HIS FIRST MESSAGE.

MAYOR THOMPSON OPENS UP A BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION.

Sewers Come First—We Need a Sewer Board—We Need a Plat Book and a Record of All Surveys—His Policy Outlined—The Interests of the University are Identical With Those of the City—We Must Have the Best of Records for Good Order—Laws Must be Obeyed—The Mayor and Council Should Aid Each Other.

To the Honorable, the Common Council:

GENTLEMEN: The electors of this city having determined to construct a main sewer, which it is anticipated will be the beginning of a general sewerage system for the whole city, it is important that the plan adopted and the method of defraying the cost may be such that no material change hereafter may be necessary. The cost of the main sewer is to be met by a general tax but the method of meeting the cost of constructing and maintaining lateral sewers has not been decided upon. In most cities the entire cost of lateral sewers, except for street intersections, is borne by the property benefited. This system is just and equitable and has proved satisfactory wherever adopted. If the Council should determine to adopt that system it will then become necessary to devise some means for paying the cost of the construction of lateral sewers in cash as the work progresses. In no other way can such cost be reduced to a minimum sum. One method of obtaining the necessary means, in the first instance, is for the city to issue bonds and make the taxes levied for the cost of construction a sinking fund for their retirement. Under this system the entire tax can be levied and assessed at once but spread over three or four years, enabling the tax payer to pay this tax in installments.

In this connection it is proper that the Council should determine whether the work of letting contracts and superintending the construction of sewers shall remain in the hands of the Board of Public Works or be given to an independent board of sewer commissioners. I am inclined to favor an independent board. The Board of Public Works, considering the fact that the work they perform for the city is done gratuitously, cannot reasonably be asked to assume the burden of these important duties, which will increase from year to year.

The system adopted should be decided upon immediately, that appropriate legislation may be obtained at the present session of the legislature. Owing to the rapid growth of the city and the consequent demand for building lots, it is probable that the owners of parcels of land of considerable size will subdivide such parcels into lots. The maps of plats of such subdivisions must be submitted to you for approval. I recommend that you require in every case that the person submitting the plat for approval furnish a copy for the use of the city, together with a copy of the surveyor's field notes duly certified to by him. It is desirable that the city should possess full and accurate notes of all surveys made within the city for any purpose. I would also suggest that the Council, by resolution or ordinance provide that any engineer employed by the city, or any board, be required to file with the City Clerk full and accurate notes of all surveys made by him in the course of his employment, together with a map, profile or diagram of the work performed.

In this connection I call your attention to the fact that the city does not possess a set of plat books for the use of the assessor. It is very difficult for that officer to make a full, accurate and equitable assessment without the use of plat books. When such books are furnished the assessor is able, when he examines property for the purpose of assessment, to enter in pencil upon each lot, the value of the lot, the value of the improvements thereon, and the name of the owner and to change this record from year to year as may be necessary. With such a record before him the assessor can easily equalize the value of lots and the risk of omitting any property from the assessment roll is minimized. Such plat books are also a great assistance to the board of review. I recommend that the Council ascertain the probable cost of a suitable set of plat books and if the expense is not found to be too great that a set be procured during the year.

It is proper that I should in this my first communication to the Council indicate the policy I intend to pursue in the discharge of my official duties, in order that you may give me that intelligent and generous support which is so essential to success. A generous public always assumes that an executive officer will endeavor to perform his duties and enforce the laws. Whether or not he meets those expectations often depends not so much upon his good intentions as it does upon the methods he adopts, and the wisdom and discretion exercised in carrying out that method. I assure you, that I fully realize that while a bare majority can elect and dictate a policy, the success of that policy when put in practice depends upon the receiving the approval, virtually, of the whole people. I do not, therefore, intend to adopt any course which will not commend itself to the good judgment of the vast majority of our people.

