

MRS. FILMORE WINS.

JUDGE KINNE DECIDES IN HER FAVOR.

The Holding of Stock in a Brewery does not Conflict with the By-Laws of the Great Tent of K. O. T. M. Judge Kinne's Decision in Full.

The following is the text of Judge Kinne's opinion in the well known case of Mrs. A. H. Fillmore against the Maccabees:

In March, 1885, Ariel H. Fillmore, the husband of the complainant, became a member of the Knights of the Maccabees of the State of Michigan. In September, 1892, the Great Camp of the K. of M. adopted the following rule or by-law:

"A member who shall hereafter engage either as principal or servant in the manufacture or sale of spirituous or malt liquors as a beverage, shall thereby forfeit his membership in the order, and all rights and benefits thereof, and no money shall be accepted from him by any officer of the Tent for dues and assessments. No trial shall be necessary in such cases where the fact is admitted."

In January, 1893, Mr. Fillmore became the owner of $5,000 of stock in the Northern Brewery, a corporation organized under the laws of the state and engaged in the manufacture of lager beer at Ann Arbor.

In June, 1893, Mr. Fillmore died, leaving the complainant, his widow, and the beneficiary named in the endowment certificate.

In February, 1893, the commander of Arbor Tent duly notified the Great Commander of said order of the ownership of said stock by said Fillmore, and requested a ruling as to the effect thereof. The Great Commander officially determined that said Fillmore "had violated the rules of the order and had forfeited his membership."

Thereupon Arbor Tent took action in the matter and the defendants declined thereafter to recognize said Fillmore as a member of said order.

In July, 1893, at the request of Mrs. Fillmore, the treasurer of Arbor Tent wrote to the Great Record Keeper asking for blank proofs of death.

He replied that there was no necessity for making proof of death, that inasmuch as Mr. Fillmore had engaged in a prohibited business, the claim had no value.

Thereupon the bill in this case was filed. There are several important questions presented by the record in this case. Some of them are not free from doubt, but it is important to all parties that these questions shall be finally adjudicated, and I therefore state my conclusions fully.

At the threshold, we are met with this problem: Did the purchase and holding of the brewery stock "ipso facto" violate the by-law quoted?

The complainant says, No. The defendant says, Yes. The objects of the society are declared to be "to unite fraternally all male persons of sound bodily health and good moral character who are socially acceptable, to give moral and material aid, to educate all its members, socially, morally and intellectually; to relieve the sick and distressed, and to establish a benefit fund."

Section 86, in declaring the eligibility of proposed members admits all males of good moral character, between the ages of 18 and 51, excepting engineers, firemen, conductors, etc., in the employ of railroads, including other certain classes whose occupation is hazardous and excepting those addicted to the intemperate use of intoxicating liquors or engaged either as principal, agent or servant in the sale of spirituous or malt liquors as a beverage.

It is clear that these provisions address themselves solely to two propositions. First, the personal qualities of the proposed members, and secondly, to the hazard and danger risks of their occupations.

They suggest no antagonism against any industry or business as such. It not infrequently occurs that parties in this state who are about to embark in some business enterprise instead of creating a copartnership form a corporation. The stock is usually confined to those directly interested and the stockholders are all actually engaged in the business as agents, workmen, officers, managers, salesmen or otherwise. It is not necessary to determine the effect of such a condition. It is enough to say that no such state of facts is presented by this record.

Mr. Fillmore appears as a mere holder of stock. He was neither agent or officer of the Brewing Company. He does not appear to have ever entered upon the premises of the company. It does not appear that he possessed the slightest knowledge of the affairs of the corporation, or that they ever received one moment of his attention.

Under these circumstances can it be

STREET CARS BURNED.

Fire broke out in the car shop of the Ann Arbor Street Railway Co. at 12:45 this morning and consumed the entire building, together with all the cars but one, which the company owned. The building burned like a tinder box, giving no opportunity to extinguish the flames. The origin of the fire, the loss entailed, or the amount of insurance, cannot be ascertained at the time of going to press.

Democracy.

We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the democratic party that the federal government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue only.—Democratic platform, 1892.

We, the people of the State of South Carolina, in convention assembled, do declare and ordain that the several acts and parts of acts of the congress of the United States, purporting to be laws for the imposing of duties and imports on the importation of foreign commodities, are unauthorized by the constitution of the United States and violate the true meaning and intent thereof, and are null, void, and no law.

It will be seen that the democratic nullifiers of 1832, and the democratic nullifiers of 1892, take the same ground, entertain the same opinion.

General Jackson drove the democratic nullifiers from their ramparts, still democrats speak of Jackson as a democrat.

Thomas Jefferson said: "Protect the manufacturers adapted to our circumstances. * * * The general inquiry now is, shall we make our own comforts, or go without them at the will of a foreign nation? He, therefore, who is now against domestic manufacturers must be for reducing us either to a dependency upon that nation or to be clothed in skins, and live like wild beasts in caves or dens. I am proud to say that I am not one of these."

Still democrats speak of Jefferson as a democrat.

Agricultural Experiment Station Bulletin.

There has just been issued by the above named station an interesting Bulletin, or rather two bulletins combined and numbered 101 and 102. The first consists of four articles as follows: 1. Composition of Wheat and Straw; 2. Composition of Certain Forage Plants; 3. Adulteration of Certain Ground Feed; 4. Mineral Residues in Certain Sprayed Fruits. The second, or Bulletin No. 102 is an important treatise upon "Insects Injurious to Celery." The Horticultural Department of the same station has also issued a bulletin entitled: "Eighty New Strawberries." These papers are, each of them, authority on the subject upon which it deals. For the benefit of all who are interested in these subjects the station offers to send copies of these bulletins free to any persons who have interest enough to send for them. Address all requests to Secretary Agricultural Coll., Agricultural College, Mich.

Death of James D. Winans.

James D. Winans, of Ann Arbor town, died yesterday of the grip and old age. His funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Mr. Winans was born February 14, 1805, in Dutchess county, N. Y. In the year 1835 he came to Detroit, where he followed his trade of currier and tanner until the year 1837, when he settled upon 320 acres of government land which he purchased in Livingston county. In the year 1838 he was married to Miss Sarah Hillyard. A few years later he removed to Ann Arbor township. His wife and four children, Mrs. E. E. Diamond, of Hastings, N. H. Winans, of Grand Rapids, S. B. Winans, of Ann Arbor town, and Mrs. Martha Diamond, of Grand Rapids, survive him. Mr. Winans was much respected for his honesty and integrity. — Saturday's Times.

The Adrian Press—and Germs.

The digging of the sewer emptied a number of wells in the third ward. As the sewer was refilled the water came back in the wells.—Ann Arbor Argus.

Thus is furnished testimony that will stand cross-examination, relative to the percolation of surface poisons. A break in the sewer pipe would fill those wells with millions of microbic monsters, marshaled against human life; whose wriggling bodies and ugly shapes, suggest the demons, with which Dante has peopled the inferno. Go forth after sunset of a summer's day, when the mists of evening are ascending, and gaze into the sewer-soaked well! You shall behold there, the skeleton orchestra of death, with grinning jaws and sightless sockets, fiddling to the phantoms in a ghost dance. You shall see grim Typhus lead out Scarletina for his partner; Tuberculosis, hand in hand Diptheria, and Miasma, with her skirts of foxfire, whirling in the mazy throng with Ague's shivering shade, and note with what rhythm, obedient to the voice of the skeleton caller, they bow, salute, and "all join hands and circle to the left," till frightened from his perch by the curb, the slimy frog fetches a straddle, and with a guttural croak plugs to the bottom and breaks up the party; then, turning from the scene, you may perhaps, hear in the distance, the grindstone voice of Old Wayback, proclaiming that "the professors are gittin' too gol-dumbed smart a humbeggin' the world with their blamed germ theory!"

Third Choral Union Concert.

Tuesday evening, January 30, Vladimir de Pachman, one of the world's great pianists, will be heard in Ann Arbor. De Pachman is emphatically one of the great artists of this generation. This is an artist of specialties, and De Pachman is a specialist, excelling as an interpreter of Chopin. As no other pianist, De Pachman reveals the characteristics of this composer, and by so doing proves himself the possessor of the finest and most polished technique, as well as grace and fire in expression. He is an interesting personality in every respect, erratic, impulsive, yet always artistic. His power over an audience is wonderful. When we realize that he is the only pianist who has been able to sustain himself in the face of the overwhelming success of Paderewski, we can believe that he is more than a mere pianist. The attendance at the Messiah concert showed an increase in the ticket sale. It is to be hoped that this concert will also show an improvement in this respect, for the Choral Union deserves enthusiastic support. Extra tickets on sale at usual places.

The Inland League.

On Monday evening, January 29, Dr. Heneage Gibbes will lecture before the Inland League on his experience with cholera in Calcutta. Dr. Gibbes was the English commissioner who with Dr. Koch, of Berlin, investigated the origin of the disease, Dr. Gibbes arriving at a different conclusion from Dr. Koch. The lecture will be very interesting to all who have given the subject any consideration or who are interested in the conditions of India.

Unity Club.

Mr. Phoenix Lamont, organist of Christ's Church, Detroit, Mr. E. N. Bilbie, violinist and Miss Minnie Davis, accompanist, will give a musical recital before the Unity Club on Monday evening next, Jan. 29, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Lamont is an artist of rare ability and his renditions should be of the highest order. Mr. Bilbie and Miss Davis need no introduction to Ann Arbor people. This concert promises to be one of the best of the season.

It must have been exceedingly amusing consoling to a Democrat—we believe there still are Democrats—we say it must have been exceedingly amusing for a Democrat to have read the editorial comment on the Wilson tariff bill debate in the House in the Free Press on the 10th inst., which was to wit:

Washington, Jan. 9.—This was a field day in the house for the tariff. The galleries were thronged all day and the floor crowded. Each side put forth its most brilliant orators for the day's session. Mr. Wilson, the chairman of the ways and means committee, completed his speech begun yesterday and Mr. Burrows opened the debate for the Republicans with a 3-hour reply. As he (Wilson) finished the democratic side broke into cheers, and a wave of applause swept over the galleries. The applause continued for fully two minutes.

Ha, Ha! We hear the democratic reader exclaims that's good. But he reads on, and in a few minutes he reads, in the same column, the following:

Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, rose to reply to Mr. Wilson. His republican colleagues gave him close attention, and punctuated the points of his speech with liberal applause. The Democrats, too, listened to it with evident interest. Mr. Burrows spoke for almost three hours. At the conclusion of his speech there was a great outburst of republican applause, so long continued as to call for order from the chair.

It is an old saying and a true one—who laughs last, laughs best. The Republicans would be still laughing, still be applauding, if they had not been called to order by the democratic chair.

A Record of Their Daily Work in Washington.

Measures of Importance Being Considered in the Senate and House—A Summary of the Daily Proceedings.

THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—After discussion of civil service reform until the close of the morning hour the senate yesterday resumed as "the unfinished business" the house bill to repeal the federal election laws, and the debate continued until the close of the legislative day.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Senators Peffer (pop., Kan.) and Allen (pop., Neb.) introduced resolutions in the senate yesterday condemning the bond policy of the administration. Senator Morgan (dem., Ala.) and Senator Daniel (dem., Va.) took occasion to express their disapproval of the proposed bond issue. Senator Vest (dem., Mo.) spoke in favor of repealing the election law.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Remonstrances were presented in the senate yesterday against the Wilson tariff bill and against the issue of government bonds. A bill to codify and arrange the laws relating to pensions was introduced.

The House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—In the house yesterday Mr. Wilson's amendment to the tariff bill fixing the date on which free wool should go into effect as August 1 was defeated, and the substitute making it go into effect immediately on the passage of the bill was adopted. The rest of the day was spent discussing the amendment of Mr. Burrows to substitute the print work schedule for that proposed by the Wilson bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Almost the entire day in the house yesterday was spent in the continuation of the debate on Mr. Burrows' (rep., Mich.) amendment to restore the existing duties on wool, with the result of its defeat by a strict party vote. About an hour before the recess Mr. Johnson (dem. O.) offered an amendment to place steel rails on the free list. A lengthy discussion followed, but no action was taken. At the session Mr. Sibley (dem., Pa.) created a sensation by a bitter speech against the Wilson bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—In the house yesterday the time was occupied in discussing the tariff bill and the proposed amendment to put steel rails on the free list was lost by a vote of 100 to 79.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The tariff bill was discussed in the house yesterday, and messages were received from the president vetoing the New York and New Jersey bridge bill and transmitting the latest correspondence from Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—In the house yesterday an amendment to the tariff bill placing sugar on the free list was adopted. A bill was introduced to provide for the withdrawal of the discretionary power of the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds. The president's message on Hawaiian affairs was received.

FARMERS TO UNITE.

Plans for a Big Central Organization Outlined.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The five great organizations of farmers—the Farmers' Alliance, the Industrial union, the Grange, the Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association and the Patrons of Industry—are to form a federation to be known as the Farmers' union, if plans made by the alliance at a convention held in this city are acceptable to the other organizations. The scheme is a big one and its promoters expect great things from it. The new organization is to be non-partisan, it is claimed, but will devote itself to bettering the condition of the farmers politically and socially.

Lost Both Eyes.

MALVERN, Ark., Jan. 20.—Irvey Harp, a well-known young man, son of Thomas Harp, a prominent citizen, lost both of his eyes and was perhaps fatally injured by the explosion of a cigarette. Lee Edwards and Mount Jackson, two young men, sought to play a practical joke on Harp by furnishing him a loaded cigarette. They were arrested and lodged in jail to await the result of Harp's injuries.

Lillian Weds Again.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—At the residence of Civil Justice Mohler in Hoboken, N. J., on Sunday Lillian Russell, the famous opera bouffesinger, became the wife of John Chatterton, better known as Sig. Perugini, a leading member of her company. This is Miss Russell's third voyage on the sea of matrimony.

Was First Governor of Colorado.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 22.—Ex-Gov. William Gilpin, the first governor of the territory of Colorado, died Saturday. He was appointed by President Lincoln March 22, 1861, and was at that time a resident of St. Louis.

Prison Col. for a Banker.

STERLING, Col., Jan. 23.—M. H. Smith, president of the Bank of Sterling, has been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary for receiving money on deposit after he became insolvent.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 22.—The Tyrrell brothers, of this city, after a year's absence have returned from a trip north of the Saskatchewan in a country never before explored.

