate sold so cheap as those exhibited at KOCH & HENNE'S.

I will mention a few articles which took my fancy particularly: Their large line of

are really fine. Most of them are imported from Germany. They have a large, fine assortment of Fancy Chairs, and

ROCKERS

Rattan Chairs, Easels, Music Racks, Fancy Tables and Stands, Carpet Sweepers, Lace and Heavy Curtains and many other articles too numerous to mention. Don't forget their for among their fine selection of Art Squares, Fugs, Mats, etc., you will find presents that will always be appreciated. In short, KOCH & HENNE will please you at astonishingly low prices. I am yours truly,
