THE COUNCIL CALLS A HALT ON THE WATER COMPANY.

A Harmonious and Brief Session-A Pointed Report Couched in Vivid Phraseology-Carelessuess and Negligence-Censured-The Water is Vile -Mrs. Evans Pension Reinstated.

The meeting of the common council of last Monday evening was the most salubrious and fraternal that could be imagined, and also the briefest on record. Not the minutest vibration of a discordant note disturbed the serene placidity of these phenomenally harmonious proceedings.

The Sixth was the only ward that had both representatives present, while upon Aldermen Schairer, Martin, Snow, Ferguson, and Manly devoted double duty in the absence of their colleagues. It was 8:20 before president Watts rapped to order, and at 8:55 adjournment was taken.

Two petitions were sent in, one from M. J. Martin, asking for permission to build a barn on Beakes-st, and another from Mary-st people asking for sidewalks and to have the street graded. There was quite a delegation present from this region and they were granted permission to say why they needed these things, and they said it. The Board of Public Works was requested to report on grade, expense of filling in, etc.

Various committees reported nothing to report and then the special committee on water-works took their turn at bat. Their report was a scorcher. The following is the text.

TO THE COMMON COUNCIL:

Your committee to whom was referred your resolution directing an in-vestigation of the water supply for the city as affecting domestic consumption, beg leave to report that on the seventh day of July your committee visited the Water Company's pumping station and reservoir, and found that while the supply of water from the company's wells seemed fairly ample for domestic use the numping machinery was out of wells seemed fairly ample for domestic use,the pumping machinery was out of repair and at the tine not of sufficient strength to supply the city; we also found the company to be practically out of a supply of fuel for pumping pur-poses. The wells or supply seemed to your committee to be on the decline and not as strong as one year ago, and your committee were strongly im-pressed with the opinion that other wells or larger wells would have to be constructed in the near future or a supconstructed in the near future or a supply from some other source obtained or the company would have to discontinue the supply of water for mechanical purposes

Your committee next directed their attention to the river at the point of the company's connections and found the water wholly unfit for domestic pur-poses. It is but fair to the company to state in this connection that the com-pany make a strong denial of making use of the river for any purposes.

its managers. These catch basins and the reservoir can be said to be mudholes only. No person having a decent regard for his health would think of staying near their stinking influences, much less drinking from these seeming impurities. What will remedy this un wholesome condition your committee is at a loss in a measure to suggest. advisability of the city's purchasing the Water Company's plant, if it can be had at a reasonable sum, and if not then the propriety of the city's under-taking to build and construct a system of water works for fire protection and demention are not account or of lomestic use on its own account, or of granting a franchise for that purpose to some other responsible company, or such other method as the said special committee shall deem most advisable for a more efficient supply for fire pro-tection, and water possessed of greater purity, for domestic purposes.

Ald. Snow hastened to endorse the action of the committee. The water furnished the city at present was only fit to wash buggies, or feet.

Ald. Prettyman moved to adopt the report. He stated that he had visited the reservoir and had seen mud or slime over bottom and sides, from 1 to 11/2 inches deep. Frequently the pressure is entirely off leaving the city unprotected from fires. The city is getting a bad reputation outside on account of its poor water supply. The stuff furnished was frequently contaminated and at times so muddy that the only thing it could be used for was to put out fires;

by plastering on mud enough a fire can be put out. He had objected strongly last year to measures proposed against the water company, because the company had made many promises of reform, but those promises have not been fulfilled.

The report was adopted and a committee of five aldermen and four citizens was appointed to confer with the water company about the matters contained in the report. Ald Prettyman suggested the advisability of docking the bill of the water company to the city for fire service and that the city pay for only so many days of fire protection as it really recieves. Pres. Watts said that the last bill had been subjected to amendment by the finance committee on that basis; and Ald. Martin announced that a water guage had been put in the engine house at the expense of the water company and readings would be made. Ald.

Ferguson moved that the water company blow off their mains within the next few days under the direction of the fire department. Agreed to. Ald. Manly brought up the matter of

Mrs. Ann Evans again and moved that her pension of $5. be paid. He stated that he had investigated the matter quite completely, and was convinced that this was the best way to manage her particular case. Ald. Prettyman announced that he had had much the same experience with this case as Ald.

Manly and had been finally convinced that this was the exceptional case that proved the rule. Ald. Schairer explained the case somewhat further

Of Interest to those Contemplating Visiting the Great Columbian Exposition at Chicago, Ill.

Those of our readers who contemplate visiting the World's Fair should arrange for their hotel accommodations in advance of their going, thereby saving a great expense and annoyance in looking up a suitable and reasonable hotel after their arrival. We decided to, and have made inquiry con cerning the various hotels at Chicago as to their price, rooms and location, and after careful investigation, have decided to recommend the hotel, "The Syracuse", situated at Windsor Park, at the foot of 75th st., it being near the fair grounds, partially surrounded by a beautiful grove, fronting on the shore of Lake Michigan, which contributes its cool evening breezes to refresh the tired frame after a day's jaunt, and to make sleeping easy and delightful. "The New York State Educational Journal" endorses the hotel, "The Syr-acuse", as follows:

Some time ago we promised our readers to visit Chicago and examine the hotel accommations offered with reference to recommending advance arrangements for the summer. Im-mediately on our return from Egypt we went to Chicago and looked over the ground carefully. We have de-cided to recommend "The Syracuse," a building erected by men we know and in whom we have confidence and which seems to combine more advantages than any other.

