How the People of This City Spent the Fourth-A Party at the Ladies' ding-A Long List of "Left-the-Cityfor-the-Summers."

The exodus continues, and the people Ann Arbor are seeking the wilderness, the seacoast, the farm and the lake. Those few persons who remained in this vicinity on the Fourth were very miet and peaceable. There was less than the usual din from firecrackers and rockets. Many little picnic parties were formed and the Huron river was alive with boatmen. Since the Fourth, society has been so quiet that it could not be heard at all, and marriage hells have been muffled. The future, however, cannot be vouched for.

AT THE KEYSTONE CLUB HOUSE. As has been their custom for the past few years, the members of the Keystone club and their friends spent the Fourth at Zukey Lake. There was feasting, fishing and merry-making in general. The following ladies and gentlemen comprized the party: Mr. and Mrs. D. Hiscock, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Watts; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Eberbach, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Kyer; Mesdames Ed. Wyman and J. Read; Messrs. Zac Roath, Charles Hiscock, Will Watts, Sam Langsdorf, J. R. Miner and J. V. Sheehan, and others.

DOWN THE RIVER. About twenty members of the Ann Arbor Literary Society spent the Fourth on the river near Geddesburg. The following were in the party: Misses Nana Crozier, Viola Hess, Freer and Erwin of Chelsea, Eya, Hattie and Maud Stebbins, Lillie Morse, Ida and Cora Woodmansee, Blanche and Mabel Gage, Messrs. G. G. and Charles Crozier, Frank Hess, G. W. Johnson and J. R. Bowdish. Two of the party, a lady and a gentleman, had a narrow escape from drowning. The boat capsized in which they were rowing, throwing both into the water. Timely assistance was ren-

HUBBARD-MONROE

The wedding of L. Dow Hubbard and Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Monroe, was a pretty affair. Rev. R. H. Rust performed the ceremony. The bride wore a pearl colored silk dress. Her bridesmaid was Miss Ida Shaw and the groomsman was J. A. Monroe, both of Saline. The parlors were tastily decorated with flowers, a knot of evergreens and daisies hanging over the spot where the ceremony was performed. Quite a number of out of town guests were present, as well as many from Ann Arbor. The newly married couple left for Detroit and a trip around the lakes. The best wishes of many friends accompany Sewerage Postponed.

At the meeting of the city council, Monday evening, the report of the joint committee on sewerage was read and on motion was referred to the sewerage committee of the council. This was done for the reason that the committee wish to investigate the legal phases of the project before taking action.

A communication from the mayor dated several days ago, was read, in which he gave his opinion that no legislation could be secured at Lansing.

Dr. W. F. Breakey tendered his resignation as member of the board of health and Dr. John Kapp was appointed in his stead. The report of this board was read, announcing the election of Eli W. Moore president, and Martin Clark inspector. Another report showed that the recent inspection of the water works had proven satisfactory. It was found that, contrary to general belief, no connection existed between the pumps and Several petitions were read and referred. Mrs. Mary A. Foley wants $230 for injuries done to her property. A number of residents of Detroit-st asked that the ordinance requiring them to build stone walks he renealed

A large number of sidewalks were ordered, and the board of public works recommended that stone culverts be built in the following places: Felch-st, across Mill Creek, $550; Hill-st, over creek. $350: Fifth-st, between Liberty and Jefferson-sts, $350. They also recommended the expenditure of $350 for coping south University-ave.

The license ordinance, a synopsis of which was printed in THE REGISTER three weeks ago, was passed unanimously. Alderman Martin submitted an amended ordinance providing that all sidewalks be of stone which are constructed on the following streets: Main, between Catherine and William: Fourthave, between Ann and Liberty; State, between North and Packard; Ann, between Main and Fourth-ave; Huron, between Second and State; Washington, between Second and Fifth-ave; Liberty, between Second and Fourth-ave.

The council accepted the report of the committee relative to the opening of Summit-st between Beakes and Detroitsts and ordered that a hearing be given on the 20th of July.

The liquor bond of Barney Mast at 20 north Fourth-ave, with T. F. Leonard and L. J. Liesemer as sureties, was approved.

The special committee on the arbeibeiter verein celebration reported that $20 of the $100 intrusted to them remained unexpended.

A resolution was passed, authorizing the board of public works to require all sidewalks built without delay which had previously been ordered. Alderman Rehburg presented a resolution providing that all firemen who had served a year or more should receive $50 a month. Referred to the fire com-

The finance committee, by resolution of Alderman Martin, was instructed to present an itemized statement of the probable municipal expenses up to February 1, 1892.

Is His Title Clear?

The Supreme Court on Tuesday decided a West Bay City case which may be interesting to residents of Ann Arbor. W. H. Lennon was elected alderman in April, 1890, for a term of two years. This spring he was appointed chief of police and resigned his seat in the council. The court holds that the charter and statutory provisions that no member of the common council shall, during the term for which he was elected, be appointed to or be competent to hold any office in the city, meant just what it said, and that the contention of the respondent that when he ceased to be an alderman or a member of the council his term had therefore expired and he was no longer ineligible. was without force. The case is parallel to that of our city clerk, Wm. J. Miller whose term as alderman had not expired at the time of his election. Mr. Miller's friends claim that the section applies only to appointive offices. The Ann Arbor charter says: "No member of the common council shall, during the period for which he was elected, be appointed to or be competent to hold any office the emoluments of which are to be paid from the city treasury."

The emancipation celebration on August 3rd bids fair to bring a large number of strangers to the city. Hon. E. P. Allen delivers the address. A. J. Sawyer, Rev. Fr. Goldrick, and F. A. Merchant will also speak. The procession in the morning will include many civic societies, and music will be furnished by the Ypsılanti and Lansing straight track, which is 220 feet long cornet bands. Harrington Johnson, of Ann Arbor, will be marshal. The officers of the committee of arrangements are: John Loney, president; E. H. Johnson, vice president; J. R. Johnson, treasurer; Wm. BUSY ON THE CAMPUS.

MANY EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS TO BE MADE.

The New Law Building - Addition to Engineering Building - Athletic Grounds-Remodeling of President's House and Old Hospital-Minor Improvements.

The summer of 1891 is to be a busy one for Secretary Wade. "Why," says that gentleman, "I am completely befuddled; I don't see how in the world we are going to get all the buildings ready for the fail opening. We have only sixty days in which to build two large structures and to make, I don't know how many, lesser improvements!" A complete list of all these improvements would appal even a more energetic man than the worthy secretary. The most important work is the enlargement of the LAW BUILDING.

The addition is to be built on the north side of the present structure and is to have a width of fifty feet. The estimated cost is $25,000. The plans of the architect contemplate a handsome building. Red brick, with Berea sandstone trimmings, will constitute the outside walls, while the hallways will be finished in Finlay pressed brick. All the floorings will be of Georgia pine, the doors of oak, and the stairs of red oak. In front of the present building will be erected a handsome porch extenging its entire width and supported hy handsome pillars. A four-story tower will stand at the northwest corner of the addition and the entrance will be placed at the southwest corner. The library room will be enlarged by throwing into it all the rooms on the first floor of the present building except that at present occupied by the dean. The large lecture room in the second story will remain as it is for the present. On each of the three floors of the addition there will be three large rooms and several smaller ones. The building, when completed, will be well adapted to the needs of the law school.

THE OLD DENTAL BUILDING will soon be completely overhauled and, with a large addition, will provide quarters for the engineering department. The addition will stand on the north of the present building. It will be about fifty feet wide and three stories high, the roof of the old structure being raised to correspond. The old verandas will be torn away and the floor of the wing will be made even with that of the main building. All partitions and stairways will be removed. There will be over twenty large rooms for drawing, lectures and recitations when the addition is completed. The total cost will be from $15,000 to $20,000.

