FRUITFUL DISCUSSION.

MEETING OF THE WASHTENAW FARMERS' ASSOCIATION.

Interesting Paper by Geo. McDougal -Remarks by Messrs. Ball, Peters,

Campbell, Nordman, Baldwin and Others-Pomological Meeting. The Washtenaw Farmers' Association met in the court house on Thursday afternoon last. Delegates from eighteen organizations were present. In the absence of the president, Morton F. Case occupied the chair. After some preliminary business had been completed, the managing committee reported that the proposed two-per-cent [loan to farme: s had been selected as the topic for dis cussion. Geo. McDougal was the essayist of the day. He introduced the subject with the assertion that trade and industry should not be placed under governmental aid or restriction, but should take a purely natural course. This principle, he held, would be violated should the proposed two-per-cent loan law be enacted. This is, said he, "A proposition so preposterous, notwithstanding the considerable weight of its friends and supporters, that not a few in the highest standing have deemed it only worthy of contempt. But the position of the Farmers' Alliance and the National Grange on the question compels us as farmers to a serious consideration of the subject, both as individuals and in our organizations. The action of Michigan State Grange in opposing the scheme is a credit both to the courage and the good sense of that body, and as the moral obliquity of the measure is well set forth in the report of its executive committee, I will confine myself to an examination of what pertains more strictly to its economic side, and for the sake of making the argument as clear as may be will divide the question thus: 1st-What is the government asked to do? 2d-How, if done, must the government do it? 3d-If done, what would be the economic effect? 1. The demand is that the government establish subtreasuries in the several states, which shall loan money direct to the people at a low rate of interest, not to exceed two necessary expenses of the government, economically and honestly adminiswhether or not in this limited revenue loaned at not more than two per cent., sub-treasuries? Governments have have been regarded as especially fortumeet. The only way for capital to find its way into these sub-treasuries is for the government to borrow at the market price and place it there, take it by force in taxes, or issue its own promises in the shape of treasury notes, and force their acceptance. I have no hesitation in saying that of the three methods for raising the necessary funds, that by direct taxation on incomes and on accumulated capital would be far the best; but because the nature of the plan could be easily seen and understood, there is no danger of its ever being put in operation. The same may be said of borrowing on the part of the government, even at the lowest rate it now pays, and reloaning it at a less rate. It would be readily seen in either case was reaching out and filling its treasuries from the savings of the people for the benefit of those who were in debt. The plan of issuing legal tender notes and loaning them, therefore, is the favorite one, not because it is in any respect better but because the evil and injustice notes, everything would depend upon the attitude of the government toward its own notes. If they were redeemable and kept at par by redemption on presentation, the amount issued would be so restricted that there would be practically nothing to lend. If they were not redeemable, and were issued in large amounts, their value would rapidly change for the worse. Of course, debtors would then be permitted to pay easily in depreciated currency, but all the transactions of trade would be plunged into a chaos of uncertainty. The sole benefit to any from a depreciated currency is to fortunate speculators and to debtors. I now come to the examination of the effect it would have upon agriculture if farmers were to have capital at two per cent., or less, at their disposal. In the report of the finance committee of the Michigan State Grange, referring to the past silver legislation, the committee says: Beneficial as this law has been and will be, the present a certainty that the relief afforded by the bill is insufficient. You will perceive that this committee is laboring under the delusion that a financial stringency is something which it is the province of government to eradicate like piracy from the high seas. This very irregularity in production and consumption, together with the dispositions in men themselves, make it inevitable that trade should ebb and flow, and the stringency in the money market is the result of and serves to regulate these movements. In times when loanable capital is to be had on easy terms, trade and production expand faster in many directions than the general economic condition will justify. The demand for money increases at such times, the price of loanable capital rises and checks speculation, and brings those enterprises which have had an abnormal expansion back within their relatively proper limits. From var ous causes, many of them too well known to you to need mention, too much capital is invested in agricultural pursuits. Relief from such a condition comes far more slowly in farming than in manufacture and trade. The manufacturer and tradesman, when confronted with this problem, well understand that they must either find a wider market or reduce the volume of their business. The same rule applies to agriculture. What folly then to think of relieving it of its present congested state by forcing more capital into it through the aid of the general government. If the scheme were practicable it would, under surrounding circumstances, simply aggravate the disorder and delay recovery." A lively discussion followed the read-prevails in this country demonstrates to ing of the paper. Andrew Campbell, the first speaker, said that if farmers are to influence public opinion they must get away from the idea of looking at things from the selfish standpoint only. They must cease making demands which in the nature of things cannot be granted. It is true that, owing to the contraction of the currency, the debtor class has been wronged, but the sub-treasury scheme could not remedy this evil.

E. A. Nordman called attention to the per cent., and that all national and fact that every agricultural and indusstate revenues shall be limited to the trial organization in the United States has declared that more money is needed. One of our conservative tered. It is not stated in the resolution | financiers, who does not believe in the two-per-cent. loan, says we are to get to be economically and honestly admin- this by means of free coinage of silver. istered is included the amount to be But the executive committee of the state grange contends that the silver but if not, the government is asked to production of the whole United States loan what it has not got, and is debarred cannot keep pace with the population. by the resolution from getting. And It therefore becomes necessary to resort the second question presents itself, to some other scheme. The government How is the government to fill these cannot cause money to circulate among the people unless means are provided never been very successful producers of for them to get possession of it. This any exchangeable commodities. They might be accomplished by issuing notes upon landed property. Mr. Nordman nate and thrifty in any commercial did not, however, endorse Senator Stantransaction where ends were found to ford's bill, because from that the corporations would derive the greatest benefits.

G. A. Peters astonished his hearers by the assertion that he was opposed to a two-per-cent loan. For twenty-eight years, he said, the government had been lending money to the bankers at one per cent., and it was time that the farmers had equal advantages. He did not think that rich men would rush in and avail themselves of the loan privilege, for, said he, "who ever heard of a rich man paying interest?"

Ex-Senator William Ball, who was the next speaker, thought that there was already enough money in the country. The question is, is there not too large an amount of produce for the consumers? Then again, is not the depression due that the strong hand of the government | rather to the absorption than to the lack of money? Said he, "I don't understand that the lack of money has much to do with it, for the reason that we have money enough to move business." The two-per-cent loan, he held, would not apply to those who need it, and hence was not only impracticable but useless. are not so plain. In the plan of issuing | He thought that farmers would be better off if they would pay stricter attention to

A lively discussion ensued, in which Messrs. Nordman, Ball and Peters participated. The latter took occasion to attack the national banks, saying that the government had no right to delegate to them the sovereign power of issuing money. It had been asserted by previous speakers that if the two-per-cent loan were adopted, the government would, through foreclosure, soon have a large quantity of farming land on its hands, but Mr. Peters claimed, in reply, that the farmers, by means of the two-per-cent. loans, would become so prosperous that they could easily lift their mortgages. Henry Stumpenhusen thought that farmers had been too extravagant in the flush times, thus contracting debts which might have been avoided.

