

THE MAY FESTIVAL.

ANN ARBOR MUSIC LOVERS PACK UNIVERSITY HALL.

The First Annual May Festival of the University Musical Society Opened Auspiciously—A Vast Throng Listens to a Grand Symphony Concert.

The first annual May festival, given by the University Musical Society in University Hall, began Friday evening with a grand symphony concert by the Boston Festival Orchestra. It is the culmination of a series of musical events which have served to bring the University of Michigan into prominence as a musical center.

The audience, which crowded University Hall to its utmost capacity, welcomed this fine organization of artists and enthusiastically applauded each number in the following program: Overture, "Lenore No. 3," Beethoven orchestra; tenor aria, "O, Paradise," (L. Africain), Meyerbeer, E. C. Towne; concerto (No. 1 in E flat), Liszt, Arthur Friedheim; Bird Song, from (L'Allegro II Penseroso) Handel, Miss Stewart; flute obligato, by C. K. North; aria from "Rienzi" (Adriano), Wagner, Miss Gertrude Stein; Wotan's farewell and fire charm, Wagner, Max Heinrich; symphony, op. 56, Mendelssohn, introduction and allegro agitato, scherzo assai vivace, adagio cantabile allegro guerriero and finale maestoso.

All the artists with the exception of Miss Rose Stewart and Arthur Friedheim are old favorites at the University, and a university audience is not backward in expressing approval of artistic worth. The Scotch symphony is an interesting work, which has a pronounced national flavor by reason of the introduction of typical Scotch melodies. It is a prime favorite with concert audiences and its performances under the masterly direction of Mr. Mollenhauer aroused great applause.

The Beethoven overture to Leonore No. 3 was the first number by the Boston Festival Orchestra, and its phenomenal success was assured after the hearing of the first few bars. The conductor was Emil Mollenhauer, who has won a position in the first rank of American conductors.

The singing of E. C. Towne of "O, Paradise," from Meyerbeer's "La Africain," showed fine expansion of tone. Liszt's No. 1 E flat concerto, in the hands of Arthur Friedmann, showed splendid rubato effects, which were a feature, and the singing tone of the piano caused prolonged applause.

Miss Rose Stewart proved herself a cultivated artist. She sang the mad scene from "Lucia" in a perfect manner. She had a clear articulation and liquid tones. She was so loudly encored that she was forced to respond and sang "Love Be Hanged."

May Gertrude Stein's singing of the aria from "Rienzi" showed much dramatic feeling. Max Heinrich sang "Wotan's Farewell" and "Fire Charm," by Wagner.

In conclusion Symphony, op. 56, by Mendelssohn, familiarly known as the Scotch symphony, was superbly performed by the orchestra. The intonation by the several instruments was marvelous.

Saturday afternoon and Saturday night University hall was again crowded with audiences that showed themselves appreciative by the liberal applause accorded the singers and players. In the afternoon the festival orchestra gave an orchestral concert, assisted by the soloists in attendance. Miss Stewart once more won for herself great applause and an encore by her rendition of the "Una Voce," as a second number she sang "Du Bist Eine Blume" in such a manner as to show the exquisite sweetness and flexibility of her voice. Mr. Gies' cello solo showed remarkable technique and clearest tone. The excellent manner in which Mr. Friedheim rendered a selection from Liszt showed his mastery of the piano. Felix Wenternitz, violin soloist, is a musician of exceptional ability, possessing faultless technique and execution. The orchestra maintained its high standard, the noteworthy excellencies being the fine ensemble displayed and the exquisite shading.

Never before in the history of the Choral Union has there been a more satisfactory concert than the one given at night. The work of the chorus cannot be commended too highly, for it showed the results of careful training and practice under the efficient direction of Prof. Stanley.

At the close of the concert Prof. Stanley announced that another festival will be given next year and that the "Damnation of Faust" will be sung. A reception to the soloists was held after the concert, which was attended by a large number of students and citizens.

Emil Mollenhauer and Albert A. Stanley conducted the orchestra and Choral Union respectively. The work of the Choral Union reflects great credit on Prof. Stanley, whose untiring ing efforts to encourage the study of music in the University is bearing fruit a hundred fold.

From a humble beginning a few years ago the Choral Union has grown to be one of the largest in the country and has shown its ability to render successfully the greatest masterpieces of classical music. During the past five years five series of concerts have been given under the auspices of the Choral Union, making thirty concerts of the highest grade, introducing to the University public the foremost soloists and musical organizations of the country.

DEATH OF A. L. NOBLE.

He Died Suddenly of Heart Disease On Saturday.

Adelbert L. Noble, one of Ann Arbor's most enterprising and respected citizens, died suddenly on Saturday at about 12 o'clock of heart complications.

March 21, while crossing Broadway, New York, Mr. Noble was run into by a vehicle and had his leg broken. He remained in a private hospital a few weeks and was then brought to his home in this city. He was slowly recovering from the effects of his injury until about four weeks ago, when he grew worse. About a week before his death he was feeling better and his friends hoped to see him on the streets within a few weeks' time, at the least.

Saturday morning he felt unusually well and ate a hearty breakfast. At about 11 o'clock he complained of a severe pain in his side and went to bed. Physicians were summoned but before they arrived Mr. Noble had breathed his last.

The deceased was Ann Arbor's most enterprising citizen. He loved Ann Arbor, and was either directly or indirectly connected with nearly every enterprise in the city. At the time of his death, Mr. Noble was president of the State Savings Bank, proprietor of the Star Clothing House, secretary and manager of the Electric Light Works, director in the Street Railway Co., a director in the School of Music Association and was similarly connected with many other enterprises in the city.

Mr. Noble was born in Orleans Co., New York, in 1848. In 1869 his parents moved to Ann Arbor, and he entered the University, which he attended for a short time. He became a partner with Joe T. Jacobs in the clothing business and in 1876 he commenced business for himself, and was very successful.

The deceased leaves a wife and three children, Clarence, Edith and Harold, his mother and a brother to mourn his loss.

The business houses of the city were closed Tuesday afternoon from 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock in respect to the deceased. The funeral services were conducted by Revs. C. M. Cobern and J. M. Geiston.

Observance of Memorial Day.

Commander W. K. Childs has issued the following general order, relative to the observance of Memorial Day to the members of Welch Post, No. 137, G. A. R.:

1. In obedience to general orders from national and department headquarters, Memorial Sunday, May 27, and Memorial Day, May 31, will be properly observed by Welch Post.

2. The comrades will assemble at the Post Room on Sunday morning, May 27, at 10 o'clock, sharp for the purpose of attending a memorial service at the Congregational church, in company with the Sons of Veterans and the military companies of the city.