IN THE SOUTH WING of the main building important altera tions will be made. The entire third floor will be devoted to the zoological laboratory. It will be fitted up with dissecting tables, dog rooms, aquariums and other necessary apparatus. There will be a general laboratory, a private laboratory, laboratory for advanced studies and library room. Water and sewer pipes must be introduced, entailing a vast deal of expense and trouble. The fourth floor will be converted into a botanical laboratory for the use of Professor Spalding. The old laboratories in the north wing will be used as recita-

is already being overhauled so as to provide new quarters for the dental department. All partitions between the wards will be torn out. The western or ladies' section of the frame' building will be used as a laboratory. A large number of expensive benches will be purchased. Here will be done most of the work of the lower classes. The eastern section will be converted into an operating room, new windows being cut soas to provide sufficient light. The amphitheatre will be used as a lecture room. The present kitchen and dining room, which stands between the two wings, will be moved forward so as to join directly upon the brick building in front. It will serve as a reception room. On the west side of the front structure will be the faculty rooms. The present office and dispensary will be thrown together and will constitute the museum. The estimated cost of these improvements is $3,000.

THE ATHLETIC GROUNDS are now rapidly being improved. The total expense will not be less than $5,000. The surface of the ground is being made perfectly smooth. Tiling will soon be laid throughout the entire grounds. On the north side, about thirty-five feet from the fence, runs the and rendered perfectly hard and smooth with cinders. To the south is the oval track prepared in the same manner. This includes the base ball diamond. To the east of the track will be erected The football and tennis grounds will grounds. The entire field will be surrounded by a tight board fence, seven feet high. MINOR IMPROVEMENTS.

The new hospital is nearly completed and will undoubtedly be ready for use in the fall.

Two new boilers, to cost $6,000, will be placed in the east boiler house and pipes will be laid to the new engineering building.

The concrete walks on the south and north sides of the campus are already completed.

The president's house will be overhauled and an addition will be built on the west side. The present library and dining room will be thrown together, thus making a very large dining room In the addition will be placed the president's library, the kitchen and laundry. A large yeranda will be built on the east side of the house. The total cost of these improvements will be $7000.

The secretary has already ordered 300 new seats for the recitation rooms at a cost of $8 apiece, and many new cabinets and tables must be purchased. Besides all these improvements there 'are many things to be done around the campus which it is impossible to mention in a short article.

At Whitmore Lake.

The Fourth of July was well enjoyed by all who assembled at Smith's Grove, Whitmore Lake, to celebrate, with the people of St. Patrick's parish, Northfield, the sixtieth anniversary of its establishment. The Toledo & Ann Arbor road conveyed hundreds from north and south to the picnic grounds. At three o'clock in the afternoon careful eye examination would place the number of persons assembled at 3,000. From 11:30 until 3 o'clock, together with the repast furnished in the evening, over 1,800 meals were served. Gov. E. B. Winans spoke for about fifteen minutes, commencing at about three o'clock. He contrasted the times of sixty years ago, the year of the establishment of St. Patrick's parish, with the present time. . He spoke of the hardships and sacrifices of the sturdy pioneer, and alluded to the fact that smiling fields of rich produce have replaced the dense forests. Here in our midst, in the very town of Ann Arbor, in which a grand university stands, but one half a century ago, said the speaker, as many as a half a dozen deer in a wild state were seen at one time in what are now the streets of this Athens of the West. The remarks were very interesting and listened to with marked attention by those present. The quartette rendered "America" in a beautiful manner, and proved conclusively in the three renditions given that their efforts would compare favorably with any male quartette in the state. Rev. L. P. Goldrick, when introducing Hon. D. Shields, prosecuting attorney of Livingston county, cracked a joke on the lawyer which caused considerable laughter and prepared the people to receive the next speech. This gentleman showed in a masterly manner "The Reason for Fourth of July Patriotism." Last but not least, came the funny part of the program, by Jas. Harkins. The song "Irish Jubilee" caused uproarious laughter, and so highly were the songs of the gentleman appreciated, that he was encored three times. The general character of the gathering was respect-$700 has been realized from the doings.

THE REGISTER last week said that the Business Men's association would sing at Whitmore Lake on the Fourth. The Times eagerly seized upon the item and added something to it from the imagination. It heard the several members of the organization devoting their time to such silly song sas "Ain't I a Dude?" "Almost Elected," "Wool," and the like. Now, we contend that the Business Men's Association had better stop singing such silly trash and take something more serious. "The Glories of Ann Arbor," "Hail to the Athens of the West," "Welcome, Factories," "We Must Have Sewers," or "Come back, My old Refrigerator Love, Come Back,' sung by a chorus of 300 bass voices, and accompanied by the blast of a dozen bands, would be much more effective Does the association take the hint?

A Practical Reformer.

Rev. Osbert Mordaunt, rector of Hampton Lucy, Warwickshire, for fourteen years has owned and run the solitary tavern in the village. This tap sells nothing but pure ale, neither wine nor spirits being permitted, and the manager is allowed to make a profit on eatables, but not a penny on beer, so he has no object to encourage drinking. The result is that, while the tavern yields a profit, drunkenness has disappeared from the village, and the health rate is much higher than in other ccupy the southern portion of the places roundabout.-New York Times.

An Enterprising Establishment,

One of the oldest firms in the city, Mack & Schmid, realizing that their large and increasing business needs more commodious quarters are to remodel and enlarge their present quarters. They are to extend their front show windows to the ground; to enlarge the entrance to the store by widening it ten feet, with plate glass windows on either side. the second floor a glass front is to be put in which will make one of the finest carpet rooms in the state. Other parts of the building will be remodeled and many improvements made. Anticipating this change the firm has been giving the people of the city and surrounding country a benefit. Their recent sale of one cent prints was phenomenal, as they could not begin to accommodate the vast crowd which assembled long before the hour of sale. They regret exceedingly they were unable to accommodate them, also that any of the ladies were hurt, but the people seemed possessed to get the goods, and in the rush to secure them several ladies fainted, but notwithstand-ing all this, thousands were made happy. Mack & Schmid is the first firm in the city ever to put in the market first-class prints at the extremely low price of one cent per yard, and the people appreciated it, judging by the vast crowd which attended the sales.

wounded. Before the officers arrived with Pierce at the city jail a crowd of 500 people were wait-ing for them. A dozen officers were with Pierce, and as soon as the party came in sight the excitement in the erowd became intense. Cries of "lynch him!" "Bring a rope!" and "kill the scoundrel!" were heard on every hand.

Surrounded by forty policemen Pierce was hurried into the jail. Pierce shot John Harney about three years ago and at that time the jail was surrounded by 2,000 men, who were there to lynch him. His life was only saved by the prompt arrival of the militia, who dispersed the crowd by firing blank cartridges. Shortly after that

Pierce shot Henry Lloyd. Nine months ago he shot Terry Chambers, and had he not been spirited away he would have been lynched. E. H. Wishart, his latest victim, is a prominent grand army man and his friends are talking seriously about the matter. Strong precautions

The Penitentiary Building Wrecked and Ten Convicts Lose Their Lives-Many Houses in the City Are Badly Damaged.

KILLED IN A GALE.

A FATAL TORNADO.

BATON ROUGE, La., July 7 .- A terrible tornado struck this city a little after 6 o'clock Monday morning, passing from southwest to northeast. cyclone entered the city at the Garig brickyard, passed up through Catfish town, and struck the hill just east of Mr. John Johnson's residence. Its path continued in a northeasterly direction, crossing North boulevard 100 yards to the east of the governor's mansion. It then went north, striking the penitentiary building and the J. A. Dougherty residence on North street, and thence beyond the city. The cyclone was 300 yards wide, and ricocheted along its course like a cannon ball, devastating as it went. In the city no one was killed, though several persons were seriously injured.

