

A THANKSGIVING HYMN.

For bud and for bloom and for balm laden breeze,
For the singing of birds from the hills to the seas,
For the beauty of dawn and the brightness of noon,
For the light in the night of the stars and the moon.

HOW SHE FOUND JACK.

A THANKSGIVING STORY OF THE EAST AND THE WEST.

"Yes, I be goin' west ter Jack," she repeated softly to herself, as if she feared being overheard.
Her resolve sent a glow to the faded cheeks of the aged woman, and her hands trembled so much that she found difficulty in completing the household tasks, which the family had left for her to do.

Across the fields the little old woman, sad faced and heart hungry, trudged on carefully through the wild blackberry vines, then into a narrow path and out at a small gap in the fence to the broad, beaten path that wound in and out among the beautiful wild laurel at the foot of the mountains. Then picking her way across a limpid trout stream she reached a crossing where the train often stopped to pick up country passengers.

sums which Jack had sent to her time to time from the far west, and others which were the fruits of her own industry.

At Pittsburg she bought a through ticket to Denver, Colo.
"It's a long, tiresome trip for one of your years," remarked the conductor, who had assisted her.
"Yes, I reckon it be," she returned, "but thar be worse things ter endure in this life than long trips on kvars—then I be mighty sprylike fur a to'ble old woman."

At Chicago a roughly clad, but kindly natured, elderly westerner, Silas Carrick by name, boarded the train for Denver. He became interested at once in the little old fashioned woman, who reminded him in so many ways of his own mother, long since laid to rest in a hillside burying ground of New England.

After traveling a short time Silas Carrick, seeing her look sad, said to her: "I guess, mother, ye be fur from yer ole home, and ther change makes yer feel sarter lonesome like."
"Well, ther change has kinder upstod me," she admitted. "So diffrunt from ther mountings whar I was raised in Pennsylvania, I never reckoned on Jack's bein' so fur off."

"What does he foller fur a livin' in Colorado?" Silas questioned.
"Use ter herd sheep fur a man erbout ther gulches and sich places, an' I done to'ble well like out thar," she said. "But it's been two years since I heard from Jack myself, though Peter got a letter from him 'long this summer. So I be sure as Jack's well; but Peter never showed me ther letter, an' I don't know 'zactly whar ter find my boy."

THE VERDICT.

FINDING OF THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

The Shadow of Guilt, According to the Jurors, Hovers over the Members of Company A who Paraded.
The "mountain has labored," and while it has not exactly "brought forth a mouse," it looks very much that way. So unsatisfactory has been the testimony thus far given, that the coroner concluded that nothing could be gained by bringing forward any more witnesses, and accordingly, when the jurors met on Tuesday morning, closed the inquest.

BISHOP GARRETT.

Sketch of His Life and Services.—A Missionary Bishop and a Careful Student of Theology.

The Rt. Rev. Alexander Charles Garrett, who is now delivering lectures on the Baldwin foundation before Hobart Guild, is an Irishman by birth. He was born in Ballymott, Ireland in the year 1832. At the age of twenty-three he graduated from Trinity College, Dublin. He was ordained an Anglican priest two years later, by the bishop of Winchester in England. He held the curacy of East Worldham, Hampshire, till 1859, when he sailed for British Columbia. There he remained for ten years, performing missionary work among the whites and Indians.

A LETTER FROM DENVER.

A Little Talk about Prohibition—Interesting Facts about the Metropolis of Colorado.

DENVER, COL., November 17, 1890.
EDITOR REGISTER:—A few weeks since your paper said that all temperance legislation had been enacted by the republican party. This is a mistake, if prohibition of the liquor traffic means temperance. It has been asserted on what seemed good authority, that in at least three states; viz., Maine, Iowa and Michigan the first three prohibitory laws were enacted by democratic legislators. This happened long before the republican party was known by that name.

After all the vindictive attacks on the university, caused by the recent riot, it is quite refreshing to read the following from the Owosso Times: "The reference of the American to the university students as hoodlums, in relation to the recent collision between the militia and students, is not only unfortunate but unjust to the greatest institution of learning in the United States. The firing of volley after volley in the streets would attract a crowd even in Owosso and the jeering of the militiamen would seem not an unusual nor a victorious proceeding under the circumstances. The reputation of an institution of learning is like the character of an individual, where an injustice hastily or thoughtlessly done can work great injury. There is nothing quite so dear to an alumnus as the reputation of his alma mater and to the twenty-five university men in Owosso the word hoodlum has almost a personal allusion when applied to university students."

Sophomores and freshmen again tugged at the rope last Saturday, the sophomores finally winning by about two yards. There were about fifty men on each side.

The sophomore have appointed at committee to take proper action against the city on behalf of H. L. Crummer, who was imprisoned by the police on Tuesday, November 11.
Newberry Hall is still unfinished, and the Chronicle-Argonaut wonders why some rich alumnus does not see his way open to donate $3,000 or $4,000 for the completion of the building.
Villier's lecture Saturday evening was considerably marred by the poor delivery of the speaker and the "cussedness" of many of his listeners, who persisted in leaving the hall, one by one, before the lecture ended.

Laws take to politics as fishes take to water. When the senior laws balloted for president last Saturday, every section of the United States had a candidate, and six ballots were necessary before anyone was chosen. N. A. Phillips, of Pennsylvania, was the lucky man, receiving 109 votes out of a total of 217—just a bare majority.

Ordination of Walter Campbell.

The following in regard to one of our former Ann Arbor boys, from the university, is taken from the Boston Journal: "An ecclesiastical council was convened in Concord, on Tuesday, for the ordination of Walter Webster Campbell, of the last class of Andover. The examination was held in the afternoon and was quite protracted and in some points abstruse. The candidate, however, bore it very willingly and the vote proceeded to the ordination service was unanimous. Thesermon in the evening was preached by Prof. Ryder, of Andover, and earnestly magnified the priestly function of the pastoral office. The right hand of fellowship was given by Rev. A. H. Arms, of Manchester, N. H. This council was called by the third Congregational church of Concord, Mass. After the services already mentioned, much counsel and congratulation was offered the pastor and the congregation, by a number of speakers, among them Rev. F. A. Heath, Rev. B. H. Weston, Rev. G. A. Perkins and others. The exercises were very interesting and mingled with enthusiasm."

TUBERCULAR WELLS do away with impure water.

There is not the least doubt that many of the most serious diseases are conveyed into healthy systems by impure water. The whole class of typhoid and malarial fevers are doubtless thus spread. It is unfortunate that this fact is not better known, or at least better considered, for it is better known than it is well made use of. Now, there must be some remedy for this as for all other evils, and that remedy I propose to furnish. In all parts of the known world, below the surface of the ground, at varying depths, are found living water, pure and cold, the thought of which makes a person feel thirsty. The only way to get this pure water is by using the Tubular or Drive Well, made by N. F. Wagner, 30 N. State-st., Ann Arbor, who has had years of experience in sinking wells and repairing pumps.

SCHOOL OF DRESS CUTTING.—Girls wanted at Mrs. C. H. Jones', No. 4 North Fourth-st., to learn Mrs. Kellogg's French Tailoring system. Bias, Dart and French Sleeve taught. Classes daily.
Ten reasons why the Kellogg French Tailor System is superior to all others:
1.—The drafts are from actual measurement, and must result in perfectly fitting garments, which can never be accomplished by any chart or mode system.
2.—No trying on or fitting is necessary where this system is used.
3.—The system invented by Madame Kellogg is based upon mathematical principles, consisting of a tallo's square and graded scales.
4.—It is the least complicated of any known system, and more easily understood.
5.—A good cutter, by the Kellogg French Tailor System, can cut more garments in one day, and receive better wages, than by any so-called mode, charts, or modes.
6.—It saves time and the danger of spoiling goods, and gives better fits than can be obtained by any other system.
7.—By this system ladies with irregular forms can be fitted with the same accuracy and certainty as those with perfect forms.
8.—The Kellogg French Tailor System is endorsed by every skillful dress maker throughout the country as being the best ultra of all known systems.
9.—The price places fit within the reach of all who wish a system meeting the requirements of all the changes that Madame Fashion may ordain, and a system that may be used in cutting all manner of ladies' garments with a guarantee of a perfect fit.
10.—It challenges the world to produce a system so easily understood, containing a square and the true graded scales, and producing the same accuracy in fitting a garment.

W. W. Holt, proprietor of the Manchester flouring mills, has a patent for a new roller mill.

A cutter was seen on the streets of Saline the other day. The Observer subtly adds that it was Carvin's dray.

The number of bushels of apples evaporated at Manchester this year is only one-third of what it was last year.

The big turkey whose mysterious disappearance caused so great an excitement in Milan recently has been found—dead. A sportsman took it for a hawk.

Manley Birchard, of Chelsea, cannot keep his pet rabbits for bad boys will insist on stealing them. He has already lost nine, and mourns over the depravity of the coming generation.

Ypsilanti Maccabees gave a dance recently. The invitations contained the following unique order: "Married brothers are hereby ordered to bring their own wives; brothers contemplating marriage, their contemplations."

Are we to construe the following as a confession that marriage is a failure? Says the Saline Observer: "Mrs. Jane LaFeuer, of Macon, says she raised 100 bushels of corn per acre, and we won't dispute a woman, (we've been married to one nine years)."

Knowing the modesty and ability of the editor of the Ypsilanti Sentinel, we would be much pleased to see Mr. Woodruff placed in a lucrative and honorable position by the incoming administration. For years and years he has worked and written for his party, without reward, and now that opportunity offers, his labor should be recognized.—Chelsea Standard. Governor Winans should most certainly remember the Sentinel and its able editor.

The Maude Oswald Comedy Co., which lately played to empty houses here for three nights, is evidently gone to pieces. They were at Milford on Thursday of last week, and the Times says the company consisted of two members; the audience was fair and the performance decidedly poor.—Plymouth Mail. Maude wanted our printing bill to be sent her at Plymouth, but we did not think so, and it's probably just as well for us.—Saline Observer.

Help us, or we freeze. This is the burden of the following article from the Milan Leader: "We would feel very thankful indeed, when Thanksgiving day rolls around, if even a small percentage of those wood promises should be filled. 'I will bring you a load tomorrow,' says one; 'next week,' says another; 'the next time I come to town,' says a third; and so on, and not one in ten does as he says he will. We do not wish to be hard on any one, but we are telling the solemn truth. Talk about the gullibility lying around loose in the rural districts, why, the average country editor is the best kind of gullible timber. If we are going to have the wood, however, we want it now; if not, please bring us the cash that we may buy our wood elsewhere, before freeze-time takes place."

