Special Council Meeting.

The special meeting of the council called for last Thursday night met in the council chamber at 8 P. M. and then adjourned to the court room in order that the crowd be accommodated. Having reached that place City Att'y Norris announced that after having consulted with Mr. Murray's attorney and with the Mayor he thought it best for the council to adjourn the hearing of the evidence on the question in controversy between the Mayor and Marshal until the following Tuesday night, He intimated that by adjourning until that time there was a possibility that the difficulty would very likely be adjusted, at least, it would depend upon the action of the council upon certain questions which would come up at the regular meeting of the council on the following Monday night. This unexpected turn in the proceedings seemed to be a surprise to the majority of the council and expected a sensational trial. For a while it seemed as if the advice of Mr. Norris would not be heeded and that the council would decide to go on with the case. But appearances were deceiving. City Att'y Norris knew his men, he was confident that his word was law with a majority of the council and the vote proved he was not mistaken. During the evening it had become noised about that the Mayor would withdraw the nomination of Wheeler for marshal, Murray would resign and the Mayor would nominate Patrick Collins who would promptly be confirmed at the regular meeting Monday and that then there would be no need of a special meeting or a trial. Notwithstanding the an arrangement would relieve Mr. Muray of the odium of flagrant disobedience of orders and neglect of his sworn duties. Or, on the other hand, if the charges of such neglect and disobedience were untrue, how it would relieve the Mayor of the odium of injustice in having made such charges.

Right here was mayor Thompson's chance and he made the most of it by at once withdrawing the name of Collins and renominating Wheeler. This was a thunderclap but there was no escape. Pres. Watts tried to rule that the mayor could not withdraw the nemination of Collins but that would not work. There had been not the least objection to the withdraw. not the least objection to the withdrawal of Wheeler's name. The vote stood

FOR the second time in the history of the United States more people are leaving the port of New York than are arriving at it. This is due to the return to Europe of intending American citizens who have become discouraged after a brief stay in this country and to the immigration to Europe of artisans who have been thrown out of employment here and be- ject: "The Church and Young Men' lieve they can do better during the last Sunday night. THE American Economist in a recent issue gives figures which demonstrate how widely this has been felt among the working men. The figures are compiled from 600 reports received from 47 states, and show a falling off in weekly wages from $1,509,891.35 Nov. 5, 1892, to $459,089.04 Sept. 2, 1893. The number of employees has fallen off 143,401, to 56,384, the volume of trade has diminished to 50.75 per cent. of the volume in 1892. If these six hundred reports may be taken as representative, the conclusion will be that one-half the employees were thrown out of employment. This probably would be an exmost serious. A Plurality of 100,000 Polled Against Him in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.-Isaac H. Maythe candidate on the Democratic ticket for judge of the court of appeals, against whom the independent democrats have waged war most bitter and unrelenting, has been surprisingly and onerwhelmingly defeated. In New York city he ran 35,000 behind his ticket, in Brooklyn over 18,000 and in Erie county several thousands. Almost without exception the returns from every part of the state show he was heavily scratched. The result seems to be that he has been defeated by a plurality close in the neighborhood of 100,000.

Practically complete returns indicate that the entire Republican state ticket is elected by 40,000 plurality and that the legislature will be Republican by a large majority. Governor Flower, Richard Croker and the New York Sun concede that the Republicans have swent the state. swept the state.

In New York city good order was maintained at the polls throughout the day, but serious riots are reported from other portions of the state. Josiah E, West, a prominent citizen Laingsburg, was shot by a policeman in one of these melees, and a man was knocked down and seriously injured at Long Island City. In the First ward of Buffalo over licemen and special deputies were detailed to keep order, but it is claimed the most outrageous abuses of the ballot were permitted by the inspectors of election.

Prohibitionists will probably not poll over 12,000, doubling their vote of last year, and the Populists 25,000, showing a gain of only 5,000.

Chairman Blythe of the Republican state central committee claims the election of the whole Republican ticket by upwards of 30,000. A REPUBLICAN LANDSLIDE.

Greenhalge and the Republican Ticket

Triumph in Massachusetts.
Boston, Nov. 8.—The result of the election in Massachusetts can only be described as a huge political landslide. For the first time in three years the state will have a Republican governor and his plurality is 80,000 at the least. The whole ticket is elected with him and the legislature is solidly Republican

The result is attributed by those Democrats who will talk about it to the present industrial depression, aided by the fact that Massachusetts is nominally a Republican state, as is always proven by her vote on presidential candidates, A very significant report was that from Greenfield, the birthplace of Hon. John F. Russell, the Democratic candidate, where from a Democratic plurality of 12 last year, Greenhalge got a plurality of 123. JUDGE GARY VINDICATED.

He Is Re-Elected In Chicago by a Substantial Majority.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—It is regarded as practically assured that the whole Republican judicial ticket is elected. Judge Gary, it is thought, will run about 5,000 ahead of his ticket. The great fight has been over the election of Judge Gary, who presided at the trial of the anarchists. At the time Governor Altgeld pardoned the anarchists he made a severe attack upon Gary, and the fight has been one of Gary against the state machine, with the result that Gary seems not only to have polled the full Republican strength, but to have drawn on the Democratic vote as well. In almost every precinct in the city and county he was from 5 to 10 per cent ahead of the balance of the ticket. The general result shows decisive Republican gains over the presidential election of a year

Cherokee county, which gave 1.700 majority for the Populists in 1892, and Summer county, another Populist stronghold, have been carried by the Republicans. Crowley county, in which the vote was very close in 1892, has also gone Republican. Franklin, Butler, Brown, Osage and Geary counties are all carried by Republicans. Reno and Sedgwick counties have gone Republican. Sedgwick, of which Wichita is the county seat, was carried by Populists last year. The Republican Gains In Maryland.

Baltimore, Nov. 8.—Returns from the state come in slowly. Smith, the Democratic candidate for comptroller, the only state official voted for, is elected by about 12,000 majority. The Republicans have made gains in the state, probably carrying Frederick, which has not gone Republican for eight years, and certainly Garrett. Cecil, hitherto always Democratic, is in doubt.

Everything Democratic In Virginia. RICHMOND, Nov. 8.—Revised figures of returns made up The Dispatch from two-thirds of the state show that the Democrats have carried Virginia by a majority of not less than 25,000, and that O'Ferrall runs behind his ticket several thousand votes.

Kentucky Still Soild.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 8.—Advices from the state at large indicate that the usual democratic majority in the legis-lature will be slightly increased. In western Kentucky, where the populists were strongest last year, the democrats have made gains.

Qu'et In Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—The election Tuesday closed the quietest political campaign in the state of Pennsylvania in years. The issues were principally local and but little general interest was excited. Republican gains are reported gas. from many of the counties.

EXPLAINING THE RESULT.

nose the Situation.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Secretaries Gresham, Lamont, Hoke Smith and Morton received the election returns at the White House in Private Secretary Thurber's room. A special wire delivered the bulletins. Such as were indicative of results were telephoned the president at Woodley. The members of the cabinet at the White House attributed the results to the business depression of the past several months and the statement was made that this was the worst time for the Democrats to have an election while so many peo-ple were suffering from conditions that were not political, but wholly extran-eous. Secretary Carlisle is out of the eous. city and Secretaries Herbert and Bissell received the returns at their private residences.

EIGHTEEN PERSONS PERISH.

The Steamer Frazer Destroyed by Fire on Lake Nipissing.

TORONTO, Nov. 8 .- By the burning of the steamer Frazer on Lake Nipissing, 16 persons lost their lives. The disaster occurred near Goose island and in spite of the most strenuous efforts to save life the above number perished. Lake Nipissing is situated northeast of Lake Huron in Ontario, nearly midway be-tween it and the Ottawa river, and it is supposed that the steamer was in regular service on the lake. Only the most meager particulars are obtainable.

