FREEDOM'S DAY.

OUR COLORED CITIZENS CELEBRATE EMANCIPATION DAY.

A Large Procession, followed by speeches by Mayor Doty, Hon. E. P. Allen, Rev. Fr. Goldrick, Joseph Beard and F. A. Merchant.

Monday was emancipation day, and the twin cities celebrated it as they had never done before. From early morning till noon, visiting delegations continued to arrive from Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Jackson, Detroit, Toledo, Lansing, Ypsilanti and smaller places. Both women and children of African extraction thronged the main business streets. The American flag floated gaily on the court house and city hall, and the national colors were seen on every side. Shortly after eleven o'clock the procession started from the court house square, headed by the marshal, H. Johnson, and the Ypsilanti colored band. After them came a wagon containing forty-four little misses, who represented the various states. The speakers of the day followed in hacks and a long line of carriages constituted the remainder of the procession.

AT RELIEF PARK.

Here a gay sight was presented. Refreshment booths, hammocks, the dance hall and the speaker's platform all contributed to the enjoyment of those present. At half past eleven Mayor Doty was introduced by the chairman.

Said he, "On the twenty-second day of June, 1772, Lord Chief Justice Mansfield, speaking for the entire bench, pronounced the memorable decision which established the principle of English law that 'the air of England is too pure for any slave to breathe.' This wide departure from established precedent, which reversed what had been the law and custom of England, since the time of York and Talbot in 1729, gave freedom to every slave who stepped his shackled foot upon the soil of the British isles. Sixty-six years afterward, on the first day of August, 1838, seven hundred thousand of our fellow men reaped the ripe fruition of this principle of English liberty, when the Act of Emancipation made all the British colonies as free of slavery's yoke as was the mother isle herself."

CONCLUDING SPEECHES.

Joseph Beard, a young and gifted orator from Adrian, was the next speaker. Many of his thoughts had previously been touched upon. He demanded that any people should have prayed to God to preserve an institution that enabled them to eat bread by the sweat of a slave's brow. And since the war, when the rights of suffrage were conferred, vile poison of prejudice has hindered the progress of the south. The colored men have not been allowed to vote; they have been forced to ride in "Jim Crow" cars and have even been shoved off the sidewalks. A better government is needed, before the south can even hope for that development which its great resources warrant.

Mr. Merchant urged the colored people to go ahead. Let them make the north redeem the promises it has never kept, until ballots are fairly counted and the right to vote is shorn of restrictions which do not apply to the whites.

The black men, urged the speaker, must be enlightened and the moral qualities must be strengthened. To elevate the race is the highest work the social state can perform. If they will, they can rise. It is their duty to make themselves worthy of free institutions.

A Little Romance.

HON. E. P. ALLEN.

who was the next speaker on the program, said that he had once lived in a household where a convenient cubby-hole was kept for the purpose of assisting a fugitive slave to spend the night in safety. He had been taught that oppression is wrong. He had seen the negroes in the field, in the camp, in battle and had watched them since the war. He could testify that they had taken advantage of their opportunities and had taken decided steps forward.

Twenty-five years ago the negro did not own the shirt on his back. Last year he was taxed on $400,000,000 of property. Twenty-five years ago, not one in a thousand could read or write; the census of 1890 showed that less than fifty per cent. are now illiterate. He is sometimes accused of being less obedient to law than his white neighbor. On June 1st, of the 378 prisoners in Michigan jails, only sixteen were colored men.

Such, however, is not the motive which impels him to make the journey. It is of a purely sentimental character. He has in his possession a bible which he found in the knapsack of a rebel soldier on the battle-field of Bristow Station, where it had been left by one of Stonewall Jackson's discomfited and retreating soldiers, who were gallantly repulsed by our boys on that day.

By the aid of inscriptions written on the fly leaf of the volume, Mr. Althasar discovered that it originally belonged to one David Webster, a Union soldier, hailing from Ann Arbor, Michigan, and that it was presented to him by his mother, probably on the eve of his departure for the scene of war.

During the peninsular campaign, and while the Union army was operating in the vicinity of Richmond, it fell into the hands of a confederate soldier named Hayes, who inscribed his name and the circumstances under which the volume fell into his possession on the fly leaf. Mr. Althasar's motive in going to Detroit next week is to restore this relic to its original owner, if living, and if not, to his surviving relatives.—Port Jervis, N. Y., Union.

A YOUNG COLORED ORATOR.

At two o'clock the exercises, interrupted by dinner, were resumed. Prayer was offered by Rev. Max Smith, of Richmond, Ind., and music was rendered by the band. The first speaker was Fred A. Merchant, of Ypsilanti. He proved to be a fervent and effective orator and carried the audience away by storm. The red man, said he in beginning, have been cut down and the yellow men have been shut out, because they have hindered the progress of the whites. Not so the black men. They have been clothed with every privilege of government. They will always exist in this country side by side with the white men.

Mr. Merchant traced the history of American slavery and the movements to abolish it. It seems strange, said he, that any people should have prayed to God to preserve an institution that enabled them to eat bread by the sweat of a slave's brow. And since the war, when the rights of suffrage were conferred, vile poison of prejudice has hindered the progress of the south. The colored men have not been allowed to vote; they have been forced to ride in "Jim Crow" cars and have even been shoved off the sidewalks. A better government is needed, before the south can even hope for that development which its great resources warrant.

Mr. Merchant urged the colored people to go ahead. Let them make the north redeem the promises it has never kept, until ballots are fairly counted and the right to vote is shorn of restrictions which do not apply to the whites.

The black men, urged the speaker, must be enlightened and the moral qualities must be strengthened. To elevate the race is the highest work the social state can perform. If they will, they can rise. It is their duty to make themselves worthy of free institutions.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

In the absence of President Cooley, Ald. Taylor acted as chairman. The seats of Aldermen Wines, Herz and Hall were vacant.