S. Gridley said that the last speaker had spoken from the money-loaner's standpoint. He thought that it was the duty of the government to help the universal financial stringency which I debtor class.

William Ball called attention to the fact that interest has decreased during the past twenty-five years.

Mr. Peters, argued, in reply, that debts, nevertheless, were much more burdensome now than they were just after the war.

Jas. Wing thought the times were not so very bad, after all. Farmers had good deal to be thankful for.

Horace Baldwin asserted that the twoper-cent loan bill was framed in the interest of monopolists. The government he held, should not take mortgages on any tracts of land larger than eighty acres.

S. Gridley thought it would be unwise for the government to tax the people in order to obtain money to loan back to them, and John Campbell ended the discussion by taking strong ground against the two-per-cent loan scheme.

Pomological Meeting. Emil Baur, secretary of the Washtenaw Pomological Society, submits the following report: "The February meeting was of unusual interest. President J. Austin Scott, who had just returned from the inauguration of his son to the presidency of Rutgers College, one of the oldest colleges of the country, chartered in 1870 by Gov. Wm. Franklin of New Jersey (since 1864 by an act of Congress the State college for the benefit of agriculture and mechanic arts became attached to Rutgers College) was in the chair full of youthful vigor and good will toward every one. After the reading of the minutes of last meeting, a letter by C. F. Parshall was read, containing a statement of expenses incurred by transportation of berries by the Ann Arbor fruit car and a request by Mr. Parshall to be relieved from the chairman-hip of the committee on transportation. J. C. Schenck was added to the committee and intrusted with the charge to find out the shipments of those who shipped with this car. To make the burden easier for Mr-Schenck, all the shippers with the Ann Arbor fruit car by freight are requested to report the number of bushels shipped to L. Gruner and pay two cents per bushel to cover expenses. A letter by W. F. Bird was read, in which he very much regretted his inability to be present, on account of an attack by influenza, and asked that his report on fruit exchange might be deferred to next meeting. The corresponding secretary read a petition to the legislature of the state, in which that honorable body is requested to enact such laws as will give to the state a uniform system for the improvement of the highways by the appointment of a state commissioner of roads and bridges, who should be an engineer, and by building of some roads between the large cities and villages by general taxation or by any measure that honorable body may devise. After a very animated discussion the petition was adopted and signed by the officers and members of the society and other citizens. G. F. Allmendinger's address on adulteration of fruit products received a very hearty response. and a series of resolutions were adopted asking the representatives and senator from this county to use their influence in the legislature to create a food commission, as Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and other states have done. The people of this state are paying many thousands of dollars yearly for adulterated fruit products which are sold for one reason only, to allow some one an unreasonable and undeserved profit. The sale of such products is an outrage upon the producer and consumer slike. It hurts every farmer and fruit grower especially, and the cost of supporting a commission which will relieve the commission which will relieve the people of the extortions practiced will be saved many times, besides providing a purer food supply, the value of which cannot be estimated by dollars and cents. Stuff which never saw an apple, sold for cider vinegar, and bogus jellies, manufactured by the most noxious methods, should be branded by their true name. The corresponding secretary methods, should be branded by their true name. The corresponding secretary read a paper on the origin of the so-called Sickel pear, proving that this pear was misnamed. The benefactor who gave us this highest type of the American pear was a German by the name of Sichel, who raised this pear tree from seed at Baltimore, Md., and that this pear should be called Sichel, or, if this name should be translated into English. Sickle would be more into English, Sickle would be more proper. There is no such name as Sickel in all Christendom. The writer saw a tree at Economy, Pa., obtained about seventy years ago from Mr. Sichel, of Baltimore. Mr. Ganzhorn remarked that it was desirable to address Thos. Mehan, of Philadelphia, who claims that the pear in question originated in Pennsylvania by a Mr. Seckel, and if Mr. Sichel was really the originator the American Pomological Society should be requested to change the name of this ear. Dr. Gibbes' Cure.

The consumption cure of which Dr. Heneage Gibbes, of this city, is the author, is attracting much attention thoroughout the country. The experiments so far made in Detroit have proved very successful. No applications of the remedy will be made in Ann Arbor until a room can be fitted up for the purpose. In order to apply the cure, it is necessary to have an air-tight place, where the atmosphere may be filled with chlorine gas and chloride of so-dium, in the form of vapor. The remedy itself consists of iodine and chloride of gold and sodium. It has the effect of neutralizing the poison which causes con-sumption. One of its merits is that it involves no danger to life.

A SOUTHERN CYCLONE.

Much Damage Done in Alabama by a Funnel-Shaped Cloud.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 10.-A cyclone struck Helena Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock. A dull, roaring sound was heard and the people had only time to get to their doors when they saw a black, whirling cloud skim over the top of the hotel in the northern part of the village. It next encountered the telegraph poles, twisting them off like pipe-stems. Coming down the railroad track it laid the station-house flat on the platform and leveled the store of Thomas Davidson. C. T. and James Davidson were in the store and both were hurt about the head and P. D. Lee was bruised about the body. The cyclone then lifted and passing over a three-story building struck the Helena rolling-mill, about 200 yards from the station, taking the roof off both the mill and stocker case. The cloud passed on in a southeasterly direction and a report has reached here that it struck Talladega in its circuit.

Found $10,000 in a Car Cushion.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9 .- While ripping out the cushions in the sleeping-car Atlanta Saturday Henry Prentice, a car repairer, ran across two valuable packages One contained $5,000 in new bank bills and the other held $5,000 in Government bonds. The Atlanta was sent to the Pullman shops for repair, reaching there Saturday. The money was found in a frayed and worn cushion in the middle of the coach. Prentice handed the packages over to General Manager Sessions. Inspector Hunt has the case in charge and will try to find the owner.

Death of a Millionaire.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 9.-John Mc-Keown, the wealthiest individual oil producer in the country, died in Washington, Pa., Sunday. He bought in a big well and his share started his fortune, which is now $6,000,000. He has been one of the boldest of "wildcatters," and twice has been reduced to poverty.

