A DECIDED STEP FORWARD.

THE CITY COUNCIL BEGINS TO TALK IN EARNEST.

The Sewerage Project Has Some Vitality-Prof. Greene will Investi-gate the Cost-Opening of Fourth-Avenue.

There can be no longer any doubt of it. The council, according to action taken Monday, is unanimously in favor of sewerage. There exist, however, fundamental differences as to the plans which should be adopted. The sewerage committee to whom the citizens' petition was referred two weeks ago, reported in favor of calling a special election in February nex . This report was received and placed on file. A supplementary report, however, was submitted with reference to the pollution of the river. This report was received and spread upon the records. It reads as follows: "Mr. Geo. S. Pierson, city engineer of Kalamazoo, who is an acknowledged expert on the subject of sewers and who has made the subject of sanitary engineering a specialty for many years, writes the committee as follows: ,In regard to the pollution of rivers by sewerage I find that the authorities treat this subject mainly from the standpoint of limit of pollution that may be considered to render water unsafe for potable purposes and the deductions are made largely from chemical analyses of the water as it is found. I find little information as to the ratio of population to cubic feet, for instance, of a stream beyond which the stream may be considered to be offensive and injurious to health in other ways. This I take it, is the ratio at which you wish to arrive roughly. Investigations of this sort seem to have been conducted on a sort of comparative method in which conditions, difficult to state' mathematically, largely influence the decision. As, for instance, the stream may already be strongly polluted by towns above. It may be broad, sluggish, have low shores subject to overflow, be densely populated along its banks, have frequent dams &c, &c. It may, on the other hand, be unpolluted from above, and swift, deep with high and bold shores &c, &c. The customs of different cities largely influence the decision also. For instance, the sewage of American towns is already diluted to-about three times the degree of that of English towns, hence comparisons made on the basis of the ratio of cubic feet of sewage to cubic feet of river water are often misleading. I take it the proper method of comparing the degree of pollution is by the ratio of the cubic feet of river water per capita daily, computed at the low water stage of the river, at which time the conditions will be at the worst. I enclose a few comparisons of this kind. Since, however, the other conditions which cannot be mathematically stated have at least equal weight, I presume they will not water per capita daily .- ED.)

"'The quantity of sewage per capita per day in the United States is approximately ten cubic feet. I have often seen instances stated where the pollution is about one in twenty. This is however undesirable.'

"If the minimum flow of the Huron in the dry season be placed at 55 cubic feet per second, or 3,300 cubic feet per minute, which is equivalent to a daily flow of about 4,800,000 cubic feet, it gives a ratio for a population of 10,000 inhabitants of 480 ci bic feet per capita, and for 16,000 inhabitants of 300 cubic feet per capita. By referring to the table it will be found that the smaller value, 300 cubic feet per capita, is larger than that for six of the eleven cities quoted, Mr. Clark Cornwell, of Ypsilanti, writes the committee that in his judgment the minimum flow is at least fifty per cent, greater than the figures given, which if true makes the showing even more favorable.

"In answer to the very plausible objection which has been raised, that on Sundays, and at other times when the mills at Ann Arbor are not running, the flow of water at the city will cease, your committee desires to state that they have found such to be not the case. Inquiry and investigation have demonstrated the fact that it is practically impossible to build dams and flumes so that they will not leak. In certain cases the leakage may reach as high as ten per cent. of the normal flow of the stream. This is probably true of the dam at this city. It has been observed that during the dry season, when no water was flowing over the dam or through the wheels at Swift's mill, the | Library, Friday evening.

current was sufficiently strong at bridge UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN. No. 2, to offer some difficulty to horses in fording the stream, as was necessary during the repairs to this bridge. Even if the flow should be practically stopped for 24 or 36 hours by shutting down the mill, the sewage would scarcely become objectionable in that time, and the increased flow on starting again would probably flush the river thoroughly, so that the condition of the stream at no time would be serious."

THE FIRST DECISIVE ACTION with reference to the sewerage project was taken by Alderman O'Hearn, who offered the following resolution: 'Whereas it is thought by many that a system of sewers for the city has become a necessary public improvement, that, in the opinion of the council, the system as suggested by Prof. Greene. ought to be projected further down the river; and whereas there is great diversity of opinion as to the probable cost of a main sewer, when so projected down the river; Therefore, resolved that Prof. Greene do advise the council without delay and bring in a detailed statement of the probable cost, at present prices, of such main sewer, exclusive of right of way, when projected down the river to Bunker's dam so called, and with thirty-inch pipe (first quality) from its outlet to the north line of Huron-st and twenty-six-inch pipe from Huron-st to the south line of Hill-st and twenty-two-inch-pipe from Hill-st to the stopping place, as indicated on the map; also the probable cost of laying pipe, of the size shown in Prof. Greene's report." These estimates are to be accompanied with a Considerable discussion ensued. Several of the alderman were of the opinion that the sewer pipes should be made large enough to carry away the surface water, but the general trend of opinion seemed to be against this proposition. It was quite generally believed, however, that the sewers should be taken farther down the river than was at first suggested. Alderman O'Hearn's resolution was unanimously adopted.

THE OPENING OF FOURTH-AVE The only other important business which came before the council was the matter of opening Fourth-ave from Madison to Hill st. It was decided by resolution to make the improvement and to assess the benefits upon adjoining property-owners. A committee of three, consisting of Aldermen Mann, Hall and Allmendinger, was appointed to act with the city attorney and report at the next meeting what sums of money would be required to obtain the title of the land taken. The other business transacted by the council was unimportant.

The Eclipse.

Prof. W. J. Hussey, who is at present in charge of the observatory, has shown commendable enterprise in issuing a circular giving explicit directions concerning the manner of observations during the eclipse of the moon on last Sunday evening. This, and the column article in last Sunday's Free Press, which Mr. Hussey was requested to prepare, awakened great interest in this eclipse, and would, if the weather had been favorable, without doubt, have resulted in a larger number of intelligent observations being made by amateur astronomers than ever before. We understand that many responses from this circular have been received, showing to how great an extent an effort of this kind is appreciated.

This shows that the idea of endeavoring to make this observatory a centre of astronomical activity is a good one. This would bring it at once into close relation and sympathy with a considerable number of high schools, academies and colleges throughout the country, and would have a tendency to stimulate the study of astronomy not only in these schools but also in the University.

Meeting of the Scribes.