The board of public works submitted a report recommending the construction of several sidewalks. The usual monthly reports of the city officers and the finance committee were also read.

Certain residents on Brobst-st asked that a fire hydrant be placed at some suitable location on that street. The petition was referred to the fire committee.

The proposed ordinance regulating the use of street cars by the public passed to its second reading. No person is to ride on front or rear platform of a car without permission, or get on or pass in front of a car within a distance of thirty feet, when the car is in motion.

The penalty for a violation is a fine of not more than $5 or imprisonment in jail for ten days.

The speaker enlarged upon the idea of liberty, of which the emancipation proclamation was the embodiment, paid high tribute to Abraham Lincoln and enlarged upon the services of negro soldiers in the war. He referred to the recent emancipation in Brazil and added, "To day there is not a human being in the broad and long expanse of America, north, south or central, but can say, 'My God is my own; my child will not be torn from me and sold like an animal. No more has the poor colored man, as the Irishman was from the west of Ireland and the colored man. The Irishman was from the province of Connaught, and when he landed in Castle Garden, he soon ran across a colored man, and immediately asked, 'What country-man are you, sir?' The response came, 'I'm a colored man.' The Irishman, misjudging the sound of the word, exclaimed, 'Shake hands by the good sticks, I'm a Connaught man myself.'

"How prophetic were the words of the immortal Jefferson, standing in the presence of the hateful institution of human slavery, 'I tremble for my country when I remember that God is just.'

"This one thought I wish to call to your attention, 'nature saves not by compassion, she saves by power. You are free men, endowed and invested with all the liberties, all the privileges, all the immunities of the law. Work out now the salvation of your race, whereunto the God of Nature has given you the brains, the hands and the ability, according to His will. Be masters over yourselves. Think out and do as becomes your manhood. Make yourself indispensable adjuncts of a new civilization in which you may 'quit yourselves as men!'" The mayor concluded his address with a few words of welcome.

REV. FR. GOLDRICK.

of Northfield, was introduced by the chairman. His remarks were both witty and forcible. Said he, in introduction, "My being among you to-day reminds me of the story of the Irishman from the west of Ireland and the colored man. The Irishman was from the province of Connaught, and when he landed in Castle Garden, he soon ran across a colored man, and immediately asked, 'What country-man are you, sir?' The response came, 'I'm a colored man.' The Irishman, misjudging the sound of the word, exclaimed, 'Shake hands by the good sticks, I'm a Connaught man myself.'

The job of printing the council proceedings in pamphlet form was awarded to J. E. Beal, he being the only bidder. The price is twenty-five cents a page.

A petition was received from Mack & Schmid, in which they asked permission to discharge clear water from a water power elevator into the gutter on the south side of their store. The council unanimously denied the petition.

Ald. Martin brought the sewerage question before the council by asking the clerk to read the resolution of the business men's association. Ald. O'Hearn immediately moved that the communication be laid on the table, and the council so decided by a vote of 7 to 2, Ald. Martin voting in the affirmative by mistake. The latter asked a reconsideration, saying that he was heartily in favor of letting the people vote on the question of sewerage. His motion prevailed by a vote of 6 to 3, but as a majority of the council had not voted in the affirmative, Chairman Taylor ruled that it was lost. Considerable discussion ensued, and finally upon advice of the city attorney the ruling was reversed. Ald. Martin then moved to refer the petition to the sewerage committee, but the council decided to table it by a vote of 4 to 5, Alder. Taylor, Mann, Martin and Kitson voting in the negative. Ald. Martin, in the course of the discussion, informed the council that the sewerage committee would be ready to report at the next meeting.

A Needed Change.

Prof. M. E. Cooley has been preparing plans which completely change the system of heating and ventilating the old high school building. All radiators will be taken out of the rooms. Heat will be conveyed in six stacks of flues, one for each corner and middle room, leading from the radiating chambers in the basement. There will be three of these, with very large fresh air inlets. In each stack will be four flues. All ventilating flues open at the floor and all heating flues at the ceiling of rooms, quite reversing the ordinary arrangement. The first flue conveys hot air to the room on the first floor, the second carries away the foul air. The third conveys hot air to the second story, while the first flue carries away the foul. The fourth flue conveys hot air to the third story, the fifth flue taking away the foul air. The foul air flues are always between two hot air flues and thus kept warm, creating a suction which draws the foul air from the rooms. The hot air discharges at the ceiling and takes the place of the disappearing foul air. The temperature can be regulated in each room by the use of a wire cord communicating with mixing dampers. Prof. Cooley's plans are quite original. They will be immediately submitted to contractors for estimates.

THE NICHOLS CASE.

The supreme court has handed down its decision in the case of the Nichols heirs vs. the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti street railway. It is first contended that the question raised by the plaintiff, whether the company had a legal status, is not pertinent to the case.

Secondly, it is held that the use of steam or electricity as a motive power is not an additional burden or servitude upon the lands of abutting owners.

Thirdly, it is held that the company was properly authorized by the townships to build the road.

Fourthly, it is granted that the road was not properly constructed in front of the Nichols premises, not being laid in conformity to the grade of the highway, and an injunction is imposed upon the company, forbidding it to operate the road until it can correct this mistake. This can easily be done.

THE NEW COOK HOUSE.

Upon the invitation of Mrs. Nowlin, the newspaper men of Ann Arbor and their ladies took dinner at the new Cook House last Sunday. It is needless to say that Mrs. Nowlin proved herself a genuine hostess, fully able to appreciate all the wants of her guests. The house has been thoroughly overhauled in every part, all the rooms having been repainted, repainted, and elegant new furniture placed in every one, while new carpets have been laid on every floor. This makes the house one of the best furnished and the most comfortable one in the State in which to stop. The dinner furnished the visitors was just the same as that usually provided for all their Sunday guests, and was fully as good in every respect as the majority of our best families have at their homes. Such a hotel is something that Ann Arbor has long needed and it should receive the patronage it deserves. One of the ways it might be patronized to good advantage would be for a large number of families to take their dinners there, and save the extra work at home which usually makes Sunday the hardest day in the week for the women folks.

