WHOLE NO. 885

THE MAJESTY OF THE LAW.

NOW AGAIN INVOKED BY THOSE WHO CANNOT AGREE.

A Matter of Social Standing Introduced into a Law Case—What has been Done up to Date during the December Term of Court.

Is social standing to be recognized in courts of law? This is a fair question which has been raised in a bill of complaint recently filed in the county clerk's office. Joseph McMahon, of Manchester, died a few months ago, leaving a will which bequeathed to his children property amounting to $24,000.

The son, John A. McMahon, it is claimed, secured an undue advantage, and the administrator has brought suit against him on behalf of the other heirs. In the fifteenth paragraph of the bill of complaint it is alleged that the daughters of the late Joseph McMahon are "women of good repute and excellent attainments and move in the best of society." That said Louise Campbell is wife of Prof. G. Campbell, professor of moral and intellectual philosophy in Dartmouth college, at Hanover, New Hampshire, and there residing, and that Jennie Lamb is the wife of James Lamb, a respected and well-to-do farmer of said township of Manchester and that L. S. McMahon is a teacher in the state normal school at Ypsilanti and the said Ann Gaige is the wife of Prof. F. S. Gaige, a graduate of the University of Michigan and residing in Ann Arbor." And then follows something disparaging to the son, John A. McMahon.

The answer to this bill of complaint is from the pen of John F. Lawrence, the defendant's attorney. It refers in the fourteenth paragraph to the fact that the original bill styled complainants "ladies of high social standing; that one of them, Louise Campbell by name had the rare good fortune to marry a professor of moral and intellectual philosophy at Dartmouth college at Hanover, N. Y., and that she is still residing there, that another sister, Ann Gaige, is to be addressed as Mrs. Prof. Gaige, of the University of Michigan located at Ann Arbor, U. S. A. This defendant says that he has the necessary humility to appreciate the chasm which yawns between the family of a professor and the common people of the world; however, he has been unable to discover the bearing that fact, that his sisters have married professors, can have on the merits of this contention, and therefore he neither admits nor denies that his sisters have married real professors, and leaves the complainant to offer such proof in this important subject as he may deem fit."

The public will wait anxiously the decision of the jury.

BEFORE JUDGE KINNE.
The December term of the circuit court convened on Monday last, with Judge Kinne on the bench. The calendar was reviewed and a large number of cases were continued or settled.

Edward Norton, charged with assault and battery on Millard F. Clements, pleaded guilty and paid $5.00 fine.

Edgar Fisher, charged with forgery, refused to plead and E. B. Norris was appointed his defendant.

The rape case against Matthews and Gow was continued till the first day of the next term. The bond of Gow having been forfeited, his re-arrest was ordered.

All of the celebrated "sugar cases" were again continued. The same disposition was made of the following cases: Eugene Oesterlin vs. Andrew Muehlig, Liesemer vs. Burg, Jacob Mack vs. Frank Sharpe, John J. Robinson vs. Chas. H. Richmond, Alice Waite vs. Frank Waite Phelps. The criminal case of the People vs. Francis Gould was also continued. It will be remembered that Gould is charged with rape on his own daughter.

The following cases were settled: Newton Pruden vs. George Goodwin, appeal of J. G. Lutz vs. F. G. Lutz in the matter of the estate of G. J. Lutz deceased.

In the case against John Schmid, charged with unlawfully killing birds, a nolle prosequi was entered. Jacob Dupper, the saloonkeeper, having paid the liquor tax, was dismissed.

Opportunity was given in the cases of Charles Combs vs. H. Densmore and E. A. Hauser vs. Robert S. Baty for bills of exception to be filed.

The case of Chas. Stollsteimer against his son, John Stollsteimer, was decided yesterday. The plaintiff was given a verdict of $537.28.

Profitable Lectures.
The lectures of the Rev. John Fulton before the Hobart Guild have been both interesting and profitable. Dr. Fulton has evidently devoted much time to both theological and historical research and treats his subject in a very logical manner. He will lecture tomorrow night in Harris Hall and on Sunday night in St. Andrew's church.

The "Point" Went Through.

Alderman Ferguson is happy. At the council meeting Monday the council voted to extend Summit-st from Beakes to Detroit-st and to do away with the "point." The gas company's lot will be purchased entire. Thus Detroit-st will be widened and made more convenient for teams. The proposed improvement is to cost not more than $300.

The bids submitted by the electric light company called for eighty lamps at $81 apiece, to burn 265 nights a year until 12:30 a. m. The bid was referred.

The committee appointed to confer with property-owners regarding the proposed extension of south Fourth-ave asked further time.

The matter of free beds in the new hospital came up, and further time was granted to the committee. The usual monthly reports of officers were received.

Complaint having been made with reference to the failure to light the court house clock, the lighting committee was asked to investigate the matter.

The thanks of the council were extended to Congressman Gorman for two United States maps which had been presented to the city.

The mayor was authorized to appoint D. Bycraft and Robert Leonard special policemen at the opera house, without cost to the city.