In determining what policy ought to be adopted we must take into account the special interests of the city. It is a University town. It depends upon the University more than upon all other interests combined, for its future growth and prosperity. More than three thousand non-resident students are today in attendance in the University and High School. They expend in cash every year over twelve hundred thousand dollars and it would add to that sum the amount disbursed by the University and the expenditures of those who come and reside here temporarily we shall have a total of over one and one-half millions. The profits of this large annual disbursement does not go to make a few very rich but is distributed to the benefit of every resident and of every business enterprise in the city. The success of the University, therefore, is of vital commercial importance to this city. It is, for us a financial necessity therefore, important for us to consider in what way we may best aid and promote such success.

One half of the students whose presence here adds so much to our material wealth are non-residents of this state. The state from which these students come have colleges and universities which are beginning to receive abundant support from their citizens, and they are already persistent, and they hope soon to be successful rivals of our University for public favor and patronage. Now the surroundings of a university tend to promote or retard its prosperity, parents who have sons to educate, take into account in determining to what school they send them not only the training which they will receive in the recreation room, but also the surrounding influences for good or evil. It consequently becomes our duty, from a mere business standpoint, to see to it that the reputation of Ann Arbor for good order and freedom from vice and immorality shall induce parents to send their children here. Ann Arbor is today, and has been for several years, one of the best governed cities in this country, and is and has been as free from every species of vice and immorality as any other city of equal size. But this is not enough. We must not be content with comparisons which are in our favor. We should not be satisfied until the reputation of this city for peace and good order is above suspicion and our municipal government one that other college towns will strive to imitate. As to all this there can be no difference of opinion.

It is not necessary to call attention to the existence in our city of any species of vice or immorality which is condemned by all. That subject may be passed by with the simple remark that an effort will be made to suppress gambling. Unfortunately the method of regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors in a measure a political question upon which the people are divided. So far as the execution of the law is concerned, it is not a political question. Such execution, however, is embarrassed and made difficult by the fact that behind the law there is a good deal of political animosity. It must be distinctly understood that it is no part of the Mayor's duties to approve or condemn any political theory whatever in regard to the use or the sale of intoxicating liquors. So far as his duties are concerned it is wholly immaterial whether the use of intoxicating liquors as a beverage is to be approved or condemned. Their use is not condemned by the law, and the law limits his official duties. Nor is the Mayor called upon to determine whether or not the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage should be prohibited. The men engaged in the sale of liquors are pursuing a legitimate business; and as to their legal rights, they stand upon an absolute equality with men engaged in any other legitimate business. And in addition to this legal status of this question, it is a matter of common observation that a large majority of the men engaged in the liquor business are good citizens, honest and upright, and that the vast majority of their patrons are temperate, industrious and economical, to whose thrift and enterprise this city is greatly indebted for its present prosperity. On the other hand, it is a matter of common observation that this business has great attractions for the vicious and depraved on account of the opportunities it presents, and that some who are engaged in this business are not only not good citizens but are wanting in respectability, and that many of their patrons belong to the criminal classes or to the shiftless, the lazy and indolent, who only need to be given a chance to grow into something worse, or to that large and unfortunate class who are mastered by an uncontrollable appetite for drink. And this common observation is not confined to this city, but has been the same through all the past, so that at no time during the last thousand years has there been a period when the sale of intoxicating liquors has not been subject to police regulations. Of course the necessity for such regulations has been due to the fact that we have no good, that a certain few who engage in the business are disposed to, and otherwise will keep disreputable places. The law, however, while its intent and purpose is to reach and restrain the disreputable, applies necessarily to all alike, because the law is no respecter of persons.

I trust this plain statement of the situation clearly indicates that the duty of the Mayor commences and ends with a wise and considerate enforcement of the law and that all the vital interests of the city demand that he shall perform that duty, and especially that he shall enforce all laws and ordinances having for their object the preservation of peace and good order and the suppression of vice and immorality. And while the enforcement of the police regulations which the legislature has thrown around the business of selling intoxicating liquors may put the respectable dealer to some inconvenience it will remove from his occupation the reflex disgrace coming from the disreputable dealer, a positive gain which is worth more than the sacrifice.

