CEDAR BEND AVENUE.

ANN ARBOR'S BEAUTIFUL DRIVE,
AND ADJACENT SCENERY.

A History and Description of the "Boulevard"—The Proposed Park and Belt Road.

For years Cedar Bend and the adjacent hills have been a favorite strolling-ground. Scores of happy children, sighing lovers and even middle-aged men and women have gone wild over the beauty of the spot, and many a pale student has gained a needed rest, reclining in the shady nooks in which the place abounds. Prof. Moses Coit Tyler and the late Dr. Frieze, in the old days, were wont to stroll over the hills, day after day, and they never wearied of the beautiful and diversified scenery. The latter used frequently to remark that the country around Cedar Bend reminded him of that near Tubingen, in Germany, where he spent some of his early student days.

By degrees, residents of this city began to wonder, more and more, why a beautiful drive had not long ago been built on the brow of the hills, and, about two years ago, agitation began with that end in view. A number of prominent citizens took the matter in hand, and pushed it finally to a successful completion. The owners of the surrounding land were approached and were induced to donate a right of way, and the city could not very well refuse the gift. G. W. Weeks gave half of the right of way for about ten rods, while S. D. Lennon and C. R. Gardner gave almost 150 rods apiece. The drive is about seven-eights of a mile long and fifty feet wide. Mr. E. Ware, at that time alderman from the fifth ward, did much in carrying the project through the city council, and he deserves a great deal of credit. Strange to say, the project met with strong opposition, at first, but we will venture to state that now very few people would be willing to part with the "boulevard."

It is utterly impossible, by a verbal description, to convey an adequate idea of the "boulevard" and surrounding scenery. There is hardly a foot of ground which does not show some peculiar beauty of its own. Standing at the summit of the long hill on Broadway, the road runs straight for about ten rods. Then it turns sharply to the left and passes the Sugar Loaf, christened by the children, "Lennon's Mountain." A little beyond, it passes a small bridge, which spans a pretty ravine watered by a spring. Here the road takes another turn and soon loses itself in a shady forest. A fountain, supplied with cool spring water, stands by the roadside. Gradually the drive leaves the woods and strikes open ground again, revealing a beautiful view of Ann Arbor. Slowly descending, it passes the historic Cedar Bend and winds in a corkscrew curve down the steep hill, till it finally meets the old river road. The drive, at its highest point, is nearly 175 feet above the river, which placidly circles around the horseshoe bend far below. Enclosed by the river, lies a flat field, which at this time of the year, is golden with the ripening grain, and on the hills opposite, sits Ann Arbor, as if spread out on a vast amphitheatre. The observatory, on the left, the University and Methodist church, in the middle, and the court house, on the right, stand out prominently. A gentleman, who lives near the "boulevard," was walking on the road, the other day, and pointing to the University said: "That's where they co-educate, and here's where they co-amble." He thought that the first "co" naturally leads to the other.

Between the boulevard and the river, on the hill-slope, lies a thick forest of underbrush and trees. White and yellow oaks, cedars, hickory trees, huckleberry bushes, sumac and willow-trees, all grow in profusion. In the early spring, many wild flowers are plucked by young and old botanists, and masses and ferns are occasionally found. Almost every day, picnic parties find their way to these shady nooks, which nature seems to have designed exclusively for pleasure-grounds. Equally inviting places are found back of the road. In one place there is a deep amphitheatre, fully 75 feet wide, and almost perfectly formed. The hills, for the most part, descend precipitously down to the river and present a very rugged appearance. The river itself is exceedingly picturesque, and the view would not be perfect without it.

THE PARK PROJECT.

Several public-spirited citizens have recently agitated the project of establishing a park on the lands adjoining the "boulevard." Mr. Lennon owns about eighteen acres of ground, lying between the drive and the river, and would be willing to part with it on very reasonable terms.

He has made the following proposition. He will dispose of his eighteen acres for $2,500, reserving to himself the acre of ground on which "Sugar Loaf" stands. He will guarantee to the park authorities, free of cost, the use of all surplus water from the springs northeast of the drive, and will also grant the privilege of building a reservoir above the bridge. The ten acres adjoining the eastern portion of the avenue belongs to Mr. Gardner, and this too should enter into the park. Within the horseshoe bend of the river, lies the farm-property of J. F. Lawrence. A portion of this, at least, should be purchased. Then, along the west bank of the Huron, there is a narrow strip of land, about four rods wide, owned by Geo. Rhodes, which would furnish a fine site for a drive. Mr. Rhodes also owns the beautiful island in the river, which is a favorite resort with picnickers. All this property could be purchased for $600 or $700, and is well worth that sum. Altogether, it is probable enough land for a large park could be bought for $6,000, or even less.

THE HOMEOPATHIC SCHOOL.

