GREAT MUSICAL EVENT.

WILL MAKE AN EPOCH IN THE HISTORY OF ANN ARBOR.

Laws. - The Castalian. - Memorial Day. -Y. M. C. A. State Convention.-Unity Club. - Getting Scared.

Ann Arbor is fast becoming recognized as an important musical center, and the Music Festival this week emphasizes a fact long known to our music lovers, though possibly not appreciated fully by the public at large. At this Festival, Miss Emma Juch, Mrs. Rose Stewart, Sopranos; Miss Gertrude May Stein, Contralto; Mr. E. C. Towne, the Castalian and set everybody on the Tenor; Max Heinrich, Baritone; Mr. Arthur Friedheim, the greatest Liszt player in the world; Mr. Fritz Giese Cellist and Mr. Felix Winternitz, Violinist, are announced as soloists. The Boston Festival Orchestra, Emil Mollenhauer, Conductor and the magnificent chorus of the University Musical W. Waterman, Prof. A. A. Stanley, Society, the Choral Union, (280 voices) Judge T. M. Cooley, and the late Dr. also form not inconsiderate factors in the list of forces engaged. The concert takes place on Friday evening, May 18, at 8 P. M., this being a Symphony Concert. The 19th, an Orchestral Matinee at 2:30 P.M. and the initial performance biographical sketches of well-known gressional directory up to date would in the state of the celebrated "Manzoni" Requiem by Verdi will be given in the evening at 7:30. In this work the chorus, orchestra, Miss Juch, Miss Stein, Sheldon Barnes, Charles F. Brush, of Messrs. Towne and Heinrich will take part. The sale of tickets is already brisk, and everything points to a great Octavia Williams Bates, and Hon. success. Now the probabilities are that this will be simply one in a series of great events which will be sure to draw the attention of people in the state to Ann Arbor and its great advantages in Alvick A. ## Professor Griffin.

A very pathetic scene occurred in the law lecture room last Monday morning. It was the occasion of the return of Prof. Griffin from Washington to complete his lectures before the senior law class. engine was taking coal, the fireman being off the engine, when it was suddenly surrounded by fifteen of the men under Gen. Sanders, who came in from Crippie Greek as a Coxey band. They took the engine and ran the locomotive down to the Missouri Pacific yards, where there were six coal cars. The whole band boarded these cars, and attaching the Rio Grande engine started for the east at a lively gait. The en-gine passed Nespeta going fifty miles an hour. The superintendent ordered an engine and car overturned in a cut at Olney so the runaways can get no further than that point. A train started from Pueblo with deputy marshals and thirty officers to overtake the band. The seizure prevented the movement of United States mails.

LATER.—The Coxeyites passe the obstruction at Olney by building a track around it. They encountered another at Arlington, where four engines had been ditched, but they also built around this. At Ordway the water in the stolen engine gave out and the "industrials" were obliged to Topeka, Kan.: A special train bearing Bailey P. Waggener and other officials of the Missouri Pacific came here from Atchison, and is awaiting the arrival of Marshal Neeley, who is on his way frem Fort Scott. It is the plan, when he arrives, to gather a force of deputy marshals and start west over the Missouri Pacific to intercept Sanders. Mr. Weggener has made application to Gov. Lewelling for his influence in gathering together an effective force of deputy marshals, and the governor said he would take the matter under advisement.

Information was received later that the army had reached Covington, near the western state line. Their coal and water supply was exhausted and they had gone into camp. The industrials continued on their

SENATE, -121st day, -The credentials of Sen-tor-elect Gear, of Iowa, were presented by Senator Allison, and were tabled. The tariff fill was taken up. Mr. Hoar took the floor and ing that Democratic Senators who would support the compromise bill agreed upon by the Democratic caucus would violate the constitution and their oaths. This statement brought Mr. Grey to his feet. He demanded to know what the Massachusetts Senator meant by such a charge—a charge, he said, which was unworthy of Mr. Hoar. "Very well," said Mr. Hoar, "I cannot be intimidated by a little bluster. But I will explain. I meant to say that for a Democratic Senator who subscribed to the dectrine of the Chicago platform that a tarif for protection was robbery, who went to the people affirming his allegiance to that platform, and who now comes here seeking and obtaining protective duties, I mean to say that for such Senator there is no escape from the logic that he violates both his Senatorial oath and the constitution." Senator Gray made a very bitter reply. Senator Palmer, of Illinois, also scored Mr. Hoar for his remarks and declared that the tariff bill before the Senate, while not all that was desired by all Democrats, was infinitely better than the Mckinley bill. Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, the author of the old war tariff, white haired and bent with age, arose in his place, a smile playing about the corner of his lips. As he had on previous occasions said something in derogation of the Democrat tariff measure he desired now to say something in approbation. The four hundred amendments to the tariff bill now offered, he said, showed that after listening to Republican speeches for six weeks the Democratic Senators had learned something. If the tariff bill were laid aside for a month and that month were devoted to study by his friends on the other side of the chamber he thought that at the end of that time they would bring in a bill which would be perfectly acceptable to the Republican side, and which would pass the Senate unanimously. The Senate seemed to enjoy the playful joke. Senator Quay, of Pennsylvania, appeared from behind a pile of manuscript and resumed the speech he has been delivering since April 15. House.—Th

SENATE.—122d day.—At the conclusion of the routine business Mr. Alien, of Nebraska, called up his resolution for the appointment of a special committee to investigate the police interference with the Coxey demonstration on the capitol steps May I. Mr. Allen spoke with feeling. Mr. Sherman replied and then the tariff bill was taken up. There was a running discussion of that measure by Messrs. Jones, of Arkanass; Chandler, Vest, Hale, Harris and Mills. Mr. Lodge offered his amendment to impose double dutes in the colonies of Great Britain until that country should agree to an international ratio for the coinage of silver. Mr. Harris insisted upon his motion to lay the amendment on the table which was done, 31 to 20, a strict party vote. Mr. Teller offered a substitute for Mr. A.—2 resolution for an investigation of the arrest of the commonweal leaders and then the senate went into executive session. House—The only feature of interest was the discussion in committee of the whole of the naval appropriations bill.