I feel confident that in a wise and judicious performance of my duties I shall have the support of the Council and of all good citizens, especially of all good citizens engaged in the liquor traffic. Perhaps such support will come from all so engaged, but in case one shall deliberately, intentionally and persistently violate the law, his conduct will be regarded as a menace to good order and to the growth and prosperity of the city, and the courts will be appealed to and asked to suppress his place as a public nuisance.

Knowing that you are giving your time and attention to public duties without pecuniary compensation, actuated solely by a desire to promote the public good in all ways possible, allow me to assure you that I intend to give all the necessary time and all the ability I possess to aid and assist you in accomplishing your work.

The New Council.

The new council assembled last Monday evening, but the new members were so few that except for the attendance of an unusual number of visitors it hardly seemed as though a new administration had begun. At 8 o'clock the new president called to order when the said order was discovered to be new in as much as the ex-junior aldermen occupied the senior positions and the ex-senior aldermen were now juniors. Pres. Watts, Capt. Manly and Mr. Wagner were the only new faces within the rail.

The new president, "his budding honors fresh upon him," made the briefest kind of an introductory address. The Council then proceeded to business. The rules of the last council were adopted for this one evening. The new standing committees were announced for the year 1893-94 as follows: finance—Taylor, Herz, Fillmore; ordinance—Manly, Martin, Prettyman; streets—Martin, Ferguson, Snow, Prettyman, Taylor, Schairer; sidewalks—Fillmore, Kitson, Herz, Manly, O'Mara, Wagner; fire department—O'Mara, Snow, Kitson; water—Ferguson, Martin, Manly; police—Snow, Taylor, Schairer; lighting—Herz, Wagner, Snow; bonds—Prettyman, O'Mara, Martin; licenses—Kitson, O'Mara, Fillmore; parks—Schairer, Manly, Ferguson; poor—Wagner, Herz, Taylor.

The first official communication from Mayor Thompson was read and filed, the full text of which is given elsewhere.

Several reports of boards were presented, the interesting items contained therein appearing elsewhere in our columns. Several resolutions were offered. The bonds of druggists were fixed at $2000, and of saloon-keepers at $3000. Ald. Ferguson moved that a standing committee of five be appointed on sewers which was carried but the names were not announced. The job of examining the accounts of the city treasurer was voted to J. R. Miner, and $25 named as the fee. A letter was transmitted to the council without recommendation by the Mayor from J. M. Weston of the State World's Fair board, offering Ann Arbor the opportunity to place a stained glass window in the Michigan state building at Chicago with the name Ann Arbor prominent therein at a cost of $30. The letter was tabled without discussion. The bonds of the new constables were accepted, and then adjournment was taken until Friday, Apr. 28. Mayor Thompson being present was called on for a speech and very briefly responded saying that he came to get a better idea of the city's business. He spoke of Ann Arbor's marvelous growth of the past few years and of its fine prospects of the future, and expressed himself as confident that the new council would labor harmoniously for the best interests of the city. After adjournment the council and visitors lingered to congratulate the new president on his expedition of business.

The Fire Record.

The fire department has no cause for shame over the record they have made in the past year. The board of fire commissioners in their report "point with pride" at it. They declare that a better fire alarm system is highly desirable and roast the police department and the street department for permitting about twelve hydrants to become useless last winter through the presence of accumulations about them. The following is the substance of the report:
Number of alarms.....37
Sent in by telephone.....26
Number of fires.....25
Number of chimney fires.....12
Value of property destroyed.....$1,704.75
Insurance paid on property..... 1,605.25
Total amount insurance on property..... 80,900.00

The causes of the fires are interesting. Twelve were simply burning chimneys and three began from that cause. Gasolene caused three, Kerosene three, carelessness with matches and lamps three. Two fires were of incendiary origin, one came from electric wires and the remainder from carelessness in various directions, except a case of spontaneous combustion. The department has traveled 26 miles to fires and laid 4,350 ft. of hose. The department property figures up to $23,970, and their expenses were $6,141. There are 128 hydrants, about 12 of them being useless the greater part of the winter. Thirteen men are employed, 8 all the time, and five are on call.

The average annual loss for the past four years has been $4,320.15, and one-half of the total loss occurred the first year.