Upon motion of Alderman Fillmore, a special committee, consisting of Alderman Fillmore, Martin, O'Hearn, Wines and Hall, was appointed to examine the evidence in the case, now pending, of Adolph Kemper vs. the city of Ann Arbor, and the committee was given power to hire additional counsel in case it should be deemed necessary.

So many persons having failed to build the sidewalks that were ordered, the board of public works were requested, by resolution, to investigate the matter.

It was decided that the members of the council should confer on Wednesday afternoon with the state railroad commissioner with reference to the proposed gates on the streets crossed by the Toledo road.

The word sewerage was not mentioned in the council meeting.

The Proposed Five-Mile Act.

An important temperance meeting was held Sunday morning in Newberry Hall. Prof. J. B. Steere read a paper on "Ann Arbor, the University and Saloons," in which he spoke strongly against the local saloon evil and the dangers to which the morals of students were subjected. He thought that under present conditions it would be difficult to secure a strong enforcement of the liquor laws. He believed that drunkenness is on the increase in Ann Arbor. The only means of remedying this state of affairs, he thought, was to apply to the people of the state and secure the passage of a five-mile act. This law should be enforced by a state constable specially appointed. He examined critically several arguments which had been given in opposition to the proposed act.

More specifically, the points made by Prof. Steere were as follows:

A. 1. There are 3,000 students in Ann Arbor, most of them minors, the average age of those in the high school being seventeen and of those in the University twenty. 2. They are away from their natural protectors. 3. They unite in dangerous mobs, societies, clubs, etc. 4. They are too numerous to be in any way looked after, outside of class rooms, by the authorities of the University. 5. They are already dangerously affected by drink.

B. There are thirty-eight saloons in Ann Arbor. 1. All are law breakers. 2. They are especially anxious to sell to students. 3. They are in many cases in league with gambling places and houses of ill fame.

C. The city government. 1. The balance of power lies in the hands of citizens of foreign birth in five wards out of six. 2. These citizens are opposed to the enforcement of restrictive liquor laws. 3. This is a state of affairs which will require a generation to modify.

D. The state. 1. It owns and rules the University. 2. It is its duty to protect its children from local conditions of injury. 3. It can do this by a five-mile law and a state constable.

After several remarks a resolution was offered, calling upon the ministers of the state to speak of the reform from their pulpits and do all in their power to elect a favorable state legislature. It was further resolved that a committee be appointed to secure the publication of Prof. Steere's address.

On Sunday afternoon next, at Newberry Hall, the various ministers of the city will meet together at three o'clock for the purpose of agitating the temperance question.

The self educated are marked by stubborn peculiarities.—Isaac Disraeli.

R. A. Hall has been elected president of the Jeffersonian society.

T. E. Robinson, pharmac '92, has been elected base ball manager.

The able anniversary report of President Angell has been published in pamphlet form. It was printed by the Register Publishing Company.

Prof. F. N. Scott lectured in Chicago Thursday evening on "How to Read the Newspaper." He delivered the same lecture Friday evening in Freeport, Ill.

Prof. Nathan Abbott lectured Tuesday before the Webster society on the "Students of Law in Dickens' Novels." Music was furnished by the Ann Arbor Banjo and Guitar club.

An interesting program was given by the Jeffersonian society Friday evening. The debate on the subject, "Resolved that selfishness is a greater civilization than benevolence," was not formally decided.

Tomorrow evening a pronouncing contest will be held under the auspices of the Oratorical Association. Twenty-four persons from both the law and literary departments will take part. Prof. Knowlton and Scott will act as referees.

The Independent caucus Saturday morning resulted in the nomination of the following candidates: President, Van Tuyle; vice president, Miss Taylor; secretary, Miss Goodrich; treasurer, Mr. Davis; orator, Mr. Holt; historian, Mr. Grimes; poetess, Miss Crisman; prophetess, Miss Post; toast master, Mr. Russell. In the afternoon an attempt was made to elect officers, but mischievous sophomores invaded the room and it was impossible to elect any officers after the orator.

For Christian Unity.
Rev. Dr. Frank Russell, field secretary of the Evangelical Alliance, will address a meeting of our Christian people at the Congregational church, Friday evening, December 11. It is expected that plans will be made for a religious census of Ann Arbor in order that families not enjoying religious privileges may be given special attention. Under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance, Dr. L. T. Chamberlin, of New York City, will deliver an address, Sunday evening in the Presbyterian church, on the "Necessity of Co-operation among the Christian Forces in our Communities."

The Annual Meeting.

Prof. Emil Baur furnishes the following report of the business done on Saturday last by the Washtenaw Horticultural Society: President J. Austin Scott's address was full of good humor and of good will toward the society, which he had served so faithfully during the year.

The reports by the recording and corresponding secretaries and treasurer were adopted and accepted.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the officers of the society in acknowledgement of their services during the year.

The following officers were unanimously elected for the coming year: J. Austin Scott, president; Evert H. Scott, first vice-president; J. J. Parshall, Wm. McCreery, vice-presidents; J. Ganzhorn, recording secretary; E. Baur, corresponding secretary; J. Allmand, treasurer. Executive committee, Wm. F. Bird, A. A. Crozier, J. C. Schenk, H. C. Markham, Prof. J. B. Steere, office of Ornithology; Prof. M. W. Harrington, Climatology; Prof. V. M. Spalding, Botany; Prof. V. C. Vaughan, Hygiene; Mr. A. A. Crozier, Entomology.