3. All members of the post and comrades will report at the Post Room at 1 o'clock P. M., on Wednesday, May 30, 1894, for the purpose of visiting the cemeteries of the city and decorating the graves of all deceased soldiers and sailors.

4. From the court house a detachment will be conveyed to St. Thomas' cemetery, who will properly decorate the graves of our departed comrades there and on their return the post will proceed to the Fifth Ward and Forest Hill cemeteries, where services will be observed in accordance with the ritual.

5. The comrades will assemble in the Post Room at 7:00 o'clock P. M., sharp and march to University Hall to take part in the public services to be observed there.

6. All old soldiers and sailors of the late war are cordially invited to join with us in the exercises of the day. Let us show by our presence that our fallen comrades are still held in grateful remembrance as martyrs to the cause of liberty and the preservation of the union of all the States.

Same Thing.

A dozen or more tramps were arrested in this city recently. They were asked their politics. Eleven of them said they were Democrats while the other said he was a Coxeite. "Why," instantly put in one of the tramps, "that's the same thing!"

Dr. Ryan Again.

Dr. Ryan, pastor of the Methodist church at Ypsilanti, criticised the ladies who took part in the minstrel entertainment given by young ladies of that city last week. He said in his sermon on last Sunday:

"I want to see how many in this congregation didn't attend the negro minstrels this week. The papers said that the best people of the city were there and I want to see those present who did not attend." As was natural to be supposed quite a number arose although throughout the audience could be seen many who remained in their seats.

"Now," he continued, "I want to see how many there are who did attend and feel sorry for it." Not a person arose from his seat, as was also natural to be supposed.

"Miss ———'s name appears among those who participated," said the doctor. "She has since come to me and said that she did not understand the conditions when she consented to appear and that she is sorry for it and has promised to do so no more. So she continues to sing God's praise. If you did attend and are not sorry for it I am sorry for you. Mark what I say, this church is not going to do business that way. The Methodist church has not thrown down its bars entirely yet. We cannot do God's work and permit such things to go unnoticed. I tell you God is visiting this world. You who attended go home and think it over and if you are satisfied with yourself come to me. If the other congregations stand as we do I thank the Lord. I don't know how they stand. I don't criticise outsiders of the church who go to such places. It is not my place to do so. I only hope that they will soon be in the fold. The Methodist church is not going to be governed by the Washtenaw Times or any other paper. It is governed by the Bible. There has been a report about my going to turn certain persons out of the church on account of the minstrels. I could do no such thing. I would rather go to the penitentiary as an innocent man for the balance of my life, however, than be turned out of the Methodist church. I am glad that no church of the city will accept the proceeds of the show. Thank God for that. I also learn that the proceeds will be devoted to a dance. Thank God for that. That is where they belong."

Prohibition Club.

The Prohibition Club of the city held a very enthusiastic meeting at Good Templars hall last Monday night, at which three or four rousing speeches were made by members of the club. After spending some time in discussing the situation, the following gentlemen were elected as delegates to county convention to be held at the court house Friday, May 25, at 2:30 P. M. to elect delegates to the state and congressional conventions: First ward, John Sperry, J. G. Palmer; second ward, H. C. Markham, Colvin Boylan; third ward, F. Esslinger, Wm. Mack; fourth ward, Ralph McAlaster, F. H. Brown; fifth ward, Nelson Rogers, Robt. Winslow; sixth ward W. A. Morse, Bert Shumacher. At large: W. W. Warner, Wm. H. Dorrance, jr., E. E. Calkins. It is expected that the Hon. John G. Wooley will address the convention sometime during its sessions.

There will be another meeting of the Prohibition club at Good Templars Hall on State-st. next Monday evening at eight o'clock at which time good speakers are expected to be present.

Council Proceedings.

At the meeting of the common council held Monday night, provision was made for appointing two extra patrolmen, one for State-st. and another for Detroit-st., between Fifth-ave. and Maiden Lane. Mayor Darling communicated the nomination of Martin Clark as a policeman, his duty being as truant officer and his pay to be provided for by the school board. The appointment was unanimously confirmed. The lateral sewer ordinance was taken up for its third reading and passed. An amendment was adopted by a vote of seven to six adding the words "and common council" after the words "public works," making it read that all work should be approved by the board of public works and the common council. Bids for a wagonette for committee use were reported and the committee recommended that the bid of the Ferguson Cart Co. of $125 for a covered wagonette carrying eight people be accepted. The council adopted the report.

Circuit Court.

The jury in the Goodrich will case was out about two hours and returned a verdict sustaining the will of Merchant H. Goodrich, which bequeathed his estate, about $20,000, to his niece, Mrs. H. K. Lum. The case was on trial four days and was an effort of the deceased's sister and brother, Ann North and Morell Goodrich, to break the will.

What is Law?

A senior law was asked by a citizen a few days ago, "What is law?" "Law," replied the s. l., "is justice." The citizen fainted.

RAMPANT RIVERS.

PORTIONS OF PENNSYLVANIA SUBMERGED

Beneath Boiling, Seething Waters Which Bring Death and Destruction—Johnstown, Williamsport, Bradford and Many Other Towns Suffer.

Johnstown, Pa.: The awful Conemaugh disaster of 1889, has been vividly recalled by the cloudburst and heavy rain fall which lasted in this section for three days and caused the Conemaugh river to flood the city and surrounding country. It is an assured fact that the damage done in the city and within five miles of it will amount to over $60,000 to $80,000. The Pennsylvania Railroad company is the heaviest loser. A house, owned by Peter Seymour, was caught and swept to destruction. A three-story building of Phillip Brown was torn from its foundation and greatly damaged. The iron bridge was badly wrecked. The store of Anthony George was submerged, and although anchored with ropes, the water swept it away with all its contents. The residences of Emanuel James and Charles Stalter also went down stream. The swift water undermined an embankment, which gave way, carrying down into the river about 200 feet of track and five cars. In one of the cars were five tramps. Three of them succeeded in getting away, but two were drowned. About $15,000 worth of timber belonging to the Conemaugh Lumber company went out, tearing two bridges away. Fifty feet of stone wall was washed away. Throughout this county and Somerset the damage to bridges and crops is reported to be very heavy. Tom McFeaters, a lad 13 years old, was drowned while the Conemaugh river while trying to ride on a log. At South Fork numerous small buildings were swept away.