The Homeopathic department of Michigan University has always held a high rank among medical schools. It was among the first to agitate the question of imposing higher and specific requirements (including, in addition to the usual requirements, Latin, physics, biology, chemistry, botany and physiology) upon candidates for admission to homeopathic schools and of extending the course of study from two to three years. At a recent meeting of the American Institute of Homeopathy, the inter-collegiate committee, upon which the Michigan school was represented, recommended that, on or after the fall of 1892, the term of study required in all colleges belonging to the institute should be four years, of which three years should be spent in a medical school. The recommendation was adopted by the institute, and the faculty of the Michigan school expect to extend the course of study as soon as it is practicable, to meet the new requirement.

DR. VAUGHAN'S NEW DISCOVERY.

Said to Have Discovered the Poison which Produces Cholera Infantum and Diphtheria—What the Doctors Say.

When college is in session, Prof. V. C. Vaughan may be found at the hygienic laboratory, almost every afternoon, hard at work with some mysterious little things which he calls "germs." As a result of this study, he has already made a number of useful discoveries, which have won considerable fame for the doctor. His latest work has been the analysis of the poison which constitutes the essence of cholera infantum and diphtheria, and a recent number of the Philadelphia Record has a long article on the subject, from which the following extracts are taken:

Dr. Vaughan alleges that these diseases are caused by albuminous poisons, which he has discovered. Full well acquainted with the character of this deadly substance, he hopes to discover an antidote, which may be introduced into the system as vaccine in small-pox cases, and which will act similarly in fortifying the system against cholera and diphtheria. The poison is generated by germs in the alimentary canal, just as ferment is generated when yeast is put in dough. Heat is necessary for the fermentation, and that is why the diseases are more prevalent in hot weather than in cold. Dr. Vaughan took the germs, with which he experimented, from the dead bodies of persons who died of the diseases, and by feeding them on sterilized meat he succeeded in producing the genuine poison in large quantities.

Dr. William H. Ford, of Philadelphia, president of the board of health, said yesterday: "Dr. Vaughan's discovery is a theory. It will be tested by other experts before it will be accepted. The fact that such poisons exist in the alimentary canal of persons suffering with the disease is not new. The only new thing is that Dr. Vaughan has found this poison and separated it from the germ which produced it. The tendency of medical thought is to ascribe cholera infantum to poisonous germs. Some doctors gave antiseptics to kill the germ, but this treatment is usually accompanied with the death of the patient. If an antidote for the poison can be discovered—that is, something that will not harm the patient, and will destroy the poison—then Dr. Vaughan will have conferred a lasting boon upon humanity. But it is not an easy thing to do, for what will kill a germ or poison in a test-tube will not do it always in the body, for it hasn't the same opportunity to act."

Prof. Roberts Bartholow, of the Jefferson Medical College, was very outspoken in his praise of Dr. Vaughan and his latest discovery. He said: "This is altogether new; we never knew anything about it before, although the existence of the germ was known. Dr. Vaughan has just found the poison which produces typhoid fever and cholera infantum. * * * This discovery will have a great effect upon medical science and practice, and it will undoubtedly be the means of saving thousands of human lives every year. I regard it as one of the most important gifts to the world since Jenner discovered the use of vaccination to prevent smallpox. I don't think he will be long in finding an antidote for the poison which he has eliminated, and these fearfully devastating summer weeks will be robbed of their terror. Typhoid fever and cholera infantum can then be prevented by inoculation. The germs will get into the body just as they do now, but the poison generated by them will leave no effect upon the system."

Said another gentleman, probably the ablest bacteriologist in Pennsylvania, and a physician who is every day making practical tests with germs, their growth and products, but who desired his name withheld: "An Italian physician has been working on the same line as Dr. Vaughan, and trying to discover the same thing. The American has come out ahead. It is much harder to kill a germ than a poison. For a long time, it was supposed that the growth of germs caused death, but now we know that the poison, which is the outgrowth of the germ, is the fatal thing. I think it is slightly improbable that Dr. Vaughan can discover an antidote for the poison."

CORNWELL-SWIFT AGAIN.

Christian Mack, Daniel Hiscock and Frederick Schmid have filed a bill of foreclosure and injunction against the Swift estate and the Cornwell Manufacturing Company. The document alleges that, about May 1, 1883, the defendants, Swift and others, mortgaged their property, known as the Sinclair mill, to secure a note of $29,000 held by the plaintiffs. This money, with interest accruing, was to be paid in yearly installments, until the whole amount was returned. It appears, however, that only a small part of this note has ever been paid, and the plaintiffs assert that there is now due upon it $33,210.80. The mill property, it is held, is now worth less than $25,000, and is therefore insufficient to satisfy the claims against it. The plaintiffs assert that the value of the mill has been considerably lessened by the building of the Cornwell dam up the river.

It will be remembered that the Swift estate, last spring, gained a judgment in the circuit court, against the Cornwell Manufacturing Company, of $15,500. Cornwell immediately appealed the case and the matter is now pending in the supreme court. Messrs. Mack, Schmid and Hiscock claim that they are justly entitled to a part of this judgment, inasmuch as the injury done by the building of the Cornwell dam was really an injury done to the mortgagees. The case is an unusually important one, and its progress will be watched with great interest.

Horse Stolen.

