THE BRIGGS CASE,

THE OUTCOME OF THAT CELEBRAT. ED CASE DISCUSSED.

rhe Bevs. Sunderland and Gelston Deliver Interesting Discourses on the Subject Last Sunday—Extracts From Their Sermons.

Rev. Sunderland's Sermon.

A large congregation was present at the Unitarian Church last Sunday morning to hear the sermon of Rev. J. T. Sunderland on the "The Issues inolved in the Dr. Briggs Case."

The preacher took for his text the utterance of St. Paul (Acts 24:14) After the way in which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers." Paul, who was at first regarded as a heretic, became at last Paul the accepted apostle and saint. Will it be so with Dr. Briggs, who has now been formally declared a heretic by the highest ecclesiastical court of his denomination? Ever God's prophets are stoned in their own generation, but the coming generations build monuments in their honor. There is no orthodoxy to-day that was not once heresy. Therefore Dr. Briggs need not fear. Nor need any other leader in the great army of Truth, though much farther advanced than the convicted pro-

A very significant feature of the Briggs case is found in the fact that it does not stand alone. It is simply one wave of a great tide of heresy that is rising and breaking on all shores-Many ministers and scholars in his own denomination are in sympathy with Dr. Briggs. The case of Professor Smith of Cincinnati, who has recently been tried and condemned, and is soon to be tried again before a higher tribunal, is well known.

Dr. Ecob of Albany, Dr. E. L. Clark of New York, and others aunounce that they cannot remain in a body that puts scholarship and free thought under ban. Dr Ecob goes so far as to suggest the formation of a new and broader religious movement to be called the "Free Church of Christ,"to embrace the more liberal elements in many denom-

Nor does this heresy wave confine itself to Presbyterianism. Passing by such well known cases as those of Prof. Swing and Dr. Thomas of Chicago, and Rev. Howard MacQueary, we saw last year President Scott of the Ohio State University giving up his credentials as a M. E. minister to seek a more liberal fellowship. Dr. Lyman Abbott takes ground far in advance of Dr. Briggs, not only in biblical scholarship but The Andover trouble and the New Cread whole crop of heretics among our Congregationalist friends. Though the men has been as much as possible avoided, yet again and again good men have been refused ordination to the ministry or appointment to the missionary field, because they believed there might be hope beyond the grave for good heathen.

The charge of heretical teaching to the extent even of Unitarianism and Universalism, has been made against more than one theological school. Word has just come from Andover that two members of the present graduating class have just accepted Unitarian pulpits. Our Baptist brethren have their heretics and seceders, like Prof. Crawford H. Toy, the distinguished biblical scholar of Harvard, Dr. Bridgman of New York, and others. So too with our Episcopalian friends. While they were trying Howard MacQueary two or three years ago, many eminent men in that denomination were named as holding views fully as radical as those for which he was convicted. Nor is the rising tide of heresy confined to this country. Such eminent English scholars as Professors Robertson Smith, Edwin Abbot, Cheyne and Driver go much farther than Dr. Briggs. Prof. Max Müller declares without hesitancy that miracles are no necessary part of religion; that Jesus put little or no dependence upon them; that New Testament miracles, as those of other religions, rest generally upon a basis of legend; and that God's revelation includes the other great Sacred Books of the world as well as our Bible. Prof. Momerie of the Church of England, denies in the stoutest way the truth of every single doctrine of the orthodox scheme, declaring that Jesus taught not one of them; while Dr. Heber Newton, the eminant Episcopal clergyman of New York, declares that, tried by the creeds and prevailing theological teachings of Christendom to-day, Christ himself was not a Christian, but was a heretic of an extreme heresy of our time mean? Are the men who are leaders in it, bad, or ignorant, or undevout? On the contrary they are among the purest, noblest, most learned and most consecrated of men. Their movement means not something bad but something good, not disease but health, not death but growing life. The heretics ail de-

1. Greater religious freedom than the creeds have allowed; 2. A more progressive religion than that of the creeds; 3. A more ethical religion than that of the creeds; 4. A more genuinely Christian religion than that of the creeds. The speaker dwelt at considerable length upon each of these points. He urged the seriousness of the present religious situation inasmuch as the controversy going on is not between good men and bad, but between good men and others equally good. We must not forget that the men who have deposed Dr. Briggs from the ministry, and who are giving no quarter to the heretics, are honest and sincere. The struggle is batween good men mentally fettered, blinded by falseed ucation, and faced backward, arrayed against good men of broader nature, with larger knowledge, and faced towards God's sunrise. And therefore we must be patient, and very charitable.

Yet this does not mean that we must be indifferent. No intelligent man who cares for religious freedom can allow himself for one moment to be indifferent. There is no more important work to be done in the religious world than this of purifying Christianity, this of bringing the great Christian bodies out of the Egypt of their slavery to old, outgrown creeds, up to realization and fulfilment of their privileges and responsibilties as leaders of the world's best moral and spiritual life.

The speaker was far from agreeing in all things with Dr. Briggs. He ageed largely with Briggs the biblical scholar, but dissented radically from Briggs the theologian. How an intelligent scholar to-day could solemnly declare his belief in the Westminister Confession, and promise to teach nothing contrary to its "system of doctrine," seemed unaccountable. Yet Dr. Briggs declares and promises this in the most unequivocal terms. But what is that system of doctrine? The very central frame-work of it is, a fallen and ruined world, a totally depraved humanity, the election of a part of the race to be saved by the atoning sacrifice of Christ, and the foreordained, hopeless and eternal damnation of all the rest. Was there ever a more irrational, cruel or ethically monstrous system of religespecially theologically, for example, lous belief? That an intelligent and affirming in the very strongest terms | good man like Dr. Briggs can in this nineteenth century subscribe to it shows what power a superstitious thecontroversy have brought to light a ology has to blind a mind otherwise clear-sighted, and to dull a conscience otherwise true. In one direction Dr trying and open disfellowshiping of Briggs is liberal and advanced: that is in his biblical scholarship. Here he is faced forward, and is rightly to be regarded as a leader. And in this there is hope and promise, for a rational method of Bible interpretation must sooner or later lead to a reasonable and enlightened theology.

If the Presbyterirn and other great orthodox denominations were wise, instead of driving out their scholars and thinkers they would hasten to construct for themselves a reasonable, humane, and morally beautiful Christianity, broad enough to have room, both in its pews and its pulpits, for all who love Christ's divine religion of love to God and love to man.

Rev. Gelston's Sermon.

