During the past season Mr. Granger has taught between 400 and 500 pupils the graceful art. The transformation from an awkward country freshman to a courtly society senior is frequently seen in Ann Arbor.

SEWERAGE AGAIN.

The City Council Decides to Investigate the Matter—Sidewalks Ordered—Miscellaneous Business Transacted.

The most important business which came up before the council Monday night was the passage of a resolution offered by Alderman Wines. It read: "Whereas, there is much discussion, and a great desire on the part of many of the citizens in this city, relative to a system of sewerage; Therefore, resolved, that the subject of the construction of a system of public sewerage in this city be referred to a select committee of three and the board of public works, with directions to investigate the subject and report to the council without delay." On motion of Alderman Martin a committee of five from the board of public works was included. The resolution passed with but one dissenting vote, that of Alderman Herz, and the following committee was appointed: Aldermen Martin, Wines and President Cooley.

The council ordered that sidewalks be built in front of property on East University-ave, Hill-st, Miller-ave, Seventh-st, Huron-st (stone), Detroit-st (stone), Fourth-ave (stone), Catherine-st, Ashley-st and Twelfth-st.

A large number of petitions were received: From forty-two real estate owners, asking that Fourth-ave be opened from Madison-st to Hill-st; from S. Rosenthaler, asking that $30 paid by him for billiard tables last year be refunded, because his competitors paid no tax; from twenty-three residents on Detroit-st, asking that stone walks be not required from Catherine to Depot-st; from residents on north State-st, asking that the sidewalks ordered built on north State-st, from Huron to North-st, be of stone. All these petitions were referred to proper committees.

John R. Miner reported that he had inspected the treasurer's books and found them correct. The board of health asked that Martin Clark be paid $25 for extra work performed by him. Alderman Martin, chairman of the ordinance committee, asked further time for considering the matter of hack licenses. The council decided not to place a hydrant on the corner of South University-ave and Linden-st, Seventh and Madison-sts and East University-ave, between Hill and Packard-sts.

A number of alterations were made in the council's rules of procedure. A telephone was ordered for the street commissioner at the city's expense. The clerk was instructed to determine the cost of a large map of the city to be hung in the council chamber. The board of public works was authorized to fence in and grade the new addition to the city cemetery at an expense of not more than $150. Permission was given the poor commissioner to purchase 100 cords of wood. The board of public works was asked to find out how many street signs are needed and how much they would cost. The council ordered that seven copies of Waple's Parliamentary Practice be purchased for the use of the aldermen. A committee of three, consisting of Aldermen Wines, Herz and O'Hearn, were asked to ascertain the cost of renovating and decorating the council room. The bill of the electric light company of $352.29, was, after some explanation, allowed. The usual monthly reports were read. The council adjourned shortly before 10:30 P. M.

Fatal Accident.

Joseph Beck, a needle-peddler and tramp, rode into Ann Arbor Monday evening from the west, sitting on the tender. He attempted to jump off, and fell in such a way that the wheels ran over his right leg, completely crushing the bones above the knee. He was taken to the hospital. The leg was amputated and at 7.40 A. M. Tuesday morning he died. An inquest was held yesterday morning. Beck was about thirty years old. He said that he had a mother living in London, England, an uncle in New Jersey, and relatives in Detroit. The coroner has written them asking what disposition they wished to make of the body.

HONORING THE DEAD.

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT UNIVERSITY HALL.

Addresses by Commander Soule, W. K. Childs, R. Campbell F. Pistorius, J. Q. A. Sessions, Mayor Doty and Others.

Memorial day was observed in a quiet but fitting manner. Beautiful flowers, gathered by the mothers and children of Ann Arbor, were in the morning placed on the graves of the comrades who sleep in the various cemeteries. In the afternoon the bronzed veterans of the war, and their sons, marched to University hall, where they were greeted by a large and patriotic audience. Prof. Stanley and a select choir rendered several selections of patriotic music during the exercises.

Rev. J. W. Bradshaw read a scripture selection and Rev. A. S. Carman offered prayer. A few happy introductory remarks were made by Commander Soule. The first paper on the program was

MEMORIAL DAY MEMORIES.

This subject was ably treated by W. K. Childs. He traced, graphically, the beginning and end of a soldier's life. There were first the eloquent orations, the enthusiastic assemblies, the enlistment, the parting of loved ones; then the parading, with martial music, through cities and towns, the weary marches, the lonely picket watches, the bloody battle field, the wild charge, the prison pen; then, finally, the shadow of sorrow crossing the home, or perhaps the happy return of a survivor with marks of pain and suffering. The question arises in the minds of the young today: What was all this for? The speaker then reviewed the past, referring briefly to the struggle against slavery and disunion. Many of those present, he said, had personal memories of the effort it took for men to offer themselves on the country's altar, knowing that they became liable to loss of life, loss of limbs, loss of eyes, loss of reason itself. Of the 180,000 union prisoners who were offered release provided they would enlist in the rebel army, not one in a hundred betrayed his country. The speaker concluded with a few remarks appropriate to the day and was followed by Miss Charlotte Bullis, who read, in a pleasing manner, "My Own Kentucky Belle."

THOSE TENTMATES

was the title of an interesting paper by Robert Campbell. He remarked upon the indifference of the people, particularly those of the rising generation, to the memories and lessons of the war. In a feeling manner he told of the tragic death of many of his own friends and tentmates. Of one of these he said: "Still another tentmate, first wounded and captured at Malvern Hill, enduring for a time the horrors of a rebel prison, upon his return said to me: They will never take me prisoner again alive. At the battle of Gettysburg, when surrounded, he refused to surrender and was terribly mangled with bullets and bayonets, and in the charges and counter-charges over his body he was supposed to be dead. But, marvellous to tell, he survived, and I met him again, a living wonder, over twenty-five years afterwards, at the dedication of the Michigan monument at Gettysburg. In conclusion the speaker spoke of the appropriateness of the memorial services. "Many of us feel today that we owe it to the staying hand of our indulgent God that our ashes are not also mingled with southern soil." This interesting paper was followed by a reading by Prof. T. C. Trueblood.

SHALL MEMORIAL DAY BE OBSERVED?

Frederick Pistorius argued that it should be observed—not only by the veterans but by the whole people—and he deprecated the growing indifference towards this day on the part of many. Religious holidays serve a useful purpose by fostering the piety of the people; national holidays are necessary to foster the feeling of patriotism. "If we look into the history of peoples and nations, patriotism stands upon the same plane with religion—it is religion transformed into love of country." Mr. Pistorius held that one object of these observances was to "cultivate that unity of feeling which alone can make a true nation—especially is this desirable and even necessary with us, where the population is still so heterogeneous." Civil wars are usually passed over in silence, but this one was so long and severe that it could not be passed, but "our national fact has found a way that we may not only not wound each other's feelings—on the contrary that the whole nation may stand with mingled pride and sorrow at the graves of the brave men who died for their convictions." Memorial day also serves to teach the children to honor and respect the memory of their fathers. "The time will come when history will have bound a wreath of immortal laurels permanently resting upon the generation who, by its devotion and bravery, brought about the glorious results we now enjoy."

THE CAUSES OF THE WAR.

were pointed out by J. Q. A. Sessions. Heshowed how the institution of slavery had grown at the south and how the north had opposed its extension in the territories. "But outside of the question of slavery," said he, "there had grown up a difference of opinion upon questions lying at the very foundation of our government. The South claimed that this union or government was only a compact of independent sovereign states, from which any state or number of states had the right to withdraw at pleasure. They extended this theory so far as to contend that each state was superior to all the states, that the highest and first allegiance of the citizen was due to the state, and that he owed no allegiance to the government of the United States when its laws came in conflict with the laws of the state in which he lived." After relating the views of the north on this question and tracing the events up to the outbreak of the war he said: "Some able and honest and loyal people tried to avert a war by concession or compromise, but the issue was so direct and antagonistic there was no ground or basis for compromise." Mr. Sessions believed that if the north and south had foreseen the awful carnage which was to follow, the war would have been avoided. Nevertheless, he said, in conclusion, that "it is a fact in history that war has been one of the greatest factors in the development of the human race. Gen. Grant, in his memoirs, says our civil war was worth all it cost." After Mr. Sessions' paper was read, the commander called upon the mayor for a speech, and Mr. Doty responded with a few happy remarks. This concluded the services. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. J. T. Sunderland.

Hurrah! Hurrah!

