VOL. XVI. NO. 47.

ANN ARBOR, MICHIGAN, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1890.

WHOLE NO. 830.

THE INQUEST.

THE EVIDENCE IN MOST UNSATISFACTORY.

This Morning's Proceedings—What the Witnesses had to Say—The Inquest Last Week.

For one week the people of Ann Arbor have talked about nothing and thought of nothing which was not connected with the unfortunate occurrence of Nov. 12. Many were the conjectures as to what the inquest might develop, and when the coroner's jury again took their seats this morning the agricultural room was crowded. Adam Sauer, a carpenter from Saline, was the first witness. He knew Adolf Glatzel, and the morning after the riot had a talk with him. In the course of the conversation Glatzel said that the students threw mud and stones at the militiamen as they marched down the street. Then Granger told them to charge on the students, and the members of Company A hit them with their guns and the students threw stones.

"What did he say he did himself," asked the prosecuting attorney.

"He said," replied the witness, "that he struck one student over either the arm or hip. I cannot say which he said."

"Did he mention any one else who struck a student that he knew of?"

"He said Root was there fighting, but he didn't say whether he hit anyone or not."

Joseph Alexander, the next witness, testified that as the company marched up to Stoll's they "sassed" the students. When they entered the house, Alexander remained near the gate, afterwards following them towards the church. We saw Granger line up his men in the middle of the street and say: "You son of a b— over there, if you don't keep still, I will give it to you, too."

"Granger pulled his sword as he made the remark. Then he told the boys to take the butt ends of their guns and go to them, and if they had any ammunition, to shoot 'em."

Horatio P. Smith, a student was in the house when the militiamen came in, and heard one of them say: "We will go out there and knock hell out of them," and another said, "we will go out there and whip the devil out of them." He heard a lady expostulate with them, and soon afterwards the men left the house, some by the back door and some by the front door. A short time after that some of the militiamen came back and the witness saw one man in particular who announced that Granger had been hurt and that a student had been knocked down. He described the man as being not very tall, rather heavy set, with full and smooth face, light hair and complexion, and as wearing a black suit, with grayish necktie. One of his lips was full and stood out somewhat.

Frank Halleck, the next witness was on the scene of conflict, but he evidently saw nothing and heard nothing.

Harry Foster was in the armory when the militia organized. Recognized Pete Hetchins, Fred Root, Tom Kennedy, Fred Nellis—they were all he could remember. He saw both charges and at the first charge he ran into an alley-way.

"Did you see Fred Root strike a student down?"

"No, but I heard some one say that he did."

Prof. Thompson was next sworn. He gave his version of the conflict, as follows: "I heard the firing and came out of my house across the campus to the corner of William and State-sts. Then I met Mr. Gidley; at that time the firing had ceased. Mr. Gidley told me that the militia boys were giving a serenade. I saw a crowd but did not see any militiamen, because they had passed William-st. before I got there. I heard yelling and asked one man, whom I supposed to be a student, what they were going to do. The reply which he gave to me indicated that he answered simply because I asked the question, and not because he had any real knowledge of where they were going. He said they were going to serenade the mayor. Then I ran around to Fifth-st in order to head them off."

Mr. Sawyer: "What for?"

"I feared that the students were going down to Main street, where they might get in trouble with the police, at whom they were angry on account of the events of the night before."

At this point Mr. Sawyer subjected the professor to a merciless cross-examination, which seemed to afford the former much pleasure, but profited nothing so far as evidence was concerned.

The inquest then adjourned till half past two o'clock to-day. They will probably complete their work to-day.

THE INQUEST LAST WEEK.

At two o'clock on Thursday afternoon last the inquest began in the large court room. Hundreds of students and citizens were in constant attendance upon its sessions, looking every moment for startling developments. Fred Bedford, roommate of the murdered Dennison, was the first witness. He told the story of the combat, as he remembered it, and described how he saw his friend knocked down with a musket. Frank S. Prentyman also saw Dennison struck down. He heard the officer say, before the charge, to a student: "If you don't keep still over there, you'll break your neck." The officer's words, as he commanded an onset, were "knock 'em out of them, boys." The testimony of Mayor Manly, who was next called, went to show that the militia boys did not have his permission to fire blank cartridges. Robert Heywood, a member of the company, was the next witness. He admitted that when the soldiers lined up on Liberty-st they meant to make a charge—because, as he said, the students had been throwing mud and poking canes at them as they marched down the street. He gave the names of several members of the company who were present at the melee, all of whom were subsequently arrested. Paul Meyers was sworn next. He gave the following version of the attack on Dennison: "One of them seeped up and struck Dennison on the arm. Then another soldier stepped up and said, 'Go, Mr. Dennison.' 'Why should I go?' asked Dennison. 'I'll show you why you should go,' was the reply, and then the soldier swung his gun around and struck Dennison on the head, on the face—just here." Both Meyers and H. W. Graham, who was the first witness on Friday, testified that they saw no mud thrown or canes raised during the march. Graham thought that the second charge was led by a great large man, with a stiff hat and overcoat, and familiarly known as "pie-face." Thomas Hayley, a citizen, asserted that he saw a stone thrown before the first charge of the militia. In the midst of his testimony, John F. Lawrence came before the coroner and asked permission to appear with A. J. Sawyer, in behalf of the boys. The request was granted, and the inquest adjourned till 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Wm. Neumann, high school student, knew the man by sight who struck the student, but could not give his name. John J. Cook, dentist, heard one of the militia boys say, before the corner was reached: "When we get to Liberty-st we will knock hell out of them." Mr. Umor, a senior law, and Henry Richards, lumber dealer, added nothing new to the testimony. B. C. Hess, assistant in the chemical laboratory, testified that a man with a light colored coat and slouch hat threw the stone which hit Granger. Jesse D. Spitzer, junior law, said: "I saw a young man standing on the corner and a man with a raised musket rushing toward the corner. He said something to a young man and got a reply. Then he struck him just here, (indicating the right temple). The young man staggered and went away. He was on the northeast corner. His assailant came from the corner opposite church—the southwest corner. It occurred after the first attack of the militia—not over a minute after the charge. The guard who struck him was rather short than tall, and rather thick set. He had on a cap, I think. My remembrance is that he was in uniform." The testimony of E. E. Davis, H. J. Miller, C. B. Morris, D. Jackson, Arthur Van Inwagen, who followed, was unsatisfactory, as was also that of Frank Campbell, Miss Haylow and Geo. J. Stoll, who took the stand on Saturday morning. The latter could remember nearly every invited guest who was present at his wedding, but not one member of Company A who came into the house. At eleven o'clock the inquest adjourned till to-day.

