THE LAST SAD RITES.

FUNERAL SERVICES AND RESO. LUTIONS.

The University Senate Drafts an Appropriate Memorial Rehearsing the Virtues and Achievements of Prof-

A large number of friends attended the funeral of the late Dr. Winchell, which was held at the house on Sunday afternoon. Rev. W. S. Studley, of Evanston, Ill., delivered an eloquent address, touching on the life and virtues of his old friend. Services were conducted by the Rev. R. H. Rust, of the Methodist church. A select choir, under the direction of Prof. A. A. Stanley, rendered the music. The honorary pall-bearers were Professors D'Ooge, Walter, Harrington, Prescott, Carhart, Pettee, Demmon and President Angell. A large number of people followed the remains to Forest Hill cemetery.

On Friday afternoon the University Senate met and drafted the following

Prof. Alexander Winchell, LL. D., passed away yesterday morning in the 67th year of his age, and we, the mem-bers of the University senate, have assembled to endeavor to express our feeling of sorrow and sense of bereave-

In the death of Dr. Winchell the University experiences a great loss; the loss of an eminent and learned man, one of its most devoted and loyal friends; one who, in addition to the duties of his professorship, has done more than most men in educating the general public; a man of the greatest industry and incessant intellectual activity; a striking figure in the growth of the University for nearly forty years and one of the few remaining bonds which connect us with its early history, a leader in his chosen science and a man of lofty

Dr. Winchell was called to this University by President Tappan in 1853, and, with the exception of six years, and, with the exception of six years, from 1873 to 1879, his connection with this institution has been unbroken. When first appointed, he was only twenty-nine years of age, but he had already made his mark as a teacher and a man of science. The breadth of his citizeness are seen as the contract of the second seen and the second seen are the second seen as the second second seen as the second second seen as the second his attainments, so well known to us, and since displayed in numberless ways, was then already evident. He ways, was then already evident. He came here as professor of physics and engineering, but he was soon transferred to the department of geology, zoology and botany. He was thoroughly at home in all these sciences, and it was only the growth of the University which required their separation and left him in charge of geology—a science which is, in some degree, a summary and abstract of degree, a summary and abstract of all the others. To this chair he brought ripened scholarship and thorough training in the most diverse ways. He was a practiced linguist, reading more than a dozen languages and speak-ing several. He was well read in philosophy, and he was a thoughtful stu-dent and writer on educational subjects.

He held the chair of geology to the time of his death, with the most distinguished success, as is shown by the honors which have been heaped upon At the time of his death he was co-editor of the American Geologist, president of the Geological Society of America and one of the organizing committee of the International Congress of Geologists to be held in Washington this year. Dr. Winchell did not confine his labors to his professional duties. His studies in the field have been made under the auspices of the national and several state surveys. His success as a scientific lecturer caused incessant de-mands to be made on him both from other institutions of learning and from the public platform. His literary activity was, if possible, still greater than his activity in other directions. He was the author of at least twelve formal books and of more than 300 lesser pubications, and these were not thrown off in haste and carelessly, but each was the result of elaborate research and deep reflection. They would alone form a worthy monument to the memory of any man. They are read wherever the English language is spoken and, in many cases, they have been translated into foreign languages, thus carrying his name, and with it the name of the university with which his was always linked, far beyond the confines of his own country—carrying them, in fact, over the entire world. To some of his books it was given to guide to a degree rarely accorded to books in these days, popular thoughts on the subjects on which they treat. They have an influence which few scientific books have ever reached; they have not only made their author one of the most prominent figures in American science, but have made his name a household word in thousands of families.

But we feel the loss of Dr. Winchell not only because of his eminence in his chosen field of work but also because of his personal equities. his personal qualities. He was a man of impressive appearance and dignified beraing, a courteous colleague and a faithful friend, and those who knew him best found in him depths of gentleness and affection which are found but seldom. He was absolutely unswerving in his allegiance to what he believed to be the truth. With true scientific instinct he firmly believed that all truth was one, and he devoted himself for many years to proving that science and reve-lation could not be in conflict. His faith in ascertained science was no less unwavering than his faith in religion, and, in earlier days, when such an asserton provoked hostile and even bitter criticism, he dared to assert and maintain that geology and revelation were in accord. Unmoved by the storm which he had raised, firm in his convictions of scientific truth, and devout by nature, he then passed on to the study of the great problems of creation—problems to which his deeply religious feeling.

his love of nature and the natural bent and grasp of his mind all irresistibly turned him. With a reverent but master hand he endeavored to lift the veil of the past, to follow the steps of creation, ascertain its laws and follow its evolution. These were the problems to which he delighted to devote himself, His other studies were only incidental to these or to the duties of instruction. It was under the inspiration of these grand problems that his most influential books were written and his most eloquent discourses delivered; and, as it happens, his last public lecture, the last lecture he was destined to deliver, when the feebleness of mortal disease was vercome by the inspiration of his sub-ject, a lecture which called together so many that his class room had to be exchanged for University Hall—his last public address was again devoted to one of the noble problems of creat on. It was a fitting subject for the last discourse and a fitting close for the public life of so great so able and so devote a life of so great, so able and so devout a Man.

A noble and striking personality, a man of great learning and lofty ideals, has been stricken down and we grieve at his loss; a gentle and earnest spirit has left us and we mourn.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to his family in their great bereavement and we desire, in a body, to join with them in the last sad tribute to the mortal remains of our late associate.

The University Musical Society present the following memorial upon the death of Dr. Winchell. A little more than a year ago the board of directors of the University Musical Society were listening to a memorial on the death of Dr. Henry S. Friese, drawn up and presented by Professor Alexander Winchell. Little did they think that in so short a time it would become their sad duty to ex-press their sorrow that he who drew up that tender and beautiful memoria should so soon follow on the same jour-ney to the silent land. On seeing the assiduity and vigor with which he attended to his many duties for nearly the whole of the first semester it seemed hardly possible that the end was so near, that a life so useful to society, of such abounding vitality, should be so suddenly cut short.

To Professor Winchell more than to any other man the University Musical Society owns its present form of organization; he pointed out the existence of a state law under which it was incor-porated, he drew up the constitution and ordinances, to him the society always turned at all critical periods for advice, which he never failed to give. In the midst of the numerous calls made upon hi time and energies, he always found leisure to give the society the benefit and inspiration of his pres-ence and the help of wise counsels at all his meetings. His kindness was unvarying, his activity was untiring, his devotion to the interests of the society was unsurpassed. Although not a practical musician himself, music especially and the other arts as well, were cultivated in his household in such a way that this society has derived great direct practical benefits. He took deep interest and delight in music in all its forms. He was an appreciative and intelligent listener, a just and indulgent critic; and he sympathized with every effort to raise the standard of musical culture and intelligence in the University and in the community.