INNOCENT MAN HANGED.

His Supposed Victim Turns Up Fifteen Years After the Alleged Tragedy.

BATRICE, Neb., Aug. 4.—More than fifteen years ago Jack Marion and Cameron set out together in a wagon on a try and were last seen at the Blue river near here. A few days later the supposed body of Cameron was found in the Blue, and when it was discovered that Marion had been seen with Cameron's team and goods in his possession he was suspected of murdering his companion. He was not apprehended until ten years afterward, and was tried several times and finally executed in March, 1887.

William Wymore, an uncle of Marion, has always believed the latter innocent, and has at length proved it by finding Cameron alive in LaCrosse, Kan. The latter had gone immediately to Mexico and thence to Alaska after leaving Marion on the banks of the Blue river, and had returned from Alaska only a year ago, hearing of Marion's execution for the first time, and fearing himself amenable to the law, he concealed his identity, but remorse caused him to reveal it. ### GORED TO DEATH.

Mrs. William Brown, the Wife of a Rich Cherokee, with Her Two Little Girls, Gored to Death by a Mad Steer.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., Aug. 3.—Mrs. William Brown, the wife of a rich Cherokee living in the strip south of this city, with her two little girls, was gored to death by a mad steer. Mrs. Brown was riding several miles from her home when a drove of range cattle came up. Several of the steers charged the light vehicle in which the woman and her children were riding, and the wagon was overturned by a steer, which gored the horse and then killed Mrs. Brown. A cowboy with the drove rode up hurriedly, but before he could shoot the frenzied animal had unsaddled him and pierced him through. The children were caught under the overturned wagon, and the mad animal crushed them with his feet. Brown is one of the wealthiest of the many rich cattlemen on the strip. He is at present somewhere in the east. The cowboy, a man named Dalton, was formerly a herder for Brown and was a cousin to Mrs. Brown.

CAUSED BY FRIGHT.

An Iowa Man Becomes Insane from Fear of Hydrophobia.

KEOKUK, Ia., Aug. 4.—During the early part of June Hyde Collins, a well-known man in his city, and prominent in local G. A. R. circles, was bitten on the hand by a dog at the time supposed to be mad. Afterwards it was ascertained that the animal was not affected with rabies. The wound on Collins' hand healed rapidly, but thoughtless persons reminded him of the affair by frequent allusions to it, and by cautioning him to be careful or he would be affected with hydrophobia. These constant reminders and frequent allusions so worked upon him that his mind gave way under the strain, and Monday he became so terribly insane that it was found necessary to place him under restraint. Physicians who examined him declare there are no symptoms of hydrophobia about his case, but his mental troubles are caused by worry and fright occasioned by dread of the disease.

Bullets in a Ballroom.

DURANGO, Col., Aug. 4.—At a ball in the Blue mountains a terrible tragedy occurred. While the dancing was going on a tough character by the name of Tom Roach insisted upon dancing, and, upon being prevented shot and killed William McCord. A boy slipped away to a house and, securing a Winchester, returned, took aim and fired, but missed Roach and killed Mrs. Walton, an estimable woman living in the community.

Found Dead in a Swamp.

GLENDALE, N. Y., Aug. 4.—A mysterious murder was revealed here. The victim is a pretty young woman about 20 years of age. The body was found near a dwelling in course of construction, and a more lonely spot could not be found on Long Island. The marks of finger and thumb nails on the throat of the girl left no doubt that she had been murdered by dread of the disease.

Daughters of Veterans.

MASSILLON, O., Aug. 3.—The daughters of veterans' election of officers resulted as follows: National president, Mollie Robertson, Keokuk, Ia.; senior vice president, Nellie King, Massillon, O.; junior vice president, Evelyn Monroe, Worcester, Mass.; inspecting officer, Lizzie Beardsle, Alliance, O.; secretary, Rose Janson, Quincy, Ill.

ELECTION IN UTAH.

OGDEN, U. T., Aug. 4.—The first election in Utah on national party lines came off Monday. There were three tickets in the field, however, the remnant of the liberal party and made up mostly of republicans nominating a full ticket. The Mormon vote was about equally divided between the democrats and republicans.

Ex-President Rutherford B. Hayes, commander in chief of the Loyal Legion, arrived from Ohio. He was met by a local delegation of the Loyal Legion and escorted to the home of Col. Hecker. Commander Hayes was tendered a reception at Col. Hecker's residence in the evening and all members of the Loyal Legion paid him their respects.

Great Fire in the Dry Goods Section of Chicago.

Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s Big Store Soon
Reduced to Ashes—Many Other Firms Suffer Heavy Losses.

WORK OF THE FIRE FIEND.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Siegel, Cooper &
Co.'s immense dry goods and notions establishment at State and Adams street was totally destroyed by fire this morning. Half a million dollars' worth of assorted stock was entirely consumed and nothing but bare walls are left where a magnificent trade palace stood. Unfortunately the fire could not be prevented from spreading and at 8:30 o'clock number of other firms had suffered much damage. "The Leader" dry goods store on the opposite corner caught fire several times, and Mr. Pinicus, the manager, thought that the damage by fire, smoke and water would reach from $100,000 to $150,000. Next door south of Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s is J. W.
Berry's large confectionery house, and his loss was $1,000 by water.

The flames communicated to the rear of J. H. Walker & Co.'s dry goods store at the corner of Wabash avenue and Adams street. Here fire, smoke and water caused a loss of $25,000. Then the occupants of F. R. Hilger's building at 207 and 209 Wabash avenue suffered as follows: C. Hennecke, pottery, $40,000; J. A. Bryant, pianos, $7,000;
women's exchange, $500; L. W. Baird, pictures, $10,000. Charles Brown, who has a European hotel at 37 and 39 Adams street, lost about $1,000 from water and smoke.