Walter J. Scott has filed a complaint against John B. Atkinson for stealing a horse and buggy at Ypsilanti. The property was found at Alma, and is estimated to be worth $125. Atkinson was arrested, on Tuesday, and, in default of bail, sent to the county jail to await examination. The defendant tells the following story: He claims to have bought a horse and cart and to have traded them, at Van Nuuan, for the property of Scott. At another place he traded the buggy for a cow and calf, and still further north, exchanged the horse and harness for some oxen and a hog. The case will come up before Justice Pond to-morrow.

His sons, who also spent the day at the lake and returned later in the evening, found his body by the roadside.—Chelsea Herald.

The editor of the Milan Leader has turned dramatist. Read the following: "Act I. Some man from over south bought a keg of beer here Thursday night and put it into his vehicle; when he got ready to go home the keg, beer, bunghole and all had mysteriously disappeared, and no trace of the malt stuff could be found. Act II. 'Twas on the bridge at midnight. The murky waters of the Saline flowed silently and gently along its muddy bed, and beer went gurgling joyously and boisterously down a score of thirsty throats. Curtain." You ought to have written an Act III, Mr. Editor, the ending of which should be somewhat tragic.

Mrs. Chester Higley, of Milan, was the heroine of a thrilling incident, which occurred a few days ago. The Leader tells the story as follows: Mr. Higley had been to Detroit that day and she was driving to the depot to meet him. On River-st Mr. Harris, the owner of the herd of western horses here, got into the carriage with Mrs. Higley, to ride to the depot, which proved to be a very fortunate thing. Just at this instant the big drove of horses came down the street at a fast trot, going to the river, surrounding the horses and carriage. The whole aggregation then went pell-mell down the street, across the bridge, the carriage swaying from side to side, and continued in this dangerous manner until they reached Dan Case's place, over a half a mile from the starting point. In the mele Mr. Harris took the reins and managed the affair in so skillful a manner that no one was hurt or anything damaged.

LITERARY NOTES.

Perhaps the most striking feature of the July "Century" is the long-expedited debate on "The Single Tax," by Edward Atkinson and Henry George. Another article that marks this number of The Century is the beginning of The Century's Prison Series, the first paper being a thrilling account of the life of "A Yankee in Anderson," by Dr. T. H. Mann, accompanied by a plan and pictures made from rare photographs. The first of two papers on "Provence" describes and brilliantly illustrates an unhaunted region of the Old World. Dr. Edward Eggleston, in an illustrated article, tells the story of "Nathaniel Bacon, the Patriot of 1676." John Burroughs, who has not lately appeared as often as usual in the magazine, prints a characteristic cut-of-door paper, entitled "A Taste of Kentucky Blue-Grass." Joseph Jefferson describes his early experiences in Peru and Panama; he also tells how he revived the play of "Rip Van Winkle," in London. Mrs. Amelia Gere Mason describes the "Women of the French Salons of the 18th Century." The fiction of the number consists of the second part of the anonymous "Anglomanias"; the ninth part of Mrs. Barr's "Olivia"; a story, "The Reign of Reason," by Viola Roseboro; and a complete novelette, "Little Venice." The editorial Topics are: "Our Lack of Conscience as a Means of Success," "New York's Reformed Electoral System," "A Recent Sermon," and "Tom-Toms in Politics."

Oliver Thorne Miller contributes to Harper's Bazaar, published July 12, another one of her characteristic outdoor studies, entitled "Catbird Tricks;" and Rose Hawthorne Lathrop has written for the same paper a story with the suggestive title, "His Engagement." In the next number of Harper's Young People, Walter B. Felt will present some concise suggestions for "The Training of a Boys' Boat Club." With the next issue of Harper's Weekly will be published a unique eight-page supplement, giving views of London in 1616 and in 1890. Old and new London are placed side by side, and the changes which have taken place in the city during the last three centuries are graphically presented to the eye. The same number will contain an article by Henry Inman, entitled "The Last of the Buffalo," relating some interesting facts in the history of the American bison.

The midsummer number of the Jenness-Miller Magazine is one of unusual interest. The paper on "Physical Culture," by Mabel Jenness, contains suggestions and exercises of the greatest value to women. The Countess de Montaigne discusses the "Etiquette of Correspondence," and an article on "Fine Gems," by Charles Blanc, is itself a production of marked value. Other interesting contributions are: "A Girl-Student's Year in Paris"; "Motherhood," by Clara Holbrook Smith; "The Corporal Punishment of Children," by Emily Pickhardt; an interesting story by Clara Louise Burnham and "Voice Culture," by Laura Giddings, is both interesting and instructive, and the "Fashion Talk" is full of original and artistic ideas. Subscription price, $2.50. The Jenness-Miller Pub. Co., 363 Fifth Avenue, New York.

DEATH IN ITS TRACK.

Minnesota Summer Resorts Destroyed by a Cyclone.

An Excursion Steamer Capsizes and 100 or More Persons Are Drowned—The Loss of Life at Other Points Brings the Total Up to About 150.