Such a howling mob was never before seen in Ypsilanti, as the 600 Ann Arbor students, on the way to Detroit by special train last Saturday morning. A substantial farmer living near this city, after enduring the deafening and senseless racket at the depot, as soon as the train had pulled away, said that he could make himself heard, said, "Well! I have two boys to send to college, but I don't want to send them where they are liable to become public nuisances, and to learn to regard riotous conduct as evidences of smartness." Another citizen added, "No, nor where the authorities of the institution so little recognize their obligation to the parents who entrust their boys to their charge, that the students can have drunken carousals without forfeiting their standing in the school."—Ypsilanti. The foregoing is unmitigated "rot." The Ypsilanti should not allow petty jealousy to run away with reason. My! My! is the utterance of a college yell such a criminal deed?

The rambler of the Ypsilanti Commercial relates the following truthful but somewhat overdrawn episode: "Walking down town the other day, I was pained to see the sad change that came on the face of a poor little fellow from the country. He was looking in the pretty window of the hardware, and was plainly getting some ideas of what good there is in things neat and pretty. I thought, 'That's right! My little man, take it all in, it will be of use to you sometime. Learn the beauty there is in life.' Just then two fellows of his own age came along puffing cigarettes. Bah! How I hate the nasty things! Instantly my little student lost all interest in the shop window. That hungry look that I have learned to know so well came into his eyes. He watched them till they turned the corner, and I knew that he would have no more leisure from his visit to town. A few more visits, too, will go for 'rot' in his pennies, too, will go for 'rot' in his pockets, and some other poor, anxious-looking fellow will be started on the road to procreancy. God pity him!"

CENSUS STATISTICS.

A Bulletin Showing the Indebtedness of Many Cities.

A Better Financial Condition Shown by a Great Number of Municipalities During the Past Ten Years.

SATISFACTORY FIGURES. WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The financial condition of 858 cities and large towns is shown in bulletin No. 14 just issued by the Census Office.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The financial condition of 858 cities and large towns is shown in bulletin No. 14 just issued by the Census Office. Within a few days a supplementary bulletin will be issued showing the same facts in relation to the remaining cities of this size.

The statistics presented cover, for each city or town, the bonded debt, the floating debt and the total debt; the cash in the treasury, the total available resources, the debt in excess of resources, resources in excess of debt and the annual interest charges.

The total debt for 1890 shows an increase of 8 per cent, as compared with 1880; on the other hand, the floating debt has decreased 17 per cent; the increase in the total debt in the ten years is 7 per cent. The amount of sinking funds has increased 28 per cent; the cash in the treasury has increased 81 per cent, and the total available resources have increased 50 per cent, since 1880.

The exhibit is, as a whole, a most satisfactory one, as compared with the last ten years the 858 cities and towns represented in the returns, by reducing their debt or increasing their resources, have bettered their condition financially to the amount of $45,770,919.

The Southern cities and towns have increased their debts by $3,577,353, but have increased their resources by $420,697; their net increase in debt is expressed by $3,156,656.

The Western cities and towns, like the Southern, have increased both their debts and resources. The increase in debts amounts to $12,650,078, and the increase in resources to $11,531,685; the net increase in debt is $1,118,393.

Of the total available resources, $50,575,246, the sinking funds represent $17,181,191, or 33.8 per cent, while $14,944,855, or 29.5 per cent, are in cash or other available resources. The total available resources represent 38.96 per cent of the gross debt, leaving 61.04 per cent for future liquidations.

An examination of the annual interest charges, as compared with the gross debt at interest, discloses some interesting comparative rates of interest in the different sections of the country.

In the Southern States the rate in 1880 was 4.91 per cent; it had risen in 1890 to 5.56 per cent, an increase of 0.65 per cent.

The Western States show an average interest charge of 5.78 per cent. In 1890 it had fallen to 5.50 per cent, a decrease of 0.28 per cent.

The Territories in 1890 paid an average interest of 13.82 per cent; this had fallen to 7.42 per cent, or a decrease of 6.40 per cent.

The general average for the United States in 1880 was 5.41 per cent. In 1890 it had fallen to 4.83 per cent, a decrease of .58 per cent.

Of the 858 cities and towns included in 1890 there were 779 in which the debt was in excess of the resources and 79 in which the resources exceeded the debt. In 1880 there were 746 (a decrease of 33) in which the resources exceeded the debt and 112 (an increase of 33) in which the resources exceeded the debt.

The decrease in debt in those cities and towns in which the debt exceeded the resources in 1880, as compared with 1890, was $31,474,927. The gain in resources over debt in those cities and towns in which the resources exceeded the debt in the same period was $18,298,772. These figures combined give $45,770,919, which has been previously stated as the exponent of the financial gains of the 858 municipalities in 1890, as compared with 1880.

Thirteen States increased their debt, while four show a decrease, the largest being that of California, represented by 47 per cent. Ten years ago returns from seven of the forty-one cities in Illinois showed that the resources exceeded the liabilities by $100,979.

Now nine cities show resources exceeding liabilities by $10,807,402. A summary for 1889-90 of the bonded debt of municipalities by States and Territories shows an aggregate for Illinois of $19,303,980; floating debt, $282,092; total debt, $19,586,072; sinking fund, $482,044; cash in treasury, $24,584,867; total available resources, $25,067,511; debt in excess of resources, $5,198,482; resources in excess of debt, $10,807,402; annual interest charges, $1,014,933.

Indiana's showing is as follows: Bonded debt, $5,417,650; floating debt, $141,935; total debt, $5,559,585; sinking fund, $226,431; cash in treasury, $849,409; total available resources, $1,075,810; debt in excess of resources, $4,503,934; resources in excess of debt, $19,159; annual interest charge, $295,166.

Michigan shows returns as follows: Bonded debt, $6,602,694; floating debt, $191,113; total debt, $7,093,717; sinking fund, $808,114; cash in treasury, $2,805,160; total available resources, $2,810,274; debt in excess of resources, $4,283,543; resources in excess of debt, $189,119; annual interest charge, $394,223.

Wisconsin makes the following display: Bonded debt, $3,207,009; floating debt, $28,633; total debt, $3,235,642; sinking fund, $211,732; cash in treasury, $882,978; total available resources, $1,049,670; debt in excess of resources, $4,313,831; resources in excess of debt, $177,839; annual interest charge, $187,324.

End of the Revolution. TROTCUICALPA, Nov. 17.—General Longinos Sanchez, who headed the recent attempt to overthrow the Government of President Bogran, and who with his forces held this city for the brief period of one week, has been captured and, with the principal leaders of his army, shot. The revolution is at an end.

A Thanksgiving Invitation. My Dear Mr. Turkey—May we count on your presence at dinner on Thursday, the 29th? No great preparation is necessary, as we feel sure you will be well dressed. You will be the cynosure of all eyes and the object of open mouth admiration.

You will meet with a hearty reception from some men, who will come to dinner after the exercises of the morning, which may be violent, and you need not fear that several pretty girls, who are to be present, will like you very much. Your old friend, Crutney Sauce, will be placed near you—and you two always got along beautifully together, you know. The paternal-familial will pay you marked attention and see that you are not monopolized by any one person.

For your grand old friends, Crutney Sauce, will be used by it, especially cooking on your tenderness. It may amuse you, but nevertheless it is a fact that even the cook anticipates your coming, and is making great preparations in consequence.

You will be surrounded by pretty girls, and be in the midst of those who will be sure to appreciate you. We look to you to appeal to the inner consciousness of our guests. Until Thursday, then, yours, EVERYBODY.

P. S.—It may fall to your lot to touch the lips of some of the girls. Take warning—you won't be permitted to linger long in that enviable proximity. —Adapted from Life.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 18. Three nihilists, two men and a woman, have been condemned to be hanged for plotting against the life of the Czar.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Century Magazine is now so well known that to tell of its past success seems almost an old story. The N. Y. Tribune has said that it and its companion, St. Nicholas, for Young Folks, issued by the same house, "are read by every one person in thirty of the country's population,"—and large editions of both are sent beyond the seas.

It is an interesting fact that a few years ago it was found that seven thousand copies of The Century went to Scotland—quite a respectable edition in itself. The question in England is no longer "Who reads an American book?" but "Who does not see the American magazines?"

A few years ago The Century about doubled its circulation with the famous War Papers by General Grant and others, adding many more readers later with the Lincoln History and Kennan's thrilling articles on the Siberian Exile System. One great feature of 1889 is to be

"THE GOLD HUNTERS OF CALIFORNIA," describing that remarkable movement to the gold fields in '49, in a series of richly illustrated articles written by survivors, including the narrative of a man who went to California by the different routes, accounts of the gold discoveries, life in the mines, the work of the vigilance committees, (by the chairman of the committees) etc., etc. General Fremont's last writing was done for this series. In November appears the opening article, "The First Emigrant Train to California,"—crossing the Rockies in 1842,—by General Bidwell, a pioneer of pioneers. Thousands of American families who over some relative or friend among "the Argonauts of '49" will be interested in these papers.

MANY OTHER GOOD THINGS ARE COMING,—the narrative of an American's travel through that unknown land (not for 700 miles over ground never before trod by white man); the experiences of escaping War-Prisoners; American Newspapers described by well known journalists; accounts of the great Indian Fighters, Custer and others; personal anecdotes of Lincoln, by his private secretaries; "The Faith Doctor," a novel by Edward Eggleston, with a wonderfully rich program of novelties and stories by most of the leading writers, etc., etc.

It is also announced that The Century has purchased the right to print, before its appearance in France or any other country, extracts from advance sheets of the famous Talleyrand Memoirs, which have been secretly preserved for half a century—to be first given to the world through the pages of an American magazine.

As Europe is eagerly awaiting the publication of this personal history of Talleyrand—greatest of intriguers and diplomats.

The November Century begins the volume and new subscribers should commence with that issue. The subscription price ($4.00) may be remitted directly to the publishers, The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., New York, or single copies may be purchased of any newsdealer. The publishers offer to send a free sample copy—a recent back number—to anyone desiring it.

