WHOLE NO. 963

A LATE SESSION.

THE COMMON COUNCIL DELIBERATED DELIBERATELY.

Courtesies Extended—Ald. Manly Wants Small Boys to Keep Out of Shade Trees—He Also Declares in Favor of 10 P. M. as the Hour for Closing Saloons—Mr. Green's City Building Adopted—Ald. Herz on Snow Drifts—Ald. Snow Gets Mixed—The Fire Department Will Keep Track of the Water Pressure.

All the aldermen were present sooner or later last Monday evening except Mr. Fillmore who was reported as dangerously ill. Proceedings began with an act of courtesy, Messrs. Kline and Wines being invited to take seats within the rail. These gentlemen accepted and were placed near his honor the mayor who now occupied the place voted him at the last meeting. Mr. Wines brought down several copies of the report of an Ohio city on their sewer system, how it was built, what it cost, and how it works, and presented them to different members of the council.

During the disability of Ald. Fillmore, Ald. Kitson was asked to preside over the deliberations of the sidewalk committee.

Ald. Manly introduced an ordinance to prevent trees and telegraph poles being used as grand stands for base ball games which was passed unanimously. An ordinance relative to fire limits was then passed to second reading. This provides that the fire limits shall be as follows: On Main St. from Kingsley to Williams, Huron from First to Fifth Ave., Washington from Ashley to Fifth Ave., Liberty from First to Fifth Ave., Ann from A-hley to Fifth Ave., Catherine from Ashley to Fifth Ave., Fourth Ave. from Kingsley to Liberty, on Fifth Ave. from Kingsley to Liberty, Ashley from Catherine to Williams, State from Williams to Huron, Detroit from Fourth Ave. to Depot. The council reserves the right to grant permission for building frame dwellings and barns in the region north of Catherine St., west of Ashley St., south of Liberty St. and on State St. between Liberty and Huron.

The committee on streets reported in favor of letting the M. C. R. R. lay the track across Fourth Ave. where the inspection occurred last week.

Ald. O'Mara recommended that the Sixth ward engine house be equipped at a cost of $4,000 to give additional fire protection to the First, Sixth and Fourth wards. Ald. Prettyman moved to accept and adopt. Ald. Martin asked where the money was coming from. Ald. Herz thought an alarm system a better investment. Ald. Kitson told of a house in the Sixth ward being saved by an old fashioned bucket brigade, that would have burned to the ground in spite of the fire department. He urged the advantage of a down grade in reaching fires. Ald. Prettyman explained how wholly unprotected the Sixth ward and some parts of the First and Fourth were last winter a good many times. It is a fifty foot climb from the engine house to E. University Ave. and when the snow is drifted and flying, and a strong wind blowing, a fire would be beyond control before the down town force could possibly reach the spot.

Ald. Martin asked Ald. Prettyman to state the reason differently. This lucid request caused Ald. Prettyman to observe that he only stated obvious facts.

Ald. Herz wanted it understood that they had snowdrifts in other parts of the city, and that it was up hill elsewhere besides in Sixth ward. Ald. Prettyman, "Oh no!" Ald. Martin said the lack of protection was due to waterworks. The matter was eventually tabled.

Ald. Herz then reported that the lighting committee knew all about why a large number of the electric lights had not been burning for several nights, at which information the council indicated the proper amount of joy.

Four more saloon bonds were reported as follows:

L. J. Damm, S. Baumgartner, Fred Brown, J. W. Walsh, Henry McNally, H. Bardenmann, Moses La Jole, Kapp & Ardner, Ernest Rehberg, M. Letz, R. Knapp, Ad. Kemper.

Ald. Manly also brought to second reading an ordinance closing the saloons from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. Standard time, except in the months of July, August and September when they are to be permitted to remain open until 10:30 p. m.

Six druggists' bonds were accepted. The ring performance by Messrs. E. E. Calkins, H. J. Brown and John Moore caused a smile. It was Calkins, principal, Brown and Moore sureties; Brown principal, Calkins and Moore sureties; Moore principal, Calkins and Brown sureties.

The sidewalk committee reported some walks to be built: On Catherine St., Ingalls to Clark; on Forest Ave., S. Univ. to Hill; on E. Univ. Ave., from Hill to Packard; on State, from Kingsley to Fuller, and on Summit St., from Detroit to Beakes.

A very pretty little circus occurred over the report of the city building committee. Mr. Clay Green of Detroit interjected himself into the matter and complicated the problem. He made a very good proposal, better in some ways than the committee thought than Mr. Rinsey's. The council gave Mr. Green a few minutes to explain his designs and propositions.

Ald. Prettyman moved that the matter be referred to a committee consisting of the present committee plus the mayor and city attorney with power to act. This was objected to so strongly that Ald. Prettyman withdrew his motion to give way to one by Ald. Manly that Mr. Green's proposals be accepted. It was objected to very strongly on the ground that they were not formulated yet, and that it was unfair to Mr. Rinsey not to give him a chance to modify his proposals.

Ald. Shaier spoke so strongly for fair play for Mr. Rinsey that, Ald. Manly's motion was amended to read just as Ald. Prettyman's motion had been at first. The amendment was lost. Then Ald. Martin, Kitson, Schairer and Prettyman spoke strongly in favor of giving Mr. Rinsey a fair chance to meet Mr. Green's proposals. Further amendments to that end were duly defeated and at last Ald. Manly's motion prevailed. Mr. Green must now satisfy the committee. During the entanglement Ald. Snow admitted that he was mixed up and announced that he would vote yes every time, a resolution that he carried out.

Ald. Kitson handed in two valuable resolutions about the placing and care of city hydrants, and Ald. Prettyman introduced a resolution requiring that the city engine house should obtain a water gauge so that the actual pressure on the water mains could be determined at any time; five readings to be recorded each day. It now being nearly 11:30 and several aldermen becoming anxious for adjournment, the bids for city printing were disposed of with a rush, the job being presented to the Argus and Courier. They then adjourned.

On the Lookout For Cholera.

Professor Victor C. Vaughan of Ann Arbor, Professor Delos Fall of Albion and Dr. Mason N. Gray of Pontiac constitute the committee of the state board of health, which has charge of the arrangements for the conference of the health officers of the state to be held at Ann Arbor, June 15 and 16, under the auspices of the state board for the purpose of discussing Asiatic cholera and its prevention. The following topics will receive especial attention: The cholera germ and its detection, the chemical poisons of the cholera germ, the disinfection of cholera stools, what is the national government doing to prevent the introduction and spread of cholera? what is the state of Michigan doing? what are the neighboring states and provinces doing? what preliminary work should be done by cities and villages? what should the local health officer do on the occurrence of a case of suspected cholera? the present sanitary condition of the chief cities of the state.

Each local board of health in the state is urged to send a delegate to the conference which will convene in University Hall at 2 o'clock p. m., on Thursday, June 15, and will continue its labors until Friday evening. During the sessions the hygienic laboratory and its work will be inspected. Professor Vaughan expects that the following persons will be present and read papers: Dr. Brynes, Toronto; Dr. Reilly, Chicago; Dr. Probst, Columbus, Ohio; Dr. Metcalf, Indianapolis; Dr. Baker and Frank Wells, Lansing; Dr. Duffield, Detroit; Dr. Graves, Pontiac; Professor Fall, Albion, and Dr. Wingate, Milwaukee.

They Played Like Tigers.

The mighty sluggers of the twirling sphere from Main and State streets met the slick solvers of siren curves from Huron and Ann streets Tuesday afternoon on the campus, and for seven direful innings the contest raged furiously. No pen could describe the deeds of daring and skill performed on that eventful occasion. Suffice it to say that when Umpire Geiss called the game for supper, Main and State streets gathered up all of the glory that went to the victors and carted it off down town for more convenient distribution. The batteries were—for the victors, Voorhies and Weinmann; for the others, Clement and Green. The score by innings was: Huron and Ann 0 0 1 0 2 2—5 State and Main 1 1 1 1 4 0—7

The Iron and Steel Club have selected the following officers for next year: pres., R. Fisher; vice-pres., E. C. Sullivan; sec'y, G. L. Davis.

The Cornell game was a financial success. Michigan's share of the receipts puts the boys out of debt and leaves a surplus in the treasury.

At Olivet a recent number of the college Echo contains a page upon which appears the photographs of the seniors taken during their days of babyhood.

The U. of M. has made arrangements whereby her league foot-ball games will be played in Ann Arbor this fall. She will play Minnesota Oct. 28, Wisconsin Nov. 4, and Northwestern Nov. 18.

The faculty concert by the University School of Music will be given Thursday evening, June 15th instead of the 8th. A very important recital will be given Saturday, June 10th, at 2 p. m., at the rooms of the School of Music.

The Illinois boys played a pretty straight and even game last Saturday, but there was a element of excitement conspicuously absent, on account of the safe lead maintained by the Michigan boys throughout the game. Score 10 to 3 for U. of M.

The regents met last Friday and talked in a protracted manner. Various representatives of firms of architects sat in the lobby and waited anxiously for something to occur. It didn't occur.

Finally Prof. Reighard was voted an indemnity of $250 for his exertions with the fish commission a few weeks since.

The new funny paper will be called "The Wrinkle of the U. of M." It will appear on the first Friday of each month; subscription price $1.50 per annum. Whether there is a joke in that title has not been revealed, but it is significant of the amount of cogitation that will be necessary to get up the copy.

Pay Your Money and Walk Inside.

The council is now in hot pursuit of the individual, be he man or boy, who with malicious intent goeth to a base ball game or other sport, and feloniously taketh it in from over the fence. No more shall the T. & A. track be a free grand stand for the Athletic field. No more shall the small boy festoon the branches of shade trees or gather in great mobs in the forks. No more shall the telegraph poles become prodigious specimens of the purple monkey and yellow stick toy of our childhood. Should these things occur in the future, then will the redoubtable Murray lead his valiant cohorts to the scene. He will charge down the T. & A. tracks all reckless of the giddy turmoil of traffic he will shake the shade trees until olive branches fall off of them, he will scale the telegraph pole and skip along the wires making these appliances of traffic look like an animated score from Wagner. In this way shall these nefarious sight-seers be gathered in and made to pay dollars of fine with costs, and spend days in jail till such fine be paid; twenty dollars or twenty days being the maximum. However, if the proprietor of the various objects used for observatory purposes consents to the occupation, then Murray will not stir in the matter.