The newspaper men of the city met in the office of S. W. Beakes, Friday afternoon, in order to make arrangements for the entertainment of the state editors, who are to meet in this city in January next. Committees were appointed, and by a unanimous vote it was decided to invite the Ypsilanti editors to co-operate with their Ann Arbor brethren. Upon motion of Fred C. Brown, those present organized themselves into a permanent press club, which will not only attend to the meeting of the state editors but will continue to meet monthly for consultation and business. The following officers were elected: President, S. W. Beakes, of the Argus; vice-president, Miss Emma Bower, of the Democrat; secretary, G. H. Snow, of THE REGISTER; treasurer, J. E. Beal, of the Courier; executive committee-Messrs F. C. Brown, of the Times; L. J. Liesemer, of the Post, and G. H. Pond, of the Courier.

Fine Art in the University-How it is Being Fostered-Athletic Potpourri -The General News Gathered About

"Fine Art in the University," was the subject of an interesting article in the Sunday Free Press. As the subject has not often been treated, a few extracts will prove interesting: "Art, in the true sense of the word, has for many years been made at Ann Arbor the subject of careful scientific study. There have always been some among both faculty and students whose appreciation of masterpieces, whether of painting or of sculpture, was in the highest sense genuine and unaffected. Among these may be mentioned the late Prof. Frieze, one of the most finely cultivated natures this country ever has produced. an enthusiastic art collector and a recognized authority in matters of taste. Prof. Frieze for some years before his death offered courses in the history of art, which were always largely attended. Not less valuable for the student of art were the lectures on sesthetics delivered by the late Prof. Geo. S. Morris. In the field of Grecian art and archeology the illustrated talks of Prof. M. L University, have long enjoyed great men fought valiantly, but were handipopularity. "In the death of Profs. Frieze and Morris the art students of the University suffered great loss; but this department of instruction has not, by any means, been suffered to languish. At the present time the work of Prof. Frieze is being developed with great vigor by Prof. F. W. Kelsey, the able head of the Latin department, while the lectures on the general theory of art are in the hands of Prof. F. N. Scott, one of the most original thinkers and hardest workers of the younger members of the faculty, who has already made himself a name among specialists in æsthetics, both in this country and abroad. Hitherto the great obstacle in the way of thorough scientific work in any line of art has been the lack of works of art. Of late years, in order to make up for the short comings of the art museum, efforts have been made to secure in the form of photographs, small casts. etc., cheap reproductions of the most important works of art. Prof. D'Ooge now possesses a complete set of lantern slides with which, aided by a stereopticon, he can exhibit the characteristic features of Greek sculpture. Prof. Kelsey has recently been active in bringing together a collection of in G minor brought forth such hearty mounted photographs illustrating the applause that she was obliged to reart and archæology of Rome. The field of sculpture and of ancient art in general is thus in a fair way to be systematically cultivated, but up to within a short time what is in some respects the most interesting field of all, that of painting, has received no special study, and indeed, since the death of Prof Frieze, has received simply no attention at all. This province has now been definitely invaded by Prof. Scott. During the latter part of this semester he proposes to give in his course on the philosophy of art a series of lectures on the painters Leonardo da Vinci and Michaelangelo in their relation to the art of the Italian Renaissance. To furnish material for illustration some sixty large photographs have been ordered from Paris and Florence. It is Prof. Scott's opinion that with the aid of the most advanced methods of pho: tography it is possible to secure reproductions by which the works of the old masters may be studied at Ann Arbor to little less advantage than in the European galleries themselves. With the help of interested alumni of the University he expects ultimately to make a complete collection, covering the entire period of the Renaissance.

If his appeal meets with a generous response from art-loving graduates of the University, Michigan will in time possess apparatus for the study of art which she need not be ashamed to compare with that of any of her sister institutions." AROUND THE CAMPUS.

C. T. Griffin, of the senior law classwas expelled last week for violating the rule of the department which prohibits the printing and distribution of lectures. The new allopathic hospital will be opened during the Thanksgiving holidays. The heating apparatus has been tested and found to work satisfactorily. J. T. Scott, formerly a member of the 90 literary class, committed suicide on Wednesday last week in Philadelphia by cutting his throat. Only a few days pefore this T. S. Fish, law '89, took his life at Helena, Mont. Both young men were well known in college.

The senior independents elected all the officers last Saturday except historian and secretary. The successful candidates were: President, P. W. Ross; vicepresident, Miss Maude Forhan; orator, W H. Dellenback; historian, A. J. Tuttle; poetess, Miss Julia Herrick; prophetess, Miss M. B. Borthwick; secretary, T. E.

Twenty to nothing was the score in the game which was played on Saturday last between the Chicago alumni and D'Ooge, the veteran Hellenist of the the U. of M. teams. The Ann Arbor capped by an unfavorable umpire who was taken from the ranks of the University club. Considerable slugging was done by the Chicago men.

A Critique.

The opening concert of the Choral Union series was most auspicious, the Detroit Philharmonic Club being greeted, when they appeared at eight clock, by an audience which filled every desirable seat in University Hall.

No better selection could have been made for the opening number than Mozart's bright quartette in D major, which by the suberb playing of the Philharmonic Club, proved one of the most pleasing numbers of the evening.

The work of the club grows better each year, and never have they shown such delicacy and finish in their playing. Their perfect unity in shading and phrasing shows the result of careful and persistent rehearsal. Mrs. Bloomfield Zeisler is a pianist whose playing shows her mastery of piano technic, her crisp staccato, a singing legato, distinct phrasing and exceptional octave playing being particularly brilliant. Her playing of the St. Saën's Caprice and Chopin Ballade Listz Polonaise, with its abrupt transitions, is likely to please the student of harmony on the piano more than the general listener but was well rendered The Schumann Quintette showed a lack of rehearsal, Mrs. Zeisler's playing really being the feature of it. The second movement (Funeral March) lacked breadth of treatment. Mr. Spalding is a singer who is justly a favorite in Ann Arbor. His singing Friday evening was in his usually ex-cellent style and the audience was not low in showing their appreciation.

Mention should be made of the Prelude by Kroeger—a young St. Louis com-poser whose name is becoming familiar on many of our best programs.

Much praise is due the Choral Union management and to Prof. Stanley in particular for the opportunity of hear-ing a series of concerts which give promise of being second to none in America.

A Fiend at Large.

A dastardly outrage was committed on a middle aged lady of this city, Wed nesday night of last week, as she was walking along south Packard-st. The brute effectually gagged her and carried her into the Hill orchard. The assailant was thought to be about twentyfour years old. He wore an ulster overcoat. Diligent effort has as yet failed to afford the officers a clue. The name of the lady is suppressed for good at their prices.