Siegel, Cooper & Co. occupied six stores on State street, extending south from the corner. The building, valued at $100,000, was four stories high and had half a block deep on Adams street, extending to the alley which separates it from J. H. Walker & Co.

The fire was first discovered by Officer
M. Sullivan, who turned in the first alarm. When Officer Sullivan first saw the blaze it shot out into State street from the first floor and seemed to emanate from what is known as the exchange room. No one seemed to be able to tell what caused the blaze.

Once started the flames had full sweep. Inside were great light shafts and a number of elevators through which the blaze swept with the force of a small cyclone. There was any amount of material for it to feed on.
From small wooden toys to costly Persian rugs the stock offered splendid opportunities for the tongue of flame. Up the elevator shafts went the flames, and out through the roof and into the murky atmosphere they shot. A heavy pall of smoke hung in the rain-charged air, and this cloud was seen for miles by the thousands of people hurrying down town to their work.
Eight hundred employees, from messenger boys and cash girls to managers of departments, soon stood around the corners and mixed with the hundreds attracted to the scene by the fire.

In the building at the time the fire broke out were some twenty-five employees. All escaped without injury except Manager Nixon, who dropped from the fourth story to a balcony on the third story and was bruised and shaken.

One of the bookkeepers who was working over some of the record books said that from $15,000 to $20,000 was burned up in the flames, or at least the money was in the store safe and had probably been burned inside the safe.

THE REGISTER requests all of its friends, who have business at the Probate Court, to send their printing to this office. Reasonable rates only are charged.

In Mr. Cleveland's recent speech at Sandwich, Mass., there were, it is said, 233 I's. It is pleasant to see that the ex-president recognizes his own greatness.

It is about time that some definite steps were taken by the city council for the establishment of sewerage. The people are anxious to know whether this needed improvement is to come in 1891 or in 1892.

MICHIGAN rejoices at the opportunity of entertaining the old veterans of the war. If there is any aristocracy in this country it must consist of those brave men who shed their blood that the nation might live.

THE refusal of the council to receive the communication of the business men's association was an uncalled for slap at that organization. No possible harm could result from referring the resolution to the sewerage committee, as four aldermen desired. The zeal of the people who are opposed to sewerage or desire to put it off indefinitely seems to be abnormally developed.

The latest utterance by any organ of the Farmers' Alliance advocates the abolition of two things: First, interest; second, all laws for the collection of debts. This would indeed be a beautiful scheme for all debtors who have already secured loans: all future loans are to come from the great pocket-book of Uncle Sam who, of course, would never run one of his own children. Such nonsensical views, we are glad to say, have never secured much of a foothold in Michigan.

BUSINESS has now adjusted itself to the changed conditions imposed by the McKinley law. An era of prosperity has apparently set in, over which, however, a dark shadow impends. That shadow is the possibility of the election of a Democratic president in 1892. Judging from the utterances of leading politicians, this would mean nothing more or less than the repeal of the McKinley act, the enactment of a free coinage law and a panic. Against this danger the Republican party will fight successfully under the leadership of James G. Blaine.

THE loneliness of farm life is one of the causes why most of the boys seek the cities. Many plans have been devised to obviate this difficulty. Now comes Millionaire Bookwalter, of Springfield, Ohio, with an extremely practical plan. He owns a tract of 12,000 acres in Nebraska, which he proposes to divide into farms of eighty acres each. In the center will be located a village, with a house corresponding to each farm. Here the people will live, going to and from their work at morning and night. In the village will be established schools, halls, and, in short, everything that can promote the mental, physical and spiritual welfare of the people. Mr. Bookwalter's plan is not new, but it is certainly meritorious.

THE REGISTER has decided to get out a special edition during the latter part of next month, probably about the seventeenth. The object in view in doing this is to do what we can to boom the city. The issue proposed will be something unique in its way, and the edition will be a very large one. The committee on printing appointed by the Business Men's Association at their last meeting have unanimously endorsed the plan proposed as being a good one, and urge that it meet with the support it deserves among all our business men. Every business man in the city will be called upon, and it is hoped that without exception each will do something to help make this paper a complete success. We have no hesitation in asking this, as the matter is not a money making scheme. The more support we get, the larger and better the edition will be made.

An Old Time "Racker" Revived.

An esteemed contemporary, upon reading in an exchange that a certain ancient sect prescribed kissing a pretty girl as a cure for toothache, sagely observed that it is exceedingly difficult to improve on some old-time methods. The same remark applies to Magic Yeast, now being sold in this town, and advertised elsewhere in our columns, and by the use of which tooth ache or no tooth ache, kisses or no kisses, the pretty girls and their beautiful mothers of to-day are making that prime requisite of health and beauty, good, wholesome, old-fashioned bread, as did their predecessors in the days that come no more.

TO THE BRAVE AND WISE

ENDURING MEMORIALS COMMEMORATIVE OF LEARNING AND VALOR.

Post Mortem Honors Conferred on a Botanist, a Discoverer, and the Heroic Men Who Fought and Fell in Two Great Battles.

[Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association.]

This is an era of centennials and monuments. The discovery of America, close of the Revolution, inauguration of the national government and many other events happened in an order which crowds the anniversaries. Among the many important monuments may be mentioned that erected to Linneus by the Swedes of Chicago, that to be erected to Columbus by the Italio-Americans, that at Trenton, N. J., and those at Gettysburg, and in many other fields of the late war.

THE STATUE OF LINNEUS.

The recent unveiling of the monument to Linneus was a poetic and attractive affair. Little Vista Lindblom, daughter of the president of the association, dressed in the garb of the peasants of Ostergotland, pulled the rope at the appointed time; the blue and yellow banner of Sweden fell at once, revealing the body, but the stars and stripes caught and fluttered around the head for a few moments. Another pull and the American flag fell, then the great Linneus stood forth in academic gown, with scholarly frown upon his face, while the flaxen haired Swedes raised their national shout and the band played an inspiring air.