Swindled Them All.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 22.—William Henry Stegner within three days married one St. Louis widow, promised to wed two others and swindled all three.

Scared Out by a Woman.

PLEASANTON, Kan., Jan. 22.—Owing to the election of Mrs. Annie L. Austin as mayor of this city, gamblers and saloonkeepers have fled.

New York's Unemployed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—More than 40,000 persons are out of work and destitute in this city, according to trustworthy statistics.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

The Industrial Improvement Continues, But the Gain is Slow.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

"The event of the week is the offer of $50,000,000 United States 5 per cent ten-year bonds. The gold not represented by certificates has fallen below $70,000,000, the revenue continues to fall behind that of last year about $5,000,000 a month, and action in congress on various financial measures is liable at any time to excite doubts whether gold payments can be maintained. Hence replenishment of the gold reserve was necessary to a restoration of confidence and a revival of business.

"While industrial improvement continues, the gain is slow, and increase in the purchasing power of the people by enlargement of the force at work is in a measure through reduction in wages paid. During the last week dispatches have told of reductions averaging 13 per cent in fifteen iron and steel works and averaging 15 1/2 per cent in eleven textile works, five employing thousands of hands each, having reduced wages 20 per cent. Meanwhile twenty-five textile and eleven iron and steel concerns resumed wholly or in part against seventeen textile and four iron concerns stopping or reducing force. The volume of business done has increased in leading branches, but not largely; clearings fall below those of last year for the same week 2.6 per cent, and uncertainty regarding the future as yet prevents the ventures essential to prosperous activity.

"Textile works resuming are mostly carpet and knit goods concerns, with some worsted works. Sales of wool for the week have been 3,189,500 pounds, against 6,082,300 last year, and the proportion since January 1 has been about the same. Though more mills are at work and there is more speculative buying, prices nevertheless decline.

"Again, there is reported more business in iron and steel products, but at lower prices. Speculative markets have been weaker, though wheat is 1/2 higher, with increasing stocks and small exports, and corn is 1/2 higher. Cotton has fallen, as receipts continue much larger than a year ago and the demand for consumption is narrow. Lard and coffee are lower, but oil was advanced a cent, with large trading.

"Gain in retail distribution of products is still small, imports at New York show for January thus far a decrease of more than 20 per cent, while in exports there is a gain of $2,300,000, or nearly 20 per cent, appears. There is no thought of a movement of gold, as London sends stocks hither to settle for products. The excess of exports over imports in December was $48,000,000, but the exchanges seemed to forecast gold exports.

"Failures for the week have been 407 in the United States, against 270 last year, and 46 in Canada, against 42 last year."

STEVENS TESTIFIES.

The Ex-Minister to Hawaii Appears Before the Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The witness before the senate committee investigating Hawaiian relations Saturday was ex-Minister Stevens, who is charged with having coerced the Hawaiians and contributed towards the establishment of the provisional government by the use of the provisional forces. Mr. Stevens was on the stand for a long time, and, it is understood, made strong denials of very many of the positive statements of Mr. Blount. He defended his course from first to last, and declared he had landed the troops simply for the purpose of protecting life and property, and he brought out the point that the deposed queen herself did not, by her acts, take a contrary view of the case. This part of Mr. Stevens' testimony touched on new ground and was of importance. He said that twenty-two hours after the marines had been landed, and after the queen had been deposed, she sent to him and asked that he would direct the marines to be used in her behalf, a request which showed, Mr. Stevens said, that the queen did not look upon the landing of the marines as intended to be inimical to her.

MELLO DEPOSED.

Said to Have Been Removed from Leadership of Brazilian Rebels.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 22.—The minister of foreign affairs, acting in behalf of President Peixoto, authorizes the representative of the United Press to send the following:

"It is stated by insurgents that Admiral de Mello has been deposed from his position of leader of the forces operating against the government because he failed to bring troops from the south to aid the insurgents in the bay here in making their proposed land movements. It is added that Admiral de Mello is now on the insurgent war ship Republica, but simply as a private citizen. The Republica is at Paranguaba bay. Everything is quiet in Rio Janeiro."

A Million Dollars in a Wreck.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 23.—A big foreign steamer, the Andes, bound from Costa Rica to New York with a cargo of coffee and fruits said to be valued at $1,000,000, went ashore off Little Beach life-saving station Monday. She had a crew of twenty-four men and two passengers who were landed by the government men. There is little hope of saving the steamer and cargo.

Ice Imprisons Many Fish.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 23.—At Peconica a small stream during the cold weather was frozen to such a depth as to hold the fish fast in the ice. Now that the ice has thawed thousands of fish can be seen protruding from the ice, bullheads, buffalo fish, pickerel and bass. Several fish that were near the bottom have been chopped out and they revive after being left a little while in cold water.

Population of Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 23.—The new city directory, now in the hands of the binders, contains 57,598 names, which it is figured gives Indianapolis a population of 143,995, an increase of nearly 7,000 over last year.

Distress Among Ohio Miners.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Synopsis of the New Measure to Secure Funds.

Incomes of $4,000 and Over Must Pay a Tax of 2 Per Cent.—Playing Cards Taxed Two Cents a Pack and Spirits $1 a Gallon.

TAX ON INCOMES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The income tax bill, as approved by the democratic members of the ways and means committee, was laid before the full committee. It was read in part, but the committee adjourned before the reading was finished. A synopsis of the bill is as follows:

To Tax Incomes.

The bill provides a tax of 2 per cent upon all incomes of citizens of the United States, either at home or abroad, from any kind of property, rents, interest, dividends or salaries on all amounts over and above $4,000. The bill goes into effect January 1, 1895. In estimating incomes there shall be included notes, bonds and other securities, except such United States bonds as are exempt from federal taxation. The tax is laid on profits realized within the year from sales of real estate purchased within the year or within two years previous to the year for which the income is estimated; also on sales of live stock and farm products generally during the year upon one's own estate; all other incomes derived from any source whatever and the share of any person of the profits of companies, whether incorporated or partnership, who would be entitled to the same if divided whether divided or otherwise, except the incomes received from corporations whose officers, as defined by the act, own or hold a percentage of the dividends and pay the same to the officer authorized to receive it.

Some Deductions.

In addition to the $4,000 exemption, all national, state and county taxes paid within the year shall be deducted from the profits of the person who has actually paid them; also losses sustained during the year from fire, shipwreck, and other causes not covered by insurance and compensated for, and worthless debts, but excluding estimated depreciation of value and losses on sales of real estate. No deduction shall be made for improvements which may increase the value of the property or estate. Only one deduction of $4,000 shall be made from the aggregate income of the members of any family.

How Returns Are to Be Made.

Every person having an income of more than $3,000 shall make a return to the deputy collector of the district in which he resides of the amount of his income; but persons having less than $3,000 a year shall not make such a report. These returns shall be made on oath and the deputy collector may increase the amount of any list or return if he has reason to believe that it has been understated. As a penalty for refusing to make the list, the deputy collector may make up such list according to the best information obtainable and add 50 per cent to the amount. In cases where fraudulent list has been rendered a penalty of 100 per cent shall be added.

The bill provides at some length the manner in which persons dissatisfied with the decision of the collector may submit their case to the commissioner of internal revenue. The tax shall be collected on or before the 1st day of each July, and an additional tax of 5 per cent shall be laid on payments after that date, and interest at the rate of 1 per cent a month upon the amount of the tax.

All persons in the civil, military, naval or other service of the United States, including senators, representatives and delegates in congress, shall pay a 2 per cent tax upon incomes above $3,000 a year. This amount shall be deducted from their incomes by the disbursing officers making the payment.

Information Must Be Kept Secret.

The bill provides that when any revenue officer divulges the operations of a manufacturer or producer of the amount or source of his income, he shall be subject to fine and imprisonment. The deputy collector shall make lists of persons owning property subject to tax and it shall be the duty of persons, firms and corporations made liable by any duty, special or other tax and not otherwise provided for, in case of a special tax on or before March 1, annually, and in other cases before the tax accrues, to furnish the deputy collector complete lists of taxable property. In case such person fails to permit the deputy to make up the return such lists may be made by the collector.

Liabilities of Corporations.

Section 11 of the bill relates to corporations. It requires them to make return before the tenth day of the month following the declaration of dividends under oath by the principal officer.

Section 12 requires corporations to furnish, beginning 1895, on or before the first Monday of each year, a statement showing the gross profits, expenses, exclusion of interest, annuities and dividends, net profits without allowance for the same, amount paid on account of interest, annuities and dividends, amount paid for salaries, employees, above and below $4,000.

Section 14 levies taxes upon corporation dividends, interest coupons and annuities wherever and whenever payable, to all parties whatsoever, and provides that the corporation may deduct or retain from all payments made on account of such dividends, etc., a proportionate share of the tax so paid.

Section 15 provides for the issue of receipts by collectors for taxes paid, and whenever the payment is made otherwise than by a corporation the collector may give a separate receipt for each tax paid on account of the amount of payments to separate creditors in such form that the debtor can present them to his creditors in satisfaction of their respective demands in accordance with the amount specified in such receipts.

Sections 16, 17 and 18 are not of public information, but are simply administrative.

Tax on Playing Cards.

Section 19 provides that after a date in 1894 there shall be a tax of 2 cents a pack on playing cards, payable by adhesive stamps.

Sections 20 to 28 (inclusive) are explanatory of section 19, and provide penalties for violation and evasion of the law.

Spirits Taxed $1 a Gallon.

Section 29 fixes the tax, on and after the second calendar month after the passage of the act, on all distilled spirits produced in the United States on which the tax is not paid here before that day at one dollar per proof gallon, to be paid by the possessor on or before removal from warehouse within eight years from the date of original entry for deposit in any distillery or bonded warehouse, except in cases of withdrawal without payment of tax as now authorized by law.

Section 30 continues existing warehouse bonds on distilled spirits in full force for the time named in the bonds. When the tax is paid, on and after that date, there shall be added to the present tax of 90 cents a sufficient tax to make the total equal to 100 cents. Bonds may be required for the additional tax.

Section 31 provides for re-gauging of spirits upon withdrawal limiting the allowance for loss to 1 gallon for two months and 1 1/2 gallons for twelve months.

Section 32, the last, repeals all inconsistent acts.

Half a Dozen Good Things.

To the top of Pike's Peak by rail via the Great Rock Island and Pike's Peak Cog Road is wonderful. Try it.

The Dining Car Service on the Great Rock Island Route between Chicago and Denver is the best in the world. Choice of two routes, via Omaha or Kansas City.

A new fast train has been put on the Great Rock Island Route; leaves Chicago daily at 5 p. m., and at 9 a. m. it arrives at Omaha, and at 10:50 a. m. at Lincoln, Nebraska, its destination. It's a hummer and very popular.

The Big "E" is a favorite train for tourists and business men. This is a Great Rock Island Route train; leaves Chicago daily at 10 p. m. You travel but one day out, and second morning at breakfast hour you are landed at Denver.

Through to Fort Worth! Yes, the "Great Rock Island" has pushed its southwestern extension across the famous Cherokee strip; through Oklahoma Territory; one hundred miles farther south over the Chickasaw Nation lands; crossed the Red River and now lands passengers at Ft. Worth, Texas.

Think of it! Through sleepers and super coaches free; through sleepers by the Great Rock Island Route from Chicago to St. Paul and Minneapolis, another to Sioux Falls, another to Omaha and Lincoln, another to Denver, another to Colorado Springs and Pueblo, another to Kansas City, another to Atchison via St. Joe, and another to Caldwell, close to the famous Cherokee strip.

ONE MORE.

The Great Rock Island Route has done much in the past six months to induce immigration to Kansas, Colorado, Indian Territory and Texas, and any looking for cheap lands and good locations should send for a new paper issued by that company. It is called the Western Trail, and will be sent free one year. Address Editor Western Trail, Chicago. JNO. SEBASTIAN, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

TO BE A REPUBLIC.

Hawaii Soon to Have an Independent Government.

The Constitution is Like That of the United States - Voters, However, Must Be Able to Read and Write English.

AN IMPORTANT MOVE.

HONOLULU, Jan. 12, via San Francisco, Jan. 20.—There is no important change in public affairs. Strong remonstrances have been addressed to Minister Willis. It is privately learned that a new constitution is all ready to be promulgated at the proper time. It seems to be definitely ascertained that for several weeks past and prior to Thurston's visit the government has been working out a form of constitution for an independent Hawaiian republic, which is now substantially settled upon. Its form is like those of the states of the union, with president and vice president and upper and lower houses of the legislature. For voters for the lower house the chief qualification is ability to read and write the English language, which will exclude most of the Japanese. In this house the native and half-white vote will greatly predominate. For the upper house there will be required of voters a considerable educational and property qualification, sufficient to secure the predominance of intelligent white citizens, who will also control the choice of the executive. Certain special powers will be conferred upon the executive and upper house, acting in concert, which will enable them, when well agreed, to prevent the obstruction of necessary legislation by the lower house. Under this constitution the native element will possess all share in legislation which it has ever possessed, while royal and executive power will practically be transferred to the control of the more intelligent and capable white population. The government will not proclaim this constitution until after learning from Minister Thurston that there is no present prospect of any form of political union with the United States.

BLOW AT PROHIBITION.

Iowa Supreme Court Refuses to Reverse Its Decision on the Amendment.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 23.—The supreme court has decided the famous case of J. A. Harvey vs. W. M. McFarland, secretary of state, involving the constitutionality of the prohibitory amendment to the state constitution adopted in 1872. Ten years ago the supreme court decided that owing to certain errors in the journals of the general assembly the amendment was not constitutionally adopted and therefore void. The State Temperance alliance found proofs that these errors were in the journals only and that all the constitutional requirements were complied with. This action was brought by mandamus proceedings to compel the secretary of state to furnish plaintiff a copy of the amendment, the alliance hoping thus to get the old question before the supreme court. That tribunal, however, refuses to reopen the question and holds that Secretary McFarland, "cannot be compelled to decide as to the legal effect of any of the records in his custody, and he is just as much bound by the decision of this court that the alleged amendment was not legally adopted as any other public officer or private citizen of the state."

This decision puts a final quietus on constitutional prohibition in Iowa and leaves nothing of prohibition but the statute which will probably be repealed by the present legislature.