W. F. Bird gave a very interesting account of the annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society at Eaton Rapids. Mr. Bird showed 13 varieties of grapes at said meeting. Washtenaw was well represented by Messrs. Evert H. Scott, A. A. Crozier.

The Columbian fair will outdo the Centennial and Paris fairs in the exhibits of pomology and horticulture. The building for that display will be 1,000x280 feet. Michigan devotes $100,000 for this exhibit. Every fruit grower is expected to assist in this great exhibit without any remuneration. The banquet given by the citizens of Eaton Rapids to the state society was a most happy and cheerful conclusion of this successful meeting. The Austin apple, exhibited at this meeting, was pronounced the best for its season. I wish to correct an error I made in my November report. It was not Mr. Wilder, but Charles Dawson, the great pomologist, who named this apple of which Hon. J. Austin Scott is the originator.

At the January meeting of the Washtenaw Horticultural Society, the topics will be "Nut Culture," by Mr. Ganzhorn, a new and important topic which never has been discussed here before; also the entertainment of the next annual meeting by the citizens of Ann Arbor and by this society, by A. A. Crozier. Reviewing the lessons of the season by W. F. Bird; to increase the interest in our society, Pres. Scott.

The following fruit exhibits were made: J. J. Parshall, apples: Pound Sweet, Western Red, Talman Sweet, Canada Red, Greening, King, Baldwin, J. Austin Scott: Spafford and Golden Russet, Baldwin, Greening, Canada Red, Talman Sweet, Jonathan, Bellflower, Wagner, Steel's Red, Talman Sweet, Belmont, Swar, W. Among the Churches.
The festival of the Immaculate Conception was observed Monday in St. Thomas' church.

There will be a tea social at Harris Hall this evening at 6 o'clock, at which a collection of water colors by Miss Roby, of Detroit, will be exhibited.

The new cushions and hymn books for the gallery in the Presbyterian church were used for the first time, Sunday. The new organ will be in place about January 1.

Rev. J. T. Sunderland, of the Unitarian church, will preach next Sunday morning on the "Doctrine of the Incarnation." In the evening a lecture will be given on the "Religions of Egypt."

Next Sunday morning Rev. C. M. Coburn will preach a special sermon, the topic being "The Walk, the Race and the Eagle Flight." The choir will render an anthem, "O be joyful in the Lord" in B flat, by Dudley Buck, and a soprano solo will be given "O that I had wings like a dove," by Mendelssohn.

Rev. Camden M. Coburn will deliver a lecture, Tuesday evening in the Methodist church, on "The Turks, Arabs and Egyptians." This will be a sketch of personal exploration and adventure in Egypt during recent years. It includes a description of life among the Fellahs and of visits with Beys, Pashas, and the Khedive himself; a perilous journey through the desert to the ruins of the City of Pithom, which the Israelites built while in bondage (Ex. I. II.); also a romantic trip to the grand, though empty, tomb of Menephtah, the Pharaoh of the Exodus, as well as a week's sojourn in the Fayoum, that oasis unvisited by the scientific traveller since Bayard Taylor's day.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE.

Destruction of a Large Grain Elevator and Contents at Escanaba.

Fire started in the big grain elevator owned by the "Soo" road at Escanaba which, together with 150,000 bushels of grain, was utterly destroyed. The department was powerless and the flames communicated to the flour sheds, docks and coal pits. There were 10,000 barrels of flour in the sheds, and on the docks were 40,000 tons of coal owned by the Lehigh Valley and Pioneer companies, all of which were destroyed. The losses may exceed $350,000.

First Love the Strongest.

George Gould, of Detroit, son of a well-known wholesale grocer, was engaged to marry Edna Percy, a handsome and wealthy young lady of Ontario. The result was a rekindling of old love fires, and a hasty marriage before a justice of the peace overtook her.

A Profitable Prison.

The first quarterly financial statement of the auditor general under the new law of the charitable, penal and reformatory institutions of the state has been made public. It shows that while the other institutions of the state have been a burden to taxpayers of over $3,000,000 each for the quarter ended September 30, the receipts have exceeded the disbursements of the Jackson prison $5,987, a state of affairs unprecedented in its history.

Spaniels Prevent a Blaze.

What might have proved a disastrous fire was prevented at Holland by two spaniel dogs. They are the property of Charles J. Richardson, and one of the canines awakened a servant by rubbing his nose against her face, who aroused their master just in time to extinguish a blaze that had already eaten a hole through the floor of his billiard hall. EAGER FOR BLOOD.

Cheyennes in Montana Rebel Owing to Troubles with Settlers.