The state penitentiary was partially wrecked. Ten convicts were killed and thirty-five injured, five of these dangerously. There were forty pris-oners at work in the pants factory at the time of the crash, and of that number six were killed and twenty two were wounded and horribly crushed. On the second story or central floor was the hospital, where twenty sick prisoners lay undergoing medical treatment, of which number four were killed and fourteen seriously if not fatally injured. The fire alarm was sounded and the entire fire department was summoned to the scene of the dreadful catastrophe, and together with the citizens and prison officials, aided by the uninjured prisoners, worked vigorously for the rescue of the unfortunates who lay confined under the great heap of debris that was thickly strewn over every quarter of the premises. Scenes of the greatest horror greeted the eyes of those engaged in the rescuing work, and the pitiful wails and death groans from the men buried out of sight by massive heaps of bricks and mortar could be heard arising from every part of the wreck. Of the number wounded about six are expected to die, and the mated at $30,000. In the city fifty houses at least were unroofed or destroyed. Mr. J. H. Young and members of his family were seriously hurt by the collapse of their house on St. Charles street. Mrs. Cotton, son and two daughters, living in a brick house on Main street, were injured in the falling of the building.

to the penitentiary building is esti-

The extent of the damage through out the city by this storm cannot accurately be estimated at this time, but it can be said that this is the greatest loss this town has ever sustained whether from a tornado or a fire. The storm did not make a straight sweep through the city, but would strike the ground and bound forward like a bouncing ball; it would pass over several houses at a time and descending again tear its way for hundreds of feet at a time. The trunks of large oak trees were snapped off like pipestems. So sudden was the storm that a number of bread carts, express and other vehicles were caught and wrecked in the streets; and it departed as suddenly as it came. A number of narrow escapes is reported. OTHER STORMS IN THE SO BROOK HAVEN. Miss., July 7 .- Monday morning about 6 o'clock the south western portion of this county was visited by a destructive cyclone, demolishing houses, fences and uproot-ing trees. The places of Amos Hodges and David Reeves were destroyed and a number of persons injured. At Mc-Navis' logging camp one man was killed and three wounded. MADISON, Miss., July 7 .- A cyclone struck this place about 11 o'clock Monday. It came from the southeast. Disasters are reported as follows: H. E McKay's plantation, destroying negro cabins, killing Wesley Young (colored), and wounding several others. Mr. B H. McKay's building was wrecked The storm then passed across the railroad, leveling telegraph poles. The residences of Glasscock and Brown were then first reached in town Both houses were wrecked. The Presbyterian church and school building were completely swept away, and A. M. Jones' place outstanding buildings were destroyed and stock in jured, trees, orchards and shrubbery ruined. Passing out of town to the northwest the cyclone completely destroyed the two colored churches and the residence of Hannah Lee, colored

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 7.- Mrs. Davis died in the utmost squalor Monday from starvation. She had saved in her lifetime $1,500, which she had on deposit in a local bank. Awarded Heavy Damages. DENVER, July 4.—Thursday afternoon in the district court Cecil Dean was given $100,000 damages against S. W. French for the alienation of the affections of Dean's wife. All the parties in the case are prominent and wealthy citizens of Denver, and the case has created a good deal of talk. The reason for the large amount of damages is that Dean had deeded all his property to his wife, believing her to be true to him, and that French profited thereby.

Who rules in this town? Depends on the question up.

The lamp-chimney question—what sort do you break? Whatever sort your dealer deals in.

How, do you think, he selects his chimneys?

He buys those that cost him least; he can get the regular price for them; and the faster they break the more he sells. That's how he reasons.

Tell him you want Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass," tough glass, transparent, clear, not foggy, fine, of right shape and uniform. Tell him you'll pay him a nickel more a piece, and that will cover his extra costs twice over. Tell him you don't propose to break any more. Try your hand at ruling. GEO. A. MACBETH & CO. Pittsburg.

Two Terrible Accidents Cause the Loss of Many Lives.

A Fast Freight Crashes Into a Passenger Train at Ravenna, O .- Excursionists Go Through a Trestle in West Virginia.

All but three of these were burned to a crisp. The residences of the killed, where not given, are Corning, N. Y. The fast express (No. 8) on the New York, Lake Erie & Western railroad, bound for New York, while standing at the depot waiting for orders was crashed into from the rear by a freight train. A day coach on the rear of the train was completely telescoped and two sleepers forward took fire and were burned up. Many of the vic-tims were so badly burned that they are almost unrecognizable. The freight train that telescoped the express is the dressed meat express from Chicago and was running about 30 miles an hour when it struck the passenger train. The accident was due to carelessness in leaving a switch open.

It is asserted by Superintendent Mattison, who is investigating the disaster, that the accident was due to the carelessness of the passenger crew. The train was in charge of Conductor Boynton, and his son was rear flagman. The latter, instead of going back, leaned against the rear coach until the freight was in sight and then it was too late to ALLIANCE, O., July 7.—The horrible wreck at Ravenna Friday morning is still the topic of conversation everywhere. Considerable excitement has been occasioned by the report that Conductor Boynton's report of the tickets shows twelve people yet unaccounted for, though some may have left without making themselves known. Conductor Boynton is firmly of the opinion that others were entirely consumed in the fire, and that his son, who was the negligent flagman supposed to have been the cause of the wreck, was one of the victims.

THROUGH A TRESTLE.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 6.—At least, thirteen persons were killed, four fatally injured and nearly sixty injured in a less degree in an accident on the Kanawka & Michigan railroad at & o'clock Saturday morning, at a point 8 miles west of here. The passenger train for Columbus left here with two carloads of excursionists, among them members of the Order of United Ameriean Mechanics, who were going to Poca. The wreck occurred on a high trestle. The sleepers on the structure had caught fire during the night and burned so that the rails spread under the train. The engine and baggage and mail cars passed over safely, but the two coaches were thrown from the track. After running some 40 feet on the sleepers the forward car toppled to the left, the rear one to the right. The forward car turned completely over, landing right side up. The other fell 20 feet turning upside down, and one set of trucks fell upon it, crushing the car to splinters. Following is a list of those who were killed in the wreck:

who were killed in the wreck:

Amos Coulter, Red house, W. Va.; Jasper
Dougherty, New Martinsville, W. Va.; Col. W.
E. Fife, Buffalo, W. Va.; Charles Huffman, Blue Creek, W. Va.; Ella O'Leary, Charleston, W. Va.; Orville Robinson, Midway, W. Va.; L.

lis, O.

The forward car, which turned completely over, now rests right side up in a field some 10 or 15 feet beneath the level of the bridge. When the other car fell on the other side of the track many of the passengers were killed by the fall, but when the trucks crushed down on top of the car they smashed it to splinters and killed almost every person in its range. The top of the car was crushed beneath the weight of the heavy trucks and pressed down flat against the bottom of the car, literally squeezing the occupants to death.

Brief History of the Changes That Have Been Made in Our National Emble WASHINGTON, July 4 .- By order of the war department another star will be added to the United States flag to-day, making forty-four in all. They are arranged in six rows, the first and last containing eight and the four others containing seven stars, as represented in the accompanying illustration.

Every star in the new flag represents a new phase of progress in the nation's history. On June 14, 1777-one hundred and fourteen years ago-the American congress passed a resolution that "the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." In 1795 two stripes were added to commemorate the entry of Vermont and Kentucky as states into the union, and two new stars were also placed with those in the union. The stars were then arranged in three parallel rows. No further change was made until 1818, although in the meantime Tennessee (1796), Ohio (1802), Louisiana (1812), Indiana (1816) and Mississippi (1817) had been admitted. April 1818, a bill was signed by President Monroe reducing the number of stripes to thirteen and adopting new stars for the states admitted since 1795.

The number of stars has been increased as follows on the Fourth of July of the following years:

1819, one star for Illinois; 1820, two stars, one for Alabama and one for Maine; 1822, one star for Missouri; 1836, one star for Arkansas; 1837, one star for Michigan; 1845, one star for Florida; 1846, one star for Texas; 1847, one star for lowa; 1848, one star for Wisconsin; 1851, one star for California; 1858, one star for Minnesota; 1859, one star for Oregon; 1861, one star for Kansas; 1863, one star for West Virginia; 1865, one star for Nevada; 1867, one star for Nebraska; 1877, one star for Colorado; 1890, five stars for North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington and Idaho; 1891, one star for Wyoming-making forty-four in all.