The cost of collection for the last fiscal year was $4,210,604, or 2.88 per cent. of the receipts, against 2.83 last year. The estimated expenses for the next fiscal year are $4,522,350. During the year 698 stills were destroyed and ninety-seven were removed, involving the arrest of 378 persons. aggregate amount of taxes collected from tobacco during the last fiscal year was $32,796,270. The decrease is $1,162,720. The tax on cigars and cigarettes was not changed and the collections therefrom was increased $1,386,650 during the last fiscal year. Tables in regard to the production of oleomargarine show during the year ended June 30, 1891, an increase of production over any former year, a decrease for exportation. The total production was 44,392,400 pounds.

In a chapter on sugar the commissioner details the action of the bureau in providing for the payment of bounty as authorized by the tariff act. The number of sugar producers who have applied for license is 4,906, and their estimated production is 613,376,380 pounds, of which 572,408,380 pounds is sugar cane. The amount of bounty to be paid for the production of the year ending June 30, 1893, will, it is estimated, be as follows: On cane sugar, $8,912,500; on beet sugar, $500,000; sorghum sugar, $40,000; maple sugar, $176,250; total, $9,638,750. In the last fiscal year we imported 3,483,442,825 pounds of sugar of the value of $195,-661, 431, and produced 512, 261, 530 pounds. The amount of sugar produced in the United States is about one-eighth of the amount consumed.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The President Issues a Proclamation Fixing Thursday, November 26, as the WASHINGTON, Nov. 14. - President Harrison has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation fixing November 26 as the day. The full text is as follows:

"BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. A proclamation: It is a very glad incident of the marvelous prosperity glad incident of the marvelous prosperity which has crowned this year now drawing to a close that its helpful and reassuring touch has been felt by all our people. It has been as wide as our country, and so special that every home has felt its comforting in fluence. It is too great to be the work of man's power and too particular to be the device of his mind. To God, the beneficent and the all wise, who makes the labors of men to be fruitful, redeems their losses by His grace, and the measure of whose giving is as grace, and the measure of whose giving is as much beyond the thoughts of man as it is be-yond his deserts, the praise and gratitude of this favored nation are justly due.

"Now, therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, president of the United States of America, do here-by appoint Thursday, the 26th day of Novemby appoint Thursday, the 26th day of November present, to be a day of joyful thanksgiving to God for the bountles of His providence, for the peace in which we are permitted to enjoy them, and for the preservation of those institutions of civil and religious liberty which He gave our fathers the wisdom to devise and establish, and us the courage to preserve. Among the appropriate observances of the day are rest from toil, worship in the public congregation, the renewal of family ties about our American firesides, and thoughtful helpfulness towards those who thoughtful helpfulness towards those who suffer lack of the body or of the spirit. "BENJAMIN HARRISON."

"By the President: "JAMES G. BLAINE, "Secretary of State."

WOULD HURT THE FAIR.

Chicago Warned Not to Allow the Anarchists Too Much Rope.

LONDON, Nov. 16 .- The anniversary of the execution of the Chicago an archists was celebrated by their sympathizers throughout Europe in vaclandestine ways, but the meetings were pounced upon and broken up whenever intelligence could be had that they were to take place and many of the participants were arrested. There was much curiosity here to know how these demonstrations would be treated in the United States, especially in Chicago. The British press comment very freely on the conduct of the Chicago police, and the opinion is expressed that the meeting should not have been permitted, and those who took part in it should have been arrested at once and not allowed to make speeches threatening public order. The consequences of the toleration of a disorderly and dangerous element on the future of the Chicago fair are pointed out. The Globe warns Chicago to take measures for repression in time, for if anarchy is allowed a free hand very few foreigners will care to visit her wonderful exhibition. Leniency toward these avowed disturbers of the public peace could not but check the tide of success which the fair has been enjoying in this country.

GOOD WILL TO CHILL

President Harrison Receives Senor Montt's Credentials.

The Latter Says His Mission Is to Preserve Peace Between the Two Countries-The President Makes a Friendly Speech.

A CORDIAL MEETING.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 .- The United States officially recognized the new congressional government of Chili. The ceremonies incident to recognition occurred in the blue room of the executive mansion at 11:95 o'clock, a. m., Saturday when President Harrison formally received Senor Don Pedro Montt, the new minister of Chili to the United States, and the secretaries of legation.

Senor Montt, upon being presented, said his mission was to cultivate and maintain the relations of peace and friendship between the United States and Chili which have ever been close and cordial. For the accomplishment of this purpose he relied upon the kindness and good will which the United States government has always manifested for the repre-sentatives of Chili. He expressed Chili's sincere wishes for the prosperand welfare of this country, which is so highly favored by Providence, and for the president's own hap-In response President Harrison said:

"The presence of a representative of the covernment of Chili at the capital we hope government of Chili at the capital we hope will tend to promote a good understanding between the two governments and the early settlement, upon terms just and honorable to both, of the diplomatic questions now somewhat urgently awaiting adjustment. The government of the United States, as well as the people, particularly desire and rejoice in the prosperity of all its neighbors in this hemisphere. Our diplomatic relations with them have always been and neighbors in this hemisphere. Our diplomatic relations with them have always been and will continue to be free from intermedding with their national affairs. Our people are too just to desire that the commercial or political advantage of this government should be sought by the promotion of disastrous dissensions in other countries. We hear with sorrow every fresh tale of war or internal strife, and are always ready to give our friendly offices to the promotion of peace. If these are not acceptable or do not avail it is our policy to prethe promotion of peace. If these are not acceptable or do not avail it is our policy to preserve an honorable and strict neutrality, as was done during the recent war in Chilt. Tempting commercial and political advantages may be offered for our aid or influence by one or the other of the contending parties, but this we have not deemed to be consistent with obligatious of international honor and good will.

"This government was quite as determined "This government was quite as determined in its refusal to allow a war vessel of the United States to carry to a neutral port, where it could be available for war purposes, the silver of Balmaceda—as it was to give aid to the forces opposing him. The questions involved were Chilian questions, and this government endeavored to observe those principles of non-intervention upon which it had so strongly insisted when civil war disturbed our own people. I cannot doubt that this policy will commend itself to those who now administer the government of Chili, nor can I doubt that when excitement has given place to calmness, when the truth is ascertained and the selfish when the truth is ascertained and the selfish and designing perversions of recent incidents have been exposed, our respective governments will find a basis of increased mutual respect, eonfidence and friendship.

"Mr. Minister, this government and our people rejoice that peace has been restored in Chili and that its government is the expression of the free choice of its people. You may assure your honored president, who has been chosen under circumstances which so strongly testify to his moderation and to the esteem in which he is held by the people of all parties, that the government of the United States entertains only good will for him and for the people of Chill and cannot doubt that the existing and all future differences between the two govern-ments will find an honorable adjustment."