Williamsport: The Susquehanna reached a point 35 feet above low water mark, the highest ever known, and flooded every portion of this city to a depth of from two to twenty feet. The city was cut off from the outside world by a stoppage of all railway and telegraph communication, and only a single telephone wire was left to send the notes of distress to neighboring places. The second night of the flood the water reached its highest point. There was very little sleep for the terrorized citizens, and when at midnight it was known that the water was subsiding there was a feeling of relief in every heart. At midnight the big log boom containing 175,000,000 feet went out with a mighty crash and roar. Three bridges went down as they were struck. Household goods and store stocks had been moved to second and even third stories. The property loss cannot be estimated for some time but it cannot be less than $1,000,000. The gas and electric light plants being submerged there was no light on the rushing waters for three nights. The only mode of transportation about the city was by boat. The loss to corps and farms cannot now be told. Four miles of railroad track was swept away. Over 25,000,000 feet of logs were swept away at Lock Haven.

Bradford: Twenty streets were under water to a depth of four feet. Over 40 families in the river district were taken from their homes in boats. A large number of business houses were flooded on the ground floors. Loss over $50,000.

Pittsburg: Two lives were lost in the flood. Adrian Welch, aged 35 years, was trying to rescue a team of horses near Etna, about 1 o'clock, when his feet caught in the harness and he was drowned. A few minutes later an unknown boy about 15 years old was drowned in Allegheny while catching driftwood. Both bodies were swept down the stream.

These are but a few of the many towns and cities practically flooded and drowned out. At Huntingdon the Juniata raised 25 hours and surrounding towns suffered severely. At Stoverstown Mrs. Jacob Miller was drowned while trying to save her household goods. The Susquehanna flooded at least a hundred towns and an estimate by Pennsylvania railroad officials of the damage to towns along their lines places the losses at not less than $2,000,000. Five new county bridges in Huntingdon county have been destroyed, making an aggregate loss of about $60,000. At Everett, Elmer Wagner was drowned. The two children of John Knoskiak at Nanticoke, aged respectively ten and eight, fell into a swollen creek and were drowned. Warren used boats for street cars.

Powderly Fired From the K. of L.

For several days the general executive committee of the Knights of Labor in session at Philadelphia was investigating charges against Powderly. It is alleged that he and others calumniated the present officers of the order and schemed to turn the K. of L. over to the Federation of Labor. The charges were sustained and Powderly expelled by the votes of McGuire, French and Martin, who constituted a majority of the board. With Powderly, A. W. Wright of Toronto and Master Workman Quinn of D. A. 99 were also expelled.

Young Parole Found.

James H. Parke, the 26-year-old son of Hervey C. Parke, of Parke, Davis & Co., manufacturing druggists of Detroit, who mysteriously disappeared from New York City, was found at Coaling, a small station about 40 miles south of Birmingham, Ala., on the Alabama, Great Southern Railway. Young Parke was demoralized when found and had been wandering aimlessly over the country for weeks. Detective Lombard, of Detroit, was the officer who tracked him down.

Loomis' battery held its annual reunion in Coldwater. Thirty of the old comrades were present.

The fish tug Sterling, of Sand Beach, has lifted its nets for the last time. She landed about 3,000 pounds of trout. The fish market is so dull at the present time that there is no money in it.

The Cincinnati board of trade desires to promote trade between that city and the Central and South American republics. To that end a movement was started to establish a school for instruction in the Spanish and Portuguese languages.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

SENATE.—18th day.—Mr. Allen's resolution calling upon the secretary of the treasury for information as to the number of persons directly affected by protective duties and by competition with foreign labor in the United States was discussed until 12 o'clock, when the tariff bill was taken up. Mr. Gallinger arose with a formidable array of statistics and announced his intention about to give a history of American legislation on the tariff since the landing of the pilgrim fathers. From this he read until 2 p. m., when saying he had brought the story down to 1890, he gave way to Mr. Dubois, who delivered a carefully prepared speech. Amendments were then passed fixing the rates on linseed, faxseed, hopped and olive oils, and opium extracts. Then the rate on crude opium created considerable discussion. The "compromise" order was placed on the free list; Mr. Palmer, of Illinois, said he would like to see the damnable drug excluded altogether; Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, and Mr. Mitchell, of Oregon, agreed to vote against the "compromise" as agreed to. Opium for smoking reduced from $12 to $6. HOUSE.—The bill passed for validation of affidavits made before United States commissioners in all land entries. The joint resolution authorizing an investigation of the industrial depression was reported from the committee on labor. Mr. Springer introduced a bill which will soon call up the bill to remit the 10 per cent tax on state bank circulation. Then the House went into committee of the whole on the bill for the appropriation of $1,000,000 for the relief of the "sheep scab" with pleuro pneumonia, tuberculosis and other diseases of animals which the committee was authorized to investigate. An amendment was agreed to directing the president to enter into correspondence with the authorities of Great Britain for the abrogation or modification of the law which requires cattle imported into Great Britain from this country to be slaughtered at the port of entry and prevented from being carried to other parts of the kingdom. An amendment increasing the appropriation for the purchase, propagation and distribution of seed from $100,000 to $100,000 was agreed to.

SENATE.—19th day.—Mr. Morgan opened the proceedings by offering for reference a resolution which recited the existence of the Sherman anti-trust law of June 2, 1890, and the alleged existence of a sugar trust, called upon the attorney-general for information as to whether any proceedings were pending against such corporation; if so, what stage they had reached; if not, whether in his opinion, there was any defect in the anti-trust law. The Lodge tariff bribery and sugar investigation resolution was presented and discussed, and after being amended it was referred to the committee. WHEREAS, it has been stated in the Sun, a newspaper published in New York City, that bribes have been offered to certain Senators to induce them to vote against the pending tariff bill; and WHEREAS, it has also been stated in a signed article in the Press, a newspaper published in Philadelphia, that the sugar schedule has been made up as it now stands in the proposed amendment in consideration of a large sum of money paid for campaign purposes of the Democratic party in 1892; therefore, it is RESOLVED, That a committee of five Senators be appointed to investigate these charges and to inquire further whether any contributions have been made to the sugar trust or any person connected therewith to any political party for campaign or election purposes or to secure or defeat legislation or whether any Senator has been speculating in what are known as sugar stocks, during the consideration of the tariff bill now before the Senate, and with the view of procuring for persons and to administer oaths. RESOLVED, further, that said committee be authorized to investigate and report upon any charges or charges which may be made before it alleging that the action of any Senator has been corruptly or improperly influenced in the consideration of said bill or schedule, and that the committee be authorized to investigate and report upon any charges or charges which may be made before it alleging that the action of any Senator has been corruptly or improperly influenced in the consideration of said bill or schedule. The committee appointed was: Messrs. Gray, Lindsay, Lodge, Allen and Davis. The tariff bill was taken up and a few amendments to the tariff schedule were made. Mr. Harris moved to take a recess instead of adjourning in order to continue the legislative day until action was taken on the tariff bill. A battle which lasted until 10:30 p. m., when a compromise was agreed upon to begin daily sessions at 10 a. m. each day. HOUSE.—Among the bills favorably reported was one to inquire into the feasibility of constructing a ship canal from the Great lakes to the Hudson river. In committee of the whole the agricultural appropriation bill was taken up. Amendments were adopted authorizing the secretary of agriculture to investigate the nutritive value of food products; providing for the introduction of a Chinese plant resembling silk; providing that persons who should knowingly publish any false weather forecast or warning should be fined in a sum not exceeding $500 or imprisonment not exceeding 90 days or both; authorizing the secretary of agriculture to inquire as to the feasibility of displacing weather signals from postal cars. The bill was then passed.