Dr. Alexander Winchell was the first vice-president of the University Musi-cal Society. He held that office until October, 1881, when he was elected president. He remained president un-til October, 1883, when he positively declined a re-election. In October, 1889, he was again elected vice-president. On the death of Dr. Frieze in December of the same year he became president, and was re-elected in 1890. From October. 1880, till April, 1882, he was also presi dent of the Choral Union, and during the whole existence of the society he has been a member of the board of di-

The board of directors desire to express their sense of the deep loss they have sustained in his death, who was wise counsellor and a true friend, and to place it on record, so that the society in the future may have some slight ap preciation of the immense services he has rendered it.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Methodist church, held Monday evening, the following memorial was adopted:

The board of trustees of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Ann Arbor desire to place on record their sense of the great loss they have sus-tained in the death of Professor Alex-ander Winchell, who has been for two years their honored and efficient presi-dent. He has been summoned by the Master he had served so long and well from among the struggles and labors of this life to enjoy the reward which is reserved for such long and faithful service in a world where struggles and labors are unknown. In him the church of Ann Arbor has lost a wise counsellor, a devoted friend, the universal church a devoted friend, the universal chilich a well equipped and valiant soldier, religious truth an ardent and powerful defender, and the Giver of all truth a humble and willing follower. But though he is dead, yet does he live, his works do follow him. In the lives and hearts of those who have been moved by his example and precep,t eloquent witnesses are still testifying to the value of the truths he taught, and long after that body, which was but the decaying abode of the immortal spirit, has returned to its dust, the spirit itself which dwelt there will live and work, as in this mortal life, for God and His truth.

Have We a Free Mail Delivery?-Some thing Further about the Saloons— A Correspondent Indulges in a "Non Sequitur Argument on the Tariff. A number-in fact a large proportion of those who, before the introduction of the present (partial) system were accustomed to receive their mail at the post-office-have been unable to receive any direct benefits from the free delivery. On the contrary, rates are increased, for with the free delivery in place of the one-cent postage, the twocent stamp is required on all city letters, so that on the city mail of all those justly entitled to free delivery, but living off or beyond the carrier routes. the government demands and collects pay for service not performed. Admit that it is but a single cent on a letter, it is being collected constantly and in the course of a year amounts to a considerable sum. If this were all, there would be much less occasion for this communication. But it is only a part of the inustice done, for all not receiving free delivery are obliged to retain their post office box, for which the government exacts an annual rent of $1, or, if a lock box, $2.00, their only alternative being to get their mail at the general delivery, thereby subjecting themselves to a tax on their patience, convenience and oftentimes personal comfort, besides a tax on their time representing a money value as great and probably greater than the rent tax. If those justly entitled to free delivery, who are still obliged to receive their mail at the post office, were allowed the use of a box free, the injustice would, in part, be removed, but only in part, for even then the necessity to either go or send for their mail would still remain with its attending inconvenience. If our present postmaster secures the aid for which he has applied, more of our citizens may expect before long to enjoy a privionly the pleasure of paying.

EDITOR REGISTER: You say in your editorial column, issue of January 15, that you hope the Legislature will enact a high license law that shall be what its name implies, settling on $1,000 as the minimum that should be required and giving as a reason for this tax, that it would sweep out of existence the "low doggeries" that abound in our beautiful city. Now, Mr. Editor, do you think that the "low doggeries" are the not think so, when you stop to think a moment. A man does not go to these places until he gets so low that he has lost his self respect, and the better class of saloons(so called)do not want his custom, as it lowers their respectability to have a drunkard yelling, swearing and tumbling around their doors. If the saloon business is a good one to have in a university town, or any other, let any one go into it that wishes to, irrespective of the money qualification high license imposes upon him. If it is not a good business to have in the above named places, then let us do what we can to destroy it altogether. It is not the number of saloons that need reducing, but the consumption of intoxicating beverages and that cannot be done by simply shutting up a few of the (so called) lowest saloons, but by shutting up and outlawing them all. I think you will admit that this business is detrimental to any city, especially a college city as ours is, where we have nearly 2,400 young people, who are in the formative period of their characters. Now, if, as Mr. Biggs, in his letter in issue of the 22d, says, this business is obnoxious to ninetenths of our citizens, let us get together at our coming city election and elect men who will see that our liquor laws and all other laws are enforced, and do what they can to put down this lawbreaking business. Let all those who are opposed to this traffic, irrespective of political party, nominate, in their respective wards, men known to be opposed to it and elect them, as they easily can if all will help. Then the men engaged in the business would take the hint and close their doors whenever they were told to do so. Horace T. Purfield.

JOHN F. FINERTY.

Eloquent Speech by the ex-Congress man on the Atternoon of Washing. ton's Birthday.

The large audience which gathered in University hall, last Monday afternoon, to hear John F. Finerty was not disappointed. The subject of his address was "The Founder of the Republic-Political Amalgamation." In graphic language he sketched the career and eulogized the virtues of George Washing'on. He mentioned the names of several of the great Europeans who helped the American nation in the struggle for liberty. Then there was no cry of "America for the Americans." People realized then that it was not necessary for one to be born in this country to be a loyal and patriotic citizen. If the United States were reserved for one particular race, it would no longer be the land of liberty. The spirit of nativism must be obliterated if the people are to live ogether in harmony. After speaking in glowing terms of the foundation of the republic, Mr. Finerty eulogized the later patriots, Lincoln, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. The real wealth of nations, said he, is found, not in gold and silver but in the virtues of the people and the memories of the departed great men. But, said he, let us not be parrowly patriotic. Be not jealous of those whose hearts go out to other lands. Let us remember that the brotherhood of man goes beyond the limits of the American republic.

M rphine Made Death Easy.

George E. Smith, a well-to-do grocer of Oscoda, bought a large dose of morphine and going home took it and lay down on the sofa in his sittingroom. His wife came in shortly after, and he told her in the most matter-offact tone what he had done and how long he expected to live. She wanted to go for help, but he detained her with instructions as to what he wanted done until it was too late to save him.

Murdered by Vicious Poles. A row in a boarding house in Marquette resulted in the brutal murder of Michael Smith and the fatal injury of Michael Selka by Walenty Nowak and son. The Nowaks and other Poles were carousing on the second floor of the building, and Smith and Selka went upstairs to stop the fracas. when they were set upon with pickhandles. Smith's body was pounded into an unrecognizable mass of flesh.

The Value of Advertising. P. E. Deal, a well-to-do farmer living near Oshtemo, who advertised in Chicago some time ago for a wife, after making a choice of 300 applicants selected Miss Dorcas C. Waters, of Morley, this State, and they are now one. Mr. Deal is 56 years old and his wife 36.

The fact has been discovered that a picture by Peter Neefs, the old Dutch master, has been stolen from the art museum in Detroit. It is entitled "Interior of a Gothic Church." The subject was that of a priest celebrating mass. It was painted in 1640 or thereabouts and was valued at $15,000. It is noted as one of the once greatest collections of Sir Charles Rushouts.

A TRIPLE TRAGEDY.

A Wealthy Stockman Kills His Wife, an

Employe and Himself. LEIGH, Neb., Feb. 21.—The entire community was aroused Friday over a bloody tragedy in the family of William McCubbin, a wealthy stockman, which resulted in the husband blowing his wife's brains out, shooting his hired man, Frank Yots, to death and cutting his own throat. The crime was committed as the result of a vague rumor that Yots was too intimate After the double murder McCubbin called his little 5-year-old daughter, who had witnessed the affair, and giving her his pocket-book and keys told her to go and live with her grandmother, as she would never see papa and mamma again. When the frightened child departed the frenzied man seized a butcher knife and nearly severed his head from the body. The murderer's corpse was found an hour later lying across those of his victims who had fallen on the floor. A shotgun and revolver were used to do the bloody work. The gun charge tore the wife's face to pieces, and the five revolver shots were fired into the body of the hired man. Yots was an ignorant fellow, and the suspicions entertained by the husband concerning his wife's infidelity were considered in the county as entirely ungrounded. McCubbin returned from attending the Stockmen's con-vention at Beatrice Thursday night, and did the killing immediately after breakfast. He was a prominent Republican and a leader in all county af-AFTER MANY DAYS.