The presentation occupied about fifteen minutes and at its conclusion Secretary Blaine escorted the new minister and secretaries to the door of the executive mansion and shook each cordially by the hand.

WOMEN IN COUNCIL

Boston, Nov. 14.-A short but early service of praise and prayer preceded the formal opening of the convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union. The gatheris being held in Tremont Temple, and the immense edifice was crowded to the doors. The delegates from foreign countries to the world's convention occupied seats of honor upon the platform and in the front rows on the main floor. In addition to the foreign countries every state and territory in the United States was represented.

Miss Frances Willard, the president, opened the proceedings by presenting her annual report. The president's aldress was so long that only its salient points were read, but copies of the Union Signal containing it were distributed to the audience.

The report of the treasurer showed the receipts of the year to be $25,259 and the expenditures $25,217. The report of Mrs. Caroline J. Bull, of Connecticut, the corresponding secretary, showed the progress of the work since its inception. At the first convention in Cleveland in 1874 seventeen states were represented. At this convention fifty-one states and territories and the district of Columbia are represented. At the time of the second convention there were 4,458 members in the union. This year the membership is 158,402, a gain over last year of 10,369 members.

Boston, Nov. 16.-The pulpits of many of the churches of this city and suburbs were occupied yesterday by visiting delegates to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union convention now being held here. At Tremont Temple Lady Henry Somerset delivered the annual sermon.

Boston, Nov. 17.—The third day's session of the dual convention of the World's and the National Woman's Christian Temperance union was opened with devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. E. S. Burlingame, of Providence. Mrs. Mary Hunt, of Massachusetts, national superintendent of the department of scientific instruction, described what scientific text books were being put into the schools of the nation. Miss Lucy Kimball reported on Sundayschool work. Miss Julia Coleman presented her tifteenth annual report on temperance literature.

Mrs. E. H. Ingalls reported on the work against narcotics. One dealer old her that he sold more eigarettes o girls than to boy. The work this year will look toward the passage of a national law forbidding the manufacture of eigarettes. Opium is to be forbidden if possible.

In the afternoon Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, chairman of the board of lady managers of the world's fair, made a brief address in which she asked the cooperation of women all over the country in making the women's exhibit at the fair something that they may be proud of, and further announcing that it had been decided that there would be no separate woman's department, but that their exhibits would be displayed in company with those of the men. Banker Spear, of Chicago, who has charge of placing the bonds for the erection of the new Temperance temple, reported that one-fourth of the $600,000 required had been secured and progress had been made upon the

BOUND TO FIGHT.

The Revolt Against Fonseca in Brazil Spreading.

The Dictator Preparing to Wipe Out His Enemies—More Provinces in Insur-rection—Civil War Almost

UNHAPPY BRAZIL.

LONDON, Nov. 14 .- There is no longer any doubt that Brazil is in a state of civil war and that Dictator Fonseca is confronted by a formidable insurrec-tion. For the moment he is able, through his control of the telegraph lines, to prevent accurate news of any kind from reaching the outside world. What finds its way out is of a fragmentary character and in a difficult cipher, but that state of things cannot long continue. Enough has leaked out to show that the revolutionary movement is spreading all over the country and that several provinces are up in arms. It is also certain that a battle has been fought in which Fonseca's supporters were defeated. The interior provinces of Matto Grosso, Go yaz and Para have either already joined issues with the rest of the national party or else they are on the point of so doing. The plan of campaign of the national party is that each of the provinces of Rio Grande do Sul, Goyaz, Para, Pernambuco and Minas-Geraes, shall concentrate at a given point all the fighting men possible and make a combined forward movement upon the dictator's strongholds in Sao Paulo and Rio Janeiro. if successful they will then elect a president who will govern according to the people's laws. Fonseca, from Sao Paulo, is dispatching some of the troops he has concentrated there to the assistance of Gov. Castillo, in Rio Grande do Sul, and the national party is said to be determined, if possible, not to allow the junction of those forces to be accomplished without a struggle. be accomplished without a struggle.

If Fonseca allows the nationalists time to gather themselves together his reinforcements will have to fight their way south, and the first important engagement of the civil war may then be looked for.

A later message says that Fonseca's reinforcements are to be embarked on war vessels and transports, and that they will be sent to Rio Grande do Sul by sea. The nationalists are credited with having already made arrangements to place a force of 7,000 men, horse, foot and artillery, in the field. WASHINGTON, Nov. 17 .- Senor Mendonca, the Brazilian minister, has received the following cablegram:

"Rio, Nov. 14.—Affirm that complete tranquillity reigns in all the states except Rio Grande, where conflicts provoked by questions pertaining to local politics occurred, with which, in virtue of the constitution, the federal government could not interfere, Deny rumors of secession: the idea is condemned by all Beazillans. Affirm that no state thinks of seceding; deny that members of the dissolved seceding; deny that members of the dissolved congress are in foreign legations as refugees; nearly all the members of congress returned to their states. Those who remain here go about the city at liberty. Thus far the government has taken no violent measure. A day will be set for the election and congress convoked to meet immediately after. CHERMONT."

A CYCLONE'S WORK.

Great Damage Done and Lives Lost in the Argentine Republic.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17 .- Reports from Beunos Ayres say that the great storm of last Friday which passed over the province of Sante Fe destroyed the town of Arrogo Seco. The number of deaths is reported to be ten and wounded seventy.

Besides Arroyo Seco several other villages in the vicinity of Rosario were destroyed. Wind and hail played havoc with the crops throughout the province. The losses, it is said, will mount up into millions of dollars. Half a mile of rails between Roserio and Buenos Ayres were torn up by the cyclone.

A Good Record. WASHINGTON, Nov. 14 .- J. A. Dumont, supervising inspector general of steam vessels in the treasury department, reports that during the past fiscal year there were thirty-three accidents, in which 336 lives were lost. It was estimated that 600,000,000 passengers were carried during the year, making one life lost to each 1,755,457 passengers

Cucumber Elder Flower Cream

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beauties. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind and prevents sun burn and freckles, and blackheads will never come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of winkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali, and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price 8: 00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 103 Post Street, San Francisco, where she treats ladles for all blemishes of the face or figure. THE zeal of the Washtenaw Times in insisting upon the purchase of street signs is commendable. Under present conditions, it is much easier for a labor vote the Conservatives are urged stranger to find a place in Detroit than it is in Ann Arbor.

THE Farmers' National Congress at Sedalia, Mo., has endorsed the prin- tive, but what's in a name, when votes ciple of reciprocity and demanded the free coinage of 100-cent dollars. By this action they have risen from the level of Sockless Simpson to that of James G. Blaine and John Sherman.

good man, in many respects, but he is not to be mentioned in the same breath with John Sherman. It is strange that any of the leading Republican papers of Ohio should wish to make the former senator in place of the latter. The politicians may favor the flery tongue-lasher, but it is certain that the people prefer the statesman.