SENATE.—19th day.—The tariff bill was considered for five straight hours. The "chemical" schedule was completed and "earth, earthenware and glass" were partially completed when "metals and manufacturers of iron and steel" was next in order, although it was not touched. Mr. Morgan's resolution calling on the attorney-general for information as to the existence of a sugar trust, the passage of law was adopted. HOUSE.—The legislative, executive and judicial appropriations bill was taken up, but the day was nearly spent in filibustering.

SENATE.—21st day.—But little progress was made on the tariff bill. That portion of the "glass, etc." schedule which was left from the day before was agreed to. Mr. Gallinger gave an installment of his lengthy speech, and after an executive session the Senate adjourned. HOUSE.—No session.

SENATE.—22nd day.—Dull describes it best. The "metal" schedule was taken up halfheartedly. The first amendment was that reported from the finance committee placing a duty of 40 cents per ton on iron ore, including manganese iron ore, also the gross or net return from burnt pyrites. Debate followed, participated in by Messrs. Aldrich, Mills, Chandler, Sherman, Lodge, Vest, Butler, Hoar, Gallinger and DeLoach. Mr. DeLoach, of Kansas, offered an amendment to transfer iron ore to the free list. Mr. Peffer's amendment was lost 4 to 46. The legislative appropriation bill in committee of the whole. Mr. Hayes (Dem., Ia.) offered an amendment which declared that the section which allowed the docking of members' salaries had been heretofore repealed. Mr. Dearmond, of Missouri, made a point of order against the amendment. The chairman sustained the point of order. Mr. Hayes appealed from the decision of the chair, and the decision of the chair was overruled by a vote of 59 to 112. The question was then put on Mr. Hayes' amendment declaring the statutes repealed which authorized the sergeant-at-arms to deduct from salaries of members for absence. It was agreed to, 116 to 83. Mr. Dockery gave notice that a yes and no vote would be demanded on the amendment when the bill was reported to the House.

A Searcher in New York City.

Fire started in wooden buildings in an enclosure known as "Jones' Woods" at Avenue A and Sixty-eighth streets, New York City, spreading over four blocks. Over $300,000 damage was done. Fifty horses were burned to death and a number of persons injured. The buildings fell so rapidly around an engine that the firemen were compelled to desert it, and it was buried beneath the ruins and crushed and twisted out of shape. Tenants of the buildings burned were unable to save any of their household effects. As many as 150 trucks standing in the streets, and which were the property of men living in the houses thereabout, were burned. Mrs. Mary Reilly, a widow, had her leg broken in jumping from a window of her home. Fireman Richard T. Moore was thrown from his truck, the wheels of which passed over and fatally injured him. Battalion Chief John Fisher was also thrown from his wagon and severely injured.

Senator Patton was the guest of honor at the dinner given by Senator McMillan at Washington. The entire Michigan congressional delegation was present, with the exception of Mr. Whiting, who was ill, and Mr. Stephenson, who was absent from the city.

The Canadian government has backed down and has instructed the collectors not to impose duty on booms brought into Canada by American lumbermen for towing logs across to the United States. The lumbermen threatened to lay the matter before the authorities at Washington, and hence the back down.

LAKE DISASTERS.

EIGHT VESSELS WRECKED AT CHICAGO

And Ten Men Known to Have Been Drowned.—Two Schooners Ashore at Milwaukee With Six Lives Lost.—Other Wrecks and Accidents.

The late storm which swept Lake Michigan was the most disastrous of recent years. Eight vessels were driven ashore within the city limits of Chicago. Out of their crews ten men are known to be drowned, and in every instance boat and cargo are utterly lost. One schooner, the Myrtle, was wrecked just outside the government pier within a half mile of Michigan boulevard, and six men of her crew went down to death in plain view of the hundreds of people who lined the boulevard walks, or watched the awful storm from the windows of the big hotels which overlook the harbor. The vessels were the schooners Lincoln Dalk of Manistee, seaman, Anton Gunderson drowned; Myrtle, every man of the crew lost, six in all, names unknown; Jack Thompson, from Garden bay, Mich., crew rescued by life-saving crew; Evening Star, of Milwaukee, crew rescued; Mercury, of Grand Haven, the vessel was grinding to pieces when three men jumped onto some floating lumber and reached shore, a line was then made fast and the remaining three crawled ashore; J. Loomis McLaren, of Chicago, crew saved excepting the mate who was killed by the breaking of a tow-post; Rainbow, of Milwaukee, the crew was rescued in the most heroic manner, the life-saving apparatus was aboard a flat-car on the Illinois Central railroad, which runs close to the water's edge, two lines had been fired at the drifting vessel, but both fell short, then the tug Spencer managed to get alongside for a moment and four men were taken off, the three others cut loose on a small raft they had made, and Wm. Havill, a young clerical engineer, placed a line about his waist and swam to the raft and called to one man to jump. Capt. Few did so. Havill grabbed him and both were pulled ashore; then E. J. Willis, a colored man, performed the same feat, and Havill again went out and brought the last poor fellow off; the rescuers and rescued were then taken to a hospital, all being thoroughly exhausted; C. G. Mixer, of Chicago, crew rescued; unknown fisherman, crew saved, Thomas Kelso, a fisherman, was washed off the government pier and drowned.

At Milwaukee. The schooners M. J. Cummings and C. C. Barnes tried to enter the harbor early in the day and failed to make the piers and were soon drifting toward the beach on Jones island. An unsuccessful effort was made by the life-saving crew to rescue all of the crew of the Cummings, but they were nearly drowned in the attempt, the life-boat being overturned, the crew escaping almost miraculously. The crew of the Barnes escaped, and the vessel can be released, as she is light and on sandy bottom. The life-saving crew managed to reach shore safely by clinging to the boat, which was washed high and dry.