FUNERAL OF DENNISON.

The funeral of the late Irving G. Dennison took place at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The ceremonies at the Ashland-ave Baptist church were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Hunt, who delivered a touching address, eulogizing the character of the deceased and pointing out the lesson to be drawn from the life of such a man. Elaborate floral designs were presented by the Young People's Society of the Ashland-ave Baptist church, the employees of Lozier & Yost bicycling factory, the employees of Isaac D. S. Lead & Co., and the Trinity Knights of Temperance. — Sunday Toledo Commercial.

Amusements.

Dore Davidson, who created such favorable comment two years ago, when he produced Dr. Jekyll and Edward Hyde at the Grand Opera House, will be seen again in this city next Monday night, and this time he plays "Guilty Without Crime," being supported by Miss Ramie Austen and a powerful company. Of this production the Pittsburg Dispatch of September 23, says: "Guilty Without Crime" is a well-adapted stage version of Miss Brodton's "Aurora Floyd," probably the best known and the most popular of that author's works. The story is sufficiently well followed to be of interest to those who have read the novel, and the characters in some instances are even better drawn. Stella Douglass, at the hands of Miss Ramie Austen, is excellently done. By the way, Miss Austen has improved greatly in her acting since her appearance here in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" last season, as well as in her looks. She is now a truly beautiful woman, as well as a painstaking actress. In form and feature she has few rivals to fear. Dore Davidson's Tom Rawson is a piece of excellent work. Mr. Davidson's fingers became educated in histrionic way as Dr. Jekyll so that they almost speak, and his attention to details is so conscientious as to provoke admiration. Miss Maud Peters is pretty, despite her little lisp. The theater was packed to the doors at both performances yesterday, and this will doubtless be the story of the present engagement to the end on Saturday night.

Shall We Have a Woman's Relief Corps?

Many of the members of Welch Post G. A. R. are in favor of the organization of a Woman's Relief Corps in this city. There are hundreds of such organizations in this and other states. They accomplish much good by their works of charity among the poor, sick and disabled soldiers, in assisting the members of the post in properly observing Memorial Day, and on other public and festive occasions they are indispensable. By a resolution of the post all ladies who favor such an organization are requested to meet with the members of the post in G. A. R. hall (corner Main and Washington-sts) on Tuesday evening, November 25, at 7 o'clock P. M.

WANTS THE EARTH.

The Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti Street Railway Company Asks for Valuable Franchise—the Offers of the Electric Railway.

Politics had subsided, the excitement of the riot had almost died away and Ann Arbor had again become quiet and peaceful, when on Monday evening last a bombshell was shot off in the city council chamber. It was nothing more or less than a request from the new inter-urban railway company that they be given a present of several of Ann Arbor's finest streets. They ask (very modestly) that the council grant them a right of way on some one of the following routes: First, from Grove-st to Hanover Square, down Division-st to Huron, down Huron to Fourth-ave, to Beakes-st, and along Broadway to the city limits; second—on Forest-ave to Hill-st, to First-st, to North-st, to Beakes-st, Broadway and Dixboro road; third—from the south end of Division-st, thence north to Huron, thence west to Fourth-ave, thence to Beakes and out Broadway; fourth—from the junction of Ypsilanti road with Hill st, thence north on Fifth-st, to Beakes, thence along Beakes-st, Broadway and Dixboro road to city limits. In other words they desire to run a dummy engine, puffing steam and smoke, a passenger coach and a car for express and baggage down some of our best resident streets, at the same time subjecting our unobjectionable electric railway to a ruinous competition. There is no demand for any such thing. The present street railway gives good service and accommodates the public well. That they are willing to do still more is shown by the proposition which they made to the council last Monday night. They will run lines from the intersection of Williams and State-sts southerly along State-st to Monroe, thence easterly along Monroe to Hill, thence along Hill to intersection of present line on Washtenaw-ave; also from the State-st line to the new athletic grounds; also the Detroit-st line across bridge and along Broadway; also along State-st northerly to Huron and thence west on Huron-st to the city limits. The company expressed its willingness to complete the lines mentioned within one year from the present date. The council referred both communications to the street and finance committee. It is not at all likely that they will take favorable action upon the very thin proposition made by the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti company.

City Taxes.

The assessor has prepared the following estimate of the city's receipts and disbursements during the past year:

Mill tax voted by council	$30,220 00
Uncollected personal of 1889	392 22
Soldiers relief fund, one-tenth of 1 mill	604 40
Payment on hospital bond	4,000 00
Interest on hospital bond	840 00
For care of city poor at county house	892 57
	$36,956 19
State tax	7,652 68
County tax	3,816 80
	11,469 48
City's portion of school money voted	27,900 00
The one mill tax for school purposes	6,044 00
	$33,944 00
	$81,769 67

An increase over that of last year of $7,000. The rate of taxes on a $1,000 assessment is $13.50, last year, 12.66; an increase of 90 cents on a $1,000 assessment.