ASKED TO RESIGN.

Bank Examiner Drew Is Notified by Comptroller Lacey That His Services Are No Longer Required.

WASHINGTON, July 7 .- In the correspondence which passed between Comptroller Lacey and Bank Examiner Drew concerning the latter's reports upon the condition of the Keystone bank of Philadelphia Mr. Drew endeavors to make it appear that his failure to show the actual condition of affairs was for the purpose of keeping the facts from the public. He claims that he fully intended to acquaint the authorities with the actual condition of affairs in a private memorandum, and his failure in that respect was an accident he greatly regretted. Comptroller Lacey's answer to this, under date July 2, was: "I have placed your communication, together with all other facts bearing upon the transaction, before the secretary of the treasury and the same have had very full and careful consideration. As a result the conclusion was reached that so important an omission, after reached that so important an omission, after fifteen days' investigation of the bank, is not consistent with the confidence which must necessarily be reposed by the department in the reports of those appointed to make examination of national banks. By direction of the secretary I have therefore to request that you forward to this office your resignation as an examinant of national banks. examiner of national banks."

Agricultural Lands Under Water by a Change in the Missouri's Course.

ATCHISON, Kan., July 7 .- The Missouri river made another change at Doniphan point Monday. The river is falling, but the land in the vicinity of "The Point" seems to be in such a condition that it is impossible for the current to remain long in one place.

LUXURY!

Looking out over the many homes of this country, we see thousands of women wearing away their lives in household drudgery that might be materially lessened by the use of a few cakes of SAPOLIO. If an hour is saved each time a cake is used, if one less wrinkle gathers upon the face because the toil is lightened, she must be a foolish woman who would hesitate to make the experiment, and he a churlish husband who would grudge the few cents which it costs.

If your grocer sends you anything in place of SAPOLIO, send it back and insist upon having just what you ordered. SAPOLIO always gives satisfaction. On floors, tables, and painted work it acts like a charm. For scouring pots, pans, and metals it has no equal. Everything shines after it, and even the children delight in using it in their attempts to help around the house.

Grocers often substitute chaper goods for SAPOLIO to make a better profit. Send back such articles and insist on having just what you ordered.

THE Republican party can afford to dispense with Senator Quay and his methods. His reputation has been smirched and his defense has been anything but satisfactory to the masses of his fellow-partisans. Quayism lost the state of Pennsylvania last fall; Quayism will undoubtedly lose the next presidential election unless something is done. Guilty or innocent of the many charges against him, he cannot remain chairman of the Republican national committee without greatly impairing the chances of the party. Democracy is the party of spoils politics; the Republican party cannot afford to imitate its methods.

THE clause in the McKinley bill increasing the tariff on tin plate went into effect on July 1. Large factories have already been erected in many cities of the United States. Importations will soon cease, and English and Welsh factories are preparing for seasons that will be perpetually dull. One of these has closed altogether. 'The great result of the tariff will be that the $20,000,000 which has formerly gone abroad in payment for tin plate will now remain in the United States, to be distributed in wages to many thousands of workmen. Prices may be temporarily increased, but in a very few years they will be lower than the lowest prices ever set by the importers. This has been the case with every infant industry yet established. Tin plate manufacture will prove no exception.

Ir is said that the great Standard Oil monopoly is making arrangements to gain control of the whole European market. If this is accomplished the whole world, so far as one very useful article is concerned, will be in bondage to a very small body of men. No competition can any longer be feared and the inevitable result will be that prices will rise. It is not improbable that a wast railway and navigation trust may some day, in like manner, hold the world in its grasp. And other vast monopolies equally strong may be formed. Existing facts and future probabilities are, to say the least, startling. They justify great alarm, and force some minds irresistibly towards socialism. Whatever we may think of this doctrine, we must at any rate, admit that the doctrine of individualism and free competition has failed in many cases-for what company can attempt to compete with the Standard Oil trust and exist even a year? The industrial world needs some Moses, inspired by divine truth, to free it from the shackles of monopoly. As yet no would-be Moses has presented satisfactory credentials. Who is he, and where is he?

THE most undemocratic organization an the country is that which is known as Tammany Hall. It is an oligarchya close corporation in which the indiwidual counts for nothing. The boss is everything. Its erstwhile monarch was John Kelly; it is now ruled over by Croker, Mayor Grant and other uncrowned kings of demagogy. "It has at its service a great army of retainers, many of then capable of any crime, and has an enlisting office in every dive, in every grogshop and every house of illrepute." Besides yielding allegiance to its immediate ruler, it pays tribute to a still greater lord, whom it expects to place in the White House itself. Woe be to the country when King David B. reaches such a position. The whole civil service would become a vast machine modeled after the smaller Tammany. The whiskey rings and corruptionists, in general, would eagerly carry out the decrees of the monarch, am ceturn for official connivance at their infamous schemes. Is the picture unreal? It should be remembered that David B. Hill holds New York state tightly in his grasp and that the Democracy cannot win without it. His elewation to the presidency would be the natural outcome of Democratic ideas and methods.

An Old Washtenaw Boy.

The New York World of a recent date speaks of the business qualifications of s young Washtenawian as follows: "Mr. H. H. Peters was born in Scio, Mich., in 1854. He has been for a long time prominently identified with the largest grain house in America and has been in contact with the best business men in the country and great railroad officials. Mr. Peters enjoys the confidence and great esteem of the bankers in Chicago, and no man in that city is more progressive or liberal." I am always pleased to hear and read of Washtenaw county boys gaining esteem and influence. It is the best monument they can exect to their parents, themselves and their former home,-Ann Arbor correspondence Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Very true. We acknowledge the corn. We did pay the price. The price paid, however, was beyond your reach, Mr. Courier. If it had been mere dollars and cents, we have no doubt you could and most certainly would have paid it; but when the price consists in the number of subscribers, unfortunately you are not in it. We feel corry for you and would help you if we could, but should not care to undertake to make over human nature as represented in the Courier.

The Farmer's Markets.

Let us review what has been done for the American farmer since the passage of "the infamous McKinley bill," and either directly or indirectly because of

The Brazilian market has been made free to the United States grain and Millions of dollars' worth of Canadian produce has been excluded from competition with United States produce.

A bounty has been provided for every pound of beet, maple, or sorghum sugar An impetus has been given to the industry of wool-growing. The German market has been reopened to American beef. Millions have been, or are being, pent in the erection of tin plate works, the operators of which will be consumers of farm produce. One American tin-plate factory already is producing roofing plates at "a little lower cost than that of foreign goods of like weight and quality." This being a purchaser's testimony. The duty on cheap sugar has been repealed, on high grades reduced to a merely nominal figure, with the result of reducing prices by two cents a

The wholesale prices of flannels and some other woolen goods are a shade lower than at this time last year.

Freights are lower than in any other country of the world. So is the price of nearly all farming implements. Farm produce is bringing better prices than at this time last year,

These things being thus, it is difficult to suppose that the American farmer will be anxious to change them for those to which he or his father was accustomed in "the good old times of free trade," when hogs were worth 2 cents and sugar worth 15 cents a pound .-Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Civil Service Reform Prior to his election as President, Mr.