Six thousand people were anxiously watching when the tug Knight Templar, towing a scow bearing the life-savers, left the pier to make a second attempt to rescue the crew. One hundred feet of line separated the tug from the scow, and back of the scow was towed the empty surf boat. With bow to the waves, the Knight Templar permitted the scow to drop down toward the wreck. Before the surf boat was in position three men were seen to fall one at a time from the mizzenmast, and when the boat had swung alongside two men leaped into it, but a man and a woman would not try it and were afterwards lost. Slowly the long line that held the surf boat was paid out, and the two rescued men were permitted to drift toward the shore. Along the beach at the foot of Jones island a crowd ran to meet the rescued men; willing hands were stretched out to reach them, and they were dragged from the boat to a place of safety.

Six Killed in Collision in a Tunnel.

A collision in the Standing Rock tunnel, on the Newport News & Mississippi Valley railroad, twelve miles east of Princeton, Ky., killed six men outright. The wreck was between an extra freight west bound and a bridge train in charge of Conductor Hill. Hill was out with his train and expected to take the siding just east of the tunnel. He sent a flagman ahead and was backing up with a boarding car in front. He had followed the flagman too closely and just as he entered the tunnel the extra freight reached the other end, going at the rate of 30 miles an hour. The engineer and fireman saw the danger in time to jump. The engine crashed into the boarding car in which were the six doomed men. The car was smashed into splinters and the engine plowed almost through it, choking up the tunnel with the debris. Eleven flat cars and box cars were piled together in the rear, making access to the wreck almost impossible.

Miss Bella Walsh was found dead by her mother on the second floor of their home at Mason. The coroner's investigation disclosed the fact that the young lady had suicided with morphine.

The Cincinnati board of trade desires to promote trade between that city and the Central and South American republics. To that end a movement was started to establish a school for instruction in the Spanish and Portuguese languages.

Warren Keller, of Canton, had taken Miss Lulu McAlister, of Toledo, to a dance at Myers lake. After dancing a while they concluded to take a boat ride. Securing a small, round-bottom boat they made the trip safely across the lake, and while returning their boat upset and both were drowned in deep water. The young lady was engaged to a wealthy young man of Toledo and Keller was jealous. The girl's mother says she thinks Keller upset the boat on purpose.

THE DANBURY NEWS MAN.

Pleasant Remembrances of the Witty and Genial Humorist.

Bailey—James Montgomery Bailey was his full name. He was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1841, fought through the war in a Connecticut regiment, and afterward made himself famous writing for the Danbury News.

Mr. Bailey's wit has a delicious mental flavor. In fact, it is always the shrewd, thoughtful man that enjoys it. It is not in long, inane dialogues, but a flash of thought. The humorist says a poor man came to him with tears in his eyes one day, asking for help for his destitute and starving children.

"What do you need most?" asked Mr. Bailey.

"Well, we need bread, but if I can't have that I'll take tobacco."

One day a solemn and religious Danbury man hailed a charcoal pedler with the query:

"Have you got charcoal in your wagon?"

"Yes, sir," said the expectant driver, stopping his horses.

"That's right," observed the religious man with an approving nod, "always tell the truth and people will respect you."

And then he closed the door just in time to escape a brick hurled by the wicked pedler.

One day I asked Mr. Bailey if they had lazy men in Connecticut.

"Lazy men!" he exclaimed, "why we have a man in Danbury so lazy that instead of shoveling a path to the front gate he pinches the baby's ear with the nippers till the neighbors come rushing in to tread down the snow."

Mr. McMasters was buying a home of Mr. Bailey, and asked him if the house was cold in winter.

"Cold?" said Mr. Bailey, cautiously. "I can't say as to that; it stands outdoors."

Speaking of the Indian raids, says Bailey: "The Modocs have made another raid on our people and murdered them. If ever our government gets hold of these savages, gets them right where they cannot escape, gets them wholly into its clutches, some contractor will make money."

Mr. Bailey's humor also consists in truthful descriptions of domestic life. His descriptions are so true that they are absolutely photographed on the mind of the reader. One can close his eyes and see with his mind's eye the very scenes depicted.—Twenty Years of Wit and Humor.

has done for others. There's no secret about it. Write and get particulars. We grant that salt is cheap, but is that a good reason why you should not have the best? Look fairly and fully into the salt question, and you'll find the way to better flavored butter, and better prices through our Dairy Salt. Indispensable for cooking and table use also. Write us about it. DIAMOND CRYSTAL SALT CO., St. Clair, Mich.

WHY "No. 9" WHEELER & WILSON'S SEWING MACHINES POPULAR? BECAUSE LADIES BUY THEM LIKE THEM AND TELL THEIR FRIENDS.

Many ladies have used our machines twenty to thirty years in their family work, and are still using the original machines we furnished them a generation ago. Many of our machines have run more than twenty years without repairs, other than needles. With proper care they never wear out, and seldom need repair. We have built sewing machines for more than forty years and have constantly improved them. We build our machines on honor, and they are recognized everywhere as the most accurately fitted and finely finished sewing machines in the world. Our latest, the "No. 9," is the result of our long experience. In competition with the leading machines of the world, it received the Grand Prize at the Paris Exposition of 1889, as the best, other machines receiving only complimentary medals of gold, silver and bronze. The Grand Prize was what all sought for, and our machine was awarded it.

THE STATE NEWS.

DOINGS AND HAPPENINGS IN MICHIGAN.

The Congregationalists Congregate at Kalamazoo—Storms of Rain, Hail and Snow Injure Crops and Fruit.—K. of P. Annual Session at Benton Harbor.

Storms in Our State.

A very severe storm of rain and hail, intermingled with vivid lightning and deafening thunder passed over the state. At Harrisville the dam above town broke, flooding the streets and carrying away out-houses and about 50,000 feet of logs; crops and gardens along the stream were washed out. Port Huron was pelted with hailstones four inches in circumference, breaking many windows and skylights and causing several runaways. At Train reports many dangerous washouts along the D., S. S. & A. railroad, causing at least one wreck. Kalamazoo lumber yards and trees suffered from the wind. Mason, Traverse City and other points report damage to crops, etc. Lightning killed a nephew of George Popewell and severely injured a man by the name of Potter at the farm of Popewell at Greenville. A horse was also killed.

Sleighing in May.