Never was Ann Arbor noisier than it was Tuesday night. The base ball nine had beaten Harvard and the students felt happy. By ten o'clock at least 1,000 of them had gathered in front of the law building, with tin horns of every size and shape, "squeakers," resined cans, drums, bells—in fact with everything that would make a noise. Headed by Major Soule, they marched down State-st, Huron st, Main-st, Ann-st and Division-st to the depot. In the procession were a "night shirt brigade," about 200 strong, a large float in which a Harvard coffin was carried, another in which a transparency was lifted high, bearing the magic numbers 4-3, and many other noteworthy things. When the train arrived at the depot, the enthusiastic students raised the members of the victorious nine to their shoulders and carried them to the wagon, which hundreds united in drawing to the campus. A large bonfire was built, speeches were made, the band played, the night shirt brigade paraded, the crowd yelled and the tin horns screeched, in high soprano and deep bass, until the early morning.

A Notable Feature.

One of the most pleasant features of the Art Loan was the musical entertainments. It was a common remark among musicians that those who took part on these occasions were aided to a large extent by the piano used, a Mehlin Grand. The ease of action, purity of tone and volume of this comparatively new piano, prove that the manufacturers know what are the "many things needful" in the making of a perfect instrument. At Prof. Kemp's concert the use of the Mehlin and Steinway together in the four and eight hand pieces showed very plainly that the former will compare more than favorably with any other make.

A Narrow Escape.

J. W. Wing, of Scio, came very near meeting with a severe accident last Monday. During the thunder shower in the afternoon lightning struck one of his four large barns, in which Mr. Wing and one of his men had sought shelter. Mr. Wing was severely shocked and the barn set on fire. By prompt work, however, the fire was put out and the buildings saved. One of the horses in the barn was so affected that he is totally deaf. Mr. Wing also had the hearing of his right ear slightly affected by the shock.

The Cauliflower.

A. A. Crozier, well known to the citizens of Ann Arbor, has just published a book entitled "The Cauliflower." It comprises 228 pages, and contains a history of the plant, the management of the crop, the cauliflower regions of the United States, and much other useful information. Mr. Crozier has made a thorough study of botany, in general, and of the cauliflower, in particular. The book is the first systematic treatise ever written on the subject. It was printed by the Register Publishing Company.

It is better to have too much education than too little. It is easier to wear a shoe a size too large than one a size too small.

G. Sheldon, a former resident of Ypsilanti, died recently in Hastings, Nebraska. Bishop Davies recently confirmed four persons at the Episcopal church in Belleville. The Chelsea Union Patrons of Industry will meet in the town hall, Saturday, June 6. Miss Hattie McCarter will close her school at Lima Center, next Saturday, with a picnic. The Ladies' Library Association of Ypsilanti last year received $503.43 and disbursed $42.43. Rev. G. H. Hopkins, the Pinckney preacher, who mysteriously disappeared May 7, has turned up at Ingersoll, Ont. He is mildly insane. The senior class of the Dexter high school will give a strawberry social next Saturday evening. Tommy McNamara has tacked upon his saloon in Chelsea a sign which reads: "No boys wanted here." Hamburg, Macabees will celebrate, June 10th, the tenth anniversary of the establishment of the order. Arthur Herron, son of the editor of the South Lyon Picket, is trying the Gibbs-Shurley cure in Detroit. The high-stepping team belonging to James Watkins, of Whitmore Lake, has been sold to a Leslie man for $500. Frank Kane, a Whitmore Lake boy attending the Ohio state university, recently captured eight prizes and a $25 medal. B. D. Northrup is aching for somebody to beat his hen's egg, which measures 7 by 8 1/2 inches in circumference. Who says?—Ypsilanti. Elder Calkins, of South Lyon, is a good Christian, but he is also a lover of horses. He has for twenty-seven years owned a pony which is now thirty-two years old. Men, owning $2,000,000 worth of property, took dinner at the Chelsea Hotel, yesterday. Standard. Chelsea editors represented the larger part of this, undoubtedly. Geo. H. Foster, of Chelsea, drove a well, last week, for Joseph Henn, and at a depth of thirty feet struck water which spouted up five feet above the surface of the ground. In 1859 J. H. Congdon, of Chelsea, boy-like, punched his initials on a brick. Last week when the old school building was torn down, lo and behold! this same brick was found. Ryan McCauley is the proprietor of a patent ice-cream parlor. It makes the finest ice-cream in the world in five minutes.—Dexter Leader. With many others we have noticed that song birds are quite numerous this spring, probably owing to the fact that the small boy and his air gun is getting in his work on the sparrow. Jones' barber shop, in South Lyon, was moved one night last week and placed next to property farther down the street. Adjoining property owners kicked, because they do not want their insurance to be increased. Burt Sparks, who has had a good position in Omaha the past year, last week Monday went on the road for a coffee house, traveling through Wyoming, Utah and Colorado. His trip will cover six months' time.—Chelsea Standard. Footpads, last week, entered the residence of Owen Gallagher, near Hamburg, knocked the hired man senseless, and at the point of a revolver forced Mr. Gallagher to tell where his money was. The thieves succeeded in securing nearly fifty dollars. The Glasier-Strong Oil Stove Co., of which we hoped to give an account this week, has entirely rebuilt the creamery building, put in a large quantity of shafting and machinery, and will soon be ready to employ from 25 to 50 men.—Chelsea Standard. Master Whitney Watkins, son of L. D. Watkins, was in town this week. He is a student at the agricultural college and president of his class. In the military organization he ranks sergeant major, hence the stripes he wears on his coat sleeve.—Manchester Enterprise. William Kirk, a farmer who lives south of Manchester, died suddenly of heart disease last week. He went out to milk his cows and, being gone longer than usual, his son went out and found him lying upon the ground. He died before he could be carried to the house. Mrs. E. G. Tremain brought to this office, Monday last, a chicken. There were four legs, four wings, two backs, but only one head. The bodies were joined together as one at the breast. Mrs. Tremain has the creature preserved in alcohol.—Pinckney Dispatch. The old saying, "I haven't seen you in a dog's age" calls for the inquiry, "How can one ascertain the age of a dog?" Frank Maginn, the Lake Shore operator, it is said, can tell at a glance any dog's age up to ninety and over, especially if the dog has a curly tail.—Manchester Enterprise. Must be quite a dog sage. A number of festive spirits were "out" last Saturday evening, as was evidenced by the disturbing sounds which emanated from certain localities; also the air of "cyclonic misplacement" which surrounded some of the village belongings Sunday morning.—Dexter Leader. Spirits of corn probably had something to do with it.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Health in Michigan. Reports to the state board of health by sixty-eight observers in different parts of the state for the week ended May 23 indicated that diphtheria, puerperal fever and erysipelas increased, and membranous croup, cholera infantum, typhoid fever, dysentery, inflammation of the brain, cholera morbus and pneumonia decreased in area of prevalence. Fuller, of Bay City, while playing on the logs in the boom of Peters' mill, fell in and was drowned. The body was recovered at West Bay City. Joseph Sheron, aged 9, plunged into the river near the Michigan Central bridge to swim and did not return to the surface. It is supposed that he struck his head against a sunken log, as the water was but four feet deep. The body was recovered. Homeopaths Elect Officers. The twenty-second annual meeting of the State Homeopathic Medical society held at Grand Rapids elected the following officers: President, J. C. Wood, of Ann Arbor; vice presidents, H. C. Brigham, of Grand Rapids, and A. B. Cornell, of Kalamazoo; general secretary, Harold Wilson, of Detroit; corresponding secretary, W. A. Polgass, of Detroit; treasurer, H. M. Warren, of Jonesville; member of the board of control, W. M. Bailey, of Detroit. A Big Celery Crop. There are in the limits of Kalamazoo township 3,000 acres under cultivation for celery plants, and much money is interested therein. A celery buyer who lately visited the district says the outlook is splendid for a big crop, and that not less than 4,500,000 dozen will be sent out of Kalamazoo, from which the producers and workers will realize something like a million. Drugs and Liquors Ablaze. Fire broke out in J. E. Davis & Co.'s wholesale drug house at Detroit, and before the flames were extinguished the Davis building was in ruins, involving a loss of $150,000. Fechtelmeier's liquor store was damaged $50,000; the Gebhardt Paper Company $12,000 and the Campan Building $35,000. Must Use Wool Twine. Marie of the burning of $30,000 worth of pine logs at Deer park, an isolated point 60 miles from there. The logs were owned by C. H. Bradley & Son, of Bay City. Two youngsters named O'Leary were put in jail at Houghton to await the results of a thrashing they gave one of their companions named Berg, aged about 14 years, who was not expected to live as his skull was cracked.