The figure 9 in our dates will make a long stay. No man or woman now living will ever date a document without using the figure 9. It stands n the third place in 1890, where it will remain ter years and then move up to second place in 1900 where it will rest for one hundred years.

There is another "9" which has also come to stay It is unlike the figure 9 in our dates in the respect that it has already moved up to first place, where it will permanently remain. It is called the "No 9" High Arm Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine

The "No. 9" was endorsed for first place by the experts of Europe at the Paris Exposition of 1889 where, after a severe contest with the leading machines of the world, it was awarded the out-Grand Prize given to family sewing machines, al others on exhibit having received lower awards of gold medals, etc. The French Government also recognized its superiority by the descention of Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, President of the company with the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

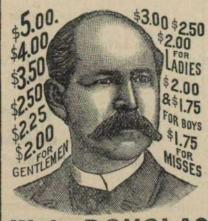

The "No. 9" is not an old machine improved upon, but is an entirely new machine, and the Grand Prize at Paris was awarded it as the grand est advance in sewing machine meananism of the age. Those who buy it can rest assured, there fore, of having the very latest and best.

COKERS QUIT WORK.

A Great Strike Begins in the Connellsville Region.

Seventeen Thousand Men Idle-A Demand for an Increase of Wages the Cause-A Long Struggle Inevitable-16,000 Coke Ovens Closed.

LAID DOWN THEIR TOOLS.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 10. - The strike of the 17,000 employes of the coke region for an increase of 121/4 per cent. in wages, a reduction of working hours of day men from nine hours to eight, the placing of scales for weighing coal on all tipples, against a counter demand of the operators for a general reduction in wages of 10 per cent., was inaugurated Monday. All through the region the miners remained away from the pits. By this evening the last of the ovens charged Saturday will have been drawn and then the shut-down will be complete

The struggle promises to be long and bitter. The workmen are thoroughly organized. They have had reasonably steady work for three years, and are members of the Knights of Labor and Mine Workers of America, and through the latter organization demand that coal shall the Federaiion of be weighed instead of measured will be the one most vigorously insisted upon, as the miners claim that by the system of measuring coal they have been defrauded out of a large sum of money every year. They say they will be content to remain idle three months if at the end of that time they can gain their

The operators say the demands of the cokers are upreasonable; that the selling price of coke is twenty-five cents per ton less now than it was a year ago, and the compliance with the demand for the erection of scales at each tipple would involve large expense. H. C. Frick Company, which Andrew Carnegie is the head, contains 10,000 of the 16,000 ovens in the region. It has a large supply of coke in stock, and will wait until this s exhausted before moving for a settlement. Some of the smaller operators are anxious that work shall go on at their plants, but this will not be allowed save at the Fountain works, which supply the Scottdale rolling-mill

"By the President:
"JAMES G. BLAINE, Secretary of State." Under the provisions of the agreement Brazil reduces her import charges upon American products of the farm, factory and mine to the extent of about $5,000,000 annually, which is as far as she could go in the present state of her finances. The present annual importation of sugar from Brazil is about 125,000 tons, and it is believed that under the stimulus which this reciprocity will give she will this year increase her sugar shipments to 200,000 tons, next year to 500,000 tons, and that in five years Brazil will be able to furnish all the sugar required in the United

Some idea of the far-reaching importance of this reciprocal agreement may be gathered from the estimates which have been made of the increased trade which will result. At present the United States pays to Brazil annually about $65,000,000, while it only receives $8,000,000 in return. It is expected that in three years Brazil will pay the United States in return for our manufactures and products at least $25,000,000, which amount will be dis tributed through every section of the country.

FROZEN TO DEATH

The Blizzard in the Northwest Claims a Number of Victims.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 10.-Reports throughout the State show much loss of life during the storm of Sunday. The young wife of Milton Cummings, near Rushville, froze to death within 100 yards of the house. The body was found in a snow-drift after being twenty-four hours missing. At Kearney Eddie Chedester and Steve St. Peter, 14-year-old boys, overcome while hunting, and their bodies were found at noon in a ravine. At Chadron M. L. Lissent, a pioneer, lost his life while caring for his stock. Many others who were out in the storm are missing and are thought to be dead. Hundreds of cattle perished. Railroads are still blocked. Relief expeditions have been sent to the destitute counties.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Feb. 10.-The names of the young man and woman who perished on Box Elder divide in Saturday's blizzard were Grant Bay, a young ranchman, and Meta Gray, a school-teacher living at Sturgis, Mead County. Bay and Miss Gray left this city in the height of the blizzard against the protests of friends and it is supposed their team got away while they were looking for the road. The country is sparsely settled, and losing their way in Saturday's storm meant death. Dr. Jones and wife, of Hill City, reported lost, arrived Monday afternoon.

HORRORS IN CHINA

Floods and Famine Cause Terrible Rav-ages in Northern Districts.

DENVER, Col., Feb. 7 .- A San Francisco special to the Rocky Mountain News says: A letter from Shanghai gives the details of terrible floods famine in Northern China. The Governor-General of Li Hing Chang reports that the people of Schuan suffered terribly by a flood which destroyed temples, bridges and and city walls, in no less than ten dis tricts. In Wen Chuan the loss of life will reach fully 1,000. Immediately following the floods at Pei Chang a fire broke out and destroyed thirty-five houses. In three other places houses were burned to the number of 200. The suffering among the poor is something terrible. The roads every-where are difficult of passage and crowds of starving wretches are on their way to Shanghai, and how to deal with them will be an anxiou, and a difficult problem for those in power to solve. Corn and millet are selling at the fairs along the great road to Pao Tin and San Si at exactly double the price of one year ago.