In the report of the council proceedings this week will be found a letter from a competent engineer who effectually disposes of the question relating to the discharge of sewage into the river. The facts and figures adduced by him, as well as by the council committee, can leave no doubt but that the Huron river is able to carry away the sewage of a much larger population than Ann Arbor has at present or is likely to have for a number of years to

THE evident fai ure of the new mortgage tax law to accomplish its purpose but confirms a principle long held by political economists. If you attempt to tax the lender he will invariably impose a burden upon the borrower by raising the rate of interest, or retard the development of industry by refusing to invest his money at all. It is unfortunate that this should be the case. but it is hardly to be wondered at under our present imperfect social and industrial system.

The action of the council Monday would be very encouraging were it not for the fact that it opens up a question which had been generally regarded as settled by Prof. Greene's report. The proposed increase in the size of the sewer pipes, so as to allow the carrying of surface water, in the opinion of THE REGISTER, would be not only unnecessary but extravagant. Ann Arbor does not need surface drainage, with its excellent grades and gutters and its porous soil. Moreover, the cost of thirty-inch sewers for the distance proposed would be so great as seriously to prejudice the minds of voters against the whole sewerage project. THE REGISTER does not believe that a change in the system proposed by Prof. Greene would be

It is altogether likely that Roger Q. Mills will be the next speaker of the House of Representatives. THE act providing for indeterminate entences of prisoners, which was passed by the legislature of 1889, has been declared unconstitutional. The act conferred upon prison inspectors the power to regulate the terms of criminals according to good behavior and signs of reformation. The principle is wise in many respects but, as stated by the court, it confers a dangerous power apon mere appointive officers and infringes upon the governor's prerogative of pardon. As a general rule, the terms of prisoners are not likely to be made

THE Englishman is a master of diplomacy. The part that he took in fomenting the Chilean trouble is well known. Now it is ascertained that he has been busying himself in furnishing exaggerated reports of the difficulties in Brazil, hoping in that way to reap advantages n speculation. The Englishman, indeed, is omni-present. At the same moment, he regulates Australian politics, stirs up the South American republics, gains a march upon some rival in Africa and furnishes the free-trade press of America with intellectual as well as financial inspiration. When John Bull is at work, it is well for the rest of the world to "keep its eyes

What's in a name? Not very much when that name is applied to political parties. The Democratic party in this country at one time favored the enslavement of human beings. At the present time it elects an unscrupulous nillionaire governor of New York and elevates a rich New York speculator to the position of senator from Ohio. In England a similar phenomenon may be noticed. The Conservative party has just drafted a platform which calls for the extension of local government, the promotion of technical education and a more fair apportionment of representatives in Ireland, and favors the extension of the franchise to women who are land-owners or house-occupants, the a member of the cabinet and legislation to enable local authorities to acquire land for the purpose of facilitating the creation of small rural holdings. As a further concession to the to support labor candidates whenever an opportunity affords. To an unprejudiced mind this political program would appear anything but conservaare aimed at?

The Regents' Meeting.

The most important business transacted yesterday related to the hospital, It was decided to establish a training school for nurses, with not more than eight pupils, at a compensation of $50 each per annum. The hospital will be run through the vacation as well as the school year, the assistants to the professors being placed in charge. The regents laid on the table the request of the city authorities that a free bed be maintained, giving as a reason that the University could not afford the ex-

A production of unusual magnitude will be given at the Grand Opera House next Friday evening, Lincoln J. Carter's superb scenic melodrams, "The Fast Mail. As the name indicates, it deals largely with the railroad in its incidents, but it presents an abundance of effects that are daring in their magnitude and admirable in their execution. The steamboat is said to be a wonder of clever conception and masterly mechanical work, and the railroad scene, with its trains going at a terrific rate of speed, makes the stage seem like a piece of reality. The Niagara Falls scene is wonderfully beautiful, and it may safely be said is more elaborate than anything of the kind ever before attempted in this city. There are a multitude of minor effects that contribute to make the performance a revelation of realism. The whistles, bells and splashing are heard as the boat leaves the wharf. The sounds that tell us of an approaching train herald the approach of the freight and the fast mail train—the lattreight and the last mail train—the inter rushing by with people gazing from the window at the heroine who has just saved her lover's life by fastening a letter to the mail pouch. The rosring of Niagara Falls is heard, and the mist that rises from it is shown vividly. The play is under the personal direc-tion of L. J. Carter, the author. The play is startling at times in the intensity of its climaxes, and these, when presented with all the effects of the intricate stage settings, bring the interest to a degree that is rarely attained even in the melodrama. A large number of people are employed in the production, which is in many particulars plainly the result of care and skill combined.

DR. FRUTH, SPECIALIST.

His Wonderful Practice. Dr. Fruth, late of New York City, now of Chicago, has for several years devoted his undivided attention to the sundy and treatment of chronic diseases the eye and ear and has enjoyed advan-tages which fall to the lot of but few. The doctor has not only taken a thorough course of study in medical science, having attended full courses of study in the best medical schools in the country, but after graduating had ex-tensive experience in hospital practice, where diseases of every description and chronic maladies of every kind were brought to his notice. Physicians in general practice are seldom prepared with the necessary costly on fit to examine correctly or treat with success many chronic diseases. Such cases would do well to call at once and learn their tree condition and their changes. their true condition and their chances for a cure. No invalid who values health and happiness can afford to lose the opportunity of consulting him be-fore the diseases from which they are suffering become incurable. Dr. Fruth will be at the Cook House Thursday, November 26.

Dr. Price gives larger and fuller cans than those of any other Baking Powder manufacturer.

Above cut represents the comparative size of one pound can each Dr. Price's," Royal" and "Taylor's One Spoon." These cans were et side by side, then photographed down in exact proportions to mit the plate in this space. Ask your grocer to set a one pound an of any other brand alongside 1 lb. Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, and observe the difference, as illustrated above

Adulterated powders may usually be detected by their heavier bulk, as shown by the small cans, and these scantily filled, often containing a circular to help fill out the cans. It is a singular fact that many of the ammonia and alum baking powders are advertised as "Absolutely Pure," All official examinations prove that it would be safe to reject all powders labeled absolutely pure.

The economy in using Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder does not consist alone in the fact that much larger and fuller cans are given, but Dr. Price's is a stronger, purer and more wholesome baking powder than any other known. Does better work, and goes farther, hence more economical in every way.