Harper's Weekly has never failed to justify its title as a "Journal of Civilization," and it has done so with a constant regard to enlarged possibilities of usefulness and a higher standard of artistic and literary excellence. It leaves untouched no important phase of the world's progress, and presents a record, equally trustworthy and interesting, of the notable events, persons, and achievements of our times. Special supplements will be continued in 1891. They will be literary, scientific, artistic, historical, topographical, or descriptive, as occasion may demand, and will continue to deserve the hearty commendation which has been bestowed on past issues by the press and the public.

As a family journal, Harper's Weekly, as heretofore, be edited with a strict regard for the qualities that make it a safe and welcome visitor to every home. Harper's Periodicals, per Year: Harper's Weekly, $4.00; Harper's Magazine, $4.00; Harper's Bazar, $4.00; Harper's Young People, $2.00. Postage free to all subscribers in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. The volumes of the Weekly begin with the first number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the number current at the time of receipt of order. Bound volumes of Harper's Weekly for three years back, in neat cloth binding, will be sent by mail, postage paid, or by express, free of expense (provided the freight does not exceed one dollar per volume), for $7.00 per volume. Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be received by mail, post-paid, on receipt of $1.00 each. Remittances should be made by post-office money order or draft, to avoid chance of loss. Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper and Brothers. Address, Harper & Brothers, New York.

The first sixteen Satires of Juvenal edited by Thomas B. Lindsay, Ph. B. of Boston University, and printed by D. Appleton & Co., of the American Book Company, has just been received. Beside containing excellent notes, the book is very attractive by its eighty-six illustrations bearing more or less directly on subjects discussed in the Satires. It also contains a list of Dates of Roman Emperors and Dates of Roman Writers. The type is exceptionally clear and neat and the book altogether most pleasing to the eye. D. Appleton & Co., N. Y.

A Thanksgiving Invitation. My Dear Mr. Turkey—May we count on your presence at dinner on Thursday, the 29th? No great preparation is necessary, as we feel sure you will be well dressed. You will be the cynosure of all eyes and the object of open mouth admiration.

You will meet with a hearty reception from some men, who will come to dinner after the exercises of the morning, which may be violent, and you need not fear that several pretty girls, who are to be present, will like you very much. Your old friend, Crutney Sauce, will be placed near you—and you two always got along beautifully together, you know. The paternal-familial will pay you marked attention and see that you are not monopolized by any one person.

For your grand old friends, Crutney Sauce, will be used by it, especially cooking on your tenderness. It may amuse you, but nevertheless it is a fact that even the cook anticipates your coming, and is making great preparations in consequence.

You will be surrounded by pretty girls, and be in the midst of those who will be sure to appreciate you. We look to you to appeal to the inner consciousness of our guests. Until Thursday, then, yours, EVERYBODY.

P. S.—It may fall to your lot to touch the lips of some of the girls. Take warning—you won't be permitted to linger long in that enviable proximity. —Adapted from Life.

A CITY LUXURY.

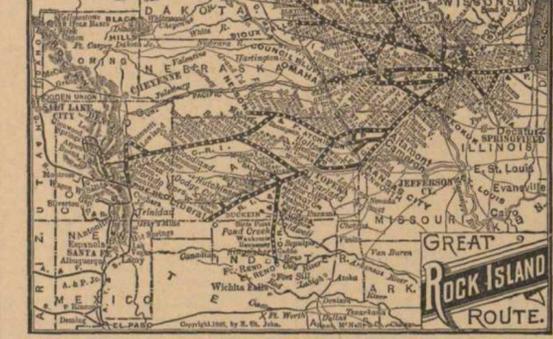

Just as the city looks to the country for most of the luxuries used on its tables, so the country must turn to the city for those conveniences which are justly termed luxuries for the hard-working housewife. City housekeepers have learned to realize that to save time is to lengthen life.

SAPOLIO!

is one of the best known city luxuries and each time a cake is used an hour is saved. On floors, tables and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans and metals it has no equal. IF YOUR STOREKEEPER DOES NOT KEEP IT YOU SHOULD INSIST UPON HIS DOING SO, as it always gives satisfaction and its immense sale all over the United States makes it an almost necessary article to any well-supplied store. Everything shines after its use, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.

BURLINGTON ROUTE

Cheap Lands in the West. Along the lines of the BURLINGTON ROUTE in Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and northwestern Kansas, particularly on its new extension in that territory, there is still some Government Land awaiting settlement, as well as other cheap lands held by individuals. These lands are among the best to be had anywhere in the country for agricultural and grazing purposes. In the comparatively new districts many improved farms which can be purchased at a very low rate of that class of real estate pioneer-settlers who are ready at all times to sell "hot" lands. In the territory embraced by the BURLINGTON ROUTE west of the Missouri river, there are in the vicinity of two hundred new towns which offer to manufacturers and business men an excellent opportunity to locate with profit. Send to the undersigned for descriptive pamphlets and other matter giving location and full particulars concerning these lands.

VENUES OF THE SEASON.

Wait Whitman's Thanks. Thanks in old age—thanks ere I go. For health, the midday sun, the impalpable air—for life, mere life.

For precious ever lingering memories (of you, my mother, dear—you, father—you, brothers, sisters, friends). For all my days—not those of peace alone—the days of war the same.

For gentle words, caresses, gifts from foreign lands. For shelter, wine and meat—for sweet appreciation. (You distant, dim unknown—or young, or old—countless, unspecified, beloved.

We never met, and ne'er shall meet—and yet our souls embrace, long close and long. For beings, groups, love, deeds, words, books—for colors, forms.

For all the brave, strong men—devoted, hardy—men—who've forward sprung in Freedom's help all years, all lands. For braver, stronger, more devoted men—(a special laurel ere I go to life's war's chosen ones.

The cannoners of song and thought—the great artillerymen—the foremost leaders, captains of the soul.) As soldier from an ended war return'd—As traveler out of myriads, to the long procession respectively.

The American Feast. BEFORE THE THANKSGIVING DINNER. Happy, happy man! Tripping easily 'long the street, Loaded down with tidbits sweet, Loaded down with turkey fat, Delicacies and all that— Happy, happy man!

AFTER THE THANKSGIVING DINNER. Aching, aching man! Skulking sadly 'long the street, Loaded down with tidbits sweet, With stuffed turkey, rich and fat, Delicacies and all that— Aching, aching man! —J. Aldrich.

Little Honora Mullally. Poor little Honora Mullally, At the close of the Thanksgiving day, Was standing in front of her alley, A-watching some children at play.

Her gown was a wonderful garment, All patches from shoulder to hem, And her hat and her shoes—well, I beg you'll excuse me. Any further remark about them.

But poor little Honora Mullally Had a face just as bright as could be, And no flower in meadow or valley Was ever as pretty as she.

And so thought an old woman who, passing, Stopped a moment to scoldingly say, "Why, bless your dear heart, I am sure you have had A very good dinner today." "Yes, indeed," said Honora Mullally, "I did, for my friend Mrs. Down Had a hope of sweet taters that Sallie, Her sister, baked lovely and brown.

Wide—oh, ma'am, if you could but have seen it!— The fattest and finest of hinds, And they giv' me the gizzard and neck of that hind, And all of the sweet tater skins." —Harper's Young People.

Thanksgiving Chimes. Thanks to our God we pay, Thanks for the year Of love and cheer, Of daily food, Of constant good, Thanks to our God this day.

Thanks to our God we pay For morning light, For noontide's sheen, For quiet even, For peaceful night, Thanks to our God this day.

Thanks to our God we pay For winter's snow, For spring's soft flow, For summer's glow, For autumn's show, Thanks to our God this day.

Thanks to our God we pay For smile and tear, For grief and cheer, For gain, for loss, For crown, for cross, Thanks to our God this day. —R. M. Oxford in New York Observer.

The Thanksgiving Turkey. As Thanksgiving day walks down this way The strutting turkey is ill at ease; "Th' poor as the turkey of Job," says he; "Tough and unfit to eat, you see; I gobble no more of my pedigree, Least some poor fellow should gobble me; And a turkey buzzard I think I'll be, For the present, if you please." —Binghamton Republican.

SOME OLD TIME FIGURES. A Yankee Thanksgiving—Ninety-eight Years Ago. The following is taken from The Norwich (Conn.) Weekly Register of November, 1792, published by Messrs. Bushnell & Hubbard.

Thanksgiving day may be a good institution, but it is more like the day of destruction than any other day. It may not be unamusing to take a peep at the transactions and expense of the whole week, and see what real good we derive from this day, and it requires no uncommon intellects to ken the deeds done by 685,000 people, for the same tragical scenes are acting in every family in this state [Connecticut], Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

It is late, very late, when the crowd of buyers begins to grow less, and it is much later when the last cash transaction has been made. How many of the buyers have thought as they provided for their own Thanksgiving cheer of the thousands who will eat no turkey on the morrow?

No one can answer this question, but we know that some have; we know that many baskets have been carried away from the great markets laden with good things for others than the purchasers; we know that while the ostensible spirit of thankfulness has been quite smothered in many a breast by the spirit of selfish anticipation of good things to eat on the morrow, many a table scantily spread on most days will then groan under good things thoughtfully and unobtrusively provided by generous hands and hearts and purses.

And there is no better time, well fed reader, whether you live in town or country, for you to mingle generosity with your less fortunate friends with thankfulness for your own material prosperity than this Thanksgiving seas.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

Turkey, the Sovereign Bird, Receives the Homage of the Metropolis. The few days that immediately precede Thanksgiving are great days in the New York markets, and the day before Thanksgiving is something enormous.

If living turkeys could only foresee the homage that would be paid them on this day they would no doubt run to the headsman's block without urging, and stretch their necks for the ax.

For in truth the honors paid to this kindly bird at this season are amazing. All day a great crowd throngs Washington and Fulton markets, the principal mausoleums of the honored fowl.

At nightfall Vesey street is almost impassable, and the neighborhood of West and Washington streets is packed with people carrying baskets, bags and even portmanteaus.

Around on all sides, glorified by the golden gaslight, hang the shapely turkeys, with crimson rosettes, like stars of the Legion of Honor, pinned on their exuberant breasts. Sacredly guarding the dead stand the undertakers, commonly known as poultry dealers; stout, rubicund, argumentative, loud voiced, and, strange to say, jolly. Why strange? of course they are jolly, and so would the turkeys be if they were alive!