Farm mortgages are constantly increasing in burden, while the prices of products, instead of advancing, seem to be slowly retrograding. Something must be done to bring about better times. But what shall be done? Me sooner is this question asked than hundreds of idealists rush to the front. One cries, spasmodically, give us free coinage of silver, another, governmental forms at low rates; another, higher ariffs; another, free trade; another, socialism; and still another, anarchy. That all of these remedies, viewed from an economic standpoint, are unsatisfactony will be clear to any one who thinks soberly. Upon the last two mentioned comment is unnecessary. Free trade, owing to the peculiar conditions which surround American industry and the great advantage which foreigners possess in their cheap labor, would be ruinous to almost every branch of business. Higher tariffs would have but little effect upon the agricultural industry, either for good or bad. Governmental leans to private individuals are wrong in principle, an I would be ruinous in practice. They would simply serve to augment the evils which they are designed to remedy. Free coinage is a much more olausible measure than any as yet menstoned. It seems to fellow logically from the adoption of the bimetallic standard. Nevertheless, it is condemned by all the great economic thinkers of this country. As long as silver dollars are worth not much more than eighty cents each, it would be folly for the government to throw the mints open to their unlimited coinage. The result would be the expulsion of gold and the still arriber contraction of the currency. We cannot, therefore, accept free coinage as a panacea. What then shall we accept? We must first of all understand that there is no cure-all; at best, we can look for only a mitigation of industrial evils, and this, in the opinion of THE REGIS-TER, is most likely to be gained by the adoption of the reciprocity principle, as formulated by James G. Blaine. If Breadstuffs do not bring high prices, it may be because the supply is greater than the demand. If better times are to come it follows from this that either the supply must be lessened or the demand must be increased. To pursue the former course is to cause the abandonment of some of our farms and thus to crowd the cities to a still larger extent. The ascond course, then, is the only safe one pursue. The demand may be increased in several ways. In the first place, the tariff may be taken off from English manmactures, so that they may be exchanged American breadstuffs. This would Read to the destruction of American plants and thus turn the industrial world topsy threy. In the second place, a home marher may be fostered by means of building upour manufacturing establishments. Tais policy is wisely being pursued, but is incapable of bringing about any quick msalts. In the third place we may open awr ports to South American sugar, codee and molasses, and, in return, send so the Latin republics wheat, barley and wars. Nothing can be lost by the adopzon of this policy, except revenue. which the government does not need, but much may be gained. The farmer could say his breakfasts, dinners and suppers willess cost, and have more money with which to pay for them than at present.

When James G. Blaine proposed reciprecity, he performed an act of statesmanship which brilliantly crowns a rec-and already matchless. The wonder is hat farmers have not more eagerly immorted this policy, instead of fooling with free coinage and other measures of ambtful expediency.

ANOTHER SLANDERER APPEARS.

Although the regents decided, two years ago, that the medical department should remain where it is, some overzealous friends of Detroit continue to agitate its removal to that city. So intense is their zeal that they do not stop short of positive falsifying. One of these gentlemen, who calls himself "Mc," wrote a letter to the Chicago Herald, which appeared in the issue of Saturday last. It was headed, "Factory for Doctors," and was written in a very insinuating style. The writer declared that Ann Arbor is a small town, that consequently the clinical advantages are poor, that the hospitals are worse than mediocre, that patients are hired to go there, that the students learn nothing but theories, etc., etc., ad, nauseam. It is evident that "Mc," like many other agitators, does not know what he is talking about. Otherwise, he would make different statements. He would be obliged to admit that graduates of the two medical schools in Ann Arbor easily hold their own among physicians, no matter where they locate. He would be obliged to admit that the clinical advantages here are not surpassed by those afforded in Detroit. He would be obliged to admit that students of this University do learn something more than mere theories. He would be obliged to admit that operations have been performed in these hospitals, which have elicited the attention of the whole country and have at the same time given students an insight into the science of surgery which could not be gained in many mediocre hospitals located in larger cities. The fact is, patients suffering from acute diseases are inclined to seek those hospitals in which they may receive the best treatment-not those located in large cities. The Detroit hospitals doubtless can be more easily supplied with obstetrical cases than those in Ann Arbor; nevertheless the physicians in both colleges here have had all that they could attend to. All these facts which we have mentioned probably never occurred to

A BILL has been introduced in the New York legislature, permitting the sale of liquor in ball rooms without license, from one to five o'clock in the morning. To carry this measure, the saloonists are moving heaven and earth, and, as usual, they find in the democrats willing allies. Only one republican in the lower house has declared himself in favor of this infamous bill. These facts need no com-

OBSERVATIONS WORTHY OF NOTE IN RUBAL AFFAIRS.

An Illustrated Description of That Serious Disease of a Horse's Hock Known as the Bone Spavin.

One of the most serious diseases of the hock is spavin, of which there are several varieties, known as bog spavin, bone spavin and occult spavin. The latter is so named because there is no perceptible enlargement on or about the hock.

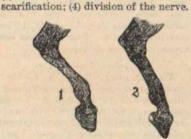

A bone spavin is a swelling or bony tumor situated upon the lower and inner part of the hock joint, as shown by Fig. in the first cut. Fig. 2 represents the inner side of the bone of the hock afflicted with a spavin of long standing. The rough portion represents the osseous deposit, which has become as hard and firm as the shin bone itself. Fig. 3 represents a shin bone having an osseous deposit upon its head and on the inner side. When this bony enlargement is high up on the joint it often produces incurable

In the second cut Fig. 1 represents the natural position of a sound hock when the animal is in motion. Fig. 2 shows the position of the hock and foot when

VARIOUS PHASES OF BONE SPAVIN. action. Spavin is supposed to be one of the hereditary diseases handed down from sire or dam to offspring. This may not be strictly true, writes a veterinary surgeon in American Cultivator. Yet in one sense it is doubtless correct, for while the diseased hock itself may not be transmitted, yet the form of hock most liable to be affected by spavin, if possessed by either sire or dam, is liable to reappear in the progeny. Short, narrow hocks are much more liable to suffer from spavin than long, wide wedge shaped ones, a fact which young breeders can remember to their advantage when selecting their stock. The treatment advised by Stonehedge is such as tends to abate the inflammation and promote absorption of the new growth. Prior to the adoption of any plan the joint should be rested, the outer heel of the shoe should be lowered, the corn should be taken away, and the system cooled by appropriate treatment. After these precautions are taken, the next thing is to decide upon the remedies which will be suited to the case. They consist in: (1) Blisters, which have a tendency to cause absorption; (2) firing; (3) setons, with or without subcutaneous

SHOWING POSITIONS OF SOUND HOCK. Russell says that bone spavin may be removed by an early application of the proper remedies. In its incipient state it may be discovered by an unusual heat or tenderness on the inner side of the hock joint, accompanied with a touch of lameness. At this period Russell suggests a blister, but when of long stand ing it is usually necessary to apply actual cautery. This latter operation, however, must not be performed while any inflammation remains. The horse must be turned loose and given rest for a cosiderable time.

GREAT WORK TO BE DONE.

liance's Strongest Exponents. "Alliance Week" was a feature of the exposition at Atlanta, which will long be remembered by those who attended The chief exercises took place on Wednesday, when addresses were made by prominent Alliance men and other citizens of Georgia. Dr. C. W. McCune, who was introduced as "a gentleman who, more than any other, has contributed to make the Alliance the grand success it is," said in the course of his address:

Now, if the Farmers' Alliance were purely a political organization it would be something to be condemned-but the objects of the alliance are such that it is not and never can be in any sense of the word a political organization. It has a higher and a nobler mission. The men who fill its ranks know this, and they know its real aims are pure and devoted solely to the welfare of an immense body of American citizens-a body of men who for probity, inteiligence and courage have not their peers on earth.