LANSING, Mich., May 28.—The house yesterday passed a bill submitting to the people the question of calling a convention to revise the state constitution. LANSING, Mich., May 29.—In the house yesterday the committee on ways and means reported favorably the bill appropriating $125,000 for an exhibit at the world's fair. A substitute for the free pass bill was reported which includes all state, legislative and judicial officers, and makes it a felony for them to accept free transportation. LANSING, Mich., May 30.—Representative Diekmans' kindergarten bill passed the house yesterday. It allows school boards at their option to introduce kindergartens in the district schools. Adjourning to Monday. TRYING TO CORNER WHEAT. C. E. Pillsbury Dying Heavily, and One May Get Squeezed. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 27.—Those who are on the inside in chamber of commerce circles in Minneapolis see the hand of C. E. Pillsbury deep in the wheat pit. The fact is that by the time Mr. Pillsbury's July contract wheat is in he will have possession of more than all of the dealers. Tuesday he bought three-fourths of all the wheat offered on the board, and he is buying every day. It is figured that there is about 9,400,000 bushels of wheat in Minneapolis. Out of this amount there is about 6,000,000 contract grade and No. 1 northern. These two latter classes are the wheat Mr. Pillsbury has been so extensively buying. There are many men who have contracted for July delivery to Mr. Pillsbury who are not able or will not be able to come up to the scratch, and they will be obliged to buy contract wheat of Mr. Pillsbury himself to deliver to Mr. Pillsbury. Those who are opposed to Mr. Pillsbury say that he is trying to get all this wheat in a corner where he can put it at any figure he may desire. FATALY WHIPPED IN SCHOOL. Miss Jennie Webb Tried for Causing the Death of One of Her Pupils. PONTIAC, Mich., May 28.—Last June Miss Jennie Webb, a school-teacher, whipped Frank Cook, one of her pupils, with a strap. The boy went home with his legs and body marked with great welts by the strap. He was shortly after taken with paralysis and died. The doctors said the whipping caused his death. The coroner's jury found that Miss Webb was to blame and the police magistrate held her for trial. The case has been on trial a week in the circuit court before Judge J. B. Moore and was concluded Wednesday. The sympathy of the audience was with Miss Webb, who has changed under the trial from a bright-faced young woman to a prematurely old one. This evidently had its effect on the jury, for they returned a verdict of assault and battery after three hours in the jury room. Miss Webb, who has rich relatives, was held on bail for sentence, but the limit is $100 fine and three months' imprisonment. TO RAISE REINDEER. The Government to Use the Fleet-Footed Animals as Beasts of Burden. MADISON, Wis., May 28.—The government has asked Capt. C. A. Curtis, of this city, a retired army officer, to go to St. Lawrence island, in the Behring sea, to take charge of a station about to be established there for a year. The interior department desires to establish a station on this island and begin the breeding of reindeer there to be used instead of dogs for hauling. It is the intention of the government to import reindeer from Siberia to the island, and a number of Siberians will be engaged to teach the natives how to raise and care for the animals. A reindeer park will be established, and as soon as the animals are obtained in sufficient numbers some of them will be taken to Alaska and distributed among the people in that country. St. Lawrence island is about 55 miles from the coast of Asia, and 50 from Alaska, in the Behring sea. RIOT IN A CIRCUS. Fully a Hundred Shots Fired and Several People Fatally Injured. MAHANAY CITY, Pa., May 28.—This city was the scene of a terrible riot Tuesday evening caused by the employees of Wallace's circus firing into a part of the audience that remained in the show after the performance was over and fatally wounding Patrick Quinn, from Shenandoah, and several others. It appears the crowd did not move fast enough to please the employees, and they made an attempt to lynch them, but they were struck and a fierce fight took place. Another squad of circus men with guns loaded came to the rescue of those engaged and commenced firing into the crowd with the above result. Fully 100 shots were fired by the circus men from guns loaded with shot. Decrease in Circulation. EAU CLAIRE, Wis., June 1.—The village of Osseo, Trempealeau county, was almost destroyed by fire Friday night. AN AWFUL BLAST.

Frightful Accident in a Tunnel on Kelson Mountain, Col. Many Pounds of Dynamite Explode—The Charge Goes Off Prematurely and Four Miners Are Literally Torn to Fragments. UNFORTUNATE MINERS. GREENCASTLE, Col., June 1.—A terrible accident is reported at the east end of the Atlantic-Pacific tunnel on Kelson mountain, about 8 miles from Silver Plume, by which four men lost their lives. The names of the dead men are Harry Taylor, William Goughlin, J. Richardson and John Mulholland. They were employed at the breast of the tunnel in loading poles. The tunnel is very long and is worked by power drills, so they carried with them about seventy-five pounds of dynamite or giant powder to complete the loading. From the breast of the tunnel is a drift on one of the lodes, in which Moritz Fariton was working. It was customary for the men in the shaft to come back and warn Fariton of a coming blast, but a sudden and unusual explosion threw him off his feet, stunning him badly. After he recovered he started to the mouth of the tunnel, wondering why the shift had not notified him as usual. On getting to the engine-room he told the engineer that the men had set off the blast without telling him and that he was hurt and wanted to know why they were so careless, asking where they were. The engineer said they had not come out. A search party was organized and found all four men named had been literally blown to fragments by a premature explosion of nearly 100 pounds of dynamite. The accident tore a great hole in the wall of the tunnel and a great quantity of rock blocked the way of the rescuing party for a time. A majority of the stock of the Atlantic-Pacific tunnel is owned by "Breck" Tompney. ANOTHER EXPLOSION. FRANKFORT, Ind., May 30.—Frankfort was the scene of a terrible disaster Thursday afternoon. The large boiler at P. E. Kramer's sawmill exploded with appalling results. Frank Hall, the engineer, was instantly killed, and William Davis, Eric Koertz, Benjamin Keys and Van Swaen were fatally injured. Of the thirteen men employed in the mill scarcely one escaped without more or less injury. DEATH OF DR. BARKER. Sudden Demise of the Eminent New York Physician—Biographical Sketch. NEW YORK, June 1.—Dr. Fordyce Barker, one of the most eminent physicians in the United States, died here Saturday afternoon, aged 78 years. Apoplexy was the cause. He was unconscious for a number of hours before death. Two days before his death Dr. Barker was out attending patients and during his short illness many people who were nady his care came to his office. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at St. Thomas' Episcopal church, of which Dr. Barker had been a member forty years. To Select Public Building Sites. MUNCIE, Ind., June 1.—Sunday morning at Goldsmith, a small station west of Muncie, a Lake Erie & Western freight brakeman caused a terrific explosion and nearly lost his life by foolishly removing the top of an oil tank car and placing his lantern in to see if it was empty. The gas at once ignited, burning the man's eyes out and badly damaging the car. The brakeman was blown from the train into a wheat field 50 feet distant. Decrease in Circulation. Romance.

She didn't like me when we met. But turned away and pointed; 'Twas very cool, I own, to get. At first a snub so final, yet I clung to hope and doubted. Strange as it seems, a few short weeks Confirmed my sanguine guesses: I came to understand her freaks, And even dared to kiss her cheeks And stroke her golden tresses. So time went on, and as we grew To know each other better, She bravely learned to kiss me, too: And when she strangely tried to woo, Somehow I used to let her. The privilege still yet is mine With kiss her lips to smother; Still round my neck she likes to twine Her soft white arms. 'Til drop a line, I guess, and ask her mother. This rhyme produces envy, strife, Within your reason, maybe: So make me take a leaf from life: Her mother is my darling wife And she my blessed baby. Look out for counterfeit! Special to Farmers.

The Western Plowman, published monthly at Moline, Ill., is one of the brightest and best of our western agricultural home journals.

It is about time for the ponderous ex-president to write another letter. By the way, Grover, what is your opinion about silver this week?

A Bill has just passed the Michigan senate, which takes the police department of Detroit out of the control of the state and places it in that of the local ward heeler.

The Democrats are beginning agitation in favor of the admission of Utah as a state. Democracy, having swallowed every vile concoction known to the black art, will have no difficulty in swallowing Mormonism.

The new Farmers' Alliance party is meeting with no success in the south. Its founders have not intended that it should. They mean to use it as a means of throwing northern states like Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska and Illinois, out of the Republican party, in order that the Democrats may elect the next president.

The sewerage question has again been brought before public notice—this time by Ald. Wines' resolution in the common council. Ann Arbor needs a good system of sewerage, and it is to be hoped that the agitation will result in something tangible.