From what has been said repeatedly in this pulpit, you will all understand that had I been a delegate to the General Assembly, I certainly would have voted to acquit Dr. Briggs. To me, the verdict as given is a great blunder, a manifest injustice and thoroughly unwise. The verdict was reached, too, by illegal and unconstitutional procedure. The right to make new doctrines belongs exclusively to the Presbyteries. Under cover of judicial process the Assembly has usurped authority and attempted to do this very thing. But now while say ing this very strongly I do not mean to impugn the motives or integrity of the men who voted for the verdict. There is nothing gained by hard words. God in his providence has often overruled serious blunders and grievous errors by his people in a way to exalt the Truth more fully in the end. The trammeling of individual liberty, the attempt to enforce uniformity in theory as well as in faith, the great principles sacrificed in the decision, will surely bring a reaction which in the sober judgment of the future will define more clearly and justly the lines of Christian liberty and orthonot believe in secession from the church any more than they do in secession from the Union. Some misleaders in the church and critics outside have urged this as a necessity; but a greater perversion of Presbyterian principle and government cannot be stated than that thing. It is said that if those who would acquit Dr. Briggs, remain in the church, they become responsible for the errors and mistakes made. Is that so? No one who understands what a representative government is, would make such an assertion. The Presbyterian church has a representative form of government. It is government by majorities. It is very closely parallel to the government of the United States. You can therefore judge this matter rightly by taking a similar case under the general government. For example. You are a citizen of the United States. Congress has passed the Geary law, which violates our treaty with China. To many of you as well as myself, that law is a great blunder, a manifold injustice not to one man only but to thousands, and it is wholly unwise. Now suppose I say to you, "unless you secede from the Union, unless you throw down your citizenship and leave the country, you will be responsible for this great wrong. Yea and every other wrong which the judges or legislators commit, you are responsible for, unless you leave the country." Is such a position sound? It is quite as sound when applied to a representative government in civil affairs as it is when applied to a repre-

Again, let us say that the party which happens to be in power is one whose policy you cannot endorse. It is in your judgment thoroughly wrong and injurious. But the policy of the party in power is the policy of the government. It will be the policy of the government as long as that party controls. Now is it true that you, by remaining a citizen, become responsible for this pol icy which you reject? Does consistency oblige you to get out everytime some other sentiment prevails than your own? What folly! Minorities can win a majority for themselves by patient waiting and the use of legitimate means. The minority of to-day is the majority of the future. It is arrant cowardice to refuse to toil and wait for the Truth, being assured that it will win its right to reign. The case is the same with the church as with the civil government. To take up arms or secede is alike a dis loyalty to the general cause. Present majorities decide for the present, but the ruling majority is in a continual state of change, being the product of a changing public sentiment.

sentative government in ecclesiastical

Let us notice, 1st, that the Presbyterian church does not claim infallibility. No Protestant church does. We freely admit that Churches, Presbyteries, Synods and General Assemblies make mistakes. We assert the fallibility of all human judgment. We expect that the Spirit of God through the channels of Christian thought and discussion will reveal and correct these mistakes.

2nd. Personally I am not in the Presbyterian church to defend any of its mistakes or errors. In the interests of truth and loyalty, I shall with the full exercise of liberty seek, according to conviction God gives me, to correct errors and promote progress.

3rd. There are different schools of thought in the Presbyterian church. Sometimes the more conservative wing of the church gains the leadership, sometimes the more radical and progressive wing. It would be a great loss if the church were to pass exclusively under the control of either of these parties. The men who mind the brakes on the lightning express are quite as important as the engine. It would be a poor train which was without either. God has made the laws of the mind right, and there are these radical and conservative factors underlying all the best progress of the world.

My practical advice to you, young people, is to remember the truth cannot be 'voted" up or down. If you expect to do any good in the field of truth it will be by the Spirit of Truth using you to bring conviction and persuasion to other hearts. To lose all patience with those who differ from you and cry "bigot" or 'neretic" will never help the truth but Remember you have an individuality of your own. The Spirit of God seeks as varied expression through minds as he does through the varied forms of material creation. Voice that conviction which God gives you. Be a slavish disciple of no man, but be one who is taught of God. Be a disciple of the Great Master-the Son of God.

Most of all study the unities of faith. The great doctrines believed in common by Evangelical churches are a sufficient standard of teaching and preaching for me. Without coercion nine-tenths of christendom have by the persuasion of us that day. We meet in the Courier But the question is asked, What are the Spirit come to believe these great Block. you going to do about it? Are you go- truths. That is enough. I believe in Now what does all this growing ing to secede? No. Presbyterians do denominations only as I believe in regiments in an army. I do not believe in "the church," either my own or anyone else's. I believe in the Church of God universal. All who belong to Christ belong to me and I trust I belong to The Professionals Take Every Trick.

The name Students Lecture Association is now the official title of a regulary incorporated society of the state of Michigan, and let no other organisation attempt to do business under said name. An account of the rumpus of two Saturdays ago appeared in our columns last week. During the week vague rumors of an approaching row were heard. The "lit" meeting was called at the rink and it was supposed TO BE SOLD WHILE THEY LAST. that the "professionals" would try to prevent the meeting by force. It was learned that no recognition would be given by the authorities to two Lecture Associations, which meant that only one society in case of a split could have the use of University Hall. Several propositions looking toward compromise were made but all were re-

Last Friday evening the "professionals" issued a call to "all students who participated in the regular election of the S. L. A. officers on June 3, 1893, and all others, irrespective of departments, who are in favor of fair play and honesty"requesting"them to stay away from the alleged S. L. A. meeting, announced to be held in the "gym" to-morrow, and attend a meeting at the opera house on Saturday, June 10, to take action on a plan to maintain our rights." Saturday morning both factions assembled, the one at the rink and the other at the opera house. The "lits" proceeded to elect a full complement of officers' while the wiley "professionals" got articles of incorporation drawn up with assistance of Mr. A. J. Sawyer, and dispatched Mr. Powers, their president in hot haste to file them in the office of the secretary of state at Lansing. Thus is a legal standing secured for the professional faction, and they hope to secure a recognition from the University

AN ILLINOIS MIRACLE.

A CASE OF DEEP INTEREST TO WOBEN EVERYWHERE.

Saved Through a Casual Glance at a Newspaper-Weak, Pale and in a Deplorable Condition when Relief came - A Remarkable Narrative Carefully Investigated by a Dubuque Times Reporter.

(Dubuque lowa, Times.)

Among the peculiar conditions with which the people of the present age are endowed is a remarkable capacity are endowed is a remarkable capacity for doubting. A full belief only comes after a careful investigation, and after positive proofs have been presented. Current report said there had been a remarkable cure in the case of a lady of Savanna, Ill., but as current report not always accurate, and as the story told was one possessing deep in-terest for the public, The Times determ-ined upon a thorough investigation into the matter. The result of this investigation proved that not only was the story true, but that the case was even more remarkable than the public even more remarkable than the public had been given to understand.