Five Pennsylvania Miners Intombed Since

Febru ry 4 Are Freed.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 24.-Five of the miners who were caught by the rush of water and mprisoned in the Jeanesville mine on the morning of February 4 have been rescued alive. They are John Tomaskusky, Joe Mastuskowich, John Berno, Bosco Frinko and an unknown Hungarian who was visiting John Berno. The searching party after finding the bodies of Sellock, Reed, Ball and Smith on Sunday were more anxious than ever to solve the fate of the remaining five. Not a moment's time was lost, but no traces of the unfortunate victims could be found until late Monday night, when Superintendent McFarlane and Caleb Williams were making a search in a breast of the cast gangway of the "north pitch." They were startled at coming upon the five, who were huddled together in their efforts to keep warm. Careful examination revealed the fact that all were alive, but weakened of course by their awful torture of hunger and thirst. They were so weak that with one exception they could not be moved. John Tomaskusky's superior strength left him in better shape than any of the rest and he was able to be moved to the bottom of the slope into the engine-house. A doctor was summoned at once and a large stock of blankets were secured and the men wrapped in them. The men will not be brought to the surface for sev-

THE LAST RITES.

Burial of Gen. Sherman in Calvary Cemetery at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Feb. 23 .- 'Mid the thunder of cannon, the pomp of war and in the presence of the civil and military dignitaries of the land, all that was mortal of Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman was on Saturday consigned to the grave in Calvary cemetery by the side of his wife. Thousands of soldiers escorted the remains from the depot to the cemetery, and the cortege moved through dense crowds of people. The services were conducted by Father Sherman, and at their conclusion, in quick succession, three volleys rang out over the the grave and echoed from the surrounding hills. Three salvos from the artillery, which was stationed outside the cemetery, followed, and the funeral ceremonies of the last of the great union captains was over.

A Fatal Street Fight Between Columbus (O.) Journalists.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24 .- A tragedy occurred on High street Monday afternoon in which two men were killed and several injured. The affair was the result of articles published in two Sunday papers. W. J. Elliott, of the Sunday Capital, and A. C. Osborn, of the Sunday World, did the shooting. A bystander named Hughes was shot through the head and died almost instantly. Osborn was instantly killed. P. J. Elliott, a brother of W. J. Elliott, was also hit. The street was crowded with people watching the parade at the time. The trouble grew out of an exchange of articles in which the principals referred to each other's RAGING RIVERS.

Floods Causing Great Damage and Loss of Life.

The Ohlo River Continues to Rise, and

Fears of a Flood Are Expressed-Other Rivers Are on the Rampage. IN GREAT PERIL. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 23.—The heavy snow, which was followed by rain, has caused an overflowing of the Missouri river and resulted in a casualty in which five lives were lost. Frederick Warner, a German fisherman, lived the bank of the river with his wife and three children in a small house. Saturday night the combined rain and high water caused the house to be undermined, and it was thrown into the river with the whole family. The cries of the people roused the neigh bors and they rushed to the spot, but were too late to be of assistance. The bodies of Mrs. Warner and two of the children were recovered about a mile below the place where the accident occurred, but Warner and the youngest child were not found, and it is supposed that they were swept further down the stream.

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 23.—The falling water in the Ohio showed that the railroads centering here have lost a very large amount of money through damage to tracks, bridges, embankments and rolling stock. The Wheeling & Lake Erie track, extending along the west bank of the river from Martin's Ferry to Steubenville, a distance of twenty-five miles, is almost a total wreck and will have to be very largely reconstructed, involving a loss of perhaps $100,000. The Cleveland & Pittsburgh had one washout over 200 feet long and numerous smaller ones, and the other roads suffer in proportion. The Ohio River road will not be able to move trains before Wednesday next.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 23.—The body of a boy was taken out of the river at Nineva and brought to the morgue Saturday. This makes the fifth flood victim that was washed up by the recent high water. CINCINNATI, Feb. 24.—The outlook of the Ohio river flood grows worse. Here the river continues to rise about an inch an hour. The railroads that use the Central depot are compelled to vacate it, but they all have improvised passenger stations. The White line street-car route is covered with water for 2 miles. Down in the bottoms all the basements and first floors have been emptied for 4 squares back from the river. On floors. A dozen foundries are stopped. At Newport water is 4 feet deep and a number of families are seeking other houses. In Covington the low-lying portions are submerged. At Portsmouth the waterworks have been stopped. The "Big Four" road is under water from Lawrenceburg to Aurora, Ind., and is abandoned. The Mill creek bottoms are a vast lalte miles in extent. Under the water thousands of acres of truck gardens lay submerged and damaged thousands of dollars. Out in the west end a hundred houses are submerged and the inhabitants have fled to higher ground. A half-dozen factories in that section are closed down.

IRONTON, O., Feb. 24.—The city is suffering from another flood. water has submerged all the lower sections and driven hundreds of families from their homes. Water is now standing in the business parts of the city and the river is still rising.

PARKERSBURG, W. Riverside is still inundated and but few families will be able to feturn to their homes for two weeks. The sufferers are being cared for. The loss to the railroads is very great. All of them are badly crippled and in some uses it will take several weeks work to repair the damage. No mails have left Marietta for five days. The post office was flooded half way to the top of the letter boxes and the newspaper offices had four feet of water in them. In the Ohio valley not less than 15,000 men have been thrown out of employment. This will entail great suffering. A close observer who had passed through the inundated district estimates the loss at $4,000,000. Only two cases of drowning are reported-William Powell, who lived near Benwood, and Harry Westgate, whose home was at Torch, on the Ohio side of the river. HUNTINGBURG, Ind., Feb. 24.-The Ohio river is rising rapidly at all points between Louisville and Evansville. All the river bottom lands between Rockport and Louisville are overflowed, and the farmers are leaving their houses and removing their stock

COLUMBUS, Ind., Feb. 24.—The river at Madison has been swelling steadily for several days. The damage already done will amount to many thousand

GILA BEND. A. T., Feb. 24.—Another suspension of traffic on the Southern Pacific railway in Arizona occurred Saturday afternoon. Water from the Gila river overflowed the track at a point thirty miles east of Yuma for a distance of four or five miles, causing considerable damage to railroad and other property. Salt river near Phœnix rose 10 feet in an hour, sweeping away many adobe houses, and 1,000 people in the valley are houseless. The branch railroad running from Maricopa to Phœnix is reported badly washed out. Yuma is entirely under water, the river having broken the levee Sunday. Damage to the extent of $150,000 has already been done. Gus Lee was drowned in bed A large amount of live stock perished. The river is still rising, and if it con-tinues to advance will entirely destroy the town. The railroad office is under

Behind the Scenes.