The rejection of Dr. Briggs by the Presbyterian assembly was to have been expected. In fact, it is difficult to see how delegates could consistently confirm his appointment as professor in a Presbyterian theological seminary and at the same time be true to the traditions, history and principles of the church.

DIFFERING AMERICAN WAGES.

Explanation of the Geographical Inequality in Earnings.

The reluctance of labor to emigrate in obedience to the law of prices is strikingly illustrated in our own country. So unwilling are workmen to follow the bait of higher wages that the scale of wages in the same trade is widely different in neighboring cities.

Here we have the proof that free-trade in labor does not equalize wages. The free-trader may reply, "Neither does free-trade in goods, for no tariff walls stand between these cities."

But take labor engaged in making the transportable articles which we aim to protect by our tariff laws—cloths, leather goods, hardware and the like—and see how strikingly uniform are the wage rates in all the cities mentioned.

PROFITS IN FARMING.

DEMAGOGIC "REFORMERS" MUST CHANGE THEIR TUNE.

Western Farmers Prospering—How Their Profits Compare with the Eastern Tradesman and Mechanic—Protection Helps Agriculture.

Western farmers are getting tired of playing the part of "horrible example" in the "reformers' stump speeches. Youthful eastern demagogues, who never saw a western farm, are dashing off awful descriptions of the miseries inflicted by the tariff upon the west.

The price of Iowa lands is advancing. The long stagnation of sales and depreciation of values has given place to an active demand for lands and substantial advance in values.

Mr. J. F. Moats, a practical farmer of Montgomery county, Kan., shows that farming in that state is as profitable as any other business in the country.

When the income and expense of the eastern mechanic or tradesman, with the same amount of capital, are compared with these figures, the hollowness of the "reformer's" croakings becomes even more apparent.

The farmer wants to attend a funeral, for instance, he hires his own horses on to his own carriage and goes. The other pays ten dollars for a carriage. Potatoes, meat, green vegetables, fruit, eggs, butter, bread and numberless articles of food must be purchased at a good round price by the dweller in the city.

A Scotch Manufacturer Moves to America. After the passage of the new tariff bill Mr. James Patson, of Johnstone, Scotland, discovered that the high grade shoe laces which his firm had been exporting extensively to the United States could not profitably get into our markets over the new duties.

Protection and Freedom. The Hon. Joseph Nimmo concludes a recent newspaper article as follows:

The remission of duties is as much a part of the Protective policy as the imposition of duties. There is no word in the English language so abominably misused as the word "free" in its application to the tariff policy known as "Free-trade."

OUR WASHINGTON WOMEN.

How Their Wearing Apparel is Affected by the McKinley Bill.

The Jenness-Miller gospel has so permeated fashionable society that the leading dressmaker in Washington refuses to fit a customer unless she present herself in glove fitting garments of either cotton, lisle, wool or silk.

Alongside the foregoing picture of business prostration and national discredit let us now place a brief view of the state of things which seventeen years of Protective policy brought the country.

No such showing ever was made by any other country in the world's history, as none other is found in the record of this country.

With all this it must be remembered that the first years of the period last named were covered by the most gigantic civil war that any nation ever was called upon to wage.

Surprised and suspicious, but wholly unable to meet the case, the lady put down the parcel and refused to take the boots until she had consulted with her husband.

When his wife had hurriedly poured forth her grievance the Democratic statesman, forgetting everything but his familiarity with the subject and the atrocious swindle, sprang to his feet and exclaimed, so it is avowed by the Democratic ex-member, "Why, the ———— liars; you just go back and tell him that the McKinley bill kept hides on the free list, and that if he is going to make any change he wants to take off two dollars and sell his ———— easily old truck for seven dollars."

The Home of Cheaps.

I have traveled all through the industrial regions of Europe, and have seen with my own eyes this pinching want among the industrial classes. I have seen women barefooted in the brick yards of merrie England, carrying cold slabs of damp clay.

I have seen them filling the coke ovens of sunny France. I have seen them emerge from the coal pits of busy Belgium. I have looked on in pity and amazement at women bearing the brunt of the heat and toil in the harvest fields of the German fatherland.

Our Exports Under the New Tariff. The new tariff has been in force sufficiently long now to indicate what its effect upon our export trade is likely to be. Free-trade tariff advocates have asserted that the McKinley bill would cut down exports.

Massachusetts Farmers Market. The New York Evening Post (Dem.) pretends to believe that the home market is of no particular account to the farmers of New England.

After having tried Free-trade for ten years Sweden fell into line with other enlightened nations a few years ago and adopted Protection. She is evidently satisfied with her new policy, if we may judge from the recommendations lately made to the parliament by a commission appointed to consider the question.

A WONDERFUL RECORD.

PROTECTION AND FREE-TRADE IN MARKED AND TELLING CONTRAST.

Results of a "Revenue Tariff"—What a Period of Protection Has Brought About—A Showing for Americans to Feel Proud Over.

The "tariff for revenue only," enacted by a Democratic congress in 1846, had been in operation seventeen years when the present Protective tariff was adopted.

No such showing ever was made by any other country in the world's history, as none other is found in the record of this country.

With all this it must be remembered that the first years of the period last named were covered by the most gigantic civil war that any nation ever was called upon to wage.

Surprised and suspicious, but wholly unable to meet the case, the lady put down the parcel and refused to take the boots until she had consulted with her husband.

When his wife had hurriedly poured forth her grievance the Democratic statesman, forgetting everything but his familiarity with the subject and the atrocious swindle, sprang to his feet and exclaimed, so it is avowed by the Democratic ex-member, "Why, the ———— liars; you just go back and tell him that the McKinley bill kept hides on the free list, and that if he is going to make any change he wants to take off two dollars and sell his ———— easily old truck for seven dollars."

Do Democrats Want Free-Trade?

It would seem so from the following extracts taken from letters read at the Free-trade meeting recently held at Cooper Union:

Arkansas: "Let every man be free, and let trade be free, that every freeman may enjoy the maximum profits of his own labor."

Congressman Tom L. Johnson, of Ohio: "Count me at all times for Free-trade and direct taxation. I am a Free-trader because I am a Democrat. I am for Mills, of Texas, for speaker of the house, because I want to have an out and out Free-trader take the chair held by Reed. Let Democratic leaders, then, be men. They acknowledge Free-trade in private; let them stop talking in public of percentages merely."

We will conclude these extracts with the following from Governor Hill, of New York: "They greatly mistake public sentiment who assume to construe the revolution last autumn at the polls as a popular manifestation in favor of radical tariff legislation."

After having tried Free-trade for ten years Sweden fell into line with other enlightened nations a few years ago and adopted Protection. She is evidently satisfied with her new policy, if we may judge from the recommendations lately made to the parliament by a commission appointed to consider the question.

AN AMERICAN FEAST.

The Great Protection Dinner of the American Protective Tariff League.

American ideas prevailed exclusively at the banquet of the American Protective Tariff League in New York, April 29. Everything used was the product of American material and labor.

Over 600 guests were present, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Addresses were made by C. N. Bliss, who presided in the absence of President Ammidown; Vice President Morton, Major McKinley, Senator Aldrich, Senator Hiscok, Senator Dohp, Congressman Doliver and Farquhar, Robert P. Porter, General George A. Sheridan, William E. Curtis, Colonel Hanson, of Georgia, George Gunton and others.

The McKinley prices humbug is no longer the subject of McGraw's editorials—to continue them would be too grave an insult to the intelligence of their readers, and too violent a contradiction to advertisements.

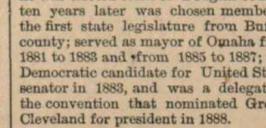

The effects of the tariff of 1890 on American labor and industries have been shown from week to week in The American Economist. It has pointed out the rapid growth of manufactures, an average advance in wages resulting from a larger demand for workmen and increased prosperity in agriculture.

"It is characteristic of our methods of discussion that we do not deal in glittering generalities. When it is asserted that staple manufactures are dearer now than before the new bill was passed, we quote from trade journals the prices now and a year ago, and show that prices now are lower.

The last number of The American Economist contained all the speeches in full, and any one who desires a copy can have one by sending for it.

Governor Boyd. Hon. James E. Boyd, elected governor of Nebraska by the Democrats in 1890, but whose right to serve was denied in some quarters, was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, Sept. 9, 1834, and came to America when 10 years old with his parents, locating in Ohio.