Big Catch of Seals.

VICTOBIA, B. C. Nov. 8.—The statement of the Northern Pacific sealing catch placing the total at 120,241 is not complete. Instead of 2,748 skins, San Francisco schooners took 20,000 skins, out landed nearly all at Hakodate and Yokohoma. The exact figures are not known, but it is believed the total will be in the neighborhood of 145,000 skins.

DETROIT, Nov. 8 .- After a most exciting contest Mayor Pingree has succeeded for the third time in defeating his opponents, and is re-elected by from 4,000 to 5,000 plurality.

The result is somewhat of a surprise even to the Republicans, as the Democrats made a strong fight, and the election was believed by shrewd observers to be close. The entire republican city ticket is probably elected by pluralities ranging from a few hundred up to the figure claimed for Mayor Pingree.

With three or four precincts yet to hear from it was claimed at the city clerk's office this morning that Pingree's plurality was over 5.000.

Charles R. Forster, city clerk, received about 1,000 less majority than Pingree, who ran considerably ahead of his ticket.

W. W. Chapin, candidate for recorder, is conceded elected by several hundred votes. Frank A. Rasch is about 1,300 votes ahead of his opponent.

While the Republicans have swept the board in municipal affairs there is little doubt that James H. Stone, Republican candidate for congress to succeed the late Judge Chipman, is defeated. His opponent, Levi T. Griffin, claims the election by 2,000 majority, and his success is conceded by the Republicans.
Senator Weiss, who had charge of Stone's campaign, gave up the fight shortly after the returns began to come in showing the Republican candidate was running behind the ticket.

Mrs. Anthony Schultz was the first to respond to a call of help from Mrs. Ganley's little daughter, who by heroic efforts managed to crawl to the front door, which she succeeded in opening. A few breaths of pure air revived the little girl, who then called to the next door neighbor, who, in turn, notified Mrs. Schultz.

Mrs. Ganley was found lying upon the floor close to the front door in a semi-conscious condition. She had succeeded in crawling so far when her strength gave out and she sank exhausted. The child, it seems, came to its mother's aid when she perceived the latter's dangerous condition.

It is constantly prescribed and recommended by doctors. It is the discovery of a physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th-st, New York, the famous and successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases. He car be consulted without charge, personally or by letter.

SHETCHES OF OUR CITY.

(Continued from Page One.) tion, beginning in parts even before the opening of that struggle, the population on and near the Atlantic coast were in motion westward. Conception, taking, in the whole country, cannot overdraw the picture. For short distances families are threading the valleys, making single oxen and cows their beasts of burden for carrying both persons and goods. The incident of the Behans is only one of thousands. Then came the pack horses. The bridle-paths were thronged with them. Kentucky had more than a hundred thousand people before there was a wagon road through for the migration and the pack horse system of transportation branched out

Of the removal in wagons I have given a single instance. But it came everywhere in its time. For their migrations the people did not depend solely on the canal after this was complete; they simply regarded it as a way of reaching the markets with their products when they should have effected their settlements. Mr. Hiscock tells of seeing in the early years of the fourth decade of the century from where his house now stands, lines of covered wagons, unbroken from the point of their first appearance on top of the hill above the Lower Town, till they passed out of sight westward. This state of things spread over the west and south.

everywhere to the north and south.

The conception of the movement is, indeed, sublime. Its relation to the settlement of this place may be set forth by a reference to the great glacial action of millions of years ago, as geologists think. As this left in the bluffs on the Huron the choicest of stone for architectural use, so the westward movement of humanity has left in the same place the choicest material for intellectual building. Here I shall leave for a time the rudimentary town and the vast westward movement on the reader's mind, while I endeavor to bring within the range of his vision some important collateral matter.

The Albany was bound from Chicago to Buffalo with grain and general merchandise and the Philadelphia was bound from Buffalo to Duluth with coal and a miscellaneous cargo. Both were steel steamers. The Albany was built in Detroit in 1884, was worth $160,000, and is believed to be partially insured. The Albany was cut into about five feet by the iron prow of the Philadelphia, and Captain A. E. Huff to take the Albany in tow with the hope of getting her in shoal water.

This was soon seen to be a hopeless undertaking, and the Albany's crew were transferred to the Anchor liner. Half an hour later it was seen that the

Half an hour later it was seen that the Philadelphia, too, was doomed, and the two crews were divided between the two lifeboats, Captain McDonald and Captain Huff with most of the officers going in one, and 24 seamen going in the other.

The first lifeboat reached the shore in safety at 8 o'clock. The Point aux Barques lifesaving crew was sent out in search of the other. It was found bottom side up, and near by were 11 bodies with life preservers on. It is supposed that the remaining 13 had no life pre-servers and immediately sank. The bodies were placed on the steamer City of Concord and sent to East Tawas, where Captain Huff and the mate of the Albany have gone to identify them.

The Philadelphia was insured for $60,000 in the London Lloyds. In addition to her grain from Chicago the Albany had 600 tons of flour from Mil-waukee. The Philadelphia's cargo was 900 tons of coal and 60 tons of mer-chandise. The Albany was not in-

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Queen Elizabeth, who is known in his-England, was very fond of display, and introduced many customs in her court which were not only peculiar and showy, but pretty as well. For one thing, she was very fond of having a number of boy pages always around her, and she wished them at all times to be dressed with the greatest elegance. There was no special work for these pages to do except to carry the queen's train and run errands for her, but they were so ornamental in their beautiful suits of silk and fur that she wanted to have at least six of them always in her presence. A page to Queen Bess was dressed in a suit of light blue satin, with knee breeches and blouse waist, all of a piece. Around his shoulders he wore a coat or loak of deep royal purple with a band of royal ermine around it, and on his of royal ermine around it, and on inshead there sat very jauntily a cap of white feathers. These pages were of very good family, and when the queen wished to specially honor a lady she did so by choosing her boy to be a page.

The costume of a page to Queen Bess was so pretty that the boys and girls wish are going to little farcy dress par-who are going to little fancy dress par-ties may want to copy it for themselves to wear. They can use cheaper material than satin and velvet if they want to get the suit up hastily and for only one wearing. Silesia and silkoline and the cheap cotton prints make very good costumes for pages of the court of Queen Bess.—New York Ledger.

Tommy Heiney, a 13-year-old boy of this city, was until last night ambitious to shine in the ranks of the grand army of fakirs and had his heart set on beoming a "fire king." Last night Tommy was entertaining a number of companions by "eating fire." He dipped a a bunch of cotton into gasoline, and by olding a match two feet away he presented the appearance of breathing flames. The fact that he was achieving glory made him careless, and in responding to an encore the cotton caught fire and burned the passages in his head. The injuries are very painful, but not fatal.—Allentown (Pa.) Dispatch.

A Child's Presence of Mind.

During the inventions exhibition I appened to be standing next to the econd in command of the London fire brigade, and he pointed out to me that presence of mind was required in using all these inventions, and that it was rarely met with at fires. "One of the few cases of presence of mind that I have met with," said my informant, and the most extraordinary, was at a g hre in a girls' school. A number umped and were lost, but one little airl of 10 took off her shoes and stockngs so as to get a firm foothold, and stood on the window sill till we rescued her."-Pall Mall Gazatte.

Her Smelling Bottle.

Little Madgé was in trouble. She came crying into the house, her little apron gathered up in one hand, as if to preserve some most precious relic.

"I've b'oke my smellin bottle!" she sobbed, lifting tear wet, imploring eyes

"Your smelling bottle!" I repeated.
I didn't know you had one. Where are

She held open her apron, and what do you think lay there? The scattered petals of a rose! This was her too aged smelling bottle," and while she was using it it had fallen apart.-Youth's Companion.

The Ugly Doy. Bouncing Benny loved to fight, Aud tensing was his chief delight. He scratched the boys, and as for girls-He loved to pull their pretty curls.