The mission of the Alliance is a grand and noble one, and the work it has already done should commend it to the respect of every true American. It is no secret political organization, it could never hold together if it were, but it is a vast body of intelligent American farmers banded together for mutual improvement and mutual help, sworn to aid each other without discriminating against any other class of their fellow citizens. If you will look back over the last ten or fifteen years, my friends, you will see that there has been a general commotion, a very prevalent feeling of discontent and anxiety among all the people, and especially among the agri-cultural classes who felt—and who rightly felt-that they were not being fairly treated in a great many ways. Out of this feeling grew this great movement, an instructive movement for self defense and protection.

What the future holds no man may say. Some there are-wise men-who predict that the century will close in bloodshed and confusion; others have toiling millions. Yeu can hear the shout for relief coming up from all parts of the country—and the cries of honest and hard-working men must be heeded. We must have in all things liberality, unity. and in all things charity. No class of men in this country have anything to fear from the success of the Alliance. On the contrary all men have everything to hope from it, and the objects of this grand agricultural movement once assured, this country will take on such an era of solid prosperity and national wealth as was never seen before, was never dreamed of. Our only cry is for to all, special privileges to none. If I could make my voice heard throughout the length and breadth of this land I would devote myself unreservedly to this great issue, and never ease until strength failed me.

justice-pure and simple; "equal rights

Believe me, my friends, that the success of the Alliance means your emancipation from the servitude of Wall street. You will be released from the financial thraldom under which New York has so long kept you. It is a humiliating confession to make, but we are not blind to the fact that the whole land is groaning under the slavery of monopolists and men who care nothing for their country and everything for their bank accounts. But, my friends, we have a long, hard fight before us, and while we do not despair of victory, it will tax our energies and patriotism to the utmost to wrest our fair land from the choking

W. C. T. U. COLUMN. I ROTTED BY MRS. ALLIE LUSE DICK. A. M.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held in the parlors of Harris Hall on Thursday afternoon, January 29. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather there was a good attendance. Several new members were added to our number, and we felt that the hour was one of profit and that it would lead to a revival or interest in temperance. It was decided that the W. C. T. U. should furnish a speaker for the Gospel Temperance meetings at Cropsey's Hall one Sunday in the month. It was also resolved that the W. C. T. U. of Ann Arbor is opposed to the sale of liquor at the Columbian exposition, and unqualifiedly opposed to the opening of the exhibition grounds on Sunday.

"And we know that if the saloon system, as now existing in New York, auld be abolished, it will prove the grandest help to the laborer, and sure lefeat to the capitalist, his agent and slave overseer, the bar room keeper, as he could not deliver the goods on elec-tion day as heretofore."—St Louis Na-tional Reformer (Farmers' Alliance).

"Yes, help you along. Some time ago we sent out a man. We gave him credentials and a complimentary notice. He went out and didn't do much of anything. Just about that time a fellow who claimed to represent us began to travel through the country. Our office was flooded with complaints of not getting the paper, and we denounced the fellow, but the more we denounced him the more he prospered. The Secret of His Wealth.

DEACON MILLS GONE.

Death of an Old Pioneer, Whose Life Was not Only Eventful, but Useful-Funeral Services.

Yesterday morning came the news of the death of Lorrin Mills. Four years ago he moved to Manhattan, Kansas, where he has since lived with his daughter. He was eighty-six years old at the time of his death. He was born in Litchfield county, Connecticut. He came to Ann Arbor in 1827. He was married two years later to Miss Harriet G. Parsons, with whom he spent forty-one years of happy wedded life. He was married a second time to Mrs. Bur-nett, who died in the year 1874. Mr. Mills was instrumental in organizing the Presbyterian church in this city He also enjoyed the distinction of being the first tailor to open a shop west of Detroit, and he built the first brick

For nearly forty years he served as a deacon in the Congregational church, and was also for nineteen consecutive years superintendent of its Sunday School. He was a member of a military hand overniged in Buffele and was band organized in Buffalo, and was many times called upon to lead church many times called upon to lead church choirs. He was a member of the reception committee which welcomed General Lafayette to this country. He possessed an unusually lovely character. One of his old friends says he never knew a man who used his talents so well as did Deacon Mills. He was thrifty, honest, simple, generous, highminded.

The remains of the deceased will be brought to Ann Arbor and interred in Forest Hill cemetery, and the last sad rites will be performed at the Congregational church next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

OUR YPSILANTI RAMBLER

Tells What he Has Seen and Heard in that Burg During the Past Seven Days and Nights. These have been dreary days for rambling around this pretty city, seeking what news one may devour; and as the people look sort o' dreary, too, it will be no strange thing if this letter dons a sombre hue as well. Come to think, however, last Friday evening wasn't particularly dreary. Let's see, there was a progressive pedro party at Mrs. Julia Sherman's, and everybody knows there can be nothing dreary or slow that's in any way connected with her; then the Episcopalians held a merry-making at Hotel de Hawkins, at twenty cents per head, and cleared about fifty dollars, to head, and cleared about hity dollars, to be devoted to home charity. Same evening, a select corps from the state legislature donned its evening smile and gloves and arranged itself in the Normal reception room, where it was duly shaken and admired by several hundred stu-dents. We understand that that august body of learned politicians came away weary and scarcely able to lift an arm weary and scarcely able to lift an arm (the right one), but with a profound respect for the hosts of intelligent, well-dressed and mannered students who paid them homage. Saturday afternoon we noticed so many ladies flitting in and out of a certain Washington-st residence that we were tempted for once to indulge a bit of curiosity, which is usually confined wholly to the gentle sex, and ask the reason of this thusness. I asked meekly, and was informed by a pert miss, "Oh, you wont understand if I tell you; but any way, Miss Fannie Grey and Dr. Christine Anderson Taylor are giving the loveliest 5 o'clock tea. Men giving the loveliest 5 o'clock tea. Men never care for such things, but we do." Lots of folks welcomed the U. of M. boys Saturday evening at the opera house. The boys are favorites and their music and singing appreciated. That calls to mind that we are indebted to Ann Arbor for another pleasant treat. Mr. Randall spared no pains to make his exhibition of etchings, china, etc., pleasing to all visitors, and his visit will be pleasantly remembered. Well, now, come to think of it, Monday night was pretty middling jolly. There was the Light Guard annual proud by way of entertaining, and cer-tainly Capt. Smith had just cause for tainly Capt. Smith had just cause for beaming so beamingly as he noted the fair dames and misses who tripped the light fantastic so gracefully. Everybody looked entrancingly beautiful, even "the great horrid men." Monday night was a "red letter day," if I may be allowed the expression, for our well thrown. Will Hubbell, who loves the and the brave boys did themselves known Will Hubbell, who loves the histrionic art with the whole of his manly soul. So Will made his initial bow as the hero in "Lady of Lyons," and if anybody can beat William in artistic bow making, let him now come forward or forever hold his peace, Then things are not so dreary after all. But there is one sad household tonight at least. Two fond daughters and their little ones mourn the loss of a kind parent in the death of S. H. EXCITEMENT IN ROCHESTER.