TUBULAR WELLS do away with impure water. There is not the least doubt that many of the most serious diseases are conveyed into healthy systems by impure water. The whole class of typhoid and malarial fevers are doubtless thus spread. It is unfortunate that this fact is not better known, or at least better considered, for it is better known than it is well made use of. Now, there must be some remedy for this as for all other evils, and that remedy I propose to furnish. In all parts of the known world, below the surface of the ground, at various depths, are found living water, pure and cold the thought of which makes a person feel bristly. The only way to get this pure water is by using the Tubular or Drive Well, made by N. F. PRUDEN, 80 N. State-st, Ann Arbor, who has had years of experience in sinking wells and repairing pumps. 31

AROUND THE COUNTY.

Milan is contained with four meat markets. Amburst township will soon have nine churches. Farmers near Dexter are waging war on sheep dogs. Manchester wants direct railroad connection with Ann Arbor. Ypsilanti is being treated to a dose of revival meetings. It needs them. Dexter is taking measures to secure a night watchman during the winter. A Saline man, with an optimistic cast of mind, lost $300 on an election bet. The Knights of Macabees are rapidly increasing in number at Ypsilanti. In Chelsea is a rose bush which has blossomed all summer and now has twenty buds. The Chelsea Standard, snails and is too mean for anything, because Allen was defeated. The Pansy and Roberts lodges of the Patrons of Industry held a union meeting at Pittsfield, last Saturday. Howard R. Pyle, of the University, lectured to the people of Milan, last Saturday night, on Edison and his phonograph. The Stewart who was run over by the cars in Ypsilanti recently, will probably recover—contrary to all expectation. Washtenaw county has in farms 266,006 acres of improved and 104,456 acres of unimproved land. The number of farms is 3,136. From three acres of ground 350 bushels of corn were husked in three days. The foregoing is the record of Edward Schneider, of Freedom. Orin Burkhard, E. Beach, and F. Baldwin represent the Lafayette grade of Lima, at the union labor convention in session in this city today. Fourteen elevators and mills in Washtenaw county reported 99,610 bushels of wheat harvested during October, and 217,807 during August, September and October. Sam Weisheit, Saline, steps to the front. Says he: "My hired man husked 107 bushels of corn, and bound and set up the stalks in nine and one-half hours. Beat that if you can!" A drove of hogs in Hudson, Mich., became intoxicated by drinking the scum from a sorghum factory, and in the orgy which followed one hog was drowned by the gay debauches. The following from the South Lyon Picket sounds sacrilegious, but it wasn't meant that way: "The Epworth League will meet at Miss Anna Arms' next Tuesday evening. Subject: 'What shall we do with Jesus? Leader Anna Arms.'" Washtenaw county contains within its borders some of the best farming country in the world, two of the greatest educational institutions in the world and thousands of the best men and women of the country. Why not be proud of old Washtenaw? It is a well known fact that ladies dearly love to "go shopping," but we hear of an exaggerated case in the person of two Ypsilanti girls who have been out every pleasant afternoon for the past two years looking for hats and have not yet decided which ones to buy.—Commercial. The crop report for November contains interesting information for the farmers of this county. The estimated yield per acre of corn is 54.23 bushels. The condition of wheat now on the ground, compared with the vitality and growth of average years, is eleven per cent better. Clover seed has yielded on an average, 1.50 bushels to the acre. The potato crop is but sixty-two per cent of an average crop. Horses, cattle, sheep and swine are in good condition. The old, old story. Went west to grow up with the country and strike a bonanza. Didn't do it and comes back satisfied that old Michigan is God's country indeed. Charles Conklin left here eighteen months ago for Oklahoma by the overland route. Monday he got back, after being over two months on the road. He says Oklahoma is "all dried up" (and we don't doubt it, for Charles shows it) and many who thought it and built on them are now deserting them and going back to whence they came from.—Saline Observer. The Ypsilanti Commercial thus describes an important event: "A goodly number from this vicinity attended the exercises in connection with laying the corner stone of the M. E. church at Willis last Thursday. Dr. Davis of Detroit gave one of the grandest, most eloquent discourses that ever floated on the clear, pure air of Augusta. May its memory exist as a powerful incentive to the building up of the 'Holy Church or God.'" Did the composer get so excited over the news that he "pied" the form, Brother Commercial? The pupils of the Normal Conservatory are securing positions of honor and prominence. We note the following: Miss Mary A. Watson, soprano of the M. E. church, Ann Arbor; Mr. Irwin Scrimger, tenor of the Unitarian church, Detroit; Mr. E. B. Spaulding was elected bass over all competitors in the new quartet of Westminster church, Detroit, Prof. Stanley, director; Miss Eleanor Hazzard, soprano of the Congregational church, Ann Arbor; Miss Kurtz, soprano of the Baptist church, Ypsilanti; Miss Lovina Parsons, soprano of the M. E. church, Ypsilanti. These are all pupils of Mr. and Mrs. Pease.—Ypsilanti Commercial. Not an elopement, though it sounds like one, is the experience recorded in the following article from the Manchester Enterprise: Miss Jennie Selfe, who has lived in the Bullard family in Sharon the past ten years, disappeared Tuesday night last, and no trace of her whereabouts can be found, although strict search and due inquiry have been made throughout the country and at neighboring places where relatives and acquaintances reside. She is a small girl, not over four feet ten inches in height and weighs about ninety pounds; her complexion is dark, has dark hair and blue eyes. Her age is about twenty-three though she looks much younger. She was dressed in a black dress and wore a brown blanket shawl. THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1890.

Next spring Ann Arbor elects a mayor. Knowing from past experience how in-urious it is to have a poor executive she should leave no stone unturned to elect the proper officer for the place. Who shall it be? It certainly should not be Mayor Manly.