Political Science.

The first number of the Publication of the Michigan Political Science Association has been laid on our table. It contains a number of very valuable and interesting papers. The first one is by Judge Cooley on "State Bank Issues in Michigan—A Retrospect of Legislation;" and in a subsequent paper the same writer considers in a clear and forcible manner, "Federal Taxation of State Bank Issues." The gist of the latter paper is that while the exercise by Congress of the power of taxing state bank issues was put on very doubtful grounds it might have been justified on the same grounds as the interstate commerce law. Bank Commissioner Sherwood discusses a kindred topic in "Bank Note Circulation," closing with the expression of a belief that "it will be a long time before the state banks of Michigan are allowed to issue bank note circulation." Other papers are: "Should United States Senators be Elected by the People?" by Representative T. C. Barkworth, discussed by A. C. McLaughlin, E. V. Robinson, B. A. Hinsdale, H. C. Adams and D. B. Waldo; "A Sketch of the Origin, Establishment and Workings of the National Banking System," by Dwight B. Waldo; "The Interstate Commerce Act—Its Purpose, Practical Operation, Partial Failure and Reason; With Suggestions for Improving It," by E. W. Meddaugh; "The Interstate Commerce Act From the Shipper's Standpoint," by James T. Shaw, and "Discussion of the Interstate Commerce Act," by T. G. Craig and H. C. Adams. The number also contains a statement of the organization of the association and its first and second meetings, with an address by President Edward Cahill.

These papers are all rich in practical suggestion. They seem to promise that one of the objects of the society, that of raising politics above partisanship, and of trying all public questions before the bar of reason is something that one day may be attained.

The new Victor "flyer" stolen last week from Howard Coffin has not yet been discovered. The Overman Wheel Company, who manufactured it, have offered a reward of $50 for the discovery of the thief and are using every effort to find the wheel. Subscription papers have been started and quite a sum raised to prosecute the search. This is a matter of vital interest to every wheelman. A bicycle must be left standing alone at times, and they must be made safe. Wheels are far easier to steal than horses, and can carry the thief further away from pursuit in a day. An Englishman not long ago on a track made 413 miles in twenty-four hours, a rate of 17.2 miles an hour. Ypsilanti is only 35 minutes from Ann Arbor by wheel, for a first-class rider, thirty-two minutes being the record.

Mr. Coffin's wheel was a new one, having been in his possession only a very few weeks. He left it locked, at the library door, and came out to find the chain of the lock snapped off and the wheel gone. A bicycle was shipped east from the M. C. R. R. that afternoon, but it is doubted whether that was the one. A girl, who knew Mr. Coffin's wheel was almost sure that it was ridden off towards Ypsilanti. She was riding on the campus back of the library when a man on a new Victor flyer came sailing around the library and nearly collided with her. With a girl's quickness of vision she saw that he was tall, wore a gray cap, a striped black and white jersey, black trousers and tennis shoes, and had a small mustache. The wheel could be recognized by its pink tire, drop bars, elliptical sproket and by its number which is 40,480.

The Inlander.

With the present issue, the Inlander completes a most successful year with a most successful number. Probably none of the existing college publications furnish a better exposition of the literary pleasure of University life than this one, and therefore its continually meritorious productions and its tasteful appearance attracts warm opinions toward the institution which it represents. The present board of editors have acquitted themselves of their frequently arduous duties in a most efficient manner. No one can appreciate till he tries it, how much of time, energy and judgment the successful management of such a publication requires. The June number of the Inlander contains an index of the year.

State Horticultural Society's June Meeting.

At Shelby, Oceana county, the State Horticultural society will hold its June meeting on the 14th and 15th. Among the papers to be presented are these: "Sex in Fruit," Prof. L. H. Bailey of Cornell University; "Fungi of Fruit Trees," Prof. L. R. Taft of Michigan Agricultural College; "The right of modern pomology to be recognized as a science," Pres. T. T. Lyon of South Haven; "Peach culture, a general view," R. Morrill of Benton Harbor; "Outlook as to yellows," J. F. Taylor of Douglas; "How shall Michigan horticulturists make the most of their opportunities at the World's Fair," C. J. Monroe of South Haven; "Potato Scab," R. J. Coryell of Michigan Agricultural College; "The horticulture of Oceana county," B. Gebhart of Hart.

The people of Shelby will entertain free all visitors.

There will be reports upon the condition of fruit in all parts of the state. Edw. C. Reim, Allegan, Sec'y.

NEIGHBORHOOD NOTES.

Over 200 men are employed in the T. & A. shops at Owosso. Coldwater's council has decided to pave the principal streets.

It cost Owosso $450 to have the city assessment taken this year.

Pinekey is trying to organize a hive of lady Macabees. Can't afford to get behind the lighthouse.

A telegram was received at the Normal Monday afternoon announcing the appropriation of $20,000 for a gymnasium.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Green Oak farmers say they have marked their chickens with "blue" paint and have loaded their muskets to the muzzle and are now watching for game.

Northville has raised by subscription $2,624 as a bonus fund to be paid for the Hanrahan Refrigerator Work. One of the terms of the contract is that 50 men will be employed inside of a year.

Howell thinks she has a good thing in her new condensed milk works. About 10,000 lbs. of milk are shipped daily to Lansing. At the last pay day, $3,000 was paid out to the farmers for their lactical product.—Tri-County Ficket.

A well known sheep grower says there have been more sheep shorn unwashed this year in this section than ever before. He believes that the time is not far distant when sheep washing will be abandoned and wool sold upon its merits.—Coldwater Republican.

The meanness of a Coldwater woman takes the cake. She refuses to let a thirsty traveler have a drink, saying that pumping water for other people would unnecessarily wear out the pump. Recently two bicyclists stopped beneath a tree to get out of the hot sun. The woman drove them away with a gun.

An exchange says that the gum on the obverse side of the Columbia stamp is medicated and warranted to cure catarrh, brace up a torpid liver, destroy the appetite for alcohol, morphine and tobacco, relieve that tired feeling, cure warts and kill delinquent subscribers and newspaper borrowers, as well as potato bugs.

A Coldwater pastor last Sunday attempted to separate the chaff from the wheat. He called upon all such members to rise as would refuse to attend the World's Fair in case it was opened on Sunday. There was, however, mostly chaff in that church, as only about 20 not even a respectable minority, rose from their seats.

The Orchard Lake Cadets, 140 strong, leave their quarters to-night for the World's Fair. A convenient camp ground has been arranged for them inside the white walls of Jackson Park where they will remain for two weeks. The cadets have been in Chicago before and received a warm welcome for their manly deportment and perfection in drilling.—Excelsior.

Strawberries are a little cheaper in the local market, though too high to be considered anything else than a luxury. The advance is due entirely to the fact that the crop is short. The Tennessee crop was almost a failure and the Illinois berries are just coming into market. Had the Tennessee crop been anything as it should have been, prices would have been away down.

A Birmingham amateur gardener has the following receipt for killing squash bugs: "First catch your bug, lay on three coats of Paris green, putty all apertures and sand paper between coats. Then lay the bug on a stone and strike it a sharp blow with a coupling pin. Now lay the bug in hot water and he will never recover from his injuries and will finally expire and become defunct."

The farmers of Michigan are now more than ever, turning their attention to bean culture. The indications are that a largely increased acreage over the preceding year will be planted this season. It is claimed that one year with another, it is as sure a crop as wheat, and far more profitable. The crops of late years have brought on an average from $1.25 to $1.50 per bushel, fully double the price on wheat.

Banks have been warned of a new counterfeit which has made its appearance in this section of the country. It is a $5 silver certificate issued under the act of August 4, 1892. The principal defects are in the portrait of Grant, which is poorly engraved. The nose is too large and flat and the right ear is larger than the genuine. The portrait has a moth-eaten appearance. The bill bears the signature of W. S. Rosecrans.—Dexter News.

Are You Going to travel? If so you must be very careful of your health, or your doctor's bills will cost you more than your traveling expenses. A bottle of Sulphur Bitters will protect you from all sickness incident to a change of climate.—Evening Telegram.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

Writ of Mandamus Denied. The defunct Imperial Life Insurance company of Detroit made application for a writ of mandamus compelling the state treasurer to pay over to the trustee $34,000 of the $100,000 deposited in his hands for security of policy holders for the purpose of litigation of death losses accumulating. The writ was denied upon the ground that it is impossible at this time to know what are the liabilities, and in justice to policy-holders and other creditors the deposit of $100,000 should remain intact until a distribution is legally made to all the creditors.

A Negaunee Man a Bigamist. There was a big wedding in Leadville, Col., ten months ago, the principals being Felix L. Perrow, of Negaunee, and Miss Katie Bell, of Leadville. The police there received word from Michigan recently that a Mrs. Felix Perrow, of Negaunee, was looking for her husband, who had last been heard of in Leadville. MORE STRINGENT.