At last the boys all ran away, And all the girls went off to play, Then Bouncing Benny in disgrace, Forgetting, slapped his own fat face!

Monster Earrings In Borneo In a paper read before the Royal Geographical society, London, on the highlands of Borneo, in the Indian archipelago, Charles Hose gave an account of how the native mothers stuck huge rings through their daughters' ears at the age of 8 months only, eventually increasing them to the weight of two pounds each. By the time that a girl has come to her maturity her ears, thus weighed down, reach almost to her el-bows.—Jewelers' Review.

Governor Lewelling of Kansas has appointed a woman to the police force of Topeka. The usurpation of no masculine occupation-from that of drum madry as the virgin or unmarried queen of tory as the virgin or unmarried queen or unmarried the world is a little older and wiser, it may cause surprise. Most reforms once started go with a rush that carries them beyond the point of common sense, and it is not until there have been successive reactions and advances that they quiet down, like an oscillating compass nee-dle, to point in the right direction.

A policeman's duties are very promis-cuous, and apt at times to be exceedingly disagreeable and to require brute strength and a cold heart. Since there are plenty of men to do this sort of work the world is not richer, but poorer, if women can do it too. Let the women go in for scholarship, for all that is highest and noblest and most refined in men, but let them not change their work at all rather than change to something less refined, less Christian, less womanly-in the new and broad sense of the term.

Let them indeed direct the policemen if they can do so wisely, since policemen are necessary, but let men execute the orders.—Rochester Post-Express.

The Elizabethan Ruff.

The full ruff is again upon us, and superseding the feather boa is that one made of very rich grosgrain ribbon which ties quite closely about the throat which ties quite closely about the throat and may be worn with any costume, as it is invariably black. In making such a ruff two strips of 4 inch wide ribbon are laid in double box plaits, the length to fit the throat. After they are plaited they may look a little stiff, but do not be induced to catch the plaits down, as after one or two wearings they will fall of their own accord. Long ends of ribbon are the finish, and the ends are tied in loops that almost reach the waist and in loops that almost reach the waist and ends that fall below it.

Above all things this ruche or ruff must fit the neck closely, the effect given in wearing it being just like that in those old pictures of ladies of the time of Queen Elizabeth — those ladies who would have given any money to have learned how to keep their ruffs stiff. Lace ruffs are liked for evening wear and are developed not only in the black and white, but in the coffee colored laces.

These, however, are only for evening wear and full dress occasions.—Ladies'

WILLINGRY Home Journal.

Old Laws About Women

Renewed activity on the part of the "women's rights" folks recalls what are described as "two very remarkable enactments illustrative of the helplessness of men"—one English, the other a colonial act for New Jersey people. The English one reads as follows, "Any person who shall by means of rouge, or of blanc, of perfumes, of essences, of artificial teeth of false hair, of cotton espace. ficial teeth, of false hair, of cotton espag-nol, of steel stays or hoops, of high heeled shoes or of false hips, entice any of his majesty's male subjects into mar-riage shall be prosecuted for sorcery, and the marriage shall be declared void"—this was only in 1770.

The New Jersey colonial act, which was carlier than this, differs but little from the English enactment. It provides 'that all women of whatever age, profession or rank, maid or widow, who shall impose upon or betray into matrimony any of his majesty's subjects by virtue of scents, cosmetics, washes, paint, artificial teeth, false hair or high heeled shoes shall incur the penalty now in force against witchcraft."— Newcastle-on-Tyne Chronicle.

School Directors In Kansas.

The following from the Lincoln Beacon answers the doubt as to women voting at school elections:

In one district there was but one man present. The director, a man, forgot the date. The other two members were Knives women, and both were present. With delicate gallantry the man was made chairman, and the women proceeded to do the business of the meeting, not forgetting a single thing. They voted an ample tax, and to repair the schoolhouse, and unanimously for county uniformity of textbooks, re-elected the treasurer, who is serving her fourth term, and the clerk duly prepared and sent in her returns. If the argument, "Women don't want the ballot, for they do not vote at school elections," applies, what can be said of the men, who rarely ever come out in greater numbers than just enough to transact the business?

Against Miss Davidson. Miss Davidson, an enterprising young woman of Memphis, was elected notary public by the Shelby county court and entered upon the duties of her office. She was capable and was given so much business that some other notaries became jealous of her success. They brought suit against the fair young notary, claiming that a woman was not eligible to the office. The case was first tried before Judge L. H. Estes of Memphis. He decided promptly in favor of the defendant. The plaintiffs then appealed to the supreme court, who have just handed down their opinion. Their decision is against Miss Davidson. They say it is unconstitutional for a woman to hold this office in Tennessee.—Memphis Correspondent,

Not Prepared For a Snap Shot,

A characteristic little story come from the scenes of the recent land rush. One of the heroines of the occasion was Miss Mabel Gentry of Neosho county Kan. She was the seventh to seize a claim, riding on a spirited pony. She was armed with a revolver and a lunch basket and was prepared to guard her claim as long as it was necessary. But when an enterprising newspaper correspondent asked leave to take her photograph she promptly demurred on the ground that she was "looking like a Failure to Agree on the Urgent Deficiency Bill-Hornblower Not Confirmed-Resume of the Extra Session's Work.

STATESMEN QUIT. Washington, Nov. 4 -Both branches of congress, in special session, adjourned sine die at 3 p. m., on Friday. In the senate the house bill in aid of the world's fair prize winners' exhibition in New York city was, on motion of Senator Harris (dem., Tenn.), taken up and passed. After the usual vote of thanks to the vice president and to Senator Harris, president pro tem. of the senate, an executive session was held lasting until the hour for adjournment had arrived. When the doors were reopened Senator Rausom (dem., N. C.), from the committee to wait on the president, reported that the committee senate adjourned sine die.

Washington, Nov. 7—There is now pending before the house committee on territories the bill introduced by Delegate Flynn for the admission of Oklahoma, but there are two factions interested in this question for and against Indian territory as a por-tion of the state of Oklahoma. Speaking of the rights of Oklahoma to statehood, Mr. Flynn said there is a population of 700,000 in Indian territory and Oklahoma, and in Oklahoma alone a population of 300,000, all firstclass citizens. He thinks it would be a great injustice to the people of Oklahoma to deny them admission as a state.

MARK TWAIN

The most dramatic story ever written by Americas's greatest humorist. Like several of Mark Twain's stories, it has for its scene a steamboat town on the Mississippi River forty years ago. "Pudd'nhead Wilson." a hard-headed country lawyer, the hero of the story, furnishes much of the fun that one naturally exocets to find in a work by the author of "The Innocents Abroad," but he appears in quite another light in the murder trial which forms the thrilling climax of the story. The plot introduces a novel and ingenious employment of science in the detection of crime, and the characters are well drawn and their every action is interesting. The Century will contain

BLOWN INTO ETERNITY. SANTANDER, Spain, Nov. 6.—By the explosion of a ship load of dynamite Friday night hundreds of persons were killed and half of the town destroyed. Crowds were on the quay watching the vessel burn when suddenly her dangerous cargo blew up, instantly killing the daring fire fighters and spectators, scattering parts of the burning boats all over the city and wrecking many buildings. Fire followed the explosion, which many took for an earthquake, and before it could be checked half the town was in ruins. In the excitement the number of dead was placed at 1,000, but 300 is probably nearer the correct figure. Among the dead are the governor of the province, the prefect, the chief of police and two judges. Latest Estimate of Losses

Fifty private houses on Mendos and Vigos streets were destroyed by the flames. In addition to these losses, several important public buildings and valuable archives were burned before any headway could be gained on the Official telegrams state that many bodies have been recovered from the bay of Biscay and from the ruins. The material losses chiefly consist of the great number of houses burned and which are valued at £500,000.