These requisites seem to us indispensable:

(1) The hotel should be on the Lake.
 (1) The hotel should be on the Lake.
 (2) Chicago is a hot place in summer, and only the Lake breezes will make sleeping at all comfortable.
 (2) It should be reached from the Experimental the text.

(2) It should be reached from one Exposition grounds by boat. How an-noying it is to crowd into horse-cars and trains on a hot afternoon all our readers kn w. At Paris n'ne-tenths of the visitors w re carried by the little river boats river boats.

(3) The drainage should be perfect. This will be the great danger at Chicago. Hundreds of cheap buildings have been erected with cheap plumbing and cess-pool reservoir. If typhoid fever does not result, it won't be the fault of the builders. (4) There should be the quiet and the privacy of home. This is the ob-jection to the turning of school-houses into dormitories. Sight-seeing is hard work, and when the day is done the visitor should have a room of his own to wash in and to rest in. (5) The price should be reasonable We are satisfied that the lowest rate at which it will be possible to obtain rooms that are at all suitable is one dollar a day. "The Syracuse" combines all these advantages: (1) It is on the Lake, fronting the shore, 300 feet from the water, where there are pavillions for bathing, boats, fishing, etc. The few rooms fronting the Lake will be as desirable as one could wish, and all will be comfortable. water wholly unfit for domestic pur-poses. Civil Service Examination.

The regular semi-annual postal examination for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city postoffice will be held on Saturday, August 5, 1893, at 9 o'clock A. M. The age limitations are as follows: For clerk, not under 18 years; for carrier, not under 21 nor over 40. Your committee feel that the man-gers of the Water Company ought to be severely censured in these particulars:

1st. For permitting the fuel supply to become exhausted.

2nd. For their negligences in prose-cuting the repair to the pumping machinery.

3rd. For selling water in large quan-tities at this season of the year for mechanical purposes (motors, fans and elevators) to the injury of their private consumers and to the detriment of the fire protections of the city, endangering the property of all the people.

4th. For their repeated failure and refusal to draw off the water pipes and reservoir when ordered by the common council, thereby assuring cleanliness where now is filth, and constantly exposing and jeopardizing the health of all the people.

5th. For being almost criminally negligent in protecting the water and allowing it several times during the past year to become contaminated with petroleum, forming a nasty combination that our citizens were obliged to use for several days at a time.

Your committee would recommend that the water company be required to draw of and entirely clean the reser-voir, catch basins and pipes; that the reservoir and catch basins be thoroug-ly and newly paved with cement and made water tight, that such pavement be extended over the bottom as well as the sides' that a roof be constructed the sidez; that a roof le constructed over the basins and reservoir so that the water shall at all times be shaded from the sun's rays, and that the com-pany be required to proceed without delay to construct one or more large wells, say 30 foet in diameter, 60 to 70 feet deep, from which your committee feel assured that an ample supply of pure water will be obtained.

Your committee further recommend that a special committee of five members of this council, with the president, as chairman, be appointed and instruct-ed to confer and negotiate with the Water Company relative to the sug-gestions, and unless these suggestions herein made be accepted or other suitable solution or problem undertaken by the Water Company forthwith, then such special committee do consider the

Mrs. Evan's warrant was then ordered unanimously. Then they adjourned.

How The Water Company Sees it.

A. W. Hamilton, superintendent of the Ann Arbor Water Company, says that he feels that the city has served notice on him to fight. The charges in the report made last Monday evening seems to Mr. Hamilton to be about as baseless as the airy fabric of a dream. That sickeningslime which appalled the eye and stunk so in the nostril of t he council committee is merely the cleanly quicksand that comes unavoidably from the flowing wells, and makes, says Mr. Hamilton, the finest kind of bottom for a reservoir. It makes the water look a little cloudy, but dip the water in a glass and see how transcendently clear it is. There is a little iron in the water and this accounts for the discoloration in the pipes. And then that lack of fuel; the Standard Oil Company have been raising the price, so a contract was made with a company outside of the combine, and said company did not get their oil delivered on time. But there was coal there and they used that. As for the pumps, there was a piston rod broken the other day and mended again as soon as possible. That day 3,000,000 gallons of water were drawn from the reservoir.

The test of a good water supply is the health of the users, says Mr. Hamilton Why don't the board of health or the council get the water analysed if they believe it dangerous. Moreover, of the inent business man. various officers of the city government only one has paid his water rate this year. The bills will now be sent in. And upon the word, a messenger was dispatched to the livery barn of alderman Snow with a bill in one hand and the long handled wrench in the other. But the said alderman had gone out of town for several days so he escaped the threatened "wrenching" for the time being.

Dr. James C. Wood has accepted the chair of gynecology in the Cleveland Medical College and will leave for his new position in a short time. It is a great loss to the department of which Dr. Wood is a graduate and professor that he should withdraw from it.

A Wreck.