He was elected clerk of Douglas county; ten years later was chosen member of the first state legislature from Buffalo county; served as mayor of Omaha from 1881 to 1883 and from 1885 to 1887; was Democratic candidate for United States senator in 1883, and was a delegate to the convention that nominated Grover Cleveland for president in 1888.

A DENVER MAN SPEAKS.

He Replies to the "Silly Twaddle" of the Argus—What He Has Seen and Heard about Ann Arbor.

EDITOR REGISTER: While in your city a few weeks since, I was shown a copy of a paper, called the Argus, in which THE REGISTER was attacked as "an enemy of the city."

My principal object in writing, however, is to tell the Argus, through your columns, a few things which it does not seem to know.

Parents who send their children away from home to attend school are people of average intelligence. They know enough to appreciate the fact that no place can be found where evils and temptations in great abundance do not exist.

That is endeavoring to keep them in abeyance, and that is leaving no stone unturned to make it a disgrace to all who participate in them.

It says people will think Ann Arbor is a hard place and this will decrease the attendance at the University. Do you know, Mr. Argus, that there are at least twenty-five hundred letters written from Ann Arbor every week by wide awake and keenly observing young men and women whom no wishy-washy flatterer of yours can deceive?

Reflections.
The editor of the Coldwater Republican was in Ann Arbor on the day McMillan hall was dedicated, and in his paper last week he describes the exercises in a graphic manner. After a few remarks on the growth and present standing of the University he muses as follows: "We passed over the scenes of twenty-six to thirty years ago and the life of the past came crowding on us. There is not an instructor in the University now that was our teacher then. Most of them are dead, the last to go being Dr. Winchell, the eminent scientist, and the one who preceded him was Dr. Frieze, the well-known Latin scholar and lover of art. Dr. Boise, the Greek scholar, still lives at a ripe old age, but in Chicago. To think that all was so different brought a feeling of loneliness as we walked beneath the shade of wide-branching trees which were mere saplings then."

An Expensive Diet.
Frank Butler is a farmer; he raises wheat, oats, corn, potatoes, some good horses and cattle, and—heifers; he hasn't got as many heifers this week as he had last week; one of the best heifers of his herd, a handsome Holstein two-year-old, committed suicide by chewing up a dynamite cartridge, fuse and all, that had been planted with the intention of raising a stump; the heifer's head and neck were completely shattered, so that even her own mother would not recognize her. Frank proposes a change of diet for the balance of the herd, not particularly on account of the effects resulting from an over dose, but because it is rather expensive feed for common every day use.—Milan Leader.

London's Cleopatra's needle is decaying, and it is declared will soon be nothing but a shapeless stone.

In Paris the drivers of the cars on some of the street railways are placed on top of the car, thus giving them better control of the horses, while gaining additional space for passengers.

OUR YPSILANTI RAMBLER

Tells What He Has Seen and Heard in that Burg During the Past Seven Days and Nights.
I wish we might be allowed to hunt up the Hon. Mr. Darwin and whisper in his ear that the "missing link" has been found, and no mistake. It's the mule. We know it to be a fact, because so many of the "link's" first cousins live right here in Ypsi and show out their nature so unreservedly, especially when any scheme for improving or booming the city is proposed. The energy with which these near antecedents to the long-eared quadruped sit down upon anything but their own selfish schemes, is amusing, to say the least. But for all of this down-sitting and cold-water-pouring, we yet have faith that tanneries, trunk and machine factories will prevail, and that business enthusiasm, crushed to earth, will rise again and "show folks what's what." In fact, Ypsi has been growing and growing, and is now really in the bud; presently she'll blossom forth, and old Michigan will be prouder'n anything of her daughter with the Greek name, (we think it's Greek, but wouldn't swear to it.) It will be remembered that Prof. W. H. Brooks, late of the Normal faculty, left for the west about a year ago, to try and regain his health. Monday evening he returned to his home, our city, but is still in very ill health, and grave doubts are entertained of his recovery. Dr. L. Quirk, accompanied by his son Dan, and daughter, Mrs. W. L. Pack, started for New York Monday en route for a European trip. Hon. Egbert Harper, of Saline, was in our city, Monday, looking for a suitable lot to purchase and build a handsome home upon. He cannot do better than to make Ypsi his abiding place, and we will all extend him a welcoming hand. The Hawkins house will soon be re-opened, judging from the way workmen are rushing with painting, carpeting, etc. You'll all be invited over when it does open, and it'll do your hearts good to see a clean, nice hotel again in this corner of Michigan. RAMBLER.

"Familiar in Our Months."
The name of no medicinal plant is more "familiar in our mouths" than that of "sarsaparilla." The use of this root as a specific for scrofulous diseases was introduced into Europe about the middle of the sixteenth century. It was, however, about two hundred years later, when Sir William Fordyce and other eminent English physicians began to administer the remedy, that it first took a prominent position in the pharmacopoeia. Owing, probably, to the crude and primitive methods of extracting its medicinal properties, sarsaparilla was still but little known or used until some forty years ago, when Dr. J. C. Ayer, by an original and scientific process, first perfected his famous compound extract. As soon as this preparation, under the name of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, was brought to the notice of the medical world, it obtained a large sale, and since then the demand has gone on increasing, until now it has attained proportions that are simply enormous. The J. C. Ayer Company, of Lowell, import annually vast quantities of sarsaparilla root direct from Honduras, where it is found richest in medicinal properties, and the superior quality of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is due not only to the careful selection of the raw material and to scientific methods of extraction, but equally to the skillful admixture of other remedial agencies, such as yellow dock, stillingia, and the iodide of potassium—the result being a blood-purifier, which, for potency as well as economy, cannot be approached by any other preparation of the kind in the world.

TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

EDITED BY MRS. ALLIE LUSE DICK, FOR THE W. C. T. U.

And by the University Prohibition Club—Facts and Arguments Pertaining to the Cause of Temperance.

[EDITED BY MRS. ALLIE LUSE DICK, A. M.]

At the last regular meeting of the W. C. T. U., on May 28, selections were read from the different articles in the World's W. C. T. U. number of the Union Signal, and the discussion upon these and other subjects were entered into freely by all present. It was altogether a very enjoyable meeting. Committees were appointed to attend to some very important matters in temperance work.

The next regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held on Thursday, June 11, at 3 p. m., in Hobart Hall. At this meeting the mite boxes for the Woman's temperance temple will be opened. We hope all who have boxes will bring them; bring them full if possible; others not having boxes can contribute if they will to this fund. We hope to raise in this manner nearly if not quite all of the $100 subscribed by this union to the temple fund. It should be sent to Chicago for that purpose at an early day. Let us have a full attendance at this meeting.

The state convention of the W. C. T. U., which was to have been held in Muskegon, will, on account of the recent great fire in Muskegon, be held in Grand Rapids, and will be in session from the second to the fifth of June. Mrs. Lucy Parker, president of our union, was appointed delegate to the state convention, Mrs. Allie L. Dick alternate.

We note with much interest the progress of the temperance movement in Canada. Under date of May 23, we have the following from Montreal: "The Canadian parliament has for two days this week been engaged discussing the question of the passage of a resolution in favor of the immediate and total prohibition of the sale of liquor for beverage purposes. Nearly all the Liberals favor it and quite a number of the Conservatives are pledged to vote for it. The mover of the resolution is a Conservative. On Wednesday next the general conference of the Methodist church, represented by a deputation, will wait on the premier, to advocate the passage of a prohibitory law."

Esther Pugh speaks of the world's petition as follows: "The world's petition has been signed by tens of thousands, translated into hundreds of languages and dialects until it is a polyglot; the signatures are in the tracings of the 'spider in the ink,' or the 'goose track,' yet all speaking the universal language of the doom of the liquor traffic. It is said the sun never sets on Queen Victoria's dominions; it is fast becoming a fact, an accomplished fact, that it will not set on the domain of the W. C. T. U., and that the praying stations are growing up near enough together for the refrain to be caught from one to the next."

[EDITED BY UNIVERSITY PROHIBITION CLUB.]

What makes drunks? Strong drink. Who sells the drink? The saloon keeper. What created the saloon? The law. What makes the law? The legislature. Who makes the legislature? The people. Who are the people? We are the people.—Golden Rule.

A mass meeting of students has been held at Princeton to protest against the granting of a liquor license to a notorious saloon opposite Dickinson Hall. The students are supported by the faculty and the best people of Princeton.