The Commotion Caused by the State-ment of a Physician.

An unusual article from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, was recently republished in this paper and was a subject of much comment. That the article caused even more commotion in Rochester, the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well-known, not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended arti-cle to this paper, a few days since, which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed necessary.

With this end in view, a representative of this paper called on the subject was deemed necessary.

of this paper called on Dr. Henion, at his residence, when the following interview occurred: "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were research as you are austring?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. I was brought so low by neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true I had frequent headaches; felt is true I had frequent headaches. tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the next; felt dull pains and my stomach was out of order, but I did not think it meant anything serious." anything serious.'

"The medical profession has been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. The symptoms I have just mentioned, or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels, indicate the approach of kid-ney disease more than a cough announces the coming of consumption. We do not treat the cough, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said that more than one-half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it, Doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of diseases are torturing people, today, which in reality are Bright's disease in some of its many forms. It is a hydra-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints, which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured, as I was, by the timely use been cured, as I was, by the timely use of the same remedy. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also."

Mr. Warner, who was visited at his establishment on N. St. Paul-st, spoke very earnestly:

earnestly: "It is true that Bright's disease had increased wonderfully and we find, by re-liable statistics, that from '70 to '80 its liable statistics, that from '70 to '80 its growth was over 250 per cent! Look at the prominent men it has carried off, and is taking off every year, for while many are dying apparently of paralysis and apoplexy, they are really victims of kidney disorder, which causes heart disease, paralysis, apoplexy, etc. Nearly every week the papers record the death of some prominent man from this awful scource. Recently, however, the increase scourge. Recently, however, the increase has been checked and I attribute this to the general use of my remedy." "Do you think many people are afflicted with it today who do not realize it, Mr.

"A prominent professor in a New Or-leans medical college was lecturing be-fore his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. 'And now, gen-tlemen,' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health, and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command both left him and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gen!lemen, I have made a painful discovery I have Bright's disease of the kidneys; and in less than a year he was dead. The slightest indications of any kidney diffi-culty should be enough to strike terror

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"
'Yes, I have both read and heard of it.' "It is very wonderful, is it not?"

"No more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means.' "You believe, then, that Bright's disease can be cured?"

"I know it can. I know it from my own and the experience of thousands of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends." "You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, how-ever, I found it was kidney difficulty, I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying: 'There goes a man who will be dead within a year.' I believe his words would have proved true if I had not fortunately used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Cure."

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H H. Warner, some three years ago, Doctor?" was asked Dr. S. A. Lattimore, one of the analysts of the State Board of Health.

"Yes, sir."
"What did this analysis show you?" "A serious disease of the kidneys."
"Did you think Mr. Warner could re-

'No, sir; I did not think it possible." "Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?" "I have chemically analyzed it and find it pure and harmless.' The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. War-ner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question, and the statements they make cannot for a moment be doubted. Dr. Henion's experience shows that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, but that it can be cured if taken

A FEED COOKER FOR STOCK.

A Simple Device That May Be Made at a Small Cost.

Although the great majority of farmers do not cook or steam the feed grain to stock there are often times exceptional cases when this can be made to pay. The feed cooker shown in the il-Instration is the device of an Illinois correspondent, who writes about it as follows in Prairie Farmer:

HOME MADE FEED COOKER, An eight inch stovepipe set into the bottom of a barrel or deep tank, with a small stove grate or other flat iron suspended within three inches of the bottom by three wires hooking over the upper end of the pipe, makes a water heater worth having, if such an article is worth anything. Any tinman can make the pipe, put two or three rivets in the seam, and seal it with the white of egg and flour. A very narrow flange and two rows of tacks will fasten it in. The one shown in the cut cost sixty cents, and can cook anything, using cobs, coal, ten foot rails, or anything burnable for fuel. Of course it is understood that the fire chamber is below the bottom of the barrel, and that the joint, where it enters the barrel, is watertight.

Painting the Farm Tools.

There will be a great many days during the winter when farmers can accomplish but little work out of doors. Much can be done at such times in little jobs with tools, of which every farmer should have a set complete enough to enable him to repair many of his implements and save running to a carpenter's shop with them. In scarcely any way can more be saved than in keeping the farm implements well oiled or painted. Exposure to the drying effects of the atmosphere often does more harm to woodwork than actual use when employed in the field. Nothing is a better preventive against shrinkage and the loosening and creaking of joints in wood than a free use of paint. The cost is trifling and a farmer can put it on himself, and it occasions loss not to use it whenever it is needed.

If any one wants a recipe for a good paint to use on plows, harrows, wagons, mowing machines or other implements take white lead from the keg and mix with raw linseed oil to the consistency of cream and add Japan dryer in the proportion of half a pint to a gallon of oil; then add, a little at a time, Prussian blue, ground in oil, until the shade suits, after which add a little carriage varnish. The white lead furnishes a good body and makes the paint durable, and the carriage varnish gives a nice gloss. Of blue is not fancied color can be substituted for it.

Pedigreed Dams.

Breeding horses is and always will be a lottery until the dams can show as good pedigrees as the sires, says The National Stockman. It is not fair to expect a full blood sire to produce a colt after his own style and finish every time when the mare has the blood of generations of mongrels running through her veins.

Dorset Horn Sheep.

Dorset horn sheep have lately come into fashion in this country, and are dividing with the Shropshires the attention of our buyers.

DORSET HORN RAM.

The picture here shown is the portrait of a very fine ram bred in Dorchester, England. It was 1 year and 5 months old when the photograph was taken. It furnishes a typical example of the Dorset horn breed.

Poultry Notes.