The noon south-bound passenger train on the T. & A. A. road last Friday, got itself promiscuously distributed about the Ann Arbor yards regardless of rails. The engine thrust its nose ungracefully into the dirt and arched up its spine like a perturbed cat. The station had been whistled for, and prospective passengers stood holding on to grips and parcels, looking long and anxiously for the train that didn't come. The noon north-bound passenger train finally concluded to retreat to Toledo and thus give the waiting passengers a chance to go on their southward way. One boy, named Edwards, who was using the train for a suburban passage from the North Side, was unfortunate enough to get his leg fractured by the flying end of a broken rail.

TOPEHA, Kan., July 15 .- The situation in western Kansas owing to the long-continued drought has grown so grave that a convention has been called to meet at Leoti, Wichits county, July 20 to devise ways and means to prevent the depopulation of the county. In many counties no crop of any character will be harvested and destitution is staring the people in the face. The object of the convention is to devise a plan by which the settlers may be provided with seed grain for another crop. Forage crops alone are expected, and in the majority of the counties even these will be fail ures. Cattle on the ranges are being shipped out of the country to prevent them from perishing. Terrific Hallstorm in Nebraska.

SUNDAY CLOSING WINS.

The World's Fair Will Not Be Open on the Lord's Day.

The Directors, Convinced from Sad Expe-rience That the People Do Not Want the Gates Opened, Take De-cisive Action.

SIX DAYS ONLY.

CHICAGO, July 15.—By a vote of 24 to 4 the local directory of the World's Columbian exposition has ordered the gates closed on Sundays.

Chairman Peck in a short speech introduced the Sunday-closing resolu-tions. He said that the resolutions had been drawn up and approved by Attorney Edwin Walker. The intro duction of the resolutions brought several directors to their feet and many speeches were made on the various phases of the question. Directors Adolph Nathan and Washington Porter thought that a full and fair test of the question had not been made, and they strongly favored reducing the admission for Sunday to twenty-five cents. They were overwheimed, however, by speeches in favor of shutting the gates tight. There seemed to be an almost unanimous sentiment in support of that proposition.

THE VOTE. The vote on the resolutions was as follows:

Yeas-Butler, Camp, Clowry, Chappell, Craw ford, Dixon, Ellsworth, Gage, Hutchinson, Hen-rotin, Keith, Kerfoot, Ketcham, Lefens, Law-son, McNaly, Peck, Revell, Rothschild, Scott, Walker, Waller, Winston, Young. Total, 24. Nays-Nathan, Odell, Porter. Schneider. Total, 4 CHANGE OF OPINION.

The speeches indicated a great change in the opinion of many of the directors since the Sunday opening rule was passed. Edward B. Butler, who was formerly an enthusiast for a Sunday fair, took active part Friday in the discussion to close it Sunday. Mr Butler took up the question as one involving financial failure. He was convinced that the people of the United States did not want a Sunday fair. "Gentlemen," he said, "we have made a mistake. We have gone contrary to the wishes of 75 per cent. of the exhibitors. We have miscalculated the desire of the Chicago workingmen. We have misjudged the sentiment of the American people. Let us, then, reverse our decision, close the gates of the world's fair on Sunday and honor the American day of rest."

SHOULD DO THEIR DUTY.

Arthur Dixon also took part in the discussion in favor of Sunday closing. He formerly was a zealous advocate of opening. He recounted the things which show the failure of a Sunday fair and then made an appeal to aban-don their old opinions. He said: "When a body of men discover that they have done wrong, that they have violated the will of the people, it is their duty in so far as they can to place themselves in the right. We are now convinced that the American people revere their institutions, and that the Subbath is one of them. Churches that have not been filled for ten years are now overflowing every Sun-day. A feeling that you will be inconsistent should not influence you. We should do our outs " duty."

Director-General Davis said Friday night that he had advised Sunday closing. "It has been shown that the people for whom the move was made have not visited the fair to any large extent," he said, "and by reason of the opening it has been demonstrated that their is a lack of energy among exhibitors and employes which would be removed by closing the fair for one day in the week. I believe, further, that the fair will be benefited financially in the end." LAST SUNDAY FAIR. CHICAGO, July 17.-Sunday, July 16, 70 South Main St., - Ann Arbor. was the last open Sunday at the World's Columbian exposition. It was also the day on which the entire gate receipts of the world's fair were to be devoted to the relief fund of the heroes who lost their lives in the cold-storage fire while obeying orders. Even the cause to which all visitors contributed their portion failed to bring out a large crowd. Forty-nine thousand four hundred and one persons paid to enter the exposition gates Sunday. There were 2,403 children's tickets sold. This gives the firemen's benefit fund $24,099.75. The tickets reported do not represent the total amount sold, for there were thousands of persons who took the opportunity offered by purchasing admissions to contribute to the relief fund but who did not attend the fair. When all the returns are in it is probable that $30,-000 will be added to the fund from this source. The fund, exclusive of the sale of tickets for the fair on Sunday, has reached $79,287. A good story is told of a young girl in a neighboring town who recently found a lot of letters written by her father to her mother before they were married. The daughter read them to her mother pretending they were of recent date, and substituting her own name for that of her mother's and the name of a young man well known to both of them, for her father's. The mother is very much disgusted and has forbidden her daughter to have anything to do with a young man who would write such nonsense and sickening stuff.