Mr. A. R. Kenyon lives on Chicago Ave., Savanna, Ill, and it was there the reporter sought him to learn of the sickness of his wife, and the cure of which so much is being said. Arrived there Mrs. Kenyon told your reporter the following:

"I was born in Warren County, New York, thirty-three years ago. I was married when I was nineteen and came to Savanna seven years ago. With the exception of being at times subject to violent sick headaches I consider myself a healthy woman up to ive years ago. At that time I was very much run down and an easy prey to the ever present malaria in and about the Mississippi bottom lands. I was taken violently ill and during the succeeding five or six months was the greater part of the time helpless. The ocal physicians said I had been effect I continually grew weaker and finally went to see Dr. McAvey of Clinton, Iowa, who is reputed to be one of the ablest physicians in the Mississippi valley. He treated me for a time with out beneficial effects, and finally tole me he thought he could help me if would absolutely abstain from work That was not to be thought of. If able to go about 1 had to look after my household duties. I then consulted prominent doctor of Sayanna. My stomach would not retain the medi cine he gave me and he came to the conclusion that my stomach was badly diseased. Occasionally I would choke down and nearly suffocate. I ther went to Dr. Maloney and he pronounced it a case of heart trouble He helped me temporarily, but like the rest said I must stop all work or nothing could be done for me. All this time I had grown weaker and paler until I was in a deplorable condition. I had a continual feeling of tiredness, my muscular power was near ty gone, and I could not go up half a dozen steps without resting, and often that much exercise would cause me to have a terrible pain in my side S engingly the blood had left my veins. I was pale as death; my lips were blue and cold and I had given all hope of ever being better. About the first of April last a young man boarding with us received a Fulton, Iil. paper. It was his home paper sent him by his mother. I picked it up one day and in casually glancing over its columns, came across an account of marvelous cure through the use of D Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People Candidly, I did not believe the story and when my husband suggested tha it would do no harm for me to try the pills I laughed at the idea. He insisted and I submitted, but I had no faith whatever in the pills. My husband ent for two boxes and I took them When these had been used I was some what improved in health. I continued heir use and felt I was growing stronger, my sleep refreshed me and seemed as if I could feel new blood coursing through my veins. I kept or taking Pink Pills until a short ago and I now consider myself healthy rugged woman. My house full of boarders and I superintend al the work myself. In other words work all the time and am happy al the time. I am positive that Dr. Wil-liams' Pink Pills for Pale People saved my life and I believe there are thou sands of women who could find great relief if they used them. The sick neadaches I was subject to from girl had a single attack since I commenced taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. "Were there any disagreeable affects from the medicine?" asked the re-

nood have disappeared and I have no

"None whatever," replied Mrs. Ken-yon. They are pleasant to take and the conditions imposed by the direct tions are easily complied with. In common parlance I took Pink Pills and they did the rest." Mrs. Kenyon stated that all her neighbors knew of ner former condition and her restoration, and one of them was called in, and when asked of her knowledge of the case said,—"I have been intimately acquainted with Mrs. Kenyon, and know of her illness. I look upon her recovery as something marvelous. It i surely the unexpected that happened in her case. Of my own knowledge she was reduced to a mere shadow; wa the palest and most ghost-like person I had ever seen. Hers was a remark-able case. She would be helpless one day and the next would be supervising the work of her house, but all the time there was a noticeable loss of strength and the natural vivaciousness of her nature had disappeared. It was generally thought she must die as none seemed to understand her case or help her in the least. I was told of the sending for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and of course thought it the whim of a dying woman, or perhaps a sign that her husband still insisted in hoping against hope. But you can see the result for yourself, and if miracles are not performed in these days I would be pleased to know how to describe a case of this kind."

It is a remarkable case. There is no eason to doubt the sickness of Mrs. Kenyon and in just the form she de scribes it. Hundreds of people in that immediate neighborhood are fully conversant with the facts of both sick-ness and cure, and discuss it with sympathizing earnestness. persons have gone so close to the dividblood builder and nerve restorer, cur-ing such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous headace, nervous prostration and the tired feeling resulting therefrom, the after effects of la grippe influenza and severe colds, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions, and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure, in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work or hundred, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form is trying to de-fraud you and should be avoided.

The public are also cautioned against all other so-called blood builders and nerve tonics, no matter what name may be given them. They are all imi-tations whose makers hope to reap a pecuniary advantage from the wor ful reputation achieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and refuse all imitations and

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams, Medicine Company from either address. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

GREAT ROCK ISLAND ROUTE

BEST LINE TO THE WEST

Superb Dining Car Service

As long a time as David reignet, so long has the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Rafliway run trains westward from Chicago.

The Rock Island is foremost in adopting any advantage calculated to improve speed and give that luxury, safety and comfort that popular patronage demands. Its equipment is thoroughly complete with vestibuled trains, magnificent dining cars, sleepers and chair coaches, all the most elegant, and of recently improved patterns.

Faithful and capable management and polite, honest service from employes are importent items They are a double duty—to the Company and to travelers—and it is sometimes a task difficult of accomplishment. Passengers on this line will find little cause for complaint on that ground.

The importance of this Line can be better understood if a short lesson in geography be now recited.

What is the great Eastern terminic of the Rock.

What is the great Eastern termini of the Rock land Route?—Chicago. What other sub-Eastern what is the great Eastern termini of the Rock Island Route?—Chicago. What other sub-Eastern termini has it?—Peoria. To what important points does it run trains to the Northwest?—St. Paul, and Minneapolis, Minnesota; and Water town and Sioux Falls, Dakota. To what important Iowa and Nebraska points?—Des Moines. Davenport, Iowa; Omeha and Lincoln, Nebraska. Davenport, Iowa; Omeha and Ithcoln, Nebraska. Davenport, Iowa; Omeha and Ithcoln, Nebraska. Does it touch other Missouri River points?—Tes, St. Joseph, Atchinson, Leavenworth and Kansas City. Does it run rains to the Foothills of the Rocky Mountains?—Yes; to Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, solid vestibuled from Chicago. Can important cities of Kansas be reached by the Rock Island Route?—Yes; its capital city. Topeka, and a full hundred others in all directions in the State, and it is the only road running to and into the new lands opened for settlement in the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Reservation.

It will thus be seen that a line tapping, as the Rock Island does, such a varied territory, has much in that regard to commend it to travelets, as all connections are sure on the Rock Island, and passengers can rely on a speedy Journey, as over a bulk of the system through trains are run, and it has become, and rightly too, the popular Line.

MANY LIVES LOST.

Sudden Collapse of Ford's Theater at Washington.

Its Inmates Buried in the Debris-They Were Mostly Government Employes
-Twenty-Two Dead Bodies Recovered-A Great Many Hurt.

AN OLD BUIN FALLS.

WASHINGTON, June 10. - A rotten United States government building has collapsed. In its ruins more than a score of human souls were launched into eternity and a hundred living victims are now writhing in the agony of their wounds. Shortly before 10 o'clock Friday morning, with scarcely a second's warning, a large portion of the three floors of the old Ford theater on Tenth street broke down, carrying to the ground below hundreds of clerks, heavy desks and the miscellany of a great government office. The old building was used by the pension and record division of the war department. Repairs undertaken re cently had weakened the supports, but to the penuriousness of congress, which made it impossible to secure a fitting building, may he charged the awful catastrophe that must cast a blot of shame upon the national government.