SENATE.—123d day.—A bunch of La France roses graced the desk to be occupied by Mr. Patton, the new Senator from Michigan, appointed to succeed the late Senator Stockbridge. Some routine business was transacted. Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, introduced a bill to repeal the act regulating the use of the capitol grounds under which Coxey and his ieutenants were prosecuted. The resolution to investigate the alleged police clubbing on May I, then came up, but no action was taken. The tariff bill was next called up. Several amendments of the chemical schedule were discussed. At 2:40 the debate was interrupted in order to allow Mr. Patton, the new Senator from Michigan, to be sworn in. At 5:10 o clock the House resolutions on the death of Representative Brattan, of Maryland, were adopted, and the chair appointed a committee to attend the funeral, and the House mea. Senate—124th day.—Mr. Quay introduced a bill "to establish a code of laws in the District of Columbia," and asked its reading, but it was returned to him. Mr. Allen tried hard to secure some action on his Coxey investigation resolution, but in vain. Mr. Peffer's industrial depression resolution was briefly discussed and then the tariff bill was taken up. The chemical schedule was first, and the Jones "compromise" amendment to change the duty on boracle acid from 20 per cent ad valorem to 2 cents per pound was adopted. Mr. Chandler said in his opinion it was unwise to go ahead with the consideration of the tariff bill, until the Senate and the country was informed upon what principle the bill was framed. It had been changed, torn and patched with protective tariff, free trade and revenue tariff duties until it was neither fish, fiesh, fowl, nor good red herring. The Jones "compromise" amendments on chromic, citric and tannic acids were adopted—the Republicans voting with the Democrats, and only Mr. Mills, of Texas, voting against them. House.—The general appropriations bill in committee of the whole and private pension bills in the evening.

Senate.—125th day.—A considerable amount of business of purely local or personal interest was disposed of before the tariff bill was taken up for discussion. Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, said that despite the fact that for years this chamber had rung with a Democratic denunciation of the sugar trust, the Democrats, save and excepting one, had agreed, so he understood in caucus, to vote for a prohibitive duty on reined sugars. Surely Democratic tariff reformers must be hard driven when they were forced to swallow the words and opinions of years. Mr. Platt's observations on the sugar trust ruffled some of the Democrats and he was soon engaged in a controversy. A few items of the chemical schedule were disposed of, and in each case the amendments agreed to were those from the Jones "compromise. House.—"District Day." The only important bill passed was one giving the Washington, Alexandria & Mt. Vernon Electric Raflway company an entrance into Washington. The resignation of Representative Barnes Compton, of Maryland, was laid before the House, after which a bill was passed authorizing a bridge over the Monongahela river at Homestead, Pa.

TALMAGE BURNED OUT.

The Famous Brooklyn Tabernacle Destroved-A Loss of Over $1,000,000.

Just after the morning service and while Dr. Talmage was shaking hands with members of his congreation, flames burst out between the pipes of the organ and within 10 minutes the big tabernacie, at Brooklyn, N. Y., was doomed to destruction. Adjoining the church was the Hotel Regent, eight stories in hight, with a frontage of 90 feet on Clinton avenue and extending back 200 feet to Waverly avenue. The fire spread from the Tabernacle to this hotel and then to the dwelling houses on Greene avenue and Waverly avenue opposite the church. The wind carried the blazing cinders in such quantities in a southeasterly direction that dwelling houses on Washington avenue, two squares away and also the Summerfield Methodist church were set on fire by them. The total loss reaches over $1,000,000.

It was nearly 20 minutes before the firemen arrived on the scene and then half a hundred streams of water were turned upon the blazing pile. But the church was doomed and every effort was devoted to saving adjoining property. In three hours only the bare walls of one of the costlest structures of Brooklyn remained standing. Within half an hour the magnificent Hotel Regent was seen to have joined the Tabernacle on the road to destruction. The guests in the hotel had lost no time in making their escape. They waited only to snatch up a few valuables and run, but wearing apparel and other effects had to be left to the greedy flames. The loss on the Hotel greedy flames. The loss on the Hotel Regent is placed at $850,000 by the manager, but this will be largely increased by the individual losses to the guests. The loss on the church is not far short of $500,000. Russell Sage, who has a mortgage of $125,000 on the church property and is also the owner of the site on which it stood, is fully increased. insured.

The trustees of the Tabernacle have decided to rebuild the church, but not on the same site. The insurance and other available assets would enable them to pay off all their debts. Then according to the plan, they would raise $200,000 and within a year would begin to build. About $70,000 it was thought would be sufficient to pay for a site and a less expensive building would be erected. It was decided that Dr. Talmage's tour around the world should begin as arranged; to start for Phila-delphia and proceed from there to At-lanta, Ga. After visiting some southern cities he will go to San Francisco and will sail from there to Honolulu, going afterwards to New Zealand, Australia, England and other foreign countries.

POPULAR? BECAUSE LADIES BUY THEM LIKE THEM AND TELL THEIR FRIENDS.

Many ladies have used our machines twenty to thirty years in their family work, and are still using the original machines we furnished them a generation ago. Many of our machines have run more

LITERARY NOTES.

The Century for May has a story of from the pen of Major Wilburn Hall, any unluckier than any other? You who was her prize captain, but now the American Consul at Nice. In the same number also Thomas A. Janvier, or Ivory Black, tells a most entertaining story entitled "A Loan of Half-Orphans," in which his humor takes on a broader spirit and a more rollicking abandon than usual. Among the more solid articles is Theodore Roosevelt's on "The Common Sense of Civil Service Reform."-The Century Co," N. Y.