at Springfield, IIL

A Man Known for Years as Dan Benton

Now Declares Himself to Be William last week it has been the principal topic of conversation in nearly all circles in this city. The case is a criminal prosecution against Daniel Benton, who is under indictment for personating William Newby, a union soldier who for a period of twenty-nine years was supposed to have been killed in the battle of Shiloh and buried on the field two days later by counrades The prisoner is known as "Rickety Dan" Benton, and he is a physical wreck, and the story of this most ro-mantic case is being unfolded in the trial. "BICKETY DAN'S" HISTORY. The government, which rested on Friday last, examined forty or fifty witnesses and seemed to have made out an overwhelming case, but, the defense is now proceeding, and matters are becoming decidedly mixed. The government first has Newby dead and buried; then it takes up the boy, "Rickety Dan" Benton, at the age of say 5, 6 or 8 years, with his mother, Lydia Benton. He is traced from White county. Ill., into Tennessee, where he and his mother were taken by one Andy Wooten. There Dan grew np, drifting away occasionally, but only for short periods. He was known to the people of the neighborhood, and so was his mother Lydia. Finally he was sent to the penitentiary at Nashville for horse stealing and remained there for twelve years. All this time he was Dan Benton. He left the peni-tentiary in 1889. Afterwards he was an inmate of many poorhouses in Tennesce, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. In these he was registered as Dan Benton. There is no conflict of testimony as to these facts. They were proved abso-

ALWAYS KNOWN AS BENTON. In one of these poorhouses he seems to have become enamored of a female inmate, now known as Hannah Stewart. They left the institution together and became tramps. They did not marry, but she bore him two children. One of these was a son and was named Dan. He is "rickety" like his father. Both mother and son are here and testified for the government. The prisoner was always known to both as Daniel Benton. The moth-er visited Dan in the peniten-tiary from time to time, where he was, as e sewhere, Dan Benton. She furthermore testified that he told her that his moth w's name was Lydia Lucinda Benton He also always claimed to be two yea younger than she. As she is now 59, Dan must be, if he told her the truth, 57, which is much younger than Newby would be if alive.

It is difficult to see how all this formidable evidence of the government is to be overturned but it is being attempted. THEOBY OF THE DEFENSE. The theory of the defense is in brief that Newby was not killed and buried at Shiloh, as has been supposed by all who knew him for thirty years. He was only desperately wounded in the head and leg. He was taken by rebels and Andersonville prison, where he be-

"There is a somewhat better tone in business cause money marices are a little less strin-ont. But it cannot be said as yet that there any distinct improvement. In every direction unusual conservatism prevails, orders are relatively amail, the volume of business is restricted and a waiting policy rules. came known as "Crazy Jack." In course of time he was released, a demented, "rickety" man. He became a wanderer and drifted about the country, an inmate of the poorhouses and of the Tennessee penitentiary, just as Dan Benton. Thus he passed his time for a quarter of a century until he finally got into the White county poorhouse. Then his reason partially returned and he came to realize that he was Newby. He went out among his old neighbors, and declared himself. He recognized old friends and talked in such a manner of old times that he convinced many of them. must be so, they urged, for nobody but Newby would know things he spoke of. Some members of the Newby family, including his old wife, who had long been drawing a pension on his account, received him as genuine. Finally he himself made application for an original pension and then his troubles commenced. An investigation of his case resulted in establishing his identity to the satisfaction of the government offi-cials as "Rickety Dan" Benton and his arrest and indictment followed.

WHAT IS EXPECTED. The presumption is that the defense will reserve its strongest testimony for the close, when a brother and two sisters are expected to swear that the prisoner was their brother. His mother, 96 years old, believes him her son, and two sisters and a brother, it is said, will testify that he is certainly Newby. The prisoner, if he is really Newby, is understood to be entitled to a pension

IS IT A FIGHT.

Thereport of the council committee on the water works and water supply leaves nothing to be desired in the matter of forcible and pointed denunciation. The Water Company have announced that they regard this asa declaration of war and that if a fight is really on they intend to be in it. They further seem to insinuate that the report was intentionally mischievons, that the allegations are unfounded and the investigation not properly conducted.

It is to be hoped that this contention will result in improving Ann Arbor's water supply. It is certainly not satisfactory to the great many people. Many never drink the city water without beiling and straining, or else filtering it. They do this not because of any reports circulating about its impurity but because its color and taste is so alarming. Who has not had the frequent experience of turning the faucet to find a rich brown or reddish fluid on

If the water company expect and intend to fight they are making an unwise resolution. The people are not with them; and whether the council's report was overdrawn or not there was sufficient basis for it within the experience of every user of the water, that the council will find hearty general encouragement for a rational endeavor on their part to secure certain much areded improvements in the supply.

Acknowledge the Corn.