The following list of the dead thus far reported, with the names of the state from which they were appointed, contains twenty-two names, including one unknown. Unknown man, taken from the ruins at 5 o'clock Friday evening, evidently a clerk; George Allen, Pennsylvania; George W. Annold, Virginia; L. J. E. Chapin, South.Chicago; Samuel P. Banes, Pennsylvania; John Bosatus, District of Columbia; Arthur L. Dietrich, Kentucky; Jeremiah Daley, Pennsylvania; James R. Fagan, Kansas; Joseph B. Gage, Michigan; David C. Jordon, Missouri; M. M. Jarvis, Michigan; J. Boyd Jones, Wisconsin; F. B. Loftus, New York; F. W. Maeder; B. F. Miller, New York; Howard S. Miller, Ohio; J. H. McFall, Wisconsin; E. G. Shull, Kansas; William Schriever, Maryland; H. S. Wood; F. M. Williams, Wisconsin; A. M. Gerault, New Jersey; M. T Muledy, Louisiana.

The injured, so far as known, num-

The injured, so far as known, number forty-five. Many of them are being treated at their homes. Some will un doubtedly die of their injuries.

WITHOUT WARNING. The building collapsed without moment's warning. The front half or all three floors fell, carrying every thing to the bottom. For a moment all was still. Then the air was split by the shrieks and groans of the frightened, wounded and dying hundreds who, like a mass worms, struggled, twisted and fought to free themselves from one another and from the heavy iron beams and timbers and furniture and govern ment records which pinned them to their places. The people in the neighborhood were for the moment stunned The horror of it all had robbed them of their senses. Then in a few moments, but what to the wretches pinioned in death's embrace seemed ages, the truth burst upon their befuddled brains and they joined their cries with the unfortunates within the collapsed building. Then, dividing, some rushed for help; some ran to the sink-hole of death itself to lend their hands, while others, with selfish regard for their own safety and curiosity, stood where they were to look upon the scene.

CAUSE OF THE ACCIDENT. An investigation of the cause of the accident discovered that it was appar ently due to criminal carlessness. number of laborers were at work beneath the first floor excavating for an electric plant. The building rested on underpinning and the earth, and as the earth was dug away the pressure of the building rested on the unsupported beams of the first floor. The weight proved too much the floors collapsed and fell into the excavation, burying the laborers and clerks beneath them. The people in charge of this excavation were supposed to have known that the building was condemned and had been unsafe for years. The general insecur-ity of the building had already been repeatedly reported, and for a long time past, whenever a heavily loaded wagon has gone by, the building seemed to sway backward and for-ward, as the clerks describe the sensation. A strange coincidence is that the old theater is wrecked on the day of the funeral of Edwin Booth, brother of John Wilkes Booth. CONDEMN THE GOVERNMENT. Condemnation of the government for permitting the building to be used is heard on every hand. The federal government has an account on its hands of immense proportions. There is little doubt that friends of the dead and the victims who were fortunate enough to escape with their lives will seek damages from the government which may aggregate millions of dollars. In the dangerous condition of the building they will have strong popular support of their claims. Strong words of denunciation were uttered against the federal authorities for permitting the building to be occupied in view of its unsafe con-

BRIEF HISTORY.

[The building which was wrecked was the Army Medical museum, and was originally erected as Ford's theater, on the site of the old Tenth Street Baptist church. It was a medium-sized structure, and was painted white. About forty years ago the Ford Brothers, of Baltimore, purchased the church property and transformed it into a theater. The interior was entirely removed, but the old walls were left standing. I was used as a playhouse until several years later, when it was destroyed by fire. The Fords then built a spacious brick theater on the size of the old building. It was in this theater that President Lincoln was assassimated on the Good Friday night of 1860 by John Wilkes Booth. After this event the government closed the theater, and finally the property was sold for about $150,000. Again the interior of the structure was remodeled and adapted to the use of the surgeon general. The museum proper occupied the three floors of the building. While it was originally established for the purpose of investigating the wounds and diseases incidental to war, its scope has broadened so rapidly that it lately included all interesting ob-BRIEF HISTORY.

jects of medical and surgical study. It was said to be the only museum of its kind in the world. Labor and money had been expended on it to an almost unlimited extent. There were no less an almost unlimited extent. There were no less than 22,000 specimens arranged with great care and system within the walls of the museum. The second floor of the building contained the medical library of the government, a library which was said to contain more medical literature than the British museum or the National library of France. The entire building was usually filled with a force of clerks and officers examining and compiling the records pertaining to the judicial and hospital department of the army.]

MORE THAN A SCORE KILLED. WASHINGTON, June 12 .- The list of dead by the Ford theater collapse now numbers twenty-three, the latest vic-tim being A. N. Gerault, of New Jersey, whose death was reported Saturday morning.

WANTED HIS LIFE. Washington, June 13. — At yester-day's session of the Ford theater inquest a well-dressed man walked forward and in a voice trembling with passion, shaking his fist in Col. Ainsworth's face, shouted: "You have murdered my brother, and you shan't sit there intimidating these witnesses." The man was Charles Banes, whose brother was a victim of the disaster. Soon after some frenzied individual cried: "Hang him; hang him!" Men were springing forward by this time and many spectators present sought cover.

Had it not been for the presence of the police Col. Ainsworth would have undoubtedly suffered bodily injury. Feeling has been running high against Col. Ainsworth ever since the sad affair occurred, it being alleged that he was a martinet and would not permit the clerks in his bureau to be furloughed while repairs were being made at the old theater, although it was known to be unfit for occupancy and unsafe. Monday's demonstration has put an end to a further public trial.

HARRISON AT THE FAIR.

The Ex-President Pays a Visit to Jackson

CHICAGO, June 13.—Ex-President Harrison arrived from Indianapolis on an early train Monday, and was met by President Palmer. Immediately after breakfast Mr. Harrison went to Jackson park, and spent the day admiring the beauties of the world's fair. The visit was entirely of an informal nature and there were no exercises or ceremonies arranged for the welcome or entertainment. When the ex-president arrived at the Administration building there were several hundred people sitting about on the benches. He was recognized and heartily applauded. He acknowledged the compliment by removing his hat and bowing. He will spend several days at the fair, and on Thursday will make the principal address at the dedication of the Indiana state building.

WILL Paris Banfield be elected alder man from the third ward to succeed Fillmore? Possibly he is too quick tempered to be an alderman.

THE death of Alderman Fillmore v neccessitates a special election for alderman in the third ward. That being the method for filling such vacancies prescribed by the charter.

THE Students' Lecture Association some time ago started in warmly ito discover a fraud, and punish someone for steeling a sum of money from them estimated at possibly $400 They called on everyone to aid them for their efforts and stirred considerable public sympathy in their endeavors. The question many people are asking just now is, What did they find? If they found nothing why do they not loudly proclaim the fact and quiet all suspicions? If they did find something why do they not bring the offender to justice, or at least do something to free from suspicion those who were cleared by the investigation.

A Trip Around the World.