Finance, Manufacturing and General Trade Show Discouraging Conditions. New York, June 8.—The weekly review of trade says: "More disheartening conditions have prevailed during the last week, and those who saw the beginning of permanent recovery in the better tone a week ago are disappointed. The money markets have been closer, especially in the interior, and manufacturing and trade are more restricted than before. Gold has gone out again in large amounts, exports for the week being about $5,000,000, and the treasury gold reserve has been drawn down to about $80,000,000. In nearly all departments of trade uncertainty nudes the future has depressing influence, which is now clearly perceived in decrease of new business, and while most manufacturing works are yet employed on full orders as these run out the next-trading days closed increased. "General trade has already been cut into, noticeably in eastern and middle states, to a marked extent in central, northwestern and western states, but to a more moderate extent south. Interviews with several hundred prominent jobbers, manufacturers and bankers at leading money center indicate a likelihood of continued stringency and that general trade may be restricted still further. Opinions offered are not altogether gloomy with respect to the outlook, but the banks are calling loans in many directions and in other ways strengthening reserves, and generally refusing to extend or grant discounts to other than regular customers. Efforts are making to protect certain lines of trade, notably grain. Money lenders are affected by the prevalent sense of uncertainty in the financial world and do not regard the outlook as encouraging. An influence may be exerted as well by the wages contests in iron and steel industries at the west during the summer. The tendency of prices continues downward and includes wool, finished iron, hides, sugar, hogs, wheat, corn and oats, lard and cotton, nominal advances being reported in tobacco and coal. At Chicago wheat is quoted an eighth below the lowest price for thirty years. Speculative markets have been sinking. Stocks are nearly 22 per share lower than a week ago. Wheat has declined 14 cents, corn 24 cents and oats 14 cents. In moderate transactions, few caring to buy wheat with enormous stocks in sight. Lard and hogs are lower and cotton has declined a sixth, with moderate sales, though receipts are small. "Exports of products still fall below last year's in value, and there is much withdrawal of money loaned in this country on foreign account. The fact of such loans mature within the next week leads to the expectation of further exports of gold. "Failures during the last week have been 228 in the United States, against 275 last year, and 21 in Canada, against 22 last year, but two of the United States failures were for more than $100,000 each, four others were of firms rated at over $200,000 each, and forty more of firms rated at over $50,000 each. Last week the total number of failures was 273."

TO AID RECIPROCITY. Opening of the Second International Convention at St. Paul. ST. PAUL, Minn., June 6.—The second international reciprocity convention met in the Auditorium at 2 p. m., between 300 and 400 delegates being in attendance. Attendance as delegates is limited to those who favor the extension of American commerce and of reciprocal trade relations between the United States and Canada, and the promoters of the movement have avoided anything appearing in the interest of any political party, seeking to have men representing their respective business interests for mutual benefit. In accordance, therefore, with the decision of last year's convention at Grand Forks, discussions will be kept strictly within the bounds of the call.

SWEEP BY A CYCLONE. Great Loss of Life and Destruction of Property at Eldorado, Ark. LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 3.—The town of Eldorado, Union county, Ark., was swept by one of the most destructive cyclones about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon that has passed over this section of the southwest for years past. Eldorado has a population of 1,100 and the death and destruction to people and property in the town were frightful. A dispatch received here while the storm was raging says from fifteen to twenty-five persons were killed and injured in Eldorado, while the destruction of property and loss of life in the vicinity is terrible.

An Ohio Bank Falls. PAULDING, O., June 3.—Potter's bank, the oldest bank in Paulding county, and heretofore considered one of the safest, has closed its doors. The bank was established in 1874 and has always done a large banking business. The bank has also done a large business loaning money on land in this county. Several township treasurers were caught for many thousand dollars and the whole town will suffer from the failure.

Spread of Cholera in France. MADRID, June 5.—Despite the denials of the French local authorities the Spanish consuls in France continue to report the spread of cholera epidemic at several ports. Four fresh cases, they say, developed Saturday in Marseilles, two in Certe and one case in Toulouse. Between May 23 and June 1 there were fourteen cases and eleven deaths in Marseilles.

Murdered in Their Beds. CLARENSVILLE, Can., June 4.—The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Ely and their daughter were found in their home at Beach Ridge, a few miles from here. All indications show that the three people were murdered during the night. The victims were poor and hence robbery could not have been the motive. Detectives are at work upon the case.

Two Children Burned. WHEELING, W. Va., June 3.—Near Hebron, Tyler county, the house of James Umbleman, a wealthy farmer, was destroyed by fire Thursday night. Two children, aged 6 and 8 years, respectively, perished in the flames. The fire is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Took Their Own Lives. CHICAGO, June 4.—Augustus Victorson and Thomas G. McLaury committed suicide yesterday at the Hotel Metropole. The former was a wealthy Chicagoan and the latter a wealthy resident of New Orleans. Despondency was given as the cause in both cases.

The Public Debt. WASHINGTON, June 3.—The public debt statement issued yesterday showed that the debt decreased $739,435 during the month of May. The cash in the treasury was $754,122,984. The total debt, less the cash balance in the treasury, amounts to $840,185,733.

SUNK IN A FOG.

The Steamer Corsica Collides with an Unknown Schooner. The Sailing Vessel, Cut in Two, Sinks Instantly, and Her Crew Perishes—The Corsica, Badly Damaged, Is Beached. A LAKE DISASTER. ALPENA, Mich., June 5.—The steel steamer Corsica collided with an unknown schooner 15 miles off Thunder Bay island on Lake Huron at daybreak Friday morning in a fog. The schooner was cut in two and went to the bottom instantly. Her entire crew was lost. The Corsica had no time to wait for the rescue of any survivors who might be floating around in the mass of wreckage, as her bow was stove in and water was pouring into her hold. She was run on the shore in Thunder Bay just below Ossineke. The bows are all crushed in for a considerable distance and twenty-four big steel plates are loosened.

STORY OF THE MATE. Capt. Cumming was asleep at the time of the collision. His mate states that the Corsica was bound down Lake Huron with a cargo of iron ore and had run all night through the fog. He claims that the Corsica did not run into the schooner, but that the schooner ran into the steamer. The moment they struck he states that the engines were reversed, and that the schooner disappeared from view in a second. Her disappearance was so sudden that not even her name, color or size could be made out by those on board the steamer. He is certain that the schooner's crew were all lost. On the steamer more attention was paid to her condition than to the fate of those on the schooner, for it was feared at first that she was going down.

SLIGHT CLEW FOUND. That the unknown schooner was lost is made certain by the fish tug Angler, which has just arrived here. She reports having passed the cabin of the schooner and a large amount of wreckage off Thunder bay. There was no name on any article seen. The cabin was about 18 feet long and was about one-third cut through, which clearly indicates that the steamer ran into the schooner. In a coat which was picked up among the wreckage was a letter signed by Joe Davy, 213 Cherry street, Green Bay, Wis., March 30, 1893. There was no envelope on the letter nor any other way of telling to whom it was addressed.

SHOWN NO MERCY. A Mob's Vengeance Meted Out to a Colored Ravisher in Illinois. DECATUR, Ill., June 5.—Sam Bush, the negro arrested near Windsor early Friday morning for outraging Mrs. Vest, of Mount Zion township, and Mrs. L. B. Hill, near Decatur, was lynched at 8 a. m. Saturday by citizens.

A dispatch from Springfield says that Gov. Altgeld has issued a proclamation denouncing the lynching as a cowardly and diabolical act, and as a blot upon the fair name of the state. He declares the men who were engaged in it must be punished and offers a reward of $200 each for their apprehension and conviction.

FIREMEN KILLED. Fatal Results of a Blaze in the City of Omaha, Neb. OMAHA, Neb., June 5.—The large furniture house of Charles Shiverick & Co., on Farham street, burned to the ground Saturday night, and the fire was attended with the death of Capt. C. D. Cox and Robert O'urray, of the fire department, and the fatal injury of firemen Ben Morris, Charles Ellington, George Couler, C. H. Pringle and James Conley, of Scranton, Pa., a bystander. The loss on the building is $40,000, and the stock $130,000. Ed Maurer's restaurant next door was damaged $25,000.

DEATH BY FIRE. Five Inmates of a Burning Tenement in New York Perish. NEW YORK, June 5.—Five persons were killed at a fire that began just about midnight Saturday night in the five-story flat house at 138 East Forty-third street, half a block from the Press club wife. GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

BEST LINE TO THE WEST Superb Dining Car Service

1892-1893. As long a time as David reigned, so long has the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway run trains from Chicago.

The Rock Island, in adopting an advantage calculated to improve speed and give the luxury, safety and comfort that popular patronage demands, its equipment is thorough.

Complete with vestibuled trains, magnificent dining cars, and comfortable chairs, all the most elegant, and of roomy improved patterns.

Faithful and capable management and polite, honest service from employees are important items. They are a double duty to the Company and to travelers—and it is sometimes a task difficult of accomplishment. Passengers on this line will find little cause for complaint on that ground.

The importance of this line can be better understood if a short lesson in geography be now recalled. What is the great Eastern terminus of the Rock Island Route?—Chicago. What other sub-Eastern terminal has it?—Peoria. To what important points does it run trains to the Northwest?—St. Paul, and Minneapolis, Minnesota; and Water-town and Sioux Falls, Dakota. To what important Iowa and Nebraska points?—Des Moines, Davenport, Iowa; Omaha and Lincoln, Nebraska.

Does it touch other Missouri River points?—Yes. St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth and Kansas City. Does it run trains to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains?—Yes. Its capital city, Topeka, and a full hundred others in all directions in the State, and it is the only road running to and into the new lands opened for settlement in the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Reservations.

It will thus be seen that a line tapping, as the Rock Island does, such a varied territory, has much in that regard to commend it to travelers, as all connections are sure on the Rock Island, and passengers can rely on a speedy journey, and over a bulk of the system through trains are run, and it has become, and rightly too, the popular line.

A very popular train on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway leaves Chicago, daily, at 10 p. m. It is called "The Big Fly," and runs one day out, and passengers arrive at Denver, Pueblo or Colorado Springs early the second morning. The Rock Island has become a popular Colorado line, and the train above referred to is vestibuled, and carries the Rock Island's excellent Dining Car Service.

NEARLY A PANIC.

Chicago Banks Experience an Exciting and Busy Day.

All Demands Promptly Met, One Institution Keeping Open All Night—One Failure Announced—Business Troubles Elsewhere.

FACED HEAVY RUNS. CHICAGO, June 6.—The opening of the banks in Chicago was characterized by strong symptoms of a panic.

CHICAGO, June 6.—The opening of the banks in Chicago was characterized by strong symptoms of a panic. Much uneasiness existed since Saturday, and the doubts and fears among depositors had become so far augmented, even long before 10 o'clock.

PAID ALL WHO CAME. Savings banks which experienced a run Monday kept their tellers at work until all who had been in line up to the hour of ordinary closing were paid, and notices were posted on the doors that the banks would be open for business at the regular hour this morning.

PRIVATE BANKERS FAIL. CHICAGO, June 6.—The private banking house of Mendowoff Bros., 100 Washington street, at the northeast corner of Washington and Dearborn streets, has been placed in the hands of a receiver, being forced to suspend because of the prevailing monetary stringency.