Gen. Clarkson says of the recent election: "I will venture the assertion that the democrats have won this great victory in 1890 on a much smaller total vote than they polled in 1888. They will now go into a two years' drunk and jubilation over their victory and make a fool of the next House." Undoubtedly true. The democrats are capable of an infinite amount of foolishness.

So Ann Arbor is to have a daily. Its mission will be to boom everything under the sun, including the political ambition of our rising young statesman, the new railroad which proposes to run trains on Ann Arbor's best streets, one or more tracts of land situated in or near this city and (incidentally) the University, Normal school and a thousand other things. Next Monday night we will read its "morituri salutamus." Of course, the puny infant cannot live long, but as long as it does live it will doubtless furnish fun for the estimable gentlemen whose pap it will absorb. THE REGISTER in the goodness of its heart, hopes that the end will be a peaceful and painless one.

People should not expect too much of poor human nature. The ideal student probably would never give vent to a college yell, would never jostle his neighbor in a crowd, would never hiss a speaker, (and there are some students already who answer to this description) but the average student is not "built that way" at all. When he goes for his mail to a small and inconvenient post-office and finds himself packed tight in a crowd of other students, he is not to be called a criminal because he indulges in a little rushing. It is wrong, we know, but military mayors and prejudiced newspapers should not treat such things as if they were murderous riots. That is the mistake into which the city authorities have fallen, and they should learn from their sad experience that tact is fully as essential in an officer as physical courage or determination.

Nothing is more essential to the best interests of this republic than the maintenance of good city government. The tariff affects every man personally, and should be very carefully adjusted and equalized. A good national government is for that reason very desirable—but infinitely more desirable, so far as the immediate interests of the individual are concerned, is the maintenance of proper municipal government, for it is the latter which assesses your taxes, provides for your children's instruction and protects you from violence. People have not given enough attention to these very important interests, and as a result there is hardly a city in the country, with more than 5,000 inhabitants, whose affairs are not wretchedly administered. The public need not be reminded that these remarks are just as apropos in Ann Arbor as they are in Cregier's Chicago or Tammany's New York.

About 1,000 students went to Detroit on the special train, last Saturday, to witness the foot ball game between the Cornell and the U. of M. teams. They created quite a commotion as they marched up the streets giving vent to their indescribable college yell. The game itself was a hotly contested one, resulting 20 to 5 in favor of the Cornell team.

The programme of the Literary Adepti on Saturday evening is as follows: Music; Essay, Miss Latham; Lecture, "A Sketch of Dutch Literature," Prof. D'Ooge; Music, D. B. D. Quartette. Debate: Resolved that a National University should be established at Washington by the government. Aff. H. D. Haskins. Neg., R. W. Doughty. Music.

A young lady student, rooming on Jefferson-st, attended a recent lecture in the company of a student of the opposite sex. The latter took charge of the key to her room, but when he bade her good night at the gate, he forgot to return that very useful article. As a result, the "co-ed" was barred from her room for nearly a week. A coolness has arisen and the young lady now thinks that the young man who played her the trick is "too mean for anything."

Dyspepsia
 Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind. Headache and distress after eating are relieved. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

Heart-burning

Come TO THE Clothing Cyclone.

Last week we called the attention of the readers of THE REGISTER in a liberal manner to the wonderful display of

OVERCOATS, GLOVES AND MITTENS,

At THE STAR CLOTHING HOUSE. Even before this announcement was made, the people seemingly felt the force of the brewing storm, and poured into our store as a haven of refuge, but when the announcement was finally placed before them, the storm broke, until our spacious room was deluged with friends from every section of the county, looking after the rare bargains, and the amazing variety of the many novelties. On SATURDAY, the full force of this storm broke upon us in all its fury, and in consequence, it swept, as by a whirlwind, carrying away from our store more OVERCOATS, UNDERWEAR, GLOVES and MITTENS than at any time during our previous history. We repeat,

Come to the Clothing Cyclone.

The Beautiful Guild.

ANN ARBOR, June 7th, 1890.
 MR. WILSEY,
 DEAR SIR:—I enclose the testimonial for which you asked. It gives me pleasure to send it to you, as I like a piano so much. When you can make it convenient, come out and see how it has stood the wear and tear of nine years.
 Yours Truly,
 LILLIE BAERLEIN.
 With regard to the Guild purchased of you nine years ago. Its tone is as mellow and sweet as ever, and in standing in tune I have never seen its equal. Any one contemplating the purchase of a piano, will find it to their interest to examine the Guild.
 Respectfully,
 LILLIE BAERLEIN.

The Guild has stood "wear and tear" better, and held its own better than any piano I have ever sold. Over 25,000 have been manufactured, and sold very largely in Boston and vicinity. The great music publishing house of Ditson & Co has sold over 800 of them in the City of Boston. The simple (patent) tuning device is the greatest improvement of the day, and will save expense to the owner besides the satisfaction of having a piano constantly in tune.
 The swinging music desk running the entire length of the piano is perfection They please, they sell. Why? See them, and you will learn. Manufactured in Boston for nearly thirty years.

NYE WADES IN BLOOD.

A VISIT TO CHICAGO STOCK YARDS SUGGESTS SOME THOUGHTS.

All Honest Work Is Honorable, from Literature to Dressed Beef—Hogs and Their Interior Mechanism—Some Secrets of a Gory Business.

(Copyright, 1890, by Edgar W. Nye.)
Everything regarding Chicago will be doubly interesting to the general public for the next two or three years, and it is therefore natural that the varied features of the young giant should be more or less discussed both at home and abroad. That is just what Chicago wants. That suits her. That is what she puts her various millions into an exposition for. (I should have referred to her as a giantess above instead of a giant, for I see that I have fallen into the feminine pronoun since. However, we will let that pass.)

IN THE ABATTOIR.