The World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago is, without question, the greatest and the most marvelous representation of the genius, the enterprise, the industry and the progress of man this world has ever seen. The effect which, as a whole, it produces upon the mind has not yet been described and it is doubtful if it ever can be in words. I believe it is the unanimous testimony of those who have visited them all, that the great Expositions of Paris, Vienna and our own Centenial sink into insignificance in comparison with it. Everything about the great show impresses one with a sense of quietness and repose with brotherly love and peace, although we know that not far away in the government exhibit and Krupp's building, hidden like the claws in the paws of the sleeping lion, there may be found the most ponderous and terrible engines of distruction and war. Here, almost with a single step, you can pass from the highest results of modern civilization in the French exhibit, to mingle with he men and products of the Stone Age and all the rest progress between these extremes is shown and illustrated by the exhibits of the different nations and countries. Everything about the Exposition has been conceived and executed upon a gigantic and magnificent scale. Here the visitors can see a collonade more majestic than any in ancient architecture-structures that will hold larger audiences than the Flavian amphitheatres-buildings more beautiful than any that ever crowned the Acropolis. Seated upon the base of one of the columns of the peristyle and Tooking west as the rays of the declining sun tint with purple glory the white facades of the buildings and reflect in the lagoon the golden statue of the Republic and wrap in fiery flame the vast gilded dome of the administration building, the effect is one of chanting beauty and loveliness.

A view of the buildings and grounds alone-to secure and appreciate the general effect of the Exposition as a whole-without looking at details at all -will well repay a visit.

When it comes to details the show is too vast to be comprehended in a single zeason or by any single mind. After getting a general view of the buildings and grounds one should devote himself to those exhibits which interest him most. Even some single departments, like the art exhibit, are confusing from their extent. It has been second necessary to build addition after addition to the art building to contain the pictures and statuary sent for exhiwitton or sale. The art exhibit is the most popular and attractive of any single exhibit upon the grounds. It is strikingly free from the horrible and disgusting rubbish which fashion or piety or interest impelled the artist to paint two or three hundred years ago. There are few or no women here with that sneaking conventional look, with their heads thrown back and their eyes rolled up as if they were in an agony of remorse for having thrown vitrol in the faces of their rivals-no women with their shoulder blades dislocated and developed into uncouth and cumbeous wings,no "last judgments" where children, head first, into a lake of burn- received the answer "Fraud."

ing brimstone, no canvass with its glorious sky behind whose floating and tinted clouds fat babies, with wings, and faces as characterless as dishes of oatmeal mush, are gazing down upon some imaginary and useless miracle. some shameful rascality or horrible crime being perpretrated upon the earth below. That there is so little of this miserable trash in the art exhibit at Chicago in this year 1893 shows as clearly as any thing can what enormous progress the world has made, not only in art, but in religious thought as well, since the days of Columbus. Of course in these acres of canvas there must be some rubbish. One turns with a feeling of disgust from its "Flagellant" picture representing a crowd of halfnaked and deluded women of the middle ages doing penance for their sins by whipping each other through the streets, to gaze with a feeling of admiration and awe upon a noble canvass painted by Sir Frederick Leighton representing the naked Hercules aroused to wrath by a great wrong committed, and who with heroic and manly courage seizes grim Death himself by the throat to rescue from his dominion the body of the dead Alcestis. The "Garden of the Hisperides" another picture by Sir Frederick Leighton is by common consent one of the finest pictures in the Exposition. Indeed, to the surprise of most people, the English art exhibit marches easily beside the art exhibits of Italy and France, if it be not the best

All the state buildings, except that of Vermont which is ridiculous, are well worth seeing. The Massachusetts building especially, while not so expensive as some of the others, is a model of taste and appropriateness. It represents an old colonial home surrounded by ahigh fence in ancient style with arched gateway. Its low ceilings, old time fire-places with their cranes, windows with small glass and sills high from the floor, will recall the dear home of his childhood to many a gray headed New Englander at the fair. One who has never visited Mt. Vernon will be interested in the Virginia building which is a pretty exact representation of the home of Washington. Michigan cuts no great figure at the fair. Its building is commonplace. Its mining exhibit is fairly good and its agricultural exhibit is passable, but in horticulture and forestry where it should have been and might have been strong it is easily surpassed even by the new born state of Washington. But we must remember that Michigan had less money to spend than most of the states.

in the whole Exposition.

Not the least attractive feature of the fair is the Midway Plaisance, a show of itself, well worthy of a visit to Chicago. Nearly every race and nation in the world is represented here by its people, its buildings, its family and social customs. Here different peoples carry on in the streets and in the open shops and bazars their peculiar occupations and trades. Here is located the enormous Ferris Wheel which carries on its revolving axis thirty-two coaches as large as our street cars, two hundred and fifty feet into the air, a curiosity as great, if not as high, as the Eiffel Tower.

Many people are asking themselves the question, "Can I afford to go to the fair?" They might better ask themselves the question," Can Dafford to stay way?" When again can one simply by a trip to Chicago gain the information, the knowledge and all the substantial advantages of a trip around the world?

The World's Columbian Exposition is destined to turn out a tremendous financial failure and blunder. More than thirty millions have already been invested which must be a total loss, This makes it certain that such a fair will never be repeated. When the great white city disappears a few months hence from Jackson Park its like will never be seen on earth again and the descriptions of it by the young men and young women who visit it to-day will sound like a story from the Arabian Nights when repeated to their children and grand children in the years to come. The Smoothest of Rascals. A very fine appearing gentleman, well dressed, well informed on the subject of labor troubles and the stone yard business, and calling himself J. Whitmore, called on Mr. E. F. Johnson last Saturday morning to engage his services in an important piece of litigation in charge of Dickinson, Stevenson, and Thurber of Detroit. Having explained the arduous nature of the labor expected, he drew a check for $100 to cover expenses and then inquired concerning the Ann Arbor banks, expressing a desire to make a deposit. Mr. Johnson accordingly introduced Mr. Whitmore to Mr. Chas. E. Hiscock. Then followed a delightful conversation on the subject of labor difficulties, the stone business and the advantages of Ann Arbor as a shipping point. Finally Mr. Whitmore asked leave to deposit a check of $1,000. permission being readily granted. He later asked leave to draw a small amount against the deposit at once. Mr. Hiscock took the risk of offending the gentleman and deferred granting this permission until the check could be heard from. Mr. Whitmore then developed a tendency to leave town in our Heavenly Father is hurling his hot haste, and Mr. Hiscock's telegram

A Beautiful Wedding.

Last Thursday evening at 7 o'clock at the First M. E. church, Miss May Stevens Breakey, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Breakey, was united in marriage to Dr. Ephriam Douglass Adams, of the University of Kansas, at Lawrence, Kas.

The church was beautifully decorated and Prof. Stanley presided at the organ, rendering the following pro-

Punctually on the hour Dr. Cobern, accompanied by Rev. Mr. Adams, father of the groom, entered from the chancel. The four ushers, Messrs. Oscar Schmid, of Jackson, Charles T. Alexander, of Detroit, Lincoln McMillan, of Chicago, and John Wendell Anderson, of Detroit, advanced by the left aisle, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Bessie Stevens, cousin of the bride, and the bride leaning on the arm of her father, Dr. William F. Breakey. The groom accompanied by Mr. Jas. F. Breakey, entered from the chancel and met the bridal procession in front of the pulpit. The beautiful Episcopal wedding service was read by Dr. Cobern, Rev. Mr. Adams pronouncing the benediction.