There is a state law forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquors to students attending public educational institutions. We proclaim to the people of the state of Michigan that that law is violated repeatedly by the saloons of Ann Arbor, and that drinking and the use of intoxicating liquors is just as free to the students as anybody else. The statute says "students," whether they are infants according to the law or full fledged citizens. Public sentiment would see the law enforced; it could not be bribed to see that statute displaced. Princeton is up and doing. Let her not outstrip the U. of M. and the best people of Ann Arbor.

The regular monthly union temperance meeting of nearly all Ann Arbor churches will be held next Sabbath evening in the Presbyterian church. It is hoped that the subject of temperance will receive wise and genuine consideration. As well as being in the sphere of morals, it is also in the sphere of politics. Unfortunately at the present day, the spheres do not always coincide. It is the duty of the clergy to make these circles at least overlap—not by "going into politics," but by staying where they are and by preaching two great truths: First, The use as a beverage of alcoholic liquors is an individual personal matter over which no one else has any jurisdiction except by moral Christian influence and restraint; second, that the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors in any form is trade, subject to the regulation of the state, subject as this trade must and shall be to the prohibitory check of state and nation.

At the annual meeting of the whiskey trust, held recently, the reports of the past year showed sales of 44,748,171 gallons, an increase of nearly 4,000,000 gallons over last year, and of 9,000,000 gallons over two years ago.

The Other Version.

Mary had a little lamb;
Its fleece was white as snow.
And every where that Mary went
The lamb was sure to go.

It went with her to school one day
Diphtheria was there too,
The germs lodged in the snow fleece
And Mary breathed a few.

Now when the lamb is out at play,
It always plays alone,
For Mary sleeps the time away
Beneath a cold, gray stone.

Last October nine women were appointed station agents in the elevated railroads of Brooklyn. They have been so successful that the management will appoint more.

A BEAUTIFUL PLACE.

ONE OF ANN ARBOR'S LATEST ACQUISITIONS.

What a Visitor May See on the Old Ferdon Fruit Farm—The College Hill Addition Described.

Visitors to Ann Arbor have frequently remarked upon the well-shaded streets and spacious lawns which have united in making the University city almost a terrestrial paradise. Well-to-do people have wisely erected residences on large lots, thus affording good opportunity for laying out handsome walks, setting out trees and planting large grass plats. Of late the growing prices of real estate have compelled many people to build on narrower pieces. Many new houses consequently stand in close proximity one to another. There is a prospect that this tendency will be checked, for people seem more and more inclined to seek the outskirts of the city, where land is cheap and consequently can be purchased in large pieces.

Several enterprising men, taking advantage of this change of feeling, lately platted new additions at the outskirts of the city. Of these none is more desirable, in every respect, than is the College Hill addition. Our readers have doubtless many a time seen and admired the Ferdon fruit farm—a splendid tract of land, sixty acres in extent, lying just this side of the city line on Washtenaw-ave. Across the street is the Elm Fruit Farm and the elegant residence of Evert Scott. To the north is the property of Benjamin Day, to the east that of President C. K. Adams, of Cornell, and to the south that of Mr. Tuomy.

The ground of the farm is gently rolling, thus furnishing good grades and at the same time a chance for terraces. Not only peach, apple and pear trees, but elms and maples as well, are scattered over its surface here and there. At any point on the farm a magnificent vista discloses itself to the eyes of the spectator. The heavily wooded hills on the river, the towers and spires of the University, the rolling ground towards Ypsilanti are plainly visible. The farm itself is so high that most of the surrounding country seems to lie in a valley. No more sightly spot can be found within five miles of the Ann Arbor court house.

This magnificent property has been purchased by Messrs. Corliss and McLaughlin, of Detroit, who, with characteristic enterprise, have converted it into streets and lots. Messrs. J. R. Bach and W. W. Watts are the hustling local managers. If Ann Arbor people do not appreciate the beauties of the new addition, it will not be their fault.

The streets are all well platted. "Vinewood Boulevard" is the name of the most pretensions. It is a magnificent avenue 100 feet wide, meeting Washtenaw-ave at an acute angle and running exactly east and west. It is laid out similarly to north and south University-aves, with a grass plat and row of trees in the center. Workmen have been busy grading it for several weeks, and while they have not tried to make it perfectly level, they have already placed it in good condition for driving. So far as worked at present, it is a quarter of a mile in length. Eventually it will, no doubt, be extended through the property of Dr. Adams to the beautiful Geddes road. It is doubtful if Vinewood boulevard, when completed, can be surpassed by anything in Detroit or other large cities. The other streets are narrower, being of the same width as are the other streets of Ann Arbor. One of them, Valley-st., starts at right angles with Vinewood, for some distance, and then turns toward Washtenaw-ave. This street, when continued to the north, will connect with the original Valley-st in Baldwin's addition. Between Vinewood boulevard and Washtenaw-ave, on the south, is a small triangular piece of ground belonging to Benjamin Day. The owner has about decided to convert it into a small park.

There are 100 lots already platted in the addition. Those which face on Washtenaw-ave and the Boulevard are 150 feet deep and 60 feet wide. The others are 132 feet deep. All these have been carefully staked out. There is scarcely a lot on the entire addition that is not on high ground. The prices at which the owners are holding them range from $750 to $200. They are so cheap that a builder should not be contented with one but should take two or three lots. Dr. V. C. Vaughn has already acted on this principle. He has purchased on Washtenaw-ave, just south of the proposed park, three magnificent lots, on which he intends, in the near future, to erect a fine residence. Many others are already negotiating for lots, and the demand bids fair to be lively.

The street railway company has virtually consented to extend its line on Washtenaw-ave to the southern end of the addition. This will be a great accommodation to all future residents. Of the 60 acres, only 35 have been platted. The remainder of the property will undoubtedly be opened before many years. The enterprising spirit of the owners is shown by the fact that they have already expended over $1,000 in grading streets. They expect to spend much more before the addition is in perfect shape. A visit to College Hill would repay any one who loves to stroll over beautiful and sightly grounds. A carriage drive over the boulevard would prove especially enjoyable. On Sundays and on week day afternoons, many are already finding their way to this beautiful spot.

A Brilliant Advocate.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE.

Joseph H. Choate, of the New York law firm of Everts, Choate & Beaman, is generally considered to rank all the advocates of the city of New York. He is 55 years of age, and is a native of Salem, Mass. He was graduated at Harvard in 1834, and at the Dane Law school in 1834. The next year he was admitted to the Massachusetts bar, and in 1836 to the bar of New York, where he has practiced ever since. He was counsel for Fitz John Porter in the investigation at West Point.

LITERARY NOTES.

The May Book Buyer, besides its customary departments, which are this month as full of bright and interesting comment and criticism as usual, contains a sketch of Harold Frederic, author of "Seth's Brother's Wife," "The Lawton Girl" and "In the Valley." A journalist by profession, he has yet found time to write well in the field of pure literature. After serving a five years apprenticeship in his profession he was sent by the New York Times to London as its European correspondent, a position he now holds. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. [$1.00 a year.]

The numbers of The Living Age for May 9 and 16 contain The Story of Bianca Capello, and A Stone Book, Nineteenth Century; Anglo-Saxon Unity, Fortnightly; Ibsen's "Brand," Westminster; Lord Beaconsfield; After Ten Years, National; Civilization, and Politics in Fiction, Blackwood; Statesmen of Europe, Leisure Hours; Life on a Sugar Plantation, Gentleman's; Carrara, Cornhill; An Irish Mail-car Driver, and A Curious Irish Will, Spectator; A Chinese Wedding, Chambers; Geographical Expeditions, Nature; Modern Goths, Graphic; with instalments of "Eight Days," "A Strange Passenger," "The Muqaddam of Spain," and poetry, Littell & Co., Boston, publishers.