STOOD THE STORM. The depositors began a run on the Illinois Trust and Savings bank in the Rookery building early in the morning and clamored for their money all day long.

This bank kept its doors open until after midnight in order that everyone who wanted his money might have it. The last depositor in the line got his money at 3 a. m., then the bank closed until 10 o'clock.

The assets when the bank opened Monday morning figured up $28,000,000. The stockholders are estimated as being worth $150,000,000. The bank has not called a loan in nine years.

Shortly after the doors of the Bank of Commerce were opened a run was started which continued for hours. President Felsenthal says rumors are responsible for the run; the bank was conducted on soundest financial principles, its officers do not speculate, and there was plenty of cash in its vaults to meet all demands.

There was a heavy run upon the Prairie State national bank and the Prairie State Savings and Trust company all day. Both institutions are located at the southwest corner of Desplains and Washington streets and are patronized largely by west side business men and mechanics.

In the general excitement that struck the public the Hibbard bank did not escape, but the result thus far is not alarming to the officials.

A run was made on the Union Trust bank, of which Stephen W. Rawson is president. The run began about noon and was kept up during the afternoon.

At the Globe savings bank the run kept up all day. At 2 p. m. it was decided to take advantage of the thirty-day notice provided for savings accounts. Vice President Hayes said this would not have been done had the run been on that bank alone.

There was a slight run at the Milwaukee avenue state bank, but the crowds began to diminish by the close of the business day.

MANY FAILURES. The Sandusky (N. Y.) Savings bank failed to open its doors Monday. Its trouble is due to a run experienced two weeks ago and some heavy demands made within the last few days.

The firm of Washington Butchers' Sons, provision dealers of Philadelphia, has failed, but no statement of its condition is made. The firm is rated as good for $300,000.

Potter & Potter, of Boston, publishers of the New England Magazine, Yankee Blade, Woman's Home Journal, American Vehicle and the Amesbury Daily, have made an assignment. The liabilities are about $100,000.

Morris Sewer, trunk, valise and bag manufacturer of New York and Newark, N. J., has assigned. The liabilities are about $250,000; actual assets, $300,000.

Campbell & Co., wholesale dealers in woollens and tailors' trimmings at St. Louis, have made an assignment. Assets, $25,000; liabilities not stated.

The schedules of William L. Patton & Co., New York bankers and brokers, show $68,037 liabilities; nominal assets, $283,925; actual assets, $227,500.

The Bank of Spokane Falls suspended payments Monday. Its paid-up capital is $150,000, and its president, A. M. Cannon, is reputed to be a multi-millionaire.

Reports of losses by the Plantation failure precipitated a run Monday on the First national bank of Madison, Wis., one of the solidest institutions in the state.

STOLE THOUSANDS.

Six Desperados Rob a Bank in Arkansas of Over $10,000.

BENTONVILLE, Ark., June 6.—The People's bank was robbed by a band of six desperados from the Indian territory Monday afternoon and over $10,000 was secured. The robbers were armed with rifles. They entered with a rush and with leveled guns commanded those present to hold up their hands.

By this time the citizens, who were at first panic stricken, recovered, and having armed themselves fired on the bandits, who kept up a steady return fire, covering the two main streets of the town.

A MINE HORROR.

Fire Breaks Out in the Fuente Colliery in Mexico.

Twenty-Six Miners Are Said to Have Perished—Pitiful Scenes About the Mouth of the Shaft—Roaming Covering the Bodies.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., June 5.—Fire broke out at 4 o'clock p. m. Saturday in the Fuente coal mine on the line of the Mexican National railway, on the banks of the Rio Escondido river.

There are twenty-six chambers in the mine, and the dead miners are supposed to be well to the front of the mine. At 12 o'clock Sunday one body had been recovered from the seventh chamber, and shortly after another, fearfully scorched and blackened, was brought to the surface.

Large numbers of the friends and relatives of the unfortunate miners are gathered at the mouth of the mine mutely awaiting the recovery of the bodies of their sons and husbands.

THE Courier says we plagiarized from Eli Perkins. We apologize. We didn't know it; but will not dispute a disciple.

THE Russian treaty with the clause making attacks on the Czar non-political and hence extradition offences has been ratified and promulgated.

ENGLAND and Russia talk of getting up a little rival naval exhibition in American waters this season. They do it at their own expense and no admission is charged.

THE thanks of the citizens of the state are due to Mr. A. Tucker for his untiring zeal in pushing the food commissioner bill. It is due to him that at the last moment when time was short and everyone anxious to rush some pet measure through that the bill did not get trampled to death in the stampede.

THE council concluded to give their proceedings a country circulation, and assigned the contract for printing them to the Argus and Courier. Perhaps they expect in this way to mitigate the evils caused by the country people leaving the farm and crowding into the city, by showing them what they would come to in the way of government.

It was highly commendable in the aldermen to lend themselves to the building up of the Detroit-st.-Fourth-ave. region, by accepting Mr. Green's proposition for a city hall; but they certainly have not given Mr. Rinsey a fair chance to show what he is willing to do further. Inasmuch as Mr. Rinsey was the first one to come to the city's assistance in this matter, and showed the fairest kind of a spirit in the whole transaction, it would have been only courteous to have given him an opportunity to meet Mr. Green's proposals if he saw fit.

OUR 250 friend is still raving. He had a two column spasm, we suppose of joy, over our declaration of his munificent offer of two weeks ago, and in his delirium got himself still further involved. We might get two fifties out of him this time. It is obvious to us that Mr. Brown doesn't believe what we say. This leads us to make him a suggestion which, if followed out, will be a most ample return to him for all of the advertising that in his limited way he has been giving us lately. The suggestion is, that if he will only cultivate habits of veracity in himself, it will not be many years before he can begin to recognize truth-telling in others.

Points for Peach Growers.

A Connecticut peach grower of long experience, is quoted by Garden and Forest, giving the following hints to peach growers:

Peaches should be fed with chemical fertilizers only. We apply every year all we can afford; that is, about 1,200 pounds of bone and from 400 to 800 pounds of potash to the acre. Too much is better than not enough. Sulphate of potash gives the best color to peaches, but cotton hull ashes is perhaps a better form of potash.

We shorten in the new wood from one-third to one-half in the spring, when the buds begin to swell.

We can get a good peach crop with 90 per cent. of the buds winter-killed. After the fruit is set for a full crop, we thin until there are two peaches within four to six inches of each other. This is a costly treatment, but it pays. The extras sell or six times as much per peach as the seconds do, and they do not exhaust the tree as much.

The finest fruit this year came from 25-year-old trees.

An elevated plain is not as good for a peach orchard as a hillside with a sharp decline.

The fruit should fully mature, but not mellow, when it is picked. Pickers are trained to tell ripeness by color.

Peach orchards should not be cultivated after the middle of July.

Destroyed by Fire and Again at Work.
The Price Baking Powder Company of Chicago, which is known throughout the country for the superior excellence of its Baking Powder, met with a serious loss on the morning of May 18th, in the nearly total destruction by fire of its factory and offices. No sooner had the flames been subdued than the work of restoration commenced, and the Company by prudent foresight, having had stored in outside warehouses duplicate machinery, labels and supplies of raw materials in preparation for any emergency was enabled by energetic management to resume manufacturing within a very few days after the fire, thereby causing its customers but a trifling delay in the filling of their orders. Had the Company not been so prepared the delay would have been very serious since it would have required months of time to get new machinery.

It is now forty years since the goods manufactured by this company were first placed on the market, to Dr. Price being due the distinction of having prepared the first can of Cream of Tartar Baking Powder ever manufactured in any country. It was a great discovery, superseding as it did the old method of using cream of tartar and soda separately, to say nothing of saleratus, with which the biscuit of early days was embittered.

The Price Company has no connection whatever with any other baking powder company or manufacturer, notwithstanding representations to the contrary made by other manufacturers, whose sole aim is to deceive the public and borrow the good name and fame acquired by the Price Cream Baking Powder, which is known all over the world as the purest and "most perfect made."

Down with the Records.

If the horses will finish the speeding season as successfully as the steam engine has opened it this year of grace 1893 will mark a good many important smashings of the records. On land we have a New York Central engine doing a mile in 32 seconds, while on the Atlantic the new Cunarder has surpassed all performances on the eastward passage.

The public appreciation of high speed grows keener year by year. Americans like sport, especially if the character of it is above reproach; and in the tests of engines, land and marine, they have no reason to worry over the chance of crooked work. Every time a record is broken the public is delighted. And there seems to be every promise that this year will bring a great deal of enjoyment of the kind to the residents of these United States.—Railway Times and Financial Register.

HOW TO DARN STOCKINGS.

A Useful Bit of Knowledge For the Fair Sex.

If there be a secret to successful darning, it lies in "running" the thread of the darning cotton so far on each side of the hole that it does not immediately fray and pull out of the goods. Take a long thread of darning cotton to begin with and run it at least half an inch along the goods on each side of the hole. Continue this until the hole is snugly covered. Now cross these threads in the regular darning style, taking care that the same precaution is observed. A stocking darned in this way will wear, as far as the darning is concerned, just as long as though no hole had ever existed.

To darn very large holes, such as are apt to occur with even the most careful steppers when shoes are loose at the heels or are ill fitting, something more than a thread of darning cotton is necessary. A case like this requires a patch. Such holes almost always occur in the heel, so that in treating of the method of mending them it is safe to take the heel for a model.

From the leg of an old stocking, such as is sure to be found in your basket, cut a kite shaped piece of goods about 5 inches long and 4 inches across. Turn the stocking wrong side out and lay the kite upon the heel, so that the long pointed end runs up the back of the leg and the lower rounded part is at the base of the heel. "Run" down the center of the kite with a stout linen thread, taking rather large, loose stitches. Now "run" in the same way across the kite shaped piece, letting the thread be very slack. The next step is to sew the patch tightly to the heel, which is done by stitching it around the outside. If deftly done there will be neither wrinkle nor crease to tell the wearer that so important an operation has taken place upon the heel of the stocking.

Patches that are made of material other than bits of old stockings are apt to be harsh. And it is by their use that the patched stocking has fallen into disrepute among comfort loving people.

How to Become a Wing Shot.