Harrison had not been very radically committed to this (civil-service) reform. Secretaries Tracy and Noble, perhaps, had scarcely favored it. The Postmaster-General was possibly half as hostile to it as our author himself (Mr. Clarkson.) If the Postmaster-General is not yet as complete a convert to the merit system as the public interest requires that he should be,-and as we may believe he will some years hence wish he had been,-he at least appears to be very widely separated from his late subordinate. The President and his cabinet have not only sustained, but have extended the reform. The examinations now cover many more offices than they did when President Harrison was inaugurated—a fact as creditable to himself and his cabinet as it is auspicious to the Republican party. Secretary Tracy, with the courage of his recent convictions, has enforced his principles in several of the navy-yards, and is now extending this application. Secretary Noble has promoted the extension of the merit system to the Indian service. The President himself has enlarged its sphere and suppressed opportunities of evading it. These statesmen obviously believe that by supporting this reform they best serve their country, and also do the most in their power to strengthen their party. They compre-hend that public opinion would be shocked and certain ruin would await the Republican party should they now abandon the reform policy it has had the chief part in establishing. There are now more than 32,000 offices beyond the control of scheming politicians and patronage mongers—offices which can be secured only by competitive examibe secured only by competitive examinations as to capacity and character. More than 86,000 persons have been examined for filling places thus taken out of the spoils-system politics and made the rewards of superior merit. It is no wonder that selfish politicians and bosses, who care more for patronage than for principle, are hostile, angry and alarmed. — Hon. Dorman B. Eaton in North American Review for July.

Temperance Talk. The Union temperance meeting at the Congregational church Sunday evening was largly attended. Rev. R. H. Rust delivered the first address. He urged upon temperance men the necessity of backbone. If the University people and students would insist on a five-mile act, he did not think that the next legislature, whether Democratic or Republican, would dare to refuse the request. He was also in favor of organizing a law and order league in Ann Arbor. Rev. A. S. Carman, who followed, largely echoed Mr. Rust's sentiments. Three things, he thought, should be avoided by temperance men: false optimism, pessingsm and cranking. false optimism, pessimism and crankiness. Some means should be devised ness. Some means should be devised of uniting them on a common course.

The "kid drum corps" marched and fifed and drummed in fine style Monevening; getting in good practice for the G. A. R. encampment at Detroit. The Fourth was one of the pleasantest holidays of the Independence order that has been enjoyed here for some years. There were numerous private lawn picnics, and lots of visitors from neighboring towns. Very few business houses were open, but they did a rushing trade to all appearances. No accidents from fire works are reported and, taking it all in all, we think honor was shown the old American eagle in a very sensi-ble and pleasing manner. We were pleased to see Mr. and Mrs. Fred Willpleased to see Mr. and Mrs. Fred Williams, of Charlotte, in town this week; also Mr. Non Spencer, of Lansing. We understand that the ruffian who assailed Mrs. Reimer has been caught and if fully identified, will be made short work of. Warning has been given to all would-be assaulters that there are enough strong ropes, big tree limbs, and willing hands, to make future breathing a very uncertain luxury to such villains. Mrs. Wm. B. MOUNT VERNON ASSOCIATION.

Report of the Vice-Regent from Michigan, Mrs. E. A. Rathbone-What was done at the Last Meeting.

Mrs. E. A. Rathbone, vice regent for Michigan, has prepared the following report of the annual council of the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association, which was held at Mount Vernon on May 14th. She says: "The Charles Macalaster, was promptly at the wharf, at five P. M. Wednesday, the 13th of May, to convey the regent, Mrs. Lily L. Macalester Laughton, and the vice regents representing the different states, down the Potomac, to Mount Vernon. There they remained for a week, holding their council in the old banquet hall, and living in the quaint old rooms of the mansion. The sessions opened every day by reading the Bible, and saying the Lord's Prayer. Then in order of business comes the regent's report. This is always an interesting resumé of the work and events of the year; and acknowledgments are made by the re-gents of any gifts, of interest, that have been made to the association. Mention was made of several; among them, a gift from George W. Childs, of Philadelphia, of the proof copy of the newspaper containing Washington's farewell ad-dress, corrected in his own hand writing. The newspaper was handsomely framed and mounted on a revolving stand. Mrs. Laughton purchased, for the association, at a sale of Washington relics in Philadelphia, a fine old French mirror, which has been restored to its original place over the mantel in the banquet hall, and Mrs. Townsend, vice regent for New York, obtained at the sale a punch bowl, and Mrs. Woodward vice regent for Kentucky, a clock, both of which find their way back to the longed.

"The regent's report was succeeded by the reports of the vice regents, upon the work accomplished in the different states they represented for Mount Vernon. The vice regent for Michigan reported to council the inauguration of the "Detroit Mount Vernon Society," with the object of awakening and sim-ulating an interest in Mount Vernon American history and traditions, and also of securing an annual contribu-tion to the Mount Vernon funds. The tion to the Mount Vernon funds. The contribution made by the society this year was $54.40. The officers of the society are: Miss Pitkin, president; Miss Baldwin, vice president; Mrs. Edward Butler, treasurer; Miss Bagley, secretary. Pending the organization of a similar resistant Caracteristic Caracteristics. society in Grand Rapids, Miss R. L. R., of society in Grand Rapids, Miss R. L. R., of that city, made a personal contribution of $10.00. The sum of $73.30 was collected by the vice regent of Michigan for the endowment of "Pohick," the parish church of Mount Vernon. This last endowment was inaugurated by the vice regent of Michigan, to save the historical church and parish from debt and financial min and parish from debt and financial ruin, and the work has been committed banquet hall, where they originally be-specially to her charge.

"Next in order was the report of the superintendent, Mr. Harrison H. Dodge. This was a clear, full statement of the condition of the estate, in all departments, of the repairs, building and restorations made during the year, and recommendations of what was needed during the coming year. The superintendent reported an additional green house built at the expense of Mrs. Mitchell the vice regent of Wisconsin, and a com-modious shelter house, at the wharf built by Mrs. Hurst, vice regent for California. Mr. Dodge recommended the building of a water tower, in order to minimize the risk from fire, and to se-cure a good system of sewerage. The association, appreciating the wisdom of this recommendation, when it was brought up for discussion in council, adopted it unanimously.

"The financial statements of the regent and the superintendent and the committee reports and gardener's re-port followed in due order, and then the treasurer's report was given. This was very satisfactory. Mr. E. Frances Riggs, the Washington banker, and treasurer of the association, did not, as usual, present his report in person, but he was well represented. The report showed a steady increase in the income derived from the entrance fee, which is included in the excursion ticket on the boat, and also an increase in the endowment fund from special contributions.

"The objects of special interest which engaged the attention of the council, and for which the regent and vice regents will work the coming year, were the Mt. Vernon endowment fund proper, the endowment of Polick church and the restoration of the interior of the church and the collection of funds for church and the collection of funds for the purchase of Washington relics.

"During the session, council was waited upon by delegates from the Virginia legislature, who come annually to inspect and report upon the manner in which Mount Vernon is taken care of by the association. They expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied with the details of management, and made only one suggestion, namely, that no fuel, except anthracite coal, should be used on the premises. As this suggestion was made with the view of reducing still further the danger from fire, ing still further the danger from fire, the council voted favorably upon it and a motion was carried to that effect."

At Relief Park.

The Germania Lodge of the Harugari dedicated its fine new flag on the Fourth. A large procession, in which several visiting delegations from De-troit and most of the local German sotroit and most of the local German so-cieties took part, marched through the principal streets, in the morning, to Relief Park. John Meyer, president of the society, occupied the chair. He in-troduced Mayor Doty, who, after a few appropriate remarks, extended a hearty welcome. He was followed by Paul G. Suekey, the orator of the day. He gave statistics bearing upon the society. It was organized in 1847 and now spreads over twenty-four states, having a total over twenty-four states, having a total membership of 22,418. The Ann Arbor lodge comprizes seventy-one men. The afternoon was spent quietly, picnicking and fireworks being the principal at-

Few countries have been sending us more immigrants of late years than Austria, Poland, or Galicia. LITERARY NOTES.

The last number of Harper's Bazar includes a clever farce, entitled "A Class Day Sketch," by Mildred Howells, a daughter of Mr. W. D. Howells; "The Needle's Art," by Mary C. Hungerford; and an article on "Laurence Oliphant," by Mrs. L. G. Runkle. - Harper & Brothers, New York.