What woman would use an ammonia or alum baking powder if she knew it? Such powders not only undermine the health, but ammonia gives to the complexion a sallow and blotched appearance.

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is reported by all authorities as free from ammonia, alum, lime, or any other adulterant. The purity of this ideal powder has never been are, as usual, excellent reading, varied to meet all classes of the better intellectual taste. Charles Lowe contributes a very readable article under the name of "The New Emperor and his New Chancellor" on the present regime of the German empire, and D. Christie Murray, the eminent novelist, has another article on Australia, very racy and incisive in its criticism. Froude, the historian, is the author of a fascinating essay on "The Story of the Spanish Armada," told from the Spanis side, the first of several which will be found of absorbing interest. Other articles of equal interest complete the number.-Published by E. R. Pelton, 144 Eighth Street, New York.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

In music, melody is wholly modern. The ancients had no tunes in any sense comparable to our modern melodies. The Gregorian music, which may be heard in some high church choirs, and which would be stupid without its grand harmonies, was the first serious attempt to develop melody in singing.

To Young Mothers, who are for the first time to undergo woman's severest trial, we offer you, not the stupor caused by chloroform, with risk of death for yourself or your dearly-loyed and longed-for offspring, but "Mother's Friend," a remedy which will, if used as directed, invariably alleviate the pains, horrors and risks of labor, and often entirely do away with them. Sold by all druggists.

Sings Sweetly Though Nearly 80 Years Old. Mrs. Emma Bostwick, once known as the American Jenny Lind, has probably retained her voice to a greater age than any other public singer. She is now seventy-seven years old, but her voice is still pure and fresh, and she sings in admirable time and tune. She is the daughter of an English violinist, named Gillingham, and began her career on the concert stage when only twelve years of age. By the time she was twenty she was widely and favorably known. Her voice had a range of three octaves. Theodore Thomas, then a rising young violinist, was among those who took part in her concerts.

She was married in 1836, but did not retire from the concert stage. For a number of years she was the soloist of the New York Philharmonic society. She has never sung in opera, and the wonderful preservation of her voice is to be attributed partly to that, and partly to the care she has observed in her diet and mode of life.-Exchange.

Our Two Orange States.

In the United States oranges and lemons are produced only in California and Florida. The orange crop of the latter is practically out of the way before that of the former is ready for the market. The California orange is of slower growth than the Florida product and does not decay so soon. The orange season in California lasts five months, beginning Jan. 1, and it will be prolonged in future, as the people are planting Valencia oranges, which do not ripen till July. The lemon is more sensitive to frost than the orange, and it is produced with more difficulty in Florida than in sonthern California, for the reason that the former state is more subject to frost.-L. A. Sheldon in Forum.

The region in the vicinity of the northern extremity of the Gulf of California is inhabited by a rare and terrible creature—a member of the lizard tribecalled the "Maneater of the Gulf." He is hardly large enough to warrant his awe inspiring name, being only about fifteen inches long, but is one of the most poisonous creatures known to naturalsts. He is a member of the lizard family, some akin to the famed Gila Monster, and his body is almost as brittle as glass.-St. Louis Republic.

There is a curious instance of an echo at Tatenhill, Staffordshire. The tower of the church there has an echo that re peats five times the syllables uttered at the centrum phonicum, which is about seventy yards distance. Whispering galleries can scarcely be considered any thing but odd items in our sacred edifices. Of these there are examples in Oloucester cathedral and St. Paul's .-Gentleman's Magazine.

The newest occupation for women is said to be that of superintendent of weddings. The superintendent, who is usually a youngish woman, is installed in the house of the bride to be some time before the ceremony. She selects the trousseau, advices what is latest and finest in underwear, buys the material and designs, and makes or superintends the making of the gowns, knows all about stockings, boots, gloves laces and handkerchiefs, sees the mil linery and jackets and wraps, tells the bride's mother and sisters what to wear, dictates to the brides maids, thinks of everything, and lets the engaged couple enjoy themselves with unanxious minds.

It was all out now. He had spoken his It was all out now. He had spoken his inmost mind. They had stopped again, and she was looking at him intently; it struck him that he could not possibly have said what he had been saying unless be had been led on by an instinctive dependence upon a great magnanimity of nature in her. And then the next moment the strange opposites the matter held in it flashed across him. He saw the crowded theatre, the white figure on saw the crowded theatre, the white figure on the stage; his ear seemed to be full of the clamor of praise with which London had been overwhelming its favorite. It was to this sport the school master, he are continued playing the schoolmaster—he, one captious man of letters, against the world.

But she had not a thought of the kind, or rather the situation presented itself to her in spacify the contrary light. To her Kendal's words, instead of being those of a single critic, were the voice and the embodiment of a hundred converging impressions and sensa-tions, and she felt a relief in having analyzed to the full the vague trouble which had been settling upon her by this unraveling of her wn feelings and his.

"I am very grateful to you," she said steadily; "very. It is strange, but almost when I first saw you I felt that there was omething ominous in you to me. My dream in which I have been living has never been so perfect since, and now I think it has gone. Don't look so grieved," she cried, inexpressibly touched by his face. "I am glad you told me all you thought. It will be a help to me. And as for poor Elvira," she added, trying to smile, for all her extreme paleness, tell Mr. Wallace I give her up. I am not vexed. I am not angry. Don't you think now we had better go back to Mrs. Stuart? should like a rest with her before we all neet again."

She moved forward as she spoke, and it seemed to Kendal that her step was unsteady and that she was deadly white. He planted himself before her in the descending path and held out a hand to help her. She gave nim her own, and he carried it impetuously to his lips.

"You are nobleness itself!" he cried, from the depths of his heart. "I feel as if I had been the merest pedant blunderer—the most incapable, clumsy idiot."

She smiled, but she could not answer. And in a few more moments voices and steps sould be heard approaching, and the scene

CHAPTER VI.

The Sunday party separated at Padding-ton on the night of the Nuneham expedition, and Wallace and Eustace Kendal walked eastward together. The journey home had been very quiet. Miss Bretherton had been forced to declare herself "extremely tired," and Mrs. Stuart's auxiety and sense of re-sponsibility about her had communicated themselves to the rest of the party.

"It is the effect of my long day yesterday," she said-apologetically to Forbes, who hov-ered about her with those affectionate atten-tions which a man on the verge of old age pays with freedom to a young girl. "It would do let the public season much of me. pays with freedom to a young girl. "It won't do to let the public see so much of me in future. But I don't want to spoil our Sunday. Talk to me and I shall forget it."