Any breed of fowl can be profitably kept on dry sandy or gravelly soil. Broken eggs in the nests start the hens to eat them. On wet low lying land ducks and geese are the only poultry that can be successfully reared.

A patch of rye grown close to the poultry yard is a cheap way of furnishing green food.

It seems almost a crime for a man to "hide his light under a bushel." If he has something new, that will benefit the human race, he should make it known. "Percy Beaufort Lovel," said the good-hearted millionaire, "I have often told you that I object to the word servant being used and applied to yourself. It may 'go' over in England, but it don't go here, so please don't use it."

Now Percy knew that when Mr. Wilcox addressed him by his full name the old gentleman was annoyed, so he felt he must do something to please him and bring him back to his usual even temperament. "It is kind of you to place such entire confidence in me, Mr. Wilcox," he said, "but even if I did accept your assistance I could not ask Armida to marry me at present. I have sworn to myself to follow up every trail I find until that vile Velasquez meets his deserts and until we find him or proof of his death, I can not settle down. At any moment I might have to go off to a distant part of the country or abroad and under such circumstances a wife would be a burden Moreover, my thoughts are so intent upon the work of running her father's murderer to earth, that in my abstractedness at times she might think that I did not love her. Then there is another matter quite worth consideration. Suppose she would not have me?"

"Hardly any fear that she would refuse you, my boy I can't see through a brick wall, but I can see through a ladder, and if that girl is not in love with 'the secretary' I am very much mistaken," remarked Mr. Wilcox.

"You have never heard Armida talk Wilcox's room to have a few words with about an Englishman's love, though,' remarked Percy "Can't say I ever did," was the reply. "Why, she says an Englishman's love is the most cold-blooded kind of love in the world. One night she became quite enthusiastic. She had been reading an Italian love story, about a young couple who committed suicide in each other's embrace because their parents would not let them wed I said that I thought an Englishman's love was as true if it was not as demonstrative as any other man's; but she put her hands on my shoulders and looked me in the eyes and said with an intensely dramatic effect: 'You Englishmen do not know what love is. Love which is love is only known beneath the sunny skies of my father's native land.' Her words had quite an effect upon me for a time and f almost felt as though I really did not know how to love, but when I have accomplished, with your assistance, the desire of my heart, I will prove to her that I at least can love."

As Percy uttered his last words Mr. Wilcox looked at him with an admiring glance and said: "Percy, my boy, I believe you." By this time each had finished his cigar and they parted for the night-Mr. Wilcox promising to take a good look at Mr. Emerick next morning

But when the next morning came he was doomed to disappointment, for on inquiring for Mr. Emerick at the hotel office he and Percy were told that the gentleman of that name had left on the early morning train for New York.

Neither could have explained exactly why, but each felt a keen disappointment that they did not see the reputed wealthy ship-owner again. Besides they were puzzled to understand why he should have made such a hasty departure. They did not gain much satisfaction from the clerk, for that functionary said he did not know the reason, except that Mr. Emerick had told him be was called to New York on business.

In an hour the ship-owner had almost passed from their thought and they began to make preparations for their own departure on the following day

CHAPTER VIII.

In one of the darkest parts of Pearl street, New York, a section of the street made dark by the elevated railroad, not a great way from the Battery, there is an old-fashioned building which doubtless has a history of its own, but which was many years ago converted into mercantile offices. Not so very long since, on the glass door of a room on the second floor, the following lettering might have been read "Emerick & Co., South American Merchants." On the left-hand corner was printed in smaller letters "Julius Emerick," and on the right was the name "Henry Howe," indicating that these were the names of the two partners in the firm.

Inside this room, seated at his desk in a private office partitioned off with glass, sat Julius Emerick, the senior member of the firm. It was the afternoon of the day on which that gentleman had made a burried departure from Long Branch II s sudden return had upset the calculations of the clerks. and two out of the three whom the firm employed were away to a base-ball game at Staten Island The discovery of this fact when he came down to the office after lunch had irritated Mr. Emerick beyond measure, and the solitary clerk who had been left in charge was having a rather unpleasant time of it with his employer. Emerick was naturally an irritable man, and to-day be acted in an excessively disagreeable manner.

"Gooch," he called out to the clerk. "Sir?" was the submissive response. "Has the Trinidad cleared?"

"Yes, sir, she cleared this morning, and every thing is ready. She sails this evening at sundown.

"Have we received any dispatches from Mr. Howe lately?" "Only the one lying on your desk, sir, which has not yet been opened. It came in about one o'clock, after the other clerks had gone away ' Mr. Emerick walked to his desk, and at once called out in a sharp tone: "There is no dispatch here."

"It must be there, I placed it on your desk myself, sir." Then the clerk began to look for it and found it almost immediately. It GOOCH!" HE CALLED OUT TO THE CLERK. which Mr. Emerick had placed on it The clerk went back to his desk and Mr. Emerick sat down to read the dispatch. It was to the effect that Mr. Howe, his partner, who was down at Buenos Ayres, was sick and wished to return to New York As Mr. Emerick read, something almost amounting to a smile beamed on his face, only that when he smiled his personal appearance was not at all improved, for it was such an unmeaning, ghastly smile compared with what smiles are generally understood to be, that there was nothing pleasant about it. Again he called out: "Gooch," and met another ready response.

"Go over to Staten Island and find Mr. Bellew Tell him to come to the office without a moment's delay, no matter how interesting the game may

"All right, sir," replied the clerk. "But before you go ring up a District Messenger boy I want to send a note to Captain Dacre. I am going to sail for Buenos Ayres on the Trinidad tonight, and there is not a minute to be lost. Take a cab to the ferry and do not let any thing interrupt you. Use every effort to find Bellew, at whatever expense. I will be here in the office to meet him at five o'clock."

Gooch went off to fulfill Emerick's bidding and the merchant sat down to write a note to send over to Captain Dacre at the Brooklyn dock, telling him to prepare quarters for himself In a rew moments the note was on its way and Mr. Emerick busied himself for an hour straightening up various matters. Then he walked out to send a cable gram to his partner advising him that he could now leave Buenos Ayres at his pleasure, as he proposed to start im-mediately to take charge of their office there. After doing this he jumped into a cab and was driven to his apartments, where he soon had every thing packed and was ready to start on his voyage.