The statue is of bronze, heroic size, and rests upon a white marble base, and around the pedestal four allegoric figures are placed representing the four sciences in which Linneus was eminent. The work is copied by C. F. Dyer, of Stockholm, from the memorial in that city by Kjellborg. The Swedish Linnaea Monument association, of which Robert Lindblom is president and John R. Lindgren treasurer, is a Chicago society, and the statue stands in Lincoln park, of that city.

Carl Von Linne, that being his family name, was the son of the pastor at Simlunda, where the boy was born, May 24, 1707. He died in Upsal, Jan. 10, 1778. His name was Latinized when he became eminent, as was the custom of scholars at that time. He is best known as a botanist. The publication of his "System of Nature" is regarded as marking an important epoch in the progress of science.

The monument at Trenton has been many years in preparation; congress has appropriated $30,000, New Jersey $15,000, and $15,000 more are to be raised before the needed sum is secured. The work, however, is under way and the construction is to be by Mr. John H. Duncan, of New York city. The design is simple—a column of victory in the style of the Roman doric, the shaft and base of light colored granite, and the statuary, both at base and apex, in bronze.

The base is to be of rough hewn stone, and will be thirty-four feet square, and within will contain a chamber for the reception of relics of the battle and also of the Revolutionary army and the commanders who fought at Trenton. The main doorway will be flanked by bronze figures of an infantryman and cavalry-

man of the Continental army, and bronze bas reliefs will be placed on each of the four sides, representing Washington crossing the Delaware, the first gun of the fight, the final surrender of the Hessians and the simple but adequate description:

TO COMMEMORATE
THE BATTLE OF TRENTON,
DECEMBER 26, 1776.

The base will be surmounted by a polished and fluted shaft with a doric capital, the shaft being hollow and containing a stairway leading to the top of the monument, from which it is expected that Philadelphia may be seen upon clear days.

The total height of the monument will be 130 feet, and all will be crowned with a colossal statue of Washington, and at the base of this statue will be placed a corona of thirteen electric lights. It will stand at the intersection of Warren and Broad streets and Brunswick, Princeton and Pennington avenues, the spot where Captain Alexander

Hamilton opened his batteries upon the fleeing Hessians."

In 1889 Cavalier Charles Barsotti, editor of the Progresso Italio-American, set on foot a movement to erect in New York city a monument to Christopher Columbus in 1892. The preliminary work progressed rapidly, and a committee of artists in Italy awarded the task of completing the monument to Gattano Russo. He has already completed the statue, thirteen feet high, and it is very highly praised. The monument will be seventy-five feet in height, composed of white marble, bronze and granite, and is expected to be one of the finest and most beautiful in the city. Up to the present time about $7,000 in cash has been collected, as well as objects to the value of about $5,000 for a fair to be held in 1892.

A committee of 1,000 Italians is being organized, each agreeing to collect ten dollars in small subscriptions to enable all Italians in the country to contribute something. The monument will be given to the city of New York both to commemorate the discovery and testify to the loyalty of the Italians to their adopted country.

The survivors of the One Hundred and Eleventh New York Volunteers will on the 26th of June dedicate a monument at Gettysburg that will add another to the many memorials marking the scene of Pickett's charge. The veterans of the regiment who at this date answer to the roll call number several hundred, and the dedication of their monument will be the occasion of a pleasant reunion on the field of their most trying struggles and their sweetest triumphs.

The One Hundred and Eleventh has good cause to remember Gettysburg and to be proud to have a monument on the slopes of Cemetery Ridge. The regiment served under Hancock, in Hayes' division of the Second corps. On July 2, 1863, when the Confederates had broken up Meade's left wing and Sickles' Third corps was engaged against enormous odds, General Hancock, whose line

ON THE FIELD OF GETTYSBURG. adjoined Sickles' on the right, hastily gathered some troops from his command and went to Sickles' aid. While doing so his own line was attacked by a Confederate line of battle that overlapped Sickles' front. The last brigade in his moving column was led by Colonel George L. Willard, and the One Hundred and Eleventh was the last regiment in the brigade.

The danger to his own line caused Hancock to order this brigade to halt, face about and move back obliquely across the Confederate front. During this march and counter march the brigade was subjected to a heavy fire from the enemy's artillery. A charge was ordered upon the advancing Confederates, and was most gallantly executed. Colonel Willard was killed, and the brigade suffered terribly. The One Hundred and Eleventh bore the brunt of the fight on account of its closeness to the enemy. The Confederate charge at this point was repulsed.

The next day, July 3, the regiment lay in Hancock's line near Ziegler's Grove, and maintained a steady musket fire upon Pickett's charging column.

The Gettysburg record of the regiment, which is inscribed on the monument, is more suggestive than volumes of praise. It is as follows:

Reached Gettysburg early morning, July 2. Position near Ziegler's Grove. Went to relief of 3rd corps in afternoon.

Took this position (at the Brian House) after dark, July 2, and held it to close of battle.

Number engaged (eight companies), 330.

Casualties:

Killed, 58; wounded, 181; missing, 10; total, 249.

The One Hundred and Eleventh was organized in the counties of Wayne and Cayuga in 1862 and served to the end of the war. It had the unique experience of being captured entire, having been included in the surrender of Harper's Ferry, Va., where it arrived three weeks after its muster in, Aug. 20, 1863.

The monument is of Gettysburg and Quincy granite, with a figure in bronze, representing a skirmisher in action. The movement to erect a memorial was begun at a reunion of the survivors of the regiment, held at Auburn in 1888. The sum of $1,200 was contributed by the survivors, and this amount, with the $1,500 given by the state, furnished a fund of $2,700.