A wild snow storm raged at Alpena on the 19th and eight inches of snow fell on the level. Several sleighs and cutters were out. All vegetation was completely covered, trees were boned, and down to the ground under the weight of the heavy snow. Fruit blossoms were knocked off.

Marshall: There was a change of 60 degrees in temperature in 24 hours, followed by a heavy snow storm until the ground was completely covered with the "beautiful." The heavy rains have swelled the Kalamazoo river to an unusual depth for this season of the year.

Cadillac reported three inches of snow, as did East Tawas, Cedar Springs and several other localities. Many correspondents fear that great damage has been done to fruits, especially the early varieties.

Pine Barrens no Good for Farming.

For the past five years the state board of agriculture has been spending money received from the United States government for an experiment station at Grayling. A determined endeavor has been made to render an 80-acre tract of barren pine lands productive. All the ingenuity of the skilled agriculturists employed by the state, however, has been a success only in illustrating the fact that barren pine lands are a poor investment if purchased for agricultural purposes. The board at a meeting held at Grayling decided to abandon the experiment, and to let the eighty acres lie idle for the purpose of demonstrating whether or not nature will do anything toward increasing its fertility after having been given a boost.

Michigan K. P. Officers Elected.

The grand lodge of Knights of Pythias of Michigan was held at Benton Harbor. The reports showed a full attendance of representatives of the 163 lodges, net increase of nine lodges during the year. The membership has increased 972. The balance in the treasury is $3,291.90, a decrease of $676.30 during the year. Eleven lodges have applied for charters. Election of officers: G. P. C., George A. Reynolds, Saginaw; E. C. G. C., F. M. Douglass, Ionia; V. G. C., W. D. Clizbe, Birmingham; G. K. of R. and S., James W. Hopkins, Lansing; G. M. exchequer, Henry C. Hall, Hudson; G. prelate, James Gray, Detroit; G. M. A., E. F. Woodcock, Niles; G. I. G., O. D. Jones, Marquette; G. O. G., Dan P. McMullen, Cheboygan; S. T. Gage was re-elected trustee.

Congregationalists Congregate.

The annual meeting of the Congregational association of Michigan convened at Kalamazoo. Officers elected: Moderator, Dr. James Gallup, Grand Rapids; assistant moderator, Honorable C. A. Gower, Lansing; scribe, Rev. E. S. Shaw, Benzonia; assistant scribe, Rev. B. F. Aldrich, Pontiac. The total number of churches in the Michigan association is 344. The Sunday school growth has also been very large, the membership now being about 40,000. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand March 31, 1894, of $11,033.64. The report of the home missionary society showed that during the past year nine churches were organized. There have been added 1,396 to the membership.

Homeopathic Physicians.

The following officers were elected by the state organization of the Homeopathic Medical society in their meeting at Battle Creek: President, Oscar Le Seure, Detroit; first vice-president, Professor D. A. MacLachlan, Ann Arbor; second vice-president N. B. Sherman, Kalamazoo; general secretary, R. S. Copeland, Bay City; corresponding secretary, W. M. Bailey, Detroit; treasurer, C. S. Mack, Ann Arbor; necrologist, J. S. Ayres, Kalamazoo. W. M. Bailey was elected a member of the board of control, vice Porter, whose term expired.

The Boiler Busted.

The boiler in Moses Howe's planing mill at West Bay City exploded killing George L. Slosson, engineer; fatally injuring John T. Searth, wood turner, and severely wounding John Gregg, Stephen Aylea and Foreman Henry Neal. The mill was demolished. Loss over $6,000.

The development of the coal fields around Saginaw will be resumed at once, under the auspices of public-spirited citizens. The amount of money appropriated by the board of trade for this purpose has been exhausted, but the good work will go on.

Clara Schuman, aged nine years, daughter of Adam Schuman, a farmer near Saginaw, found a dynamite cartridge, and began picking it when it exploded, mangle her left hand so that amputation was necessary at the wrist, and taking off the thumb and tips of the fingers of the right hand and cutting her face and both arms badly.

Knight Templars of Michigan.

The thirty-eighth annual convocation of the grand commandery of Knights Templar of Michigan was held in the asylum of Peninsular Commandery No. 8, at Kalamazoo, all the commanderies in the state—forty-four—being represented. Officers elected: Grand commander, Charles H. Pomeroy, Saginaw; deputy grand commander, M. E. Jewett, Adrian; grand generalissimo, Edward D. Wheeler, Manistee; captain-general, Albert Stiles, Jackson; grand prelate, Francis A. Blades, Detroit; grand senior warden, Francis M. Moore, Marquette; grand junior warden, Robert B. McKnight, Saginaw; grand treasurer, C. A. Warren, Detroit; grand recorder, John A. Gerow, Detroit; grand standard-bearer, Eugene P. Robertson, Albion; grand sword-bearer, Philip T. Van Zile, Detroit; grand warder, C. R. Hawley, Bay City, and grand sentinel, Alexander McGregor, Detroit. After the election Hugh McCurdy, grand master of the grand encampment of the United States, installed the new officers. Saginaw was given the next meeting.

Clark Guilty of Conspiracy.

James G. Clark, charged with conspiracy in altering the election returns of Wayne county on the salaries amendment, was found guilty at Detroit. The jury had been out 25 hours and the defendant had begun to feel that the long discussion meant either his acquittal or a disagreement and the announcement of a verdict of guilty came like a thunderclap. Clark was a member of the footings committee, with George Bussey and W. H. Green, Jr., all of whom were charged with altering the returns relative to the increase of salaries of state officials. At an examination before the prosecuting attorney Clark had confessed, but at his trial denied the charge and fought hard against conviction. Bussey is the next to be tried.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

The regular annual session of the Women's Foreign Missionary society, of the Methodist Episcopal church of the United States, held a four days' convention at Adrian. A large amount of detail work was done. The election of officers resulted: For president, Mrs. F. A. Brown; vice-president, Mrs. D. S. Stephens; treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Anderson; editor of the Missionary Record, Mrs. Miller, of Pittsburg; recording secretary, Miss Jennie White; corresponding secretary, Mrs. D. S. Stephens; auditor, Mrs. J. E. Palmer.

MINOR MICHIGAN NEWS.

John Newdige, of Garfield, died from the effects of a kick from a vicious horse.

A 12-year-old daughter of John Crowley went fishing in the bayou south of Saginaw. She fell into the water and was drowned.

The safe of the electric light works and Roller Mill company, of Marine City was blown open and $75 in cash and some checks taken.

Nathaniel Flint, of Flint, aged 70 years, was arrested, charged with taking liberties with Teranna Foale, the 6-year-old daughter of William Foale.