On the stage the tinsel, the glitter, the powder and the paint show forth the most, but step behind the scenes and you will behold the truth. The chorus girls are not all "fancy paints them," but rather what they paint themselves; just so with many of the flaming advertisements of so-called "catarrh cures." Get back of the scenes and they are not cures. The real one, and the only remedy that is a cure, is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Lift the curtain and you will find the naked truth to be, that this remedy is the one that cures the worst cases of Catarrh in the Head, and no mistake. It is also a remedy in all catarrhal conditions, such as Catarrhal Headache, Catarrh of the Throat, etc.

GUARDING THE GRAVE.

General Shermin's Last Resting Place Protected by Sentinels.

Sr. Louis, Feb. 24.—Thousands of pilgrims are daily visiting the grave of Gen. Sherman in Calvary cemetery. They were exceedingly numerous Sunday, and it was necessary to encircle the Sherman plot with a rope barricade, within which a sentinel was on guard to prevent relic hunters from despoiling the grave of its floral treasures. VICTIMS OF FLAMES.

Awful Disaster in a Railway Tunnel in New York.

Six Persons Roasted to Death in a Car-Six Lives Sacrificed in a Tenement-House Fire in Brooklyn.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. - A "shop train" consisting of empty cars was moving through the Fourth avenue railroad tunnel at 7:10 a. m., Friday when it stopped at Eighty-fifth street. Behind it came train No. 10, the New Haven local that left the Grand Central depot at 7:02 a. m. The New Haven train ran into the standing "shop train," wrecking itself and the rear cars of the train with which it had come into collision. In a few moments flames broke out, and while everything was in terror and confusion a third engine, running "light," that is, without cars, crashed into the wreck. The fire was soon extinguished and the work of rescue began.

On the telescoped shop train there were probably a dozen or more employes, both of the road and of the Wagner Company. Six killed and seven wounded is the complete list.

The list of the dead includes one man whose body is burned beyond recognition, supposed to be a colored sleeping-car porter; a woman, supposed to be Mrs. Nellie Supple, a car-cleaner, 40 years old; Hartshorn Killian, a trainboy, 25 years old; John Hancke, a carcleaner, 19 years old; John Murray, a laborer, 49 years old, burned to death and head and body badly charred, and James B. Flynn, a machinist, 20 years old. Engineer Fowler was arrested and committed without bail. He and his fireman each declare that the clear signals were out. Neither was seriously injured. TENEMENT-HOUSE HORROR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.-A fire which resulted in the loss of six lives, and which is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, broke out Saturday night in the two-story apartment house at 129 and 131 Sands street, Brooklyn. There was a panic among the tenants and many ran to the fire escapes with which the building was well provided both front and rear. But there was a family on the third floor of the house which was not so fortunate. This was the household of John E. Dorney, a printer. Mr. Dorney was not at home, but his wife, their four children, Julia Griffin, a sister of Mrs. Dorney, and Mrs. Dorney's spinster aunt, Margaret Griffin, aged 50 years, were in the rooms. Some of the family escaped by the roof. After the fire had been extinguished firemen found the bodies of Miss Griffin, the elder, and little Daniel Dorney, aged 8 years; Jacob Benedict, aged 70; Edward Benedict, aged 18 months; Mrs. Margaret Dorney and 4-year-old Mamie Dorney. The damage by fire to the building will not exceed $4,000.

THEY ARE GRATEFUL.

Gen. Sherman's Family Issue a Letter of Thanks for Public Sympathy. NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The special funeral train which carried the remains of Gen. Sherman to St. Louis returned to this city Monday morning, bearing the family and the military of-ficers who accompanied the body. One of the first acts of the family on their return was to express in the following letter to the public the appreciation of the honors paid to their dead:

"New YORK, Feb. 23.—It is fitting that some public acknowledgment should be made by the family of Gen. Sherman of the very many heartfelt tokens of sympathy which they heartfelt tokens of sympathy which they received in their bercavement. We can only say that such universal and such evidently profound sorrow, manifested as it has been in a thousand ways, sustains and comforts us in our desolation, for the entire nation, by its generous expression of condolence, has lightened the burdens of our grief and helped us to bear our irreparable loss.

"The friends of the family are asked to accept this slight token of our grateful apprecia-cept this slight token of our grateful apprecia-tion in lieu of any more direct personal com-munications, which, while it would be more gratifying to us, we have not now the strength or courage to offer to each and all. In behalf of the family, Thomas E. Sherman."

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

For Justice of the Supreme Court, ROBERT M. MONTGOMERY, of Grand Rapids. For Regents of the University, HENRY HOWARD, of Port Huron, MAJ, PETER N. COOK, of Shiawassee County.

THE "hungry and thirsty" have hounded Gov. Winans so much that we doubt not he will become, before the end of his term, an earnest advocate of civil service reform. And why not? The spoils system is just as much of an evil in the state as in the national government.

JAMES G. BLAINE is the hero of the hour. While the democrats are wildly clamoring for free trade and unsound money, he, the great constructive statesman, is figuring the way for reciprocity with Brazil and the other South American states. With Canada, also, we are soon to have, if the Blaine policy proves successful, free exchange of products. For such a consummation the intelligent men of both parties are devoutly praying. At the same time they do not forget that the policy of protection against the products of European pauper labor is not to be relinquished.

THE Ypsilanti Sentinel says of Grover Cleveland: "His confidence that he is greater than the democratic party seems to be unbounded. * * * We doubt whether the history of parties in the United States has ever shown a similar instance of an attempt to turn a party from its own well defined position to the exact opposite, to favor a man who aspired to be its leader and candidate. Mr. Cleveland had better step down and out." The advice is good. With all his faults, the man of destiny is undoubtedly greater than his party, in that he does not follow every will o' the wisp which the excited brains of the democrats may conjure up. David Beer Hill would be a much more pliable representative of the party.

On Tuesday last, the democrats in the Senate, taking advantage of the temporary absence of several republicans, suddenly carried to a successful issue a motion to unseat Messrs. Horton and Morse, two members against whom contests had been made. When the vote was taken on the latter contest, there was not a quorum present, the republicans and pairons having left the room. The whole scheme was hatched in the brain of F. H. Hosford, secretary of the democratic state central committee, who found in the person of Lieutenant Governor Strong a willing tool. The republican and patron senators are highly inlignant, in a smuch as the democrats had previously agreed not to introduce any important legislation in the absence of the republican senators.

Facts are better than invectives. We advise the enthusiastic defenders of free trade to read the following facts, which we quote from the Detroit Tribune "Mohair yarns are now made in this country-a new industry since the new tariff law went into force. The Minnespolis Linen Co. has been organized to manufacture linen from the flax fiber raised in large quantities in the North west. Heretofore the fiber has gone to waste, only the seed being used. The Bir Titus Salt, Bart., Sons & Co., Hmited. of London, England, have taken the old Howe Sewing Machine Co. works at Bridgeport, Conn., and are to move a part of their plush works to this counbry. At Irwin, Pa., there is building a plate glass factory to cost $1,000,000 and to employ 600 men. Ten years ago the United States had no gun factories worthy to rank with those of Europe. Now Europe says that American guns are the best made. The increase in the wool clip last year amounted to 11,000,000 pounds." These are only a few of the many results which have been brought about by means of pro-

Bergen rode in 750 races, thus breaking all known records, and secured the winning place in 173 of them.