HELENA, Mont., Dec. 8.—Sheriff Jones and Deputy C. H. Thompson have arrived at Miles City with one of two Indians they arrested at Cheyenne agency for killing cattle. The other prisoner escaped. On the road subsequently the sheriff was overtaken by two Indian police with a message from Agent Tully that a number of braves had gone to the hills with the fugitive and had sent in word that they would fight, and that an attack on the agency would be expected at any time. The Cheyennes are dancing against the agent's orders. Tully sent a dispatch Sunday night to the commanding officer at Fort Keogh, asking him to send troops, as an uprising is inevitable. The commander telegraphed department headquarters at St. Paul and Monday night orders were issued from there to send troops from Fort Keogh to the Cheyenne agency.

Another man lies dead at the city hospital from injuries received from falling bricks. Three others are mortally wounded, and a half dozen more are hurt. THE POSTAL SERVICE.

Annual Report of Postmaster General Wanamaker.

His Recommendations Regarding One-Cent Postal Free Delivery, Postal Telegraph, Telephone and Savings System.

UNCLE SAM'S MAILS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The postmaster general's annual report, made public Thursday, shows that in spite of the fact that over $1,000,000 worth of lottery revenue has been lost during the last year the postal deficit of $6,000,000 is surely disappearing, provided the same rate of revenue and expenses obtains on July 1, 1893. It appears that all of the lottery mail has practically been driven from the mails, and the fidelity of the department in trying to enforce this, most unambitious wish of congress is shown.

It is shown by figures that nine-tenths of the causes why letters go wrong are due to the carelessness of the public, and Mr. Wanamaker not only shows how the work of the department may be reduced but recommends the establishment of a branch in San Francisco. He announces changes in the postal guide which will make it contain popular information and enable it to be sold for one cent instead of five.

The postmaster general renews his recommendation for the division of the country into postal districts, and advises many changes in the reform which would be beneficial. He announces that the extension of the merit system of promotion, so successfully put in operation in the department lately, to the large post offices and the railway mail service has already begun.

The postmaster general recommends the adaptation of the telephone as well as the telegraph to the postal system, showing that it is not only the constitutional privilege but the duty of congress to utilize all the means of modern science for quickening the transmission of intelligence. He says:

"One-cent letter postage, three-cent telephone messages and ten-cent telegraph messages are all near possibilities under an enlightened and compact postal system using the newest telegraphic inventions. The advantage of tying the rural post office to the telephone system, and the extension of such facilities to those who wish to use the railroad station must be obvious. The benefits arising from telephonic connections with the post offices will easily suggest themselves to a hundred ways to those who want the entire people to share in common privileges. The rural population would be the greatest gainer. A telephone connection between the post office and the road station miles away to ascertain if expected freight had come would save the farmer many a needless trip over bad roads; news of approaching frosts could be promptly spread over country districts, and frost-growing regions and many a valuable crop saved. The day's market prices for cattle and grain and wool and products may be obtained by the farmers direct by inquiry from others than the buyer who drives up to the farm in his buggy. All these may seem homely purposes to dwellers in cities, but country life would lose some of its dearest pleasures if such facilities to those who bear their full share of the burdens of the government and receive in postal respects at least less than their share of its benefits."

Mr. Wanamaker believes in the full parcels post, but does not recommend it at present. He urges the abolition of personal suretieships of postmasters, as they are too frequently under obligations which damage the service. He proposes to extend the money-order system everywhere. It appears that nearly 8,000 miles of additional railway post office service have been established, 1,800 miles in the Pacific coast states, 3,500 in the other western states, 2,400 in the northern states and about 1,000 in the north-eastern states. Some idea of the extent of the service in the west may be obtained from the statement that 145 mail trains arrive and 144 depart from Chicago every day.

Arguments why this service ought to be continued and enlarged are adduced, and it is shown how much similar efforts to extend the free delivery into the country are to be made along star routes and by means of suburban electric roads. Mr. Wanamaker recommends the passage of a bill to entitle towns of population between 5,000 and 9,999 to the free delivery, and shows that the special-delivery service in cities has increased one-third this year over the average of the last four years.

He argues strenuously for postal savings. He reiterates his plan of last year and adds:

"Another plan, quite simple and thoroughly practical, would be to issue at the post offices non-negotiable certificates of postal deposit in sums of $10, $20 and $50, bearing interest at the rate of half a cent a day on the dollar last year. Today with reduced postage and more than twice as many post offices and 136 per cent more miles of mail service and an expenditure of $7,000,000, the department produces all its needs without practically creating the deficit before the war. The future of the postal service is very bright. The post office department is the one common meeting ground of all the people. It seems to me that there is enough in it to be done to be worthy the careful thought of the next men in the nation."

The Cause of Rheumatism.

An acid which exists in sour milk and cider, called lactic acid, is believed by physicians to be the cause of rheumatism. Accumulating in the blood, it attacks the fibrous tissues in the joints, and causes agonizing pains. What is needed is a remedy to neutralize the acid, and to so invigorate the kidneys and liver that waste will be carried off. Hood's Sarsaparilla is heartily recommended by many whom it has cured of rheumatism. If possible see just the desired qualities, and so thoroughly purify the blood as to prevent occurrence of rheumatic attacks. We suggest a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla by all who suffer from rheumatism.

One thing is apparently settled by the election of Speaker Crisp. Grover Cleveland is not "in it." The next candidate for the presidency will be David B. Hill or a western man.