The body of Jack Kinney, a well-known character who mysteriously disappeared from Evart about two months ago, was found in the river at Hersey. There are indications of foul play.

Miss Bella Wulsh was found dead by her mother on the second floor of their home at Mason. The coroner's investigation disclosed the fact that the young lady had suicided with morphine.

Ross West, about 20 years old, while bathing in Lake Michigan, near South Haven was taken with cramps, and before his companion, young McGregor, could get to him, sank for the last time.

Miss Nellie Hunt'ey, aged 20 years, committed suicide at Holland by shooting herself with a shotgun. She left a note to her parents and one to her lover, with whom she had been quarreling, which is the cause of the sad deed.

Henry Fisher, sent to Jackson prison from Oakland county for two years for breaking and entering an office in the night time, completed his sentence, and as he left the prison doors Sergt. Tobin arrested him for personating a pension officer. The arrest was made at the request of United States Marshal Winney, and Deputy Large took the prisoner to Detroit.

Silas White, colored, of Grand Rapids, has a fully developed case of small-pox. He arrived from Chicago and was sick then, but was able to be about. He lodged with a family of 12 persons named Robinson, and visited the circuit court where he was a plaintiff in a suit. Two hacks in which he rode are laid off and everything connected with him quarantined.

The fifty-third anniversary of the Kalamazoo River Baptist association was held at Kalamazoo. The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. Isaac Horton, of Climax. Officers elected: Moderator, Rev. A. H. Jessup, South Haven; clerk, Rev. Eugene Haines, Allegan; treasurer, P. Hoffmaster, Battle Creek; reading clerks, Rev. D. T. Magill, Lawton; A. J. Hutchins, Paw Paw. Sunday school superintendent, W. A. Powell, Marshall.

Coal Miners Still Striking.

The three days' conference at Cleveland between striking coal miners and operators to settle the huge strike in the coal districts of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois and Indiana resulted in a first-class fizzle, as neither side would make concessions on the wage scale. The operators wanted to make the scale 45 cents for Pennsylvania, 56 cents for Hoeking Valley and other districts in proportion. The miners stood firm for 70 and 79 cents.

Cincinnati Carpenters Strike.

All the carpenters and millhands in Cincinnati, Covington and Newport have been ordered on a strike by a mass meeting attended by over 1,000 men. Only forty votes opposed the strike. It is ordered because the boss carpenters have refused to agree to pay $2.50 for eight hours or $3 for nine hours, with an hour less on Saturdays. Nearly 5,000 men are affected.

After a financial settlement with all creditors, the Brooklyn Tabernacle people will realize $30,000 from the insurance money.

Four Brave Rescuers Lost on Lake Huron

The schooner William Shupe was struck by the storm on Lake Huron off Sanilac. She battled against the waves and the wind for several long hours, but at last struck on a sand reef off Lakeport, six miles from Port Huron. The crew was in great peril and a volunteer life-saving crew was organized at Port Huron to go to the rescue. The waves were running mountain high in a gale blowing 40 miles an hour, when Capt. Henry C. Little, Barney Mills, Angus King, Wm. L. Lewis and Daniel Lynn, all of Port Huron, were towed in a yawl boat to within half a mile of the ill-fated Shupe. They reached the vessel safely and had made a line fast and were about to take the crew off when the yawl caught in or under a timber projecting from the side of the schooner and a wave tossed the yawl over in an instant throwing all into the water.

One of the men, supposed to have been Mills, disappeared at once, while the others began striking out for shore, 200 yards distant. Little, Lewis and King soon succumbed, but Lynn, who is a robust young man, had more endurance and swam for nearly half a mile, the gale carrying him down the lake. He also would have succumbed had not aid reached him from shore in a most heroic manner and just in the nick of time. Chubb Randall, 20 years old, a river reporter, and Charles Conkey, who were watching the attempted rescue from ashore waded out into the lake and reached Lynn just as he had become exhausted, he falling down unconscious when the young men approached him and he had to be dragged ashore. He would have been among the lost had the two brave young men been 30 seconds later in reaching him.

After this catastrophe the life-saving station at Sand Beach was notified and the crew came down by special train. The tug Thompson towed the life boat up to within half a mile of the wreck and in two hours the life savers had taken all of the crew, six persons, off the Shupe and taken them to shore. They were Nelson Little, Port Huron, captain; William Brown, Port Huron, mate; James Blair, Port Huron, sailor; Reddy Curry, Oswego, N. Y., another sailor, name not learned, and Mrs. Johnson, Port Huron, cook. The crew were in excellent condition, considering that they were exposed to a fierce gale 24 hours. The Shupe was owned by her master, Nelson Little, and was valued at about $3,000 with no insurance.

Changed Her Mind.

A short time ago a colored woman appeared at Shelbyville, Ky., and announced her intention of giving a lecture and reading at one of the colored churches. A large audience assembled to hear her, but she failed to put in an appearance, but instead sent a note saying that her principal reason for her nonappearance was found in the bible, and was that she did not believe it right to "cast pearls before swine."

To Hear a Thunderstorm in the Sun.

In a somewhat speculative conclusion of a recent paper Mr. Preece mentioned the effects of an aurora on telephone circuits and stated that it was not a wild dream to say that we may hear on this earth a thunderstorm on the sun.

Probate Order for Hearing Accounts of Guardian.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, the tenth day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four. Present, J. WILLARD HABBITT, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the Estate of Hiram B. Starks, incompetent, Cyrus M. Starks, the guardian of said ward, comes into court and represents that he is now prepared to render his 24th annual account as such guardian. Thereupon it is ordered, that Tuesday, the 29th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing such account, and that the next of kin of said ward and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, in said County, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed: And it is further ordered that said guardian give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the ANN ARBOR REGISTER, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. J. WILLARD HABBITT, Judge of Probate. Wm. G. Doty, Probate Register.

Order of Appearance.

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw—In Chancery.

David H. S. Underwood, Complainant, vs. Alvah P. Ferguson, Nellie R. Ferguson, The Western Linoleum Co., Charles T. Blanchard, Frank E. Hale and Wood, Smith & Co., Defendants.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw, in Chancery at Ann Arbor, on the 7th day of April, A. D. 1894.