First of all, practice the art of bringing the gun quickly to the shoulder so that it will be exactly in line with the eye. After proficiency is attained the rest is simple. Fix your eyes intently upon the flying bird. Then bring the gun into position, and if your practice in this line has been good when you pull the trigger the bird will drop.

How to Treat Convulsions.

Strip the child as quickly as you can and put it into a hot bath. Use your elbow as a test. If your elbow can stand the temperature of the water, then you can safely put the child in, after doing which gently pour cold water on the head. This should stop the convulsion in a few minutes. In any event, an injection of warm water and soap should always be given. If no relief is obtained by these measures, put a mustard plaster, made with one part mustard and three of flour, up and down the spine, being careful not to blister. Vaseline the surface after taking off the plaster. Always send promptly for a physician, as treatment is required after the convulsion is over. Keep the child quiet.

How to Make Paper Waterproof.

Dissolve 1-4-5 pounds of soap in a quart of water, and the same quantity of gum arabic and 5/4 ounces of glue in another quart of water. Mix and warm the solutions, soak the paper in the liquid and hang it up to dry.

Table Cover Novelties.

Satinet, moleskin and satin sheeting will be used this season for scarfs, portieres and table covers. These are stained on light grounds in delicate tracery of leaves, flowers, etc., or in large, striking designs of scrollwork, moons and disks in the old oriental colors.—Architectural.

Stamped Letter Ornamentation.

Stamped leather is much in demand for the hall and dining room. It is clean, pliable and easily adjusted, and can be prepared in beautiful designs and colorings.—Building Monthly.

CONNUBIAL TROUBLE.

"I always thought there was some connection between a wife and buttons, and not a button on this shirt bosom, Bess!"

We had been married a year and more. And now we had quarreled—about buttons.

I did not think then what an astonishing thing a woman must feel it to be taken from the pedestal on which her lover has enshrined her as a goddess and scolded about some household matter. All men do it.

I went to town. My business was transacted in a moody dream. I drowned my misery in cigars and went home as angry as I had left it. No Bess met me at the gate. I found her in the dining room, and she looked up with a proud, cold face, expecting an apology perhaps, but I gave her none. Fortunately I had a grievance—the mutton was not cooked to suit me, and there were no capers.

I began once more on the subject of a wife's duties. Bridget must be overlooked. A bachelor might leave the dinner to a servant, but not a married man.

Bess did not tell me what I knew already—that at Mrs. Pongee's finishing seminary the superintendence of a cook was not taught, and that a year is not a long experience.

She sat quite quiet and enraged me so that before I sought my pillow I had said very cruel things, and she had at last dropped one bitter, rankling speech into the momentary silence and had shut herself in her baby's nursery.

And so it went on through all the bitter days of the long week. At last it was Saturday morning. I gave her a cruel stab—an unjust one, as I knew. When I spoke I had my back turned toward her and was looking out upon the cloudy sky, so that I did not see her when she said:

"You have made me hate you."

I turned at that. She was standing quite pale, even to the lips, and I saw that she had drawn her wedding ring from her finger.

"I hate that," she said, "and I hate you." And she flung the ring upon the carpet and made a gesture as though she were flinging her love from her also and left the room without another word, though I waited for her to come back for nearly an hour.

I had much to do that day—business appointments which should have been attended to forthwith—but long after I had reached my office in the city I found myself sitting wretchedly in a chair, with my head upon my hands, thinking over and over again those words, "I hate that, and I hate you."

And my love came back, and I was Robert walking with Bessie under the trees again, not the stern married man determined to teach his wife her duty.

I looked at the clock. I had just time to catch the noon train for home. Who cared for business—for Jones and Brown and Thompson? I must go home and make it up with Bess. I seized my hat and flew down the street. I reached the depot. I was in a car breathless with exertion and anxiety. We were 80 minutes in reaching P.—. To me it seemed 30 hours.

At last I was there. Before me arose our little cottage, with its slope of velvet green from the door to the river's edge.

Usually all was quiet and scarcely a soul to be seen. Today a group of women stood by the river. Two men, one a sailor neighbor from the village, were there also, and among them Bridget raised her shrill voice:

"They've took to fightin' lately, and they had it hot and heavy this mornin', I shouldn't wonder. Howly father, there's the masher now, and she fled!"

I saw them all looking at me in awe-stricken silence. I saw also my little rowboat lying wet upon the sand, the oars not with her.

I felt my heart stand still and gasped out:

"What is the matter?" My sailor neighbor answered:

"We're afraid there's been an accident. Tom Bowling took your boat out this mornin', and the beach should have been picked up—and Tom hasn't."

Young Tom Bowling often borrowed my boat. I was not surprised at that.

"I hope Tom is safe," I said. "At what hour did my wife lend him the boat?" Nobody spoke for two minutes.

At last a woman began to sob:

"Oh, don't tell him! Maybe 'tisn't so." And the sailor said solemnly:

"Take heart, sir; mebbe there's hope, but your wife hired Tom Bowling to row her and the baby on the river at half past 10."

When those words fell upon my ears, I dropped upon the ground in a swoon.

In three hours a boy found Tom's hat floating in the water. Two more, and a grim, hard featured man came to me as I raved like a maniac upon the beach and touched his hat.

"Mister," he said, "Tom is found. They're a-bringin' him."

I had no need to ask how he was found. I knew. So they would soon find Bess and her babe, heavy and cold, with dank, dripping hair and eyes wide open, staring at the sky.

Oh, it would have been terrible enough without the awful memory that we had quarreled; that I had said cruel things to her, and that she had said:

"I hate you!"

AME PARTINGTON told the ubiquitous boy Isaac, who yearned for a coat of arms or something like that, when Partington perge got promoted to a corporalship in the militia, that his ambition was just a little ahead of time. "There is no body corporal but your father and I," said she, with becoming hauteur.

With but one corporal's warrant in the family, some one must necessarily consent to be "only a private."

The regiments of an army cannot all figure in history as "crack" commands. There must be some room for distinction. A canonization of certain Union regiments in the civil war that has become noted is the work of Colonel William Fox, a statistical compiler who made it a labor of love to sift the state and national records and get the figures of losses in battle. His task was well performed, but the result is not perfect and not official. A select 300 commands which lost a certain aggregate or percentage in killed he crowns as "Three Hundred Fighting Regiments," which is much like saying that the hardest hit must be the hardest hitters. It does not follow.

In reviewing the romance of our zouaves recently I chanced upon a couple of incidents in the career of General Lew Wallace's Indiana "zoo-zoo" that prove how fighting may be most desperate and the losses figure up very one sided. Old soldiers have not forgotten the zouave craze that struck the citizen military in the "fifties;" gay barbaric uniforms; exciting, savage drill. A zouave took the field supposing himself a knight charged with maintaining his country's weal in single handed combat. Colonel Ellsworth and his imitators were more magical recruiting agents than were the most gifted spellbinders whose silvery tongues echoed through the land Lincoln's call to arms.

aye!" was the answer. "Then down on your knees and swear that you will remember Buena Vista and never desert your colors." A thousand knees bent as one, a thousand palms were uplifted, and a thousand pairs of lips, innocent of the rude breathings of war's bloody trade, murmured the terrible oath. And it was no idle flummery, as it turned out.

The regiment was numbered the Eleventh and was sent to western Virginia with the Indiana brigade. It was soon detached and stationed at Cumberland, Md., the outpost of the army in western Virginia. The Confederates were on the Potomac below and in strong force at Harper's Ferry, but 60 miles distant; also at Romney, 44 miles south on the Virginia side. Surprise was possible at any moment, and in order to have a little more elbow room, Colonel Wallace marched 500 zouaves across the mountain to Romney. The town site is on the Potomac bluffs overlooking the bridge from the west. A battery commanded the road from the bridge. One company of zouaves led off as skirmishers and drew the fire of rifle-men posted in the houses. Another led by Colonel Wallace stole through a ravine and flanked the outposts, while the others deployed and swept the field at a run. The boys were only doing their fancy drill in earnest, and it was the very thing for the purpose—a sudden, bold attack. Romney was abandoned and Harper's Ferry rendered untenable.

The country southwest of Cumberland was still the enemy's territory, and the zouaves kept up a vigilant scout in the mountain's defiles. Rumor had it that the clans were gathering to attack Wallace at Cumberland, and that Frankfort, 30 miles south, was a rendezvous for the menacing forces. The scouts to the number of 13 were put on fleet horses and sent to find out what was going on at Frankfort. Their deeds deserve a naming. Corporal D. B. Hayes was the leader, and the others, E. Baker, E. Burkett, J. Hallenbeck, T. Grover, J. Hollowell, T. Brazier, G. Mulberger, L. Farley, F. Harrison, H. Dunlap, R. M. Dunlap and E. P. Thomas. They rode to within a quarter of a mile of the place and saw the streets filled with cavalry and infantry. Like good soldiers they knew their duty was done, and like sensible men saw the folly of running amuck against an army. They turned toward home by a new road so as to cover the territory thoroughly.

At a wayside cabin they learned that 41 mounted Confederates had just passed along toward Cumberland. Corporal Hayes put the question to vote whether to fight or look for another road. Every man said "Fight!" They retreated cautiously on until they came to a bend and heard the enemy's armor rattling just beyond. Then they put spurs and flew into the rear of the startled column, firing as they galloped on. It chanced to be on the crest of a gully, and horse and man were born down in the shock, zouave and Texan trooper grappling as they rolled. Corporal Hayes killed two men, but was shot three times and slashed with a saber in the melee. Farley closed with one of Hayes' assailants and was borne to the ground, when Harrison shot the Texan. The Confederates finally bent a retreat across country, leaving 8 dead comrades and 17 horses behind them. Hayes was propped up on his horse and piloted toward camp. One of the Dunlaps went in search of a wagon to carry the wounded comrade should he faint on the way, and so 11 sound men were left for new adventures.