Wallace, who had had his eyes about him when she and Eustace Kendal emerged from the wood in view of the rest of the party, was castless and ill at ease, but there was no setting any information, even by gesture, from Kendal, who sat in his corner diligently watching the moonlight on the flying fields, or making every now and then some disjointed attempts at conversation with Mrs. Struct

At the station Miss Bretherton's carriage was waiting; the party of gentlemen saw her and Mrs. Stuart, who insisted on taking her home, into it; the pale, smiling face bent forward; she waved her hand in response to

"Well," said Wallace, with a world of inquiry in his voice, as he and Kendal turned eastward.

"It has been an unfortunate business," said Kendal abruptly. "I never did a thing worse, I think, or spent a more painful half

Wallace's face fell. "I wish I hadn't bored you with my confounded affairs," he ex-claimed. "It was too bad!"

Kendal was inclined to agree inwardly, for he was in a state of irritable reaction; but he had the justice to add aloud: "It was I who was the fool to undertake it. And I think, indeed, it could have been done, but that circumstances, which neither you nor I had weighed sufficiently, were against it. She is in a nervous, shaken state, mentally an physically, an I before I had had time to di cuss the point at all she had carried it on c the personal ground, and the thing was up."

"She is deeply offended, then?" "Not at all, in the ordinary sense; she is too fine a creature; but she talked of the 'contempt' that you and I feel for her!"

"Good heavens!" cried Wallace, feeling most unjustly persuaded that his friend had bungled the matter horribly.

"Yes," said Kendal deliberately; "'con-tempt,' that was it. I don't know how it came about. All I know is, that what I said, which seemed to me very harmless, was like a match to a mine. But she told me to tell you that she made no further claim on 'Elvira.' So the play is safe."

"D--- the play!" pried Wellace vigorously, a sentiment to which perhaps Kendal's silence gave consent. "But I cannot let it rest there. I must write to her."

"I don't think I would, if I were you," said Kendal. "I should let it alone. She looks upon the matter as finished. She told me vexed, and you may be quite sure that she was not vexed, and you may be quite sure that she isn't, in any vulgar sense. Perhaps that makes it all the worse. However, you've a right to know what happened, so I'll tell you see for as I represent." as far as I remember."

as far as I remember."

He gave an abridged account of the conversation, which made matters a little clearer, though by no means less uncomfortable, to Wallace. When it was over they were nearing Vigo street, the point at which their routes diverged, Wallace having rooms in the Albany, and Kendal hailed a hansom. "If I were you," he said, as it came up, "I should, as I said before, let the thing alone as much as possible. She will probably speak as much as possible. She will probably speak to you about it, and you will, of course, say what you like, but I'm pretty sure she won't take up the play again, and if she feels a coolness towards anybody it won't be toward you."

"There's small consolation in that!" ex-things will look differently to-morrow morning—they generally do—there's no tremend-ous harm done. I'm sorry I didn't do your bidding better. Honestly, when I come to think over it, I don't see how I could have done otherwise. But I don't expect you to think so."

Wallace laughed, protested and they

A few moments later Kendal let himself into his rooms, where lights were burning, and threw himself into his reading chair, beside which his books and papers stood ready to his hand. Generally nothing gave him a greater sense of bien-etre than this nightly return, after a day spent in society, to these silent and faithful companions of his life. He was accustomed to feel the atmosphere of his room when he came back to it charged with welcome. It was as though the thoughts and schemes he had left warm and safe in shelter there started to life and safe in shelter there started to life again after a day's torpor, and thronged to meet him. His books smiled at him with friendly faces, the open page called to him to resume the work of the morning—he was in every sense at home. To-night, however, the familiar spell seemed to have lost its force. After a hasty supper he took up some proofs, pen in hand. But the first page was hardly turned before they had page was hardly turned before they had dropped on to his knee. It seemed to him as if he still felt on his arm the folds of a green, fur edged cloak, as if the touch of a soft, cold hand were still lingering in his. Presently he fell to recalling every detail of the afternoon scene—the arching beech trees, the rich red and brown of the earth beneath, tinged with the winter sheddings of the trees, the little raised bank, her eyes as she looked up at him, the soft wispa of her golden brown hair under her hat. What superb, unap-proachable beauty it was! How living, how ich in content and expression!

"Am I in love with Isabel Bretherton" he asked himself at last, lying back on his chair with his eyes on the portrait of his sister. "Perhaps Marie could tell me—I don't understand myself. I don't think so. And if I were, I am not a youngster, and my life is a tolerably full one. I could hold myself in tolerably full one. I could hold myself in and trample it down if it were best to do so. I can hardly imagine myself absorbed in a great passion. My bachelor life is a good many years old—my habits won't break up easily. And, supposing I felt the beginnings of it, I could stop it if reason were against it." He left his chair and began to pace up and down the room, thinking. "And there is absolutely no sort of reason in my letting myself full in love with Lephs Brotherston. She self fall in love with Isabel Bretherton! She has never given me the smallest right to think that she takes any more interest in me than she does in hundreds of people whom she meets on friendly terms, unless it may be an intellectual interest, as Wallace imagines, and that's a poor sort of stepping stone to love! And if it were ever possible that she should, this afternoon has taken away the possibility. For, however magnanimous a possibility. For, however magnammous a woman may be, a thing like that rankles; it can't help it. She will feel the sting of it worse to-morrow than today, and though she will tell herself that she bears no grudge, it will leave a gulf between us. For, of course, she must go on acting, and whatever depressions she may have, she must believe in herself; no one can go on working without it, and I shall always recall to her something harsh and humiliating!

"Supposing, by any chance, it were not so —supposing I were able to gather up my relation with her again and make it a really friendly one—I should take, I think, a very definite line; I should make up my mind to be of use to her. After all, it is true what she says—there are many things in me that might be helpful to her, and everything there was she should have the benefit of. I would make a serious purpose of it. She should find me a friend worth having."

His thoughts wandered on a while in this direction. It was pleasant to see himself in the future as Miss Bretherton's philosopher and friend, but in the end the sense of reality gained upon his dreams. "I am a fool," he said to himself resolutely at last, "and I may as well go to bed and put her out of my mind. The chance is over—gone—done with, if it ever existed."

The next morning, on coming down to breakfast, he saw among his letters a hand-writing which startled him. Where had he seen it before? In Wallace's hand three days ago? He opened it and found the following an off next week—on Monday, if all goes well.

We go to Switzerland for a while, and then to Venice, which people tell me is often very pleasant in August. We shall be there by the 1st of August, and Mr. Wallace tells me he hears from you that your sister, Madame de Chateauvieux, will be there about the same time. I forgot to ask you yesterday, but if you think she would not object to it, would you give me a little note introducing me to her? All that I have heard of her makes me very amdous to know her, and she would not find me a troublesome person! We shall hardly, I suppose, meet again before I start. If not, please remember that my friends can always find me on 8 afternoon. Yours very truly, is hand closed tightly over the note.