WRECK AND RUIN.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 14.—A cyclone or hurricane struck Lake City, located on Lake Pepin, about seventy miles to the north. Sunday night and a large number of people were lost by the sinking of a steamer. The steamer Sea Wing was coming up the lake at about 9 o'clock Sunday night, and when opposite the city the storm struck it and sent it to the bottom. There were on board about 350 people from Diamond Bluff and about fifty more were on a barge which was in tow.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 14.—Death and devastation visited the States of Minnesota and Wisconsin Sunday afternoon and the death list will be large. The summer resorts seem to have suffered severely, owing to the fact that at this season they are thickly populated, and the losses of life there are fearful to contemplate.

A young man drove in from Lake Coleman with the information that at least two persons had been killed and over 100 injured at that point.

Passing along the cyclone struck Lake Joanna, Lake Gervais, Lake Vadnais, Little Canada, and passed on about four miles to the east of White Bear Lake. The passengers on the St. Paul & Duluth train which left White Bear at 4:55 were approaching Gladstone when they saw the cyclone forming, and watched its whirling motion without fear or excitement. Not so with the engineer, however. He saw the threatening aspect of the sky, and, with a startled look ahead to see if all was clear, he took a firmer grip on the throttle, and the engine leaped forward under his touch. His judgment and quick action undoubtedly saved the lives of the passengers, for the twisting, terrifying, devastating crossroads scarcely more than a minute after the train had passed. Help that had been called for from the stricken district was at once sent.

The storm first struck the farm of James J. Hill, the president of the Great Northern railway, twenty miles north of here, wrecking several buildings and killing three farm laborers as well as several head of stock. The fury of the storm was fearful and every thing in its path was swept away.

Eleven people were instantly killed at the small town of Vadnais, on the line of the St. Paul & Duluth road, six miles north of here, and the village wrecked. Not a building was left standing in a sound condition, while the great majority of them were blown to pieces, the inmates suffering death without warning.

At North St. Paul the wind blew down a furniture factory and several dwellings, and two persons were killed, both of them by lightning.

Midnight reports from Little Canada, a village of 500 people seven miles from St. Paul, indicate that the cyclone struck that place with full force. Twelve houses were blown down, three people killed and eight or ten injured.

RED WING, MINN., July 15.—Fully 110 people lost their lives by the disaster on Lake Pepin Sunday afternoon and the total may reach 125 or 130. Several persons who were aboard the ill-fated Sea Wing are missing and it is thought that they have found watery graves.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 15.—Late reports of the cyclone that visited the summer resorts in the vicinity of St. Paul Sunday afternoon confirm the earlier statements as to the loss of life and the damage to property. The work of the tornado on the land seems to have been more disastrous along Lake Gervais' shores than elsewhere. Here the greatest loss of life occurred and here also the damage was probably the heaviest.

Mr. and Mrs. Schurmeier and their son Charles and five others were killed instantly and thirty-seven persons were injured.

Extraordinary Bone Scratching.

Herbert Sperry, Tremont, Ill., had Ergysipelas in both legs. Confined to the house six weeks: "When I was able to get on my legs, I had an itching sensation that nearly ran me crazy. I scratched them raw to the bones. Tried everything without relief. I was tormented in this way for two years. I then found Clarke's EXTRACT OF FLAX (Papillon) Skin Cure at the Drug Store, used it, and it has cured me sound and well."

Clarke's Flax Soap has no equal for Bath and Toilet. Skin Cure $1.00. Soap 25 cents. For sale at Eberbach & Son's drug store.

When I Was Sick!

My room looked like a drug store, I had so many bottles in it. The more I dosed, the worse off I was. Finally, I paid my doctor and told him he needn't come any more. I was troubled with Chronic Rheumatism, and couldn't get out of bed alone. Six bottles of Sulphur Bitters cured me. Benj. Fitch, Adams House, Boston.

A pair of shoes is one of most typical products of modern industry. To make them the Animal Kingdom contributes from the herds of the Western Plains; the Vegetable, from groves of oak and hemlock or from the great forests left to us; great factories supply cloth and thread; mines, furnaces and shafts mine to furnish nails or wire. Through scores of processes, the forty-two pieces of a pair of shoes require to bring them together, the co-operation of fifty men and women, whose division of labor is so thoroughly systematized that everything goes with the same regularity attributed to the works of a clock, until as a result, you, well shod reader, who wear the W. THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1890.

The Prohibition State convention will be held in Lansing, July 30.

To a man up a tree, it would look a little as if the Democrats had acted somewhat childishly with regard to the silver bill just passed.

AGAIN the dreaded cyclone has suddenly caused deep sorrow to fall upon scores of happy families. It needs no scriptural passage to remind us that "in the midst of life we are in death."

THE REPUBLICAN party has set out with the idea that only the majority can govern. At any rate, it does not believe in minority rule. And that's why the Democrats so bitterly denounce Speaker Reed.

The recent death of Gen. John C. Fremont will tend to recall to mind many of the circumstances which attended the birth of the Republican party. Seldom has any organization had a nobler beginning. It behoves those who are guiding the party in 1890 to see that it never sells its birthright, and the indications are that it never will do so.