The monument committee consists of General C. D. McDougall, Major R. J. Myers and Sergeant C. J. Stupp, of Auburn, and Captain M. W. Murdock, of Venice Center. General McDougall will deliver the address of dedication. He led the regiment at Gettysburg and was wounded in the charge of July 2.

Farm Mortgages.

The count of the farm and home transcripts made in accordance with the mortgage collection clause of the census act has been completed by the census office. The figures are subject to slight modifications. There were returned by the enumerators 2,491,930 farms and homes occupied by owners, which are incumbered by mortgages. This number includes some farms and homes about which the enumerators made no report, and which belong partly to the class of hired and partly to the class of owned free, as well as partly to the class of owned and incumbered. Until this unknown quantity, due to the failure of the enumerators, is eliminated, it may be regarded as approximately true that 2,250,000 families of the 12,500,000 families of the United States occupy own and incumbered farms and homes, and that 10,250,000 families occupy farms and homes that are either hired or owned free. The preliminary results indicate that the average debt for a farm in Iowa is $1,283, home $719; average for farm and home, $1,140. If these averages hold good for the union, the incumbrance on the farms and homes of the United States occupied by owners is about $2,565,000,000. The success of this investigation, Superintendent Porter says, has been far beyond the anticipations of the most experienced statisticians, and the result will be of immense interest and value to the nation.

There has been some considerable speculation regarding the probable age of the "new open motor car."

That it is a relic of antiquity, is strongly asserted by some who claim that a careful translation of some of the almost defaced hieroglyphics which are to be found on the car, show that Noah was in the habit of chalking down matters he was liable to forget, just the same as we do in this enlightened age.

It is certainly a pity, though, that the vehicle couldn't have been preserved with more of its original unique construction.

However, it's very comfortable to ride in, as well as a curiosity to look at, and will no doubt add greatly to the revenue of the motor line.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 6, 1891.

LITERARY NOTES.

In his article, entitled From Fetich to Hygiene, to appear in The Popular Science Monthly for August, Dr. Andrew D. White presents a terrible picture of the ravages of epidemics in the times when prayers and processions were the only means relied upon to check them.—D. Appleton & Co., New York, N. Y.

Dr. Andrew Wilson, F. R. S. E., contributes to the August number of Harper's Magazine a popular paper on that interesting but most vexing question of biology, "What is Inheritance?" J. H. Rosny, one of the most brilliant of the new French writers, contributes a striking article on the "Nihilists in Paris," with graphic sketches from the pencil of P. Renouard and in the Editor's Study William Dean Howells discusses among other subjects the question whether there is a decay in the morality of our fiction, and, if so, who is responsible for such decay.—Harper & Brothers, New York, N. Y.

The August number of the North American Review will contain articles on the Jewish question, by Prof. Goldwin Smith, in which he attempts to show that antagonism to Hebrews in America is due to social and economic rather than religious causes; on the Value of Naval Manoeuvres, by J. Russell Soley, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; on the Possibilities of the Steam-Yacht, by Lewis Herreshoff, of the famous firm of yacht builders; on Vampire Literature, by Anthony Comstock, Secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice and on the Scientific Basis of Belief, by Prof. R. H. Thurston, of Sibley College, Cornell University.—The North American Review, New York, N. Y.

The subject that no more than any other now holds the attention of the whole civilized world is Russia and the persecution of the Jews. . . . In South America the subject of most moment is, of course, the struggle for popular liberty in Chili. . . . In our country the question of immigration continues to excite attention, and of special interest is an argument by such a man as Francis A. Walker to show that our population would have been as great as it now is without the immigration of the last fifty years and that the coming of large numbers of immigrants has lowered our standard of living.

Since The Forum for August treats of every one of those subjects it may fairly be said to cover the most important topics of the month in the whole world. Forum Pub. Co., New York, N. Y.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Cary, Corning, N. Y.

Be Careful!

Telling the Old Man.

"Your son has graduated?" "Yes." "Now the question is, will he be able to make his knowledge useful, to impart it to others?" "Guess so. He has begun to impart it to me."

Our lady readers will be interested to know something concerning the great sales of Santa Claus Soap. The manufacturers, N. K. Fairchild & Co., are justly entitled to rank among the great advertisers of the United States, and are counted among the most liberal patrons of printer's ink in this country.

The Fairbank Company is particularly friendly to newspapers, as offering the most legitimate means of advertising, and naturally all newspapers are friendly to Santa Claus Soap.

It cannot be said, as in the case of some advertisers, that Fairbank has made Santa Claus famous, but it does seem correct to say that Santa Claus has made Fairbank famous.

Santa Claus has been of course, for time out of mind, a household word. It was a happy thought when the Fairbank Company seized upon this home-like and familiar name for their very best laundry soap.

Naturally enough the quality of the soap has had much to do with its success, for not even the most extravagant advertising could make a success of a poor article. On the other hand there have been so many soaps put upon the market the past few years, that in the beginning many purchasers hesitated to try another new candidate for favor at the wash-tub.

Fairbank & Co. are live, wide-awake business men, and they knew just how good housekeepers felt on the soap question. So they not only set about to manufacture the very best soap that could be made, but they inaugurated a most earnest and honest system of advertising. No "fake" or "schemes" have been employed to introduce "Santa Claus" Soap on the market. The brand was brought into notice by straightforward and legitimate methods, and has constantly gained in public favor because of the excellence of the article itself. The manufacturers can congratulate themselves upon such a success. We are informed that the sales of Santa Claus Soap have increased enormously this year, and far above the average rate. No doubt a great share of the increase in this neighborhood is due to the fact that Santa Claus Soap has been well advertised in these columns.

"And what?" asked the young woman, who is somewhat facetious, "is the rank of the individual who brings up the rear with a bucket and a tin cup?" "Oh," replied the member of the militia, with enthusiasm, "he is lemonade de camp."