The he put it carefully back into its enveope, and walked away with his hands behind him and the note in them, to stare out of window at the rote in them, to stare out of window at the red roofs opposite.

"That is like her," he murmured to himself; "I wound and hurt her; she guesses I shall suffer for it, and, by way of setting up the friendly bond again, next day, without a word, she asks me to do her a kindness! could anything be more delicate, more gracould anything be more delicate, more gra-

Kendal never had greater difficulty in fixing his thoughts to his work than that morning, and at last, in despair, he pushed his book aside, and wrote an answer to Miss Bretherton, and, when that was accomplished, a long letter to his sister. The first took him longer than its brevity seemed to justify. It contained no reference to anything but her request. He felt a compulsion upon him to treat the situation exactly as she had done, but, given this limitation, how much cordiality and respect could two sides of letter paper be made to carry with due regard to ecorum and grammar!

When he next met Wallace, that hopeful, When he next met Wallace, that hopeful, bright tempered person had entirely recovered his cheerfulness. Miss Bretherton, he reported, had attacked the subject of Elvira with him, but so lightly that he had no opportunity for saying any of the skillful things he had prepared.

"She evidently did not want the question seriously opened," he said, "so I followed your advice and let it alone, and since then she has been charming both to Agnes and me. I feel myself as much of a brute as

me. I feel myself as much of a brute as ever, but I see that the only thing I can do is hold my tongue about it." To which Kendal heartily agreed.

A few days afterwards the newspapers gave a prominent place to reports of Miss Bretherton's farewell performance. It had been a great social event. Half the distinguished people in London were present, led by reverley. London in fact could hardly by royalty. London, in fact, could hardly bear to part with its favorite, and compliments, flowers and farewells showered upon her. Kendal, who had not meant to go at the time when tickets were to be had, tried about the middle of the week after the Uxford Sunday to get a seat, but found it utclaimed Wallace.

"Anyhow, make the best of it, my dear fellow," said Kendal, as though determined to strike a lighter key. "Don't be so dismal."

The might have managed it by applying to her through Edward Wallace, but that he was unwilling to do for various reasons. He told himself that, after all, It was nector to let her little note and his answer close his relations with her for the present. Everywhere else but in the theatrhe might still regard him as her friend; but there they could not but be antagonistic in some degree one to another, and not even inellectually did Kendal wish just now to meet her on a footing of antagonism. So, when Saturday night came, he passed the hours of Miss Bretherton's triumph at a ministerial evening party, where it seemed to him that the air was full of her name, and that half the guests were there as a pis-aller, because the Calliope could not receive them. And yet he thought he noticed in the com-mon talk about her that criticism of her as an actress was a good deal more general than it had been at the beginning of the season. The little knot of persons with an opinion and reasons for it had gradually influenced the larger public: Nevertheless there was no abatement whatever of the records desire to abatement whatever of the popular desire to see her, whether on the stage or in society. The engouement for her personally, for her beauty, and her fresh, pure womanliness, showed no signs of yielding, and would hold out, Kendal thought, for some time, against a much stronger current of depreciation on the intellectual side than had as yet set in.

He laid down the Monday paper with a smile of self scorn and muttered: "I should like to know how much she remembers by the time of the prig who lectured to her in Nuneham woods a week ago!" In the evening his Pall Mall Gazette told him that Miss Bretherton had crossed the channel that morning, en route for Paris and Venice. He fell to calculating the weeks which must elapse before his sister would be in Venice, and before he could hear of any meeting be-tween her and the Bretherton party, and wound up his calculations by deciding that London was already hot and would soon be empty, and that, as soon as he could gather together certain books he was in want of, he would carry them and his proofs down into Surrey, refuse all invitations to country houses, and devote himself to his work

Before he left he paid a farewell call to Mrs. Stuart, who gave him full and enthusiastic accounts of Isabel Bretherton's last night, and informed him that her brother talked of following the Brethertons to Venice some time in August. "Albert," she said, speaking of her husband, "declares that he cannot get away for more than three weeks, and that he must have some walking; so that what we propose at present is to pick up Edward at Venice at the end of August, and move up altogether into the mountains afterward. Oh, Mr. Kendal," she went on, a little nervously, as if not quite knowing whether to attack the subject or not, "it was devoted of you to throw yourself into the breach for Edward as you did at Oxford. I am afraid it must have been very disagreeable, both to you and to her. When Edward told me of it next morning it made me cold to think of it. I made up my mind that our friendship—yours and ours—with her was over. But do you know she came to call on me that very afterno how she made time I don't know, but she did. Naturally, I was very uncomfortable, but she began to talk of it in the calmest way while we were having tea. 'Mr. Kendal was probably quite right, she said, in thinking the part unsuited to me. Anyhow, I asked him for his opinion, and I should be a poor creature to mind his giving it.' And then she laughed and said that I must ask Edward to keep his eyes open for anything that would do better for her in the autumn. And since then she has behaved as if she had forgotten all about it. I never knew any one with less smallness about her."

A new trick is being played in this city. The modus operandi is as follows: A practical joker takes a new quarter, carefully covers it with tin foil and when an opportunity offers, throws it before his victim. The latter notices that something is wrong and concludes that the money is counterfeit. The joker then protests vehemently and bets him a certain sum, say a dollar that it is perfectly good; the victim, of course, readily accepts the wager—and he joker is $1.00 ahead.

Four young framps were arrested Saturday night near the Michigan Central yards. What promises to be the greatest attempt in the era of realism will be seen at the Grand Opera House, next Friday evening, in the melodrama of Lincoln J. Carter's "Fast Mail." The play is famous throughout the country for the completeness and magnitude of its mechanical effects. The production is under the personal supervision of its author, Lincoln J. Carter. Special scenery is carried for the ten complete sets used in the play. In the second act a steam-boat is shown with the boiler rooms and their intricate machinery, and the glowing furnaces. The boat is blown up by a tremendous explosion, and the wreck is seen going down in mid river. The great railway scene is another of the unprecedented achievements of their performance in the direction of realism. A freight train of fourteen cars is run across the stage with an illuminated caboose and a practical loco-motive. The fireman and engineer, seen at their respective stations, look like reality itself. A mail train comes speeding by and catches the mail pouch

In the last act Niagara Falls are shown in all their natural beauty. A cataract of real water is put on the stage, and it boils and foams in the most natural way. The soft moonlight adds to the effect, and the scene needs only the addition of the suspension bridge to com-plete the effect of reality.