The stranger should go at once from the depot to the Auditorium. He will save time by this, for then he can answer those who ask him if he has seen the Auditorium and answer affirmatively, and be done with it; but if he should wait until he has done something else he will be more or less broken in upon by this inquiry. Later on I may speak of this great structure with the unfortunate same, but I shall not have space at this time, owing to the fact that I purpose speaking a word or two regarding the stock yards.

All sorts of honest and successful industry are honorable, whether it be through the avenue of literature or dressed beef. Success is the mark of public approval, and continued success the certificate of integrity. It was honorable for Gen. Grant to canvass for a book or tan skins. It was honorable for Vanderbilt to farm it or run a ferry. It was honorable for Gould to survey Delaware county with a wheelbarrow and a fine tooth comb. It was honorable for the older Astor to skin muskrats and swap brass collar buttons to the Indians for beaver skins if the noble red man suffered for collar buttons. What I dislike is for the descendant of Mr. Astor to cultivate such a big robust and malignant case of hauteur. He visited Chicago some time ago and stated in an interview, which he had arranged for as soon as he could attend to it, that the people of Chicago frequently sat on the front steps and that visitors were met at the door by the housemaid. Thereby covertly intimating that Mr. Astor is in the habit of answering the door himself.

Possibly, however, Mr. Astor keeps a man who answers the door bell and does nothing else hardly. That may be, but it is only a few brief autumns since the brave and sturdy mother of the Astor race came around from the spring house to greet the guest in her stocking feet, and the greeting was none the less cordial eyether for a "that and a" that. We should not be held responsible for the errors and acquired snobbery of our grandchildren. From the deep recesses of the unborn future there may come some day a great-grandchild who will inherit my wealth and name, and while I squirm about in my close fitting tomb he may have a valet to dress him in the morning and train up his whiskers on a tressis, and he may visit Chicago where his ancestors had been so generously and so hospitably treated years before, and when he goes home to England or Tuxedo he may send for a reporter and tell him how his refined nature was shocked all the time he was away.

Glancing hastily from Mr. Astor to the Chicago stock yards, I will say that few realize, or can do so, the magnitude of this one institution of Chicago. We can hardly imagine 1,280 acres of ground covered with meat, to speak plainly; 1,280 acres almost covered at least with the business of converting live stock into food for man. I had never before visited this institution, and so I went there all dressed up, in order to make an impression on the working classes.

Shortly after my arrival it came on for to rain, and having come on for that purpose it removed its coat, suspenders and hat, and rained more earnestly and more vociferously than anywhere else I ever saw it outside of Ireland. I wore a frock coat, patent leather shoes and a silk hat. After a while the mud, gore and hair, to say nothing of lard and disarranged liver, gave me a blasé look that attracted attention when I got back on State street. One man whom I did not know asked me if there had been any trouble or a strike at the stock yards.

The visitor is apt to go first to the assa-ninating department. I remember butchering day at home when I was a boy. It was different from this. We had generally about three shots to kill, and we waited most always until the weather was so cold that we could not plow. Then we butchered. We began about daylight to heat water for scalding purposes. Then we climbed the fence and began a series of uncalled for yet bitter and personal attacks on the elder maternal hog, while her ear piercing squeals rent the sky and her hot blood splattered on our neat little overalls. All day we alternately scorched ourselves or froze to death, and at night three flabby, waxen remains, perfectly devoid of bowels of compassion or other viscera, pried open so that the November wind could sough through their pulseless forms or dally with their leaf lard through the long and frigid hours, hung in a row. Then came the days when all through the dear old homestead the smell of nice hot lard sought out every corner and even pervaded the beautiful brown linen Sabbath school suit, which caught and retained the ravishing fragrance for years after.

Here you hear in the distant and the somber depths of the building a smothered wail ever and anon. You go toward it and find a brisk young man in tall rubber boots standing in a bloody stall with a flashing blade in his hand, while near him a big pan to which is attached a long handle catches the hot, fresh tide of life as it spurts with a purple impulse following the long, keen blade. About every fifteen seconds, while we stood there, a new subject came up heels first out of the big slaughter pen, as a log is pulled out of the pond of a big saw mill, and with a plunge of the knife as it passed on another swung into position head down, and the merrily steel struck the same point forward of the shoulder and to the left of the windpipe. No experiments were made. The young butcher's style of vaccination always took. I remember once, years ago, my father went away on business, to serve on the petit jury, I think, and told me to kill the pig.

It was easy to say that. He might also have included other friends of the family, but he did not think of it perhaps. However, I began the most elaborate preparations and tried to nerve myself up to it by frequent recourse to hard cider, for I had never personally shed innocent blood before. The pig would probably weigh about 160 pounds, and was not fierce until he found out that I seemed set on mutilating him without any apparent cause. Then he broke down the fence, ate up a small goddess of liberty which I had once had tattooed on my leg, so that I could be identified in case I should run away and go to sea and stumble against a watery grave, as I had intended to do at that time.

The animal wandered away into a corn field, and we tracked him by his bloody footsteps. We overtook him along toward noon, and my younger brother held him down while I made an incision in the neck which proved fatal. As we started to drag the animal toward home his head fell off. I state this in order to show that sincerity and inflexibility of purpose had already begun to show themselves even at this early age.

After some delay we succeeded in removing the bristles, also some of the pelt, and I began the delicate operation of prying into and exposing the animal's complex works. I guess it would not be best to describe this, for it gives me great pain to recall it. I only know that I cannot see yet what he had ever done with so many of them or who could have ever arranged such a large assortment in such a little space. They came pouring out like a cataract of new and strange vitals with crotched borders on them, and altogether I felt saddened and depressed. I went over to a neighbor and got him to come and assist me. I told him I had operated once or twice on a hen, but a hen travels light. She does not overburden herself with vitals that way. Just give a hen two or three little fixings of that kind and she will go around perfectly contented. But it is not so with a hog. I never saw a hog that knew when he had enough of anything.