Scribner's Magazine for June continues the notable series on "The Great Streets of the World," and "Ocean Steamships;" Francisque Sarcey being the author of the article on "The Boulevards of Paris" and William H. Rideing contributing the paper on "Safety on the Atlantic." The illustrations in both groups continue to be very rich, and appropriately supplement the text, adding to its significance and picturesqueness. Another group of articles -that on Practical Charity-is represented in this issue by a sympathetic and often amusing account of "Boys' Clubs." The fiction includes stories and sketches by F. J. Stimson, Bliss Perry, and Maria Blunt.-Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

If Carl Schurz's remarkable article on "Abraham Lincoln" is the first thing to which the reader naturally turns in the June Atlantic, it is not alone because it occupies the first pages of the number.

Professor George Herbert Palmer contributes "Reminiscences of Professor Sophocles," who was Professor of Greek at Harvard University for nearly forty years-College men will also be deeply interested in Mr. S. E. Winbolt's paper on "Rowing at Oxford."

Rose Terry Cooke contributes a story called "A Town Mouse and a Country Mouse," and Rev. Samuel J. Barrows has an important paper on "What the Southern Negro is doing for Himself." President D. C. Gilman, of Johns Hopkins University, has a paper on "The Study of Geography," and its place in the college course. There are some reviews, the most interesting of which is "New England in the Short Story."-- Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

American Roadsters and Road Riders by Charles Arnold McCully, with numerous illustrations of famous trotters and trotting masters, forms one of the attractive features of Harpers' Weekly, published May 27th.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The worst cases of scrofula, salt rheum and other diseases of the blood, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

A Ten Dollar Gold Piece for a Cent.

Sometime ago, a gentleman bet that if he stood on the corner of Broadway and Fourteenth street, N. Y., and offered gold eagles to the passers by for a cent each, he would find no purchasers. The experiment was tried, and it turned out just as he said. No one would believe that the coins were genuine. It seemed to good to be true. An equally remarkable offer is that made by the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the sovereign cure for Consumption. Think of it restoration to life and health for a mere some. There is not a health for a mere song. There is not a case of Lung scrofula—in other words, Consumption—that will not yield to it, if taken in time. It is the greatest blood-purifier ever known, and is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases of the throat and lungs, or money refunded. Only extraordinary curative properties could warrant or sustain its makers in selling it thus, on trial.

A Pertinent Suggestion.

Under the caption, "Who is Govern-ing Us?" a New England writer an-swers his own question. "The Ward Boss and the men who make a trade of Politics." Admitting the fact, who is to blame for it? Are citizens whose in-terests are affected by this class of procedure energetic in politics? Scarcely, unless politics takes an adverse grip on their affairs. Then they run and howl, "We are misgoverned," but when the grip is on some other man's affairs they rather smile to see the fun go on. It makes an awful sight of difference whose ox happens to be gored. The next question is, how do you propose to dispense with the ward boss and the men who make a trade of politics? By sitting and wailing because they exist, like a small boy weeping over a broken top? Suggest a remedy.—Toledo Com-

"Hunger is the Best Sauce."

As a rule, a person who has a good appetite has good health. But ho many there are who enjoy nothing they eat, and sit down to meals only as an unpleasant duty. Nature's antidotes for this condition are so happily combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla that it soon restores good digestion, creates an appetite, and renovates and vitalizes the blood so that the beneficial effect of good food is imparted to the whole body. Truly hunger is the best whole body. Truly hunger is the best sauce, and Hood's Sarsaparilla produces hun-

Former Ann Arbor Girl Writes a Interesting Letter About What She naw in the Eternal City.

How I do wish you were here to sit at the window with me and watch the passers-by! Here are a flock of students in duil purple robes, with flapping black hats hanging over their faces, and carrying religious volumes. It has been raining, so many have also vivid emerald green umbrellas-buge things. In the distance are three beings in brilliant red robes, black hats, and yellow and blue umbrellas. A fat, well fed looking priest, with a wicked eye, passes. Cabs with umbrellas of every kind and color, bobbing about like a field of suddenly inspired variegated mushrooms. A bow-legged boy, about six years old, wearing a red Turkish fez comes running out of an adjacent doorway; this "kid" is always out in the square, and I have seen him nearly run over several times each day; this morning he ran away and lost his way, sending wail after wail, that I could hear way down the street; finally he appeared, his red fez gone, and the square was filled with sweetest (?) music until he found his papa.

Last evening we had an invitation to studie very select concert, and heard the most splendid chorus of male voices that it is possible to have. The two "Angels' were there and sang wonderfully; one of them being "Morisky;" he is called the "Angel of Rome"—such a voice you never heard in America; he sings just as never heard in America; he sings just as clearly way up on the high notes as a boy or a woman would, and is a young man about twenty-eight years old. The other wonder is "Cesare," called the "Angel of the Vatican;" he is quite an aged man, but has also the same wondrous quality of tone; he used to sing exactly like a canary bird, but now it is as if a thin veil was drawn over it. After their singing a countess gave a pa-per, followed by a long Latin oration from a fat, priest-like man; after this, the students, with robes on and round places cut out of their hair on the backs of their heads, rose and left the hall. Then a lady, waving gracefully two large hands encased in white gloves, rose to the occasion, and delivered a dialogue in Italian. This was most enthusiastically received. Then a piece of instrumental music, and the recitaof instrumental music, and the recitation of three Spanish poems, brought the evening's performance to an end.

We spent all this morning on the Capitoline hill (one of the famous seven) and before going read Hawthorne's first chapter of the "Marble Fawn." In the first open courtyard is a gigantic marble figure, reclining on a fountain basin; a "Water God" of the Tiber or Nile. Different parts of him have been restored, but badly. have been restored, but badly.

Here are Egyptian columns and sphinxes with broken and mutilated noses; huge forms with monkey heads, and some peculiar black marble birds, half human, half beast. As we ascended the stairs, there were many statues of gods and goddesses. On the walls were pieces of an old plan of Rome, very much broken, and set into the plaster. In the first room was the "Dying Gladistor," and I do not know as any one can say more than Hawthorne has. You know his attitude, seeming so bravely to meet his fate, yet, as some lines of poetry tell us, thinking of his

"He reck'd not of the life he lost, nor prize
But where his rude hut, by the Danabe lay
There were his young barbarians all at play
There was their Dacian mother; he their sire, Butchered, to make a Roman holiday."
The expression of his face and his attitude made me feel that he must be human, and once or twice I fancied his nead was dropping lower. Then the "Marble Fawn," so happy making one feel that once there must have been such perfect happiness, when creatures like this could live; and, possibly, they may come again! The restoration of the hands and one arm is good, though not exactly what it must have been in the first place; but after looking at him awhile, you feel yourself drawn into his mood. We intend to see all this again so we only noted the most this again, so we only noted the most famous. There was the statue of the youthful Hercules, a great, overgrown baby, with such a smile, so queer and out of place on him, that you laughed at its amativeness. Then a red marble fawn, or Bacchus, about to eat a bunch of grapes; with his head thrown back, so one gets a very unpleasant foreshort-ening of his face, though his figure and aim are most graceful. We walked through two rooms filled with busts of the old emperors and philosophers. In the center of this first room is a sitting statue, supposed to be an emperor, made in 212 B. C. It is astonishing to see what they knew then in the way of carving. He sits on a four-legged stool, a cushion, with corner tassels, being on the top. He is leaning forward, and his wicked, cruel face gives one the cold creeps. In the next room is the sitting statue of Agrippina, said to be the best in the world. The pose and drapery are won-derful, looking as easy as if about to

Here, too, on the walls, are two bas-reliefs, representing the "Sleeping En-dymion"; a youth with head in most unnatural position for sleep, and fingers stiffly outstretched. He leans on his staff, while in the back ground is a large dog, barking furiously. The next is Perseus and the young woman on the rock that the oragon was going to eat. Perseus stands in the attitude of a gal-lant about to lead a damsel out to her first dance, but her figure and flying robe are lovely, while the animal lies dead at their feet, looking very meek. In this room we saw the famous "Venus of the Capitol," so lovely, so modest. Also "Leda and the Swan," and the two charming children embracing, "Cupid and Payacha"

This finished the rooms, except one where two mosaics are, one called "Pliny's Doves," by Losus, and one of a grote-que mask.