In the May number The Forum continues the discussion of "Current Plans for Reforming Society," and this time the subject taken up is the demand for State aid for the unemployed. Dr. Stanton Coit, perhaps the most eloquent and enthusiastic practical worker for the alleviation of poverty, in the whole country, argues for the necessity of State aid, whereas Mr. D. Mc Gregor Means, the well-known political economist of New York, presents arguments to show the dangerous absurdity of this policy. These articles form a very able discussion of the subject which in one form or another presents itself in every part of the United States, viz. What can the State do, and should it do anything, to releive the unemployed?- Forum Pub. Co., New York City.

The May number of the Atlantic Monthly contains many articles of great interest. Chief among these are the addresses on Francis Parkman by Justin Winsor and John Fiske which were delivered at the commemorative services held at Harvard University last Fall. "The Ethical Problem of the Public School," by William Frederick Slocum, Jr., is a suggestive paper also which will appear to all who are interested in that side of the school question."-Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, Mass.

DOINGS AND HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN.

Prisoners Make a Bold Attempt to Blow Up Jackson Prison With Dynamite-The Small-Pox Epidemic Spreading

One of the most desperate attempts of prisoners to escape from the state prison at Jackson was foiled by the prompt action of the guards. There was to be a literary entertainment at the prison, and it is now believed that the attempt was to be made during the entertainment, but some of those implicated could not wait and sprung

The convicts of the new west cell block had been taken to a meeting, and were being marched back to their cells when one of them motioned to Guard Horning as though he wished to speak to him. The guard stepped up to the convict, who threw his arm about the guard's neck and attempted to choke him. As he did so Arthur Lawrence, a colored convict, sprang up into the window and made an attempt to light a fuse, but the thing failed to work. Guard Murphy heard the dis-turbance and rushed to the assistance of Horning, crying an alarm as he went. Deputy Northrup and Capt. Stone soon reached the spot. All of this transpired in less than a minute, and the timely arrival of the officers served to check the disturbance that had hardly got fairly started. Law-rence showed his qualities of persist-ence, for when his fuse failed to work he kept right on, and in fact was not dislodged from his position until actu-ally pulled down by two of the officials. The timely arrival of assistance seemed to strike consternation to the hearts of the convicts and they were soon as submissive as a lot of spring lambs, and they offered no resistance to being locked in their cells.

The three principals in the affair were Edward Huntley, sent from Detroit on a sentence of 20 years for burglary and who was shot through the lower por-tion of the abdomen while attempting to escape a year and a half ago; John DeMann, sent from Grand Rapids on a 15-year sentence for murder in the second degree, and Arthur Lawrence, colored, sent from Eaton county on a 10-year sentence for burglary. They are all considered by the prison officials as desperate characters, and its is evident they will not stop at anything in their efforts to escape. Warden Chamberlain thinks a large number were implicated in the affair. He also stated that rumors have been rife for over a year that dynamite was secreted in the but the most diligent search had failed to reveal it.

'Tis Getting Very Serious.

Small-pox at Muskegon. James Houtcamp arrived there on the Racine from Chicago, with a fully developed case. He was taken to the home of his The news caused something like a panic. Lansing: Secretary Baker, of the state board of health, went to Chicago to represent Michigan at a conference to be participated in by representatives of the health departments of Michigan, tucky, Iowa, Mississippi and Ontario, at which the situation in Illinois will be considered. There have been a total of about 1,225 cases in that state, and 1,210 of them have been in Chicago.

Bold Plan to Break Prison.

An ineffectual attempt to break prison was made at the House of Correction at Ionia. Eagan, a 15-year man from Grand Rapids, who figured conspicuously in the outbreak last July and Albert Livingstone, a two-year man, sent up for highway robbery, planned to dig out of their cells after the change of guard at midnight. Livingstone was to go out first to the upper gallery, where he was to be joined by Eagan, and together they would do the guard up, and while one masqueraded in his clothes the other was to cut his way through the roof. The prison officials got wind of the proposed attempt and as soon as they were at work spoiled their plans.

Small Pox at Bay City, Too.

A genuine case of smallpox was developed in Bay City, in the home of John L. Roberts, a carpenter, who is now working in Orange, Tex., for a Bay City machinery firm. The victim is his daughter Mary Ann, aged about 20 years, who came to Bay City from Chicago with a five-weeks-old baby. When the young mother reached the city she was so sick that a conveyance had to be used in reaching the home of her parents. Three physicians de-cided it was a case of small pox in a mild form. Preparations were made at once to quarantine the house.

Texas Cattle Barred From the State. Gov. Rich has issued a proclamation barring from the state all so-called Texas cattle until November 1, except such cattle as are in transit across the state, and these can be unloaded for feed and water only at yards designated for the yarding of Texas cattle only. Texas cattle for slaughter in Michigan can be unloaded only at the slaughter house or killing dock, where they must be held in strict quarantine until killed.

Ellis' Trial Postponed to June 4. Atty.-Gen. Ellis, with four of his attorneys, appeared at the opening of the May term of the Ingham county court, at Mason, at which he is to be tried on the three indictments which the grand jury found against him last February, for alleged complicity in the election return frauds of 1891 and 1893. He wasn't ready to proceed, because his principal counsel is engaged in a trial at Detroit. An agreement was then made to begin trial of the most important indictment June 4.

Founding and Growth. Written Expressly for The Register by Prof. A. Ten Brook.