K. D. Perry, of Lodi, has some tall corn on his farm, ten acres of it, and if any man has taller corn let him stand up immediately and proclaim it and flag and was all ready before the eastern not wait for a six weeks growth to be added on before saying any thing. Mr. Perry's cousin, Mr. L. S. Palmerton of Fowlerville came driving across the country and saw nothing equal to said cornfield. Therefore he went out and cut a fair average stalk off just below the aerial root and brought it in to the REGISTER office. There were ten whole feet of length all there; and two prosperous looking ears of corn adorned the lower waist region with pendulous promises of prospective plenty.

When at the Fair

One of the most satisfactory places to stay while at the World's Fair is prob-ably at Mrs. S. W. Pike's Private Resi-dence, 6416 Madison Ave., Woodlawn Park, Chicago, Ill.

called the Valley Fork, and the eastern the Trestle Fork. For a full minute after she had crossed the track she did not utter another sound. She stood as one transfixed. Then all at once she sprang forward and looked again. "Yes, the trestle has slid!" she gasped, turning white as a sheet, "and the trains are both due here in the next 10 minutesthe southern express first and then the eastern-and both coming this way through the

Her knees trembled, and she shook like a

"I know! The southern express come first: I'll stop it just as soon as it gets through to this side of the tunnel, and it can run back then and warn the eastern express of the danger! But suppose the first train should be late! They are never more than five minutes apart!"

She wrung her hands again and again, striving in vain to solve the awful problem. She returned to the watchhouse and looked at the clock

"There is no more time to wested There is but one way—I must try to get through the tunnel before the first train comes. If it overtakes me while I am in there-but I can get into one of the manholes. Some thing must be done!

She heard a faint whistle far away down the Valley Fork, which strengthened her resolution to act. She rushed into the house, got out the danger flag and the next mo-ment had disappeared into the mouth of the dark, damp hole. The sudden chilliness seemed to cool her heated brain, and she grew more composed and stronger. She flew along over the ties as fast as her nimble feet would carry her, but her swiftest movement appeared hardly equal to a snail's pace now. On, on she sped into the dark-ness, with the light from the farther end streaming into her eyes. At first all was still, save the echo of her own footsteps, but when she had crossed half the distance she heard a low, ominous rumbling, whose meaning she knew only too well. It was the sound of the southern express laboring up the Valley Fork not a mile away. She still had a good stretch to pass before she could reach the mouth. Could she get there before the express? She had acarcely asked herself the question when the train leaped into the tunnel with a shriek. She had gained the wall quick as a flash. She was right opposite a manhole, and into this she squeezed herself. She had escaped by a hairbreadth, for the great iron monster had passed her with a snort like a wid beast and had puffed a huge volume of black smoke into her very face before she had had time to put her handkerchief to her mouth. With a crash like thunder the train went roaring by. Sue, half blinded and suffocated, did not wait to see whether the southern express would stop or not. She leaped out to the track again and flew on her mission to save the other train coming down the Trestle Fork. She was but a moment in getting over the remaining ground and reaching the ties of the trestle. She had taken her station, raised the red express whistled for the curve a mile be low. The one whistle was followed by a series of sharp shricks, and Sue knew the train was saved. The engineer reversed the lever, the brakemen sprang to the platforms, the air-brakes whistled, the whole train gave a mighty groan and shiver, and after a few irregular shoots came to a dead stop. The excitement over, it was found that nobody was seriously hurt, although several persons were bruised by being thrown forward, and all were terribly frightened.

Sue tried to get away, but the grateful people would not let her. Before she had a chance to escape her "Mother, and a chance to escape her mother and father came. "Mother, forgive me!" cried the, throw-ing her arms around Mrs. Uraig's neck. "I had to disobey you!" "Sue, my child," said her father, blow-ing his nose very hard, "here is your Aunt Maria. She arrived on the southern express, and she is going on to Niagars right away. You had better run home and get ready to go along with her." and Mr. Craig blew his nose very hard again. Sue made her' trip, and enjoyed it, too, despite her broken promise to her mother. But whenever the matter was referred to Aunt Maria would say, "There are great circulate as money, it is occ ally worth while to stop and think what the dollar really is.

It is the business of a monetary sys-Benn to render two very important services in the exchange of products or commodities; one is to serve as a basis for the estimate of values, and the other is to facilitate exchanges by prowiding a commodity always and everywhere desirable to serve as one term in every exchange.

Values-like everything else have to he measured in order to be compared. A measure of value like a measure of distance needs to be established by law and familiarized by use. To say that a stick measures 20 feet or a horse is worth 50 dollars is a very similar mental process of comparison. In the first place, a familiar distance one foot is compared with a longer distance and the latter found to be twenty times Tanger than the former. In the second case, the familiar value of the dollar is compared with the value of the horse, and the latter value found to be fifty itames the former.

Try to estimate distance or value in unfamiliar foreign units and see how identical the difficulties are. Use the French metre for the one, and the Malian lira for the other for example. Suppose the government of this country should call in all its money and issue a paper currency with the names and sabolian, five sabolians, ten sabolisas, etc. How much is a bushel of wheat worth in this new currency? New let the government promise to give a gold dollar for every two sabolinns and show a probability of being able to do it and we can figure values samee, we have got back to familiar Germs mit what is the dollar. In order to measure we must have a unit. The government has said that the distance Besween the brass points set in a platinum rod deposited with the secretary of The treasury shall be called a yard and lathe unit of measurement of dismaces. Similarly the government has stablished that 25.8 grains of gold ninetenths fine shall be called a dollar and is the unit of the monetary system and lience for the measurement of values. The same government has also since

"Well, Sue," said Mrs. Craig, "did you gos any mail?"