SUFFOCATED BY SAWDUST.

Peculiar Death of an Unknown Farmer at Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 20.—An unknown man was killed Friday morning at the sawdust heap in the rear of the Diamond mill, Eighteenth avenue north. He was a farmer and had come in from the country to obtain a load of sawdust. While engaged in filling his wagon the sawdust under the wheels slid down, the wagon was upset and the load covered the man. He had died from suffocation when the body was recovered.

Big Hoard of Lottery Tickets.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 23.—Lottery tickets aggregating in value fully $10,000 were confiscated from the residence of John D. Sims, No. 2129 Walnut street. Sims and his son-in-law, George Flint, were arrested, but the latter was afterwards released. The tickets were in a large steel safe, and Sims refused to give the combination until the detectives prepared to "blow" the safe.

Kansas Schools Compelled to Close.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 23.—Thirteen school districts of Lyon county, Kan., through which the Santa Fe passes, will be obliged to close their schools on account of the refusal of that road to pay its county taxes, amounting to $14,000. The Emporia school will also be greatly affected, but will continue to run on a narrow margin until the case is settled in the courts.

Deer Starving to Death.

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 22.—Mate Cleland, who has arrived here from Bubars camp at Millinocket lake, says that in many places in northern Maine deer have been found dead in yards. The cause is attributed to starvation, the branches of trees upon which they feed having been encased in ice since December by the sleet storm which occurred in that month.

Given Heavy Damages.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 22.—Ex-Conductor Robert Bycroft was given a verdict for $18,356 against the Lake Shore railroad for injuries received in a collision. At the time he was "dead-heading" home in a caboose, which was telescoped.

Found a 156-Ounce Gold Nugget.

LEADVILLE, Col., Jan. 22.—A gold nugget weighing 156 ounces has been found at Breckenridge on leased property which belongs to George Campion.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

ROBBED THE POST OFFICE. Lindell Stewart, Aged 13, Steals $1,500 at Traverse City.

Lindell Stewart, aged 13, has been bound over to the federal court on a charge of robbing the post office at Traverse City. He had operated systematically for over a year. He would go to the box window and ask for a certain man's mail. The next day he would ask for still another person's mail. Finally the citizens complained that they were not getting their letters. Recently Stewart got a letter containing a pension check. He read the name and boldly asked a banker to cash the check. The check had not been indorsed, so the teller inquired of the boy who had sent him. The name was coolly given, but the teller insisted that the man himself would have to indorse it. The boy walked out and did not return. This little episode led to his arrest. The boy's peculations amount to over $1,500.

STATE CROP REPORT. Wheat is in Good Shape, But Prices are All Down.

The Michigan crop report, issued by Secretary of State Jochim, says that wheat has been injured but slightly, if at all, by the weather during the last month. With the exception of hay, which is a few cents higher than it was one year ago, and mch cows, which are bringing an average of $1.50 more than they were in January, 1893, there is said to have been a decline in prices all along the line. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in December is 1,540,662 and in the five months ending December 31, 7,899,035 bushels, which is 212,580 bushels less than was reported marketed last year.

Too Many Reservations.

Attorney General Ellis has advised the state board of charities not to accept the deed offered covering the site at Newberry for the projected asylum for the insane in the upper peninsula. The statute requires that the state be given an absolute title, while the deed contains reservations of timber and land for highways and provides for the property reverting to the grantors in case it ever ceases to be used for asylum purposes.

Iron Mountain Needs Food.

W. A. Childs, sent by citizens to investigate the condition of the destitute of Gogebic and Dickinson counties, reports clothing sufficient for the winter at both places. Gogebic has provisions enough for all until February 20. Iron Mountain had only enough for ten days at the present rate of issue. He said both counties had methods of distribution well organized and systematized.

To Abolish Immigrant Inspection.

The state board of health has resolved, in view of the decision recently by Circuit Judge Steere, of Sault Ste. Marie, declaring the penalty provisions of the Michigan quarantine law unconstitutional, that the immigrant inspection at the Michigan border be suspended. The case would be appealed.

State Board of Health.

From various portions of the state the reports of fifty-six observers for the week ended January 13 show that intermittent fever decreased in area of prevalence. Scarlet fever was reported at forty-nine places, measles at six, diphtheria at twenty-six and typhoid fever at twelve places.

Michigan Millers.

The Michigan Millers' association at its annual meeting in Lansing elected the following officers: President, W. A. Coombs, Coldwater; vice president, R. T. French, Middleville; secretary and treasurer, M. A. Reynolds, Lansing; executive committee, Alfred Green, Holly; S. J. Titus, Battle Creek; Alexander Stock, Hillsdale.

Detroit Gets the State Fair.

The Michigan state fair was permanently located at Lansing four years ago. The society now finds itself $25,000 in debt, and in order to replenish its treasury the executive committee has favorably considered a proposition from the Detroit exposition managers to hold the fair in that city this year.

Short But Newsy Items.

Fire broke out in Manthe's meat market in Marquette and destroyed that building, McMillan's saloon and Maper's dwelling. Total loss, $10,000.

Thomas F. Griffin, president of the Griffin Car Wheel company, was murderously assaulted and robbed in the barn in the rear of his residence in Detroit.

Mrs. Victor Bond, wife of a Michigan Central engineer, died in West Bay City of heart failure, as she was being assisted to turn over in bed.

The hunters and fishermen of Holland have formed an association for the propagation and protection of game and fish.

By an obstruction in the water pipes Marquette was left without fire protection.

The county house at Manistee has a curiosity in the form of a young girl who for the past year has taken no nourishment whatever except water that potatoes have been boiled in, and, strange to say, she is growing fat on that diet.

William Thomas, one of the oldest pioneers of Genesee county, died at his home in Davison township, aged 88 years. He had lived upon the farm where he died for fifty-five years.

Names, the Ottawa county crank who went to Chicago after Prendergast had been convicted of the murder of Mayor Harrison and demanded his release, has been adjudged insane and sent to an asylum.

George Pope, a young man employed as fireman on the Ingalls & White Rapids narrow-gauge logging road, was instantly killed at Bagley by a log falling on him.

Berend Aldering, while riding on a load of hay at Borculo, was instantly killed by the team running away.

Col. George P. Sanford, prominent in Michigan politics for nearly thirty years, died at his home in Lansing.

RETURNS WERE ALTERED.

How the Michigan Salary Amendment Was Declared Carried.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 23.—The excitement over the discovery of last week that the proposed amendment to the constitution increasing the salaries of several state officers, which the official canvass showed was carried, but was, in fact, defeated by nearly 12,000 majority, grew decidedly more intense Monday afternoon. It was proved beyond all question, that the amendment trebling the salary of the attorney general, which the democratic board of canvassers declared carried by a majority of 1,287, was actually defeated by 403 votes. In the latter case the evidence of deliberate altering of returns is so evident that no one seeks to dispute it. One thousand was added to the vote for the amendment in Gogebic county, making it appear that the amendment received 1,319 votes, instead of 319 actually received, as an examination of the records of the county clerk's office in Bessemer made Monday fully establishes. Aside from this the vote of Gratiot county, which gave a majority of 696 against the amendment, was thrown out bodily and does not appear in the canvass. Having had charge of both fraudulent canvasses Clerk Potter is placed in a very bad light, but insists that he knows nothing of how, when or by whom the crooked work was done. Gov. Rich is still pushing his investigation, and it is not unlikely that it will be followed by a session of the grand jury ere long.

ANOTHER FIGHT.

Senator Hill Likely to Make More Trouble for the President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Wheeler H. Peckham, of New York, has been nominated by the president for associate justice of the supreme court, Vice W. B. Hornblower, rejected. This action is looked upon by politicians as a direct slap at Senator Hill. Senator Hill objected to Hornblower—first because he was one of the committee of the New York Bar association that signed the report against Maynard for his connection with the alleged legislative frauds in New York; second, because he was (and is) an anti-snapper. If Senator Hill objects to Nominee Peckham it will be, first, because he not only signed the report, but presented it to the legislature and was very prominent in prosecuting Maynard on the charges set forth in the report; second, Peckham is an ardent anti-snapper; third, in a recent interview on the turning down of Hornblower Peckham denounced Hill in the most virulent manner, and said: "Such things were to be expected when a reptile like Hill wallowed in the dirty politics of the day."

HURGMAN'S DAY.

Four Murderers Pay the Penalty for Taking Human Lives.

JOLIET, Ill., Jan. 20.—Ernest Lacore was executed here at 10:34 a. m. yesterday. The crime for which Lacore was hanged was the murder of Mary Ellen Byron on August 6 in the town of Wesley, near Wilmington.

CANDO, N. D., Jan. 20.—Albert F. Bamberger was hanged at 1 p. m. yesterday about a mile from this place in a deep ravine surrounded by high hills, for the brutal murder on July 7, 1893, of six members of the Kreider family because of some words with his uncle about his passion for his 15-year-old cousin, Annie Kreider.

LEBANON, Mo., Jan. 20.—Wilson Howard was hanged in the jailyard here at 9:17 o'clock a. m. yesterday for the murder of Thomas McMichael on August 30 last. Late Thursday night Howard made an affidavit that he had killed John Bailey in Harlan county, Ky., a crime for which an innocent man, his uncle, Will Jennings, is now serving a life sentence in the Kentucky penitentiary.

WELCH, W. Va., Jan. 20.—John Hardy was hanged here yesterday for the murder of a railway employe during a quarrel.

Given a Twenty-Year Term.

DULUTH, Minn., Jan. 22.—James E. Connolly, the ex-parish priest of Two Harbors, this county, who was convicted of committing rape on one of his congregation, Julia Sutherland, has been sentenced to twenty years and three months in state prison.

Prof. Alonzo Hill Drops Dead.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 22.—Prof. Alonzo Hill, president of the Tuscaloosa female college at Tuscaloosa, Ala., dropped dead Saturday night of apoplexy.

Bear in mind one thing, that if business, pleasure, or necessity calls you away from home at any time, be particular to have your route fully decided upon and arranged before starting. Many things should be taken into consideration, especially the inducements offered by the Wisconsin Central Company to those who wish to visit St. Paul, Minneapolis, Ashland, West Superior, Duluth or any point in Wisconsin. Their trains leave Chicago at convenient hours. Their equipment is unsurpassed by any line in the Northwest. Close connections are made at St. Paul and Minneapolis, with the various lines running to all California and Pacific Coast points. So high a degree of prosperity and so general a diffusion of the comforts of life were never before enjoyed by our people.—President Harrison's last message to Congress.

Those good old days in which it was said, "Anybody can carry Michigan," have returned, but the times have not.

The statesmanship of Grover Cleveland—the great democratic statesman—is being demonstrated in Hawaiian affairs.

What do the Democrats mean by showing open markets to the world? What are we to understand by "markets of the world?"

From the zeal displayed by the Detroit Free Press, those at all conversant with its methods are expecting it to soon lay claim to the honor of discovering the so-called salary steal.

The Argus has found a definition of "jingoism." It says an English statesman defines it. Because an Englishman says so, the Argus concludes that it must be so. This is natural. It's English, you know. England is a free trade country.

A number of years ago a portion of the democratic party attacked the life of the Union. Today the combined forces of the democratic party are attacking the business life of the Union. Disaster and Destruction are the mission of the democratic party.

Mr. Wilson assures us that the Wilson bill will reduce the revenue derived from importations about $70,000,000. He expects to raise by an income tax $30,000,000 and by an increase of excise and internal taxes $15,000,000. Where does he expect to get the remaining $25,000,000? This is the condition of things staring us in the face with an almost depleted treasury.

In 1801 Thomas Jefferson insisted on the repeal of the excise tax on liquors, maintaining that in time of peace the expenses of the government should be met by duties on imports. THE REGISTER challenges its democratic city contemporaries to deny this statement. In 1894 the democratic party insists for an increase in the excise tax on liquors, maintaining that in time of peace the expenses of the government should be met by duties on—incomes. The democratic party must look elsewhere than to Jefferson for a leader. Grover will do.

THE REGISTER will make the prediction that if the Democratic party puts wool on the free list, that Texas will give a republican majority in 1896. The wool industry is the pride of Texas. Why should not the Democratic party legislate in the interest of the lone star state as well as in the interest of Virginia and North Carolina? Degras, wool-grease and tallow are made free as farmers' materials, while the sumac of Virginia and Carolina, used for the same purpose, is protected? The Italians and the Democrats of Virginia get protection on their peanuts of 35 per cent., while the farmers' potatoes get a consideration of only 10 per cent. Virginia and North Carolina are sometimes placed in the column of doubtful states. Texas is not.

THE United States of America have never been placed in as humiliating a position as at the present time. The so-called great democratic statesman, Grover Cleveland, has placed the country in a humiliating position. Sanford B. Dole, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Hawaiian Islands, has proved himself a greater statesman, an able diplomat than the great Cleveland, so-called. In his reply to Minister Willis, the great Hawaiian statesman speaks of the rights of the President of the United States—indirectly informing the Democrats that he is dealing with the president and not with the government of the United States. Again Minister Dole says: "We do not recognize the right of the President of the United States to interfere in our domestic affairs." "The American Executive has a policy of interference under contemplation." What does the great democratic statesman think of that? The most cruel cut of all is Minister Dole's phrase: "My policy—my position." If President Cleveland had not succeeded in enforcing "My policy" in the Hawaiian matter, he has, at least, succeeded in making Democrats blush, Republicans smile and the country disgusted.