For all the men, women and children in the crowd are intensely jolly, and rightly consider that they have not come to witness a burial, but an apotheosis of turkeys.

A sad eyed little widow, leading a school girl by the hand, is struck with the delicate beauty of a long necked bird, and offers to see that it is buried with the proper ceremonies, but the undertaker says such a luxury will cost her at the rate of, say, eighteen cents a pound.

With a sigh she drops the beautiful fowl and takes another less stately and satisfactory, for which she pays sixteen cents a pound. The eighteen cents a pound bird is snapped up by a plethoric, red faced old gentleman, who wears false teeth and a single eyeglass.

After him comes a newly married couple, linked arm in arm and carrying two huge baskets. The husband is tall, angular and ugly; the bride small, sweet and seductive. She yearns for a five dollar bird, whereas he thinks $3.50 will be enough, and that the rest of the money can be spent on groceries.

But she makes the turkey's merits so evident to her spouse that he finally hands over a crisp, new five dollar bill, tucks the bird under his arm and strides off to a vegetable stall, where he pays out $1.25 for celery, sage, cranberries and cauliflowers.

Two young girls who keep house for themselves debate for a quarter of an hour as to whether they shall buy a lean turkey or a fat chicken, and finally buy the chicken. A fractious old gentleman who hears this conversation eschews turkey also, and satisfies himself with a fine looking duck.

His wife, a handsome woman, with a red rose in her bonnet, spends nearly half an hour searching for green peas. A handsome woman, wearing a long seal skin and a queer arrangement of black velvet and crimson ribbon on her head, pays little attention to the turkeys and very much to the crowd.

As she stands beside a vegetable stall, under the flaring gaslight, her gorgeous head-dress and pale, statuesque face form a striking contrast to the forest of green behind her, and a painter who could utilize the scene ought to make a small fortune out of it.

Busy as the markets are during the day, they are ten times more busy during the evening. Along the gaslit aisles of Washington market passes a great throng of men and women, their eyes fixed on the long lines of decorated turkeys, chickens, ducks and geese, and their ears apparently deaf to the honeyed invitations of the blue shirted plethoric dealers, who are never tired of expatiating on the succulence, freshness and general beauty of their goods.

Now and then a woman will stop, lay down her basket, feel the breast of a turkey with the thumb and forefinger of her right hand, inquire its price, expostulate at the dearthness, hesitate a moment or two and then draw out her purse and march homeward with the coveted fowl in her possession. Men buy too, and so do not a few young girls and boys.

All seem to get just what they want, and not many discontented or dissatisfied faces are to be seen at any time at any of the markets.

What right has any one who is discontented or who hasn't the wherewithal to buy a turkey in the big markets on Thanksgiving eve? They are not wanted here, and the plenty that is so free to the more fortunate would simply make them more discontented.

It is late, very late, when the crowd of buyers begins to grow less, and it is much later when the last cash transaction has been made. How many of the buyers have thought as they provided for their own Thanksgiving cheer of the thousands who will eat no turkey on the morrow?

No one can answer this question, but we know that some have; we know that many baskets have been carried away from the great markets laden with good things for others than the purchasers; we know that while the ostensible spirit of thankfulness has been quite smothered in many a breast by the spirit of selfish anticipation of good things to eat on the morrow, many a table scantily spread on most days will then groan under good things thoughtfully and unobtrusively provided by generous hands and hearts and purses.

And there is no better time, well fed reader, whether you live in town or country, for you to mingle generosity with your less fortunate friends with thankfulness for your own material prosperity than this Thanksgiving seas.

Thanksgiving is really the highest devotion, the truest mark of the true Christian. It consists, moreover, not of speech only, but of action, of thank offering as well as thanksgiving. So this present great annual national day of thanksgiving ought to bring forth abundant treasure from those on whom God has bestowed his blessing.

OF TURKEY AND FIXIN'S.

WITHOUT THEM WHAT WOULD THANKSGIVING BE?

A Writer of Most Blessed Experiences Dwells Feelingly and Wisely Upon the Glories of the Thanksgiving Day of Olden Time.

Thanksgiving would not be Thanksgiving without its turkey and fixin's. Who does not remember who can look back to an old-fashioned Thanksgiving at a New England homestead, with what anxiety he awaited the opening of the great rick oven? Very early in the day a roaring fire of wood was built in the oven. A couple of hours later the embers and ashes would be removed and the bottom of the oven carefully swept with a turkey's wing.

Then came the procession of good things, the turkeys, the chicken pies, the apple, mince and pumpkin pies and all the rest, and disappeared in the cavernous depths. Mysterious sounds and fragrant odors came from those same depths ever and anon, as some matron approached and, opening the iron door, peered in for a moment.

THE WELCOME DINNER HORN. The boys and girls could scarcely wait for the slow process of baking to be performed properly. Driven at last from the kitchen by their elders, they took refuge in the attic, where they rummaged to their hearts' delight; or in the outer air, where they passed the time in playing those time honored games of "two-old-cat" or "barnstick." They were never too diligently employed at either of these occupations to hear the dinner horn. They responded promptly when its melodious tones burst upon the air, but paused decorously at the door of the great kitchen.

What a scene burst upon their eyes and what odors delighted their senses! The long table, formed of all the tables in the house set in a row, was covered with spotless linen. At either end and in the center a huge turkey thrust his crisped legs appealingly in the air, while midway upon each side reposed a great chicken pie, with a diamond shaped hole cut carefully in the flaky top. Dishes of white potatoes, golden squash, pale yellow turnips, fragrant onions and crimson cranberry sauce held their appropriate places, while bowls of gravy and great branches of celery filled the intervening spaces.

THE SCIENTIFIC CARVER. The curved outlines of those mammoth gobblers were soon lost under the knife of the carver. In every family there is always one if not more who prides himself upon his skill at carving.

"Always insert your fork with the tines upon either side of the breast bone, and, once inserted, do not remove it until the carving is completed. Remove a leg and a wing first, then carve the breast upon the same side. Cut long, thin, smooth slices, and do not mangle the flesh. When one side is thoroughly carved begin on the other, if the waiting appetites will allow." These are the instructions that the experienced carver will always give between the strokes of his keen blade.

After the turkey and "fixin's" had been disposed of, and every body helped twice, the dishes were removed and the pies brought on.

THE GLORY OF THE MINCE PIE. Who can fitly describe the glories of the mince pie of our grandmothers? We never have such snowstorms nowadays as we used to have when we were boys; the woods are never so brilliant as they were then; the fish never bite so quickly, and the chestnuts and shagbarks are never so fat and luscious as when we used to find them under the leaves. So, too, the mince pie of today is thin, fat and insipid and bears no resemblance to those which used to come out, smoking and fragrant, from the old brick oven. They needed no brandy "to make them keep." They were for the present use only. But it cannot be denied that the cider in the barrel in the shed was slightly lowered when a batch of pies was made ready for the baking.

As for the pumpkin pies, what a rich golden color they had, so different from the sickly yellow of the modern marrow-fat squash. How those pumpkins used to glow as they lay in the field ripening slowly in the late sunshine and growing sweeter with the early frosts.

And the apples, too; how we watched them as they grew redder and redder as the autumn advanced, until they reached just the exact tint of perfection. How we used to climb the trees and drop them into the blue checked gingham aprons that the girls held stretched below.

After the pies came the nuts gathered in the woods and raisins from the grocer's cart. And then came the season of meditation. Somehow it always happened that the boys did not feel just like finishing that game of "two-old-cat" directly after dinner. They climbed to the mow and stretched themselves in the fragrant hay or took a walk in the woods, scaring out a rabbit or a partidge, and coming home with handfuls of checkerberry leaves, or sassafras, or birch bark.

IN THE FIRELIGHT. As night drew on a formal supper was dispensed with. Doughnuts and cheese and pies would be spread upon the table for those who wished. But they were not in great demand. A little later the family were all assembled in the parlor, and there were charades and character sketches and songs by the young folks, while their elders sat around the great fire upon the hearth.—Boston Record.

Too Honest to Succeed. "What kind of bread do you like best?" asked a kind hearted old lady who was getting something for the tramp's Thanksgiving.

"The bread of idleness, mum."—Exchange.

Too Particular by Half. "It seems ter me dat folks gets mighty 'scular about lookin' up deir ole hen-cos when T'anksgiving' comes along. How do dey 'speck bones' poor fokes' goin' to get a dinner, I wonder?"—Life.

A POOR ARGUMENT.

Samuel R. Downing's Talk to the Pennsylvania Grange on Road Improvement.

In the course of a paper read by Samuel R. Downing before the Pennsylvania State grange he said:

A trait of our business character is that we will pay 7 per cent. for the use of a pike in tolls, and probably 3 per cent. in addition for its maintenance, when we could by a simple operation that a child could understand turn this 7 per cent. into our pockets instead of giving it to others and saying how hard are the times.

There is not time for me to illustrate the saving of macadam roads in speed and draft. In all our journeyings to the railroad station, to mill, to school with the children, to the town market, to church and postoffice, there is time and draft expended during the coldest days and roughest roads of the year. This, if you will demonstrate with your own pencil, will equal easily two mills on the assessed valuation of your township. And we should remember that these journeyings do not end with a decade.

If you please, I will recapitulate. A state appropriation in behalf of better roads will be money paid by railroads, banks and corporations generally, and also by owners of bonds, mortgages and notes. Thus, if Pennsylvania appropriates money for a road administration and construction, farm owners can freely sanction a generous appropriation.

A six inch macadam means virtually an eight inch depth road at the lowest cost of a six inch road, in that it is composed of three layers, one of two to three inch rubble, and of one inch and a half stone, and the surface of stone chippings to the depth of two inches. This bed being laid upon a convex, dry surface, and being well packed by using a traction engine and iron wheeled truck for hauling, will equal a loose, large stoned ten inch depth.

As reapers, binders and mowers cost at one time double their present prices, so when the full economy of road structure is reached, when crushers and competition between contractors are increased, and the knowledge is acquired that less bulk of stone is needed, the cost of macadam will be reduced.

There is needed road supervision by bonded experts capable of estimating and enforcing true estimates of costs and of determining between the rights of the people against any unjust claims of contractors. Expert supervision is needed further to insure the most durable, comfortable road for the least sum of money. The cost of a skillful county engineer would be earned several fold in the saving of money, comfort and health to the people.