At the World's Fair.

In its exhibit at the World's Fair the Government Patent Office will show upwards of 2,500 models, many of them being working machines.

The Liberal Ministers.

There is an enthusiastic Convention now in session in the Unitarian Church to-day being the concluding one, of the liberal ministers of the stat,—the Unitarians Universalists, and Independents. Nearly thirty are present and a keen interest is manifested by all.

The exercises opened Tuesday evening with a sermon by T. B. Forbush of Chicago on "The Larger Gospel," followed by a reception in the church parlors. Wednesday morning the institute was organized. Rev. Chas. Fluhrer of Grand Rapids was made president; Rev. H. T. Root of Grand Haven secretary; and Rev. Geo. A. Saalm of Benton Harbor asst. sec. A committee on resolutions consisting of Rev. J. T. Sunderland, Rev. W. F. Dickerman of Lansing and Mr. Rowen of Detroit was also appointed. A great many topics are up for discussion and the whole proceedings are of an intensely practical character. Rev. S. R. Calthorp of Syracuse N. Y. read a paper on the "Primitive Gospel and its Life of Jesus" yesterday morning, and then during the remainder of the day the following topics were discussed: "Why should all liberal Christians Co-operate?" "What to do with the Children of our parishes," "What to do with our young people," "How to make the pulpit more effective." These discussions were freely participated in. Last evening there was a public meeting to discuss the topic "Religious Progress" participated in by president O. Clute of the Agricultural College Rev. Howard MacQuerey, of Saginaw, Rev. Charles Fluhrer of Grand Rapids and Rev. S. R. Calthorp of Syracuse N. Y. These gentlemen discussed the relations of Natural science, social science, comparative religion and biblical scholarship, respectively to religious progress.

To-day's program possesses many very attractive features. At 11:45 an address by Dr. V. C. Vaughan was expected on Duties of Ministers in relation to the public health and sanitary science. This afternoon the University will be inspected by the visitors, the institute reassembling at 4:30 to hear a paper by Rabbi Louis Grossman of Detroit on Reformed Judaism and its relation to Liberal Christianity. This evening at 7:30 there will be a public meeting for the discussion of the topic "Salvation." The speakers will be, the Rev. W. F. Dickerman of Lansing, Rev. Geo. A. Saalm of Benton Harbor, Rev. Caroline J. Bartlett of Kalamazoo, Rev. H. T. Root of Grand Haven, and Rev. Lee McCollister of Detroit. Addresses limited to twelve minutes each. All the meetings are open to everyone.

The Volcano Rumbled Again.

There was an effort on the part of the Board of Regents to hold a session yesterday but there was no quorum. Dr. J. C. Nottingham chief sphere among the little pills of the state was on deck and conferred confidentially with Dr. MacLachlan. Rumors of a rumpus were in the air, but in the absence of the regents nothing really occurred. Dr. Nottingham expressed himself to a REGISTER reporter as confident that out in the state there was not a voice favorable to the schemes of Dr. Obetz for uniting the two departments of medicine. Dr. Obetz when seen later, observed that he intended to ask the regents for permission to publish in full the document that he read before them, upon which this personal attack on him has been based. "I considered the matter entirely from the standpoint of the welfare of the student" said he with energy. That part of the board of regents that were present were not favorable to immediate publication of that incendiary document as Nottingham would perhaps call it. Dr. Obetz said that he does not intend to continue scape-goat for others and be cussed for plans and purposes never advocated by him; he desires the fullest possible publicity for the plan he formulated.

The Municipal Club.

At the call of the president the municipal club assembled in the parlors of the Church of Christ Tuesday evening to decide on their future program. The existing situation was discussed with reference to the proper attitude of the club and it was resolved to use every legitimate means to extend its field of usefulness. The executive committee was instructed to secure Washington Gladden or some other eminent expounder of the principles of municipal reform and good government to speak on that subject in Ann Arbor in the near future. It was further resolved to extend the club membership by publishing the fullest possible information about the purposes of the organization and giving all people in sympathy a chance to join. The message of our new mayor was known to a few of the members of the club and they expressed themselves as heartily in accord with it.