According to official telegrams the latest accounting shows that 300 persons were killed and 450 wounded. Driven Mad with Fright.

The effect of the explosion upon the inhabitants of Santander was bewildering. For some time after the disthey were positively stunned with dismay and then followed a panie during which 100 people are reported to have gone stark mad, while the vast majority were so paralyzed with fear and shock that they were in-capable of moving to the assistance of the dying or of making any effort to extinguish the flames, which sprung up from a mass of buildings and which be gan to spread with the most threaten-ing rapidity. The quay and promenade close to the scene of the explosion presented the most sickening sight ever witnessed. Mangled and blackened corpses were scattered here and there or were in heaps in many cases upon the wounded and dying, whose fearful shricks of agony filled the air and struck terror into the hearts of those who after a time summoned sufficient courage to venture

Blown Into the Sea.

Over 100 are said to have been precipitated into the sea by the explosion, and there beneath this hail of blood, wood and iron they met death with the crews of the unfortunate steamer and the tugboat which was about to tow her into the bay. On board the tugboat were many citizens of Santander, who were taking part in the work of rescue. All of them have disappeared

Train Wrecked by the Shock. A train from the province which was Victims Will Number 1,000.

MADRID, Nov. 7—The number of dead, missing and injured at Santander as still unknown. It is certain that the number will reach 1,000. Many persons are dying from their wounds, and several are expected to die as a result of the fright they experienced at the time of the explosion. Lopez Doriga, a naval officer, who was an eye-witness of the explosion, asserts that there were at least 1,000 cases of dynamite of thirty-five kilos each on board the

The Stars and Stripes Insulted in Honduran Waters.

For Refusing to Surrender a Passenger Seven Shots Are Sent After the Steamship Costa Rica, with

Our Minister Aboard.

OLD GLORY INSULTED. LA LIBERTAD, Honduras, Nov. 7 .-Honduras fired upon the American flag Monday morning. By the alleged orders of President Vasquez and the express command of the commissioner of the port of Amapala seven cannon shots were fired after the Pacific mail steamship Costa Rica, flying the stars and stripes, as she steamed away because she refused to surrender one of her passengers to the Honduras government. United States Minister Baker was on board the Costa Rica at

Cause of the Trouble.

The passenger about whom the trouble arose is Policarpo Bonilla, who recently led the revolution in Honduras, but was defeated by Gen. Vasquez. He then fled to Nicaragua, and with 800 of his adherents joined the army of President Sacasa, who was engaged in an attempt to quell a rebellion. Bonilla had decided to leave Nicaragua. He therefore sailed from Corinto for Guatemala on November 4 on the Costa Rica. American Minister Baker and more than 100 other persons were his fellow passengers. They arrived Sunday morning at Amapala, a port of entry of Honduras on the Pacific coast, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the commander of the Port Vilhla demanded that Capt. Dow should surrender Bonilla. Seven shots were fired after the Costa Rica, although she flew the American flag. None of the shots struck her, however, but it is feared the steamship City of Panama, of the same line, which was lying in the port, may have been injured, because the firing continued for some time after the Costa Rica was

"Therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 30th day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and praise, to be kept and observed by all the people of our land. On that day let us forego our ordinary work and employments and assemour ordinary work and employments and assemble in our usual places of worship, where we may recall all that God has done for us and where, from grateful hearts, our united tribute of praise and song may reach the Throne of Grace. Let the union of kindred and the social meeting of friends lend cheer and enjoyment to the day and let generous gifts of charity for the relief of the poor and needy prove the sincerity of our thanksgiving.

"Witness my hand and the seal of the United States I have caused to be hereto affixed.

George I and the Stage.

George I was a lover of the stage, and, as his predecessors had done, caused his 'servants" to play before him at court. In 1718 his majesty ordered the great hall of Hampton court to be converted for the time into a theater. There, under the direction of Steele, "whose political services had been poorly recompensed by granting him some theatrical privileges," seven performances were given. Among the plays were "Ham-let," "Sir Courtly Nice," "The Constant Couple," "Love For Money," "Volpone" and "Rule a Wife and Have a Wife." Among the players were Colley Cibber, Pinkethman, Johnson, Thurmond, Booth, Mills, Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Younger. In former times the fee paid by the sovereign to his servants for a play acted at Whitehall had been £20. For these plays at Hampton court, King George, sides paying the actors their ordinary day's wage and traveling expenses, gave £350, and added £200 for the managers. The players were required to act at any time upon receiving a day's notice.-Gentleman's Magazine.

The English sparrows have proved a nuisance in the cotton country, for as soon as the bolls open they pick out the cotton and carry it off, and some planters have lost, as they claim, hundreds of pounds in this way. There is one man, however, on the Mississippi that has not lost much. When he found the sparrows were committing depredations, he procured a quantity of wheat, soaked it in sweetened whisky and strewed it along the rows. The sparrows found it and there was the tipsiest lot of English sparrows ever seen on the face of this earth. They rolled about on the ground, falling on their sides and backs and kicking their heels into the air like a parcel of drunkards, all the while uttering the most comical squeaks. They did not have long to squeak, however, for the boys gathered them up and threw them into bags. The first day they gathered two bushels of drunken sparrows. Three or four days later the experiment was repeated with almost equal success, and from time to time since. They made excellent potpie, but the survivors have evidently come to regard the plantation is hoodooed, for now very few come about it .- St. Louis Exchange.

The major was a peasant's son, who had hacked and thrust his way up from the ranks by sheer hard fighting. His commanding officer was a noble of the old regime. He had hoped and reasonably expected that the previous day's engagement would give him a brigade, and so the fiasco had fallen all the more bitterly.

The heavy rain squalls moaned down the village streets. The place with its armed tenantry, slept. Only the dripping sentries were open eyed. These, taking me for an officer on ordinary rounds, saluted with silent respect. No soul interfered with me. Not even a dog barked.

The thought came: You die only to gain a wreath of craven plumes. Why not pass away from here-escape-de sert-vanish-be known no more-and yet live? No one withholds from you new life and new country. France alone of all the world, is utterly hopeless for

The thought gained. I say it freely now, for the dead, dull blackness of my prospect then showed no spot of relief. In my walkings to and fro I gradually verged nearer and nearer to the outer cordon. As an officer I knew the words for the night-sign and countersign both.

I can only recollect clearly that the thing I clung to was terribly unstable, and that on being landed by a chance eddy on a strip of shoal I lay there for fully half an hour, listening to a sentry plodding past and past through the mud 10 yards away, unable to move a limb. Then I gathered strength, and crawling, not only from caution, but through sheer helplessness, made my stealthy way still farther along the shore.

Four batteries commanded the approaches to the bridge. Two were on either flank, to deliver a converging fire; two, one above the other, were in a direct line with it, so that the causeway could be swept from end to end.

It was in the lower of these last that I found myself-by what route come I cannot say. Only then my senses seemed to return to me. I was lying in an embrasure. Overhead was the round black chase of a 60 pounder. I crawled further and looked down the line. Six more guns loomed through the night, making seven in all.

The rain was coming down in torrents, sending up spurts of mud. There were men within a dozen yards, wakeful men, and then, and not before, did it flash upon me that my farrier's hammer was a useless weapon. Fool that I was to bring it. Idiot I must have been to forget that the first clink would awaken the redoubt. My life? No, pah! I sidn't count that. But it would mean only one gun spiked effectually, if so much I drew back into the embrasure and knitted my forehead afresh. The right thought was tardy, but it came. drew off my boot. It was new and it was heavy-badinage had been poured out-by my comrades over its heaviness. The strong sewed heel would drive like a calker's mallet.

Then I got to work. The guns were loaded and primed. The locks were covered with leather aprons, I used infinite caution, crawling like a cat, crouch ing in deepest shadows, stopping, making detours, not for mere life's sake, be it understood, but because life was wanted for work yet undone.