Should the state appropriate annually $1,500,000 (this would yield an award of $400 for a mile in each district per year) and allow, in addition, a sufficient sum for the support of a road bureau, the appropriation would be generally accepted, the bureau being composed of experts, and, I repeat, our roads would be honestly built, and for a reasonable sum and under the safeguard of state provisions and specifications.

As individuals we are more far sighted than as citizens. We will pay $3 extra for a rocking chair, or $9 extra for a lounge, or $30 extra for a sulky, cultivator or plow rather than walk. As individuals we find economy in self respect, self comfort, self luxury, without thought of any money profit. But as citizens we cannot always see that a raise of tax for all the year round, permanent roads not only secures health, comfort, luxury, but is an investment equal to that of a building association, creating its measure of wealth in increased farm values, in its saving of waste, time and draft. If forty years ago economics had been a part of our school curriculum we would have been wealthier as a body politic today.

No matter how cruel our roads may be to us, or how they may scandalize us with the shame of lacking even the least modicum of business spirit or Christian endeavor; no matter how they rob us more than trusts may rob us, still they despoil, still they take hours away from our comfort and add hours of storms and stinging cold and buffetings to our lives. While it is perfectly right and incumbent to aim our censures at "combinations" that bear the price of our products even in times of scarcity and demand, it is equally well to reserve a share of judgment to ourselves in permitting self cruelty and self robbery, through the agency of bad thoroughfares, by failure to fearlessly stand up and press for a road system based upon a material that can only transform the bogs of winter, the bogs of the coldest, most stormful portion of all the year, into fleet, smooth, indestructible roads.

An Argument from Connecticut.

These remarks, made by The Norwich (Conn.) Bulletin, will apply to nearly every state in the Union:

There are probably between 80,000 and 100,000 miles of road and street in this state—public road and public street.

To say that they are no worse than the roads and streets in some other parts of New England is not to say much for them. The average road in Connecticut is an eyesore to every traveler over it, a trial to every pedestrian, an needless squandering of energy to every horse or ox which draws loads over it, an extravagant and thriftless waste of money and vital forces and a dusty, muddy, sandy disgrace to the community which tolerates it.

Just think of it! For more than 200 years the most of these roads have been laid out and traveled. They were "made" and they have been "repaired." And now, after these 200 years of alleged intelligent effort at road making, three miles out of every five are either mere sand beds, mud holes, rutted tracks, "thank ye ma'ams" or gullies. To drive rapidly along them is uncomfortable in the even the lightest and easiest of vehicles; to drag heavy loads over them requires at least double the number of horses or oxen which would suffice to drag the same loads over good roads; every year they wear out more money invested in horseflesh and vehicles than would suffice, if properly expended, year for year, to macadamize every main road in the state within half a century.

FIGHTING FOR GOOD ROADS.

This Winter Will See Good Work in the Legislatures.

The fight for good country roads is growing hotter every day. More men are taking it up and the battle methods are constantly being improved upon. The coming sessions of the various state legislatures will see many a bill introduced to bring about common sense improvements of highways, and let us hope the sessions will also see the passage of these bills with a rush.

The campaign which will be carried on in the New York state legislature is only a fair sample of what the friends of road improvement will do in many states. Of it Mr. Isaac B. Potter, who is in the thick of it, says:

"The Richardson bill which was introduced in the senate last winter will open the campaign again this year, and I consider its chances for success good. Last winter it received a numerical majority in the senate, lacking only two votes of the necessary two-thirds for passage. Last session it did not go to the assembly, but if it passes the senate this winter it will go to the assembly with a vengeance and the backing of some of the most influential and intelligent men in that body.

"It practically carries out the suggestions made by Governor Hill in his latest annual message calling for a $10,000,000 constitutional loan to be raised on the credit of the state, and payable in seven years. The money thus obtained is to be devoted to the construction and maintenance of country roads, exactly in line with the policy which Governor Hill advocated as follows:

"It has been suggested that the state should proceed to construct through every county two highways running in different directions and intersecting each other in about the center of the county, such roads to form a part of a complete general system, those in each county to connect with those of adjoining counties, and to be known everywhere as state roads, constructed, cared for and maintained at the expense of the state at large, under direction and supervision of the state engineer and surveyor, or other competent authority to be designated.

"This system, when once completed, would enable a person to start from New York city, Albany or any other point on foot or in a carriage, and visit every county in the state without once leaving the state roads, thus insuring comfort, convenience, pleasure and speed. These roads should be macadamized or constructed of crushed stone or other suitable material, with proper culverts, good bridges, adequate drainage, watering troughs and sign boards, so as to compare favorably with the best country roads in other countries, and existing highways could be utilized for this purpose as far as feasible.

"These state roads would not only prove of great convenience and vast advantage to the whole community, but they would serve as 'object lessons' to local authorities, the effect of which would necessarily tend to improve the ordinary town highways and prove of inestimable benefit.

"It is realized that the project here suggested would require many years to fully carry out, and the outlay of a vast sum of money; but the state is practically out of debt, and it is believed that there are no constitutional objections to be overcome, and before any debt is contracted for the purpose the question of the propriety of the expenditure should be submitted to the people of the state. The subject is of sufficient importance to merit the careful consideration of the legislature.

"This Richardson bill," continued Mr. Potter, "has been greatly misunderstood, especially in the rural districts, which would reap the largest share of benefit from it. If it were made a law it would insure to the farmers of New York state at least 3,000 miles of good roads, to be constructed and constantly kept in repair at the expense of the state. Moreover, the tax paid by the farmer would be materially less than that which he pays under the present system. A careful computation, based on statistics from every county in the state, shows that the farmers would pay only 8 per cent. of the taxes on the new roads, while the cities would meet the other 92 per cent., but still no injustice is done to the towns.

"The advantages of good roads in the rural districts would affect favorably the prices of nearly every sort of produce which the city man is obliged to buy. As the cost of production would be reduced to the farmer he could afford to sell his wares for less money to the city man, without making his own profit column shorter. And that the cost of production would be lessened is evident to every man who knows anything of the saving in wear and tear on horses and vehicles which is brought about where the farmers' loads can be hauled over hard, smooth and well kept roads, instead of the mired and rutty abominations now in vogue.

"Mr. Richardson represents a farming community, and his bill is drawn in the interests of his constituents. The main objection is expected from the cities, but it is hoped that it will not be very strong."

Mr. Potter has been sending to prominent men in all states drafts of bills for introduction in their legislatures, which will of course be modified to suit local conditions. The interest felt in the matter is shown by the fact that applications for such documents are pouring in on him from all sections of the country.

The campaign which is being waged is vigorous and original. The workers are convinced that all that is necessary is to show the people that good roads would really benefit them to gain their co-operation. Mr. Potter says he would like to have every man in the United States who owns a camera send to him photos of every particularly bad road in his vicinity, and of the dilemmas brought about thereby—of loads stuck in the mud, of vehicles overturned by the mountains of gravel which make many roads impassable, and which are labeled "improvements;" in short, of everything which might be used by the advocates of road reform as a "before taking."

In 1891 The Living Age enters upon its forty-eighth year. It has met with constant commendation and success. A weekly magazine, it gives more than three and a quarter thousand double-column octavo pages of reading matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter, with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a completeness nowhere else attempted, the best essays, reviews, criticisms, tales, sketches of travel and discovery, poetry, scientific, biographical, historical and political information, from the entire body of foreign periodical literature, and from the pens of the foremost living writers. The ablest and most cultivated intellects, in every department of literary, science, politics, and art, find expression in the periodical literature of Europe, and especially of Great Britain. The Living Age, forming four large volumes a year, furnishes, from the great and generally inaccessible mass of this literature, the only compilation that, while within the reach of all, is satisfactory in the completeness with which it embraces whatever is of immediate interest, or of solid, permanent value. It is indispensable to every one who wishes to keep pace with the events or intellectual progress of the time, or to cultivate in himself or his family general intelligence and literary taste. Published weekly at $8.00 a year free of postage. To new subscribers for the year 1891, remitting before January 1, the numbers of 1890 issued after the receipt of their subscriptions, will be sent gratis. [Possessed of The Living Age and one or other of our vivacious American monthlies, a subscriber will find himself in command of the whole situation.—Phila. Ev. Bulletin.] For $10.50, The Living Age and any one of the American $4 monthlies (or Harper's Weekly or Bazar) will be sent for a year, postpaid; or for $9.50, The Living Age and Scribner's Magazine or the St. Nicholas. Rates for clubbing more than one other periodical with one copy of The Living Age will be sent on Application. Address, Little & Co., Boston.

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. A Boston lady, whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla, the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, knew what it was, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other. When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable with dyspepsia and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." Mrs. ELLA A. GORF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

The Beautiful Guild.

ANN ARBOR, June 7th, 1890.

MR. WILSEY, DEAR SIR:—I enclose the testimonial for which you asked. It gives me pleasure to send it to you, as I like my piano so much. When you can make it convenient, come out and see how it has stood the wear and tear of nine years. Yours Truly, LILLIE BAESSLER. With regard to the Guild purchased of you nine years ago. Its tone is as mellow and sweet as ever, and in standing in tune I have never been its equal. Any one contemplating the purchase of a piano, will find it to their interest to examine the Guild. Respectfully, LILLIE BAESSLER.

The Guild has stood "wear and tear" better, and held its own better than any piano I have ever sold. Over 25,000 have been manufactured, and sold very largely in Boston and vicinity. The great music publishing house of Ditson & Co has sold over 800 of them in the City of Boston. The simple (patent) tuning device is the greatest improvement of the day, and will save expense to the owner besides the satisfaction of having a piano constantly in tune. The swinging music desk running the entire length of the piano is perfection. They please, they sell. Why? See them, and you will learn. Manufactured in Boston for nearly thirty years.

ALVIN WILSEY, State Agent.

A MEMORY.

The path from me to you that led,
Untrodden long, with grass is grown,
Mute carpet that his legs spread
Before the Prince Oblivion
When he goes visiting the dead.
And who are they but who forget?
You, who my coming could surmise
Ere any hint of mine as yet
Warned other ears and other eyes,
See the path blurred without regret.
But when I trace its windings sweet
With saddened steps, at every spot
That feels the memory in my feet,
Each grass blade turns forget-me-not,
Where murmuring bees your name repeat.
—James Russell Lowell

Science No Aid to Beauty.