[From a late photograph.] William Tecumseh Sherman was born at Lancaster, O., Feb. 8, 1820, was adopt ed by Thomas Ewing, M. C., throug whose influence he was admitted to West Point in 1836. He was graduated in 1840 and made a second lieutenant. In 1851 he was a captain; in 1853 he resigned from the army and became a banker in California; in 1860 he accepted the position of superintendent of a military academy at New Orleans, but resigned in January, 1861.

In June, 1861, he was commissioned colonel of the Thirteenth regiment of infantry, which he commanded at Bull Run. His military career from that time is well known-his famous march to the sea being his most noteworthy achievement. In August, 1866, he was made lieutenant general in place of Gen. Grant. When Gen. Grant was made president in March, 1869, Sherman was made general and commander-in-chief. He retired in 1883 and settled in St. Louis, but later moved to New York. where he died Feb. 14, 1891.

Roger A. Pryor was born near Petersburg, Va., July 10, 1828, was graduated from Sidney college, at Hampden, Va., in 1845, was admitted to the bar, but entered journalism, serving successively on The Washington Union, The Richmond Enquirer and The South, which latter paper he established at Richmond. He fought several duels during his journalistic career, was elected to congress in 1859 to fill a vacancy, was re-elected in 1860, but did not take his seat. His sympathies were with the south, and he went to Charleston to witness the firing on Sumter. He was elected to the Con federate congress, but soon after entered the Confederate army as a colonel and rose to be a brigadier general. He resigned in 1863, was captured in 1864. and was confined in Fort Lafayette. He settled in New York in 1865, where he has since practiced law.

AROUND THE CAMPUS.

There were no recitations on Monday. The Alpha Delts entertained on Fri-

Conwell will lee e in University Hall tonight.

The Amherst Glee and Banjo clubs will sing in University hall on April 7. The glee and banjo clubs were at Lansing on Friday and at Jackson Saturday. The inauguration of Henry Wade Rogers as president of Northwestern university took place on Thursday last.

The Bible Institute, conducted by Prof. W. R. Harper, of Yale, was very successful. The book of Isaiah was the particular subject for discussion. Addresses were made by Profs. Belser, Kelsey, Tufts, Scott, D'Ooge, and others. Prof. Harper spoke on Saturday and Sunday evenings, in University hall, to large audiences. He is a forcible and entertaining speaker as well as a deep scholar.

The Webster and Jeffersonian societies held joint exercises, on Friday evening, in honor of George Washington. Prof. Thompson presided and delivered an address. Mel. Gillespie furnished banjo music. J. C. Petheridge delivered an oration on Washington. P. C. Gilbert spoke on "Sovereignty and Subject." A spirited debate followed, on the subject: Resolved, That the laws governing marriage and divorce in the United States be made national." The exercises concluded with a solo by Miss Minnie Davis.

Sergius Stepniak speaks at University hali on Saturday evening next. George Kennan says of him: "As an author Stepniak is accomplished and versatile. He speaks and writes fluently in half a dozen languages, including Russian, French, German, Italian and English, and his literary style is easy, graphic and picturesque. He writes and speaks from the point of view of a partisan and it does not enter into his plan to say anything that the Russian government might say in its own defence; but in pleading the cause of his oppressed fellow countrymen, from his own point of view, he is never, I believe, untruthful, disingenuous, or unfair."

Fobert Mantell.

Theatre patrons will be pleased to hear that the eminent romantic actor, Robert Mantell, is to appear at the Grand Opera House, on Tuesday evening next, with a superb production of Shakespeare's famous tragedy, "Hamlet." As this play has not been seen here in a number of years, the forthcoming production will no doubt be witnessed by an overflowing house. As the melancholy Dane Mr. Mantell has added another brilliant impersonation to his repertory. His company also contains a number of artists who have achieved success in this tragedy. Miss Minnie Monk, who enacts the Queen, was with Edwin Booth, and this actor says that she is the greatest Queen that ever stepped upon the stage. Mr. B. T. Ringgold played Horatio to Edwin Booth's Hamlet in the famous 100 nights' run this play had in New York city. He will play this part with Mr. Mantell. Mr. Mark Price, for many years with John McCullough, will be King. Miss Charlotte Behrens will impersonate the lovely Ophelia. Indeed, the entire cast could hardly be improved. This performance of "Hamlet" will be worth seeing. The Phila delphia Press says: Robert Mantell revealed his "Hamlet" for the first time in Philadelphia at the Walnut last evening. Every seat in the house was filled, and the favorable verdict of the audience was indicated by frequent applause and curtain calls. Mr. Mantell makes an ideal Hamlet in appearancetall, graceful, "the glass of fashion and the mold of form." He gives the royal Dane light brown hair. The Philadelphia Enquirer says: At the end of the play Mr. Mantell was given a double recall, and in response to demands from all parts of the house, made a neat little speech. The Boston Post says: The patrons of the Globe Theatre were treated to a genuine surprise last even. ing when Robert Mantell made his first appearance before a Boston audience in the role of Hamlet. To say that the surprise was an agreeable one is awardng high praise to Mr. Mantell. His Hamlet is in some respects a novelty It has not a severely classical portraya of Mr. Booth, nor the heavy melodramatic rendering of Mr. Wilson Bar rett and others, but is an exceedingly happy medium between the two. Mantell may be congratulated on having performed an excellent piece of work, one that will raise him many degrees higher in the scale of dramatic reputation, and it affords strong proof that he has by no means reached the height of his compass.

Toronto World, December 29, 1890: No more appreciative audience need be desired by the great Irving himself than that which was entranced by the rendering of "Hamlet" last night at the Grand by the talented Robert Mantell

* * The role of "Hamlet" by Mantell is an intellectual study, a real piece of genius.

OUR YPSILANTI RAMBLER

Tells What he Has Seen and Heard in that Burg During the Past Seven Days and Nights.

It is the Lenten season here in Ypsilanti the same as in many other respectable towns-but we, too, have our harmless pastimes, whereby our simple hearts are made happy in various and numerous degrees. First there was W. H. Sweet's banquet at the Occidental, in celebration of his eighteenth year of mercantile life. None but dry goods and clothing store proprietors were in-vited to the spread, which fact has so enraged the undertakers, milliners, plumbers and doctors that they are each and all hoping for a chance to get even with the feast-maker very soon. There exists, it seems, a secret society in this city composed entirely of young ladies, over whom the common every-day capital letters M. A. S. exert a magic influence. What these letters signify none of us may know as "we're not in it," but this much we do have the second secret in held. know, there was a special meeting held at a certain house the other evening and evidently there was a "victim," for the sounds that proceeded from that house and tore around in the night atmosphere were enough to scare out the boldest "eavesdropper." These dire and dreadful sounds were followed by the sound of merry dance music and the rattle of tea spoons and dishes, so we crept away sadly but no wiser. The normal folks did honor to the immortal George, the sire of his country, Monday morning, with exercises appropriate to the occasion. Professors Sill, George and St. John, Miss Soule and others added a plentiful share to the entertainment. All our dry goods houses closed in commemoration of houses closed in commemoration of this same illustrious gentleman, and the Light Guards took a stroll through the mud to the tap of a drum, followed by a mud to the tap of a drum, followed by a full quorum of small boys as usual. We are to lose one of our good citizens, Mr. Chas. M. Norton, who will move his family to Lansing in a few days. Don't like to have 'em go at all. And that makes us think about the Hawkins House. It is probably the property of Detroit parties by this time and Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins will speedily move to Detroit, where their son is located. Perhaps you have heard tell of a certain Cleary Business College, which is tain Cleary Business College, which is located as near the vital portion of our city as possible. Well, there are many students connected with this institution, a few of whom are yet too young to tussle with the trials of college life. But they've tried some funny business of late, and don't seem to clearly under-stand when it's time to quit. However, stand when it's time to quit. However, this is generally a peculiarity of real funny folks; they are like that poem of "The Brook" which goes on and on forever, ad infinitum. Two Ann Arbor ladies are negotiating for a store here in which to open a stock of millinery. We also understand that other outside parties are desirons of running in another dry are desirous of running in another dry goods store. Moreover, arrangements goods store. Moreover, arrangements are being made for some more manufactories, which show clearly that we are on the edge with perhaps, one foot in, a decided little boomlet. Lenten and non-Lenten folks, that is, a middling good majority, are about to hear Rhea in "Josephine." They think it all right because the whole thing is so sad, and Rhea makes 'em all ween. I too and Rhea makes 'em all weep. I, too, shall go, but shall not weep, for that's an uncommon emotion for a