A Model Railway.

The Burlington Route, C. B. & Q. R., operates 7,000 miles of road, with termini in Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Omaha, Kansas City and Denver. For speed, safety, comfort, equipment, track and efficient service it has no equal. The Burlington gains new patrons, but loses none.

Saline Farmer's Club.

The July meeting of the Saline Farmer's Club was held at the residence of Eden Buckman last Friday. The chairman of the viewing committee, Mr. Norman Wood, gave a report of the condition of affairs upon the farm of C. C. Warner, where the last club was held. It seemed a propitious providence that had prevented Mr. Warner's attendance, for the compliments lavished upon him, both in the report and in the discussion which followed, would certainly have been embarrassing to a modest man. Miss Martha Wagner gave a recitation in a manner which showed that it was not her first attempt.

After the usual elaborate noon repast, the ladies held their regular meeting, while the gentlemen wandered forth to inspect Mr. Buckman's farm and stock. Mr. R. has the reputation of being a first-class farmer, and an examination of his comfortable buildings, his stock, his well-tilled fields, and flourishing crops, fully sustained this reputation.

Geo. J. Nissly read a very interesting and instructive paper on "Poultry and Small Fruit upon the Farm," which was followed by a prolonged discussion.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Joseph Kyte, Friday, Sept. 4th, when a fair will be held in connection with the exercises of the day. J. S. Wood will at that time read a paper, Subject: "Wherein is the Farmer more Independent than the Professional Man?"—Observer.

Are You Going?

To try Hibbard's Herb Extract, the great blood purifier, this spring? Are you willing to be convinced? If so, read of Mrs. Hibbard's case in another column. This is an honest medicine and it looks, tastes, and acts like medicine. $1.00 at druggists.

Ladies Try

Great French Remedy. Dr. Le Duc's Periodical Pills from Paris, France, act only upon the generative organs in females, and positively cure suppression of the menses (from whatever cause) and all periodical troubles peculiar to women. Established in Europe, 1839; England, 1850; Canada, 1878; United States, 1887. A safe, reliable remedy, warranted to excite menstruation, or money refunded. The larger portion of the ills to which ladies are subject is the direct result of a disordered and irregular menstruation. The American Pill Co., proprietors. Price, $2. Sold by Eberbach & Son, druggists, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A Premium on Falschood.

The worst feature about an income tax is its inequality. The extent of the income is, in most cases, known only to the individual, and he can, with a fair degree of safety, conceal as much of it as he likes from the officials.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Stop And Think;

How much money you have thrown away buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

The People Will Appreciate It.

By the end of the year eight or nine Spanish-American countries will have entered into reciprocal bargains with our government, under the McKinley law. This expansion of the markets for our products, as a result of Republican policy, will be appreciated.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Be Careful!

No matter what disease you may have. Be sure that the medicine you take is reliable. Such a medicine you will always find Sulphur Bitters. They are not a cheap rum drink, but are made of the choicest roots and herbs to be found in the vegetable kingdom.—Daily Argus.

Republican Free Trade.

Republican free trade is quite different from the Democratic kind. Its fundamental doctrine is that any article required in this country, and which can be produced here with the expenditure of no more hours of work than it would require to make it elsewhere, should be made in this country in preference to being imported and paid for in gold. If it takes an hour's work to make ten pounds of iron in America and as long a time to make it in England or Germany, then it would be economic to make that iron here, even though an hour's work costs in money wages more here than it does in Germany or Britain. For the higher wage scale of America means that the American workingman is better clothed, fed and housed than the German or British. That distinction is deemed worth preserving, but it cannot be preserved without protection against low wage goods of Europe. But if it takes twice as much labor to make a square foot of glass here as in Belgium, then it is not economic to make glass in this country, any more than it is to raise bananas, tea or coffee.

Geo. J. Nissly read a very interesting and instructive paper on "Poultry and Small Fruit upon the Farm," which was followed by a prolonged discussion.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Joseph Kyte, Friday, Sept. 4th, when a fair will be held in connection with the exercises of the day. J. S. Wood will at that time read a paper, Subject: "Wherein is the Farmer more Independent than the Professional Man?"—Observer.

Republican free trade relates to things which cannot be economically produced at home. It finds most of these on this hemisphere, especially in the countries to the south of ours. Those products should be admitted free, but the greatest reciprocal advantages should be secured by reason of their free admission. And as the interests of the other republics of the western hemisphere are non-competitive with us, there should be unfettered reciprocal trade between them all. Intercourse between them should be as free as between American states. The Republican motto is, then: "Reciprocity with the western republics; protection against cheap labor of Europe."

If Mr. Blaine were to be president, with a friendly congress behind him, Republican reciprocity ideas would be realized. An intercontinental railroad would traverse Mexico and the isthmus into South America and unite the southern with the northern railroad systems.

The Nicaragua ship canal would be cut across the neck of the "hour glass," so that the products east of the Rocky Mountains could be carried by water to the western coast of South America, and the Gulf of Mexico would be filled with American vessels laden with the exchange goods of two continents. The currencies of the western republics would be unified. Their laws and institutions would be harmonized. Though there would be twenty republics, there would be but one commercial policy for them all. The New World would be at peace. It would leave the Old World to its huge standing armies and wars; its devouring taxes and the widespread poverty of its masses.

These things would follow in the wake of Republican reciprocal free trade. Is not this program to be preferred to the uneconomic, wasteful, destructive thing which the Democrats call free trade, which means only the perpetual vassalage of America to Europe?

J. R. BOWDISH & CO., 22 S. State Street.

PERHAPS, while calling on your friends, you have noticed, incidentally, some of the pretty furnishings of their houses.

The spirit of envy that came, you bravely fought and subdued. You realized that to be honest and honorable you must "live within your means."