THE Adrian Press and Ann Arbor Democrat publish long extracts from the speech of Tom Johnson, of Cleveland, O., delivered in the House, January 11th, in which that gentleman ridicules Mr. Carnegie for paying, or offering to pay, to the unemployed laborers of Pittsburg, Pa., $5,000 a day. Now, the question arises, how much money does Mr. Johnson, whose income is about $2,000 a day, give to the poor? Mr. Johnson's income from his watered stock of his street railroads is alone $1,000. It has been shown that Mr. Johnson has coerced his employees into accepting wages one-third cash and two-thirds scrips. Perhaps some of the readers of THE REGISTER do not understand the meaning of "scrip." We will explain, or rather, allow Mr. Johnson himself to explain the true definition of the word. In Mr. Johnson's speech, which the Democrat and Adrian Press copy in part, Mr. Johnson said: "During this panic we found that our customers, the street railroad men, had plenty of bonds, but no money. After consultation with the Cambria Iron Company and others, from whom we bought some of our materials, we agreed to take our pay in bonds. We then called our men together and said, 'We have this opportunity to make some rails by taking our pay in bonds. We will do this if you will take two-thirds of your pay in the same thing we are paid in, and we will pay you one-third in cash. Will you go on this way, or shall we shut down?' Our men, after we had withdrawn from the meeting, decided unanimously that they would like to go on at the old rate of wages, taking one-third of their pay in money and the other two-thirds in that form in which we took all of our pay, namely, in bonds. As a result of this arrangement we have issued to our men some twenty or thirty thousand dollars of what you call 'scrip,' but what is really the evidence of their interest in these bonds." If Mr. Johnson has the welfare of the laboring man at heart, why does he not pay him in cash? His lordly income would allow him to do it. Why does not he give some of his income to the idle workmen of Pittsburg? We will let the reader draw his own conclusions.

THE PUBLIC PULSE.

"There is no business in the country that feels the democratic hard times more severely than insurance companies," said a well-known real estate agent in his office yesterday. "It would surprise you if I should acquaint you with the number of companies that are going out of business. How do they go out of business? Why they dispose of their policies to other companies, who assume the liabilities. What is the reason? Why the great number of fires. Why are there more fires this year than in any preceding year? It is an actual fact that a great many people fire their buildings in order to raise money."

"How is this done? Don't you know that over four-fifths of the buildings in this city of Ann Arbor are insured beyond their value. I tell you this is true. I will not say, understand me, that the Athens of Michigan has citizens that would 'fire' their buildings, I refer to citizens of other cities."

"There is only one way for fire insurance companies to do a safe business. If they will insure a building for only one-half or two-thirds of its value, there will be little danger of the proprietor burning it to secure money."

"I wonder if Frank Bogardus is a member of St. Luke's Episcopal church of Ypsilanti?" inquired a court house politician of a citizen yesterday. "If he is, then Frank is not so certain of the Ypsilanti post-office as he was before the appointment of the rector of said church, Rev. M. M. Goodwin, as naval chaplain. The appointment of Prof. Sill, of Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, followed by the appointment of Mr. Goodwin, will satisfy the yankee element of Ypsilanti, don't you see—and Frank is a full-fledged yankee."

"Did you read Britton's dispatch to The News last week? Viewed from a politician's checker-board, the positions of the kings would be about as follows: If Rev. Klingmann of Seio, had received the appointment of naval chaplain—in short, if he had accepted the same—you may depend upon it, that no German-American would have received the appointment of post-master of Ann Arbor. Mart Case has been appointed post-master at Manchester, Costello at Dexter, Gauntlett at Milan, and Mebane will be appointed post-master at Chelsea. Now, what have we? We have yankee kings at Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Manchester and Milan, Emerald Isle kings at Dexter, Saline and Chelsea and a king of the Fatherland still to be crowned. Now, who will it be?"

"I read somewhere that Evert Scott was going to Hawaii, either on business or for pleasure," said a citizen in the court house yesterday. "I'll wager that Evert will never tell the Hawaiians that he is an American. He will tell them that he is from Halifax or Mexico or somewhere else. The humiliating position in which the democratic masochist Cleveland has placed the country makes an American feel like blushing when in foreign lands. The democrats are great people. I would suggest that the old democratic war cry, 'a tariff for revenue only,' be changed to 'a tariff for deficiency only,' and by changing one letter in the democratic phrase, 'an internal tax,' we have 'an infernal tax.' The democrats are great people—they have great ideas."

"I see by the papers that James McNamara has been appointed postmaster of Alpena," said a court house official a few days ago. "I know the gentleman well. He was born near Dexter and at 16 he was compelled to shift for himself. He entered the law department of the U. of M., and after graduating he went to Alpena, where he has held several political positions. The fight for the postmastership was a bitter fight, fought largely on personal grounds. I am anxious to see the outcome of our post-office fight. I am sure it will be bitter before it is over. Five of the democratic leaders will demand the position, and if they do not get the plum, there will be fun."

"I expected that work on the proposed extension of the electric line would be begun before this," said a citizen in the post-office yesterday, "but I have been mistaken. If the line would give the sixth ward south of the campus service, and build a belt line, I am certain the company would be more dollars ahead at the end of the year. I have always been of the opinion, and am of the opinion still, that if the road were owned by outside capitalists we could and would have all the street railway service we wanted. Our home capitalists are afraid to invest to any great extent if they do not realize 12 per cent. the first year. Of course I am in favor of encouraging home industry, but for good and efficient street car service, give me foreign capital every time."

"I notice that the subject of building a line between Adrian and Ann Arbor is again being agitated. Now it is my opinion that this line will be built. If it is a 'go,' we will be able to get the Adrian Press a few hours after it is issued, which is an argument in favor of the road, the Press, and the city papers. Adrian, like Ypsilanti, would make a good suburb of Ann Arbor. Our city is metropolitan. Chicago and Detroit have their suburbs, and so has Ann Arbor. I hope a motor line between Ann Arbor and Adrian will be built soon."

"The Italians of this educational center of America are pleased, no doubt, to read in their Italian newspapers that the Wilson bill will reduce the tariff on oranges from 10 cents to 8 cents a cubic foot, which means a reduction of one-half a cent a bushel," said a citizen in the opera house Saturday. "The orange venders will derive the benefit of the 2 cent reduction, but will continue to sell their oranges at 'two for' five, and vote the democratic ticket."

The Woman's League.

The next meeting of the Woman's League is to be specially unique and interesting. The subject of the program is "The House we Live in." Short talks will be given on "Foundations," "A Story," "Building," "Adornments," "Supplies," "Closed for Repairs." Householders present will be requested to add impromptu remarks drawn from experience or theory. A social hour will follow. At McMillan Hall, next Saturday afternoon at half past three.

Father Elliott's Mission.

The following from the N. Y. Herald of Sunday, Dec. 31st gives an idea of the mission of Father Elliott, who lectured here last fall and of his opinions of Michigan people as he found them in Ann Arbor and neighboring cities. It will no doubt be read with interest by those who heard Rev. Elliott lecture. "America will be converted and made a Catholic country. It may take generations to do it, but those who are right are going to succeed."

Thus, in a voice thrilling with the strength of his conviction, spoke the Rev. Father Walter Elliott, of the Pallist Fathers, who has just returned from a three months' missionary tour of certain districts of the West.

In the course of his mission Father Elliott directed his energies chiefly upon those localities of the diocese of Detroit in which the Church of Rome is weakest. He devoted a great deal of time to such cities as Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, St. Joseph, Benton Harbor and a large number of smaller places. Father Elliott's mode of procedure in his work is original, and he never fails to produce a lasting impression wherever he appears. He is a man of gigantic stature, with a full, round voice, the graces of an orator and the acuteness of a trained lawyer. As soon as he arrived in a place he hired the best public hall obtainable and advertised free lectures on religious subjects, such as "The Bible," "Eternal Punishment," "Authority of Conscience," "Necessity of Church Membership," "Why I am a Catholic," "Drunkennes," "Total Abstinence" and the "Confessional."

Protestants, and that the result of his labors had been extremely gratifying.

TO DISPEL PREJUDICE.

"I did not indulge in controversy," said Father Elliott in describing his work; "that has never been my habit. I expounded the Christian religion from a Catholic point of view, and I chose places where Catholicity is weak. Did I undertake to convert Protestants? Well, that was my remote object. My immediate object was to dispel prejudice. I chose the places I have mentioned because in them Catholic religion is least known."

"I had great success in attracting non-Catholic audiences. The best and most religious elements of the population of the places I visited came and filled my halls. My hearers, I wish to say, were church members and adherents of churches. The world's people did not give me so much attention. I invited my audiences to question me freely upon all points concerning which they were in doubt or obscurity. I did not encourage argument, but I never discouraged free criticism."

"The questions asked covered most of the peculiar doctrines of Catholicity. Thus my hearers inquired of me with inquiries concerning the confessional, the sacraments, the communion, the power of the priesthood, the danger to the civil authority of the Papacy, purgatory and the intercession of the saints."

"Purgatory appeared to be a difficult point with many of them. 'Why I was often asked, 'should a man who has lived justly suffer in purgatory?' and 'Why,' I replied, 'would you have a man, unfitted to enjoy the bliss of Paradise through the accumulation of worldly impurities, transported thither with out a period of preparation?'"

THE A. P. A. ALARMED.

"In some localities the adherents of the A. P. A. movement wanted to know why we were arming and what fault we had with the American public. 'I delivered from four to six lectures in each place visited. I found, I am happy to say, that in the masses of the people agnosticism and religious doubt had made little headway; that Christ in God is the actual deity; that the Scriptures were God's book, and that men need Christ as a Saviour is the active or latent faith of the whole people as a body, but in this classification I do not include the big cities."

"I found that the people were dissatisfied with personal and denominational relations. They were very anxious to have their doubts about us resolved. They wanted to know why we were not unreasonable, un-Scriptural, tyrannical, overhuman, and too external in our religion."

THE CHURCH MUST PREVAIL.

"There is no doubt that the Catholic Church can have a hearing all over the country, and that in proportion as the clergy becomes sufficiently numerous for the most urgent needs of the faithful themselves, the missionary side of the Church will be fully and actively developed. America will be converted and made a Catholic country! It may take generations to do it, but those who are right are going to succeed."

"The best mode of achieving practical results is the choice of secular priests by the bishops for diocesan missions to non-Catholics. This will make the work a regular and permanent department of the Catholic Church. 'I may say here that a man must be an outright and aggressive total abstainer to succeed in this work. Those among whom I have labored are lovely, virtuous and attractive. They combine the best elements of our national character. They are not the inhabitants of the large cities, but of the smaller settlements where a strong religious feeling seems to be inherent.'"

Father Elliott starts immediately upon another missionary tour which will last until Easter. He will confine himself to the same localities, with a view of securing a secular priest to continue his work in the diocese of Detroit.

It is agreed that the destruction of the beautiful White City at Chicago is a great pity. But what to do with it is the question. One of the structures at least, the Manufactures building, will undoubtedly be preserved in permanent form. It will be taken to pieces, removed to the lake front in Jackson park and set up again. All the American people would be glad to see this done. The Manufactures building is the largest house that was ever under one roof. If we should not have another world's fair for a generation, the grand structure would remain to remind this generation's children of the glory of the fair that was. It can certainly be turned to some useful purpose as a permanent museum of art, industry and history. Chicago and the northwest are so big that they will need many museums before they are done growing.

Brooklyn appears to be in a bad way. In that "city of churches," as it is used to be called, there is now only one church to every 2,900 inhabitants. In Gravesend, a suburb of Brooklyn, there is a voting population of not over 2,000 at the outside, yet at the last election more than 6,000 names were registered. Gravesend is the spot where a justice of the peace was one of the promoters and managers of the prize fight that did not come off between Corbett and Mitchell. The moral reformation wave has evidently not struck Brooklyn yet.

successfully urged that he was engaged as principal in the business of this company within the meaning of this by-law? Can it be said that the mere holding of stock in a railroad company is engaging in the railroad business; that by the holding of stock in a mining company or a bank or a manufacturing company that thereby the holder of such stock has engaged as a principal in the mining, banking or manufacturing business? Within the meaning of such a by-law the corporation is the person, the entity, the principal. It is a matter of common knowledge that stocks of different kinds are held by parties who do not possess the least knowledge of the details of the business, and who do not exercise the slightest interference with the management of the company.

I think, therefore, that the defendants were in error in their construction and interpretation of this by-law, and that their attempt to deprive the complainant of the benefits accruing at the death of her husband is unjust and unlawful.

It is the further contention of the defendants that even if the construction placed by them upon this by-law is erroneous, that the remedy of the complainant is confined to the order, and that she can have no redress in the courts of this state.

Undoubtedly such is the manifest intention of the rules of the defendant. Indeed, it is the express declaration of the order that the decision of the Great Camp shall be final, and that no suit in law or in equity shall be commenced by a beneficiary.

This is not a provision looking to the adjustment of claims within the order and exhausting the remedy there before resorting to the courts. It is an unquestioned attempt by this association to create a judicial tribunal with in its own ranks for the final and conclusive settlement of all controversies with its members. It is a somewhat startling proposition that within the state there exists an organization embracing perhaps 50,000 persons to whom the courts of this state are barred. I think a such a doctrine would be rather unwelcome intelligence to the rank and file of this association.

It may be conceded that in all ordinary matters of discipline or policy redress shall be confined to the decree of the Great Camp. This may be allowed on the theory of economy. As long as the officers are proceeding within the lines of its rules and regulations, I understand that the courts of this state decline to interfere. If, however, the action is fraudulent or in contravention of its rules or oppressive, or if an attempt is made to enforce a regulation that is unreasonable, immoral or unlawful, or when the rights of property are involved, I understand that the courts will interpose at the request of the injured party.

It has been said by the supreme court of the United States, "That every citizen is entitled to resort to all the courts of this country, and to invoke the protection which all the laws or all those courts may afford him. A man may not barter away his life or his freedom or his substantial rights."

"To create a judicial tribunal is one of the functions of the sovereign power." This power is guarded by the most cautious rules. The construction and legal interpretation of a rule or by-law has always been regarded as a question for the courts. It would ill accord with good government, that matters of this nature should be left to the judgment of the committee whose members are not only unskilled in the law, but subject to continual fluctuation. Certainty and uniformity are essential elements in the due administration of law. The question presented by the record is purely one of the true construction of one of the rules of his society.

The complainant insists that by a main interpretation of this rule or by-law by the officers of the defendant, she has been deprived of her just and legal benefit. Her remedy in the forum of the defendant has been forestalled and foreclosed. Under such circumstances a futilely pursue her claim before a defendant might bar her of remedy within the legal tribunals of this state. I am of the opinion that the complainant has properly invoked the aid of this court, and that she is entitled to the relief sought. A decree may be entered correspondingly.

E. D. KINNE, Circuit Judge

When Mme. Roland was on the scaffold, she asked for pen and paper to note the peculiar thoughts that hovered about her on the last journey. It is a pity they were refused, for in a tranquil mind thoughts rise up at the close of life hitherto unthinkable, like blessed inward voices alighting in glory on the summits of the past.—Goethe.