In the early days they used to assess people here at the stock yards for beer money, and then if they did not get it they would pelt the visitor with fragments of liver and such little testimonials of respect as that. So it was a custom even among temperance people to give them the money. It was so until one day an English capitalist who owned a large share of one packing house got a steer's lung down the back of his neck and eighteen feet of sausage wound around his silk hat, and he spoke of it in terms of resentment to the superintendent. Then it was changed.

The sausage machine is one of the most intelligent that I ever saw. The Havana wrapper is pulled on over a metallic spout, and then by a terrific force exerted above the sausage meat reservoir the whole thing is pushed through this spout into the wrapper, and yard upon yard of this delicious bivalence is reeled off while you wait.

WITH MY FRIEND M'ALLISTER.

One house takes the lives of 2,400 pigs per day, and they are chilled and ready for the table by night. Mr. Armour personally killed 1,450,000 hogs last year, not in a spirit of revenge, but in order to improve the condition of mankind and keep the rude and disagreeable wolf from his own door.

Prying a little into his business affairs yesterday, I found that he did a business of $65,000,000 last year. He also paid out $3,500,000 in wages. With a piece of chalk I figured on the back of an oil painting in Mr. Armour's pleasant office that, allowing each year the same number of animals killed last year, say 1,500,000 hogs, 650,000 cattle and 350,000 sheep at a low estimate, in five years Mr. Armour, single handed, could encircle the globe with a continuous girdle of intestines!

What a thought! What food for thought also!

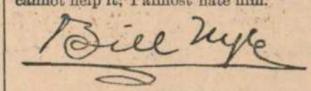

But as Mr. Armour said in our talk, when I asked him for a little recipe for becoming a millionaire: "Here is the secret of the success of the Big Four. It is our system of carefully utilizing everything. Here is a glass jar containing hoof meal. That is valuable for its ammonia. It is made from the despised hoof of the animal after the neat'sfoot oil and other toilet articles have been removed. Here is a jar of white phosphates, made from the pith of the horn. This industry will decrease if the de-horning of cattle grows, but probably it will not appreciably. Here is a sort of glue made from the tips of the ears and nose of deceased cattle which die a violent death at our house. Here is a substance used in great quantities by the brewers. Some time in the old days before your reformation you have noticed when you pulled your beer glass off the top of the table that it had a tendency to stick. That is a gelatinous substance which we furnish the brewer in great quantities. It is made from the thin white film which lies between the bone and skin of the head, for instance, and if nothing more harmful goes into beer it will never kill people off at a big rate. Then there is a jar of dried blood. Some is used for purifying sugar and considerable is sent to New Orleans, but more is used for making buttons. So you see we make our money by saving it. Not long ago a Frenchman came to me and told me that I was losing a million or so unnecessarily. I froze to him till he told me how. We found that our big reservoirs containing water, and in which we give the beef a bath to sort of cool it and close up the pores, had been emptied into the Chicago river for years, carrying with it the bouquet of the beef. We now condense and compress this nutritious juice till we get the most stimulating and the most delectable extract of beef that ever gladdened the tottering stomach of an invalid or a child."

And so it goes. It seems that an adult steer can afford more real, pure joy by his death than any other animal, unless it be the wife beater. I am told that when a wife beater sits for his death mask, on a still day, you can hear the angels applauding.

At Swift's establishment they have two odd animals, one a steer called Judas and the other a sheep called Iscariot. Each of these animals has a winning way with his set, and is utilized for the purpose of leading his fellows into the slaughter pen even against their better judgment. They have done this for years, and though the smell of blood naturally repels them, they listen to the siren voices of these two heartless brutes who preserve their own lives at the sacrifice of thousands of others, and death is their portion.

Some day I will again visit the stock yards. I hope to select a rainy day, and shall hope also to take my friend Ward McAllister with me by the hand, dressed in his best suit of clothes.

Skipping gayly through the ruins of former beef creatures and the tottering relics of nude hogs that have been snatched from the glad sunlight and yielding mud of Illinois to deluge the abattoirs of this great commercial town with their bright young blood, I would like to yank the great parlor ornament clothed in a white flannel suit and his unwavering admiration of himself, while cheery young butchers pinned to his coat tails yard upon yard of the future home of the sausage. It may be a cruel wish, but when a man outshines me socially I cannot help it; I almost hate him.

A Story of Congressman Rogers.
It is related of John Rogers, the Arkansas congressman, that he recently sat down in a barber's chair, when the barber asked if he would not take off his collar.

"Certainly," said Rogers pleasantly, "anything to accommodate," and, getting out of the chair, removed his coat and vest, let down his suspenders, and began unbuttoning his shirt.

"Jes' yo' collah, sah," said the astonished barber, "jes' de collah; that'll be enough."

"I understand," said Rogers. "I'm going to take it off." And he peeled his shirt off over his head.

"You see, I have my collars made on my shirts," he calmly said, as he sat in his undershirt and enjoyed himself.—Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

A Valuable Tip.
"Haven't you forgotten something, sir?" asked the head porter of a guest who had paid his bill and was leaving the hotel.

"Oh, no," replied the non-tipper; "if I have you can keep it."

"Much obliged! I notice you left your pocketbook lying on the desk."—New York Sun.

His Rise.
He bought a brand new pair of shoes. He thought he'd get some spats; He then discovered that he lacked The latest thing in hats.

He bought one. Then his trousers bagged; He ordered two new pair, And then, strange fact! he noticed that His coat was quite threadbare.

He bought another. Then he saw Some waistcoats. Just the thing! He had to get some ties to match; He bought a diamond ring.

He joined three clubs. He bought a home, Then changed it for a team; He bought a sailing yacht at first, And then moved up to steam.