Before they reached the Potomac a mounted band of about 75 Texans rode on them from the rear. For a time the zouaves retired, fighting Indian fashion, and though they dropped some of their enemies met with no loss themselves. Finding the odds too great they abandoned their horses and waded to Kelley's island, at the mouth of a creek emptying into the Potomac below Cumberland. There the 11 braced themselves for a fight for life. They had no flag to desert, and surrender would have been honorable, but their oath—"Remember Buena Vista"—was too warm on their lips to be slighted even in that secluded dell, with no eye to mark either their heroism or cowardice. Several Confederates were shot down as they waded out to the attack, but finally the boldest reached the shore. Then hand to hand, foot by foot and inch by inch, the struggle went on. Hallenbeck fell mortally wounded and died in the enemy's hands, the first Indiana soldier killed in battle.

Thomas was knocked down by a grazing shot, and instantly a Texan had him by the throat, with a bowie raised to strike. "I hate to kill you," said he, hesitating, "but I must." The words were cut short by a bullet from Grover's pistol. The Confederates on land were fairly wiped out. Farley killed six and Grover three. But there were more to wade out and take their places, and twilight settling down, the zouaves, bruised, cut and battered, waded to their own shores and passed the night unmolested. The Confederates buried 23 dead at the creek, including three officers, and eight at the scene of the skirmish. Hallenbeck was the only zouave killed. It was the rashness of novices that led to that enormous risk, but as to the matter of fighting, not many times did 13 men on a lonely scout make a better showing.

The regiment as a body had no chance to "remember Buena Vista" until it was transferred to the west and joined in the assault at Fort Donelson. Lew Wallace was then a general commanding the Third division. The zouaves were in General C. F. Smith's Second division. Wallace volunteered to recapture the Charlotte road, from which Pillow's Confederates had driven General McClelland's First division, in hopes of cutting their way out to Nashville. The loss of the Charlotte road imperiled the siege and must be retrieved at any cost.

The hill to be stormed was held by the First and Third Mississippi, the First Texas, the Eighth Kentucky and Forrest's Tennessee cavalry. Its slope was covered at intervals with forest underbrush and broken by ledges of rock. The distance from base to crest was 300 paces. The enemy's lines were visible on the plateau ready for business.

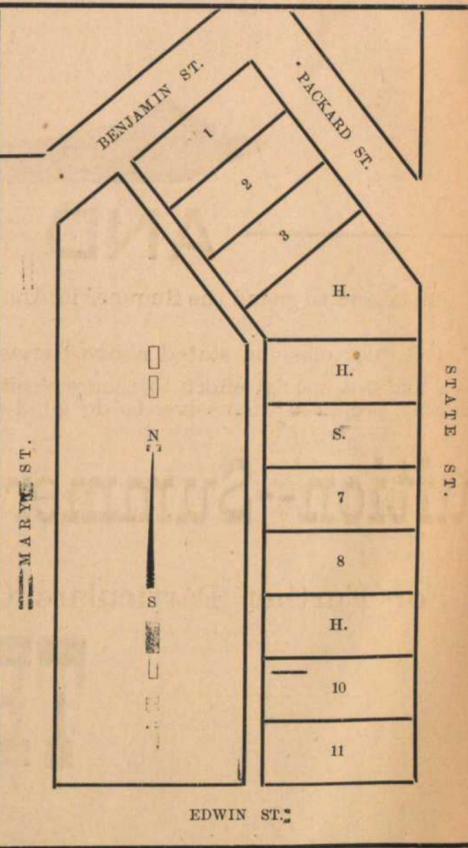

"I HATE TO KILL YOU!"

stances. The regiments formed line or battle and advanced rapidly across an open plain under Pillow's guns. As they began to ascend the slope Confederate riflemen fired on them from the forest cover, and at that skirmishers rapidly deployed and covered the whole battle front. A quarter of the way up the slope they saw a line of fire burst from the crest of the hill all around the curved outline. They dropped to the ground like lead, and the balls passed harmlessly over. Instantly they were on their feet for another rush, and at the next volley dropped as before.

The skirmishers were less fortunate and had to defend their persons from the skulking riflemen encountered. Often antagonists took shelter behind the same tree. At every rush the zouaves cheered and answered the enemy with shots delivered on the run. It took about an hour of such fighting to mount the slope to the crest and drive the enemy three-fourths of a mile across the plateau to their intrenchments. In the midst of it General Wallace received an order to halt and retire his column, as General Grant had decided to defer the attack until next day. Believing that he had the wedge well in, Wallace ignored the order and pushed the zouaves ahead to the Charlotte road, cutting off the Confederate retreat. They bivouacked within 150 rods of the enemy's guns, lying on their arms, ready for a counter assault next day. Instead came word of the "unconditional surrender." The Eleventh lost 4 killed and 29 wounded out of about 400 engaged. Many a regiment has been cut to pieces in 30 minutes of such fighting, but the zouaves were shooting to kill, not to be killed.

In subsequent battles the zouaves did not fare so well. At Shiloh, the second day, they refused to retreat when ordered to do so, although flanked and terribly exposed. The death list was 11, the wounded 51. At Champion's Hill, back of Vicksburg, charging breastworks and batteries, they were still more roughly handled in a four hours' terrific fight, forward and back, in charge and reprisal. The death roll was 28, the wounded 139. From Vicksburg they went into the Teche country in Louisiana, joined the Nineteenth corps and wound up in the Shenandoah under Sheridan in 1864. They fought their last battles at Winchester and Cedar Creek, just across the mountain from the scene of the scouting adventure three years before. The total loss of the regiment, killed on the battlefield, was 115, and if every death was avenged like that of Hallenbeck at Kelley's island surely the warflag bearing the legend "Remember Buena Vista" must have been a "shape" the Confederates would rather not meet.

How to Prevent Choking.

When a person has a fish bone or other similar obstruction in the throat, insert the forefinger into the mouth and press firmly upon the root of the tongue to induce vomiting. If this fails, make the patient swallow a large piece of boiled potato or soggy bread, and as a last resort give a mustard emetic.

How to Clean Lace.

Spread the lace out carefully on wrapping paper, then sprinkle it with calcined magnesia; place another paper over it and put it away between the leaves of a book for two or three days. All that is necessary is to shake it carefully to scatter the white powder, and then it is ready for wear, with all the slender threads perfect and as fresh as when new. Here is another good way: Make strong suds with some nice white soap, such as castile or ivory, and lay the lace in this, shaking it about for a few minutes; then stand the vessel containing it in the sun. If it is very dirty, you may have to change the suds once or twice, but you must not rub the lace even between the hands. When it is clean, shake it through several rinsing waters, lift it out by both ends and shake well. Next lay the lace down on several thicknesses of clean old muslin and pull out the points of the scallops. Fold it twice or thrice, lay a piece of muslin over it and place weights on the top. Leave it thus over night.

How to Set Out Trees.

It is said by nurserymen that transplanted trees often die because they are not replaced in their old positions—that is, with the north side to the north, because each side of the young tree is used to its own proportion of the sun's rays.

How the Proverb "A Miss Is as Good as a Mile" Originated.

It is conjectured to have been originally, "An inch of a miss is as good as a mile," as its present form is an absurdity. This corresponds to old English, Danish and German proverbs. But it is quite probable that it was really, "Amis is as good as Amille," these two being legendary soldiers of Charlemagne, titular heroes of a famous song of war, who were as like as two peas or the two Dromios, who bore each other's quarrels, and who, after being adopted into the traditions of the church as martyrs, might be invoked indifferently.

How to Beat an Egg.

If an egg does not beat up well it may be because the kitchen is too warm or full of steam. Try beating it by an open window.

How to Prevent a Black Eye.

There is nothing to compare with a tincture or a strong infusion of capsicum annuum, mixed with an equal bulk of mucilage or gum arabic and with the addition of a few drops of glycerin. This should be painted all over the bruised surface with a camel's hair pencil and allowed to dry on, a second or third coating being applied as soon as the first is dry. If done as soon as the injury is inflicted the treatment will invariably prevent the blackening of the bruised tissue. The same remedy has no equal in rheumatic, sore or stiff neck.

How to Keep Putty.

Keep it in oil silk or bladder or paper saturated with linseed oil. Dry paper or cloth absorbs the oil and makes the putty hard.

How to Use Glycerin.

Glycerin is good for many things besides chapped hands and faces. It will stop the tickling in the throat that causes constant coughing; it will be efficacious in preventing bed sores; it will allay the thirst of a fever patient. If five or six drops are put into fruit jars before they are sealed it will preserve the fruit and prevent mold. Glycerin and bay rum, in equal parts, make a good wash after shaving. Finally, if rubbed well into shoes, it will preserve the leather and help to keep it from getting wet.

Hood's Sarsaparilla which effected a perfect cure. Mr. Hauer is now in the best of health. Full particulars of his case will be sent to who address C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The frontispiece of the Magazine of Art for June accompanies an account of Mr. W. Y. Barker's collection of paintings. It is called "a royal bird" and is a photograph from the original of Andrew C. Gow. The opening article is on the "Royal Academy Exhibition" and is illustrated with numerous studies of Sir Frederic Leighton's picture "Rizpah."—Cassell Pub. Co., 35c a number; $3.50 a year in advance.

Scribner's Magazine for June opens with the second article in the series on "Men's Occupations," which is to be a feature of the coming months, including among its contributors W. D. Howells, W. Clark Russell, Julian Ralph, and John Drew. The article in the present issue is "Life in a Logging Camp," by Arthur Hill, president of one of the great Michigan lumber companies. He has written from the fullest knowledge, having been through almost every phase of the lumber business.—Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, N. Y.

"With Tolstoy in the Russian Famine" is the title of a remarkable paper to appear in the June Century, describing the experience of Mr. Jonas Stalling, a Swede, who assisted in the relief work at Count Tolstoy's headquarters during the winter of 1891-92. The article is realistically and effectively illustrated from photographs taken by the author, who in a subsequent number of the magazine will describe his sojourn with Count Tolstoy's son in relief work in the eastern district of Samara. The Century Co., New York, N. Y.

The June Arena is a mammoth number. Among the leading papers in this notable anniversary issue are: Insanity and Genius, by Arthur McDonald; The Liberal Churches and Scepticism, by Rev. Marion D. Shutter, D. D.; Arsenic versus Cholera, by R. B. Leach, M. D.; is interesting and timely; Women wage-earners in the West, by Helen Campbell; Does the Country Demand the Free Coinage of Silver, by A. C. Fisk; Save the American Home, a striking economic paper, by I. E. Dean; and, Islam, Past and Present, by Prof. F. W. Sanders.—Arena Pub. Co., Boston, Mass.