In the meantime Gooch was hunting all over the base-ball grounds to find Mr. Bellew, the managing clerk. He was all of a flutter with excitement and the minutes were flying past with aggravating rapidity. It was after four o'clock before he found his man, and hen the two ran down to the landing and just managed to catch the ferry-boat. Another instant would have been too late; as it was, they had to jump aboard the boat at the imminent risk of falling into the water. The bystanders laughed at their actions and shouted after them. but they heeded not. They reached the office a few minutes before five o'clock and found their employer awaiting them. He did not waste any time upbraiding Mr. Bellew for leaving the office during his absence; time was too precious. He spoke sharply enough, however, when he said:

"Gooch, you stay and lock up the office, and you, Mr. Bellew, jump into the cab with me and I will give you your instructions as we ride."

The instructions which he had to give were brief but positive. No one was to know where he had gone and his reasons, he said, were purely personal. He would attend to the business of the house in Buenos Ayres, but his name would not be used conspicuously. As they alighted from the cab at the dock, Mr. Emerick looked around for a newsboy to buy an evening paper. He did

He had bought the paper and was walking away when the woman dropped her papers and, running after him, shouted: "Alphonse! Alphonse!" in a wild yet almost joyful manner. She caught up with him and laid her hand on his coat sleeve, but he rudely shook her off and said: "Hands off, woman. What do you

"Alphonse, don't you know me?" she piteously cried.

But she did not have the opportunity to hear the reply, for the dock police man supposing she was supplicating for alms laid rude hands on her and soon forced her outside the gates.

"Let me follow him; he is my husband," she said.

"A rather likely story. Why, that is Mr. Emerick, the wealthy merchant and owner of the cargo in the Trinidad, lying at the dock yonder," replied the policeman.

"He is not. He is Alphonse Bregy, my husband, who deserted me many years ago-it must be twenty-and I will follow him."

"You're crazy, woman," was the rough

By this time quite a crowd had gathered and a lot of Italian newsboys were fighting over the newspapers which they had stolen from the poor woman when she dropped them.

The crowd only laughed and jeered at her, which so enraged the poor woman that she became almost frantic, and in wild, despairing accents cried out: "Oh, my God, I wish I was dead!"

With these wild words she rushed off towards the water's edge as though to jump in, but a man in the crowd intercepted her and in the end the policeman arrested her on a charge of disorderly conduct.

The woman who caused all this disturbance had sold newspapers in Brook-lyn to gain a livelihood for the past six or seven years. No one knew and few cared to know where she came from or any thing of her history. The only name she was called by was "French Emilie," though her speech only slightly indicated her nationality. She was, or rather had been, a good-looking woman, but her features showed signs of dissipation which was sometimes so much intensified as to make her appearance horrible.

Once she had grown communicative and told some other woman who also sold papers near to Fulton Ferry that she was married in New York more than twenty years ago. Her husband, she said, had deserted her and her boy baby soon after the birth of the latter, and she had never heard of him since. The baby had grown into a fine fellow who had found employment in a New York office, but growing tired of city life had gone West to the mining districts of Colorado, since which time she had never heard a word from him. This was all that anybody knew about French Emilie's history.

As the unfortunate creature was being locked up in the police cell, the "Trinidad" was steaming out into the East river and Mr. Emerick was fairly on the way to South America.

Mr. Bellew rode back to Pearl street wrapt in contemplative thought. He had always thought his employer a strange man, but knew nothing of his history other than Mr. Emerick himself had related. Mr. Howe, the junior partner of the firm, had built up a reputation by working his way in an incredibly short space of time from the desk to the position of manager in a large shipping house, and having had a small legacy left him had resolved to go into business for himself. So he chose the South American trade, with which he was perfectly familiar.

His capital not being quite sufficient to purchase a vessel (upon which he had set his fancy) and still leave a sufficient amount to work with, he had advertised in the columns of a New York paper for a partner. The result was that he formed a business agreement with Mr. Emerick, a gentleman who had just returned from abroad where he said he had amassed quite a large amount of money in disposing of American mining stocks. Mr. Emerick had given as his reason for embarking in trade that, being tired of exciting speculation, he wished to settle down in some legitimate busi-

The partnership appeared to be a pleasant one, for so far there had never been any trouble. The firm prospered, and a few years after it commenced operations Mr. Howe went to Buenos Ayres to open up a branch office and had remained there until the present

Mr. Howe's opinion of his partner was that he was a rather eccentric individual, which opinion would doubtless be confirmed upon his receipt of the cable message announcing Emerick's sudden intention of coming to Buenos Ayres to exchange places with him.

He was accustomed to sudden and unexpected actions from his partner, but this was exceptional and inexplicable. The following morning French Emilie was brought up before the police magistrate and fined for disorderly conduct; she wildly protested her innocence, but it was of no use, and having no money, she was sent out to the work-house to work out her fine.

Late that same evening a young man sat in the office of a cheap hotel near the Ferry, reading the evening paper, when he suddenly clutched it tightly and stared at it in an incomprehensible manner. He was reading othe police items and had just come to a paragraph stating that Emilie Bregy, better known as "French Emilie," had been arrested and fined for disorderly conduct the night before. The report went on to state that the poor crazy woman had followed Mr. Emerick, a prominent New York merchant, claiming that he was her husband who had left her years ago.

The young man who read the paragraph was none other than Eugene Bregy, the son of the poor woman. He had only just returned from the West, where he had saved a few hundred dollars, intending to embark in some kind of business in New York or Brooklyn.

After reading the account in the paper he knew in a moment that his poor mother had become the victim of the officialism embodied in a blue coat and silver buttons. He at once sought the police office, but was told he would have to wait until the following morning when he could pay his mother's fine and she would be released.

J. W. Reeves, Dexter. Can Catarrh be Permanently Cured?

This is a question of great interest to the thousands who have been cured of catarrh by Pe-ru-na during the last year or two. To be cured of this loathsome disease as promptly and completely as Pe-ru-na commonly does, seems to most people to be too good to remain true. They ask, Will not catarrh return the first time I expose myself, or quit treat-ment? The answer is, No; you are as well as ever in your lives, and no more liable to get catarrh than one who never had it. Many years have elapsed since the first cases of catarrh were cured by Pe-ru-na, and in order to test the permanency of these cures a number were written to, and the following case it a fair sample of the replies received: Jonah S. Whan, of McKees Rocks, Allegheny county, Pa., who was, ten years ago, cured of severe chronic ca-tarrh of many years standing by the use of Pe-ru-na, writes January 24, 1891: "I am not bothered with catarrh at all." The cures made by Pe-ru-na are per-manent. Pe-ru-na is for sale at most drug stores, and full directions for use with each bottle. A book on catarrh, which is a complete guide to the prevention and cure of catarrh, sent free to any address by The Pe-ru-na Medicine Company of Columbus, Ohio. 42