"Yes, mother, a letter from Aunt Maria, and I was just dying to learn what she says, Aunt Maria always has some plan on hand for me.'

Mrs. Craig tore open the missive. "She only wants you to be ready to go to Niagara falls with her when she arrives here on her way to New York-that's all." And Mrs. Craig folded the letter and tried to appear unconcerned.

"To Niagara falls! It's the grandest thing that ever happened." "Of course you'll let me go?" said Sue, releasing her hold and staring at her mother as if there might be, after all, a possibility of a disappointment. "Yes, Sue," said Mrs. Craig, patting her daughter fondly on the back, "you shall go, but just on one condition, and that is that you will never frighten us again as you did yesterday by going through the railroad tunnel or crossing the trestle at the end of it by yourself." "I'll promise. And I'll keep my promise, too, mother. That won't be hard."

"Very well. You know the danger. If you should be caught in there when a train is coming, I don't know what would become of you. Father and I are going over to Mrs. Huston's to stay all afternoon, and we want you to do the flagging if any may be required. There are only the two expresses before 7 o'clock, and we will be home by that time."

Mr. and Mrs. Craig went on their visit, and Sue was left by herself in charge of the tunnel watchhouse. She could see right straight through the long black hole failure.' and catch a glimpse of the distant moun-tain peaks beyond and she sat in the little door and gazed in that direction a full hour after her parents had gone, for thither lay

Niagara falls, 300 miles away. So intent were her thoughts on the promised jour-ney that she forgot everything else and failed to take note of anything around her. But after a few seconds more she seemed but after a lew seconds more she seemed to wake up and become conscious that something had happened. She sprang quickly from her chair and ran across the track. Beyond the farther mouth of the tunnel, which was cut through a small hill, the railroad branched into two lines, the one turning south into a valley, and the other immediately crossing a long trestle, visible from the watchhouse and then skirting the opposite mountain side toward the east. What We Know About War

We make no pretentions about our superior knowledge of war-What we know goes but a little way in comparison with the knowledge of those who have really "been there."

What We Know About Pianos

Is a different matter. We have advanced beyond the primer of the piano business. We have the actual experience as manufacturers, jobbers and retailers. Have visited for the purpose of better informing ourselves every prominent piano factory in New York, Baltimore, Boston and Chicago. Qur knowledge of pianos is more than theoretical.

Can You Ever Expect to "Know it All"

You employ the physician when sick, the dentist when you have defective teeth, the watchmaker to repair your watch-because of their knowledge. A certain amount of confidence too must be reposed in them. You trust to their knowledge judgement, experience and honesty.

Why Not Buy Your Piano the Same Way

We have at all times the Steinway, Mehlin, Chickering Bros., Ivers & Pond, Bear Iman & Gray, Fraumuller and Erie Piano to show you-Each selected as the best of its class.

You have full opportunity for examination and comparison and in addition the benefit of our honest opinion and advice. Is not this an advantage worth considering when buying.

LITERARY NOTE.

An important article, entitled "The Future of Presbyterianism in the United States," has been written for the July number of the North American Review by Prof. Charles A. Briggs, whose recent trial for "heresy" created so much excitement. North American Review, New York, N. Y.

"The Surplus Gains of Labor," is the title of a recent pamphlet by Professor J. B. Clark, of Amherst College, published by the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Philadelphia. It is an examination into the question whether the laborer realizes a surplus of gain from the last labor performed in a natural working day. Price 15 cents.

Harper's Weekly for last week opens with a full page drawing representing the interior of the Indian building at the Chicago Fair. There is also a page of bright illustrations showing the life at Peekskill State Camp, with the Seventh Regiment, views of the Great Ferris Wheel at the Chicago Fair, and of Lieutenant Peary's Artic steamer "Falcon;" also a fine group of portraits of Captain Anderson and his Viking crew and the other usual timely features of the Weekly. Harper and Bros., New York, N. Y.

How a marriage proposal is made and how it is worded always arouses the interest of girls, and to them the charming revelation made in "The Story of Five Proposals," which is told with delightful frankness by a Western society girl, in the July Ladies' Home Journal, will have its usual attractiveness. A.B. Wenzell, the artist, adds to the article with five of his exquisite illustrations. The editors all have something bright to say in this number, which, with its attractive summer cover, and its admirable table of contents, is worth many times its price of Ten Cents. Published by The Curtis Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, Pa.

The Review of Reviews for July very fitly calls attention to our entrance on a new age-the are of electricity-in its three absorbing articles on the newest marvels and the even more incredible thing to be expected. The great electrical exhibit at the World's Fair is described by J. R. Cravath. This paper is followed by two more under the title "Two Giants of the Electrical Age." Mr. C. D. Lanier tells of the personality and sketches the picturesque career of Thomas A. Edison. In the "Progress of the World" is summed up and discussed the important political social and economic movements of the month, and the text is enlivened with numerous portraits and other illustrations. The Review of Reviews, New York, N. Y.