After the ceremony the procession left the church by the north aisle, the bride and groom leading followed by Mr. Jas. Breakey and Miss Bessie Stevens, the ushers, then Dr. and Mrs.

The bride was dressed in a heavy plain white silk, cut au train and with long bridal veil, her only ornament being a Psi U pin. Miss Bessie Stevens wore white silk and carried a bunch of maiden hair fern. Mrs. Breakey wore a pale silk, trimmed with cut steel and duchess lace.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the handsome residence of the bride's parents on E. Huron-st.

Dr. and Mrs. Adams left on the late train for the west, accompanied by the best wishes of the great number of friends that they leave behind them in this city.

They will be at home in Lawrence, Kas., after Oct. 1.

An Elegant Equipment.

An almost constant procession of visitors have been to look at the handsome new furnishings of the Ann Arbor Savings Bank during the past ten days. The interior is strikingly artistic. The visitor, on entering, steps upon a finely laid tile floor, and notices at once the massive polished oak finishings, the graceful and intricate oxydized copper grill work, and the exquisitely tinted and decorated walls and ceiling. Few people in this county will need an introduction to Cashier Chas. E. Hiscock, who will be found in an office, located in true metropolitan

At the back beyond the desks of the employees are to be found, a director's room, two waiting rooms, for ladies and gentlemen, beautifully equipped, and several stalls for people using the safety deposit vaults, to retire into. Wherever the money is handled there are special devices to ensure perfect security. The teller is in a self locking cage closed at the top as well as at the sides, and so is the savings teller. But the greatest marvels are the vaults; built to embody all the latest improvements that ingenuity and experience can suggest. The walls are made of drill-proof chrome steel, twenty plates thick, set in a specially constructed brick wall. The walls are double. The inner are dynamite proof, and have a lock capable of 100,000,000 combinations. The outer are ponderous masses of three tons weight also of chrome steel, with a most ingenious mechanism for closing and opening, fitting into their frame so snugly that tissue paper will be clipped as cleanly as by scissors where the corners slip by into their felt padded grooves. Once closed nothing can open these doors until the hour at which the time lock is set, nor can that delicate mechanism be reached in any way whatever after the door is closed. Within one of these superb vaults is a magnificent safe as an additional pro. tection, and in the other is the 150 steel safety deposit boxes. These last have a double locking arrangement, The rentor cannot get his key in place in one key hole unless the banker is present to insert another key in the other keyhole. And the banker's key is useless without that of the owner of the box.

The Farmer's Club met last Saturday, June 10, at Mr. Brockway's. Though the morning looked rainy many came to attend this last session before vaca-cation. Friendly intercourse was in-dulged in until President Boyden called to order. After the usual routine of business, Miss Clara Phelps favored the Club with an excellent select reading. Mr. Merrill then led in the discussion of the question, "Are farmers' organizations beneficial? If so how may we stimulate their growth?" He answered the first part in the affirmative. If due interest were shown, and active part taken by the members, great benefits certainly accrue to them. he had been greatly helped by attending the Webster Club, a good farmer's organization. Mr. Wm. Ball said if everyone would do his part well, he should be greatly benefitted. He would develope in many ways. More than this, if all were faithful, the communi-ty at large would be greatly benefitted. Other members voiced thoughts that corroborated these statements and spoke on the enjoyment that always attended the meetings. The question box showed the following questions:

1. What is the best method of planting and tending the corn crop? 2. The best way of planting potatoes? 3. The best way to prepare ground for beans, and the quantity of seed per acre? Wm. Ball now read his able and instructive paper, containing much of interest for farmers.

From the World's Fair to Washing-

Do you contemplate going to the World's Fair? Of course you do—every one does. But you will not end your journey with a visit to the Fair. You will want to go back to the old home in New York, Ohio or Pennyslvania. You will, perhaps, want incidentally, to go to Washington, call on the President to inquire after the "plum" crop, in fact make a swing around the whole circle, take in Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, Wheel-ing, Washington, Baltimore, and New York. That would make a splendid trip if taken over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Over no other railroad route in all the east, can there be found more delightful and varied scenery than over the famous B. & O. only direct route from Chicago to Washington. Leaving Chicago on the finest and fastest trains in the world, vestibuled from end to end, lighted by the famous Pintsch gas, protected by Pullman's anti-telescoping device, and a perfect block system, you are rapidly whirled over a splendid road-bed and down through the grand old states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia, away up among the es, past hundreds of historic battle fields and places of note. You canno conceive of a grander trip on all the American continent. If you contem-plate visiting the old home in the East, you should not fail to travel by way of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. For information as to rates, time of trains, sleeping car accommodations, etc., apply to L. S. Allen, Asst. Gen. Passenger Agent, "Rockery," Chicago, Ill.

LITERARY NOTE.

Edmund Gosse will have in the June number of the Century a paper of literary criticism on Christina Rossetti, who among literary people has been much talked of for the laureateship. It is preceded by a consideration of the position of woman in the history of poetry The paper contains a portrait of Miss Rossetti by her brother Dante Gabriel; Rossetti.-Century Co, New York, New York.

Harper's Weekly for June 17th will devote five pages to Edwin Booth. The text will include an intimate account of the tragedian's life by his friend Laurence Hutton, and will be embelished by several portraits and by illustrations of the actor in his favorite roles and of his home at The Player's Club, which he founded.-Harper & Bros. New York, N. Y.

A subject of great and growing importance, that of Irrigation in the Arid States has the first place in The Popular Science Monthly for June. The article is by Charles Howard Shinn, who describes practical methods and their results, illustrating both with handsome cuts. Herbert Spencer concludes in this number his essay on The Inadequacy of "Natural Selection," which has attracted much attention from thoughtful evolutionists.-New York: D. Appleton & Co. 50 cts. a number,

An article that will attract more than ordinary attention in the June number of Harper's Magazine is a sketch of the present Empress of Austria, written by one of the ladies of her court, and accompanied by portraits of members of the reigning family. Although highly laudatory of the character and accomplishments of the famous Empress, the article reveals some curious facts with relation to manners and modes of life at the Austrian court.—Harper & Bros. New York, N. Y.

"Who are the Greatest Wealth Producers?" is the subject of a paper, by W. H. Mallock, that will appear in the June number of the North American Review. Mr. Mallock controverts the claim that the wealth of the modern world is created by the manual labor of the working classes, maintaining that by far the greater proportion of it is directly traceable to the part taken in industrial activity by the few who possess the ability of invention and management.-Published at 3 E. 14th St., New York, N. Y.