The air of physical refinement, which is what continuous culture should give, is precisely the air which is often lacking among the cultivated, as it is also in many aristocratic families. Indeed, though caste must mean more or less hereditary culture, it is doubtful if it secures beauty. It does not in the royal houses, and in any regiment, though an officer or two will probably stand first, the proportion of splendid men will be found greater among the non-commissioned than the commissioned officers. Science can no more make a Circassian than a one legged race, and the physical attributes, like the grace of God, are independent of thinking. If a race of heroes, indeed, stalking among lesser men, as Kingsley depicts the Goths stalking among the far more quick witted and better cultivated Alexandrians. An entire race like Alexander the Great, the man in whom, of all mankind, brain power and physique were united in their highest perfection, would soon be more intolerable than the "Yankee" aristocracy whom Mr. Bismarck detested, denounced and worshipped.—Spectator.

Stanley's Irish Surgeon.

Dr. Parke, to whom Mr. Stanley and the other members of the Emin relief expedition are under so heavy a debt of gratitude, is an Irishman. He is the son of Mr. W. Parke, J. P., Clogher House, Kilmore, county Roscommon. He pursued his medical studies in the Dublin schools of medicine, and on completing them he entered the Army Medical service. He accompanied Lord Charles Beresford in his memorable dash up the Nile to Khartoum, who said of him, "I never met in the British army or navy a finer fellow than Tom Parke." It was Lord Charles Beresford who recommended him to Stanley, and how he sustained the high opinion of England's first sailor Stanley's own words best tell. The great explorer has frequently stated that he owed his life more than once to the great abilities and splendid courage of his physician, and also that "Dr. Parke behaved toward the women in the heart of Africa as he would toward ladies in a London drawing room."—Exchange.

Difficuly of Stealing.

Only one attempt was ever made to steal from the bureau of engraving and printing. An employe engaged in printing $3 bills brought a sheet of lead foil with him one morning when he came to work, and slid it through his press without putting any ink on the plate that once. The impression that he got of the plate was first rate, but he was nabbed before he got out of the building on information by the girl assistant at his press, who saw him do the act. He was sent to the penitentiary, and a patent device was promptly adopted for future protection by which each press registers every revolution of the cylinder that prints one sheet of notes. The number of notes printed must correspond exactly with the number of revolutions or else there will be trouble, and no lead foil or wax either can be slipped through without leaving an unexplained record of its passage.—Washington Star.

Marriage Among the Zunis.

The Zunis farm in a desultory sort of way, raise sufficient corn and vegetables for their own consumption and cull from their trees sufficient fruit for their wants. I asked Tu-ma-cha regarding the marriage ceremony of the Zunis. His own explanation is curt, concise and complete. He says that when a man wants a wife he simply picks out his choice, chases her down to the creek, catches her and takes her home to live with him as his squaw. "How about divorces in Zuni?" I asked. "Divorce? I no sabe divorce," he said. "Suppose, from any cause, you did not want to live with your wife any longer?" "Put her out; get another one," and the sage walked away.—Cor. New York World.

A Horse That Knew a Thing or Two.

A great many horses are fed on the streets from "cat bags" drawn up over their noses, and wobbling about in a manner which must make it very uncomfortable to eat one's dinner in that way. A bright horse down in "Pie alley" the other day had nearly reached the bottom of his bag. It wobbled awfully, but the oats were sweet and he was hungry. In front of him stood a wagon, and the wagon had a wheel. Happy thought! He walked up to the wheel, rested his canvas bucket on the top of it and finished his dinner to the last oat in a comfortable, leisurely fashion, and with a twinkle in his eye. "If that was not a triumph of mind over matter what is?—Boston Herald.

A Famous Printing House.

One of the most famous printing houses that ever existed was that founded at Antwerp by Christopher Plantin in 1555, and which continued under the control of his descendants until 1807, a period of 312 years. The buildings in which the business of this remarkable establishment was conducted, together with all the artistic collections of the house, its ancient presses and its old furniture, are now the property of the city of Antwerp and have been converted into a public museum, which with its wondrous treasures of literature and art may well be regarded as one of the most interesting and unique in Europe.—Exchange.

Somewhat Plain.

"When Nature wanted to show the folly of beauty," said the strong minded woman, "it created the weak headed, curled darlings we see in fashion plates. But when it desired to make clear the beauty of wisdom it made the hard headed woman with no nonsense about her." "Yes, ma'am, certainly," said an un-served listener. "But don't you think in the latter case she made it rather too plain?"—Philadelphia Times.

The Sharp Eyed Turks.

Target shooting contests in the Turkish army have developed the fact that not one soldier in twenty could hit a man at twenty paces. A target as big as a barn door placed thirty rods away was missed twenty-nine times where it was hit once. The Turk looks well in red trousers, however.—Detroit Free Press.

A Chance to Get a Bicycle.
The Register this week contains an ad on the sixth page that should interest every boy in this county, who wishes to own a bicycle. It is the easiest way in the world to secure a good wheel. Boys, try it, it will pay you. Get started at once before somebody else gets all the best names. We want two or three good live boys in every township in this county to take hold of this at once, and by next spring you will have a brand new wheel of your own.

The Saline democrats did not make any public demonstration over the election, but they are doubtless as happy as those who did.

The cucumber is not consonant with single blessedness; it has a tendency to double a man.

Table titled 'ESTIMATED VALUE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY' listing various types of property such as stock, tools, and household items.

Table titled 'Male Paupers maintained' and 'Female Paupers maintained' listing the number of paupers and the cost of their maintenance.

We estimate for the ensuing year as follows: A list of estimated expenses for the coming year, such as beef, blacksmithing, and other services.

Of the estimated expenses for the ensuing year, three thousand dollars are due from Townships and Cities, for last year's board and care of their poor at the County House.

We have a balance of thirty-five hundred dollars in the Treasurer's hands. This will leave twenty-two hundred dollars to be provided for.

We respectfully ask you to allow us two thousand dollars for the ensuing year, and we will do what we can to keep our expenses within that limit.

All of which is respectfully submitted, Elisha Loomis, C. H. Kempf, E. P. Mason, Superintendents of the Poor of Washtenaw County.

County House, October 14, 1890. Mr. Gregory, from Criminal Claims Committee No. 1, reported the following bills, and recommended their allowance at sums stated, to-wit:

Now is the time, boys, to get to work and earn one of these BEAUTIFUL WHEELS between now and next Spring.

THE WHEELS are of the very best make, and every boy should have one.

WE WANT one or more boys in every Township in this County to win one of these Wheels.

You can easily do so by speaking to your neighbors when you happen to meet them, between now and when it is fit to order a Wheel next Spring.

In this way you can secure a fine Bicycle without spending more than an hour's extra time.

REMEMBER that the REGISTER is ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR. Send names, with the pay, as fast as you secure them, stating with each order that you wish the names to apply on your Bicycle account, and you will receive due credit.

Call at Sheehan's Store, or at Hamilton Block to see the Plat. We have the Park Plans. We desire those intending to purchase lots to examine them. Call and see them.

The new buildings on State Street this year will amount to Sixty Thousand Dollars. Investigate what we have, then judge for yourselves.

This is better than a Loan and Investment Association. Your money is kept at home. Persons intending to purchase Lots should look over our Addition and Investigate for themselves.

Two new houses for rent. Modern Improvements, City Water and Furnaces.

Address all letters and make all Money Orders payable to THE ANN ARBOR REGISTER, ALFRED DAVENPORT, Chairman.

The Majority
Of so-called cough-cures do little more than impair the digestive functions and create bile. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the contrary, while it cures the cough, does not interfere with the functions of either stomach or liver. No other medicine is so safe and efficacious in diseases of the throat and lungs.
"Four years ago I took a severe cold, which was followed by a cough. I was very sick, and confined to my bed about four months. I employed a physician most of the time, who finally said I was in consumption, and that he could not help me. One of my neighbors advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and, before I had finished taking the first bottle was able to sit up all the time, and to go out. By the time I had finished the bottle I was well, and have remained so ever since."—L. D. A TREE FROG'S INSTINCT.

Showing That Tales of Animal Intelligence Are Sometimes Very Wonderful.
"Talking of instinct," remarked the man who used to be a great fisherman before he joined church, "I once had a tree frog that in my judgment beat the weather bureau all to pieces.
"I had read about their being able to predict weather changes, so I got a wide mouthed bottle, a little wooden ladder and the other articles usually recommended. I put them all together in the parlor and waited for developments.
"And I must say the developments startled me. Right along that frog, when it was going to be good weather, came to the top of his ladder; when it would rest half way down, and if a storm was on hand he always staid under water. Never knew it to fail.
"This was through the summer. The next fall I took him to the sitting room, and hang me, if he did a thing else but sit on his ladder with his legs crossed and mope, storm or sunshine, hot or cold, wet or dry. Prophecy he would not. He seemed to be half tired of life.
"I concluded, of course, he didn't like his new quarters, so I took him back to the parlor and presto! he brightened up and began business with the old reliability right away.
"Naturally this aroused my curiosity, and I finally found out the secret.
"Well," inquired the crowd of eager listeners.
"The cunning beast had been all the time watching and making use of a little barometer that stood right beside his glass on the mantelpiece."—Philadelphia Times.

His Rise in the World.
"Henry," she observed sadly, "you certainly have changed! What has come over you lately to make you so haughty?"
"Miss Twilling," stiffly replied the young man, "while the pleasant relations which have heretofore existed between us will, I trust, remain unchanged, at the same time I find it necessary to maintain the proper amount of dignity in accordance with the more exalted position which I now hold in society. You are evidently not aware of the fact, but I have recently invested some of my capital in, and I am now wearing, a suit of genuine silk underwear."—Clothier and Furnisher.

How He Won Her.
Jack (who has popped)—It takes you a long time to decide.
Sally—I know. And I've about concluded to wear a demi-train of white chiffon over white silk, and have no bridesmaids.—Judge.
An Important P. S.
"Dear Mr. Hicks," she wrote, "I am sorry that what you ask I cannot grant. I cannot become your wife. Yours sincerely, Ethel Barrows."
Then she added, "P. S.—On second thoughts, dear George, I think I will marry you. Do come up to-night and see your own true Ethel."—New York Herald.