The seven guns were put out of action, and still the night was dark, and the Austrians were ignorant behind the curtain of rain. And then on to the upper battery. Two, four, eight guns!

Three I spiked, and the night began to gray. Three more, and men were stirring. I got reckless and sprang openly at another. The air was filling with shouts and stinking powder smoke and crashes and the red flash of caunon. The French were advancing to the storm in the wet, gray dawn. Both flanking batteries, fully manned, had opened upon them, but of the guns which had direct command of the bridge only

Into the roar of artillery the wind brought up yells and oaths and bubbling And then the eagles came shrieks. through the smoke. There was no stopping that rush.

Somehow I found myself among comrades, fighting with a claw backed farrier's hammer, knowing nothing of order or reason or how these things came to pass; but heated only by an insane desire to kill and kill and kill! And then I grappled with a man who was struggling off with a flag, and wrestled with him in a crimson slough, and choked him down into it, while heavily shod feet trampled madly on both of us. And afterward there was more shouting and cheering, and mighty hand claps between my shoulder blades, and the old major gave me cognac out of a silver flask-cognac which seemed to have been sadly overwatered.

And that is all I remembered till I woke up in the afternoon from the sofa in that village inn. Reveille had sounded. We mustered under arms, and the roll was called. Many did not unswer. And then, "Stand out, Lieutenant Ramard!" said the colonel.

"You will consider yourself under arrest, sir, for desertion before the enemy Presently you will surrender your sword and report yourself at headquar-The colonel turned and exchanged Nothing appeals so strongly to a mother's affection as her daughter just budding into womanhood. Following is an instance: "Our daughter, Blanche, now it years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. She was in such a condition that we had to keep her from school and abandon her music lessons. In fact, we feared St. Vitus dance, and are positive but for an invaluable remedy she would have had that terrible affliction. We had employed physicians, but she received no benefit from them. The first of lest Aughts she weighed but 73 pounds, and although she has taken only three bottles of Nervine she now weighs 105 pounds; her nervousness and ymptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and studies with comfort and ease. She has recovered complete ase of her arm, her appetite is splendid, and no money could procure for our daughter the health Dr. Miles' Nervine has brought her.

When my brother recommended the remedy I had no faith in patent medicines, and would not listen to him, but as a last resort he sent us a bottle, we began giving it to Blanche, and the effect was almost immediate."—Mrs. R. LESSON VIII, FOURTH QUARTER, IN-TERNATIONAL SERIES, NOV. 19.

Text of the Lesson, Eph. iv, 20-32-Mem-

20. "But ye have not so learned Christ." He has just been speaking of the gentiles, who with darkened understandings, alienated from the life of God through ignorance and blindness, walk in the vanity of Detroit, and appointed Chas. Parker, V. S., of Dexter, to the office, which pays $1,400 a year. A worthy appoint—Devter News. trast to that of the worldling; we are to walk not as other gentiles, but worthy of our vocation in love as children of light, and circumspectly (chapter iv, 17, 1, and chapter v, 2, 8, 15).

21. "If so be that ye have heard Him and have been taught by Him as the truth is in Jesus." We hear Christ and are taught by nesse it, a meant of certain prominent Chinese it, a meant of the latter Him when we hear His word either directly from the Bible or through His servants, even as he said, "He that heareth you heareth Me, and he that despiseth you despiseth Me, and he that despiseth Me despiseth Him the said of Him that sent Me" (Luke x, 16). We must, however, see that all messages are accord-ing to the book, and now more than ever must watch for the Messenger (Isa. viii, 20). 22. "That ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts." Or as in Col. iii, 9, "Put off the old man with his deeds." This old man, or carnal mind or flesh or body of death, as it is variously called, is not subject to the law of God and never can be. It is said to have been cruci-

Himself into our hearts (John i, 12, 13).

13; xii, 1, 2; viii, 20).
24. "And that ye put on the new man, which after God is credited in righteousness and true holiness." It is benceforth to be "not I, but Christ, who liveth in me," for we are his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before prepared that we should walk in them, these works being wrought by "not I, but the grace of God with us" (Gal. ii, 20; Eph. ii, 10: I Cor. xv, 10). We were chosen in Him that we should be holy

(chapter i, 4). 25. "Wherefore, putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor, for we are members one of another." Our business here is the building up of the body of Christ, and this will never be accomplished by lying, but by speaking the truth in love (verses 12, 15). Some common ways of ly-ing are to say we know Him and yet not ing are to say we know Him and yet not keep His commandments, or to say we love God and yet not love our brothren (I John ii, 4; iv, 20). As to deceit and lying, read Ps. ci. 7.

26. Be ye angry and sin not; let not the sun go down upon your wrath." It must be possible, then, to be angry without committing sin, and yet in verse 21 we are to put away all anger. It is a different word put away all anger. It is a different word in the Greek in each case, but neither word seems to indicate a work of the Spirit. Sin not is plain enough and is confirmed by I John ii, 1; therefore let our daily prayer

And still the fratricidal war between Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti goes on! Not long ago THE REGISTER said that Mr. Salver had preserved in alcohol. a emphatic upon the first clause. The second is supported by Acts xx, 25, where Paul says, "I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak." Observe why we ought to labor, not simply for our own support, but to have something for the needy.

29. 'Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers." words of our mouths and meditation of our hearts are to be acceptable unto Him (Ps. xix, 14). Foolish talking and jesting are not becoming (chapter v. 4), and all idle words must be given account of (Math. xii, 36). Who is sufficient for this? He says, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

Taking effect Sunday, November 5th, trains on the T. A. A. &. N. M. R'y will can daily, except Sundays, as follows:

Sunday trains of the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption." Unbelievers may resist the Spirit (Acts vii, 51), but believers may grieve or quench (I Thess, v, 19). He is a south at 7:15 A. M., 11:30 A. M., 9:00 P.M. anything impure or deceitful must grieve Him. If He fill us (chapter v, 18), He will make us as sensitive to evil as the eye is to the least particle of dust. He is our dear Friend and abiding Comforter to show us the things of Christ and guide us unto all truth (John xvi, 13, 14). He jealously desireth us to be all for Jesus (Jas. iv, 5, mar-

31. "Let all bitterness and wrath and clamor and evil speaking be put away from you with all malice." Perhaps we are most apt to sin manifestly in the line of evil speaking. See Jas. iv, 11, with Zeoh. vii, 10; viii, 17. But bitterness in the heart is the most insidious, and the Lord searcheth our hearts and understandeth all the imaginations of our thoughts (I Chron. xxviii, 9). We can only trust Him to give us clean and pure hearts and then to keep them so, for we cannot, but He is able.

Wash, Lord, and purify my heart And make it clean in every part. And when 'tis clean, Lord, Keep it, too, For that is more than I can do.

32. "And be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you."
The love of God in Christ to us should constrain us to love others, for only thus can we prove our love to God (I John iii 16; John xv, 12). As God was manifest in Christ, so Christ should be manifest in us to the glory of God and the good of others. Since God has forgiven us our great debt we should surely forgive the little debts of others to us, for what comparison can there be be-tween the greatest wrong of others to us and our sins against God? Believing that God hath forgiven us (I John ii, 12) and that we are sealed (chapter i, 13, 14) will en-

IT LOOKS LIKE A SCHEME.

The Midwinter Fair to Be Used to Circumvent the Chinese Exclusion Acts.

The Chinese village that is to be constructed and maintained at the Midwinter fair may prove of interest to visitors from abroad, but the Chinese who are back of the enterprise did not originate ory Verses, 30-32-Golden Text, Eph. it for that purpose, but in order to get iv, 32-Commentary by the Rev. D. M. another opportunity to add several hundred coolies to the present population of this country.

The Chinese believe that the resolution passed by congress granting to the Midwinter fair the same privileges that had been granted to the Columbian exposition-namely, the entry of foreign goods free and permitting to enter the country the laborers, artists and others of foreign nations connected with the exhibits of those nations—will offer them an opportunity to land some more of their countrymen.