The fur trade in New York is largely in the hands of German Hebrews, and it is carried on in all sorts of places, from tiny shops employing three or four workmen to great buildings where goods to the value of many thousand dollars are displayed.

Next to Westminster abbey there is no place of sculpture of such historic interest in the British isles as Bunhill fields, the last resting place of John Bunyan, Daniel Defoe and Isaac Watts.

Much of the comfort of this life consists in acquaintance, friendship and correspondence with those that are prudent and virtuous.

"IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN."

What a Depth of Thought in Those Few Words.

HOW OFTEN AND WITH WHAT SADNESS DO WE QUOTE THEM.

It Might Indeed Have Been Had We Only Known in Time.

Probably no words are more frequently quoted than these, and surely none could have a greater meaning or show more clearly that some calamity in our lives, caused perhaps by ourselves, through ignorance, carelessness or insufficient attention to the laws of nature, might have been averted. How true is it especially in regard to the sick. Might it not have been the case with nearly all of us at some period that had we but known what to do at the proper time, much suffering could have been saved?

No one knows this better than Mrs. Mary Henderson, who lives at 89 Congress Avenue, Flushing, Long Island. "I suffered terribly," she said—"from rheumatism, and was weak, tired and nervous all the time. I was so sore all over when I would rise in the morning and felt so tired that it seemed as if it would take me an hour to dress."

"I am thankful to say, however, that all these troubles have passed away, thanks to a wonderful remedy which I have used. This remedy is Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and I feel it my duty to tell what benefit I have derived from the use of this great medicine."

MRS. MARY HENDERSON.

"The news is too good to keep and I feel that it should be made known, and I certainly will do all that lies in my power to spread it because the medicine has done so much for me. It will surely help others if they will only give it a trial."

"Why, I feel like a new person, and I am now able to do all my work and stand it well. I am surprised at myself and the strength and vigor this wonderful medicine has given me."

And now, readers, if you have been suffering from nervous or blood disease, causing debility, dyspepsia, or any of the conditions depending upon diseased nerves or blood, and have been thinking of what might be if you could but recover your health, we say to you, in all confidence take this wonderful medicine and you will be cured. It is purely vegetable and harmless.

Dr. Greene, the noted specialist in curing all chronic and nervous diseases, is its discoverer. He can be consulted at his office, 35 W. 14th Street, New York, free of charge, personally or by letter.

A Walk From Gotham.

Reduce all New York city car fares to 3 cents. It is quite enough and will be a prelude to the revocation of the street railroad franchises, which should be done without delay. The pavements and sidewalks of the city are in a disgraceful condition. Let the city run the cars for the benefit of the people, and the surplus profit could be devoted to giving New York the finest streets in the world. The street monopolists have had their innings; the people now want a show.

Let us make it an election issue—"The streets for the people"—and crush the monopolists. If we have to pay toll to use our streets, let us pay it to ourselves, and not to the impudent grabbers who now occupy them under the law and levy tribute on citizens.—Halle.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

NEWS AND GOSSIP GLEANED FROM THE CAMPUS.

Pres. Angell has gone east for a week. The Castalian seems to be a go this year. Ralph Garwood, lit '92, was recently married. The freshman class held a social at Granger's academy last evening. The Hare and Hound Club had a lively cross-country run last Saturday. The Glee and Banjo Clubs give a concert in Detroit next Saturday night. Dr. Ford, who has been ill for some time, is able to meet his classes again. The S. C. A. held a song service last Sunday morning instead of the usual address. It seems like old times to have Judge Cooley again on the rostrum lecturing to students. The first number of the Dental Journal for the present school year has finally made its appearance. Pres. Angell has gone to Washington to attend a meeting of the regents of the Smithsonian Institution. The S. C. A. will give a reception to students from the middle states of the far west next Saturday night. It now looks very much as if the gym would soon be completed. It cannot be done any too soon to suit the boys. Prof. Hinsdale, Dr. Prescott, Profs. Hemphill, Reed, and Lyman have the arrangements for the summer school in charge. The Oratorical Association of the U. of M. has challenged Northwestern to an oratorical contest. It will probably be accepted. The art recital last Friday night in Frieze Memorial Hall, under the direction of Prof. Trueblood, was a very delightful affair. The Wrinkle has an aching void in its board of editors and has a search light out for material with the proper amount of wrinkle. Yale may beat Harvard at football but she cannot outtalk Harvard as was shown by Harvard's winning in the oratorical contest last week. Prof. James A. Craig, of the University, has an article in Sunday's News-Tribune, of Detroit, on "Semitic Studies in the University of Michigan." Monday's U. of M. Daily contains a vigorous communication defending Mr. Wilcox in the position he took in his editorial in the last Monthly Bulletin. The U. of M. men and women in and about Berkeley, California, had a pleasant reunion at the home of Prof. and Mrs. Walter Miller on New Year's night. Tuition for the summer school has been fixed at ten dollars for each study. Fifteen per cent of this will go to the University for use of buildings and laboratories. The Republican Club will in the near future hold a meeting to make arrangements to attend the Michigan Club banquet to be given in Detroit on the evening of Feb. 22. The regents rescinded their order prohibiting the junior hop, to be held in the gym, to continue after 2 o'clock in the morning. Now the dance may go merrily on until daylight. The S. L. A. were disappointed by Rev. F. W. Gausaulus who was to lecture last Friday night. It is expected that he will be able to deliver his lecture sometime in February. F. E. Chamberlain roasts the U. of M. Daily for its criticism of those who have charge of the inter-university debate. He states that if the U. of M. editors had asked for information it would have been freely given. Prof. E. F. Johnson, of the law department, has the pleasure of knowing that an article which he wrote on "The American System of Pleading" was copied in full in the Law Journal of London, England. Prof. Kelsey lectured before the Philological Society last Thursday night on "A recently excavated house in Pompeii." The lecture was illustrated by stereoscopic views and was highly enjoyed by the large number present. G. A. Katzenberger, law '90, has just issued a second edition of the directory of his class. Considering the indifference so many people have for such things, Mr. Katzenberger is to be congratulated upon the amount of information which he has succeeded in securing about his classmates. The fund which, for the past ten or more years, the students have been raising with which to build a gym, or help to equip one should somebody see fit to give the amount necessary to put up the building has finally been turned over to the regents to be used in helping to purchase apparatus for the Waterman gymnasium. A Graduate Club has been organized by the graduate students and a number of professors in the University. The aim of the organization is "To create and foster a spirit of fellowship among its members, to stimulate an interest in graduate work and methods, and, by all possible means, to further the welfare of the graduate school of the University." The Oratorical Association has been very fortunate in securing for a lecture Judge Samuel C. Parks, of Winfield, Kansas. Judge Parks will be here tomorrow and will lecture in the law lecture room at 5 P. M. on "Lincoln as a Lawyer." Judge Parks was an intimate personal friend of Lincoln's for more than twenty years. He is a man of exceptional ability, which, coupled with his long and intimate association with Lincoln, will certainly make his address one of exceptional interest. Beginning with Sunday, Feb. 24, a new course of Sunday morning addresses will be given in Newberry Hall by representative men in the various lines of business. They are for the purpose of showing the relation of social and propriety of Christian living. The course will be as follows: Feb. 24, Prof. Barbour of the State Normal School; Feb. 25, ex-Governor Luce will speak on "Farming"; Feb. 26, Professor Graham Taylor, of Chicago, on "The Ministry"; March 11, Superintendent Perry of the Ann Arbor High Schools, on "Teaching"; March 18, N. W. Cheever, on "Citizenship"; April 1, E. F. Mills, on "Business"; and April 8, Professor Mechem, on "Law."

Social Doings.

J. L. Babcock and wife visited friend, in Jackson last week. Dr. J. L. Rose returned Tuesday from a business trip to Chicago. Miss Daisy King, of the Fifth ward is back from her visit in New York. ANN ARBOR.

SKETCHES OF OUR CITY.

Outlines and Incidents of Ann Arbor's Founding and Growth. Written Expressly for The Register by Prof. A. Ten Brook. XVI. THE NAMING. Various freaks have in all ages dictated the names of places. The man, for instance, who had charge of the surveys in Central New York, was either very familiar with the names of classic antiquity, or else had a classical dictionary at hand, and has almost exhausted the resources at command especially those of Rome, in the distribution of names. Utica, Ithaca, Delphi, Rome, Syracuse, Palmyra, Homer, Virgil, Cato, Manlius, Tully, together with the names of the lesser lights of the Republic even to those of Sempronius and Camillus, have been bestowed upon places in this section. Of the prominent Roman names only those of the Caesars were omitted, thus showing the intensity of the republican spirit which dictated the selection. The Revolution had succeeded, the American Republic had been established and the names of the Caesars, great as they were, since they had transformed the model ancient Republic into a military monarchy, were not to desecrate the soil of this section of our country. Another system, or rather, taste, has dictated the names of Michigan. Wash-tenaw, the name of our county, has been variously explained. Though it came through the Indians, the most generally accepted opinion is that it originated in an Indian corruption of the name of Washington. French and Indian names and those of American statesmen are prominent in the state. President Monroe's visit in 1817 probably suggested the naming of a county and village through which he passed on horseback on his return to the capital. In President Jackson's time counties were named after him, the Vice-president and all the members of the cabinet, so that we have the counties of Jackson, Calhoun, VanBuren, Cass, Ingham, Eaton, Barry, Branch and Berrien, if not named all at a batch, yet nearly so. But I return to Washtenaw. If we look for him who was really its first settler of European descent, we shall be obliged to ascribe the honor to the Frenchman, Gabriel Godfroy, who, in company with two other men, set up a house for trade with the Indians on the South side of the river where the village of Ypsilanti afterwards sprang up, and in 1825 the territorial legislative Council designated this house as the place to which the voters in Washtenaw county might resort to deposit their ballots for a territorial delegate to Congress. The settlement of the county really began about a mile below this place on the river. The place took the name of Woodruff's Grove from the leading man of a colony of five families who settled there in the Spring of 1823. When an organization was effected, the Greek Revolution was much talked of and the township took its name from the Greek General, Demetrius Ypsilanti, as I suppose, though there had been three other men of distinction in the family. The name belongs to modern, not ancient Greece. Classic antiquity is little honored in our names, though we have a township called Scio from one of Homer's numerous birth-places. Into sacred antiquity we go still further back for we have a township called Salem, the name of the city where the mysterious Melchisedec reigned in the days of Abraham. This Hebrew name, signifying Peace, was doubtless applied in this instance from the deep religious spirit of the first settlers in that town. About the time of the settlement of the county the people were reading O'Meara's Voice from St. Helena, and so named a township in honor of the young Corsican who led the French forces over the bridge at Lodi. For the naming of our city and township we should scarcely find a historic precedent. There can be no doubt in regard to the general facts about the naming, though speculations have varied in reference to details. There has been truth in all the views taken. People talk about the names of their children before the day of the christening. So in this case. The beautiful bur-oak grove spread over the whole plain, the aspect of particular clumps, festooned with the wild-grape vines, the first life under the sled-box, with its blanketing hangings and arboreous adornment, and the name Ann, common to the two women, all doubtless tended to fix the name of Ann's Arbor to the home; but it required something a little more formal to attach it to the township, and the future village and city, and I am glad to be able to state with no little assurance how this occurred. On the fourth of July 1825 there was here a celebration which drew together the population of the county. Ezra Maynard read the Declaration of Independence, Judge Dexter delivered the oration. The prayer and singing were not omitted, in which latter Mr. Maynard's daughters—there were six of them—took the leading part. Three hundred persons sat down to a dinner at Rumsey's Washtenaw Coffee House. Mr. Maynard and his wife wrote in glowing terms to their son, William S., then in Whitesborough, New York, describing the scene. Extracts from this letter tell the story. One little episode connected with the scene remains, however, to be told, and the evidence for it would soon die out if not recorded. Calvin Chipman, then of the town of Lima, was present, and years afterwards related the incident to Governor Felch. The two Anns, he said were there. They had had the chief merit in decking the natural arbor for the occasion; indeed the whole site of the town was then as yet arboreous; this merit was acknowledged, the naming of the future town was bespoken and a general assent, if not an acclamation fixed the name. So the 4th of July, 1825 may be regarded as the day of the Christening festival of our city. Mr. Chipman thinks this scene occurred near where St. Andrew's church now stands. Perhaps my future papers may show that the development of the city and its institutions has been as unprecedented in the history of civilization, as is the name Ann Arbor in geographical nomenclature. THE CHEAPEST IS NOT ALWAYS THE BEST. But the Pyramid Pile Cure is the Exception that Proves the Rule. It is the cheapest, and its record is every day proving it to be also the best. It has been before the public so long that if you have never heard of it, it is because you have never had occasion to inquire "What is the best pile cure?" In other words you have never suffered from piles or fistula, and if you ever do we simply want you to remember that the Pyramid Pile Cure is the best as well as the cheapest. It is the best because it will cure you without pain, without loss of time from your business, and because it not only gives instant relief, but the relief comes to stay; the cure is permanent. The Pyramid Pile Cure is not an experiment, please remember that also. The experimenting was done years ago, and is no longer needed, for we know that benefit is certain to follow in every case where this remedy is used. We make no impossible claims, and in a case of deep seated fistula a cure is not to be expected from any human agency, though even in such hopeless cases the Pyramid Pile Cure affords a most welcome relief from the terrible pain. But all this simply warns us to take a stitch in time, and when troubled with an ordinary case of piles, don't look upon it as a trifle which will pass away and leave no ill effects, but cure it while it can be done promptly and effectually.

What Is Your Recreation?

Perhaps a third of the time ought to be devoted by each individual to some serious business or work. Nobody has the right to live in this world and do nothing, though he or she is a millionaire many times over.

But when the day's serious task is over, then the worker will find the greatest good and refreshment in some study or secondary pursuit which will pull the mind out of its rut of thought and start it off upon a new road of exploration.

Gladstone reads classical literature, especially Greek, for one of his fads, and writes learned essays which are probably harder to read than they are for the great man to write.

A famous American artist spends all of every Sunday in the open air, taking long tramps in the country. He wears rough clothes and easy shoes so that what he has on will not trouble him, and thus he gains health and recreation from the trees, sunshine, air and open sky.

The Two New War Vessels.