Prof. Reighard's trip to Ludington included the purpose of investigating the fish hatcheries of that place.

GRANT AND SHERMAN were spoken of as Jeffersonian Democrats by a prominent orator at the recent banquet.

AT the Democratic banquet last week one orator spoke of the Federalist, Whig, and Republican parties as having had special missions; and when their work was accomplished they became degenerate and corrupt.

THE NEW CITY GOVERNMENT.

The citizens of Ann Arbor have waited with interest for the new city government to get in position and begin to do something.

The Mayor has begun in a satisfactory manner. His first message is a

The friends and neighbors of Mrs. Ira Henderson, who resides at Armada, Mich., know all about the matter, and she now wishes that everybody should know all the facts just as they occurred.

"For nearly four years," she says, "I had suffered. I was so nervous that I could not write or read, could not even bear my children's company."

"I was very weak and nervous and would get all in a tremble and my heart would beat so hard that it would almost take my life."

I doctored for two years without benefit, and then I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I received help right away and I could see that the first bottle was helping me.

MRS. IRA HENDERSON.

"It has also cured my little girl of a nervous trouble. She would get up in her sleep and be out of her head. At such times she would talk strange and it would be some time before she would know where she was."

"My neighbors and friends know how I have suffered from weakness and nervous disease. I have lived here forty years and am known to all."

It is by the wide-spread publication of facts like these that the great curative powers of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy can be made known to every invalid and sufferer in the land.

MARCH, APRIL AND MAY

Is the Time for Catarrhal Dyspepsia—
The Blood Must be Cleansed.

The symptoms of catarrhal dyspepsia are: Coated tongue, pain or heavy feeling in the stomach, sour stomach, belching of gas, dizzy head, sometimes headache, despondent feelings, loss of appetite, palpitation of heart and irregularity of the bowels.

For this condition Per-na is found to be an admirable remedy. In all cases it brings prompt relief to the painful symptoms, and in a large per cent. of cases it makes a permanent cure. Per-na soothes the inflamed mucous surface, and thus strikes at the root of the disease. In cases where the inflammation has been so severe and continued as to produce extreme irritability of the stomach, the remedy may be taken in small doses at first, diluted in water; but as soon as the improvement is sufficient to permit the full dose to be taken undiluted, it is the better way, and the cure is much more rapid.

Per-na is also a spring medicine which at once removes the cause of all affections peculiar to the spring season by purifying the blood of contaminations, and invigorating the whole system. Two valuable books, No. 2 setting forth in detail the treatment of catarrh, coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis and consumption, in every phase of these diseases, and No. 3, on spring remedies and diseases, will be sent free to any address by Per-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbia, Ohio.

Raymond L. Bridgman contributes an able article to the April New England Magazine, in which he considers the objections to "Biennial Elections and Legislative Sessions." He comes to the conclusion that the growing demands of modern life demand annual sessions, and that frequent legislation educates the electorate, and is worth the expense.

The Atlantic Monthly for April contains many articles of great value. Chief among these may be mentioned another installment of Edward Everett Hale's autobiographical papers entitled "My College Days," Alexander V. G. Allen's thoughtful and very admiring paper on Phillips Brooks, and President Andrews's essay "Money as an International Question." Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

The important question, "How Shall the Pension List be Revised?" will be answered in the North American Review for April by the Hon. R. P. C. Wilson, chairman of the Committee on Pensions of the House of Representatives; Gen. S. S. Burdett, Past Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Col. W. C. Church, Editor of the Army and Navy Journal. Published at 3 East 14th St., New York.

The April Overland Monthly among other articles contains one entitled "Among the Diggers of Thirty Years ago," by Helen M. Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter will give in this continuation of her paper a strictly accurate history of the inhuman slavery of the Indian children in Mendocino county, fully illustrated from paintings, washes and drawings by Grace Hudson. The Overland Pub. Co., San Francisco, Cal.