They have placed the matter in the hands of their attorneys, and from the nese it appears that they have received advice that coincides with their wishes in the matter. Like all the schemes that the Six Companies go into, it will be for making money, and the plan they will pursue in this instance became public at the custom house yesterday. Already the scheme has been put in operation, and negotiations have been opened with coolies in China who desire to become residents of the United States.

Little Pete, on behalf of the Six Companies and other Chinese interested, is in charge of the affair and will see that it is made a financial success.

Little Pete is the go between in all cases where money is used for the illegal landing of Chinese, and he is considered one of the shrewdest "fixers" doing business at the custom house. He has been given instructions to arrange for the importation of another gang of supposed actors, and for several weeks he has been in correspondence with those who are to assist him in China.

Letters have been forwarded to China aunouncing that all who desire to come to the United States and avoid the trouble that the exclusion acts present can do so by becoming members of the Chi nese village that is to be imported for the Midwinter fair. Under the resolution passed by congress, if it will apply in this case, the number that will be permitted to land in order to participate in the fair is not limited, and how many will be designated by Little Pete and his associates has not been made known. It is expected, however, that fully 300 will avail themselves of the excellent opportunity that will be presented, and for that privilege each one must pay $200.—San Francisco Examiner.

Tired and hungry, a traveler whom we may call Mr. Smith entered a village inn and ordered a roast chicken. He sat down by the fire and took great comfort in watching the fowl roasting on the spit and in thinking how fine the flavor would be. It was nearly done when a strange looking individual entered the kitchen. His costume was eccentric, but it was undoubtedly that of a great personage. To the innkeeper he said with an impatient, and, as it seemed to hungry Mr. Smith, an insufferably haughty air, "Well, William, will that chicken be roasted soon?"

"Sir," said Mr. Smith sternly, "that chicken is mine! I ordered it before you."

"What is that to me?" cried the personage harshly.

"What is that to you?" cried Mr. Smith, faint with hunger and just indignation. Then the intruder spoke again and more gently. He said: "You see, sir, I want the turnspit chain to complete my costume. I am going to represent the Black Prince in an entertainment at the town hall this evening.'-Youth's Companion.

WHEN FROST'S IN AIR

AND LEAVES ARE GOLDEN, SKIES ARE FAIR, AND HAZE IS OVER ALL.

Then Gather In Baskets the Hazelnut, the Chestnut and the Hickory Nut-The Pecan, Too, Remember, and the Walnut, and the Butternut.

When crimson and scarlet and gold have driven the green from the trees, when the grass is browning, when a purple have lingers lovingly over the prairies and among the hills, when the yellow sunlight is shot with cardinal rays, when in the early morning the air is sharp and white frost is on the ground, then it is Indian summer and the time for gathering nuts.

Whether it is the splendid colors in which nature chooses to array herself or the peculiar qualities of the Indian summer atmosphere, I do not know, but something works a most singular spell among the boys of rural neighborhoods

THEY ALL WORKED LIKE TROJANS. at about the time that nuts are ready to be gathered. Nor is this influence always observable alone among the boys. It is quite likely, indeed, to extend to the younger men and women, and I have known staid and sober citizens to yield to its subtle power. Its outward signs are very diverse among different classes, but they are quite unmistakable, once you have them explained to you.

The boy who has fallen under this influence is apt to complain of all the symptoms of pronounced bodily illness. Sometimes he is feverish, at other times he seems to have a cold, again he is tortured by a terrible headache, and yet again he speaks of a faintness so pronounced that it does seem to him quite out of the question to do any work, like husking corn, or picking stone, or hauling pumpkins, or digging potatoes. That the boy sometimes actually undergoes severe suffering I can testify, for I have myself been under this curious spell That parents and employers are apt to be unsympathetic I can also affirm with great positiveness. It is sometimes quite impossible to convince these hard heart-ed people that anything is really amiss.

Once they are persuaded the symptoms are genuine, a phenomenal change is pretty sure to come over the boy. I am quite intimately acquainted with a youngster who was put to bed with brown paper and vinegar bound on his brow by his mother to relieve a splitting headache. After she had done all she could to alleviate his agonies she re sumed her regular daily occupations. No sooner had she left the room than the boy opened his eyes, which he had been obliged to close on account of the pain, tore off the brown paper, got into his clothes, bolted out of his bedroom "lean to," and, jumping to the ground, running the risk of being seen, to Deanuts and butternuts in that grove, and a number of boys who had agreed to loot the trees were there shead of this boy and hard at work when he arrived. They suspended operations upon his appearance to shout in concert, "Say, Jimmy, nowje git away?"

When he had told his story, they all went at it like Trojans again, and, although five minutes before Jimmy's been altogether too weak to hitch up the gray horse and take a grist to mill, he now had no hesitancy in taking the hard-biggest member of the party, who whipped the trees with a long pole, was ordered to remove his coat and take some essence of hickory switch, he revolted, and a pitched battle took place between him and his father. The old gentleman won, but the victory was dearly bought, and Israel told me last week that he was never afterward asked by his father to "take off his coat." The boys who "burred" the chestnuts—two brothers-were considered sufficiently punished by their mother when she ex-amined their fingers, and they alone of the entire party were not the recipients of special remedial treatment because of the malady from which all were suffer-

Young men and women of from say 18 to 22 are somewhat differently af-

These go out in couples in parties to the woods the same as the small boys in search of nuts, but they do not work as hard as the youngsters. They are inclined to indulge in light and airy persiflage. There is apparently much curiosity on the part of each young man regarding the color of the eyes of the young woman with whom he is walking, and sometimes the girl has been known to fully reciprocate this spirit of inquiry. At other times farmers' daughters, who ordinarily think nothing of getting over a five or six rail fence without help, have been known to require aid in climbing a three foot paling. Young men some-times become suddenly aware of the beauty of the foliage of the fall, and take home great bundles of autumn leaves for pressing between the covers of the illustrated family edition of Shakespeare or the "Complete Atlas of the World," bought a year or two before from a subscription book agent and used solely as a receptacle for dried leaves.

I have not yet spoken of the curious effect upon the mind at this time of the year by which thorough comprehension of the meaning of the words "mine" and "thine" seems to be blotted out, because this peculiarity is entirely secondary in the cases of boys and "the young folks" to the other symptoms I have described. In these classes, too, this temporary dullness of perception is regarded with a very considerable degree of allowance as a prerogative, so to speak, of youth. The "young folks" indeed are sometimes so completely taken up with one another that their obliviousness to the meaning of "meum" and "tuum" brings about but slight degree of spoliation of nut trees. But when older persons are stricken there is less allowance, because the moral obliquity of the season becomes in them for the time the most pronounced personal characteristic.

I have known a staid and solid member of the community, a man who always went to church twice and some-

"CHESTNUTS! FRESH ROASTED CHESTNUTS!" times three times a Sunday, to drive seven miles along a bad road in th window, climbed along the roof of the of the night and work four hours by the light of the moon in an attempt to secure dodged out of sight and made tracks in possession of two bushels of walnuts, as near a beeline as he could, without which he might have bought for less money than it cost to repair the damage con Allen's grove over on the far side of | made to his trousers by a dog that be Lint hill. There were chestnut trees longed to the owner of the tree from and hickory nuts and beechnuts and wal- which the nuts were shaken by the solid citizen. The aforesaid owner of the tree and dog was greatly grieved because his brute had wrecked the aforesaid garments, as he stated with emphasis at the village store the next morning, but he was "right glad that the pup had a chance fer practice." He sought to make substantial restitution to the staid citizen by sending to him the nuts which had been left behind in the hurry of escaping mother had left him in his room he had from the dog, identifying the man by means of the fractional part of the trou-sers' pattern left in the dog's mouth. But the nuts and the torn piece of cloth were sent back, together with a fine show of indignation, and the two men have not held verbal communications since.