During the same week on each side of this republic two magnificent new ships of our navy, the Olympia, off San Francisco, the Columbia, off Philadelphia, made their trial trips, and as soon as they receive their armament will be added to the war vessels already in service.

The Olympia was not meant for a fast ship so much as for a fighter. She has much heavier armor and heavier guns than the Columbia, although at the same time she is no slouch when it comes to swiftness.

Stead Approves of the Bible.

W. T. Stead of The Review of Reviews made a very religious address before an audience in the chapel of the University of Chicago not long ago.

Stead declares further that the old to the people of our time what the old Jewish prophets were to theirs, and that he himself considers that he succeeds just so far as he is able to incorporate the spirit of the Bible into his journal.

Don't think I am talking shop, but I have sometimes wished I could make a Review of Reviews edition of the Bible—that is, for the practical use of life.

If a Horse Could Talk.

The first words a horse would utter if he could talk would be: "Loosen that overdraw check. It is torturing me out of life. It injures my windpipe, weakens my knees, makes me stumble and stiffens the muscles of my neck so that I can never again straighten it, but after a year or two I must finish my brief career with a neck fixed in the shape of that of the worst looking rackabone that ever drew a rag wagon."

This country is large enough and varied enough as to its climate and productions to have an interesting exposition going on in some part of the year around.

The object lessons which have been given to public school pupils about how to get out of a burning building became in one instance too realistic.

A New York paper that prides itself on its superiority lately had a sprawling headline about the horse show as follows, "Equine Stars on Dress Parade."

CHAPTER II.

Mr. Lispenard sank into one of the rich chairs. It chanced to be a Venetian piece of furniture, and his gaunt frame and elderly visage, both so clearly touched by modern meanings, made an odd contrast with the velvet and carvings of this archaic seat.

"You said—horrible news—Uncle Crawford?"

Alonzo dragged forth the words while his gaze wandered among the tumultuous beauties of the room, though it possibly did so without seeing one of them.

"Yes, my boy. The firm has gone. It's been Chichester's work. No one knew. I think some woman has been dragging him into the whole horror—a middle-aged man like that! He's drawn enormous sums and gambled them away. It must have been going on for a good while. You see, I was careless about the books. I left all that to Chichester, my confidence in him was so perfect. I might, of course, have suspected. I knew that he lived high, belonged to fashionable clubs, entertained troops of friends. But there was so much money for his share that I never dreamed he could even spend his own income from year to year. And all the while he was plunging into your money, into your sister's, into mine. There's one Wall street operation alone by which he must have lost two millions. And he's been so infernally crafty with it all! Even in dying he showed a certain devilish shrewdness, waiting till the very last enjoyable moment before he killed himself."

"Killed himself," echoed Alonzo.

"Haven't you seen the evening papers?" replied his uncle. "Chichester was found in his bedroom at two o'clock to-day, shot through the head, and evidently by his own hand."

There was now a silence, during which Alonzo stole up to his uncle's side and began to stroke that gentleman's grayish locks and pat one of his shoulders with affectionate fervor.

"Uncle Crawford," he said, "you mustn't let this awful thing affect you too much. Now that I look at you closer I see just how jaded and upset you are. I'm so sorry for you—indeed, indeed I am."

Crawford Lispenard's eyes filled with tears. He was called by the world a rather frigid old celibate, and he was known to live a lonely and loveless life. Perhaps in thirty years he had never really wept until now.

"You're sorry for me, Lonzo?" he murmured. "And you don't think of yourself? You don't think—"

"Oh, yes, I do," the nephew broke in. He went and touched a bell, coming back to his uncle's side, with a faint, fluttered laugh leaving his lips. "That is, I'm beginning to think of myself. But it's all so strange, so dazing, don't you know?"

When his bell-touch was answered he said a few words to the servant, who presently brought a goblet of champagne, which he insisted on having his uncle sip. Then, when Mr. Lispenard had evidently felt the aiding effects of the stimulant, Alonzo went downstairs with him to his carriage. "I must turn up among my guests," he explained, "or they'll think this one of my rankest capers, and I'm always cutting up capers, at least everybody tells me so. There—go home, and I'll join you between now and ten o'clock, surely. Don't worry too much. Things may not be so frightfully bad for us, after all." And he insisted on going with his uncle down the stoop bareheaded into the biting air and closing the carriage door with his own hands.

Then he returned to his guests, who were wondering at his absence. He heard a voice whispering in his ears above the gay strains of the music.

"You've lost everything," said the voice; "you and Kitty are paupers!" But when he made light whither he had gone he made light answers, and in the very teeth of a generally announced departure he bade the musicians strike up a polka and danced at his merriest pace with two or three different partners.

The farewells now followed, and except for Kathleen, her mother, his sister, Mrs. Van Santvoord, and five or six other loiterers, the rooms were soon deserted.

"You're to dine with us this evening," Kathleen said to him.

"No—I can't."

"You can't! Why—has anything happened?"

"Yes," and he quickly told her of the suicide of his uncle's partner.

"It will cause great trouble, you understand—pecuniary trouble. I am afraid that there is disgrace behind the suicide. It looks as if Chichester had robbed the firm of large amounts." He hated to tell her that her wealth had vanished into air, though he felt securely certain that she would brim with compassion and devotion the moment that she learned the full truth. Had they not had many sweet confidential talks together before their engagement and since? And during such talks had he not seen straight into her frank, disinterested young soul? Long ago, however, he had realized that her mother was the essence of cold-blooded, mundane ambition, and that she had sanctioned her daughter's betrothal from motives that were in the main sordid ones.

"Don't mention money losses to your mother, my dearest," he said. "I would rather speak to her on that point myself." Then, with a meaning expression of her hand, he added: "If I don't see you again this evening I shall be wretched. But I must talk with Kitty, and after that my poor uncle, who is half-crazed by the suddenness of this blow, will need me at his house. Still, I will try to get to you, but if I fail forgive me and pity me!"

Very soon afterward Kathleen left with her mother. It chanced that Alonzo noted the parting look which Mrs. Kennaird swept about those luxurious rooms. It seemed to say, that look of hers: "My child will soon be installed here, mistress of all this grace and grandeur." And Alonzo, with a secret catching of the breath, bethought himself of the dizzy downfall which this woman's ambition must soon sustain. He pitied her; it was his nature to do that, and yet already he could feel his spirit stirred against her by forces of antagonism and revolt. What trouble might she not make, in her imperiously disappointed way, for the daughter whose bright nuptial future would have grown null? But thank Heaven, Kathleen's love was proof against all suasion of this merely sordid kind. Against that staunch fortress the maternal guns might thunder futile broadsides.

Just as Mrs. Van Santvoord was gliding from the room her brother and she met face to face. He had been downstairs, putting the Kennairds into their rather shabby hired carriage. His eyes were sparkling a little unwontedly, and he had not the least tint of color.

"Oh, Kitty," he said, "I forgot to tell you something. I wish you'd stay here about ten minutes or so longer, won't you?"

"Stay?" whined Mrs. Van Santvoord, and she looked toward the gentleman at her side. He was her latest caprice, and she rarely appeared anywhere without him. He had an amber mustache and babyish blue eyes.

"I've promised Mr. Pettigrew," she began, "that—"

"You'd walk home with him," finished Alonzo. "Jack will excuse you this once, I'm sure." And he laid a hand on the shoulder of Mr. Pettigrew, who instantly produced a smile that was a union of flawless teeth and two highly-developed dimples.

But when her "Jack" had gone and she was left alone in the vacated drawing-rooms with her brother, Mrs. Van Santvoord gave a long, bored sigh.

"I told them not to bring the carriage, Lonzo," she fumed, dropping into a chair. "Hector said he might turn up, but he hasn't, and you know he never does any earthly thing that he promises he'll do." So now you'll have to send me home in your carriage, for it's freezing cold outside, let alone being dark as pitch. And I ought to have got home an age ago. I refused the Bartholomew's dinner because it's a Patriarch's ball night. Oh, I know you're not going because for some reason the Kennairds haven't been asked. But that's nothing to me, Lonzo, you know, and I've promised to dance the cotillon with that dear, lovely Mark Manhattan."

"M—yes," replied Alonzo, musingly. "Is he the expected successor of Jack Pettigrew?"

"Lonzo! how can you!" reproached his sister. "The word 'successor' is perfectly insulting. I don't know what you mean by it!"

She was very pretty as she sat there before her brother, with her trim neat figure, her clear-cut, supercilious little blonde face, her Parisian gown and its harmonious adjunct of a jaunty bonnet. The late dance had given her cheeks a becoming pink tint; her eyes were apt to say of her that she was too pale, and perhaps a few of them said it because they wanted to tempt her into rouging, which would have been a salient peg on which to hang their slurs. The "Hector" to whom she had just referred was her husband, whom she had married when she was only eighteen, eloping with him for that purpose, and whom it was whispered that she now gave a handsome yearly allowance in the double capacity of letting her alone and not appearing to let her alone too much. "Hector has every conceivable vice," she had said, not long ago, to her brother, "except that of ineivility. He is so refreshingly polite to me. I dare say I might have tried to get a divorce from him three or four years ago, if it hadn't been for his beautiful manners."

Were the truth told about Kate Van Santvoord, it would have cast sad reflections upon her husband. She was one of those women who hunger, in their girlhood, for protective fondness, and to whom an early marriage is hence an agency teeming either with portentous misery or joy. Treated with decent marital respect she might have made an excellent wife; treated quite the reverse of that, she had turned wifehood into a travesty. The ailment of frivolity on which she fed had augmented her natural feebleness of character. She was like a child foraging in a box of sugar plums, which can be taken from it only with tragic shrieks and tears. Alonzo dreaded something of this sort now. And yet the box of sugar plums had to be taken away. There was no help for it.

"I always want to mean pleasant things when I talk with you, Kitty," her brother now replied. "I only wish that I could always mean to say them."

"You don't always try," she pouted, not at all comprehending him. "Just look how other women behave. I'd have you understand that I consider myself the pink of discretion."

"You should liken yourself to a lily, my dear, and not a pink. Like the lilies of the field, you toil not, neither do you spin. But I'm afraid, Kitty, your—your vacation is over."

"My vacation over?" she queried, lifting her brows, staring at him, for the first time perceiving that his face was colorless and that there were drawn lines near his lips. But still no real suspicion of the truth came to her. "Oh, dear," she exclaimed, "you're going to lecture me! You've heard something horrid about me and you've believed it."

Alonzo smiled sadly, and for a moment lowered his look. "I've heard something horrid about both of us," he said, "and I'm compelled to let you know what it is." Then, amid silence, he lifted his eyes, and soon added: "It concerns our money. There's been a great loss!"

"A great loss?" was her cry, as she started up. "When? Where? How? Do you mean that any of my money has gone?"

"Yes," and as she again reseat herself, agitated and frowning, he pursued: "Kitty, what will you do when you've heard the entire truth, since you deport yourself like this on the mere threshold of it?" He at once proceeded to tell her the entire truth, and some time before he had ended she was almost in sprints for breath.

"Oh! that vile Chichester! I always did detest him! He was commonness itself, with his twang, and his diamonds, and his negro coachman."

"I quite agree with you."

"He should never have been allowed in the firm," raved the sister of Alonzo. And then her rhapsody broke through her despair, in ludicrous contrast to it. "He didn't only have a negro coachman, but once I met him at Saratoga in the morning with a white evening necktie."

"And he has ended criminally, as might have been expected."

"Oh! you joke about it," moaned Mrs. Van Santvoord, bursting into tempestuous tears. "You'd joke at the cannon's mouth!"

"That would depend upon what the cannon's mouth happened to be saying."

But, Kitty, look here: Philosophy in these cases can't but prove the wisest course—

"Philosophy! Pooh!" She had jumped up from her chair and began an excited promenade, pausing and turning every few seconds with a swish of her silken skirt. "Philosophy can't pay one's tradespeople for one! To be poor is to be low and contemptible! Oh, you needn't talk! I know the pettiness and nastiness of an empty purse! See here, Lonzo!" and she suddenly shot up to his side and seized a lapel of his coat with trembling hand. "I shall go mad—I know I shall! I don't mean that it will break my heart, no doubt Hector did that, long ago, and I've been living on with the two pieces bumping one against another in my breast and perhaps making me the restless, feverish creature I am. But if it doesn't break my heart it will break my brain." She snatched her hand away from him as he tried to take it, and then stooped her head while pressing a palm against either temple. At the same moment she gave vent to a shrill, hysterical laugh. Alonzo caught her in his arms and almost carried her to a lounge. It was not till a good hour later that he accompanied her home in his own carriage.

Her exhibition of terrified weakness had not, after all, struck him as strange. It was just what might have been expected of a woman to whom the mere materialism of life had grown its dearest aim, its hardest fundament. Heroism, nerve, resignation, acceptance of unforseen ill, was not to be anticipated from such as she. And there were so many, he reflected, exactly like her. The very spinal cord of their feminine dignity and self-reliance was pride in the plethora of their pocketbooks.

"Thank God," he thought, while his sister's faint sobs broke above the rumbling wheels of the chill, dark carriage, "my Kathleen is made of sterner and better stuff!"

The Van Santvoords had lately gone into a spacious house on Fifth avenue, within almost a stone throw of the park. Kitty had grand ideas of the way one should live now, when one's income permitted—and hers had certainly challenged extravagance. But it was extravagance tempered by charming taste. She never entered her own carriage without having three men to attend her thither. The appointments of her home were splendor itself and yet free from the least vulgar taint. No one in town gave grander and yet choicer dinners, and her "house warming," a few weeks ago, was pronounced marvelous for its blending of elegance and discretion.

Quite soon after he had entered her handsome home with his sister, Alonzo met his brother-in-law and shook hands with him just as he had done hundreds of times before. But on no occasion, however, had the incident of either meeting or shaking hands with Hector proved at all agreeable. Alonzo's heart had no gloomy lairs in which hates could lurk comfortably, but it is doubtful if he ever came nearer to detesting any fellow mortal than he did in the case of Kitty's husband. Hector was to him a cold, hard, bright animal, openly voluptuous and secretly cruel. It was easy to see how any sentimental young girl might have fallen madly in love with his heroic figure and his diamond darkness. But to Alonzo the man was so brutally Philistine that he offered a constant personal explanation of his rankest follies. He had murdered all that was finest in his wife, and those who knew him best were well aware how strong a thrill of triumph had passed through him when Kitty's own imprudences had swelled into a striking offense against those whom he himself had committed. "I can hit back now, if she tries the divorce game," he had once brazenly said in an assemblage of intimates. The ribaldry reached Alonzo's ears, and did not tend to deepen his regard for its author.