While writing with all the scientific knowledge of a great astronomer, Camille Flammarion in his marvelous story "Omega: The End of the World," which begins in the April number of The Cosmopolitan magazine, keeps the reader at the highest point of excitement by his vivid description of the alarm and despair excited by the approach of a comet whose collision with the earth had been declared by astronomers inevitable. The Cosmopolitan, New York.

To the average reader, the most interesting article in the April number of the Magazine of Art is "The Home Life of John Leech," by Henry Silver. In this we have not only Mr. Silver's entertaining account of the famous draughtsman, but a number of illustrations showing the delightful "home" in which his home life was spent. "Formal Garden" is the title of paper the subject of which is illustrated. Cassell Publishing Co. N. Y., $3.50 a year in advance.

The recurrence of Arbor Day on the 22d of April gives occasion for several articles in the Century Magazine for that month on different aspects of the subject, including "A Tree Museum" by Miss M. C. Robbins, being a description of that unique institution, the Harvard Arboretum; a poem, "The Heart of the Free" ("What does he plant who plants a tree?"); and editorial articles on "Arbor Day," "The World's Fair and Landscape Gardening," "Parks in and near Large Cities," and "A Memorial Address in Forest Preservation." Century Co., New York, N. Y.

Preventing Future Misery.
If there is, in this vale of tears a more prolific source of misery than the rheumatism twinge, we have yet to hear of it. People are born with a tendency to rheumatism, just as they are with one to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may develop this. As soon as the agonizing complaint manifests itself, recourse should be had to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks its further inroads and banishes the rheumatic poison from the system. This statement tallies exactly with the testimony of physicians who have employed this fine blood depurant in their private practice. There is also the amplest professional and general testimony as to the efficacy of the Bitters for malaria, liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite and flesh. After a wetting, whether followed by a cold or not, the Bitters is useful as a preventative of the initial attack of rheumatism.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out of this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. In cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE GOLDBUG

By EDGAR ALLAN POE.

Around the new position a circle somewhat larger than in the former instance was now described, and we again set to work with the spades. I was dreadfully weary, but scarcely understanding what had occasioned the change in my thoughts I felt no longer any great aversion from the labor imposed. I had become most unaccountably interested—nay, even excited. Perhaps there was something amid all the extravagant demeanor of Legrand—some air of forethought or of deliberation—which impressed me. I dug eagerly and now and then caught myself actually looking, with something that very much resembled expectation, for the fancied treasure, the vision of which had become my unfortunate companion.

At a period when such vagaries of thought most fully possessed me, and when we had been at work perhaps an hour and a half, we were again interrupted by the violent howlings of the dog. His meanness in the first instance had been evidently but the result of playfulness or caprice, but he now assumed a bitter and serious tone. Upon Jupiter's again attempting to muzzle him, he made furious resistance, and leaping into the hole tore up the mold frantically with his claws.

In a few seconds he had uncovered a mass of human bones, forming two complete skeletons, intermingled with several buttons of metal, and what appeared to be the dust of decayed woolen. One or two strokes of a spade overturned the blade of a large Spanish knife, and as we dug farther three or four loose pieces of gold and silver coin came to light.

At sight of these the joy of Jupiter could scarcely be restrained, but the countenance of his master wore an air of extreme disappointment. He urged us, however, to continue our exertions, and the words were hardly uttered when I stumbled and fell forward, having caught the toe of my boot in a large ring of iron that lay half buried in the loose earth.

We now worked in earnest, and never did I pass 10 minutes of more intense excitement. During this interval we had fairly unearthed an oblong chest of wood, which, from its perfect preservation and wonderful hardness, had plainly been subjected to some mineralizing process—perhaps that of the chloride of mercury. This box was 2½ feet long, 3 feet broad and 2½ feet deep. It was firmly secured by bands of wrought iron, riveted, and forming a kind of open trellis work over the whole. On each side of the chest near the top were three rings of iron—six in all—by means of which a firm hold could be obtained by six persons.

Our utmost united endeavors served only to disturb the coffer very slightly in its bed. We at once saw the impossibility of removing so great a weight. Luckily the sole fastenings of the lid consisted of two sliding bolts. These we drew back, trembling and panting with anxiety. In an instant a treasure of incalculable value lay gleaming before us. As the rays of the lanterns fell within the pit there flashed upward a glow and a glare from a confused heap of gold and jewels that absolutely dazzled our eyes.