Dum Pedro, the good old emperor of Brazil, has passed away. Under him the people enjoyed a republic with monarchical forms; now it appears to suffer from a monarchy with republican forms. What is in a name?

REYDARD KIPLING, Rider Haggard, Amelie Rives and Bertha M. Clay need write no more novels until next summer. There will be nothing so sensational this winter as the record of the fifty-second congress, with its unwieldy democratic majority. Mills, Simpson, Puffer, Hill are all in the ante-rooms and the comic opera will soon begin.

An attempt was made to have a good attendance at the meeting of the Ann Arbor Business Men's Association last Tuesday evening. Nearly 100 former members of that association were notified. At the same time it was announced that the representative of a manufacturing business desiring to locate at Ann Arbor would meet with the association and explain what was necessary in order to secure the location of his business in the city. As the result of this call there were only sixteen people present. There should have been fifty at least. Although the proposed factory whose representative met the association last Tuesday evening was not one of very great importance, yet it was one worth considering, and it is to be hoped that the committee appointed by the Business Men's Association to look into the matter will make a thorough investigation, and if the outlook seems favorable, that something may be done to secure its removal to this place.

The Hill and Tammany Democracy has triumphed. Charles F. Crisp, the moderate protectionist and free coinageist, has been elected speaker of the house of representatives. The Republican party has every reason to rejoice over this election. The Democratic party has simply been true to its own history. Destitute of principles and united only by a greed for office, it now intends to win support by truckling to every school of thought. By a straddle on the tariff question it will attempt, at the same time, as in 1884, to catch the votes of protectionists in the east and Cobdenites in the west. It will favor free coinage unequivocally in the west and south, while in the east, by a carefully worded clause, it will try to placate the friends of sound money. This temporizing policy has seldom brought success to any party. The result will simply be this, that genuine tariff reformers of all parties will unite in an effort to elect James G. Blaine, who upholds at the same time the safe policy of reciprocity and the equally safe policy of protection to American labor.

Opera House Notes.

The following was clipped from the Meriden Journal, of Meriden, Conn., concerning the play which appears at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday night:

A well pleased audience witnessed the comedy drama of "Kit, the Arkansas Traveller," presented at the opera house Saturday night by Henry Chanfran and a strong company. Mr. Chanfran gave a finished portrayal of the part of Kit Redding, which character was made so familiar by the young actor's late father, that during his time he was regarded as the greatest exponent of this style of acting. The son is by no means a servile imitator of his illustrious sire, for he sustains the role of Kit throughout with the ease and abandon of one who had created the part himself. In the support worthy of special mention are Mac M. Barnes, who in make-up and acting was an ideal Judge Smuggs, and Bassett Willard as Major Squiggles. The Ideal quartette and little Edna were also very clever in their specialties.

Of Interest to Housekeepers.

Inasmuch as several legislatures and boards of health have lately taken action respecting baking powders containing alum and ammonia, it will be of use to our readers to have an official list of such powders in order that they may be able to distinguish between them and the pure and wholesome cream of tartar article. This is not an easy matter, as most of the alum and ammonia compounds are not labeled as such, but frequently masquerade as "absolutely pure" cream of tartar powders. Our space will not admit of a complete list and we give therefore the powders in most general use, which are known to contain either alum or ammonia or both.

For want of space we could not insert J. F. Schue's big ad, giving largest reduction in price of sewing machines ever made. See ad, and prices in next week's issue.

"Oh speak ye ghosts of the dead, and say what killed you?" The answer came borne on the fierce wind: "Cold! Cold! Cold!" Then let us be thankful that since then we have Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

LITERARY NOTES.

For the first time in many years the December number of The Century will have a distinctively Christmas flavor.

Harper's Bazar for 1892. Illustrated. Harper's Bazar is a journal for the home.

Something for the New Year.

The world renowned success of Hostetter's Bitters, and their continued popularity for over a third of a century as a stomachic, is scarcely more wonderful than the welcome that greets the annual appearance of Hostetter's Almanac.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The pessimist is a man who assuming himself to be a god concludes that all other men are either fools or knaves.

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time. I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured.

Historians make men wise; poets, wit; the mathematicians, subtle; natural philosophy, deep; logic and rhetoric, able to contend.

Being a sufferer from chronic catarrh, and having derived great benefit from the use of Ely's Cream Balm, I can highly recommend it.

The Ann Arbor Register is inclined to ridicule an alleged inconsistency in principles of the Democratic party, which it claims are undemocratic.

The facts in the matter, however, are these: A few years ago crude oil was discovered in Ohio. It was found to be very much inferior to the Pennsylvania oil, and was supposed to be fitted only for use as fuel.

Upon Hood's Sarsaparilla as a positive remedy for every form of scrofula, skin rashes, boils, pimples and all other diseases caused by impure blood.

Constipation, and all troubles with the digestive organs and the liver, are cured by Hood's Pills. Unequaled as a dinner pill.

Doesn't Know How It Feels. Himself of joy he has surely denied. And a reason for self-satisfaction.