On his own side Hector greatly disliked Alonzo. He considered him a person besotted with many pambysisms and fit only to loll at the feet of women sillier than himself. He thought that his pranks and capers were the most pointless bits of buffonery, and that he was never so much in his element as when the recipient of reluctant giggles from disgusted observers. More than once, during wrangles with his wife, he had aired opinions of this cutting sort as to her brother, and Kitty, "for the sake of peace," as women often put it to themselves, refrained from breathing a word of these savageries to Alonzo. Meanwhile, as at present, the two kinsmen continued to interchange civil greetings when accident placed them in each other's path.

"Dinner's been waiting ages," Hector Van Santvoord now said, following his wife and Alonzo into a small reception-room off the main hall, a nook that was all one tender bloom of rose color and silver. Hector himself was in full evening dress; the white at his throat became him, as it does most dark men with features clear cut.

His wife rested an arm on the mantel and stood there gazing downward, in mournful apathy. Alonzo began to draw off his gloves, and said, while doing so:

"I think that—Kitty had perhaps—a—suppose you—a—would dine out this evening."

He retained no idea of what words had escaped him a moment after he had thus spoken. It seemed necessary to break the awkward silence, and he had employed, with this purpose, a mechanical monotone.

Hector looked at his wife and shrugged his shoulders. "I told you, Kitty," he grumbled, "that I would dine at home—I might have sat down alone, after pausing for an answer and receiving none." "But it occurred to me that you'd possibly bring some one home with you—not Alonzo, but Jack Pettigrew, or some one like that." The sneer was evident and as she perceived it Kitty raised her eyes. While she did so her husband's look swept her face, and he plainly started.

"You've been crying," he said. "You're crying still. What's happened?" Kitty, as if for answer, threw herself on a sofa and buried her face. Alonzo went to the open door and quietly closed it.

"A good deal has happened," he said to his brother-in-law. And then, with his discourse broken by his sister's audible tears, he spoke for some time.

The end of what he said left Hector extremely pale. "Good God!" at length fell from him. "It's the most damnable thing! It's like—like a nightmare! I dare say I saw the suicide in the evening paper, but I always avoid reading those nasty things unless they're about people I know. And that fellow, Chichester—why, I'd forgotten he was in the firm at all."

THE REGISTER has received a copy of Mayor Pingree's annual message to the common council of Detroit. The document is decidedly characteristic of the man and is full of suggestions for radical changes in the municipal affairs of that city. Mayor Pingree is certainly stirring up the dry bones about the city and has already been instrumental in bringing about a number of decided improvements in the hub.

Washtenaw Democrats must be getting popular in Washington. This time it is Rev. M. M. Goodwin of St. Luke's church Ypsilanti, secures the position as a naval chaplain. Mr. E. B. Hall had a narrow escape from a disastrous conflagration last Sunday evening. At about 9 o'clock smoke was discovered in the house. Upon investigation it was discovered that the floor under the open fire place in the parlor was on fire. By the prompt attachment of a hose to a hydrant in the basement the fire was extinguished. Had the discovery not been made just when it was Mr. Hall's fine residence would doubtless have been entirely consumed.

An interesting case was tried in the justice court last Saturday morning. Ex-sheriff Chas. Dwyer sued Robert Martin, of Superior, for $10. Martin had asked Dwyer for the money during the last campaign. Dwyer claims it was a loan while Martin affirms that it was a donation to the campaign fund. Dwyer won and Martin is hot. Mutterings of a wild democratic row may be heard, while it is even possible that the party may lose one of its best politicians as a result.

Will some one tell us where the impetus, the business, the confidence, the gold and the finances are?—Ann Arbor Register.

Look here, Selby—come one side. Honestly now, ain't you planning a wholesale burglary?—Adrian Press.

Wholesale? Talk about wholesale in connection with the "business, the confidence, the gold and the finances" of this country at the present! The democratic administration has not left enough of all four to be combined and make enough to sell at retail.

LIBBY PRISON HIS FATE.

A Former Prisoner Visits It at the Fair and Meets His Death.

There was an incident in connection with the World's fair which occurred about a week prior to the fair's official closing that has not been so fully commented upon as it might have been. Among the visitors to the fair during the closing weeks was Marcus Conant from Mayport, Duval county, Fla. The object that had the greatest interest to him was the re-erected Libby prison. It is no wonder that he was interested in that exhibit, for as a wounded prisoner he had lain and suffered in the old prison when it stood in Richmond. As a boy of 18 Conant had a listed in the Eleventh Massachusetts regiment. He was wounded in the battle of Bull Run, was taken prisoner and was among the first Union soldiers placed in the Confederate prison house. He eventually made his escape and was not recaptured.

Immediately upon his arrival at the Chicago fair, Mr. Conant turned his steps to the spot on which Libby prison stood. What was his amazement on entering the place to meet among the visitors a companion who had been among the number of those who escaped with him from Libby 30 years ago. They held a long conversation, and after his companion had left the building Mr. Conant threw himself upon the ground in the identical spot upon which he had slept as a prisoner. While lying there he was seized with a violent pain in the ear and returned to his hotel in great agony. The pain could not be alleviated, and a few days later he died without having recovered from the singular attack.

Mr. Conant had for several years been a government contractor, and was at one time regarded as a man of large means. —New York Advertiser.

Two Ways of Seeing a Picture.

An artist had sold a picture for an exorbitant price, and the purchaser sued to recover. The barrister for the purchaser was making the artist uncomfortable by his questions.

"Now, sir," he said in that pleasant, ingratiating manner of lawyers with a witness, "do you think anybody could see beauty in that picture?"

"Some persons certainly could," replied the artist.

"You think the initiated in technical matters might have no difficulty in understanding your work?"

"I am sure they would not."

"Do you think you could make me see any beauty in that picture?" this most superciliously.

"Probably not now, sir," and the artist was most humble, "but once I could have done so easily."

"Now, sir, how is that? I don't understand you. Explain, if you please."

"That's quite easy, sir. I could have done it simply by employing you as my counsel in this case." —London Tit-Bits.

A Street Cleaning Scheme.

A street cleaning contractor says that the value of electric street railways as helps in keeping streets clean and watered is not yet appreciated. If his ideas were carried out early every morning, in a city like Boston large cars built after the fashion of the gravel cars run on steam roads would be sent over all the lines of track, and garbage and refuse, gathered along the way, shoveled into them. Following these cars would come large watering cars able to wet down the streets from curb to curb. The advantages of this system over the present one of carting off refuse and dragging watering carts by horses are that it is cleaner and faster. There would have to be no waiting for carts to go off and unload, and an item of saving would be in the reduction of the number of men needed, as, under the electric system, it is estimated that the work of street cleaning could be easily done by two-thirds of the number now employed. —Exchange.

UNCLE SAM, FLORIST.

A GLIMPSE OF THE BOTANICAL GARDEN IN WASHINGTON.

Finest Collection of Palms in the World. The Victoria Regia, a Lily Which Will Hold Up a Child—Plants Included Among Congressional Perquisites.

Uncle Sam's botanical garden in Washington occupies a tract of between eight and nine acres of land almost in the shadow of the capitol.

If you are a newly elected member of congress and have not been initiated into the full scope of your perquisites, you will probably receive within a short time after your arrival a letter from some person you never knew and never heard of, asking you for an order on the superintendent for some choice ferns, palms or hanging baskets to be filed at their own suggestion. Perhaps the letter comes from some resident of Washington, for there are many here who are on the outlook for new members of congress, especially those who do not bring their families with them, or it may come from one of your own constituents, who is well versed in all the congressional perquisites. So it will not be long before you learn that there is a vast variety of things beside seeds and congressional reports, which only await your order informing the custodians where the articles may be sent.

Each member of congress is entitled to a certain amount from the botanical garden each year, the kind and the amount being of course subject to the rules of the superintendent. If a senator should send for one of the rare specimens of palms or cactuses, it is very doubtful about the request being honored. The last specimen of a rare plant would not be given up under any circumstances. The most of the orders sent in are for roses, geraniums and blooming plants, of which there is a great supply. If the representative or senator prefers to have his quota of plants sent to his greenhouse in his native town or city, he is furnished by the clerk of the house of representatives with a wooden shipping box, in which the plants are securely packed and shipped by express to their proper destination.

Upon entering the botanical garden by the west gate you will notice on each side of the broad walk an endless variety of cactuses, in all of the varied conditions of growth and scatchiness. Some seem to grow after ideas peculiarly their own, as if their chief charm lay in their scrawny ugliness. Others are very pretty and would help wonderfully to adorn any conservatory or bay window. This avenue extends for about 250 feet, when the decorations of the avenue change, and you find yourself amid an avenue of palms.

You may have hurried by the great variety of cactuses, but you will certainly loiter along among the choice collection of palms gathered from every quarter of the globe where palms grow. The largest of all the conservatories is the palmhouse, with its immense dome shaped roof. The building has to be a large one to accommodate some of the immense palms which it contains, many of which are 40 feet high. Here you will find palms from Mexico, Brazil, Central America, South America New Caledonia, Australia and the South Sea islands; palms with long trunks, palms with thin leaves, with broad leaves, with long names and with short names, that you read and forget with an ease that is wonderful, so that the most you carry away with you is a memory that you have seen the largest variety of palms in the world.

In the large basin, 90 feet in diameter, is the Bartholdi fountain, which was purchased at the Centennial exposition of 1876 by the library committee for the Botanical garden. The fountain is of cast iron and cost $6,000. In the basin of the fountain grows the Victoria Regia, the largest species of water lily in the world. The lily is an annual, and as the season in Washington is too brief for the lily to reach its maturity, the seed has to be imported each year. The plant is a native of Brazil, and the seeds are imported in water, for if they were kept dry during the length of time which would be required for transportation the seeds would be worthless. In August the Victoria Regia is in its full glory, and it is during this month that the amateur photographer delights himself by posing a small child upon one of the immense leaves. By this novel experiment we are better able to judge of the size of this giantess of the lily family.

Among the other wonders of the botanical garden is a large bed of elephant grass, which grows to the height of 15 or 20 feet. As a rapid growing plant this grass seems to be the first in its class, but during the winter season it dies down to the roots. When in blossom, the bed looks like a small section of the jungle transplanted to American soil.

The trees in the botanical garden have been selected more with a view to their adaptability to the soil and climate and to their worth as shade trees rather than to illustrate peculiar kinds or varieties of trees, and altogether the general effect of the transplanting has been very successful, in that the requisite amount of shade has been secured as well as a harmonious touch of general embellishment of the garden. —Boston Herald.

Mixed Metaphor. "Brethren," said an earnest exhorter to a body of religious workers, "brethren, remember that there is nothing which will kindle the fires of religion in the human heart like water from the fountains of life." —Springfield Republican.

LITERARY NOTES.

The third volume of the new and complete edition of Pepys' Diary was published by Macmillan & Co. early in December. This most delightful of books has enjoyed a steady sale ever since its discovery, and a complete edition of it has been eagerly awaited.

The January Harper's Magazine counts among its attractive features the sketch of Mr. George du Maurier's novel, "Trilby," with his own illustrations; the concluding paper describing and illustrating Mr. Edwin Lord Week's journey across Persia by caravan; "The West and East Ends of London," by Richard Harding Davis; a short story of New York life, by Mr. Brander Matthews; and a tale of the Wild West, by Mr. Owen Wister, called "Balaam and Pedro." Harper & Bros., New York, N. Y.

The reduction in the price of The Forum (from $5 a year to $3; from 50 cents a copy to 25 cents) which took place with the December number, incidentally caused so great an increase in the demand that within a fortnight a fifth edition was called for. One of the best and impartial reviews of the whole Hawaiian question by Mr. James Schuber, the well-known historian, who writes not for the sake of controversy, but to tell the facts of the whole condition and set them forth in their proper proportion. Forum Pub. Co., New York, N. Y.

One of the features of The Popular Science Monthly for 1894, will be a series of articles on the evolution of ethics, by Prof. E. P. Evans. The first of this series, dealing with The Ethics of Tribal Society, is to open the January number. One of the illustrated articles is an account of How the Sea is Sounded, by G. W. Littlehales, of the U. S. Hydrographic office. The pictures include the modern sounding cylinder and weight, the Sigsbee machine, and views of sounding and dredging operations. D. Appleton & Co., New York, N. Y.

One of the recent books that in part attempts to offer some explanation for the recent hard times, is by Erastus Wiman, and is entitled, "Chances of Success." It is made up of episodes and observations of interest to all as giving the personal experience of a keen observer and practical business man. It does not attempt to arrange them according to any economic system, or in a philosophic order. It is readable and valuable as a book of practical suggestions to young business men. An index adds considerably to its usefulness. The trade supplied by the American News Co.

Mrs. Clifford Kimber will soon publish a text-book on Anatomy and Physiology for Nurses, in connection with Louise Barthe. Miss Kimber's experience as assistant superintendent in both the New York city and the Illinois Training School for Nurses, has led her to undertake the work. It is designed to fill a middle place between the text-book written for medical students and that for the use of children in schools. The subject is presented in a scientific manner, but the technicalities which discourage the average student have been, as far as possible, avoided. Macmillan & Co., New York City, N. Y.

Scribner's Magazine for January marks the beginning of the fifteenth volume. The first great fiction feature for the year is the serial, "John March, Sanitarian," by George W. Cable, the author of "Old Creole Days." This is the first long novel that Mr. Cable has published in many years, and is a most dramatic story of the new South. The opening chapters reveal Mr. Cable's sympathetic style and clear characterizing at their very best. Serial stories, by J. M. Barrie and George Meredith are announced to begin later. Another feature of this year will be a series of special frontispieces selected by the eminent art critic, Philip Gilbert Hamerton, to represent the tendencies of contemporary art. Each picture will be accompanied with a brief article by Mr. Hamerton, and portrait of the artist whose painting is reproduced. Chat. Scribner's Sons, New York, N. Y.

TWELVE THOUSAND CATARRH PATIENTS.

Treated Absolutely Free of Charge by Dr. Hartman.