I shall not pretend to describe the feelings with which I gazed. Amazement was of course predominant. Legrand appeared exhausted with excitement and spoke very few words. Jupiter's countenance wore for some minutes as deadly a pallor as it is possible in the nature of things for any negro's visage to assume. He seemed stupefied—thunder-stricken. Presently he fell upon his knees in the pit, and burying his naked arms up to the elbows in gold let them there remain, as if enjoying the luxury of a bath. At length with a deep sigh he exclaimed, as if in a soliloquy:

"And dis all come ob de goolebug! de putty goolebug! de poor little goolebug what I boosed in dat savage kind ob style! Ain't you shamed ob yourself, nigger? Answerme dat!"

It became necessary at last that I should arouse both master and valet to the expediency of removing the treasure. It was growing late, and it behaved us to make exertion, that we might get everything housed before daylight. It was difficult to say what should be done, and much time was spent in deliberation, so confused were the ideas of all. We finally lightened the box by removing two-thirds of its contents, when we were enabled, with some trouble, to raise it from the hole. The articles taken out were deposited among the brambles and the dog left to guard them, with strict orders from Jupiter neither upon any pretense to stir from the spot nor to open his mouth until our return.

We then hurriedly made for home with the chest, reaching the hut in safety, but after excessive toil at 1 o'clock in the morning. Worn out as we were, it was not in human nature to do more immediately. We rested until 2 and had supper, starting for the hills immediately afterward, armed with three stout sacks, which, by good luck, were upon the premises. A little before 4 we arrived at the pit, divided the remainder of the booty as equally as might be among us, and leaving the holes unfilled again set out for the hut, at which, for the second time, we deposited our golden burdens just as the first faint streaks of dawn gleamed from over the tops in the east.

We were now thoroughly broken down, but the intense excitement of the time denied us repose. After an unequal slumber of some three or four hours' duration we arose, as if by preconcert, to make examination of our treasure.

The chest had been full to the brim, and we spent the whole day and the greater part of the next night in a scrutiny of its contents. There had been nothing like order or arrangement. Everything had been heaped in promiscuously. Having asserted all with care, we found ourselves possessed of even vaster wealth than we had at first supposed. In coin there was rather more than $450,000—estimating the value of the pieces as accurately as we could by the tables of the period.

There was not a particle of silver. All was gold of antique date and of great variety—French, Spanish and German money, with a few English guineas, and some counters of which we had never seen specimens before. There were several very large and heavy coins so worn that we could make nothing of their inscriptions. There was no American money. The value of the jewels we found more difficulty in estimating. There were diamonds, some of them exceedingly large and fine, 110 in all and not one of them small; 18 rubies of remarkable brilliancy; 310 emeralds, all very beautiful, and 21 sapphires, with an opal. These stones had all been broken from their settings and thrown loose in the chest. The settings themselves, which we picked out from among the other gold, appeared to have been beaten up with hammers, as if to prevent identification.

A treasure of incalculable value lay gleaming before us.

Besides all this, there was a vast quantity of solid gold ornaments—nearly 200 massive finger and earrings; rich chains—30 of these, if I remember—83 very large and heavy crucifixes; five golden crowns of great value; a prodigious golden punch bowl, ornamented with richly chased vine leaves and bacchanalian figures, with two sword handles exquisitely embossed, and many other smaller articles which I cannot recollect. The weight of these valuables exceeded 350 pounds avoirdupois, and in this estimate I have not included 197 superb gold watches; three of the number being worth each $500, if $1. Many of them were very old, and as timekeepers valueless, the works having suffered more or less from corrosion, but all were richly jeweled and in cases of great worth.

We estimated the entire contents of the chest that night at $1,500,000, and upon the subsequent disposal of the trinkets and jewels (a few being retained pirate. The flag of the death's head is hoisted in all engagements.