In the long corridor was a beautifu' vase on a pedestal, around which are carved the twelve most famous gods and goddesses. Also here is the bow-bending Copid, and a baby Hercules, with a snake in each fist. Then we went back to the first floor, into two rooms containing old frescoes, former walls of buried houses and painted friezes and heads. In one of these rooms were two stone coffins, each containing a skeleton; that of a woman was bedecked in a necklace, huge breastpin and four rings with wreath on her head. Opposite was a man. He had nothing but his bones, which appeared quite old enough, but we were unable to find out anything about them.

Outside was a noted equestrian statue of Marcus August 18, and the two mutilated desped figures, wrongly called lated draped figures, wrongly called "Trophies of Warriors"; also the first and seventh mile stones that marked the Appian Way, when first it was made. The sun was shining in that Indian Summer way, warming us through after the chill of the corridors, and I can well understand why Hawthorne writes, "an Italian can forgive you anything but standing in his sunshine." We watched the people coming up and down the steps passing over the spot where Rienzi, the tribune, was stabbel to death.

The two Egyptian lions, that for years stood at the foot, have been taken into the court of the Capitol and stand each side of the fountain and water god l mentioned, and they have been re-placed by exact copies in marble. That was done in 1882. Today I went to get my permit as an artist, to go into the galleries and buildings connected with the government free, so I can carry my easel anywhere now, unmolested, and one lcngs for work again, inspired by the "glories" of this grand old city. The Foundation of a Fortune

This System saves the Depositor the Expense of Time, Trouble and Money in reaching the Bank, and

In Frankfort, Germany, where it was first introduced by the Frankforter Sparkasse in 1882. The system was first inaguarated in America, by the Citizen's Savings Bank of Detroit, Mich., and the People's Home Savings Bank of San Francisco, Cal.

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE SYSTEM.

THE Banks issue to their Agents a large number of gummed stamps similar to postage stamps, each one of which, when pasted in one of the Bank's "NICKEL SAVINGS BOOKS," has the value of five cents. Any person desiring to open a Savings Bank Account goes to the Bank's nearest agent, buys one or more stamps and receives free a NICKEL SAVINGS BOOK, each page of which is divided into twenty spaces of such size that one five cent stamp may be readily pasted within each square. When all the squares on the page are thus filled, the leaf represents $1.00. The depositor now fills out in ink the signature slip attached to the back inside cover of his book, and takes the book to an agent who tears out the leaf and the signature slip and sends both to the Bank, which files away the signature slip and issues a regular deposit account book, showing a credit to the depositor of $1.00. This book is delivered through the agent to the depositor. The depositor then begins to fill another page with stamps, and when it is full he writes his name on the back of the leaf and sends it to the Bank through the agent. All money deposited in the Bank before the fifth of the month, draws interest from the first of the same month. All sums deposited after the fifth of the month, draws interest from the first of the following month. Whenever the depositor is twelve years of age, or under, the bank issues a handsome and durable Silver and Gold Face Deposit Card instead of a Deposit Book, when the first dollar's worth of stamps is deposited; but just as soon as the holder of the card has $5.00 or more deposited in the bank, he receives a regular deposit book. Money deposited by the holder of the card draws interest and can be withdrawn just the same as though the regular deposit book had been issued.

THE BASSETT CLAIM.

By HENRY R. ELLIOT.

I Copyright by American Press Association.]

[CONTINUED.] Then he put on a bold face and went straight to the Capitol, where he sought and had the good luca to find the chairman of the house claims committee, and had quite a talk with him. The representative had some knowledge of the claims; said frankly they ought to be paid, or at any rate settled, and asked Windward to come before the committee some day and present the case.

Now that was progress; even Stevens acknowledged so much, and it inspired them to work hard and late that night arranging papers and writing letters.

The day following Windward attacked the senate side in earnest and was received courteously there also. In fact. his experience soon taught him that congressmen as a rule were sensible, approachable, business men, who if properly addressed on a matter of legitimate concern were willing to listen and able to talk. Nearly all had some knowledge of the claims, most thought them valid, and every one scoffed good naturedly at the long delays of former congresses and promised to do their best to "push"

Windward soon grew to be much interested in his labors. The congressmen were friendly, and life in the lobby was fascinating. He spent some time there daily and became an item in its whirl, jostled and jostling; rubbing elbows with spruce clerks, brisk reporters, staring tourists and country cousins, absent minded bridal couples, and the sure footed lobbyist, darting hither and thither, or lying in a coil, biding his time and chance. There was a great din and a grand rush of life, but no pomp, no fuss, no red tape. Your moment came, your question was answered, your business transacted; and then the next man had a chance. It was democracy -the government of convenience-in Windward liked it, and someaction. how felt himself part of the machine; for did he not propose and might he not procure legislation? Of course he couldn't vote on measures, but only lunatics hold votes and power to be synonymous. Influence he did have, or at least saw how he might acquire it, and ballots are to influence as money is to value-its convenient expression.

Little by little his acquaintance enlarged. Congressmen nodded to him and he exchanged pleasant words here and there with clerks, employes and hangers on. One day he fell into the hands of a newspaper correspondent, and was "in-terviewed" almost before he knew it.

After that experience for a few days the newspapers had a new interest for The interview itself was well enough done. It was written carelessly and flippantly, from the necessities of the case, but was meant to be fair and even kind. But then came such squibs

* That aged but sturdy beggar, the French claims, is again asking congressional alms. We trust congress will resist all such importunities.

* * We learn that an earnest effort is to be made this winter to secure the passage of the French spoliation claims. It is disgraceful that these claims were not settled a genera-tion ago, and we trust that justice will be no longer deferred.

* * A dispatch from Mr. Hugh Dailey, the well known Washington correspondent of The Briareus, says that a powerful lobby is pressing the everlasting French claims. This job has been vetoed twice, but nothing, apparently, will discourage the cormorants who have it in charge.

. . We reprint an interesting interview from an exchange on the remarkable history of the French claims, which seem to have the deathless property of Truth. But, true or not, we fancy that congress will finally have to pass the bill, for the same reason the woman married her indefatigable lover—to get rid of him.

* * The French spoliation claims, which are again claiming the attention of congress, have merit no doubt. But all this class of legislation is dangerous, and should be relegated to Windward took a file of these clippings and others like them to the colonel's house one evening, and showed them to him and Louise with not a little trepidation, for he had been disobeying orders, and this was the consequence.

The colonel read the extracts in his usual placid manner, however, merely observing as he laid them aside: "Don't talk yourself to death. And beware of the 'we's'—except Louise," he added, condescending to a pun. "Now she might help you if you could enlist her artful briberies in your cause." Louise smiled, but looked up inquiringly, as if to insist on more explicit flattery. Nor did she fail to gain an explanation, for, interpreting her glance, McArdle went on to say:

"Men are cheap; hearts and service are within the reach of persons of limited means. A drink, a pass, a wink or a kind word is generally sufficient—anything but money; only fools try to buy

"I did speak to Senator Bills about Mr. Bassett's claim," said Louise, "and be seemed much interested."

"No doubt," observed the colonel. "You are more interesting, Louise, than McArdle then questioned Windward as to his personal labors with congressmen, and was good enough to compliment him on the progress he had made. "I think you are really doing well," he said, "so well, in fact, that you are in danger of becoming absorbed. Remember your whole's advice to be moderate, and be sure you give yourself recreation—walks, books, theatres and the

"Clara was in today," said Louise, "full of pleasant memories of last night's "Indeed!" exclaimed Windward. It had been already his third offense in that line, and he had tickets in his pocket for a fourth; so, of course, he was grati-fied to learn that his efforts to please were successful. "I am glad she liked it," he said. "What an interesting girl she is!"