THE Washtenaw Post takes THE REGISTER to task for having offered a few words in behalf of the Detroit exposition. The editor thinks that the smaller towns should "puff" their own fairs and let Detroit take care of itself. In short, he seems to be permeated with that local prejudice which never looks beyond the city and seldom beyond the ward. There is no reason why the Detroit exposition and the county fairs should not both thrive at the same time, inasmuch as they occupy almost entirely different fields. No, Mr. Editor, it is not for THE REGISTER but for the Post to "repen."

It is amusing to see how little respect our esteemed contemporary, the Argus, has for the intelligence of the average farmer. It does not expect any returns for its puffs in the sketches of its former constituents. Oh no! When it becomes more generally known that the editor is a candidate for a public office, this fall, and that he will expect a vote for each "free" puff, his claims for having given many columns of his valuable space as "pure reading matter" (no ads.) will vanish. He will wish then that he had more fully appreciated the shrewdness of his country patrons. The Argus had better follow our example again, and let its readers know just what its purpose is. Ye editor will find that it will pay in the end.

THE CANDIDACY of Mr. James N. McBride for superintendent of public instruction is a decidedly good one. It is just that kind of a man who is needed in such a position. We have known Mr. McBride for a number of years, both while University student and since he left school, and the more we know of him, the more strongly we are persuaded that he would add much strength to our public school system by being elected to the office of state superintendent of public instruction. As a strong and enthusiastic supporter of Republican principles, Mr. McBride does not take a back seat to any one, but this does not, and should not, count for much, when it comes to considering the special qualifications necessary to fill successfully a position of this kind. These latter, and all important ones, Mr. McBride certainly has. This fact should, and we believe will, settle the matter in his favor when the time comes. We certainly believe that the Republicans of Michigan could not do better than to place the name of Mr. McBride on their ticket.

THE ARGUS, last week, makes a strong attempt to show that THE REGISTER is wrong in its views in regard to the special election for an additional tax for crosswalks. THE REGISTER believes that we need, and need many, additional crosswalks. We never for an instant supposed anybody would interpret what we said to mean anything different. Our object was to criticise the council for causing, as we believed, the defeat of the scheme by expending certain moneys at their disposal in such a way that the people were not disposed to grant them large special sums to handle. Had it been more generally known that the board of public works had especially recommended this appropriation, the result, we believe, would have been different. There is altogether too much politics in many of the actions of the city council, to inspire the utmost confidence in their judgment. This will explain more than one vote against the tax, as well as the great anxiety of THE ARGUS to persuade people that there are other reasons than that we have given.

THE natural beauty of Ann Arbor excites favorable comment from all visitors, and is one of the advantages, which is, every year, influencing men of means to locate here. With the expenditure of a comparatively small amount of money, much might be added to this natural beauty. One of the means of still further embellishing our fair city, is the establishment of a park at Cedar Bend-ave. Considerable talk, favorable to the project, has already been indulged in, and there is hope that a number of our influential citizens will take the matter in hand and carry it to a successful completion. Of course, anything of this kind will cost money, but it is certain that the return to the city will much more than compensate for the amount spent. A fine park on the river would lead to the building of cottages in the vicinity, and strangers would be led to come to Ann Arbor for the summer, instead of going to other places less attractive. The merchants, and other business men, would reap the benefits of increased trade, and in every respect, Ann Arbor would experience a boom. We have the University, and we are proud of it, but there is no reason why Ann Arbor should not present other advantages, in which she should feel an equal pride. For that reason, THE REGISTER wishes to place itself on the side of progress in every direction. Ann Arbor may not achieve bigness, but she already has greatness and beauty, and the extent to which the latter quality may be developed is unlimited. Let us have a park now, and at some future time, it may be that we shall have a magnificent boulevard also.

THE GOVERNMENT of the United States is based upon law, and can exist only so long as that law has binding force. The constitution very explicitly says that the suffrage shall not be denied to any one, on account of race, color or previous condition of servitude, but twenty years of experience have demonstrated the fact that this fundamental law has been, and is, openly and shamefully violated in the southern states. The constitution also gives to congress the right to regulate the time, place and manner of holding elections to the senate and house of representatives. On these two very definite constitutional provisions, rests the legality of the proposed federal-election bill. The justice of the measure is apparent to any right-minded person. Why then the fierce opposition on the part of the Democrats? It is true that the opposing party will gain additional representation in the south, but even if it does, is it not entitled to what belongs to it of right? Who are the most narrowly partisan: those who advocate a good measure, which will redound, perhaps, to their own advantage, or those who desire the wrong to be perpetuated in order that they may retain what really does not belong to them? It may be said that the proposed measure will lead to continual conflicts between the white and negro races in the south. Whether this would be so is extremely doubtful, but even if such a state of things should arise, who would really be responsible for it? Would the white race dare openly to oppose a righteous law? If so, there is great damage ahead. The opposite of law is anarchy, and it is toward the latter extreme that the ship of state will inevitably drift unless there is, in the future, better observance of the constitution than is the case at present.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND delivered a notable address at St. Paul, the other day, in which he stated the position of the great church, of which he is a distinguished prelate, with great force and candor. The Catholics, he urged, are not opposed to the public school, per se; they are opposed to it, simply because it is irreligious. In fact, so thoroughly does the archbishop believe in education, that he would have it made compulsory—he would make provision, however, for that religious instruction, which, now, the public school does not afford. In short, he is in favor of governmental aid to sectarian institutions. These schools, although owned by the state, would be supplied with religious doctrines, according to the taste of the tax-payers. Every sect would have a chance. Here, a public school would stand, prepared to uphold episcopacy; there another would stand, imbued with Methodist principles. If the American constitution is to be followed, no discrimination could ever be shown, and even the agnostics would be entirely justified in demanding a separate educational institution for their children. In this way the entire school-system would be thrown into great confusion, and constant bickering would be carried on between the various sects. In view of this fact, all level-headed men must agree that even the archbishop's plan will not solve the great problem. In fact, many conservative thinkers question whether there is any such problem at all. Are not the public schools all right just as they are, and are they really irreligious, as it has been claimed? It is not desirable that a public school should teach dogma, although it can, and should, teach morality. Religion is too delicate a matter to be trusted to this, that, or the other hired teacher. It can best be taught, by the loving mother or the spiritually-minded pastor.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