"I have said that the scrap was parchment and not paper. Parchment is durable—almost imperishable. Matters of little moment are rarely consigned to parchment, since for the mere ordinary purposes of drawing or writing it is not nearly so well adapted as paper. This reflection suggested some meaning—some relevancy—in the death's head. I did not fail to observe also the form of the parchment. Although one of its corners had been by some accident destroyed, it could be seen that the original form was oblong. It was just such a slip indeed as might have been chosen for a memorandum—for a record of something to be long remembered and carefully preserved."

"But," I interposed, "you say that the skull was not upon the parchment when you made the drawing of the beetle. How, then, do you trace any connection between the boat and the skull, since this latter, according to your own admission, must have been designed (God only knows how or by whom) at some period subsequent to your sketching the scarabeus?"

She Didn't Know the Lady.

Mrs. Clancy—Yes, Mrs. Muggins, Pat and OI part to mate no more. OI went to the hospital to ax after him. "OI want to see me husband," sez OI—"the man that got blowed up." "Ye'ez can't," sez the docter; "He's under the influence of Ann Estheticus." Housekeeper—Nonsense! Why should he?

"I showed him the insect."

"Ah, hereupon turns the whole mystery, although the secret at this point I had comparatively little difficulty in solving. My steps were sure and could afford but a single result. I reasoned, for example, thus: When I drew the scarabeus, there was no skull apparent upon the parchment. When I had completed the drawing, I gave it to you and observed you narrowly until you returned it. You therefore did not design the skull, and no one else was present to do it. Then it was not done by human agency. And nevertheless it was done.

"At this stage of my reflections I endeavored to remember, and did remember with entire distinctness, every incident which occurred about the period in question. The weather was chilly (oh, rare and happy accident!) and a fire was blazing upon the hearth. I was heated with exercise and sat near the table. You, however, had drawn a chair close to the chimney. Just as I placed the parchment in your hand, and as you were in the act of inspecting it, Wolf, the Newfoundland, entered and leaped upon your shoulders. With your left hand you caressed him and kept him off, while your right, holding the parchment, was permitted to fall less readily between your knees and in close proximity to the fire. At one moment I thought the blaze had caught it and was about to caution you, but before I could speak you had withdrawn it and were engaged in its examination.

"When I considered all these particu-

lass, I doubted not for a moment that heat had been the agent in bringing to light upon the parchment the skull which I saw designed upon it. You are well aware that chemical preparations exist, and have existed time out of mind, by means of which it is possible to write upon either paper or vellum so that the characters shall become visible only when subjected to the action of fire. Zaffre digested in aqua regia and diluted with four times its weight of water is sometimes employed; a green tint dissolved in spirit of niter give a red. These colors disappear at longer or shorter intervals after the material written upon cools, but again become apparent upon the reapplication of heat.

"I now scrutinized the death's head with care. Its outer edges—the edges of the drawing nearest the edge of the vellum—were far more distinct than the others. It was clear that the action of the caloric had been imperfect or unequal. I immediately kindled a fire and subjected every portion of the parchment to a glowing heat. At first the only effect was the strengthening of the faint lines in the skull, but upon persevering in the experiment there became visible at the corner of the slip, diagonally opposite to the spot in which the death's head was delineated, the figure of what I at first supposed to be a goat. A closer scrutiny, however, satisfied me that it was intended for a kid."

"Hah! ha!" said I, "to be sure I have no right to laugh at you—$1,500,000 of money is too serious a matter for mirth—but you are not about to establish a third link in your chain—you will not find any special connection between your pirates and a goat—pirates, you know, have nothing to do with goats; they appertain to the farming interest."

"But I have just said that the figure was not that of a goat."

"Well, a kid, then—pretty much the same thing."

"Pretty much, but not altogether," said Legrand. "You may have heard of Captain Kidd. I at once looked upon the figure of the animal as a kind of punning or hieroglyphical signature. I say signature because its position upon the vellum suggested this idea. The death's head at the corner diagonally opposite had, in the same manner, the air of a stamp or seal. But I was sorely put out by the absence of all else—of the body to my imagined instrument—of the text for my context."