Many mental and physical disorders of a seasonable nature are inclined to be also local, but the eccentricities that come with the nutting time seem to be confined to no particular part of the country, nor to the gatherers of any particular sort of nut. Chestnuts, which do not grow west of the Mississippi river; hickory nuts, common everywhere east of the Rocky mountains; walnuts, the delight of every one of good sense; butternuts, that, like walnuts, are found in most parts of the country; pecans, which grow in the river bottoms of the west and in greatest quantities in Texas: hazelnuts, that, like pecans, grow on bushes—all seem to radiate the same malign influence. To see them hanging ripe for gathering is to be tempted to But it should not be understood that take them regardless of ownership. all the nuts consumed nowadays are "hooked" before being put upon the market. The demand of the great cities for nuts is rapidly making a regular industry out of the raising and marketing thereof, and when this has been accounplished the romance of harvesting nuts beechibus," he took his medicine without and the spell they cast over mankind will disappear altogether. This much Most of the other boys, so they told to be protested against condition is likehim later, were that night treated to doses somewhat similar to that administered to Jimmy. GENTLEMEN:—We did not get the Cook Stove Dryer until the drying season was nearly over.

It is a gem to any one who wishes to dry all kinds of small fruits, and also all kinds of fruits on a small scale. It is marvelous the rapidity with which it prepares green fruit for the sack. No one can describe its merits unless they try one. It is worth the price asked for it for oorn alone. Yours truly,

The soaking rain is pouring down— How it would fill your cup With bitterness if some day it Should start to pouring up!

AN AWFUL IMPOSSIBILITY.

- Umbrellas then would be no use, And men in rubber boots
 Would have to go, while all the girls
 Would put on bathing suits.
- You'd have a fountain on your lawn Beside each blade of grass.

 To keep your cellar warm and dry
 You'd need a floor of glass.
- If you were camping in a tent,
 You'd have to sleep on top,
 And all night you'd be praying that The cursed rain might stop
- In fact, great inconveniences Should cease to gravitate.
- So let us have there'll be no change,
 At least in Jur town,
 And that instea pouring up
 The rain will still pour down.

THE CABECILLA.

The good father was finishing his mass when they brought him the prisoners. It was a wild spot among the Arichulegui mountains. A fallen rock in which a fig tree had plunged its twisted trunk formed a sort of altar, covered in guise of a cloth with a silver fringed Carlist standard. Two cracked water coolers took the place of vases, and when the sacristan Miguel, who was assisting the priest at the mass, arose in order to change the position of the holy books, the cartridges were heard jingling in his cartridge box. All around the soldiers of Carlos were silently ranged, their guns slung across their backs and one knee on the ground upon the white

The bright sun was concentrating its dazzling heat in this burning and sonorous rocky hollow, where the flight of a blackbird alone, from time to time, disturbed the psalmody of the priest and the servant. Higher up on the jagged peak sentinels were standing, forming motionless silhouettes against the sky.

What a singular sight it was-this priestly commander officiating in the midst of his soldiers! And how plainly the double existence of the Cabecilla showed itself upon his countenancethe ecstatic air, the hard features, further accentuated by the bronzed complexion of the soldier in the field, and ascetism without pallor, in which was lacking the shadow of the cloister; small black, very brilliant eyes, the forehead traversed by enormous veins which seemed to bind the thought as with ropes, to fix it in an inextricable obstin-

Every time he turned toward the spectators with open arms to read the Dominus Vobiscum, one saw the uniform beneath the stole, and the butt of a pistol, the haft of a Catalonian knife uplifting the rumpled surplice. "What is he going to do with us?" the prisoners asked themselves in terror, and while awaiting the end of the mass they recalled all the acts of ferocity which had been related of the Cabecilla and which had won him a special renown in the royalist army.

By a miracle that morning the father was in a clement mood. The mass in the open air, his success of the previous day, and also the cheerfulness of Easter, yet felt by this strange priest, cast upon his face a ray of joy and kindness. As soon as the service was over, while the saeristan cleared off the altar, fastening up the sacred vases in a huge box, which was borne on the back of a mule in the rear of the expedition, the cure advanced toward the prisoners. They were a dozen of republican carbineers, exkausted by a day of battle and a night of anguish in the straw of the sheepfold, where they had been penned up after the action. Yellow with fear, wan with hunger, thirst and fatigue, they clustered together like a flock of sheep in the courtyard of an abattoir.

Their uniforms full of hay, their belts in disorder, pushed up in the flight and in sleep, the dust which wholly covered them from the tufts of their caps to the points of their yellow shoes, all contributed well to give them that sinister look of the vanguished in which mordiscouragement is betrayed by physical

The Cabecilla glanced at them for an instant with a little laugh of triumph. He was not sorry to see the soldiers of the republic humble, wan and ragged amid well fed, well equipped Carlists, Navarre and Basque mountaineers as brown and hard as carob beans.

'Viva Dios! my children!" said he to them with a good natured air. "The republic nourishes her defenders very ill. Why, you are all as thin as the wolves of the Pyrenees, when the mountains are covered with snow and they come into the plain to sniff the odor of the table by the lights which shine under the doors of the houses. One is treated otherwise in the service of the good cause. Would you like to make a trial of it, hermanos? Cast off those infamous caps and put on the white beret. As truly as this is the holy day of Easter, to those who will shout, 'Long live the king!' I will give their lives and the same campaign food I give my other soldiers!"

Before the good father had finished all the caps were in the air, and shouts of "Long live King Carlos!" "Long live the Cabecilla!" resounded on the mountain. Poor devils! They had been in such great fear of death, and so tempting were all those good victuals which they smelled close to them, about to be broiled in the shelter of rocks before the bivouac fires, pink and faint in the bright sunlight, I believe that never was the pretender acclaimed with such good will.

Give them something to eat at once,' said the cure, laughing. "When wolves yelp with that strength, it's because they have sharp teeth!" The carbineers went off. But one among them, the youngest, remained standing in front of the chief in a proud and resolved attitude, which contrasted with his juvenile features and the fine down, scarcely colored, enveloping his cheeks with a blond powder. His capote, which was too large for him, was wrinkled at the back and on the arms, was turned up at the sleeves over two slight wrists, and by its fullness made him look still younger and more slender. There was excitement in his long, brilliant eyes—Arab eyes, intensified by Spanish flame. And this fixed flame annoyed the Cabecilla.

"What do you want?" he asked of him. "Nothing. I am waiting for you to decide on my fate." "Your fate will be that of the others.

I named no one. The pardon was for "The others are traitors and cowards!

I alone did not shout anything!" The Cabecilla gave a start and looked him full in the face. "What's your name?"

- "Tonio Vidal."
- "Whence come you?" "From Puycerda."
- "What age?" "Seventeen."

"The republic, then, has no more men, since she is reduced to enrolling chil-

"I was not enrolled, padre. I am a volunteer.

"You know, fellow, that I have more than one means of making you shout

'Long live the king!' "

The youth assumed a superb look. "I defy you to do so!" retorted he. "So you would rather die?"

"A hundred times!"

"Very well, you shall die!" Then the cure made a sign, and the execution platoon came and ranged itself around the condemned, who did not

This sublime courage touched the chief with pity. He demanded:

"Have you nothing to ask of me first? Don't you want something to eat? Don't you want something to drink?" "No," answered the youth; "but I am a good Catholic, and I don't want to go before God without confession." The Cabecilla still wore his surplice and his stole. "Kneel," said he, seating himself upon a rock, and the soldiers having withdrawn a short distance, the condemned began in a low voice: "Bless me, my father, because I have sinned!" But in the midst of the confession a terrible fusillade burst forth at the entrance of the defile.