The June Overland monthly contains, The Pomo Basket Makers by J. W. Hudson. An accurate paper on the most skillful basket makers of the world. Dr. Hudson is the collector at the notable Hudson Collection, and has lived for years where he has had the best opportunities to study these Indians. The American Private Soldier, by Lieutenant Alvin H. Sydenham, U. S. A., inside view of army life, illustrated from sketches made by the daughter of Major McCrea. Western Stories and Poems will make up an interesting number. Overland Pub. Co., San Francisco, Cal.

The June number of the Atlantic Monthly contains an unusual number of articles of great interest to the general reader, but to those interested in educational matters the paper "The Educational Trend of the Northwest" will appeal most. The author, Hon. D. L. Kiehle, State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Minnesota, is one of the prominent educators in this country, and his account of the very important events which have lately taken place in Minnesota and his hopeful predictions for the best results make this paper a most valuable one.—Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Marcus Lenoir, the French artist, whose cat pictures have made him famous and rich, is said to have been so poor only eight years ago that it was only through the entrance of a homeless kitten to his garret that he was one night prevented from destroying himself. He painted a picture of it, and from that time his fortune was assured.

Completely Uprooted. How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterling medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the effect, on the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of cholera and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies and maladies of this type. By the Bitters, malarial complaints in every stage, and of the most malignant type, are completely conquered and loose their hold upon the system. They are rarely if ever dislodged by the ordinary resources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.

From Friend to Friend. Goes the story of the excellence of Hood's Sarsaparilla and what it has accomplished, and this is the strongest advertising which is done on behalf of this medicine. We endeavor to tell honestly what Hood's Sarsaparilla is and what it will do, but what it has done is far more important and far more potent. Its unequalled record of cures is sure to convince those who have never tried Hood's Sarsaparilla that it is an excellent medicine.

Willing to Make Amends. Angry Candidate—In your paper this morning, sir, you say I "seem to have learned a small amount of sense in the last five or six years." I look upon that as an intentional insult, sir, and I won't stand it.

As a General Thing. "Give an instance of the crime called manslaughter," said the teacher. None of the pupils ventured a response. THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO. GENTLEMEN:—I have been using your Tablets for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claimed for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it. B. M. JAYLORD, Leslie, Mich.

THE OHIO CHEMICAL CO. GENTLEMEN:—I give me pleasure to speak a word of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent. Yours truly, MRS. HELEN MORRISON, PITTSBURGH, PA.

HORNELL Cancer is Curable. Without the knife, still har-har caustics, or poisons. Special attention is given to Cancer. The treatment is based upon the theory recently embodied in papers read by Prof. V. Moesling, Moorhoof before the Royal and Imperial Association of Physicians of Vienna, namely: That as the cell elements in cancer have much less vitality than those of sound flesh, it is possible to attack them without injuring surrounding healthy cells, or the general well-being of the patient. The remedies employed at Hornellville, although as harmless as those of Vienna, are far more effective—wholly removing the odor of the growth within twenty-four hours, and causing the diseased tissue to shrink to a hard dry eschar until it is crowded out by healthy healing granulations. There is no poulticing or sloughing, no running sores or foul odors. It is the only known method that reaches and expels every cancerous cell. For references and other information address the Dr. Inventor, J. D. MICHILL, M. D., Hornellville, N. Y.

CHAPTER IX.
"HE IS ONE OF THOSE SEPOYS."

The old-fashioned house that had been the home of Miss Antoinette Livermore for many years stood amid spacious grounds, surrounded by dense shade trees, which almost hid it from view during spring and summer. With the coming of autumn, when the limbs gradually lost their leaves, the antiquated building, which had been a famous one during the early days of the century, and standing as it did on elevated ground near the outskirts of the small town formed one of the most conspicuous landmarks of Ellenville.

Folsom Simpson, finding himself alone, gave his whole energies to tracing the mystery of the rajah's ruby. The vague intimations which he had thrown out to his friend, Max Manson, were genuine in his mind, though based on such flimsy fancies that he deemed it not worth while to attempt to explain them to him.

When, however, during the course of the day he received the jubilant dispatch from his associate, he was so certain of the nature of the mistake made by him that he promptly responded with the words given elsewhere. Wandering aimlessly, as it seemed, through the town, he managed to keep an eye upon the movements of Dr. Maidhoff; but so far as he perceived there was nothing suspicious about them. He went and came as his professional duties seemed to require, for he was generally a busy man, most of his journeys being on foot, since they did not lead him beyond the limits of the town.

Another and perhaps more interesting individual was Miss Evelyn Gilder, who, as he viewed it, shared the mysterious secret with her family physician. So far as Simpson could ascertain, she never once left the big house which she had shared with her aunt so long. The female servant came forth about the middle of the afternoon, bearing two letters in her hand. One of these was taken to the postoffice and the other left at Dr. Maidhoff's, who acted as if he was expecting it, for hardly had the woman reached out her hand to ring the bell when he stepped forth and took it from her. He stood at the door while he hastily read it, and nodding his head to signify that it was all right disappeared within his office.

"That letter from Miss Gilder is a summons for him to call and see her this evening on business connected with the rajah's ruby," was the shrewd guess of the watcher, "and I must be on hand."

Simpson had not forgotten that there was another individual in Ellenville who must be interested to a certain extent in this business. That was Arthur Fairchild, credited with being the accepted lover of Miss Gilder.

The detective framed an excuse for calling at his office, but a disappointment awaited him. The lad there told him the young lawyer was out of town and was not expected back for several days.

"He's in it, too," muttered Simpson, lounging back to the hotel, where he kept the best watch he could from his room, which gave him a view of the doctor's office. Nothing noteworthy was observed, and night closed in with little if any real progress in the remarkable investigation he had undertaken.

The sagacious officer, however, had crystallized a theory which had been gradually taking shape in his mind. He had determined on what might be pronounced a desperate venture.

As soon as it was fairly dark he left the hotel, first informing the landlord that he was liable to be kept out until late at night and possibly until morning. He was told that the negro boy who slept in the barroom would admit him at any hour and conduct him to his room.

The night was dark, with a faint moon. The Livermore homestead, standing almost beyond the limits of the village, was shrouded in gloom except for the dim light of an oil lamp burning just in front of the entrance to the grounds. It was no difficult matter for the detective to steal in among the trees without being seen. He made himself certain earlier in the day that there was no dog about the premises, so he had nothing to fear on that score.

waiting. Less than half an hour had passed when he discerned the outlines of a man coming along the lonely street and entering the dim area of illumination thrown out by the lamp.

As the figure came more plainly into view and turned to pass through the open gate, the watcher identified it. "It's Dr. Maidhoff, sure enough," he muttered, with a thrill of pleasure and expectation that his surmise had proved correct. "He has come in answer to that summons of Miss Gilder."

The physician walked briskly up the path, stepped upon the broad porch, his footsteps sounding distinct in the stillness of the night. Before he could move forward to sound the heavy brass knocker the door was drawn inward, and by the light of the lamp in the hall beyond Simpson saw the form of Miss Gilder.

Beyond a doubt she was waiting for him, and his call was not a professional one, since he would not have waited so long after receiving the letter of the young lady.

The two did not enter the house at once. The partly open door showed the dark figures on the threshold, where they talked for some moments in low tones.

If Simpson could only catch a few of the words which now reached him in an almost inaudible hum, they were certain to be of the highest importance, so much so indeed that he was on the point of stealing forward among the trees, though the attempt was almost a hopeless one, when, to his chagrin, they passed inside, and the door was closed behind them.

He heard the click of the lock and the sliding of the old-fashioned bolt. "They don't mean to be interrupted," was his conclusion, "and I don't think there is much danger of their being overheard."

The attempt, however, which he intended to make in that direction was frustrated in an unexpected manner. He supposed they would seat themselves in the lower sitting room or parlor, but they did neither. The sudden flaring of a light in the upper front room (which had evidently been occupied by the late invalid) showed they had gone thither for the purpose of greater privacy.

The scheme, therefore, of creeping up beneath the window and listening in the hope of catching a word or two, was nipped in the bud.

The detective passed among the trees back and forth until he had surveyed the two front and each of the single side windows. The former were impenetrably screened by curtains, as was the one on the left, but the one on the right had its curtain raised about half way to the top. Whether this was an oversight or whether it was done to assist ventilation, since the sash was also lowered a few inches, was a question of no importance.

Simpson moved silently back among the trees until he was several rods from the side of the house. The change of position did not give him a glimpse of the occupants nor of any recognizable article of furniture.

"There is only one thing to be done," he reflected, "and that is to climb that tree which grows near the building. I can hardly hope to overhear their conversation, but I may see something worth knowing—good heavens!"

Well might the eavesdropper be startled, for at that moment he made the discovery that he was not the only individual moving among the trees and seeking to penetrate the mystery of the Livermore homestead. There was another person engaged on the same errand.

Indeed the backward movement of Simpson, in his effort to gain a glimpse of the interior of the upper room, was all that saved him from discovery by this second intruder, who came upon the scene as noiselessly as a shadow.

The same obstacle which shut off his prying attempts caused him to do as Simpson had done only a minute before. He moved toward the boundary fence in the effort to inspect the window whose curtain was partly raised. This took him so far from the dwelling that his head and shoulders were thrown partly in relief against the faint light, the outlines, however, being so indistinct that they were barely distinguishable, and only proved that it was a man that had appeared so unexpectedly on the scene and complicated matters.

While the detective was debating with himself what he should do, if indeed he could do anything, the head and shoulders vanished. The stranger was approaching the house again, having found that nothing was to be gained by staying where he was.

The officer's senses were strung to that tense point that when, a minute later, he caught a soft, faint scraping sound, he read its meaning.

"He is climbing the tree near the window which I would have used a minute later if he had not anticipated me." Such was the fact. The form of the man was now shown more clearly as his head and body rose above the window sill, climbing with the agility of a monkey. "He is one of those sepoys," muttered Simpson, "and the fellow means murder."

ment his shadowy figure was outlined against the lamplight of the room beyond.