Dr. Acker's English Pills. Are active, effective and pure. For all headache, disordered stomach, loss of appetite, bad complexion, and biliousness, they have never been equalled, either in America or abroad.

$100 Reward. The above reward is offered for any case of Kidney, Bladder or Liver Trouble that Guarantees Kidney Cure fails to cure. Sold by all Druggists.

The true ideal is not opposed to the real, nor is it any artificial heightening thereof, but lies in it, and blessed are the eyes that find it!

I Have Taken Several Bottles of Bradford's Female Regulator for falling of the womb and other diseases combined, of 16 years standing, and I really believe I am cured entirely, for which please accept my thanks.

There never was a great man unless through divine inspiration.—Cicero.

At Twilight.

The old day is dead, dear, The old prayers are said, dear, And so we will lay them away.

WHAT IS SQUAWBUCK OIL? It is Not Only Dangerous, But Also of the Very Poorest Quality.

CERTAIN REFINERS ARE TRYING TO FORCE THE INFERIOR OHIO PETROLEUM ON THE PUBLIC, AND MICHIGAN, THROUGH THE INADEQUACY OF HER LAWS, IS A CHIEF SUFFERER.

The Legislature Should Give Us a Law Requiring not only High Fire-test, But Also High Gravity. In the meantime, Consumers Should Discriminate, and Buy Only Oils of Acknowledged High Gravity and Fire-test, such as the Well Known Brand, "NATIONAL LIGHT."

Mr. J. E. Harris, Manager Michigan Oil Company, Detroit, sends us the following communication:—"While the action of the last legislature in lowering the fire test on Kerosene was undoubtedly a serious mistake, it is not entirely responsible for the very inferior quality of much of the oil that is now being brought into the State."

The facts in the matter, however, are these: A few years ago crude oil was discovered in Ohio. It was found to be very much inferior to the Pennsylvania oil, and was supposed to be fitted only for use as fuel.

Some Jaw Breakers. The following are examples of nine syllable words in the English language: Anthropometamorphosis, antisuperstitionism, anti-constitutionism, anhydrous-hysteria, iatromathematician, incompressibility, individualization, syncretism, unconditionality, unattainability, valedictorianism and vicissitudinality.

The Noxious Weed. Texas buys more cigarettes than any other state in the Union.

Why Not Aluminum? The Chronicle demands the free coinage of aluminum. It is a better metal than silver; it can be tempered to such a degree that only the finest of tools can cut it, and it has the anti-rust qualities of gold and silver.

$500 Reward! We will pay the above reward for any case of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation or Biliousness we cannot cure with West's Vegetable Liver Pills, when the directions are strictly complied with.

PORTRAITS! IF YOU WANT A PORTRAIT FROM LIFE. Free Hand from Photograph, or any Permanent Enlargement, place your order at Cole's Studio. Samples of whose work are to be found in the homes of Mrs. Dunder, Mrs. J. S. Morris, Prof. A. Winchell, Mr. O. M. Martin and many others.

Wise Mothers. Will never be without Dr. Hoxsie's Certain Croup Cure. It is a sure and prompt cure for croup in all forms, also a preventative of Diphtheria and Pneumonia.

A Dangerous Example. First Burglar—Say, Bill, I hear you are going to shake the profession and take to politics. Don't you know that the newspapers will show up your record?

I was Discussed with the leading doctors after swallowing their costly medicines in vain for over a year for the relief of catarrh in my head, when I cured myself by using six bottles of Sulphur Bitters.

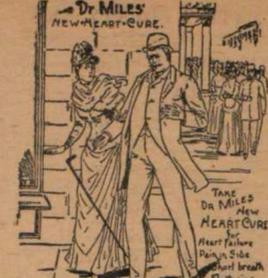

She Should Know That—Pale yellow is one of the prettiest shades for evening dresses, and is generally becoming.

Nearly every pattern of  $\frac{3}{4}$  Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that  $\frac{3}{4}$  Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the  $\frac{3}{4}$  trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

 "ROBERT ELSMERE"

The rest of the play represented, of course, the struggle between the conflicting forces thus developed. In plan and mechanism the story was one of a common romantic type, neither better nor worse than hundreds of others of which the literary archives of the first half of the present century are full. It required all the aid that the literary treatment could give it to raise it above the level of vulgar melodrama and turn it into tragedy. But fortune had been kind to it; the subject had been already handled in the Italian sketch with delicacy and true tragic insight, and Edward Wallace had brought all the resources of a very evenly trained and critical mind to bear upon his task. It could hardly have been foreseen that he would be attracted by the subject, but once at work upon it he had worked with enthusiasm. The curtain drew up on the great hall of the Villena palace. Everything that antiquarian knowledge could do had been brought to bear upon the surroundings of the scene; the delicate tile work of the walls and floor, the leather hangings, the tapestries, the carved wood and brass work of a Spanish palace of the fifteenth century, had been copied with lavish magnificence, and the crowded expectant house divided its attention and applause during the first scene between the beauty and elaboration of its setting and the play of the two tolerable actors who represented Elvira's father and the rival of Macias, Fernan Perez.