"To arms!" cried the sentinels. The Cabecilla gave a bound, issued his orders, distributed the poets and scattered his soldiers. He himself had seized a carbine without taking the time to remove his surplice, when, happening to turn around, he perceived the youth still on his knees. "What are you doing there?" he thundered.

"I am awaiting absolution," was the reply. "That's true," said the priest. "I had forgotten you.

Gravely he raised his hand and blessed that bowed young head. Then, before going away, after glancing around him for the platoon of execution, dispersed in the disorder of the attack, he drew off a step, took aim at his penitont and shot him.—Alphonse Daudet.

Facing Certain Death.

With his foot caught and firmly held in a frog on the Reading railroad track at West Falls, John Duffy met death in fearful form. Duffy was employed as a brakeman by the Reading company, and ran ahead of his train to open a switch. That duty performed, he signaled his engineer to bring on the train.

His signal was observed, and as the train came toward him Duffy found that his foot was caught firmly in a frog. He shouted for help and made frantic efforts to release himself, but in vain. The noise of the puffing engine drowned his cries, and when the engineer saw the struggling man in the full glare of the headlight it was too late to save his life.

Swiftly the great engine bore down on the frantic prisoner, and though the the lever was reversed and the brake put down hard the locomotive struck Duffy and he was literally cut in two. Death was instantaneous, but the expression on the dead face showed plainly the terrible agony the man had endured for a few seconds.-Philadelphia Record.

A Heating Scheme.

A plan of heating mills has been in troduced by which heated air is delivered from a large fan into flues in the walls, registers from each flue delivering the air into the different rooms, this air being heated by the waste gases from the boiler. The products of combustion pass from the boilers through economizers for heating the feed water, next through a regenerator for reheating the steam exhausted from the high pressure cylinder and on its way to the low pressure cylinder, and then passes through air pipes, where it heats the cold air for heating the buildings, then passes to the chimney. If heated air is not wanted, but only cool air for ventilation, the gases from the boiler are turned by a damper into the chimney without entering the heater, and if the gases are not sufficient to heat the air as desired additional heat is supplied by radiators of steam in this heater. The temperature of the air is raised about 50 degrees by its contact with the hot gases.—New York Sun.

Reading by Candle Light. "I must inveigh," says an oculist 'against the candle as a night reading light. It is quite a custom, I find, for sleepless folks to keep a candle at their bedside and rely upon it for light during wakeful hours that are passed in reading. As the flame flickers with the slightest current of air, the light is uncertain and waving and most trying to the eyes. A small reading lamp takes a few seconds longer to light, but it is much to be preferred."

Stage Fright.

"Did you ever have stage fright?" asked the interviewer.

"Once." "When was that?"

"When I met some road agents while traveling in the Rocky mountains."-Washington Star.

THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON. Ais Various Robes, His Chains and Mace

and Swords of State. The fountain of municipal honor in England undoubtedly springs from the Guildhall, London, which justly claims to be accounted the most ancient of our municipal halls, seeing that the lord mayors of the last eight centuries are, with justice, assumed to have had prototypes in the Roman prefect and the Saxon fortreye or portgrave,

For a considerable number of years the robes of the lord mayor, the court of aldermen and the common councilors have been settled with a precision that none save the most reckless of innovators would presume to disturb. The lord mayor himself has his "gold" robe for the occasion of the annual Guildhall banquet and for the times when he proceeds in state either to the new law courts or to the houses of parliament. The aldermen have their scarlet gowns, the sheriffs their distinctive and very handsome robes and chains, while the common councilors rejoice in gowns called "mazarines," it being generally understood that mazarine is a term for a particular dark blue color, although, according to some lexicographers, mazarine also means a drinking vessel and an old way of dressing fowls.

Then, again, when the sovereign comes into the city the lord mayor is bound to don a robe of crimson or purple velvet trimmed with ermine. At the time of this investiture he wears a massive gold crown and the imperial arms, is carried before the mayor by the authority of the charter of Edward III. While the city possesses no loss than four swords, one called the "Pearl," presented by Queen Bess when she opened the first royal exchange, and so called from its being richly set with pearls. This sword precedes the chief magistrate on all occasions of rejoicing and festivity. The sword of state is carried before the lord mayor as an emblem of his sovereignty within the city proper. The "black" sword is used on fast days in Lent and at the death of any member of the royal family, while the fourth sword is that placed close to the lord mayor's chair at

Dr. Dio Lewis, the eminent Boston my acquaintances have used it with physician, in a magazine article says: "A radical error underlies nearly all medical treatment of catarrh. It is not a disease of the man's nose; it is a disease of the man, showing itself in the nose—a Local exhibition of Constitutional trouble." Therefore, he argues, the use of snuff and other local appliances it wrong, and while they seem to give temportry relief, they really do more harm than good. Other leading auth-orities agree with Dr. Lewis. Hence the only proper method of curing catarrh is by taking a constitutionel remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, reaching every part of the body through the blood, does eliminate all impuritties and makes the whole man healhier. It removes the cause of the trouble and restores the diseased membrane to pro-per condition. That this is the practi-cal result is proven by thousands of people who have been cured of catarrh by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Philosophy of Lamination.

One of the most interesting contribu-tions to practical science has been made by Professor Tyndall in respect to cleavage, or lamination, his researches proving that any material, no matter how plastic or how homogeneous it may be, has within it the condition or the development of cleavage, and that the only external condition necessary to produce lamination is a sufficient degree of pressure exerted in one direction upon the mass. The resulting planes of cleavage will be at right angles with the direction in which the pressure is applied. The philosophy of this effect, as explained, lies in the fact that, as relates to the cohesion of the particles, no substance is strictly homogeneous-that is, the particles, granules or molecules of substances do not possess cohecive power equally in all directions; consequently, when pressure is applied to them, they slide over each other-the sliding surfaces being those of least cohesive power—and move toward a point of less pressure. In the case wherein pressure is applied in one direction only, the sliding will be in a direction at right angles with the direction of the pressure, and thus plates, laminæ or strata, are generated in the mass, the limiting faces of these layers having less cohesion than their interior parts.

The Track of Progress.

In all the scientific advancement which has been made there is nothing which has attracted more attention and certainly nothing which is of more vital consequence to all than that which has been made in the treatment of disease. There are thousands of sick persons and invalids all over the country who have, until recently, been unable to avail themselves of the most scientimecical aid.

Through the thoughtfulness and kindness of that great benefactor of mankind, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York, all those who are suffering from any form of disease may avail themselves of his great system of treating and curing disease all over the land through letter correspondence. People can consult him by letter absolutely free of charge. Dr. Greene is the most successful specialist in curing all nervous and chronic diseases; he is the discoverer of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. He gives blood and nerve remedy. He gives most careful and explicit attention to all letters received by him and writes the patient a full description of the case. The Doctor uses nothing but harmless vegetable remedies and has had wonderful success in curing diseases through letter correspondence. Send for one of his symptom blanks and he will write you a full description of your disease and give you advice in re-gard to its cure, free of charge.

False Ideas of the Arabian Horse. Colonel Dodge brushes away many cherished illusions concerning the Arabian horse in a magazine article on the subject. He asserts that, while the exceptional Arabian is a fine fellow, he does not think that the best Arabian-aside from a certain attractiveness-is nearly as good as the best hunter, the best trotter, the best racer or the best saddle horse of England or America. "And I am quite sure," adds this accomplished horseman, "that I would stake my money on 100 bronchos of the American plains against 100 Arabians of the Syrian desert on a pull of 100 or 200 miles under conditions fair to each." The sting of the tarantula (a name derived from Taranto, a town in Italy), the most venomous of spiders, was popularly supposed to produce a disease called "tarantism," which could be cured only by music or dancing, and the dance which cured it was called "tarantella," You can see the peasants dance the tarantells now, but without waiting for spider bites.—St. Nicholas.