XXXII. SCHOOL EXPERIENCE.

There is no way of ascertaining exactly how the first schools here were taught. The children in Ann Arbor from 1825 to 1830 were small. Indeed, I feel safe in saying that there were no large ones in the earliest schools and that the families here previous to 1830 embraced no children but small ones. The character of the common schoolteaching of the time will, therefore, be best indicated by the statement of some at the Church of Christ on S. Univ-ave. | there came. In the want of other I give my own. The first winter school that I remember was taught by an old man who had held a captain's commission in the war of the Revolution. He drank daily several quarts of hard cider and something stronger when he could get it. He believed firmly in the teaching virtue of the rod and applied it freely, though he had some pets on whom he never employed it. The cases of two brothers, I shall call them John and Robert, for these were their names, will serve as illustrations. I seem yet to hear the master's call: "Come up, John, A "Pink Tea" will be given by the and say your letters." John starts, Young People's Missionary Society in makes his bow before he gets quite to the Congregational church parlors this the teacher, for he is shy of going very evening. The affair promises to be near. He calls out "A" before he sees thoroughly enjoyable. For spirtiual the letter. The master shouts, "heh! refreshment there will be excellent You knowed the letter 'fore you see it, music, and for the carnal man, ice did you?" and fits a couple of snug cuts cream and cake and strawberries will of the rod to the boy's back. John be served. An admission fee of 25 guesses at at another letter with like cents will be the only charge. Old and results. The two boys did not know the alphabet at the end of the winter's school. John is long since dead; I saw Robert four years ago, an intelligent man, but he got none of his intelligence from the old master's birch. There was at that time in the vast majority of the common schools nothing taught but the alphabet, spelling, reading, writing and arithmetic. Both geography and grammar were very unusual. I went for a little time to a neighboring district and obtained such knowledge of English grammar that I was very facile in parsing. I deemed this a wonderful science: but I had one considerable philosophic difficulty about it; I did not know who Living Whist given by Mr. Granger passed the laws that regulated the use and his pupils at the Opera House last of the language. I was fond of reading Friday night was one of the most pleas- the reports of legislative proceedings ing entertainments of the season. in our village newspaper, but I saw no Without exception the execution of all account of legislation fixing the right the dances was splendidly done showing use of language. What will the life. Some play was going on under cover of a long writing table, back of boys to move out one way, the girls the other, in doing which this young man, thinking to make sport for the school, thrust his head through the sash where a pane of glass was wanting. It was a infancy. It is growing in importance close fit. His stooping drew his clothes and efficiency every day. It used to be tight over his back. I plied vigorously my whip, he jerked his head, the window rattled, his ears were roughly scraped by the sash, his younger brother clapped his hands, shouted "good," the school had more fun than he really intended to make and his attempt to the estimated profits on the week's buscommend his attainments in village ways failed of the expected success The next winter I taught in Pennsylvania, in one of the the oldest and richest farming settlements in the state. The school-house was a small one of round logs. It stood under the shadow of a hewn log church, which was finished off with pews on the ground-floor and with a gallery. The pulpit was so high that it tired the neck to look up and in the right way, for example in The precentor's desk was tacked on in make the right kind of prices on the The old pastor was serving the fiftieh ity of failure. year of his pastorate. The church and school-house stood in a beautiful oak grove. In connection with them was a cemetery enclosed by a firm and costly then past. All was ante-revolutionary. German descent.

In this part of Pennsylvania and in had several older than myself in the the master and barricaded door and resisted, they always beat him, even carrying him out if he got into the which he had to subscribe, its terms being in general that he should treat them with cider and apples, and give tyranny, and they declined to come to the aid of the one big boy who proposed to rule. I was one with them out of school, and their master only where duty required it. So in the second school: I ruled only for the pupils' good, never, like their old Scotch masters, merely to play the master. I whipped little in my first school, none in the second. The young men in the school said to each other, "Why should we keep up this foolish custom with a young man then go to the = who is one of us and doing the best he can for us?" I am a convert to the theory of governing without corporal, or any humilating punishment. As to the subjects taught I had no call for teaching the grammar or geography I had learned: for nothing but reading, writing and arithmetic was expected. There were in the strict sense no school-books, except the spelling-book. For reading, the pupils brought the New Testament, Robinson Crusoe, or whatever they happened to have. So of arithmetics.

These sketches have been introduced because our people here came chiefly from New York, Pennsylvania and New England. The people of the first district in which I taught were all from Vermont and they helped me to a true view of the sense in which New England is the "Land of Steady Habits. My teaching was all many years after the first settlement of Ann Arbor, and I am inclined to think that these examples will give us an idea of the point at which Michigan schools must have begun and will help to set forth in a stronger light what has since been achieved.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

New York.—Bradstreet's review of trade says. Prolonged warm weather has stimulated farm work as well as sales in various seasonable lines of merchandise, but renewed tariff unce tainty tends to prolong the period during which merchants will continue to buy for actual needs only, evidences of which fact have appeared. The great coal miners' strike has been extended in the far west and in portions of Maryland and the Virginias, and this has been followed by an increase in the number of industrial shut-downs, due to increasing scarcity of fuel. Not far from 175.000 men are reported idle in coal trade alone, and with those idle or on strike in other lines the total out of work is not less than 225.000. A significant evidence of the condition of general trade is found in the report of gross railway earnings during April, which shows a heavier decrease from the total in the like month last year than any preceding month since Jan. 1, 143 per cent. Even an unexpectedly bullish crop report by the agricultural department failed to stimulate wheat prices in the face of excessive Argentine and Russian shipments, increased supplies in and affoat for Europe and heavy stocks in the United States. General trade remains dull, as does business in manufacturing lines at Buffalo. Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Omaha, except that at the last-named more activity is reported in dry goods and hardware. NEW YORK.-Bradstreet's review of trade

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The speculation in grain has again broken records with the lowest price ever made for wheat, aithough western receipts are a little smaller than a year ago, while exports are also smaller by more than a quarter. The prevailing belief is that the yield will, as in other recent years, far exceed government indications, which are again pointing to a short erop. Corn has changed in price but little, and pork products have been fairly steady, with oil and coffee unchanged, but cotton is weaker in tone, although receipts from plantations are a little smaller than a year ago. It is a striking evidence of the general want of confidence that there is so little speculation while money is abundant almost beyond precedent. For the past week the failures have been 206 in the United States, against 257 last year, and 42 in Canada, against 23 last year, with none of especial importance, although four bank failures are included.