Perhaps.
Miss Rowena—Think of a wishy washy, phlegmatic girl like her being named Stella!
Mr. Parham—"Stella" means a star. Perhaps they called her that, not because they thought her bright, but because she was beautiful in the dark.—Harper's Bazar.
Very Likely.
Mrs. Blunt (reading paper)—It's terrible!
Blunt—What?
"The county lunatic asylum was set on fire by the inmates."
"My! they must have been crazy."—Yankee Blade.

On Dangerous Ground.
Mr. Com Placent (visiting newspaper office, to editor)—What do you do to get rid of the beastly bores who stay all day and don't know how to take a hint?
Editor (without looking up)—Stay five minutes longer and I'll show you.—West Shore.
Another Way of Calling a Man an Ass.
"That fellow Bonsalini, the portrait painter, is a brute."
"What has he done?"
"I wanted him to make a portrait of me, and he said he wasn't an animal painter."—New York Sun.

She Got a Servant.
Husband (married one year)—Why, Etta, what has become of your wedding ring?
Wife—I wore it out.
Husband—How could you wear it out?
Wife—Doing the housework.—Epoch.
Not a Mushroom.
Van Gotham—Van Blewblud has a very long family tree. Hasn't he?
Murrayhill—Long! Well, about half way down it there is a side note—"About this time Adam and Eve were created."—New York Herald.

A Last Resort.
Mrs. Bingo—I noticed there was a rent in your trousers this morning.
Mr. Bingo—Thank heaven! Give it to the landlord when he comes.—Clothier and Furnisher.
Generous Fellow.
Goslin—I just gave him a piece of my mind, doncherknow.
Dolly (anxiously)—How could you spare it?—Munsey's Weekly.

Expecting Too Much.
Misses—Sakes alive! You have cooked that turkey that I got for Thanksgiving instead of the roast the butcher sent.
Servant—Sure, Oi didn't know it was th' mate ye wanted for today.
Misses—You might have known that I wanted the turkey saved for Thanksgiving without my telling you.
Servant—Moight Oi, indade? Did yez expect ter git a moind raker for free dollars a wake?—New York Weekly.

Badly Off.
Ex-Passenger—Gawl dern yer! Can't you wait till I get off?
Conductor—Be gobbs, if yez ain't off now yez'll never be off.—Puck.
The Wrong Man.
Great Merchant (to his favorite drummer)—Look here, Mr. Grippe, old man Bilto, hitherto one of our best customers, is getting away from us. Bilto has a daughter. Now couldn't you sort of edge up to the young lady—you are a handsome fellow, Grippe. You know what I mean—just to get back the old man.
Grippe—No, sir! When Josiah Grippe so far forgets himself as to forfeit in the slightest degree the sacred principles of truth and justice, of honor and manhood, may his blood run rotten lead and his tongue cleave to the roof of his mouth. Sooner than cast the slightest shadow over the lily white effulgence of one of the fairest of God's loveliest creatures I would die ten thousand deaths. I say no; a thousand times no. You have mistaken your man. Besides she fired me out of the house last night.—Clothier and Furnisher.

Not to Be Expected.
Lawyer—You say that the poison which the prisoner placed before his victim was concealed in a white liquid, and yet you are not prepared to swear that it was milk. Don't you know milk when you see it?
Witness—No, sir.
Lawyer (sarcastically)—Who are you, anyway?
Witness—I am a milkman.—Life.

A Fraud.
Brokeley (to dwarf in dime museum)—How much do they pay you, Gen. Hopthumb?
Gen. Hopthumb—Hundred dollars a week.
Brokeley—Then I'll bet that you're not so short as I am. And yet they advertise you as a dwarf.—Yenowen's News.

Too Imaginative.
Blinkers—That stranger says that once, when in a foreign country, the natives were about to attack him when he unfurled the American flag, stated that he was under its protection, and they slunk away in terror. I wonder what he is.
Winkers—A miserable liar.—Street & Smith's Good News.

A Financial Genius.
"Have you broken off your engagement, old man? What's the matter?"
"Well, I was hard up, you see, so I quarreled and had all my presents returned, and was able to realize on them. Couldn't possibly have raised the money any other way."—Harper's Bazar.

Must Be Insane.
"Your friend is a kleptomaniac."
"How so?"
"He steals my jokes, and publishes them as his own."
"Your jokes? Then poor Charlie must be suffering from insanity and not kleptomaniac."—Yankee Blade.

Happily So.
"You are not in the race with me," said the Gold Coin to the Heart.
"You don't know what you are talking about. You may be able to buy a temporary advantage," retorted the Heart, "but in the long run I'm sure to beat."—New York Sun.

A Total Failure.
Totting—Hello, Dimling! Where have you been?
Dimling—Nutting.
"Get anything?"
"No; nutting."—Puck.

Rats.
Will—Poo! Rats never trouble anybody unless they are hungry.
Bill—Then I am thankful there are no rats about when I am hungry.—Yankee Blade.

Spoken Aloud.
Elbert (who sees the old gentleman's shadow)—Of course I disobeyed my father in going fishing, but when he finds out that I have taken a nice string to Mr. Outley, who holds our farm mortgage, I think he'll not chide me.—Judge.

Old lady (to newsboy)—You don't chew tobacco, do you little boy? Newsboy—No, ma'am, but I kin give yer a cigarette.
Never neglect a constipated condition of the bowels, or serious results surely follow, such as piles, impure blood and many chronic complaints. Burdock Blood Bitters is the remedy.
What with the discovery of pearls in Wisconsin's clammers, and now of opals in Idaho's volcanic rocks, the era of prosperity appears to be full jeweled.

Quinsy troubled me for twenty years. Since I started using Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, have not had an attack. The Oil cures sore throat at once. Mrs. Letta Conrad, Standish, Mich., Oct. 24, '83.
"Dr. Chloral lives in your yard, doesn't he?" asked Allerece of Skimmins. "Yes" was the reply; "he's one of our ward-hounds, ser."
The Paris Figaro just published an interesting article on "What Young Girls Should Read." This is well enough. But it is more important still to know that they should take Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for their colds.
"You haven't heard anything until ye have heard both sides of it," says a writer. This may be very pretty logic, but the bass drum refutes it.
"Heaven's last best new gift—my ever new delight," is not my brown stone ring, nor my yacht, nor my prettiest girl, nor my hopes of a seat in congress, nor these, but my wonderful cure for pain, Salvation Oil.

Look at Him!
A year ago he was not expected to live. Liver complaint almost killed him. He felt relief from three bottles of Sulphur Bitters, and six bottles cured him.—Edman Weekly Sun.
Perhaps the easiest paper to edit is the wall paper. The more it is suspended, the more successful the proprietor.
If Your House Is On Fire
You put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause, and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It Was a Scotch Grave Digger who said:
"Trade's vera dull noo. I have na buried a leevin' creature in a fortnight."
Advice To Mothers.
Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gum, always all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.
Logically, a range furnishes no satisfactory heat, for how can there be any comforting effect from that which is out of range?
A Very Large Percentage
Of the American people are troubled with that most annoying, troublesome and disagreeable complaint called "Catarrh." It is not necessary to be so troubled. It is demonstrated beyond question that Clarke's Extract of Flax (Papillon) Catarrh Cure immediately relieves and permanently cures catarrh. A thorough and fair trial will convince you.

"I've struck a tender chord at last," said the tramp, as he began on a pile of cotton-wood timber.
Blair Says It's All Right.
Mr. S. O. Blair, Chicago, says: "We could not keep house without your 'CLARKE'S EXTRACT OF FLAX SKIN CURE' and 'COUGH CURE.' We have used both for numerous troubles, especially for our child. We recommend the Cough Cure to every family having children. 'We used it for Whooping Cough with remarkably quick and satisfactory results, and use it for any and every cough the family may have.' Only one size, large bottle. Price $1.00. If you want the best toilet soap get Clarke's Flax Soap, 25 cents. Ask Eberbach & Son, druggists, for these preparations.

Where Dollars are Made.
No part of the New South offers greater opportunities than north Alabama, and the brightest jewel of that section is Florence. The skill of the engineer can well be challenged in the selection of a site more advantageous for healthfulness, beauty and utility. Four years ago it was a village of 1,250 inhabitants. Now it is over 7,000 and still growing. The proceeds of the land sale which occurs there Wednesday, November 19, will be devoted entirely to the building of manufactures and other developments at Florence. Thirty factories are already located there. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad will sell excursion tickets to Florence at one-fare for the round-trip, on November 17 and 18, good for 15 days returning. For rates, descriptive matter, etc., call on or address any agent of the C. H. & D. or E. O. McCormick, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati. Here is a chance to make dollars.

The Purest and Best
Articles known to medicine science are used in preparing Hood's Sarsaparilla. Every ingredient is carefully selected, personally examined, and only the best retained. The medicine is prepared under the supervision of thoroughly competent pharmacists, and every step in the process of manufacture is carefully watched with a view to securing in Hood's Sarsaparilla the best possible result.
"Sausage and hot slaw," says the leading Chicago caterer, "is a favorite dish among our business men." Shades of Lucullus!
A Lady's Perfect Companion.
Painless Childbirth, our new book, tells how any woman may become a mother without suffering any pain whatever. Also how to treat and overcome morning sickness, swelled limbs and other evils attending pregnancy. It is reliable and highly endorsed by physicians as the wife's true private companion. Send two-cent stamp for descriptive circulars and confidential letter, sent in seal envelope. Address FRANK THOMAS & Co., Publishers, Baltimore, Maryland.

We are indebted to Egypt for onions, peas and garden cress, and, appropriately enough, to "them ancient Romans" for chestnuts!
Take Warning
And don't let the germs of that vile disease, Catarrh, take root and flourish in your system. Sulphur Bitters will prevent this and will make you strong and healthy.—Editor Weekly Press. 2
The Matter Mended.—Miss Waltzer—Oh dear! oh dear! you stepped on my foot, Mr. Clodhopper—I acknowledge the corn.
Put Me In My Little Bed.
I am dizzy, dizzy, dizzy;
And I want to go to bed,
I've no appetite to eat,
And headache racks my head.
In other words, I am suffering from a bilious attack, but Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will bring me around all right by tomorrow. They often cure headache in a hour. I have found them the best cathartic pill in existence. They produce no nausea or griping, but do their work thoroughly. They are convenient to carry in the vest pocket, and pleasant to take. In vials; 25 cents.