GIVEN A BLACK EYE.

Matrimonial Agencies in Michigan Will Have to Seek New Fields.

The Supreme Court of Michigan recently rendered a decision that must drive matrimonial agents in the State out of business. An aged farmer recently secured a young wife. A person who claimed to have been instrumental in bringing about the match sued the bucolic bridegroom for his commission, and "settled" for a consideration of $400. Some days after the marriage the husband announced that he had been swindled, and sued the agent to recover the $400. The case finally went to the Supreme Court, which gave judgment to the farmer, declaring that all matrimonial agents or persons who follow the vocation of match-making for gain, are engaged in an illicit pursuit. The court also expressed its opinion to the effect that persons of either sex lacked intelligence who sought to achieve matrimonial felicity by means of newspaper advertisements or of mercenary agencies.

A FILIBUSTER.

A Howell Man Raids Canada and Steals His Child.

When James Riley asked for a divorce from his wife the woman at once left town, taking with her the little daughter. Mr. Riley secured his decree and the custody of the child, but Mrs. Riley had hidden it, and it took many weeks to locate her. The father and detectives finally found Mrs. Riley at St. Catharines, Ont. They stepped over the border the other day and drove in a carriage to where Mrs. Riley was living. Mr. Riley rushed upstairs, seized the little girl, and in a moment dashed away with her. The party then crossed to New York, and now Mr. Riley and his child are safe in Howell.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the State Board of Health by sixty-six observers in different parts of the State for the week ended on the 5th indicated that cholera morbus, inflammation of the bowels, cerebrospinal meningitis, scarlet fever, membranous croup, pneumonia, whooping-cough and remittent fever increased, and typho-malarial fever and typhoid fever decreased, in area of prevalence.

Diphtheria was reported at twenty places, scarlet fever at sixteen, typhoid fever at six, and measles at thirty-five places.

Queer Freak of Lightning.

The severe storm which passed over Fowlerville the other afternoon accompanied by thunder and lightning played some queer tricks. A chimney was struck and demolished but no damage was done. While William Dickinson lay on the floor of his house a short distance from town the lightning tore off his trousers from below the knee, also ripping his boots open and producing unconsciousness for half an hour.

Sons of Veterans.

The annual encampment at Lansing of the Michigan division of Sons of Veterans ended the other afternoon with a prize drill, the Battle Creek camp capturing first honors, and Grand Rapids second. The following division officers were elected: Colonel, Frank B. Eddy, of Lowell; Lieutenant-Colonel, H. C. Thompson, of Bay City; Major, George W. Stevens, of Jonesville.

Work of a Fire-Cracker.

A distressing accident occurred in Davidson township the other afternoon. A 7-year-old son of Walter Wooden was left alone in the house, and while playing with fire-crackers the house was set on fire and burned to the ground. Wooden and his wife hastened in from the field to find the remains of their son burned to a crisp and the house and contents completely destroyed.

A Fatal Runaway.

Henry Henderson borrowed his employer's team at Port Huron recently to take his family to a picnic. The team took fright and ran away, throwing the occupants of the vehicle out, injuring Mrs. Henderson seriously. Mrs. Henderson was so badly hurt that she would die. A daughter and son were instantly killed, and another son had his left hand torn off.

Bids were opened recently for building the basement and area walls of the courthouse and post-office at Detroit. Patrick Deane, of Detroit, was the lowest bidder, at $111,573.

Dexter Mussey died at his home in Armandia the other morning, aged 88 years. In 1837 he located in Macomb County and had resided there ever since. He was a Representative in the Legislature from 1855 to 1862, being speaker in 1861-'62.

Louis Hubbell, a farmer living near Flint, was struck by a passenger train and killed a few days ago.

Warnie Hallock, aged 20 years, was drowned recently at Holly by the upsetting of a boat.

A RIVER HORROR.