The beginning of a new volume of the Atlantic with the July number is made the occasion for the opening chapter of a new and powerful novel by Charles Egbert Craddock entitled "His Vanished Star." The following is a list of some of the most interesting articles: "Passport, Police, and Post Office in Russia" by Isabel F. Hapgood; a most interesting account of a general election in England, with the lesson to be drawn from it, by Sir Edward Strachy; "Governor Morton and the Sons of Liberty" by William Dudley Foulke, an account of the famous secret political societies formed for the aid of the South during the Civil War; "Problems of Presumptive Proof" by James W. Clarke; an article by Professor Edward S. Morse, entitled "If Public Libraries, why not Public Museums." There are also the usual reviews, Comment on New Books, and The Contributors' Club. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

graph on the "Relation of the State to Education in England and America,' published by the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Philadelphia. The paper shows the differences in the systems of State education in the two countries, treating especially the following: (1) The guarantees which the State receives that its money will be properly expended by the schools; (2) the provisions for se. ondary education; (3) compulsory educ.ton; (4) religious and biblical training in the schools. Price 25 cents.

This whole question of the public schools and the religious training in it has become so prominent of late, especially in Illinois, Wisconsin, and one or two other states, that Professor Sharpless' paper will be read with much interest. As a writer on educational subjects, he occupies a leading place both at home and abroad.

at is inconceivable now it was dong but it cannot be doubted that this youngster had the art of manipulating things in a way so that at the right moment the horse lifted one foot and placed it down on the top of Mr. Simpson's excellent hat. The hoof would have gone through had not the headgear mashed out flat. Some minutes were required before the hat could be freed of the horseshoe, and during the stepping about the animal trampled it again with both hoofs. When at last the urchin handed the battered wreck to the fierce owner, he said: "Please, mister, can't you give me an extra quarter for that?" Simpson deliberately handed him a half dollar.

"It's because you did it on purpose. You deserve it. You're bound to succeed in life if you have half a chance."

By this time, it may be said, Detective Simpson was in a state of resigned desperation. During the little side performance, which really occupied but a few moments, other hackmen had become acquainted with his need and were on hand, while the original couple were quarreling more vigorously than ever. 'How soon can you get me to the Astor House" he inquired of an intelligent looking Irishman.

"And how soon, sor, do yees wish to arroive at the same" "If it is possible, I would like to make it some time within a week." "I kin do that with half a day to spare. In wid yef"

But the detective paused with his first on the step. "It's a pretty good drive, but I'll give you $10 if you do it inside of 15 minutes "Whoop! Your money is as good as airned!" said the jubilant driver, slamming the door and instantly rattling off at the highest speed in which he dared indulge. We repeat the remark we made a few minutes ago-the man who is in a furtous hurry is sure to find the most exaserating obstacles in his path.

The cab was bowling along at a lively rate when the driver was obliged th turn into a side street because of a fire. which, breaking out a short time before, had blocked all traffic on a portion of Broadway. This so gorged the bystreets that despite the Irishman's eagerness to earn the big fee he was obliged to bring his horse down to a walk and pick his way with extreme care. Once he was brought to a standstill. He resorted to the usual remedy at such times-vociferous profanity and abuse of everybody within sound of his voice, but it did not operate with its usual success.

Meanwhile Detective Simpson was sitting back in a cab and grimly gnawing his lips. Like the peppery man in somewhat similar circumstances, he felt he could not do justice to the occasion and therefore did not make the attempt. He had done the best to straighten out his ruined derby, but it cannot be said that the effort was much of a success. Within the bosom of the officer, however, a tempest was raging which was it would be hardly proper for them to come here. "Did Mr. Fairchild say nothing about any difficulty you were likely to have in securing this diamond?" Inasmuch as the discussion was concerning the rajah's ruby, it struck Simp-son as singular that Wichman should refer to it as a diamond, but the officer held his peace.

"Yes, it was that fact that caused him to hesitate, but several gentlemen assured him that a written order was all that was needed, and two or three of us volunteered to come and get it. I respect your scruples, but there is his re-You may not be familiar with quest. his handwriting, but you can compare his signature with the one in your register and decide as you think best."

The clerk had already compared the two, but he did so again. He was embarrassed as to what he ought to do. An expert in writing would have sworn that the same hand had written both, and yet Folsom Simpson knew that the signature to the letter held by the clerk wasa forgery, though a wonderfully skillful

"Well, I suppose it is all right," remarked the official after a little more pareying.

"If you have any misgivings," continued the East Indian in his broken language, "I will return to Mr. Fairchild and his friends, but it will be a great disappointment to them, and I am-sure Mr. Fairchild will be offended."

Wichman was marvelously clever in his diplomacy. He saw that he had carried his point, and it was wise to assume the position he did.

The clerk turned to the safe with the intention of handing out the valuable package. Of course he had noticed the nan standing a few paces back, but Wichman was so engaged that he did not observe that a person was behind him.

This same individual now-decides that it would not do for him to defer action any longer. "I beg your pardon, but before doing and then read the slip, on which was nastily traced the following: "This man is a scoundrel. The order which you hold in your hand is a for-gery. Don't deliver him the package." This certainly was enough to make the recipient open his eyes. He stood for a minute looking at the penciled words and then stared at the man who had written them.