You are at Dieterle's a few days later with a friend assisting her in the selection of some pieces of Parlor and Chamber Furniture. You have no thought of yourself, yet the low prices given your friend compel your attention.

The expression of surprise and pleasure that comes over your face is good to see.

You have discovered that you can have this and that without going beyond your means or losing your self respect. Hereafter take nothing for granted.

Dieterle's facts cost nothing. His Furniture little more.

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE SYSTEM.

THE Banks issue to their Agents a large number of gummed stamps similar to postage stamps, each one of which, when pasted in one of the Bank's "NICKEL SAVINGS BOOKS," has the value of five cents.

Any person desiring to open a Savings Bank Account goes to the Bank's nearest agent, buys one or more stamps and receives free a NICKEL SAVINGS BOOK, each page of which is divided into twenty spaces of such size that one five cent stamp may be readily pasted within each square. When all the squares on the page are thus filled, the leaf represents $1.00. The depositor now files out in ink the signature slip attached to the back inside cover of his book, and takes the book to an agent who tears out the leaf and the signature slip and sends both to the Bank, which files away the signature slip and issues a regular deposit account book, showing a credit to the depositor of $1.00. This book is delivered through the agent to the depositor. The depositor then begins to fill another page with stamps, and when it is full he writes his name on the back of the leaf and sends it to the Bank through the agent. All money deposited in the Bank before the fifth of the month, draws interest from the first of the following month. Whenever the depositor is twelve years of age, or under, the bank issues a handsome and durable Silver and Gold Face Deposit Card instead of a Deposit Book, when the first dollar's worth of stamps is deposited; but just as soon as the holder of the card has $5.00 or more deposited in the bank, he receives a regular deposit book. Money deposited by the holder of the card draws interest and can be withdrawn just the same as though the regular deposit book had been issued.

"Mr. Stevens?" he asked, glancing at the card.

"Yes, sir," the visitor replied, a little chokingly, in spite of his wrath and resolution. He had lived in Washington long enough to lose his fear of statesmen, but here was a man who made senators and used them to run his errands. It was not surprising that in the august presence of millions the young clerk's voice faltered.

"From Mr. Atwood?" asked the magnate, courteously, yet with the economy in speech of a man whose time was worth anywhere from a mere routine two thousand a week to half a million a minute.

"Yes, sir. And as he spoke the young man studied the railroad king. It was a stern face the young man fronted, a heavy, stolid, cruel face. The head was big and round, the throat short and thick, the shoulders and chest broad, the whole frame burly. He, too, was a strong animal; quite a match for those Windward had admired at the diplomats'. Quite a match, also, Stevens thought, for an intriguing secretary.

"Oh, no, indeed!" exclaimed Stevens. "She is a true, fine woman."

"Yes, I suppose so," replied the king, snappishly, and yet with a smile. "Well, then, go for her. Tell her you love her. There is no love potion like a declaration; that generally does the business, after one or two refusals anyhow. And don't be bluffed. Keep at her. The women have a saying among themselves that a persevering man is the enemy of the sex." Here he rose to indicate, after the manner of monarchs, that the interview had terminated, and stretching out his hand to the young man, said:

"I'll expect you at my rooms at 8 o'clock to-night," said the magnate. And then, his business despatched, his manner underwent a magical change. He leaned over to Stevens and whispered, "Let's see your girl!" And as he spoke he winked; he did, the magnate winked.

A Redundant Expression.

The dispatch announcing the death of Dr. Hemen B. Smith, of Westville, Conn., from excessive cigarette smoking makes the wholly unnecessary statement that "he was young." Cigarette smoking in excess is a disease of youth. It is a thing that is never acquired late in life, and nobody that acquires it lives long enough to be old.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Always the Same.

The same is in every land—

A glance, a kiss, a flower,

The pressure of a little hand,

A hint about the dower.

The Milk Turned Sour.

I will not tell you her name, but one of the neighbors says that during her brief visit the other day the milk turned sour. Her countenance looks a yard long. She sighs perpetually. The cloud on her brow is deep. If beaten out thin, I believe would cover the sky. Her wrinkles are numberless. She is a sorry picture, and all because she is the victim of one of those complaints common to women. Her system is deranged. She needs a course of self-treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This will eradicate thoroughly those exacerbating periodical and functional weaknesses incident to her sex, and at the same time build up and invigorate her whole system by its health-imparting influence. A trial bottle will convince.

Good Common Sense.

Bishop Westcott, who, according to the London Telegraph, is generally regarded as the greatest living theologian in the Church of England, recently gave his opinion to a private correspondent about theater-going. "The universal instinct toward dramatic representations," he says, "appears to me to show that, like music and art, they answer to a natural and right desire."

And that was all Windward was able to get out of him; so, finally, in despair he changed the subject.

"You didn't tell him, I fancy?" he said, smiling.

"No, but sometimes I'll tell you an interesting tale," replied Stevens mysteriously.

And that was all Windward was able to get out of him; so, finally, in despair he changed the subject.

"You missed some good stories, Peter, by being away," he said; "Lieut. Quire was in our rooms for a while, and told a lot of 'yarns' about jelly fish that curled like apple parings, and the gales sailors aboard ship and how he climbed a volcano. Say, Stevens, what do you think about Quire, anyway?"

"Oh, I don't know," airily replied Stevens, the confidante of millions.

"He's a good enough sort of a fellow, handsome and all that; a 'jolly young sea dog'—by the way, I suppose a 'young sea dog' is a sea puppy? Oh, I like him."

"He's very entertaining," ventured Windward in rather subdued manner.

"Evidently," thought he, "something is up." And secretly he thought his friend might be a little more communicative.

"Oh, yes, entertaining," replied Stevens with the severity of a judge, "but he is not an upright man, nor a man of much character. He is good enough company for an idle hour."

"Well, well, this is a new vein for Stevens!" mused Windward. Yes, something was up.

Indeed there was, and nothing less than the spirit and will of young America.