Mademoiselle Rhea. "How fortunate it is for me," said the great actress, Mlle. Rhea, to a group of dramatic critics who were in her parlors in New York a short time ago, "that Napoleon did not marry Mile. Clery, to whom he was engaged in his youth. If he had, I would still have been traveling around the country suffering with 'Camille,' 'Frou Frou' and 'Adrievening of one of the noblest and greatest women whose names ever adorned the pages of the history of France. My leading man, Mr. Harris, made the same exclamation after reading this incident in Napoleon's life in Lockhart's history of the great war-rior. He feels, as I do, that the young Corsican would not have been the Napoleon of history had he not come un-de: the strong yet benign influence of the Empress Josephine. I think we both have reason to be thankful that matters turned out as they did. Had they been different I would not now be interpreting a character with which I am more in sympathy than one I ever played, and I venture to say, without fear of offending Mr. Harris, that the public would have had to weit some time longer before seeing what excel-lent work he was capable of doing,' If reports are to be believed Mlle Rhea does not exaggerate matters. The critics declare that the handsome actress has never given the American people such a finished and thoroughly artistic piece of work as she does in "Josephine," and that Mr. Harris' interpretation of Napoleon Bonaparte deserves to be ranked with the strongest impersonations known to modern theatre goers. "Josephine" will be seen here before All the properties and accessories used in the largest metropolitan produc-tions will be brought into requisition Prince Talleyrand, interpreted by that able young actor, of the leading characters in the play. Rhea will soon be seen here in "Jose-phine, Empress of the French." It can well be understood what an interesting character he will be when put upon the stage after reading of the part he played in French history, while Napo-leon Bonaparte was on the throne of France. The Emperor despised his minister of foreign affairs personally, as much as he admired his ability. Before Talleyrand was appointed, the party attempted to dissuade Napoleon from making such an appointment by pointing to the weathercock politics of the Prince of Benevento. "Be it so," replied Napoleon, "but he is the ablest minister of foreign affairs in our choice and it shall be my care to see that he exerts his abilities."

Mlle. Rhea was in Paris all last summer, and if the New York society writers, who peeped into her trunks on her arrival in this country, are to be believed, the famous actress and hand-some woman has added to her already

Every saloon in North Dakota is closed, the result of the supreme court decision that liquor in original packages cannot be sold in that state.

Dr. Bilroth, the great surgeon of Vienna, and perhaps unsurpassed in rank in the world, as the result of a career of many years, in which every branch of medical science that he has touched has been promoted, says: "The colossal increase of nerve and mind disease in our days is undoubtedly the result, to a great extent, of the tobacco and alcohol habits, and the straining of the nervous system caused by these pois-

The great cause of social crime is lrink. The great cause of poverty is lrink. When I hear of the family broken up and ask the cause-drink. If I go to the gallows and ask its victim the cause, the answer-drink. Then 1 ask myself in perfect wonderment, Why do not men put a stop to this thing? Our legislators will come together and pass every measure necessary to the welfare of the people, and yet pass laws sanctioning the sale of liquor through saloons.-Archbishop Ireland.

In a communication to his congrega tion, recently made, a pastor said: "Let us labor for four objects: the salvation of souls, the development of moral character, the development of workers, and the furtherance of moral reforms." This is a happy statement of the great aims toward which a Christian church should direct its energies. The church which turns aside from these chief ends and seeks to become a company of congenial spirits occupying an elevated social rank, will become barren.-Christian Advocate.

Secretary Windom once said: "How o curtail and finally destroy this evil is the great problem of the hour. Its solution is next on the world's calendar of progress. It has been called for trial and cannot be dismissed or postponed.

. The time has therefore come when this issue must be met. Political parties can no longer dodge it if they would. Private citizens must take sides openly, for or against the saloon with its methods and its results. 'Neutrality is henceforth in possible; indifference is a betrayal of the sacred trust reposed in citizenship.' The saloon system is itself a league of law-breakers, whose example affords a most powerful stimulus to disorder of all kinds. It openly proclaims its purpose to disobey all laws which interfere with its supreme purpose to make money in its own way and at whatever sacrifice. By what right does the saloon exist? I know of none." -Speech at Woodstock, Conn., July 4,

One of the professors in Harvard University was a great bug-ologist. He had all sorts of bugs the world ever saw, in frames; and he studied bug-ology until he knew all about it, and had thousands of specimens of different sorts of bugs. And the mischievous students took the legs of one bug, and the body of another, and the wings of another, and put them all together, just as nature puts them together, and carried the bug in to the old professor, with his thick glasses on, and laid it on the table and said: "Professor, what sort of a bug is that?" The old professor looked at it and turned it around, and looked at it, and looked at it, and looked at itsgain, and said he: "Gentlemen, this is a humbug." And this is just what we mean by a religious humbug. He has got the head of a Christian, and the feet of a dancer, and the tongue of tattler, and the appetite of a drunkard, and the laziness of a shirk; and you just put him all together and he is the finest specimen of humbug you ever saw.—Talmage.

"Did you learn any more of their history?" asked Percy "Nothing; but I promised to call some time at the store and have a long talk with Mrs. Bregy Percy was silent a few moments; but he resumed:

"Armida, I have been thinking that I would like to have a talk to that lady and her son some time. In fact, I have made up my mind to do it. Their strange connection with Mr. Emerick puzzles me and my curiosity impels me to learn more.'

"What is your motive, Percy?" "You will pardon my abruptness, Armida, but for the present it must remain a secret; in due time you shall know all.

"No doubt you have excellent rea-sons," answered the unsophisticated Changing the subject, Percy asked if she could tell whether Mr. Wilcox was in the house or not. Armida replied: "I saw him a moment ago in the library." "Then if you will please excuse me, I will go to him, as I wish to speak with him on his business." With these words

Percy left the room. He had not gone more than a moment when Mrs. Delaro entered the room where Armida sat alone. "Well, my dear, and how did you find the patient to-day?" "He was very much improved, mamma, and will leave the hospital in a few

"Armida, we must try to do something for that young man; it is not right that he should suffer so much and not be recompensed."