Ladies Try
Great French Remedy. Dr. Le Duc's Periodical Pills from Paris, France, act only upon the generative organs in females, and positively cure suppression of the menses (from whatever cause) and all periodical troubles peculiar to women. Established in Europe, 1839; England, 1850. Canada, 1873; United States, 1887. A safe, reliable remedy, warranted to excite menstruation, or money refunded. The larger portion of the ills to which ladies are subject is the direct result of a disordered and irregular menstruation. The American Pill Co., proprietors. Price, $2. Sold by Eberbach & Son, druggists, Ann Arbor, Mich.
Some anglers assert that the keenness of the trout is due to his "specks."
Lives of others oft remind us
Married life may be sublime.
We trust to be forgiven this parody of lines from Longfellow's immortal "Psalm of Life." Husbands who are wise and thoughtful, know that the happiness of the home depends largely on the health of the mistress of the home. Many are the tasks which daily confront her. How can a woman contend against the trials and worries of house-keeping, if she be suffering from those distressing irregularities, ailments and weaknesses peculiar to her sex? Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a specific for these disorders. The only remedy, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers. Satisfaction guaranteed in every case, or money refunded. See printed guarantee on bottle wrapper.

The Bird of Wisdom.
An owl sat up in a hickory tree,
And said to his most eminent neighbor to me,
"Ter-hoot! ter-hoot! ter-hoot!"
I asked her, politely, "You lovely old bird,
"Have you the 'Golden Discovery' heard?"
She ruffled her feathers and spoke but a word—
"That dreary, monotonous 'who'!"
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a warranted lung, liver and blood remedy, a powerful tonic and alterative, and a reliable vitalizer for weak persons, a panacea for scrofula, hip-joint diseases, fever-sores, swellings and tumors; contains no alcohol, and is a medicine without a peer. There is no risk in buying a guaranteed article. Your money back if it don't benefit or cure.
A Chance to Make Money.
MR. EDITOR:—I bought one of Griffith's machines for plating with gold, silver or nickel and it works to perfection. No sooner did the people hear of it than I had more spoons, knives, forks and jewelry than I could plate in a month. The first week I cleared $31.30, the first month $167.85, and I think by July 1st I will have $1,000 cash and give my farm considerable attention, too. My daughter made $27.40 in four days. Any person can get one of these machines by sending $3 to W. H. Griffith & Co., Zanesville, O., or can obtain circulars by addressing them. You can learn to use the machine in one hour. As this is my first lucky streak, I give my experience, hoping others may be benefited as much as I have been.
Yours truly,
M. O. MORREHEAD.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long step. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands in the third place in 1890, where it will remain ten years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.
There is another "9" which has also come to stay. It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No. 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine.
The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the only Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, all others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the decoration of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.
The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grandest advance in sewing machine mechanism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, therefore, of having the very latest and best.

THE CITY.

The dance to be given by Company A on Thanksgiving day has been postponed till the first Monday in December.

Dr. C. B. Nancrede has in the December Physician and Surgeon a clinical lecture.

W. T. Murray, of Jackson, is acting as assistant to county clerk Howlett, in the absence of Mr. Brown.

The improvements in the gas works are complete and the supply of gas is now sufficient for all demands.

William Hall and Joe Webster are spending five days in jail. They were disorderly and Justice Butts frowned upon them.

A flowing well has been struck on the premises of Mr. Allmendinger, on west Washington-st. Water was struck at a depth of sixty-five feet.

A social will be given at Mrs. Byron Cheever's, 28 Packard-st, on Friday evening next, to the young people of the Presbyterian church.

The hop given by the Wolverine Cycle Club last Friday night was a very pleasant affair. About 100 persons accepted invitations to be present.

Kit Matthews, formerly of this city, was married to Miss Bessie Morris, of Owosso, on the evening of November 5. The couple will spend the winter in Kentucky.

The managers of the new daily are to be congratulated over the appearance of their first two issues. Evidently the managing editor is no novice in the journalistic profession.

C. O. Murray, husband of Abbie J. Murray, charged with adultery with Elmer E. Rector, has given notice that he desires to discontinue proceedings against the accused parties.

Hon. Samuel T. Foster, who died recently at Hermosa, N. M., was a son of Rev. G. L. Foster, for many years a prominent Presbyterian clergyman in this state. He was also a nephew of L. N. S. Foster, of Ann Arbor town. He was born in Ypsilanti about thirty years ago.

Jethro Maybee, Alexander Morrison and Herman Knapp appeared before Justice Butts on Monday to answer the complaint of Jno. Martin, who charged them with assault and battery. The evidence which was produced satisfied the justice that Martin did not lose his money through robbery, but in another way less to his credit, and he discharged all three prisoners.

The playing of Joseph Murphy in the opera house last Saturday evening was the occasion of a bloodcurdling sensation. In the show two mustangs belonging to Polhemus were used. The fun came when the men tried to remove them from the hall. One of the horses scraped its legs on the seats as it came up the aisle and, becoming badly frightened, started to jump. For several moments it had its own way, breaking and smashing things generally. It was removed, about three o'clock, by the combined efforts of two dozen men.

Representatives of the two rival street railway companies met with the council committees on Monday afternoon. Mr. Allmendinger, representing the Ann Arbor & Ypsilanti Co., asked that the committee confer with them at a later date, as they were not as yet prepared to state just what they wanted. The committee however took action on the request of the Ann Arbor company for the extension of their lines and decided to recommend the adoption of the proposed ordinance.

The ladies of the Congregational church will hold their fair in the rink next week—opening on Thursday afternoon, December 4, and continuing until Friday evening, December 5. A supper will be served at six o'clock, with oysters, ice cream, cake and coffee during the evening. A great deal of thought and labor is being expended in decorating the booths, which will be in charge of ladies in costume. A large and attractive collection of articles will be on sale—suitable for Christmas presents. Music will add its charm, and altogether it will be found a most inviting place.

A number of ladies and gentlemen were pleasantly entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Nichols on Monday night last. During the fore part of the evening, they organized themselves into an amateur art club, and afterwards devoted themselves to the task of conquering Pedro and whist. Those present were Dr. A. C. Nichols and wife, C. Eugene Mischel and wife, O. F. Webster and wife, L. C. Goodrich and wife, Dr. J. W. Morson and wife, G. S. Millen and wife, J. W. Bennett and wife, and Miss Emma Bower.

The Michigan club has arranged for a course of lectures at Detroit, some of which Ann Arbor republicans will doubtless attend. The lectures, six in number, comprise the following: Alexander Hamilton—His Life and Work—Monday, Nov. 24. Tariff Acts of 1842 to 1857—What were they? How did they effect the material interests of the Nation?—Monday, Dec. 8. Reciprocity—The principle. With what countries, and upon what basis?—Monday, Dec. 22. Committees of Congress.—Do they control legislation? Are their powers too large?—Monday, Jan. 5. Industrial Education.—Its history; its purpose; its need.—Monday, Jan. 19. Municipal Government.—What is the best method of governing our large cities?—Monday, Feb. 2.

Dr. Chas. Gatchell makes the following offer to Paul Alexander Johnstone, the somewhat noted mind-reader: "Having exposed in Chicago the methods by which Mr. Johnstone performs the tricks which he pretends to accomplish by means of so-called 'mind-reading,' and since he has given no satisfactory reason for declining to accept my offer made to him in Chicago, and yet continues to use my name in connection with his performances, I will make him the following additional offer: I will donate $500 to the gymnasium fund of the University of Michigan, or I will forfeit the same to Mr. Johnstone himself, as he may choose, if he will read a single word in the mind of another person under simple test conditions, he to use as his subject any prominent citizen of Ann Arbor."

LATEST COUNTY NEWS.

The examination of J. C. Woodson, the student arrested for rushing in the postoffice, was begun in Justice Pond's court Monday morning. Marshal Murray testified that he saw Woodson push a fellow-student. The testimony was interrupted by the request of Mr. Whitman, lawyer for the defense, that the examination be postponed. It will take place on December 8.

Bishop Garrett's opening lecture at St. Andrew's church on the "Philosophy of the Infinite" showed deep insight and marked logical powers. It was a general survey of philosophy and was designed to prepare a way for his theological interests. He will speak next Sunday on "Evolution as Taught by Spencer." The bishop has decided not to speak on Friday evenings at all and will restrict himself to Sundays, delivering three lectures before Christmas and four immediately after New Years.

A false report of small pox was started in town last week, which caused a big scare.

Mrs. S. Gilchrist, of Cass City, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. F. A. Blinn, this week.

Mrs. B. Chapin, of Grass Lake, is visiting at Dr. Harpe's and Dr. Chapin's this week.

The Baptist New England supper netted $10.50, at Mrs. Gardner's, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. F. A. Blinn and son, Lester, have moved into a part of Mrs. Van Buren's house for the winter.

Mrs. Dunning opened her house for the Presbyterian tea social Wednesday and it was well attended.

Mrs. B. Wait, of Scio, was the guest of her brother, Dr. S. Chapin, and sister, Mrs. Harper, last week.

Miss Fannie Huntington, of New York state, is the guest of her uncle, Rev. Jay Huntington, and family for a few weeks.

Ed. Leonard returned from his Williamson sojourn Saturday night, having closed up his fruit factory for the winter.

Thanksgiving services will be held at the Presbyterian church, Rev. J. Huntington, of the Baptist church, preaching the sermon.

The G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans held a very interesting social at the G. A. R. hall Friday evening, the Relief Corps serving refreshments. The program was well carried out. Mr. Geo. Pence presented the post with a fine oil painting and A. D. Jackson made a short but interesting speech. The recitations by Mrs. Brooks and Miss Maud Pence Kelsey, of Augusta, were well rendered, and everything passed off in a very agreeable manner.

Mrs. Dancer, mother of Mrs. Reuben Kempf, of Ann Arbor, and of Mrs. Robert Buchanan, of Lima, is low with pneumonia at the latter's home.

On account of the severe illness of Mrs. Morris, the wife of the pastor of the Congregational church, no services were held last Sunday. She is reported as better at present writing, for which her many friends are thankful.

Dennis Brough has gone to Canada.

Miss Addie Johns is visiting friends in town.

Thanksgiving services are held at the Congregational church this week.