The announcement made in many of the leading papers of the United States last November that Dr. Hartman, of Columbus, Ohio, would undertake the treatment of 10,000 catarrh patients free was thought by many who would have gladly availed themselves of his offer to be a mistake. Nevertheless it was a fact; and already the 10,000 have applied and are already taking the first month's treatment. The elaborate preparations which the doctor made, and the great number of assistants required to carry on this undertaking, makes it possible for him to extend the number to 12,000. Therefore 2,000 more names will be accepted as regular patients. All that is required of the patient is to send name and address to Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and complete directions for the first month's treatment will be sent at once. No charge is made at any time.

Free Medical Books on catarrh, la grippe, coughs, colds and consumption will be sent prepaid for a short time to any address by The Peru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, of Columbus, Ohio.

A SUSPICIOUS JUDGE.

What Will Do It?

Medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will reach the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh is proof positive that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has matered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. Our druggists keep it.

His Fear.

Warranted to Keep.

"Tom has been awfully good to me. Since we have been engaged he has given me a watch, several rings, and lots of other beautiful things." "And have you reciprocated?" "Oh, yes; I gave him a box of cigars a month ago. He says he smoked one and kept all the rest ever since."—Brooklyn Life.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders or astringents, because they are irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces, and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm. Your druggist has it.

Javanese Music.

The Javanese musical instruments are made mostly of bamboo. They also played upon a pipe, or whistle, which was about 3 feet long and 6 inches across. This sounded like the hollow roar of a lion. Another was a bundle of tubes of different lengths, which covered the small boy who carried it like a big saddle. A log hewn out with two strings stretched across it served as a drum. A zither of 16 strings and a mandolin of two completed their outdoor band, while inside one could hear other music made by gongs of wonderfully pure and beautiful tone.—St. Nicholas.

Made Him Tired.

"Whenever I see a sarsaparilla advertisement for that tired feeling, it reminds me of the Turkish village at the World's fair," remarked a Toledo man reflectively.

"How so?" asked a friend. "Well, I happened to see a handsome glovebox of some eastern wood as I was passing through that Turkish village, and I stopped and asked the price of it. "Three dollars," said the Turk. "I'll give you $2.50," said I. "Three dollars." "Two dollars and a half." "He said he would go and ask the proprietor about it, and when he returned he said, 'The proprietor says you can have it for $2.75.' "Two dollars and a half," said I firmly.

"The Turk rolled up the box in a piece of paper. "Here," he said, 'take it for $2.50. This is the first box we have sold as cheap as that.' "There was a woman standing next to me, and while the clerk was at the rear making change she said: "Did you buy one of those gloveboxes?" "Yes," I answered politely. "How much?" "Well, he wanted $3, but I wouldn't pay any such price as that, and I only gave $2.50."

"Two and a half, hey?" she said pityingly. "I bought one yesterday and only paid $1.75. It was two sizes larger than yours too."

"I didn't answer. Outside in the Midway I saw a man renting campstools with three inch seats for 2 cents an hour. I went out and hired one and sat down in the shade."—Detroit Free Press.

Light Wanted. The professor of the chair of political economy had talked to the class an hour and a half.

SAILED THE SEAS 38 YEARS.

One of His Experiences.

For thirty-eight years Capt. Loud followed the sea, most of that time as master of a vessel, and upon retiring from the water was appointed by the Secretary of the United States Treasury to superintend the seal fisheries in Alaska, which position he held five years. He relates one experience as follows: "For several years I had been troubled with general nervousness and pain in the region of my heart. My greatest affliction was sleeplessness; it was almost impossible at any time to obtain rest and sleep. Having seen Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine I began using it. After taking a small quantity the benefit received was so great that I was positively alarmed, thinking the remedy contained opiates which would finally be injurious to me; but on being assured by the druggist that it was perfectly harmless, I continued it together with the Heart Cure. Today I can conscientiously say that Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and New Heart Cure did more for me than anything I had ever taken. I had been treated by eminent physicians in New York and San Francisco without benefit. I owe my present good health to the judicious use of these most valuable remedies, and heartily recommend them to all afflicted as I was."—Capt. A. P. Loud, Hampton, Me. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and New Heart Cure are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5, express prepaid. They are free from all opiates and dangerous drugs.

A lady can easily lift it on and off the stove, as it weighs about twenty-five pounds. It has interchangeable galvanized wire cloth trays, which will not rust or discolor the fruit, etc., and will last for years. It is made of iron, except tray frames and supports. Can be used for broiling beefsteak, fish, etc., using the lower tray for this purpose.

No one can describe its merits unless they try one. It is worth the price asked for it for corn alone. Yours truly JNO. F. JOHNSON.

is an arbitrary word used to designate the only bow (ring) which cannot be pulled off the watch.

The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendulum (stem) and fits into the groove, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

It positively prevents the loss of the watch by theft, and avoids injury to it from dropping.

IT CAN ONLY BE HAD with Jas. Boss Filled or other watch cases bearing this trade mark—

All watch dealers sell them without extra cost. Ask your jeweler for pamphlet, or send to the manufacturers.

AUTUMN ON THE HALF SHELL.

As usual, the leaves are brown, And all the meads are yellow. The mossy boughs are bending down With apples red and mellow. Along the winding orchard wall The breezes bear the thistle, And round the wayside buttonball The quail begins to whistle. A breezy curtain blurs the sky And makes it sad and murky, And now we dream of pumpkin pie And contemplate the turkey. There is a pathos in the air, That fills the ice-man with despair And charms the chestnut vender. The land is purple with the grape And with the cornstalk tawny, Which sets the small boy all agape And grinning like a Pawnee. The popcorn's popping with a pop That's musical and pleasant, And luscious is the lush porkchop And lush the upland pheasant. Oh, season of the cloth of gold, When all is sweet and stilly, And blooming in the ashen wold Is neither rose nor lily; O season calm, whose blooming star Is e'er the lilac gentian, Indeed your subtle beauties are Too numerous to mention! —R. K. Munkittrick in Puck.

A CLEVER RUSE.

It was in the days of the black flag, and of the nimble keel coppers to the bends, and of that square of blood red bunting which when run aloft to the maintopmast head signified "No quarter!" A round bow'd Bristol trader, a bark of about 400 tons, three months out from the Avon and bound to Savanna la Mar, lay helpless off that Jamaica port in what is known to sailors as a "sheet calm." The water floated like a breast of liquid glass, and a solemn, long drawn heave or swell ran through it. The Bristol trader, in strict correspondence with her proportions, rolled very uncomfortably indeed from side to side, bringing her wide spaces of canvas into the mast with many savage sounding whacks, until the atmosphere all about seemed filled with the noise of exploding artillery. The heat was intense; the hour about 2 in the afternoon. The dark blue land about Blewfield's bay swam in the steamy haze and brayed as though it lived. Seaward the junction of heaven and water was scarcely distinguishable in the parched and brassy air. The land went sloping into mere films, and nothing showed upon the face of the ocean save a large cutter rigged vessel, lifting and sinking upon the swell at the distance of about two miles away from the Bristol trader in the direction of Blewfield's bay. "Mr. Jenkins," said the master of the Bristol ship, "drop the hand lead over the side and observe the vessel's drift." This was done and the rate of drift reported. "Sir," said Mr. Rogers, the captain, to his mate, "it is not my intention to founder upon a bottom of coral or go to pieces on St. John's point. Clew up and haul down everything tight and let go the anchor." These orders were duly executed. The seamen made the decks busy with their fingers in active motion, and the chain cable roared hoarsely as the weight of the big anchor swept it smoking through the hawsepipe. Some half dozen male passengers—women there were none—lunched upon the little poop in the sultry shadow cast by the awning. It was disheartening to see the narrow entrance to Savanna la Mar almost within reach of a 24 pounder's throw of its ball, and to be as little able to enter it as to walk to it. "How long is this going to last?" exclaimed a planter. "Perhaps a week, sir," answered Captain Rogers, a large, short, purple faced man who hated to be asked questions. The planter rolled the yellow "whites" of his eyes to the heavens and tossed his hands, with a malediction betwixt his teeth. "What's that yonder, coming round that corner of land?" exclaimed another passenger, pointing to the line of coast which the rolling cutter lay becalmed abreast of. Captain Rogers went to the companion way, picked up the ship's telescope and leveled it. "A picaroon!" he exclaimed, and the roar of his voice went in thunder along the decks as he bawled to his lievelies to tumble up and load the cannonades, and to see all ready with the small arms, and to stand by to sink the scoundrels should they dare attempt to board the ship. But it was speedily evident that the pirate's quarry was the cutter, and not the Bristol merchantman. The picaroon was a long, black schooner, setting very low in the water, heavily rigged, showing not an inch of canvas as she stealthily crawled over the burnished blue heave to the impulse of her long oars, or "sweeps," as though she were some gigantic marine reptile forging her way through it with movements of her antennae. The cutter rolled helplessly, with an occasional blazing flash sunward as she lifted her wet, sparkling copper out of the water. On a sudden, however, and as though the men aboard her had but just waked from sleep, down dropped her swinging, big mainsail, flated quietly over, and she made in the direction of the Bristol trader, slipping her cable as she rounded, without stopping to buoy her anchor. But the picaroon buzzed fast in her wake. A puff of white cloud occasionally broke from her bow, and the black ball, ill aimed, went skimming ahead of the cutter in the direction of the Bristol merchantman like a parched pea along a table. Before the cutter had measured half a mile the pirate was alongside and lashing the vessels together for boarding as a spider revolves a fly in its web before trotting aloft to dine off it in its hole. There was some small crackling of blunderbusses and pistols, shouts faint in the distance and a little lifting of white smoke. The business was then ended, and with true pirate celerity the schooner was making for the blue heave with the unhappy cutter towing and rolling and flashing in her wake. This thievish piece of work had been rattled off with helpless wrath by Captain Rogers and his ship's company and with no small alarm by the passengers. The captain said he could swear to the schooner. She was the wickedest of all the picaroon pests of those waters. He pronounced her name, and his face was full of blood with temper as he did so. An hour later an inshore breeze sprang up. The anchor was swiftly heaved up to a cheery chorus, and the Bristol trader was steered for the narrow passage to receive a pilot for Savanna la Mar. By sundown the ship was moored in harbor, and everything was made snug for the night. A considerable number of vessels happened to be assembled in the port, and the picture was one of beauty and color when, on the sinking of the sun and to the blast of a heavy piece of ordnance, some score or two of radiant streaks of bunting descended fluttering to the deck from peak and masthead. At 8 o'clock Captain Rogers went ashore to smoke a pipe in a hotel that was much frequented in those days by seafaring gentlemen. He entered a hot, long room in which already a number of captains, mates and such folk were assembled. The atmosphere was thick with tobacco smoke. Much was made of Rogers as a man newly arrived from England. One thing leading to another, our captain presently referred to the picaroon incident he had witnessed outside the port. "That schooner was undoubtedly the Santa Margarita," exclaimed a shipmaster. "The cutter was from Kingston," said another. "All the owner has in the wide world was in her. He is a ruined man, I fear," and he fetched the table a mighty thwack with his great fist as he heaped a variety of sea blessings upon the pirate schooner. "The impudence of that Santa Margarita," exclaimed a mate, a quiet, sober faced man, "goes beyond all invention! She walks off with the droghers as a boy with apples out of a field, and stoops to such filthily, mean work as plundering the poor John Canoes."

"She was playing just the same pranks when I was last here," said Captain Rogers. "Has there been nothing about these waters of late? How is it that the epaulets are allowing this little cruiser to have it all her own way?" "The Firefly was down here on a cruise three or four weeks ago," said one of the captains, "and chased the Margarita for six hours. I'd have thought she would have loitered till she'd snugged the gang of cutthroats under her own hats."

"She was called away to carry dispatches," said some one. "The Firefly is not a patch on the Margarita in sailing," exclaimed a shipmaster. "I'm jinked if she didn't scandalize her mainsail out of sheer bravado when the Firefly was winking at her with a bow chaser a couple of miles astern dead in her wake!" "That's where it is!" cried Captain Rogers. "If it was not for the greased lightning of the beggar's keel, I'd offer my ship to chase her with and take my chance of a shindy at home for detention if I was long in catching her. But bless me, gentlemen! There's nothing in this port, there's nothing commanded by any of you, that's going to look at her in a breeze of wind, while in a dead calm—why, she came buzzing into this afternoon from round the corner like a 10 oared galley to the thrust of her long sweeps!"

"Yet we ought to nab her, friends," he concluded, "we ought to nab her. Her existence is a standing degradation to the red flag of our country. A thought occurred to me this afternoon while I was watching her walking off with the cutter. Are we all true men here?" He rose as he spoke the words and took a critical survey of the people round about him. Indeed he had need to be wary, for often it happened that the picaroons of those days were secretly owned or employed by persons who were esteemed of good standing and credit in the West Indian colonies.

But all the people in the long room this night were Englishmen and sailors. Every man could have named the ship he belonged to. Being satisfied on this head, Captain Rogers communicated his scheme. It was very warmly received. The offers of assistance were far in excess of the requirements of the little conspiracy. For an hour or so the matter was debated, and the company then dispersed, with the understanding that all was to be in readiness by sunset the next evening.

At the hour when the sun sank the next day a large sloop, hoisting her mainsail and stay foresail, flated quietly out of the harbor through the narrow passage before a weak offshore breeze. The vessel was about five and twenty tons burden, rigged with one mast and had been lately employed in carrying sugar along the coast. She was unarmed. Her flash deck swept clear from the taffrail to the "eyes."

The night that followed sundown was one of rich tropic beauty. The moon was at her full. Her wake flowed in a river of greenish splendor across the black surface of the water, but the night beam was so clear and piercing that the eye easily followed the hard, firm sweep of the line of the horizon. When the sloop had gained an offing of about two miles, the weak breeze scanted, then fell dead, and the hush of the night, solemn with its beauty, came down upon the sea. The sloop let go her anchor, but kept her sails hoisted, and the witeness of the cloths in the light of the moon was like a beacon of white fire delicately burning a long way off on the ocean. It was remarkable that though about midnight a light breeze sprang up, the sloop showed no disposition to get her anchor and make a second start for her destination, wherever that might be. Her sails trembled in the wind. They were useless, yet she kept them aloft. Seemingly her notion was to be under