"But they will not take money; what then can we do?" said the girl.

"We must put our heads together and devise some means. By the by, my dear, was that Percy who went across to the library a moment ago?"

"Yes, he has gone to talk business with Mr. Wilcox."

"Then I must go too, for I also have some business matters to attend to this morning, and Inneed Percy's assistance." With these words the widow rose to go.

"As usual," said Armida, with a pretty pout, "I am always left out in the cold. Why can not I know something of what transpires in these conclaves you are always having?"

"It is hardly necessary that you should be troubled with any business matters," said Mrs. Delaro as she left the room.

Shortly afterward Armida ordered the carriage and went down-town to do some shopping. For the past few months they had been living in a handsomely furnished house near Gramercy Park. Armida and her mother passed their time very much in each other's company, and the days went by pleasantly enough, except for the fact that thoughts of great and lasting trouble continually recurred to Mrs. Delaro's mind, often making her sad even in her daughter's company. Mr. Wilcox and Percy found plenty to occupy their time attending to various business matters when they were not busy trying to get a fresh clew to Mario Delaro's murderer.

This morning there was to be a consultation of the three interested persons regarding the recent developments in connection with the Bregy's.

"If Mr. Emerick is Alphonse Bregy and this woman's husband, then he certainly can not be Velasquez," argued Mr. Wilcox.

"Yet," said Percy. "there may be other information to come which will change our opinion. For my part I am now too thoroughly interested in knowing who this Mr. Emerick really is to let the matter drop His actions from first to last during the brief time that we saw him were of a character which gave me dark suspicions, and if there is a way to find out who he really is I am going to do it. I am afraid I do not dare to even hope he is the man we want, but I have become so imbued with the detective spirit that I am anxious to satisfy my own curiosity." "I would suggest," said Mrs. Delaro, wisely, "that we send for Eugene Bregy and his mother and ask them to tell us all they know Mrs. Bregy will doubtless give us their history and Eugene may have found out something, the knowledge of which will be worth possessing."

"That is undoubtedly the proper course to pursue," remarked Mr. Wil-

"Then it can not be done too soon," urged Percy. "I can not even go to sleep at night without that man Emerick's image before me, and something tells me he is hiding from us or from some one. It was several days before Eugene was able to come up to the Delaros' house. The neighbors stared hard enough when they saw him and his mother seat themselves in the stylish victoria which was drawn up in front of the store door to convey them to the temporary home of our California friends, and some queer remarks were passed about the airs which the French woman gave herself. Upon reaching the house they were at once ushered into the library and the consultation immediately commenced. Mrs. Bregy had very little to tell concerning her history prior to the time her husband deserted her. She related the incident of meeting him at a ball to which she had been invited by some friends from her own country, and told the story of their brief courtship and finally of her marriage to Alphonse Bregy. But she'either could not or would not tell whather husband's business was. She said that for the first six mouths of their married life he was a loving husband and treated her kindly, but afterwards Workspublished? he began to go away for a week or two at a time and grew cold towards her.

Finally, about a month after Eugene was born, he went away and never again returned. After that time she never heard of her husband but once and that was from a French plasterer, who had been out to Denver. This man asserted positively that he saw Alphonse Bregy in that city, but that he could not get to speak to him. "That," concluded Mrs. Bregy, "was all I ever heard of him, and I had given up all hope of ever seeing him again until I met him a few months ago at the dock

"Was there any thing peculiar in his general bearing?" asked Percy. "Yes, he stooped a little, but showed it more especially when he grew tired of wearing his shoulder-braces and would a seed it hem for a day or two," answered Mrs. Bregy. Then Mr. Wilcox asked what steps they had taken to discover who Mr. Emerick really was since he went away on the "Trinidad."

"All that has been done I did myself," said Eugene. "I went down to the office of Emerick & Co. on Pearl street and the clerk told me that Mr. Emerick was in Buenos Ayres." Eugene then recounted what he had heard while the door was closing.

After this very little information of importance was gained from the mother and son, but before they left, after being entertained during the evening by Mrs. Delaro and Armida, Mr. Wilcox said to Mrs. Bregy: "Inasmuch as the carelessness of our coachman was the cause of your son's accident, and as you persistently refuse any recompense, you must allow me to do one thing." "What is that, Mr. Wilcox?" said

Mrs. Bregy in a pleasant manner. "You must permit us to make some inquiries regarding this Mr. Emerick and give us permission to find out all we can about him," he replied.

In a grateful tone the woman replied: "Any information you may be able to give to me, no matter how scanty in detail, will be gladly received and acknowledged."

As the mother and son were being driven home, Mr. Wilcox and Percy sat in the library still talking about Em-

"There is a mystery attached to all of it," said Percy to Mr. Wilcox. "If you could have only seen the fellow Emerick, it might have cleared up doubts, but as the matter now stands we can do nothing but speculate.' "Very true, but if for no other reason than to oblige this poor woman we must now follow him up. Do you suppose there is any possibility of Emerick returning to New York in the near future?" "That is something that mystifies me," said Percy. "Why should a pre-sumably reputable merchant have rea-and was told that Mr. Emerick was in South America. I called to make the same inquiry and was told he was in Europe. Probably neither of their replies was the truth." "Still it will not be hard to determine on the most favorable chances," said Mr. Wilcox. "The man has no business in Europe, and, as we know, he has an office in Buenos Ayres. The latter would undoubtedly be the most likely place to find him."

"Then what do you propose to do?" said Percy.

"That is for us now to decide," replied the old man. "I will make a proposition," said

Percy, "that I go alone to Buenos Ayres and find out just where this man is, who he is and what he is doing. My further actions must depend to a large extent on what I discover.

"Good," said Mr. Wilcox, "and in the meantime, I will keep a sharp lookout to see if he returns to New York."

"But what excuse shall I have for going?" asked Percy. "It will not do to let too many into the secret."

"You can soon frame an excuse. have, as you know, a large interest in a beef extract company down there and that will furnish a plausible reason for your going.

"Then it is agreed upon?" queried "Yes, and you can go just as soon as you please." "As a first step, I will go down-town in the morning and find out the best and quickest means of reaching Buenos Ayres. Steamers sail so seldom for these South American ports that it may be some weeks before I can start."

Ry noon the next day Percy had made arrangements to sail on the Amazon leaving in four days' time for Rio de Janeiro, whence he would have to reembark for the River Plata. That same night Percy and Armida were engaged to go to a ball at the Metropolitan Opera-House.

They had not been drawn far into the maelstrom of New York society but their life was not without some little pleasures of the kind and this was one of the exceptional occasions. This would probably be Percy's last opportuntty of escorting Armida anywhere during that season. The ball passed off pleasantly, but several times during the evening Percy felt that the attentions which Armida was receiving from a crowd of admirers worried him considerably and he began to wonder whether it would be safe to leave her among such a crowd of eligible men. During his absence she might possibly meet was that as they each sat in the parlor warming their toes over a register pre-vious to retiring, Percy declared his passion. It was only the old story told perhaps with slight variation, but before he had finished Mr. Wilcox, who had heard their voices, came down to have a parting word. It was past his usual time for retiring, but he had waited to see the pleasure-seekers return as he knew they would not remain very late and even now it was only a little after one o'clock. He came downstairs almost noiselessly and as he reached the door of the parlor he noticed Percy bending very closely over Armida engaged in earnest conversation. The old fellow was angry with himself for interrupting so interesting a scene, but having entered he could not at once withdraw. "Ah," he thought, "this is encouraging."