The round skull cap, with its dangling tassel, the thin hooked nose, the long wiry mustache and prominent chin—all these were unmistakable as their silhouette showed against the yellow background.

"Dr. Maidhoff has deceived him in some way about the gem," was the conclusion of the watcher, "and that fellow has come back to revenge himself upon him."

The large limb upon which Wichman was crouching put out from the trunk below the window sill so that his body from the waist downward was in impenetrable gloom, but the rest was so plainly shown that the watcher detected every movement.

The fellow cautiously raised his head until he must have gained a glimpse of the interior. At the same time he shrouded his movements as much as he could, doubtless through fear that the couple in the room would discover him.

The weird figure of the man and his noiseless movements suggested the fearful belief that the miscreant was about to wreak terrible vengeance upon both of them.

"If such is his intention," thought Simpson, "I don't think I'll stand here and allow it. I can't see very well in this darkness, but if I can't win him with my revolver it will be the poorest shot I ever made."

The impending tragedy was sure to overthrow all the calculations made by the sagacious detective and to bring about such new complications that he might well despair of success. Still he could not stand idly by and permit a dreadful crime to be committed when it was in his power to prevent.

He hoped there was a possibility of the deed being averted without interference on his part—that is, it seemed that there was a chance that the sepoy was in quest of knowledge, like himself, instead of a human life.

"At any rate I'll wait. I can detect what he is after and baffle him before he does any harm. If he will withdraw without hurting either the doctor or Miss Gilder, he need never know that he has been under my eye."

The fellow in the tree now seemed to concentrate all his attention upon the couple, who were evidently in sight. Holding his body poised with one hand, he leaned forward until his head and face were marked as if with ink on the window. Thus he remained motionless for several minutes.

During that brief but exciting period Folsom Simpson stood beneath and just back of him with his revolver, ready to fire the instant it became necessary.

He half suspected the miscreant meant to make a catlike leap from his perch and, catching the sash, throw it quickly upward and bound into the room with his deadly knife and assail the two persons who little dreamed of their frightful peril.

In order to carry out such a purpose, he must make himself the best kind of target for the watchful man below, who would not hesitate to bore him through. But how passing strange that Folsom Simpson as he stood on the ground, alert, attentive and ready, forgot the fearful fact that this sepoy had a companion!

Not once did he recall the statement of Max Manson that a couple of the swarthy wretches were involved in the disappearance of the rajah's ruby. It was a strange piece of forgetfulness on his part that was to prove of momentous consequence to him.

At such times a person thinks rapidly, and it occurred to Simpson that if this man contemplated the taking off of Dr. Maidhoff alone, or indeed of him and his fair companion, he could gain a better opportunity than by his leap through the window. He had but to wait on the outside until the physician came out on his return to his office, when he could strike him down among the trees of the yard before coming into the light of the lamp in front of the gate. One quick, deadly blow, and it would be done, the assassin making off immediately and being miles away before the crime could be discovered.

But in what a frightful situation Miss Gilder would be left! After disposing of the man the criminal could enter the house and finish her, as the watcher believed he would assuredly do.

These reflections were suddenly broken by the sound of the opening and closing of the front door. In the stillness the noise was distinct, as were the footfalls of some one moving quickly across the porch and along the gravelled walk toward the gate.

the first step was to protect the doctor and the two women against these thugs, as they had been called. While he was seeking to do that without disarranging his own scheme, he decided that it was his duty to warn the servant on her return of the peril of herself, her mistress and Dr. Maidhoff, in order that they might be on their guard.

To do this without exposing himself he must intercept the woman before she came back and at such a distance from the house that the assassin would not see them. Inasmuch as she was liable to return at any moment it would not do to wait.

The abundant trees and the gloom of the night gave him all the screen he could ask. He was confident that when he finally emerged from the vegetation and stole into the highway no one had observed him. It need not be said that he used his eyes and ears to the utmost, and the fact that he neither heard nor saw anything added not a little to his own sense of security.

Prompt as was his action, it was none too much so, for at a distance of less than 200 yards from the front gate, but fortunately where his movements were hidden by an intervening hedge, he met the servant walking rapidly toward the Livermore homestead.

It Tastes Good
One reason why Scott's Emulsion of Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda has had such a large sale is because it is "Almost as palatable as milk;" but the best reason is that its curative properties are unequalled. It cures the cough, supplies the waste of tissues, produces flesh and builds up the entire system.

A HOME MISSIONARY.

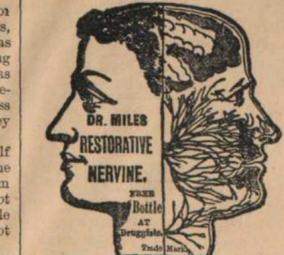

HIS EXPERIENCE WITH THE OWEN ELECTRIC BELT.
AN OLD MAN WITH PROGRESSIVE IDEAS AND HIS DESIRE TO ENLIGHTEN THE PUBLIC.
The winter of 1884-85 was my first experience with rheumatism. I was traveling as a home missionary, and with great difficulty and suffering I reached my appointments. It was located in my hips and back. From that time to this year of grace, 1891, I have suffered more or less under the grip of that disease. About three years later, liver complaint, and the calcareous matter taken to cure it, fastened upon the walls and organs of my chest, a rheumatic affection from which I was never wholly free, and at times even a breath was a cruelty. Yet, in a general way, my health has been as good, perhaps better than the average of men.
During the last days of the late year, I bought of Dr. Owen two of the Owen Electric Belts. One I have worn, the other a daughter has worn. In either case the remedial has been satisfactory. The rheumatism of my chest and hips I can no longer find. A limited case of varicocoele, of more than thirty years standing, after two weeks' use of the Belt, has diminished to a mere lump, and a few days later could not be found. A nasal catarrh of years had so affected the substance of the nose that a friend in jest twitted me of brandy. My nose is itself again, and other symptoms of nasal and throat catarrh are fast disappearing, carrying my deafness of seven years with them.
I have studied electricity in its bearings upon mental and phisico mental phenomena for fifty years, and have seen its wonders in these directions, and, thus prepared, my attention was easily turned to its efficiency in controlling the nerves, muscles and motions of the living, as galvanism does those of the recent dead.
I have no wish to undervalue any appliance which carries a real electric current from a genuine battery to human nerves with a gentle, a genial force; but I do wish to do my utmost to disarm public fears as to the well-ordered Electric Belts.

The wheel was pushed so far under the buggy that the handle bars were thrust up through the bottom of it. It had to be turned over before the bicycle could be pulled loose again.

Mr. Albert Bruce Joy invites us to visit him at "The Studio, Beaumont Road, beside the West Kensington Station, North End Road," London, England. Mr. Joy is an artist of the variety which should be called—we hope we get it right—"buster." That is to say he busts eminent people in marble, bronze, dough, plaster, wax,—in fact all materials used by artists, the full list might seem rather long for repetition. Several eminent Americans have been subjected to Mr. Joy's processes. Mrs. Mary Anderson Novaro, A. Loudon Snowden, once minister to Spain, and Chauncey M. Depew. We thank Mr. Joy for his invitation and someday will drop in on him when we have a few moments to spare.

Examinations have begun of the candidates for higher degrees and for graduates on the University system. There are twenty-seven such candidates, eight of whom are ladies. No outsider is admitted to the examinations but the reading and defense of the theses are public, and often very interesting. E. H. Robertson was examined for Ph. M. last Friday, thesis, "Ferments in Urine"; A. A. Storms, for A. M., Tuesday, thesis, "The Kantian and Cartesian Ideas of God"; L. G. Whitehead, for A. B., Wednesday. He Collects Votes and Minerals. Dr. J. C. Leonard, of Idaho, is a marked example of how nice it is to have both a vocation and an avocation. His avocation seems to be politics and his vocation making a magnificent collection of rocks and minerals for the U. of M. He is known as the governor of the third house by the irrepressible press. At present Mr. Leonard is traveling by mule team and camping out, all over the irregularities of the crooked state in the union, getting his constituents into line for the next campaign and making marvelous finds for his U. of M. collection. He has covered 2000 miles of distance already not counting ups and downs.

College Politics.

The Student's Lecture Association has a history that would make interesting reading could it be properly written up; but it would take the pen of a Sue or Dumas to do it justice. The sinuous general of the Jesuits or the revengeful Monte Christo never plotted more skillfully against their victims than have the wily young politicians of the University to secure the presidency of the S. L. A. And such fights as they have had! The Blaine-Cleveland campaign was not nearly so fiercely passionate or so foul with mud-slinging as was the White-Davenport S. L. A. election of 1883.

Now there is another fight on. The professionals versus the lits is the latest aspect. The junior laws are said to have organized the professionals with intent to seize all the offices from the lits. These last also made preparations. They were not to be taken asleep and a circular sent out Friday evening told of the combine and summoned every lit to his duty.

For the first time in the history of the University the meeting was held in the chapel. President Griffin wielded the gavel over the largest crowd ever assembled in the U. of M. for such purposes. When tellers were announced objections began to be raised and in a few moments pandemonium became a back number as a synonym for noise and confusion. Finally President Griffin adjourned the meeting for two weeks. This angered the laws who expected to be gone by that time and they were proceeding to put a president of their own in the chair when President Angell appeared and advised them all to go outside and cool off. A law moved to adjourn to the law lecture room and away the professional section went, and finished up the election. The lits stayed away. The officers chosen by the "snap convention" as the lits call it were: J. W. Powers, '04 law, president; W. S. Hewitt, '05 medic, vice-president; J. McKinney, '04 dent, corresponding secretary; H. H. Whitten, '06 medic, treasurer; J. W. Knox, '04 pharmit, recording secretary.

The French Spy.

The management take pleasure in announcing the engagement of Geary's new "French Spy." The company comes highly recommended and an enjoyable entertainment may be anticipated. The Detroit Journal says: A large audience attended the revival of "The French Spy" at Whitney's Opera House last night. The production is on an elaborate scale, the costumes and scene effects being excellent. The action of the play takes place in Algiers and in the first act there is a realistic battle scene in which the imperial forces of France and the fierce native troops contend for victory. The role of the French spy is played very effectively by Miss Nellie Davenport, whose beauty and fierce stage presence is supplemented by an excellent display of tactics.