Terrible Explosion on the Steamer Tioga at Chicago.

Mangled Bodies Thrown High Into Air—Many Lives Lost and Several Persons Wounded—Seven Men Who Were on the Boat Still Missing.

DEATH'S HARVEST.

CHICAGO, July 12.—By a terrific explosion that shook all the buildings in the center of the city and startled thousands of residents the stern of the magnificent freight steamer Tioga was blown out at 7:35 o'clock Friday night and no less than fifteen men met instant death. Nine others were injured.

Theory differs as to the cause of the explosion. Some claim that the combustible cargo of oil stored in hold 5, directly aft the boilers, was the cause. Others claim that the water in the boilers had been allowed to run low and that they were unable to withstand the strain brought to bear upon them. There were, however, 150 barrels of oil stored in hold No. 5, and it appears from the testimony of those who escaped the wreck that this was the immediate cause of the explosion.

The steamboat Tioga was built at Buffalo in 1886 by the Union Dry-Dock Company for the Union Steamboat Company as a part of the Erie line's fleet. She is 312 feet long, 30 feet in the beam, and is of 2,085 gross tonnage and 1,744 net. Her depth is 14 feet. She cost when new $250,000.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The explosion on the Tioga Friday evening killed not fifteen persons, as was at first supposed, but at least twenty-one, and the list of fatalities may reach thirty. Seven dead bodies were recovered Friday evening, six on Saturday, and six more were taken out Sunday. Two were recovered to-day. One of the injured men died at the hospital Saturday, so that the number of recovered dead up to midnight last night was an even twenty. Seven men known to have been at work on the boat are still missing.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Four more bodies of stevedores employed on the Tioga at the time of the explosion Friday evening were recovered yesterday, making twenty-two in all taken from the wreck. If all the missing men are dead the list will reach thirty-three.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 11.—A special train on the Southern Central road carrying Superintendent Titus struck a carriage containing five ladies at the grade crossing two miles north of Owego about 6 o'clock Thursday evening. Three of the women, Mrs. Cleveland, the widow of ex-Sheriff Cleveland, of Tioga County, Mrs. James Shay and Mrs. Avery Whitmarsh were instantly killed. Mrs. Thomas Beahan and Mrs. Harvey Van Duser were caught in the pilot of the locomotive and carried some distance. They were badly injured, and have since died.

We have filed our Plat and have given

8 1-2 Acres for a Park.

We have paid Fifty Dollars for a handsome and attractive plan for a Park.

Work has commenced on the streets and Park.

Seven new houses are already contracted for to be built upon our Addition this year. New sidewalks have been laid, 1,100 shade trees have been planted upon the streets and Park. Two professors in the University have already purchased Lots in this addition, and will soon build good houses on their lots. Hutzel & Co. have donated a handsome Fountain for the Park.

All the Lots have an Alley 16 feet Wide,

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long story. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1900, where it will remain for years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

ANCIENT OF DAYS.

THE EARLIEST ANIMALS THAT WERE DOMESTICATED BY MAN.

What Cultivation by Man Has Accomplished for the Brute Creation—The Finest Specimens of Domestic Animals in the World—A Grand Exhibition That Everybody Should See.

Among the earliest of domesticated animals are the ox, sheep and swine. Most people suppose these animals to have been servants of man from time immemorial. They have read of the sacred cattle of ancient Egypt, where the bull was one of the chief sacred symbols of deity, far back in the days of the earliest pyramid builders. They have read of the oxen of Greece and Rome, and how the Roman senate voted to brave Horatius from the public corn lands, as a reward for his heroic defense of the bridge over the Tiber, "as much as two strong oxen could plow from morn till night." And they have read in the early books of the Bible how Moses commanded that "thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn," and of how the ox and the ass were unequally yoked together.

Everybody knows, too, that the sheep is FAMILIAR IN THE EARLIEST BIBLE RECORDS. Abel tended his flocks and sacrificed a lamb before he was slain by his brother Cain. When Abraham went to sacrifice his son, he saw a ram caught by the horns in a thicket. "Jake played his father-in-law for a sucker in the increase of the flock's story," as the irreverent commercial traveler stated it when he was unexpectedly called upon to address a Sabbath school.

The history of the hog is not so familiar. But the fact that the law of Moses prohibited the eating of pork by the Israelites is proof that the hog was a common article of food amid surrounding nations. Homer describes Ulysses as eating pork, and names one of his most faithful friends as a hog drover or keeper, away back in the earliest dawn of Greek nationality. The hog, as a domestic animal, is mentioned in other bibles of other religions, older than those of the Hebrews.

But these most ancient writings and traditions are only tales of yesterday, SO IMMENSELY OLD IS THE HUMAN RACE.

In the records of science, as in the eye of deity, ten thousand years are but as a day, and a thousand years as an hour that is past. Geologists and biologists have found indisputable proofs that these animals were hunted and eaten by man for ages before they were domesticated. The charred, broken and gnawed bones of roasts from the horse, the ox, the hog and the sheep are found in caves and holes inhabited by prehistoric man in all countries, alike in those where civilization first dawned as in those where it appeared centuries on centuries later. Remains found where there were evidently prehistoric villages nobody knows how long before man began to become civilized—so long ago that their sites are now dug from beneath the everlasting hills, or are pierced by the well borer in the Egyptian desert 60 to 100 feet below the present level of the sand—show that man hunted and ate these animals.