He bought these things, and many more, He thought he was great and wise; He bought a new great and wise.

SAD BUT TRUE.

A Weird Tale of Love and Misery in the World's Fair Town.

Evening in Chicago.
The lake beating a murmurous tattoo on the lonely shore.

A great house in the silent street, with the wind howling outside.

The young Count of New York whispering sweet something to the lovely Lady Northside inside.

"Dear lady," he says in tremulous tones, "I have known you only a short time, but love is not a slave of time or circumstance, and, lady mine, I—" he hesitated only an instant, "I would ask your hand."

She blushed and let her beautiful brown eyes fall.

He picked them up quickly and handed them to her, as she said:

"What you ask is very great, dear Reginald, and—"

But Reginald was gone. And Lady Northside was conversing to herself.

On the outside the count halted.

"By Zucke!" he exclaimed, in cold, mechanical tones, "she thought I was asking for her foot."

And the next moment he had disappeared in the gathering gloom.—Washington Star.

One of the Hotel Clerk's Trials.

The summer resort hotel clerk is beginning to find his speech after the past season's campaign. And if you will let him tell the story he is a much abused individual. "For instance," says one of them, "the clerk schedules on getting up at 7 o'clock. Well, at 6 a boy hammers on his door and says a lady wants to see him at once down in the office; can't wait a minute, and nobody else will do. Up jumps the clerk and falls down to the ground floor to find the occupant of Suite A, for example, laying for him. 'Good morning, madam,' says the clerk. 'Dear! how you have kept me waiting!' she replies. 'Very sorry,' says the clerk, wishing in his soul that he had kept her half an hour. Then she begins again: 'I intend to spend the day in town, and get up early to see if you thought the 10 o'clock train was better than the 10:20. What do you think? He's just got to grit his teeth and smile, and say that the 10 train is faster by two minutes, but that he thinks she would find less cinders in and better views from the 10:20. Then she'll thank him and take the 11:56 train.'—New York Tribune.

A Bad Ending.

Cleverton—Miss Summit spoke about your neckties yesterday—said they were just perfect.

Dashaway—You don't say!

Cleverton—Yes, and she said she never saw you betray the slightest sign of disorder in your dress.

Dashaway—Oh!

Cleverton—She declared she never saw such hats, such gloves, such shoes, such clothes—that you were perfect down to the smallest detail.

Dashaway—Well! well! And then?

Cleverton—She wound up by saying that she didn't see how a man of your intellect managed to dress so well.—Clothing and Furnisher.

Hereditary Nerve.

Old Crisp—Ah, you young rascal, what do you mean by helping yourself to my cigars?

Young Crisp—I'm curing myself of the cigarette habit, sir.—Puck.

Resignation.

He (delightedly)—So you will marry me?

She (calmly)—On mature consideration I think I will. You don't amount to much, you're homely and awkward, but in Massachusetts you know we have to put up with anything that comes along.—Yenowine's News.

"Time Is Money."

Teacher (to class in grammar)—What is that familiar short sentence which brings time and money into close connection?

Voice in Back Seat—I know.

Teacher—Well, Tommy, what is it?

Tommy—Ten days or ten dollars.—Mumsey's Weekly.

One Exception.

He (getting up from his knees)—I don't believe, Miss Eisburg, you have a particle of affection for a human being.

She (much shocked)—Dear me, Mr. Sm—

He (bitterly interrupting)—True. I forgot. There is one.—Chicago Tribune.

In the History Class.

"What was the greatest act of Thomas Jefferson's life?" inquired the teacher.

And the shock headed boy that hadn't studied the lesson scratched his left shin with his right foot and said he guessed it was the last act of "Rip Van Winkle."—Chicago Tribune.

Her Letter.

The postman's leather sachel he carries carelessly,

The good or woe he may bestow he cares in no degree.

He's letters for love lovers, he's letters filled with bills, And circulars of soap, cigars, la's curtains, corn cures, pills.

Down in the postman's sachel, well hid from prying eyes, And buried deep beneath the heap a little letter lies.

Does it bring a waiting maiden love from a lover gone afar?

No; better than that. It brings her a fat, large check from her dear papa.

Joseph Murphy.

It seems almost superfluous to make any mention of the Irish comedian, Joseph Murphy, for he has been on the road so many years and has visited us so regularly that we have learned to know him thoroughly. He began a week's engagement at the Grand last evening in "The Kerry Gow."

There was a large audience and the gallery was a regular hanging garden of boys on boys. Joseph Murphy has not deteriorated since he was last here. As "The Kerry Gow" he shows us the same big, good looking, witty Irishman as of yore. He has the same artificial smoothness of tongue, the same charming infectious smile, the old facility at repartee—and the old bubbling Irish wit every where and at all times. The brogue is not too rich, yet rich enough, and is, indeed, quite perfect. Marsden has made for us in the play a noble, straightforward Irish character. Not the great hero, but the honest, lovable lad. The great charm of Murphy is that perfect brogue. It is so facile, and it imparts such a delicate richness to the spontaneous and almost unconscious witticism that the most solemn man in the world delights to hear it. Murphy always has a good company, sufficient for the day and the work thereof. Miss Belle Melville, in the role of Nora Drew, the sweetheart of Dan O'Hara, is a fine character in her fidelity to Dan and to her father. She is easy, bright, alert and good-looking, the proper picture of the noble-hearted Irish girl, and does her part with genuine excellence. The other members of the company are good and the play moves along with agreeable smoothness.—St. Paul News.

SCHOOL OF DRESS CUTTING.

Girls wanted at Mrs. C. H. Jones', No 4 North Park ave, to learn Miss Kellogg's French Tailoring system. Bas, Belt and French Sleeve taught. Classes daily.