The appearance of the latter was not prepossessing. His clothing was disar-ranged, and his hat especially looked as if it had been "through the mill and ground." Despite the detective's usual coolness, too, his face was flashed from his recent excitement.

"Who are you?" abruptly acted the hotel man.

"One who knows what he tells you Disregard what I have said, and you will pay heavily for the consequences."

Wichman must have recognized the officer the moment he stepped forward, and he must have understood, too, that he was trying to prevent the delivery of the package into his hands.

to interfere with a gentleman?"

I been aware that this notel permits intoxicated persons to insult guests I would go elsewhere. The knowledge certainly s worth acquiring.

Could this be the native of Hindostan, dressed so like an exquisite and talking after the manner of an educated, high bred gentleman? Folsom Simpson was almost tempted to doubt his senses, but his bedrock common sense told him there was no mistake. Observing the hesitation of the clerk, he added:

"I see you are in doubt. Under the circumstances there is but one safe course for you to take-give yourself the benefit of the doubt and hold the package until the return of Mr. Fairchild. Suppose that by doing so you offend him? The offense is not serious, and I will guarantee that he will hold no ill will against you."

"You will guarantee it," repeated the clerk, with a fine touch of sarcasm, "and yet you do not condescend to tell me who you are."

"Well, do as you please," replied Simpson, beginning to lose patience, "but if you choose to assist this forger I will see that you receive your deserts. If you wish it, I will convince you that he has been falsifying while standing here talking to you."

"Instead of boasting so much," interposed Wichman, who realized that the crisis had come, "do what you proclaim yourself able to do."

Very well. You have referred to the package as containing a diamond. I assert that there is no diamond in it. On the contrary, it holds a ruby of rare size and fabulous value. "Does the gentleman consent that that

"The sepoys or Thugs committed the burglary as they planned, and believed for a time that they had secured the real rajah's ruby, whereas that which they obtained was nothing but a piece of colored glass, intended to serve the very purpose that it did serve. They started on their way home with the supposed prize, but had not gone far when they discovered the trick that had been played on them. They returned to renew their attempt to secure it, or to be revenged on Dr. Maidhoff."

"Revenged for what?" sharply interupted Fairchild.

perturbable coolness, "and will leave it to the gentleman to decide who has won." Simpson remained dumb. This was another instance in which he felt unable to do justice to the occasion.

But a fourth party arrived on the scene. He was one much higher in authority than the clerk. As he stepped forward he glanced keenly at the disnutants in front of the desk and smiled and nodded at Simnson.

"Hello!" he called, with a laugh, "was that hat won on the last election?" "There was nothing the matter with

"Now, these East Indians happened to arrive in Ellenville on the same day that the letter reached there. Dr. Maidhoff was indignant when he was justly questioned as to why, on learning that a burglary of the Livermore homestead was impending, he did not place guards in the house instead of submitting Miss Livermore to a shock which some people believe was the cause of her death." His superior listened gravely and then nodded to Simpson to approach "How is this, Fol?" The detective made everything clear in as few words as possible.

CHAPTER XXI. "LISTEN, THEREFORE!"

Detective Simpson and his old friend conversed for some time, speaking in such low tones that not even the clerk, whose curiosity was aroused, could overhear what was said. Then some arrivals diverted the attention of the hotel man, and Simpson strolled out.

Making his way to the cigar stand he purchased a couple of perfectos and was sauntering away again when he found himself face to face with Arthur Fairchild, just returned from witnessing the "Old Homestead."

"The very gentleman I want to see!" exclaimed the officer.

The young man had walked down from Fourteenth street, and his face was aglow with health. He looked inquiringly at the detective, who added:

"I am the gentleman who sat behind you in the smoking car from Warhampton this afternoon, and if you can spare a few minutes I will be obliged for a short conversation with you."

"With pleasure," said Fairchild, leading the way to a corner, where they were beyond the reach of eavesdroppers. Then, when both cigars were in full blast, the officer told his story.

"I am Folsom Simpson, a detective in the employ of the well known — agency of this city. Something less than a fortnight ago Dr. Maidhoff of Ellenville, Conn., wrote to us asking that we send a man to that town to investigate the robbery of Miss Livermore. who was the owner of a valuable

Deputy Sheriff McCabe picked up a reputed Keeley graduate last Friday with a bad case of jag. His name is Wm.Mc Mott. The next day he saw bull dogs and a large menagerie of other animals around the jail, and did not seem much comforted when informed that the kind of animals there exhibited never really bit anyone. Friends raised money to pay his fine and to ship him home to Tecumseh. Mrs. McCabe of Detroit, who keeps a small fancy store, went to Jackson re-

Here the sheriff of Washtenaw county took them in charge and intrusted them to officers Schall and Mt-Cabe for restoration to their maternal roof-tree. When they reached Detroit, Mrs. McCabe resolved to secure her wandering heirs in an effectual manner and brought out a rope for the purpose. The smaller boy was duly secured, but the other seized his opportunity to dash frantically out at the lack door, effecting his escape.