But when the king came she received him with much composure. Her mother was to-day in visible throes. To Kathleen her disarray was pathetic. The perturbed lady gave one or two spasmodic curtsies which were a mournful travesty of her usual serene equipoise. She was so drunk with the heady wine fur-nished by the fact of this fourth royal visit that exhilaration made her almost stagger. Clarimond, calm and gentlemanlike as usual, appeared to notice nothing. "Perhaps," thought Kathleen, 'he is used to such grovelling servility. Poor mamma, will she ever get out of the room with a decent grace, she who has prided herself for years on doing nothing awkwardly?"

But at last the door closed on Mrs. Kennaird's ducking and cringing figure. As this happened Kathleen breathed an audible sigh of relief. The sigh ended in a feverish laugh, and she said, with sudden candor, to her guest:

"It's dreadful how you've demoralized my mother. You must see, so I men-

"And are you?" he said with his sweet, kind smile. They were now seated opposite one another, and near a large window that gave one a fine view of the mountains and a still finer view of his white, many-turreted palace.

"No," she answered. "But mamma-Ohl you must have noticed. You're a royalty, as they call it, and you've turned her head. It's odd, too, for she has met all sorts of great people—prime ministers, dukes, even the English prince himself. I seem so vulgar when I talk like this! I do hope you'll excuse me. No doubt, you are used to embarrassing people, especially Americans."

He shook his head, smiling. "I have always thought it rather hard to embarrass Americans," he replied. "One in particular," he added; and then his smile deepened, as he watched her with a glance full of drollery both frank and "If you mean me, monsieur," she returned, with a slight shrug, "I am somehow proof against all surprises. It's very scandalous, no doubt, to ac-

"Oh! I am not so honest, I assure you." "There, you confessed that you are. Anyone else would have spoken so dif-

"Any other woman, you mean?" "Well, yes," he assented.

"And other women, when they talk with you, monsieur, are anxious to convince you of their honesty." Well, yes."

Kathleen seemed to muse a little, slowly shaking her head. "That is because you are you." is so conducive to feminine deception, then, this being I, as you put it?" and, without waiting for her to respond, he went on: "What made me in the first place like you so much, mademoiselle, was your charitable forgetfulness of who I really am."

"I didn't forget it in the least, however. I cultivated myself into seeming as if I did."

"Ah!you're bent on disappointing me." "No, monsieur, only on telling you the truth.'

"The truth from people never disappoints me." "Are you so sure?" she murmured, a little vaguely, not meeting his look. He gave a slight start. "Not quite sure, not quite sure—in your case. . . . For example, it did disappoint me to learn that you are unhappy.' She would not admit that she had ever confessed this to him during their previous talks, and for a good while they gently battled with one another concerning what human happiness truly means, until Clarimond at last said, with an accent of mild irritation:

"For a man or woman of reasonable age there is but one perfect kind of happiness. The heart is a mill, whose wheel should always turn in a full stream and grind forth golden grain. The soul, like a wealthy miller, must be buoyant and gladsome at the labor performed; the deeper he is covered with the dust of that delicious industry the more prosperous he rates himself, while he looks forth on the world defied by his heart's consoling thrift."

"It is not everybody," smiled Kathleen, as the speaker paused, "who can be both king and poet in one short life." "Are you now satirical, mademoiselle?"

"No, no! But I am skeptical. There are so few hearts I like that— Mine, I fear, is an idle mill wheel above an empty stream-bed!"
"Yet one whose waters have been

"And yet you do not think me de-ceitful; you have granted as much." His eyes, for an instant, seemed to caress her face. "I think you strangely miserable!" he affirmed. Then, lowering his voice a little, and leaning nearer to her: "I can't but wonder if you are incurably so."

"I am not miserable," she said, with wistful arder of denial. "It is too bad that you should think this. You said something of the same sort yesterday.

But you are wrong—wrong. I still have a great deal to live for."
"Still! And you say that in the early glow of your maidenhood! Still! It is amazing. Or, no; it isn't amazing at all; it is thoroughly explainable. There is something you want. I wonder if I could get it for you."

She shook her head quickly and then stared down at the hands which lay like two pale curled feathers in her lap. "No, monsieur," she breathed, enshrining the words, as it were, in a sort of long sigh. "It is nothing that you could get me."

He accepted her reply as a surrender. She was a sorrower, after all, and the feints of her assertion to the contrary had been admittedly futile.

In the silence that now followed they both looked forth upon the incomparable valley, flanked by its mighty mountains, over-scattered by its ethereal villas, crowned, accentuated, dignified by its romantic and imposing palace.

The king slowly lifted his hand and pointed to that pale and beauteous edifice. His voice was quite faint (though it reached her ears very clearly indeed)

"I have thought of offering you this

"Good gracious! I hope you haven't quarreled!"

'We haven't quarreled." "Thank heaven!" Mrs. Kennaird dropped at her daughter's feet, in a collapse oddly picturesque, considering her size and weight. But after all she was a woman who never dealt awkwardly with her avoirdupois, though just now carried away by an emotion which might well have imperiled gracefulness. "Kathleen! Kathleen! Tell me, my darling. You can't be unkind enough not to tell me! Did he mention it? Did he say one single word about it? Now, my child, consider how I suffer. Don't torture me. Let me know everything!" Kathleen regarded her mother for a moment, and then slipped both arms round her neck. "Mamma," she said, with a deceit born of pity, and also of that love which all the icy ambition, all the worldly striving, all the hard, harsh, American push of her parent harsh, American push of her parent had never served to annul, "there is really nothing for you to know except that the king was very kind to me, very kind, and I-well, I became a little nervous. It seems like such a great ordeal, mamma, for me to open the ball with him. And yet he's good enough to insist that I will get through all right. He-" "All right!" cried Mrs. Kennaird, regaining her feet with a phenomenal alac-rity. "There won't be a woman in the ballroom who can hold a candle to you.'