If there is one subject more than another in which American girls and women are interested during the summer months it is in lawn tennis, and no one more competent to discuss the subject can be found than Miss Mabel Esmonde Cahill, the lady champion of the United States, who contributes a valuable article on "The Art of Playing Good Tennis" to the June Ladies' Home Journal. Mr. Willard Spenser adds attractiveness to the number by an exquisite song, "A Dream of Love," the first composition which he has given to the public since his successful comic opera of "The Little Tycoon."-Curtis Pub. Co., Phila., Pa.

8100 Reward, 8100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a con-stitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list

The woman was too alarmed to inquire how it was that this stranger knew so much, or to suggest that the most sensi-ble course was for her to hasten back into the town and secure help. She could only wait.
"What shall I do? Oh, what can I do?"

"Do just as I tell you, and all will be well-walk directly onward, turn into the gate and enter the front door as you intended to do, and when once in the house inform the doctor and your young missis of their danger."

> CHAPTER XI. HE WAS A SECOND TOO LATE.

The fierce Asiatic had called into play his daggerlike knife.

If the language of Mr. Folsom Simpson in addressing Martha may seem rather more affectionate than was necessary, it must be remembered that it was made thus with a purpose. Martha, as the only servant in the household at the time of the burglary of the rajah's ruby, must be the repository of some interesting secrets which the detective was hopeful of securing from her.

Any young woman might be pardoned for shrinking from entering the spacious yard, with its gloomy shadows, after having learned that a murderous miscreant was crouching among the dense shadows. The knowledge would have made the bravest man nervous, especially when unarmed, and it required all of the officer's powers of persuasion to induce the woman to approach the building.

"Wait right here where you are for a few minutes," said Simpson when she stopped after a few paces, "until I slip around among the trees. I will be there in a twinkling, and then there is not the slightest danger. Don't you believe what I say, Martha?"

'Yes, but-yes, I will do as you say." "Spoken like the brave and sensible girl you are!" was the comment of the man, who, with a few more words of counsel, vanished in the darkness, with the purpose of keeping his part of the agreement with the young woman, who seemed to have formed a sudden and strong faith in him.

Well aware that the sepoy was some-where in the grounds, and that he would be on the watch for the return of the servant, Simpson tools extra precautions against discovery, making such a long circuit through the trees that he was sure no one could have discovered him, no matter how close a watch had been kept. It was not probable that the lurking Asiatic would molest the woman on ber return to the house. Quickly as he might move, he could not prevent an outcry on her part, which would warn the couple within of their danger. Besides it was not she, but they, against whom the prowler was seeking revenge.

Simpson, now that he was in the dense shadow again, stealthily made his way toward the front of the house until in the same advantageous situation as before.

"I promised to look out for her, and I will keep my pledge, but she does not seem to be in a hurry."

Peering through the gloom toward that

It was time that she made a move forward, and he feared her courage had given out now that the crisis was before

But Simpson was mistaken, as he per-ceived the next moment. The form was that of a man approaching from the

"I wonder whether he intends to mix in this business?" thought the officer. "If he does, he must show his colors before he takes a hand. Ah!"

Directly behind the stranger and only a few paces distant loomed the figure of Martha, walking at the same pace, so as not to fall farther to the rear. It was svident that, though he was unknown to her, she was making use of his presence as a shield against that shadowy peril of

"If that man turns into the yard, what will she think? She will fancy that he is the thug himself, but she sees now that

The individual who just then was an object of so much interest passed the gate, speedily vanishing in the darkness beyond, while Martha, after a moment's hesitation, turned into the yard and came forward between the trees along the walk to the front door.

The lamp threw enough of its rays in the direction of the house for a spectator to be able dimly to trace a person's outlines up to the moment when he stepped upon the front porch. Simpson carefully concealed himself and did not remove his eyes from the dim figure, which advanced with a hurried but regular step. Her heart must have been beating fast, but nothing in her gait showed her timidity.

Half way to the porch she started to one side and uttered an exclamation of

"How you startled me! I thought it was that man," she called in a suppressed voice, resuming her walk.

It was indeed "that man." Evidently she had seen some one in the darkness near her, but was relieved by the instant belief that it was her chivalrous friend watching over her. So she advanced serenely and doubtless would have shrieked with terror had the genuine friend approached from the darkness to

"Ah!" thought Simpson, "if she knew that the one at her elbow was the thug she would have swooned dead away, but she was really in no danger, and it is better as it is.'

The woman consumed precious little time in letting herself in the front door. Any one seeking admission at such an hour into his own home, when he fancies some awful horror is stealing upon him through the night, can imagine her feelings during the few seconds she was engaged in unlocking the entrance. She whisked inside, however, without molestation, and the key was turned and the bolt slid in place again.

"And now what next?" Simpson asked himself, working back to his former po-sition, from which he had seen the sepoy peering from the tree into the upper At the moment the detective glanced upward Miss Gilder came forward to the window. The watcher saw her elevate her hand and draw the string which raised the curtain to the top of the sash. Then she stood a minute looking out on the night, her fine figure revealed by the

The doctor remained in the background, as if occupied with some other matter. The face of the young lady intrusted with the unraveling of the being in shadow, he could not see the expression of her features, though he believed she was silently gazing into the gloom and meditating over the strange occurrences of the last few days.

"She must have heard the opening and closing of the front door, and Martha will lose no time in telling her story"-

Miss Gilder suddenly turned her head. Then she hastily drew down the curtain, so that the interior of the room was shut out from any prying eyes, no matter where located.

It was easy to read the meaning of what he saw. The returning servant had knocked on the door and was bidden to enter, Miss Gilder looking around as she did so. The moment she gained the chance she uttered something which gave warning of what was coming. The young lady whipped down the curtain, and she and Dr. Maidhoff were at that moment listening to the startling

The situation was most peculiar. Simpson had set out to learn something about the rajah's ruby, whose secret he was confident was fully known to the couple, but he found himself unexpectedly checked when on the very threshold by the presence of Wichman, engaged on similar business, though hardly with the purpose he himself had in

The question he asked himself was what the couple within the house were likely to do on learning of their danger. It was to be supposed that the physician was armed, and he would hardly leave Miss Gilder and the servant alone after the revelation of the latter. Martha's description of the individual that had warned her might throw some discredit on his words, for her listeners would not fail to identify him as the pretended patient whom Miss Gilder declared to be the detective that he really was. Simpson was inclined at the moment of leaving the servant to ask her to conceal his identity, but such a request she would have been quite sure to forget in her excitement, and it would cause distrust of his good faith. But for the presence of that dusky sepoy Simpson might have ventured upon a stealthy entrance into the dwelling in the hope of picking up some information. A risky thing to do at any time-for it was a penitentiary offenseit was doubly so now with that thug prowling among the shadows.

I termed a piece of good fortune on his I had been seen or heard of him. Consepart, but knowing the exceeding subtlety of those people he began to ask himself whether it was not probable that this man had become aware of his presence on the grounds.

"I have used all the care I could, but have shifted about so often that I may have passed near enough for him to see me. The deuce of it is I have no means of knowing where he is at this moment and am liable to stumble over him at

The detective was gradually awaking to the fact that his personal peril was greater than he had fancied hitherto. As long as he could stand at the base of a tree with a loaded revolver in his hand and with his man perched above him among the limbs it may be said that he commanded the situation.