Scribner's Magazine for May contains important articles in two notable illustrated series—the first of "The Great Streets of the World" and the second of the "Ocean Steamship" articles. With two such series of articles, and a special fiction issued in August, it is believed that the summer numbers of this magazine will be remarkably interesting. The May number is noteworthy in fiction, containing the conclusion of the much-praised serial, "Jerry," and the first of a two-part story, "An Alabama Courtship," by F. J. Stimson ("J. S. of Dale"), the author of "Guendale," and "First Harvests." In addition there are two complete short stories—"A Fragment of a Play," by Mary Tappan Wright, and "A Toledo Blade," by T. R. Sullivan, author of "The Lost Rembrandt" and other short stories which have appeared in this magazine. Other short articles fill up the remainder of the number. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

Among the interesting features of the current number of Harper's Weekly is a double-page illustration of the Tandem Parade in Central Park, with descriptive comment by Casper W. Whitney. The illustrations of the Columbian Exposition are continued in a full-page view of the Lagoon, with the faces of the electricity and manufacturers' buildings, and bridges, and the obelisk in the background. George A. Hibbard contributes a story entitled "Nowadays," illustrated by W. T. Smedley. Charles de Kay writes about the new fountain in Union Square. And there are portraits of Lieutenant Grant of India, Professor Joseph Leidy, George W. Childs, Charles Pratt, Horace Chilton, and the sixteen Bishops comprising the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Harper's Bazar for this week is especially valuable on account of its fashion articles and illustrations, and the pattern-sheet Supplement with which it is accompanied. Interesting articles are contributed by Christine Terhune Herriek, Olive Thorn Miller, Helen Watterston, and others. Juliet Corson continues her valuable papers on "Sanitary Living." Fiction is well represented. Harper & Brothers, New York.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

There is no duty on the dude, because there is no duty he can perform; besides he comes under the head of raw material. Struggle toughens the mind, until by-and-by we do not mind the struggle. You need not toughen the body by a struggle with a cough when you have Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Oysters frequently reach a great old age. The ridges or water lines on the shell indicate the number of years until they get beyond 40; then the lines are wider, and indicate a period of 10 years. An oyster 86 years old was caught in Delaware bay 4 years ago.

What is Virtue?

Strength, goodness, efficiency. Surely then Hibbard's Herb Extract has virtue, or how did it ever cure Mrs. Hibbard (whose picture appears in another column) after hereditary scrofula had eaten away her nose and upper lip? See advertisement.

A Bid for Alliance Support.

The New People's party is playing for the Farmers' Alliance support. QUEEN, DRONE AND WORKER BEES.

The Three Kinds to Be Found in Each Colony—All About the Mother Bee. The queen is the mother bee, and the most important personage in the hive. The queen, as compared with other bees, is long lived. It is not unusual for her to do good work for from three to four years. All depends upon her excellence and vigor. Some queens cease to be useful at the end of one year, others at two and so on. When they no longer lay impregnated eggs—cease to be fertile—the workers rear a new queen and destroy the old one.

It is the queen's mission to keep the colony well populated—in a word, to lay eggs. A good queen lays from 2,000 to 3,000 eggs per diem, or nearly double her weight of eggs per day. Queens differ, however, in the matter of fecundity; the good ones keep the hives populous with active, profitable bees, while inferior ones, although they may lay eggs for a time, are never profitable. These imperfectly developed bees are, according to Root, the result of trying to raise a queen when there are too few bees, or when the larvae with which they are obliged to rear a queen are too old—that is, too nearly ready to seal up. Professor Cook says that this lack of fecundity may be due to disease, improper development or to special race or strain. The activity of the queen is governed largely by the activity of the workers. According to Professor Cook, as the worker bees feed the laying queen, it is more than probable that with no nectar to gather the food is withheld, and so the queen is unable to produce the eggs, which demand a great amount of nutritious food all ready to be absorbed.

Queens begin to lay when about eight to ten days old, as a rule. If a queen is not fertilized in, say, a fortnight from the time she is hatched she will frequently begin laying without being fertilized.

QUEEN—DRONE—WORKER.

at all, and is commonly known as a drone laying queen. The queen is an important individual of a hive only so long as she is useful. When her usefulness ceases she is destroyed with as little consideration as are the drones. The drones are the male bees, and are generally found in the hive only from May to November, though they may remain all winter. There are in nature several hundred and often thousands in each colony. The number may be and is often reduced by the apiculturist. The worker or nectar bees are the unimpregnated females—the bees that do the work except that of laying eggs. There are from 15,000 to 40,000 workers in every good colony.

Why Poultry Runs Out.

American Cultivator says: First crosses with almost any standard breed of fowl are pretty sure to produce good results. The man who makes the cross knows the characteristics he wishes to breed to, and the cross generally secures them. But these grade fowls, though often valuable for egg producing, are not trustworthy for breeding. Their progeny are not grades but mongrels. Changing the makes in a flock is often advised, but if the new stock are mongrels there will be little advantage from this. The flocks on farms all over the country are largely of this mongrel stock, and this is one reason why so many have poor success with poultry. Forty or fifty years ago the common dunghill fowl in this country, though originally intermixed, had been inbred long enough so that it had become almost an established breed. Few, if any, of these old fashioned fowls are now left anywhere. As a consequence the introduction of new blood in every flock not absolutely pure bred is a necessity every two or three years, and in every case males of pure blood, and so far as possible of the predominant strain of the flock, should be introduced for crossing.

Pasturing Orchards.

"Ought apple orchards to be pastured?" was a question asked at a New York farmers' institute. Mr. Van Alstyne answered: "I pastured an orchard of eight acres with sheep two years, and the fruit was improved. Sheep droppings are very valuable for the trees. I shall continue to keep sheep in my orchards." Col. Curtis said: "The advantages of swine are that they do all that the sheep do in enriching the land, and they root up the larvae of the codling moth, which have escaped from the apples and are hidden just under the ground. The pigs will destroy all of these, which the sheep will not. All other larva will be in similar danger."

Weeping Trees.

With a fine, well kept, velvety green lawn, tastefully planted with ornamental trees and shrubs, the grounds around a dwelling may be rendered very charming, but the effect may nevertheless be increased by a judicious selection of weeping trees. Of these some of the most beautiful are the weeping ash, weeping beech, cut leaved weeping Birch, Camperdown weeping elm, weeping sycamore, white leaved weeping linden, weeping mountain ash, weeping poplar, American weeping willow and Kilmarnock weeping willow.

All About Swine.

Give the hogs plenty of slops. A little corn scattered in the field will give the hogs a good start. When we begin to feed the pigs to fatten them we will get more growth and better meat to make the food one-fourth bran, three-fourths by weight of corn or rye. Give all the hogs shut in pens some grass, clover or green corn. Store hogs will live on this sort of food and do well. The green corn with the ears on will fatten them.—Western Swineherd.

Keep Away from Boston. A Boston man kissed his wife on the street. Whereupon a vigilant policeman arrested him for disorderly and immoral conduct. A wise judge sustained the arrest and dismissed the culprit with a reprimand. This should be a warning to young married couples to keep away from Boston during the honeymoon.

Ladies Try Great French Remedy. Dr. Le Duc's Periodical Pills from Paris, France, act only upon the generative organs in females, and positively cure suppression of the menses (from whatever cause) and all periodical troubles peculiar to women. Established in Europe, 1839; England, 1850. Canada, 1878; United States, 1887. A safe, reliable remedy, warranted to excite menstruation, or money refunded. The larger portion of the pills to which ladies are subject is the direct result of a disordered and irregular menstruation. The American Pill Co., proprietors. Price, $2. Sold by Eberbach & Son, druggists, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Sanitary Precautions. Sanitary administration, says Erasmus Brooks, means not only personal comfort and health in the family, but economy to the estate and family. Two hundred and fifty-thousand lives lost, three million cases of sickness and 20,000,000 in money are traced, in one decade in England alone, to neglect of sanitary care. The sword and musket are terrible ministers of death, but even in armies, where battles kill one person disease kills at least three.

A Fool and His Money Soon Part. How true some of these old sayings are. A friend of mine paid a travelling check $50 to cure him of Scrofula, from which he had suffered two years. He gave him a bottle of stuff which only aggravated the disease. When he went to consult the second time, the quack had left for parts unknown. Upon learning the circumstances I recommended Sulphur Bitters. Five bottles cured him.—Editor Journal and Courier.

The End Not Yet in Sight. This "reform" legislature just before the spring election was one day taken with a "reform" spasm of unusual severity. Where it up and resolved to adjourn sine die on April 30. Well, here it is almost a month beyond that date, and we are told a long suffering people must suffer one or two months more, before the squab-bucks quit and go home.—Muskegon Chronicle.