Ten reasons why the Kellogg French Tailor System is superior to all others:

- 1—The drafts are from actual measurement and must result in perfectly fitting garments, which can never be accomplished by any chart or mode.
- 2—No trying on or fitting is necessary where this system is used.
- 3—The system invented by Madame Kellogg is based upon mathematical principles, consisting of a ratio of square and gradated series.
- 4—It is the least complicated of any known system, and more easily understood.
- 5—A good cutter, by the Kellogg French Tailor System, can cut more garments in one day, and receive better wages, than by any so-called mode, charts, or modes.
- 6—It saves time and the danger of spoiling goods, and gives better fits than can be obtained by any other system.
- 7—By this system, ladies with irregular forms can be fitted with the same accuracy and certainty as those with perfect forms.
- 8—The Kellogg French Tailor System is indorsed by every skillful dress maker throughout the country as being the NE PLUS ULTRA of all known systems.
- 9—The price places it within the reach of all who wish a system meeting the requirements of all the changes that Madame Fashion may ordain, and a system that may be used in cutting all manner of ladies' garments with a guarantee of a perfect fit.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

MICHIGAN CROPS.

A Monthly Report Issued by the State Department. The monthly crop report for November issued by the State Department shows that the area seeded to wheat this fall was largely in excess of one year ago, amounting to 1,500,000 acres, an increase of 64,000 acres. The average condition was much better than for the corresponding date for a number of years. It was 106 in the Southern, 100 in the Central, 102 in the Northern and averages 105 in the State. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in October was 4,971,152 and in August, September and October 5,548,064, an excess of 1,418,914 bushels over the same period last year. Corn was estimated to yield an average in the State of 52.90 bushels of ears per acre, which varied but little from the usual yield. The yield of potatoes as compared with an average crop was 59 per cent in the Southern, 63 in the Central and 97 in the Northern counties, and in the State the yield would be about two-thirds of an average crop. The condition of live stock was: Horses, 97 per cent; cattle, 98; sheep, 99, and swine, 96, and varied but little in the different sections. The number of improved farms in the State was 138,190; the acres of improved land, 7,979,608; unimproved, 4,583,129, and the average size of the farms was 90.83 acres. The area of improved land had been increased 114,440 the past year.

THANKSGIVING NOV.

Governor Luce Named Governor 27 as the Day to Give Thanks.

Governor Luce has issued the following Thanksgiving proclamation: From our humble and pious hearts has come down to a thankful people the venerated unwritten law of annually observing a day of thanksgiving and praise.

The President of the United States has appointed Thursday, the 27th day of November, A. D. 1890, for such service, and it is with cheerful conformity to the same that I invoke the good people of Michigan to observe the occasion in a manner worthy of the blessings vouchsafed to them during the year. And, while remembering that nowhere has God's hand better preserved and cared for His own than within this, our commonwealth, let us not forget that we have among us many who are more unfortunate than ourselves and whose homes are darkened by clouds of adversity and sorrow. Upon this day let it be the mission of all, and the active lesson for our children, that to lighten some other's burden and to carry sunshine to some unexpected place is the best of thankfulness. "It is only the hand which helps another that God takes into His own and fills with eternal blessings and honor." Given under my hand and the great seal of the State of Michigan this 17th day of October, A. D. 1890. By the Governor, CYRUS G. LUCE.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the State Board of Health by sixty-one observers in different parts of the State for the week ended November 8 indicated that cholera infantum, peripneumonia, inflammation of the kidneys, membranous croup and pleuritis increased, and cerebro-spinal meningitis, measles, whooping cough, typhoid fever, typho-malarial fever, cholera morbus and diarrhea decreased in area of prevalence. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-nine places, scarlet fever at thirty-one, typhoid fever at thirty and measles at ten places.

A Devil in His Throat.

Bay City has a strange case of insanity. John Bushey, of Dolsonville, was locked up in the Bay City jail. He imagined he had a devil in his throat. He choked and coughed and looked as if he was about to strangle. Two doctors and a priest attempted to ease him, but could not until one of them pricked him with a moraine needle. The minute the moraine struck his arm he forgot all about the devil and was at once easy. He had been sent to an asylum.

A Verdict for Grimes.

The jury at Lansing in the somewhat notorious damage suit of John Grimes vs. Michael Bowerman rendered a verdict of $4,500 damages in favor of Grimes. Both are prominent men in Williamston. Grimes as a farmer and Bowerman as a capitalist and merchant. The suit grew out of the failure of the Fleming mill at Williamston.

Early Returns.

Returns are coming in early this year. Already two men have been mistaken for deer and shot by careless hunters, and now John Sanbourne, of Montmorency, was mistaken for a bear by a companion and has a bullet hole through both cheeks and is minus a part of his tongue. He would recover.

Short But Nervous Items.

Randall Drake, one of Michigan's pioneers, died at Kalamazoo, aged 91 years. They have a foot of snow at Marquette and sleighing parties were all the go. Cyrus Gall, of Bay City, was handling a revolver in his residence when a cartridge was discharged accidentally and the bullet struck his daughter Gertrude, aged 18 years, in the left hip, causing a fatal wound. Reports from the Northern country are to the effect that deer hunters are flocking there by the hundred. Diphtheria has appeared at Holland again. John Voshare has lost two children. Bert Case, a 10-year-old son of a wealthy farmer at Rockwood, blew out his brains. Cause unknown. John Byestrom, aged 17 years, of Ishpeming, was drowned by breaking through the thin ice on Lake Bancroft. The Michigan Traveling Men's Association met and resolved to build a $100,000 hotel at Petoskey. East Tawas voted to issue $10,000 in bonds to light the village with electricity. A novel feature of the National Encampment G. A. R. at Detroit next year will be a raft ride. The excursion is the conception of the ex-Commander-in-Chief, General R. A. Alger. The raft will contain 100,000 logs, one for each visiting veteran.