But since that moment the other fellow had descended to earth, and he knew not where to look for him.

Sh! A soft rustling betrayed the se-poy's proximity. Simpson stooped down so as to gain a glimpse of a small spot of the faint moonlit sky beyond. As he did so he once more discerned the head and shoulders of the miscreant. He was standing motionless, as if listening or awaiting the occurrence of some expected event.

"He can't suspect my presence," re-flected the detective, "but it"— It was at this moment that, like a thunderbolt, Folsom Simpson recalled his astounding forgetfulness. From the instant he discovered the presence of the sepoy on the grounds he had never once remembered that this man had a companion, and that so far as known the two were inseparable. The sudden awakening of the officer to the fearful truth fairly took his breath for the moment. "How is it I have escaped? It is unac-countable".

A sound like the falling of a leaf caused him to rise from his crouching posture, for he knew that that dreaded second personality was at his elbow. At the same moment he reached back to draw

He was a second too late. The sepoy shot out of the gleom as if driven from a catapult, and alighting on his shoulders bore him resistlessly to the ground. Before he could make use of his weapon the fierce Asiatic had called into play his daggerlike knife, and the power to help himself no longer remained with the of-

CHAPTER XII. "THAT IS THE GENUINE RAJAH'S RUBY!"

"That is the genuine rajah's ruby!" Chief Varick, in his position at the nead of a large detective agency, with branches in the leading cities of the ountry, had many important matters to engage his attention. Immense interests were involved, and the numerous tasks which he supervised and undertook were often of a difficult and trying character.

But he had grown to feel a deep interest in the affair of the rajah's ruby, for it possessed many features unique of themselves. Max Manson and Folsom Simpson were among his most valued employees, and the fact of their being mystery was a compliment to their acumen and sagacity which would have been bestowed upon few besides them, When the day succeeding the interview between Varick and Manson passed without bringing the chief any word from Simpson, he became somewhat uneasy. That rotund detective, though genial and good natured, was full of pluck and never hesitated to face any peril. But nothing short of the certainty n his part that he was about entering upon a more dangerous task than usual could have induced him to request the chief to send Manson to his aid in the event of three days passing without a word from him.

"It's now three whole days, and not a syllable has reached me," reflected the chief in his private office, more uneasy than he would have been willing to confess. "I will not delay any longer." It was on the following morning that Manson at his home in the interior of the state received the following dispatch in cipher from his chief:

"Have heard nothing from S. Something is wrong with him. Go to Ellenville without delay, and if you need more help telegraph me. Don't fail to keep me apprised of the progress of events."

That same afternoon Varick received a dispatch from Manson notifying him of his arrival at Ellenville.

The detective was so convinced that some ill had befallen his friend that he prepared himself in the fullest possible manner for duty, convinced that only by doing so could he expect to unravel the mystery, which was growing deeper every

"Whatever has befallen Fol," was his conclusion, "Dr. Maidhoff is at the bottom of it. He knows that I am a detective and will recognize me and be placed on his guard the instant I show myself to him. Therefore he must not see Detective Max Manson again.'

This observation to himself was what might be called an explanation of his course in disguising his personal appearance to that extent that his own wife would not have recognized him had she not helped in the transformation. With the disguise it need not be said that he donned another name, the landlord of the inn at Ellenville scrutinizing him carefully and certain that he had never seen him before not until morning. Since then nothing quently the proprietor court not give any further information, except to say that the value containing his small amount of luggage was still in his room.

Manson had not forgotten a disturbng truth which he had learned some days before. The last he knew of the two East Indians they were proceeding net toward New York, but in the direction of Ellenville. It was impossible for him not to connect the two facts. This connection was rendered the more alarming when he learned from the landlord that on the evening of Simpson's lisappearance, when on the outskirts of the town, he caught sight of the two wpoys, who appeared so anxious to avoid identification that he pretended not to know them.

This discovery so impressed Manson that he was on the point of telegraphing Chief Varick to send him help or to come himself, but he decided to wait until he picked up another clew or two.

"It looks darker and darker for poor
Fol; there must have been a collision between him and those scoundrels, and they have proved too much for him. Having made way with him, they will make all haste out of the country unless they meditate another effort to get at

He wired the chief to keep a lookout for the couple, and he was assured in reply that they would be arrested on their arrival in the metropolis.

Nothing could be gained by hesita-tion, and Manson decided to beard the lion in his den; he would go straight to Dr. Maidhoff and without revealing his own identity subject him to a cross examination, which Manson was confident must result in something. It did not add to the detective's peace of mind, on calling at the physician's office, to be told that he had been gone for some time, and there was no saying when he would be back. Manson did not wait, but started on his return to the hotel to decide what his next step should be. [CONTINUED.]

One of His Experiences.

For thirty-eight years Capt. Loud followed the sea, most of that time as master of a vessel, and upon retiring from the water was appointed by the Secretary of the United States Treasury to superintend the seal fisheries in Alaska, which position he held five years. He relates one experience as follows:

"Tor several years I had been troubled with general nervousness and pain in the region of my heart. My greatest affiction was sleeple-sness; it wassamost impossible at any time to obtain rest and sleep. Having seen Dr. Miles' remedies advertised I began using Nervine. After taking a small quantity the benefit received was so great that I was positively alarmed, thinking the remedy contained opiates which would finally be injurious to me; but on being assured by the druggist that it was perfectly harmless. I continued it together with the Heart Cure. Today I can conscientiously say that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and New Heart Cure did more for me than anything I had ever taken. I had been treated by eminent physicians in New York and San Francisco without benfit. I owe my present good health to the judicious use of these most valuable remedies, and heartly recommend them to all afflicted as I was."—Capt. A. P. Loud, Hampden, Me. During the last days of the late year, I bought of Dr. Owen two of the Owen Electric Belts. One I have worn, the other a daughter has worn. In either case the remedial has been satisfactory. The rheumatism of my chest and hips I can no longer find. A limited case of varicocele, of more than thirty years standing, after two weeks' use of the Belt, has diminished to a mere lump, and a few days later could not be found. I have studied electricity in its bearings upon mental and physico mental phenomena for fifty years, and have seen its wonders in these directions, and, thus prepared, my attention was easily turned to its efficiency in controlling the nerves, muscles and motions of the living, as galvanism does those of the recent dead.

I have no wish to undervalue any appliance which carries a real electric current from a genuine battery to human nerves with a gentle, a genial force; but I do wish to do my utmost to disarm public fears as to the well-ordered Electric Belts.

A suicide occured on Washtenaw-ave Monday morning. A fine fox squirrel rushed out frantically and placed his head on the car-track just in time to have it crushed by an advancing motor. The up street cars have resumed their old trick of standing under the shadow of the Congregational church for ten or fifteen minutes while the down car comes in from the suburbs. He had been sent for to come home, and arrived to find a very sulphurous smell and a badly scared family.