At this same time, as it happened, Alonzo Lispenard was crossing the threshold of a small apartment, full of books, busts and a few very rare pic-tures, where Eric Thaxter had passed many an hour of artistic musing.

Alonzo held a paper in his hand. "You see," he said, after handing the paper to Eric, and throwing himself into a chair at his friend's side, "my royal command for the state ball has actually

Eric merely glanced at the paper.
"Mine has just come, too," he said.
"What?" queried Alonzo. "Were you not invited till now?" "No. It was that horrible princess. Clarimond has been letting her have her head, but the other night he pulled her up with a short rein. I hear that she's now humility itself. I am naturally delighted. I've seen it coming, Lonz, but of course I could say nothing to Alonzo gave a barsh little keugh.

"It's a wonder that you're willing to admit that."

"Oh, I'm willing to fight for you, dear boy, when I think you're in the right. Clarimond, however, apologized." "Yes, a king's apology.

"My dear Lonz, you're sulky." Alonzo repeated his laugh. "What a queerly wrong kind of word from you, Eric, who usually pride yourself on the mot juste!"

Eric smiled. "There is a great deal of talk about the right word in the right place, but it has always seemed to me that there should be in all cases at least five words to choose from; otherwise language becomes a pauper, and expression a mere joiner's mechanism!"

Alonzo tossed his head. "This burst of brilliancy," he said, somberly, "leads

"Another word in which to define your present mood—jealous."

Alonzo gave a great start. Then he tried to laugh, for the third time, and lamely failed. "Oh, that's cruel of you!" Here his brow clouded. "And if I am jealous of a man like that!"

"A very noble and exceptional man,

"Oh, yes. But a man whose immense rank compromises Kathleen by the fact of his being in love with her!" Eric played for a moment with an ivory paper cut-ter which had lain on the desk near which his friend had discovered him while deep in the solution of some new architectural problem.

"How do you know the king is in love with her?" he suddenly asked.

A BOY TRAINER,

Who Aroused the Affection of an Enraged Elephant.

"I used to travel with a circus in my younger days," said Walter L. Miles, of Boston, as he strolled around the corridor of the hotel, "and during that time witnessed a good many exciting incidents. We had with the show an old elephant named Nero, who was noted for his bad temper. He had killed two keepers and crippled several others. One afternoon, just after the performance was over, Nero broke his fastenings and proceeded to demolish everything around him. Among our performers was a young boy named Wood. This young fellow happened to be near Nero when he broke loose. The elephant grabbed the boy with his trunk, held him high in the air for a moment, and then commenced to swing him backward and forward. All those who witnessed the act expected to see the boy killed, and were filled with astonishment when Nero the driving hook, shouting: 'Lead the beast away, he will mind you.' The boy did as he was told, and, sure enough, the elephant obeyed the boy and allowed him to replace the chains keeper."

BROUGHT TEARS.

The Song That Negroes Sang as a Farewell to a Friend.

There was a colored man going off on the ship, and a number of his friends, men and women, had come down to the dock in New York to say good-by. They had been laughing and joking in great spirits for the half hour before, but now, as the vessel started to move away, one of the women started to sing that pathetic parting hymn most boys and girls learn in Sunday school, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." Her voice was sweet and full of feeling, as the voices of this race often are, and as she sang smiled at first, but as he listened his smile faded and he dropped his head. Other passengers crowded to the side, and many hats were lifted, many eyes wet and tearful while the melody rang out.

But soon the big boat was clear of the pier and in midstream; there she stood for a few moments, swinging pointed oceanward, and then, with her captain and pilot on the bridge, an officer up in the mast in his lookout perch, flags flying from every mast, she sailed finely away, a beautiful and interesting sight.

A special parliamentary report on "Surnames in Ireland" has been issued, with notes as to numerical strength, derivation, ethnology and distribution. The volume is full of curious information, gathered together evidently at very considerabla pains. It shows, among other things, that "Murphy" is the commonest surname in Ireland, there being no fewer than 62,600 persons (or 13.3 per 1,000 of the population) so called, and the next in order of numerical strength are "Kelly" 55,900; "Sullivan," 43,600; "Walsh," 41,700; "Smith," 33,700; "O'-Brien," 33,400, and "Byrne," 33,300.

A HOME MISSIONARY.

HIS EXPERIENCE WITH THE OWEN ELECTRIC BELT. AN OLD MAN

WITH PROGRESSIVE IDEAS AND HIS DE-SIRE TO ENLIGHTEN THE PUBLIC.

The winter of 1834-35 was my first experience with rheumatism. I was travel ing as a home missionary, and with great difficulty and suffering I reached my ap-pointments. It was located in my hips and back. From that time to this year of grace, 1891, I have suffered more or less un der the grip of that disease. About thre years later, liver complaint, and the col-mel taken to cure it, fastened upon the walls and organs of my chest, a rhenma affection from which I was never wholi free, and at times even a breath was cruelty. Yet, in a general way, my bealt has been as good, perhaps better than th average of men.

During the last days of the late year, bought of Dr. Owen two of the Owen Electric Belts. One I have worn, the other bought of Dr. Owen two of the Owen Electric Belts. One I have worn, the other a daughter has worn. In either case the remedial has been satisfactory. The rheuma tism of my chest and hips I can no longer find. A limited case of varicoccle, of more than thirty years standing, after two weeks' use of the Belt, has diminished to a mere lump, and a few days later could not be found. A nasal catarrh of years had so affected the substance of the nose that a friend in jest twitted me of brandy. My nose is itself again, and other symptoms of nasal and throat catarrh are fast disappearing, carrying my deafness of seven years with them.

I have studied electricity in its bearings upon mental and physico mental phe nomena for fifty years, and have seen its wonders in these directions, and, thus prepared, my attention was easily turned to its efficiency in controlling the nerves, mus-

The Human Electrical Forces!

How They Control the Organs of the Body.