Armida soon retired and left Mr.

Wilcox and Percy to have a talk before going to bed. Percy did not tell Mr. Wilcox what happened and a desultory conversation relative to Percy's de-parture was indulged in and they separated for the night.

"Alas, how easily things go wrong—
A word left out or a sigh too long—
The bright sun chased away by the rain—
And life is never the same again."

How near, that night, Percy was to winning Armida for his wife will never be known. That was his last chance to be alone with her for many a long day -a chance spoiled quite inadvertently by the last man who would have wished to do such a thing.

Two days later he was on his way to South America.

CHAPTER XL When Percy arrived at Buenos Ayres he did not rush with precipitate haste to Emerick & Co.'s office; he took up his quarters at a quiet English hotel and then went systematically to work to find out what he could about Mr. Emerick. There was little to be learned, however, for all he could hear was that Emerick lived in quiet seclusion in a handsome modern residence lying to the north of the town, which had been previously occupied by Mr. Howe, his partner, and family. When not at business Emerick was reported to spend his time at this house, where he would sometimes entertain a lew friends, particularly some Spanish gentlemen, who, strange to say, were not admitted to the better society of Buenos Ayres. To these guests of Emerick's the houses of the civil authorities were not open, neither did any of the numerous wealthy foreign residents invite them to their tables. Yet it was no uncommon thing for them to spend the evening and greater part of the night at Mr. Emerick's house, and one of the servants had once told a confidential friend outside that their amusement consisted almost entirely of playing eards, drinking wine and smoking. Yet Mr. Emerick was exceedingly strict in his attendance to business and was regularly seen at his desk in the office of Emerick & Co., in a large four-story modern business block situated near to the customhouse. Only very seldom did the merchant appear at the theater. Occasionally he could be seen at an Anglo-German concert hall, but not often, and then he was usually alone and would drink his wine in a little private box and go quietly home. That night after his arrival at Buenos Ayres, our friend Lovel casually made up his mind to drop into the place for an hour. He was quite alone and, sit-ting at a side table partilly hidden by some trees, he could without undue effort see all that was going on yet not attract particular attention to him-

He had been seated there about an hour when, happening to look up, his eyes rested upom the familiar form of Mr. Emerick standing up in one of the boxes. He was just arranging his chair so that he could sit behind the curtains and not be visible to the audience but Lovel noticed that he was alone and had a single bottle of wine before him.

Percy failed to get a glimpse of him again during all that evening, but he waited patiently and, after the performance, he still lingered hoping to see the merchant pass out. He had to wait some time and in parts of the hall many of the lights were being extinguished before Mr. Emerick arose to leave. When he did he moved about as though afraid of being seen. It was hardly the place where one would expect to see a person of his position and that was probably his reason for his cautious movements. Percy followed his man rather closely as he went towards the stage door where he met a lady just coming out. Together they walked across the Plaza and found a conveyance which was evidently waiting for them, for, without a word to the driver, they took their seats and were driven away.

"The more I see of this man the more of a mystery does he become to me; but I would like to get a good look at him face to face once," soliloquized Lovel.

The opportunity was not long delayed, for a few days later Percy was scated on one of the masble seats in the shade of the Paradise trees on the Plaza Victoria when who should approach but Mr. Emerick. Percy was reading a portion of a London paper which had arrived on the last mail, and was handed to him by an English army officer at the hotel. He hardly knew how to accost Emerick, but resorted to very simple tactics by asking him in the free and easy manner which he had acquired in America, if he would permit him to take a light from his cigar. Mr. Emerick at once drew out a gold match box and supplied the want. "You are a stranger here?" he said to

"I am, indeed. I arrived here only a few days since," replied Percy, at the same time f eling devoutly thankful that Mr. Emerick had not recognized him. It was so dark on the piazza at Long Branch, the only place where Mr. Emerick had met Percy, that it was a safe risk to take, and it had apparently passed safely.

"Have you any acquaintances in Bue-nos Ayres?" was Mr. Emerick's first

"None, whatever," answered Percy; "I am here to see the country, and do not intend to remain long."

"Where are you staying, may I ask?"
"At the Hotel Victoria," was the re-"Then you are an Englishman, I pre-

"Yes," answered Percy without alluding to his long residence in America. "If you ever find the time hanging heavily on your hands while here," said Mr. Emerick, "drop in at my office and see me." Saying which he drew out a card and handed it to Percy. "May I inquire your name?" he asked as he handed the card.

"Byron Huntly," responded Percy. "I am sorry I have no card."

This was the assumed name under which Percy had registered at the hotel and the one by which he was traveling. A few days later he called at Mr. Emerick's office and look lunch with that gentleman. He also accepted an invitation to meet a few gentlemen at

Mr. Emerick's house that evening. Nothing could have suited Percy better than this. He went and stayed late. Poker was the order of the hour, and Percy left a winner to such an extent that he felt in honor bound to accept the invitation pressed upon him to attend again a week later and give the losers an opportunity to recoup their

An intelligent Spaniard of about Mr. Emerick's own age accompanied Percy part of the way home and grew very confidential

"Mr. Huntly," he said, "let me caution you to be very careful when you go to Mr. Emerick's next week. There were one or two gentlemen in that party to-night who are adepts at handling the cards and I have just cause for being suspicious even of Mr. Emerick himself. It is not perhaps the essence of honor to speak ill of one's host behind his back. You are a stranger and may have plenty of money which you can afford to lose, but my suspicions that the play at Mr. Emerick's house was not always fair, were confirmed to-night and I give you warning. Be careful.

HE DREW OUT A CARD AND HANDED IT TO

PERCY. These words set Percy thinking, but they of course did not deter him from going to Mr. Emerick's on that night week.

During the time which intervened he took a trip up the Rio de la Plata to one of the river ports, and returned on the morning of his appointment for the card When evening came Mr. Emerick called for him at the hotel and together they went out to the merchant's house. Percy was left to himself for about half an hour before dinner, and he occupied most of the time with his thoughts. He could not by an means make up his mind that this man Emerick was the man he was searching for, yet he could not give up the idea that Emerick was in hiding for some purpose of his own. There was a slight resemblance to Velasquez, as he remembered that rascal, but so long a time had elapsed since he used to watch the high play at the gaming house in San Francisco that it would be dangerous to accuse this man of being Mario Delaro's murderer and then discove that he was altogether mistaken. B he was the woman Bregy's husband or not, he possessed no clew of any kind on which to work.

The early part of the evening passed pleasantly enough. Percy continued to win and so did the gentleman who had given him the warning on the last occasion of their playing. But after mid-night—the turn came. In an incredibly short space of time the Spaniard's pile was reduced to almost nothing, and Percy also played a losing game. All of a sudden he detected the unpleasant fact that they were being cheated. When he made this discovery he did not hesitate a moment, but threw down his cards and refused to play. The Spaniards and Mr. Emerick stared at him in amazement and asked the reason. Leaning back in his chair and quietly lighting a cigar, he said, as he puffed away quences: "Because this game is crookwithout the slightest regard to conse-