"Very," replied Louise. Very," echoed McArdle, and added:

"She has a certain keep-your-distance fully and remorselessly in his analysis: defined as 'temperamental affability,' a charming quality. Oh! she's a nice, pretty girl; popular, jolly—a regular skating rink, church fair, barge party, orchestra chair young lady. I am very fond of her. I can remember her mother as a belle before her. Clara is just like her. She takes after her mother, and all the young fellows take after her. How many offers did you say she has had this winter, Louise?"

"Why, three or four," she said, not quite prepared for such a question, and wondering a little at the colonel's line of conversation. Windward, for his part, did not relish or understand it at all, and yet there was nothing he could specifically object to or take offense at. Still he wished McArdle would change the subject; but the colonel had no such in-"Three or four," he went on in his most placid and urbane manner. "I don't suppose she keeps a close count One, more or less, doesn't matter. Yes, a bright, lively girl, and the best gossip I know. I tell her she ought to write a book."

"She would give you a good character if she did," said Windward, thinking it was time to interfere. "She thinks a great deal of you." Possibly the young man designed to have this shaft carry a little rebuke with it; if so, the colonel

"Oh! no doubt;" he said blandly. "Clara and I are good friends." And here he stopped, believing he had said enough. Louise, bending over her work, thought on her part that for once he had

Windward was nettled, but still more perplexed than annoyed. The colonel rarely gossiped, and never spoke idly or unadvisedly. Moreover, though taciturn or brusque, he was never rude, and Windward had reason to believe he was sincerely interested in him and wished to befriend him. Possibly it was accidental, an idle breath of leisure and relaxation, but the colonel's praises certainly disparaged the young lady who was beginning to occupy more of his thoughts than he was wholly willing to as a plaything, and he doesn't wish me to; that is evident," mused the young man on his way home that night. "And Stevens doesn't like her. Soshe has had offers; well, so has Miss Sheffield, and Clara says she used to be an awful flirt. For that matter Floy always has a string of beaux, though she has a flirty streak, too.' It is proverbial that brothers are not over indulgent critics of their sisters. "Well, I'll think it over," soliloquized the young man, and he did think it over, and over again, and the longer he thought the more vexed he grew at the colonel and Louise and himself.

And while he was thus employed Mc-Ardle and Louise were discussing the

"I didn't mean to say this morning," expostulated Louise, "that I thought he was really in love with her."

"Well, if he isn't," replied the lawyer, "there's no harm done; and if he is, it is high time his friends interfered. It's a horse or a gold pen. I don't suppose she would have him, but she will take all his tickets and bouquets, and when the end comes will drop her pretty eye temptuously. "It is one of the idiotic to express the wish, where love has failed that they may always be friends. Th. is as if a rose should say: 'No, I cannot in her way." Sometimes the colonel's compliments did not praise.

It was not the sharp air alone that made Windward's ears burn that night, for not only the McArdle household, but the Willises, mother and daughter, were discussing him behind the back.

"Who is this Mr. Bassett, anyhow?" asked Mrs. Willis of her sprightly daugh-

BUTTONS.

This, then, was the situation when Mrs. Bassett and Florence reached Washington. Windward was deep in the claim and making good progress. His acquaintance and influence in congrescional circles were growing daily; he was becoming familiar with the nature of the work to be done and acquiring facility in handling it. He had a valued adviser in Col. McArdle, though, in diplomatic terms, their relations were, just at this time, a little strained. Stevens had become an earnest and steady helper, bringing to the work his characteristic they had spent a stated time togethe daily, and as one compensation, and perhaps a sufficient, if only one, had revived their earlier friendship, and were again the intimates of college days. Windward's social relations were agree if not wholly satisfactory. Miss Willis was always very cordial, and he saw her often. She was certainly charming, though she did have a way o eluding him after a certain degree of intimacy had been reached, which he had begun to notice even before the colonel touched on that spot. She was always cordial and chatty and sympathetic enough, but somehow all the confidences flowed one way. He had not known her long, however, before the only one of their circle of whom he had not learned much was herself, and as her gossip was always jolly and usually harmless he liked to hear her "rattle on," as Stevens had styled it, about their friends. Thus she contrived to pay her debts of confidence with other people's secrets, and so artfully that the impression was left of a genuine inter-

Miss Sheffield Windward admired and trusted. He found it easier to talk with her on really important subjects than any woman he had ever known. He could not tell why, but naturally in her company these weightier matters formed the staple of conversation, and yet the talk was easy, witty and refreshing. Windward fancied she must be like noted French women of society and he appreciated very highly the privilege he enjoyed of meeting her frequent ly and familiarly. The only other young lady with whom he had more than a formal acquaintance was Miss Sophia, whom, as he met day by day and under all circumstances, he came to like very much. The tattle of the house was, to be sure, that she wanted to get married, and spent her days and nights contriving snares for bachelors. Well, what of it? She was a good, healthy girl; of course she wanted to get married. Suppose that placard did show; the lodgings might be better than if the landlady was proud, was above advertising and only took you as a favor, after much solicitation.

Windward, to be sure, was dallying about another doorstep, but he cordially recommended all his friends to patronize the house on the other side. And he advised them not to delay either, for that sign might be taken in any day. The lieutenant, for instance, was very partial and attentive, and in spite of cer tain blemishes Miss Sophia was quite inclined to be sympathetic and responsive. She was a good Christian, and no doubt saw an opening for home missionary work. Very likely she remembered th precept to hate the sin but love the sinner. At any rate, it was long odds that if this particular man proposed he could dispose, and it was surmised, moreover.

that he was disposed to propose. It was a bright winter morning when the ladies arrived, and the day seemed brighter for their coming. Mrs. Bassett had changed but little, and that not for The lads prospered, and they and their families enjoyed the very best of health. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets were always found in their medicine chest—the only positive cure for bilious and sick headache, dizziness, constipation, indigestion, and all disorders of the bowels and stomach. Strictly vege-table, small, sugar-coated; only one required for a dose, and their action is gentle and thorough. The best Liver Pill on earth.

Gladstone.

Gladstone is comparatively a poor man, and the occasional literary work he does for magazines and periodicals is not the result of any desire to add to his established fame as a writer. He takes a matter of fact view of such produc-tions, reckoning them simply as valua-ble help to the liquidation of his heavy Lousehold expenses. For every article he writes he receives $1,000.

Allow me to pay my tribute to Ely's Cream Balm. I was suffering from a severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvelous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimozited. Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers.— Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Basso of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co. 2

Is the Tariff a Tax?

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette: Under the protection of the McKinley bill American print mill owners are reduc ing prices of their productions. Indigo prints that, when the McKinley bill weut into effect, were selling at eight cents a yard, are now down to within a fraction of five cents. All kinds of shirtings and sheetings are also much cheaper, notwithstanding the higher duties. Is "the tariff a tax" then?

A Philosopher's Opinion

Voltaire said to a beautiful young lady with whom he was dining, "Your rivals are the perfection of art; you are the perfection of nature." This could not have been said if the young lady was suffering from disease, and pain had left its signs on the features. Women who want to keep beautiful, and be the "perfection of nature," should use "Favorite Prescription," to assist Nature when needed, to correct irregularities, and circulation, and digestion, and thereby clear up the skin, rendering it soft and beautiful. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine for woman's peculiar ills, sold through druggists, and guaranteed to give satis-faction in every case, or money refunded.

They Are Not Deceived.

Kalamazoo Telegraph: With corn and wheat at the present figure, the wise farmer is not going to bother himself about abusing this man and that man aud this policy and that policy. The blatant demagogues whose aim is to keep the farmers dissatisfied will have lost their occupation, if the honest yeo-manry of the land will but take a sensible view of the situation.