The electrical force of the human body, as the nerve fluid may be termed, is an espe-

The electrical force of the mann of the nerve fluid may be termed, is an especially attractive department of science, as it exerts so marked an influence on the health of the organs of the body. Nerve force is produced by the brain and conveyed by means of the nerves to the various organs of the body, thus supplying the latter with the vitality necessary to insure their health. The pneumogastric nerve, as shown here, may be said to be the most important of the entire nerve system, as it supplies the heart, lungs, stomach, bowels, etc., with the nerve force necessary to keep them active and healthy. As will be seen by the cut the long nerve descending from the base of the brain and terminating in the bowels is the pneumogastric, while the numerous little branches supply the heart, lungs and stomach with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability heart, lungs and stomnech with necessary vitality. When the brain becomes in any way disordered by irritability or exhaustion, the nerve force which it supplies is lessened, and the organs receiving the diminished supply are consequently weakened.

Physicians generally fail to recognize, the importance of this fact, but treat the organ itself instead of the cause of the trouble
The noted specialist, Franklin Miles, M. D.,
LL. B., has given the greater part of his life to the study of this subject, and the principal discoveries concerning it are due to his efforts.
Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, the unrivaled brain and nerve food, is prepared on the principle that all nervous and many other difficulties originate from disorders of the nerve centers. Its wonderful success in caring these disorders is testified to by thousands in every part of the land.

Restorative Nervine cures sleeplessness,

ORIGIN OF THE POLKA.

A Bohemian Girl Was the One to First Dance It.

The polka is not of Polish origin, as its name might lead one to suppose. The first dancer of the polka was a young, rosy Bohemian girl named Haniczka Szlezak, the favorite partner at every dance in her native village of Kostelec, on the Elbe.

One night at a ball, in the year 1830, she was asked to dance a pas seul. She readily complied, saying:

"I will give you something of my own invention." She then began to sing and spun around, keeping time to the tune. The village schoolmaster, who was present accompanied her on the fiddle and very soon Haniczka's dance became popular in Kostelec, and its fame spreading, it was in course of time adopted as the national dance. "What do you call your dance?" she was asked one day.

"Pulku," was the reply, because it afire.' is danced with a half-step.'

"Pulku" was turned into "Polku" came all the rage at Prague in 1833, at Vienna in 1839 and Paris in 1840.

Haniczka is now an old lady, well stricken in years, and carefully tended by her siq children and a Host of

LIKE WEBSTER.

The Colored Barber's Compliment to the Young Congressman.

On his way back from Boston Colonel Hitchcock stopped over a few days in Washington, and while there he heard a good story. It is seldom that the jovial colonel goes anywhere without hearing a good story. This one was one of those old colored barbers so numerous at the capital-exslaves who have been there for years and claim to have scraped the faces of every president and statesman from George Washington's time.

One of these old fellows was annointing the smooth countenance of a newly-fledged congressman with creamy lather which he quietly rubbed into the skin with his slow hand. He was talkative, like all the barbers of his race, and anxious to "jolly" the new arrival, seing in perspective a fresh and regular patron. So he gazed admiringly into the counte-nance of the budding statesman, grinned approvingly, and said:

"Do you know, sah, you remind me so much of Dan'l Webstah?"

Of course the young congressman M. E. FERGUSON, Custodian U. S. Appraiser's Stores, was greatly pleased at the compliment and he smiled visibly. He would have straightened up promptly did he not have his head in a barbarous chancery, so to speak.

"Indeed," he said. "Shape of my head, I suppose?"

This staggered the aged colored man somewhat. He had not expected a question in reply, and had merely laid the foundation for his complimentary bluff, never thinking that there would be a call for an explanatory superstructure.

"No, sah," he stammered in reply. "Not yo' head, sah. It's yo' breff."

LEFT IT TO THE DOG.

A Quick-Witted Newsboy's Way of Sending Home a Lost Child.

There was a crowd on Fourth avenue, New York, the other day. It was gathered about a little girl and a dog. There were a couple of policemen, a half-dozen women and a dozen men. The little girl was lost. The policemen knew it, the women knew it, the crowd knew it, and the little girl herself knew it. Now the problem everyone was trying to solve was where the little girl belonged. Neither the policemen, the women, the crowd nor the little girl knew.

'Where do you live?" asked a policeman.

The little girl looked up in a frightened way and shook her head.

"Poor little dear-where does your mother live?" asked one of the women, thinking to get at the problem in a round-about way. Still the little girl shook her head. Finally a newsboy appeared on the scene. He eyed the assemblage contemptuously.

"Here," he said to the dog, "go home, sir." Off started the dog, the little girl hanging on to his shaggy coat and the crowd following behind. Down Fourth avenue a few blocks, around the corner straight into the arms of an anxious woman who looked half frightened to death, and who took the little girl in her arms and hugged and kissed her. The dog went quietly into the house, the newsboy disappeared, the policemen and crowd went away, and it was all

TOO ARTISTIC TO HAGGLE. Worth's Haughty Reply to a Patron Who

Every man has his price, though it is, in the case of renowned persons, occasionally high. No one understands this better than Worth, the man milliner, as any person who wears his creations can vouch for. A good story is told of how one misguided woman ventured to remonstrate with him because he charged her $600 for a dress, which at first sight seems to ordinary people an expensive gown.

"The goods," said the lady, "could be bought for $100, and surely the work of making up would be well paid for with $25 more."

"Madam," replied the outraged tailor, "go to M. Constant, the painter, and say to him: 'Here is a canvass and colors, value $1. Paint me a picture on that canvass with these paints and I will pay you thirty-three and a third cents.' What would be the answer? 'Madam, this is no payment for an artist.' No, but I say more. If you think my terms are too high keep the dress and pay me nothing. Art does not descend to the pettiness of haggling." History does not record the lady's Truth Spoken in Jest. Baron Ferdinand Rothschild tells an amusing story about the late Lord Hertford. He lived in Paris during the last twenty years of his life, and as he usually went to bed very late, his valet was under the strictest orders not to disturb him in the morning. "You may call me at 8 if there is a revolution," was the command, "not otherwise." By this his lordship probably meant that he was not to be aroused at all. On the morning of of February, 1848, however, lled at 8. "What's wrong?"