Fernan Perez, having set the intrigue on foot which is to wreck the love of Macias and Elvira, had just risen from his seat when Wallace, who was watching the stage in a torment of mingled satisfaction and despair, touched Mma. de Chateaufort's arm.

"Now!" he said. "That door to the left."
 Kendal, catching the signal, rose from his seat behind Mma. de Chateaufort and beat forward. The great door at the end of the palace had slowly opened, and gliding through it with drooping head and hands clasped before her came Elvira, followed by her little maid Beatriz. The storm which greeted her appearance was such as thrilled the pulses of the oldest habitue in the theatre. Tears came to Mma. Chateaufort's eyes, and she looked up at her brother.

"What a scene! It is overpowering—it is too much for her! I wish they would let her go on!"
 Kendal made her no answer, his soul was in his eyes; he had no senses for any but one person. She was there within a few yards of him, in all the sovereignty of her beauty and her fame, invested with the utmost romance that circumstances could bestow, and about, if half he heard were true, to reap a great artistic no less than a great personal triumph. Had he felt toward her only as the public felt, it would have been an experience beyond the common run, and as it was, this soiling, intolerable scene of degradation, a mark of irredeemable need. Was that her voice? He had heard that tone of despair in it before—under over arching woods, when the June warmth was in the air! That white, outstretched hand! Once again close clasped in his own; those eyes had once looked with a passionate trouble into his. Ah, it was gone forever, nothing, never ever recall it—that one quick moment of living contact! In a deeper sense than met the ear, she was on the stage and he among the audience. To the end his gray life would play the part of spectator to hers, or else she would have passed beyond his grasp and touch, just as Elvira would have vanished in a little while from the sight of the great audience which now hung upon her every movement.

Then from the consciousness of his own private smart he was swept out, whether he would or no, into the general current of feeling which was stirring the multitude of human beings around him, and he found himself gradually mastered by considerations of a different order altogether. Was this the actress he had watched, with such incessant critical revolt six months before! Was this the half-educated girl grasping at results utterly beyond her realization, whom he remembered?

It seemed to him impossible that this quick artistic intelligence, this nervous understanding of the demands made upon her, this facility in meeting them, could have been developed by the same Isabel Bretherton whose earlier image was so distinctly graven on his memory. And yet his trained eye learned after a while to decipher in a hundred indications the past history of the change. He saw how she had worked and where; the influence had been brought to bear, he saw upon her were all familiar to him; they had been part of his own training, and they had been longed, as he knew, to the first school of dramatic art in Europe—to the school which keeps alive from generation to generation the excellence and fame of the best French drama. He came to estimate by degrees all that she had done, he saw also all she had still to do. In the spring she had been an actress without a future, condemned by the inexorable logic of things to use her fame to desert her with the first withering of her beauty. Now she had, as it were, but started toward her rightful goal, but her feet were in the great high road, and Kendal saw before her, if she had but strength to reach it, the very highest summit of artistic success.

The end of the first act was reached, Elvira, returning from the performance of the marriage ceremony in the chapel of the palace, had emerged in hand with her husband, and followed by her wedding train, upon the great hall. She had caught sight of Macias standing blankly and staring under the weight of the incredible news which had just been given to him by the duke. She had flung away the hateful hand which held her, and with a cry instinct with the sharp and terrible despair of youth, she had thrown herself at the feet of her lover.

When the curtain fell Edward Wallace could have had few doubts if he had ever cherished any of the success of his play. He himself escaped behind the scenes as soon as Miss Bretherton's last recall was over, and the box was filled in his absence with a stream of friends and a constant murmur of congratulation which was music in the ears of Mma. de Chateaufort, and, for the moment, silenced in Kendal his own throbbing and desolate consciousness.

"There never was a holiday turned to such good account before," a gray haired dramatic critic was saying to her, a man with whose keen, good natured face London had been familiar for the last twenty years. "That magic has touched the beauty. Mma. de Chateaufort! Last spring we felt as though one fairy godmother at least had been left out at the christening. And now it would seem as though even she had repented of it and brought her gift with the rest. Well, well, I always felt there was something at the bottom in that nature that might blossom yet. Most people who are younger at the end of the trade than I would not hear of it. It was commonly agreed that her success would last just as long as the first freshness of her beauty, and no more. And now—the English stage has laid its hold at last upon a great actress!"

Mma. de Chateaufort's smiling reply was broken by the reappearance of Wallace, round whom the buzz of congratulation closed with fresh vigor.
 "How is she?" asked Mma. de Chateaufort, laying a hand on his arm. "Tired?"
 "Not the least! But, of course, all the strain is to come. It is amazing, you know, this reception. It's almost more trying than the acting. Forbes in the wings, looking on, is a play in himself!"