What Cured Him? Disturbed, disturbed; with pain oppressed, no sleep, no rest, no rest. Such terrors thus ensnared him? Dyspepsia all night, all day. It really seemed had come to stay. Pray, guess you, then, what cured him? It was Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That is the great cure for Headache, Scrofula, Dyspepsia, Kidney Disease, Liver Complaint and General Debility. An inactive Liver means poisoned blood. Kidney disorder means poisoned blood; Constipation means poisoned blood. The great antidote for impure blood is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Acting directly upon the affected organs, restores them to their normal condition. The "Discovery" is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all cases of disease for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

Quite an Every Day Affair. One of the Rescuing Party—My man, you have had a miraculous escape! Blown down through a chimney and then piled under 500 tons of brick and mortar. You don't seem to realize your good luck; just as cool as a cucumber. The Survivor (calmly)—I don't mind a little thing like this. You see, boys, I married red hair and a temper.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

Hesekiah's Surprise. "Wal, Hiram, if this don't beat all! The old way for doctors was 'kill er cure,' but here I've found a piece in this here newspaper where a doctor offers 'cash er cure.' Is fer catarrh? I wish we had it—I'd like to try him! Jest listen, Hiram! The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy offer a reward of $500 for any case of catarrh which they cannot cure. That beats all lotteries hollow! The medicine costs 50 cents—your catarrh is cured or you get $500! Where's my hat? I'm going right over to neighbor Brown's, to show him. I never wanted to get within ten feet of him before, but if it is the cure of his catarrh, I guess I can stand it once." Sold by druggists.

Starvation—Thrift. UNDER PROTECTION. The deposits made in the savings banks of the six New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, which, with a population of 17,300,000, amounted to $1,370,000,000 in 1880, and against $1,314,000,000 in 1881. The number of depositors increased 100,000 to 3,320,000, and the increase in deposits was $55,000,000. A clerical man says it is impossible to describe the misery that prevails in Birmingham and other places the suffering among the working classes is indeed pitiable. In London the verdict of death from starvation is returned in numerous cases. In many cases the cause has not been a more terrible winter for the poor. On every hand can be seen men begging for employment. They are not begging for bread alone, but for work. In the city of Ann Arbor, and you will find unemployed laborers by the thousand.

Purify YOUR Blood WITH Hibbard's Herb Extract
A WONDERFUL CURE.
This is a true likeness of me wearing artificial nose and upper lip after Scrofula had consumed my nose and upper lip, cured by Hibbard's Herb Extract. This is not a patent medicine, but a simple preparation of roots and herbs that cured me over 47 years ago, since when I have cured thousands with its use. It requires a powerful vegetable remedy to effect such a cure as my own, and my argument has always been that the remedy that cured me would cure all forms of Scrofula or other Blood and Skin Diseases. Its success has been phenomenal. Send for list of testimonials and printed history of my case, or call on me any day, or write and describe your case. Advice free.

THE BASSETT CLAIM.

By HENRY R. ELLIOT

(Copyright by American Press Association.)

"Ah, yes," replied the member, smiling resolutely in his pain, like an Indian brave under torture, or a Spartan youth at his lessons in fortitude, or an early Christian on the frying pan. "Yes; happy, then, to see you at any time. We can't do much about the claims, you know, for a month or two, as everything is out of the last month. You find Washington very attractive, no doubt. Have you been to the patent office? No? A most interesting place. Ah, have you been in the house yet? No? Well, let me write you a card for the members' gallery. That way, up the stairs and turn to the right. There's the card. Oh, don't mention it. Always glad to be of any service. Good day, gentlemen, good day!" And he rushed back, vanishing, like the cat in "Alice in Wonderland," in a smile.

"Now, that's kind of him," said Windward, as they turned away. "Kind," sneered Stevens. "Neat, I should say. He evidently knows how to get rid of people handsomely." "Now, Stevens, that isn't fair!" Windward began.

"Pshaw!" interrupted Peter. "He's a fraud, like all the rest of 'em. Why, Windward, a bill is always read a first and second time and referred to committee, when introduced, and the whole thing is the merest formality. What he really said was that nothing had been done and nothing would be done with the claims this winter—ask McArdle if I'm not right. Oh, these shoddy statesmen; I certainly am sick of them!"

"Evidently," said Windward, laughing. "Well, here are the steps—what a noble painting! 'Westward Ho!' Those old fellows were made of stern stuff. I don't care what the critics say; these paintings are grand, and so is freedom—congress and all—even if members do snub obscure claimants."

"Here is the members' gallery; it's no better than any other, but we might as well have the good of our ticket," said Stevens, bound to have his growl out. The pass was handed to a crippled soldier, who opened the doors, and the visitors entered the chamber, and were at once overlooking a scene of indescribable hubbub. Below them on the floor was a compact mass of desks and chairs narrowing to the speaker's seat. Pages were running up and down the aisles on errands, the representatives were reading newspapers, writing letters, and telling stories, some even at lunch or at toilet; a brazen throated clerk was reading something no one regarded. Now and then a man would rise up and toss his arms and shout. Then the speaker would bang upon his desk for order, and thus bring a moment's lull, in which a far away inarticulate voice would be heard; then the din would begin again, and the member, tossing his arms aloft once more, like a swimmer in despair, would sink and be followed up in the confusion.

"What is it all about?" asked Windward, quite bewildered. Stevens could not tell and asked a neighbor. "They're on the new rules," was the reply. "I should think they needed some," said Windward.

The neighbor smiled. "Oh, it's very quiet today," he said. "Once let them get excited and you'll see some fun. Hallo, what's this? You may see a row now!"

The floor was suddenly in a ferment. The speaker's gavel rapped like a fire bell. Members jumped to their feet, and a score rushed down into the area before the speaker's desk. Half a dozen excited men were shouting and shaking their fists; there was more pounding, more shouting, one man louder than others; a great, rude, general laugh burst out at something he said; some one shrilly chattered back; there was another laugh; then the members struggled back to their seats and the buzz began again.

"What was all that?" inquired Windward, much excited. "I couldn't get at it," laughed the neighbor. "I suppose some member called another a horse thief or some such pleasanter. It's all over now, anyhow."

Windward now gave his card to one of two serious and rather distinguished looking doorkeepers, who took it in, and in a moment Senator Bills appeared, standing in the doorway and looking out on the visitors with a perplexed air. "Ah, Mr. Senator," said Windward, stepping up. "I am Mr. Bassett."

"Good day, sir," replied the statesman, civilly but with dignity. He was a portly man, with ruddy cheeks, a man of girth and weight, and he had to a marked degree the senatorial habit of looking over his caller's head into the Twentieth century. "What can I do for you, sir?" he asked in a deep, ponderous, oracular voice.

"As possibly you remember," said Windward, "I had the pleasure of meeting you at Col. McArdle's."

"Oh, certainly," he replied, evidently failing to recall any such circumstance. "Certainly; very glad to meet you again. Come inside." And saying this, he led the young man past the doorkeepers into a marble reception room, where they found luxurious chairs.

"I took the liberty of asking your attention for a moment to the French Spoilation claims," said Windward, when they were seated. "You doubtless know of them."

"Yes," replied the senator, with a jaded air. "I do. These claims, as you doubtless know, have been before congress for some time."

Windward indicated his knowledge of that fact. "Mr. Sumner made a very able report on them some years ago," continued the senator. "He was an able man, a very able man. We differed frequently, but he was a very able man, and his report on the French claims was very able; a very able report."

"It strikes me so," ventured Windward. "Yes, sir," replied the senator, with a jaded air. "I do. These claims, as you doubtless know, have been before congress for some time."

to you both that Miss Willis is a sweet, pretty girl." "Very well, Mr. Bassett, I shall duly tell her the first time we meet," said Louise smiling. "But you've forgotten your particulars. How about the eyebrows or her dimple?"

"I've no call to specify. She is 'one entire chrysolite,'" exclaimed Windward. "Blue eyes for compliments, Louise," said the colonel, with a chuckle. "He'll do, as old Tom before him."

CHAPTER X.
NEVER SAY DIE.

The remarkable person on a sofa couch. "I may not be in earnest, but we Americans play hard." So Windward said to his friend Stevens that night, after a quick walk home through the bracing wind. "I am determined," he continued, "to see what there is in this thing. And I propose to you now, as one lawyer to another, that you help me along, working, like myself, on a contingent fee. I shall need help, that is certain, and you say you want to get out of the rut. You have your evenings. Suppose you take hold?"

"I rather like the idea," said Stevens, "though I should not care to figure openly in the campaign, as it might hurt me in the office."

"I see," said Windward. "Very well; you be silent partner, the 'Co.' in our lobby firm."

"I'll consider it," laughed Stevens. "And you propose, then, to stay here right through the session?"

"If it looks at all promising," replied Windward. Stevens was thoughtful and silent a moment, then he said, "If you are really going to be here all winter why not bring your family down here and be comfortable?"

"I've a great mind to," said Windward. "They could see the patent office and the Smithsonian." Here he burst out laughing and told McArdle's story about Gen. Grant.

"I am sure I should like to meet your mother and Miss Florence again," said Stevens, "and it is just as well for the reverse," retorted the colonel—"the woman's scale for men."