A Simple Plan for Preventing Yourself

From Losing an Umbrella. "I once answered an advertisement," said Hugh Meadows to a St. Louis Globe-Democrat man, "which offered in return for a $1 bill, to send cles. As a money maker that adverreturn for my dollar I received a pose. from a hack with an open umbrella which had stuck fast in the door.

Stop! on his mind he would think of it Stop!" every time he left a vehicle or car, and would be prevented thereby from leaving his umbrella behind. I was in such a rage at being swindled, as I thought, that the incident and illustration both became photographed in my mind's eye, and to do the advertiser justice that dollar has certainly saved me many dollars a year in umbrellas.

The science of mnemonics is a very peculiar one and few people understand it. Years ago it was common to tie a knot in one's handkerchief as a reminder of anything, and this plan has been improved upon from time to time. I have a friend who always hangs his hat on one peg in his office and has a small brass file just below the peg. By hanging loose memos, on this file he can scarcely leave the office without being reminded of important duties or engagements. Another man, who has no clock in his office, slips memos, in his watch pocket, so that when he looks to see if it is time to go home he will notice whether he has forgotten any-

"The only duty which no one yet has been able to remember or invent a scheme for is mailing a letter written by one's wife. The number of times a rational business man will carry a letter around in his pocket for over a week, and then sneak quietly out and mail it in the corner letter box, is something remarkable, and this unaccountable neglect of husbandlike duty accounts for no end of misunderstandings and broken friendships."

Much Pulled Up.

There is no class of persons of whom one may say that "Knowledge puffeth up" more truly according to James Payne than our classical schol-There is something in the dead languages which causes those who make them their study to have, as the Scotch say, "A quid conceit of thirsels." Of Whewell, it was said that "science was his forte and omniscience his foible." Professor Donaldson used modestly to admit that he knew nothing of botany; but the whole circle of the science was, with this exception, supposed to be at his fingers' end. "What I do not know," says Jowett, (for though somebody said it for him, it comes to the same thing) "is not knowledge." The last utterance of a well known classical authority is said to be as follows: "Tennyson dead, Browning Prompt attention given to all orders. | alone."—Argonaut

It is generally supposed that the staleness of bread arises from ics becoming actually drier by the gradual loss of water; but this is not the case. Stale bread contains almost exactly the same proportions of water as new bread after it has become completely cold. The change is merely in the internal arrangements of the molecules of the bread. A proof of this is that if we gut a stale loaf in a closely covered tin, expose it for half an hour or an hour to a heat not exceeding that of hoiling water and then allow it to cool, it will be restored in appearance and properties to the state of the new

But they couldn't stop until the music ended. The two little girls were brought to the court as witnesses, and, after they had been waiting nearly an hour for Superintendent Jenkins of the Gerry society to go on with the case, Mr. Bischoff protested to the court. He said it was an outrage for the Gerry society to bring these children to court and keep them waiting there where they would hear stories of crime and the examinations in criminal cases. He declared that such an experience as that was more injury to the girls than any dancing they might do.

Superintendent Jenkins said that his witnesses had not arrived. When the case was called Professor Marwig testified that the girls had danced contrary to his orders. Viola Dale testified that she had been ordered to

THE VANDERBILT MILLIONS. The Family Had to Establish a Bank of

Its Own. The care of the Vanderbilt millions is a far greater burden than most people imagine. There are not many citizens in our country who require a great bank of their own in which to transact their business and deposit their securities.

One of the largest banking buildings in the country is the Lincoln national bank, at Fifth avenue and Forty-second street. This belongs to the Vanderbilts. It holds millions of money and many more millions of securities which represent their wealth. After the elder Vanderbilt died, and his property had to be distributed among his children, it was no small task to go over the vast number of stocks and bonds he left and divide them up according to the provisions of the will. Nor was it a small matter to distribute the ready money that was in the bank. This bank and its operators seem like a romance of our rapid civilization. In sentimental features nothing in Europe can compare with it. In no country on earth except this could such an institution exist under similar conditions. In no other land could a STOCK RAISERS. family have had as its financial servant a man who has been a cabinet FARMERS, minister. Yet when Thomas L. James ceased to be postmaster-general he anchored himself in the Lincoln national bank to count the money and sit as a grim figurehead upon the stool of the successful operations of one

The Barber's Parsot.

Parrots are queer birds, and their MERCHANTS, owners sometimes teach them to say rather appropriate things. A drummer went into a barber shop in Chicago the other day, and as he entered the door a parrot, which hung in a cage by the window, called out in a perfectly natural tone: "Gentleman wants to be shaved." As soon as the barber completed the work, and he was on the point of leaving the chair, the bird again called out shrilly: "Gentleman, pay your money." The barber told him that the bird had got in the habit of saying these things whenever a customer entered the shop, and never got the two speeches

An Unexpected Invitation.

"I merely called, madam" said the tramp at the back door, "to again ex-press my thanks for that delicious piece of mince pie that you favored me with just seven weeks ago to-day. I remember it still as the best flavored and the most appetizing piece of pie that I ever ate in all my life. That is all that I wished to say, madam. Pardon me for troubling you. Good day!" And he acted as if he was surprised when she called him back and asked him if he wouldn't wait and try a piece of one of another batch of mince pies that she had just baked that day.

Evidence All In.

Among some old papers in an Arkansas probate court was found a doctor's account for medical attendance during the last illness of the deceased. On the back the administrator had made the following indorsement; "This claim is not verified by affidavit as the statute requires, but the death of the deceased is satisfactory evidence to my mind that the doctor did the work. Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves.

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE.

PATENTS

FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph the gether with a brief description of the important features, and you will once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement of thers, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.