IN THE DAYS OF THE MASTODON AND MAMMOTH, in fact before the great ice age sent its gigantic glaciers over Europe and America to plow out the present shape of the continents and create the world as we now know it, while yet the great desert of Sahara was a foaming sea, and possibly while yet the horse, the ox, the hog and the sheep had three toes on each foot!

It is a fact also that, even down to this day, these animals are hunted and eaten in their wild state, and are not yet domesticated by the most primitive savage races. And until quite a recent date they were so treated nearly all over Europe. During the early Roman empire, and even up to past the time of Julius Caesar, wild horses were hunted and eaten in parts of northern Europe. Wild hogs are even yet hunted in Europe, the wild boar being the noblest prey of the sportsman. The wild ox, down to a period later than the days of Wallace and Bruce, was the fiercest and most dangerous game of Scotland. The wild sheep, where it still lingers, is exceedingly shy, cunning and swift, and a desperate fighter upon occasion, quite different from the familiar type of innocence of our farms. It haunts the upland plains and inaccessible mountains, and braves the fiercest extremes of climate with wonderful hardihood and self-reliant energy.

HOW DIFFERENT YET HOW LIKE

are these wild animals and their tame descendants. Domestication has made them mild and tractable in disposition, and added to their strength and size. Yet, after thousands of years of cultivation by man, it is a curious fact that the animals have not changed in type, but have actually approached still nearer the true type of each. Place the wild horse, ox, sheep and swine beside their tame brethren, and how unmistakably they are the same animals. The best tame specimen is beyond question nearer the true type intended by nature than the best wild one. This is not so strange, after all. Man has bred the horse all these centuries not to change him to something else, but to make him still more perfectly a horse. Hence he is a more perfect horse, and nearer what may be deemed nature's ideal horse, of which her wild horse is only the prophecy. And so, also, of the domestic ox, sheep and swine, the nearest to the perfect figure is found in the tame and not in the wild.

Would you see the best types of these animals that can be found in the world—see great numbers of the very choicest and costliest specimens of every breed and variety, from down to the smallest and most beautiful pet of the race—see and study them singly and in groups and masses, in great parades and processions and in small family exhibitions—the best place and time you will ever have in your life time are at the great Detroit International Fair and Exposition, Aug. 26 to Sept. 5, which will be the greatest stock show ever held in America. It will also be the greatest dog show, and the greatest poultry, pigeon and bird show. Not only is there beauty in these things, but there is more money in breeding fine stock and fine poultry, and even in pigeons and fancy birds than in perhaps any other things that farmers can take up as an addition to their business. And there will be a world of pleasures, shows, spectacles, concerts, races, sports and games, magnificent fire works nightly, and all the delights of a great city and a grand exposition. Don't miss it.

A Chance to Make Money.

Mr. Editor:—I bought one of Griffith's machines for plating with gold, silver or nickel and it works to perfection. No sooner did the people hear of it than I had more spoons, knives, forks and jewelry than I could plate in a month. The first week I cleared $31.30, the first month $167.85, and I think by July 1st I will have $1,000 cash and give my farm considerable attention, too. My daughter made $27.40 in four days. Any person can get one of these machines by sending $3 to W. H. Griffith & Co., Zanesville, O., or can obtain circulars by addressing them. You can learn to use the machine in one hour. As this is my first lucky streak, I give my experience, hoping others may be benefited as much as I have been.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

TEACHERS MEET.

The National Educational Association in Session at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 11.—The National Educational Association elected the following officers yesterday: President, William R. Garrett, of Nashville, Tenn.; Secretary, E. H. Cook, of New Jersey; Treasurer, J. M. Grimwood, of Kansas City. The chief feature of the day was an address by Bishop Ireland, in which he defended the parish school and said he was in favor of the State school, its only fault being its non-religious character. He said the accusation that Catholics were bent on destroying the State school was unfounded, and said he was unreservedly in favor of compulsory education.

J. B. Thayer, State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Wisconsin, made reply to Archbishop Ireland. He referred to the attitude of the Catholic church on the public school system, and his arraignment of the Jesuitical ultramontane movement in the Catholic church was pointed in the extreme. The Jesuits, he said, were in direct opposition to the public schools, and as they became more secure in their positions they became more bold in their attack.

St. Paul, Minn., July 12.—Yesterday was the fourth and last day of the session of the thirty-fourth annual convention of the National Educational Association.

Resolutions were adopted favoring moral training in the public schools; approving compulsory education to a limited extent; commanding United States Commissioner Morgan's plans for Indian school lands, and endorsing land grants for colleges. Hon. A. G. Gunby, Judge of the Louisiana Court of Appeals, spoke on the race problem. He said the true solution of the problem on a just basis lay in the restriction of suffrage, and the only just restriction was an educational qualification.