In another minute the hubbub had swept out again, and the house had settled into silence. Macias was the central figure of the second act. In the great scene of explanation between himself and Elvira, which he had forced his way into her apartment, his fury of jealous sarcasm, broken by flashes of the old absolute trust, of the old tender worship, had been finely conceived, and was well rendered by the promising young actor whom Wallace had himself chosen for the part. Elvira, overwhelmed by the scorn and despair of her lover, and conscious of the treachery which had separated them, is yet full of a blind resolve to play the part she has assumed to the bitter end, to save her own name and her father's from dishonor, and to interpose the irrevocable barrier of her marriage vow between herself and Macias. Suddenly they are interrupted by the approach of the father and every incident of the tragedy throws herself between her husband and her lover, and, having captured the sword of Macias, hands it to the duke. Macias is arrested after a tumultuous scene, and is led away, shaking off Elvira's efforts to save him with bitter contempt, and breaking loose from her with the prophesy that in every joy of the future and every incident of the tragedy she will be the witness of his murdered love laid before her, and "every echo and every breeze repeat the fatal name, Macias."

During the rapid give and take of this trying scene, Kendal saw, with a kind of incredulous admiration, that Isabel Bretherton never once lost herself, that every gesture and every word struck home. Her extraordinary grasp, her marvelous beauty, were all subordinated, to forgotten almost, to the supreme human passion speaking through her. Macias, in the height of his despair, while he was still alone with her, had flung her his sword, declaring that he would go forth and seek his death an unarmed and defenseless man. Then, when he becomes conscious of the approach of his rival, the soldier's instinct revives in him; he calls for his sword; she refuses him, and he makes a threatening step towards her.

Mac—My sword, Elvira.
 Elvira—No! No blood shall flow for me. Come no nearer—or I shall sheathe it in this breast.
 All the desperate energy of a loving woman driven to bay was in her attitude as she repelled Macias, whereas in the agony of her last clinging appeal to him, as his guards led him off, every trace of her momentary heroism had died away. Faint and trembling, recoiling from every harsh word of his from a blow, she had followed him towards the door, and in her straining eyes and seeking, outstretched hands as she watched him disappear, there was a pathos so true, so poignant, that it laid a spell upon the audience, and the curtain fell amid a breathless silence, which made the roar that instantly followed doubly noticeable.

But it was in the third act that she won her highest triumph. The act opened with a scene between Elvira and her husband, in which she implored him, with the humility and hopelessness of grief, to allow her to retire from the world and to hide the beauty which had won such ruin from the light of day. If her husband's jealousy has taken force root in her with reproach and insult, and in the middle of her passionate reaction against his tyranny, the news is brought her by Beatriz that Fernan, in his determination to avoid the duel with Macias on the morrow, which the duke, in accordance with knightly usage, has been forced to grant, has devised means for assassinating his rival in prison. Sheally, her whole soul is thrown into an effort to save her lover. She bribes his guards. She sends Beatriz to denounce the treachery of her husband to the duke, and, finally, she herself penetrates into the cell of Macias, to warn him of the fate that threatens him and to persuade him to a flight.

It was, indeed, a dramatic moment when the gloom of Macias' cell was first broken by the glimmer of the hand lamp, which revealed to the vast, expectant audience the form of Elvira standing on the threshold, searching the darkness with her shaded eyes; and, in the great low scene which followed, the first sharp impression was steadily deepened by word and gesture after gesture by the genius of the actress. Elvira finds Macias in a mood of calm and even joyous waiting for the morrow. His honor is satisfied; death and battle are before him and the proud Castilian is almost at peace. The vision of Elvira's pale beauty and his quick intuition of the dangers she has run in forcing her way to him produce a sudden revulsion of feeling towards her, a flood of passionate reconciliation; he is at her feet once more; he feels that she is true, that she is his. She, in a frenzy of fear, cannot succeed for all her efforts in dimming his ecstasy of joy or in awakening him to the necessity of flight, and at last he even resents her terror for him, her ecstasies that he will forget her and escape.

"Great Heavens!" he says, turning from her in despair. "It was not love, it was only pity that brought her here." Then, broken down by the awful pressure of the situation, her love resists his no longer, but rather she sees in the full expression of her own heart the only chance of saving him to life and of persuading him to take thought for his own safety.

Elvira—See, Macias, these tears—each one is yours, is wept for you! Oh, if to soften Macias standing blankly and staring under the weight of the incredible news which had just been given to him by the duke. She had flung away the hateful hand which held her, and with a cry instinct with the sharp and terrible despair of youth, she had thrown herself at the feet of her lover.

To her this supreme avowal is the only means of making him believe her report of his danger, and turn towards flight; but in this produces a joy which banishes all thought of personal risk, and makes separation from her worse than death. When she bids him fly, he replies by one word, "Come!" and not till she has promised to guide him to the city gates and to follow him later on his journey will he move a step towards freedom. And then, when her dear hands about to open to him, and the door of his prison, it is too late. Fernan and his assassins are at hand, the stairs are surrounded, and escape is cut off. Again, in these last moments, when the locked door still holds between them and the death waiting there, she is seen in a moment of supreme beauty.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Mr. Parsons, of Ypsilanti, submitted a proposition for removing the manufacture of coffee roasters to this city, and a committee, consisting of Messrs. Noble, Allmendinger, Cady, Seabolt and Dean, was appointed to investigate the matter. The committee on publication reported that the ANN ARBOR REGISTER had issued the largest boom edition ever published in Ann Arbor and that it had done a great deal of good for the city. Other matters were discussed but no action was taken.