In this cause, it appearing from affidavit on file, that the defendants, The Western Linoleum Company, Charles T. Blanchard, Frank E. Hale, and Wood, Smith & Company are not residents of this state, but that the said Western Linoleum Company resides at Akron in the State of Ohio, that said Charles T. Blanchard and Frank E. Hale reside at Syracuse in the State of New York and that said Wood, Smith & Company resides at Fort Plain in the State of New York, on motion of Lawrence & Butterfield, complainant's solicitors, it is ordered that the said defendants, The Western Linoleum Company, Charles T. Blanchard, Frank E. Hale and Wood, Smith & Company cause their appearance to be entered herein, within four months from the date of this order, and in case of their or either of their appearance that they respectively cause their answer to the complainant's bill of complaint to be filed, and a copy thereof to be served on said complainant's solicitors, within twenty days after service on them of a copy of said bill, and notice of this order; and that in default thereof, said bill be taken as confessed by each of the said non-resident defendants who have not complied with this order.

And it is further ordered that within twenty days the said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the ANN ARBOR REGISTER, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, and that said publication be continued there at least once in each week, for six weeks in succession, or that said complainant cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said non-resident defendants at least twenty days before the time prescribed for their appearance. E. D. KINNE, Circuit Judge. LAWRENCE & BUTTERFIELD, Complainant's Solicitors. 14 Attest, ARTHUR BROWN, Register.

Mortgage Sale.

De'ault having been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated the 25th day of April in the year 1891, made by Lizzie A. McLenahan to Hannah Drury, and which was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county of Washtenaw, State of Michigan, on the 1st day of June, 1891, in Liber 77 of mortgages, on page 248, which said mortgage was upon the 22d day of June, 1893, duly assigned to Emily C. Place of Peoria, Ill., which assignment was upon the 29th day of March 1894, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of said county in Liber 11 of assignments of mortgages on page 584, and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, is the sum of six hundred and eighty-one and 67-100 dollars and fifteen cents as an attorney's fee, and no suit or proceedings at law having been instituted to recover the moneys secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Saturday, the 30th day of June, 1894, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, I shall sell at public auction or vendue, to the highest bidder, at the north front door of the court house in the city of Ann Arbor (that being the place where the circuit court for Washtenaw county is holden) the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage with accrued interest and all legal costs together with the attorney's fee of fifteen dollars therein provided for; the premises described in said mortgage being all that certain piece or parcel of land in the city of Ypsilanti, county of Washtenaw, state of Michigan, and described as commencing at a point where the west line of Normal street crosses the north line of Chicago street; thence west eight rods along the north line of Chicago street, thence north one hundred and ten feet, thence east eight rods to the west line of Normal street, thence south along the west line of Normal street one hundred and ten feet to the place of beginning. The Democratic party is as discordant at the present time as it was during the war.

The Pontiac Gazette says Emperor William is no slouch. Yes, but he wears a slouch hat.

A large number of Democrats believe in protection. They are being vaccinated as a protection against small-pox.

About the only two things which the Democratic party can offer to the country as a result of "Democracy in Power" are Breckenridge and Coxeysism.

Mayor Seymour, of Ypsilanti, has ordered the marshal to prevent all dealers in cigars from selling that form of the weed on Sunday. This is the age of wonders, surely.

The national organ of the Democratic party is conceded by all parties to be the New York World. It says: "The tariff bill as it stands today is a monument to bribery."

Democracy is showing its teeth at Detroit. It has kicked every union veteran out of the office of the collector of internal revenue. Phelan says that only Democrats will be employed.

The Courier says that Saline has more grit than Ann Arbor. Bicycle riders dispute this. They claim that Ann Arbor has more grit than any city in the Union, Chicago not excepted.

The American Express Co. removed their old and faithful agent at Howell for writing an article for a newspaper. That was unjust. If the gentleman had written a poem—why, then, that would have been different.

JAMES G. CLARKE was found guilty of the charge of falsifying the Wayne Co. amendment returns. This is the first conviction in the case. Now, the question arises, who are the guilty ones that induced Clark to doctor the returns? Let no guilty man escape.

There are over 6000 post-mistresses in the United States. In Australia women are generally employed as railway station agents. In many of the small stations a woman is in sole control, being ticket seller, telegraph operator and baggage mistress.

EX-SENATOR MORROW, of Lenawee, is spoken of as a candidate for congressional honors on the Democratic ticket. Too late, Senator, Buffalo Jim Gorman is the logical candidate and he will be re-nominated. The Democratic party cannot afford to turn him down.

"GENERAL" COXEY says that the federal government has no constitutional power to enforce and collect tariff duties, except for purposes of revenue only. Why, General, this is what the Democratic party claims. So you must be a Democrat? Of course you are. Coxeysism is but another name for Democracy.

The Lansing Journal says that the enforced retirement of Congressman Griffin at the completion of his present term will be a serious loss, as the services of such able men as the First District Congressman are greatly needed in the councils of the nation. How about the forced retirement of the Second District Congressman, Buffalo Jim? He won't be missed. The Second District has been misrepresented. The people will see to it that it does not occur again.

The postoffice department has sent to all railway mail service employees circulars calling attention to the postal regulations requiring postal clerks to accept all prepaid mail matter offered them at their cars and to forward it to its destination. Inquiries have been received at the department from almost every section of the country, indicating a general misunderstanding, due, it is stated, to the publication of a number of articles, incorrectly intimating that the section of the regulations making the obligation has been repealed. The rule is declared to be still in force and refusal to comply will render clerks liable to dismissal unless special authority has been given.

SEVERAL days ago the Detroit Evening News announced that Congressman Gorman had won another notable victory, and that Fish Commissioner McDonald had demanded Mr. Clark's resignation as superintendent of the hatchery at Northville. Clarke's resign-nation was received in Washington last week, and the question of the appointment of a successor became a matter of speculation. The congressman's triumph is, however, shown to be a trifling one. The scalp which he has been carrying around for the past 10 days has suddenly been torn from its belt, and has been neatly stitched back on to Clark's head.

Mr. McDonald gives challenge to Gorman by refusing to accept the resignation, by revoking the call issued therefor, and by announcing that Mr. Clark is to be continued right along in his old job.

In the death of Adelbert L. Noble, Ann Arbor loses its most enterprising business man. Our citizens will miss him much. He always spoke kindly of, and kindly to, his neighbors and friends. Enemies, he had none. He believed that honesty in his daily walks in life, in his dealings with men, was the best policy, and that policy Adelbert L. Noble pursued from the beginning of his business career until its close. He was a Christian and he endeavored to live the life of a Christian. He took a prominent part in religious work, which he considered duty and pleasure. He was a model business man, a model citizen and a model Christian. Yes, Ann Arbor will miss him much.

In the case of John F. Rich vs. Board of State Canvassers, in a unanimous opinion written by Justice Montgomery, the Supreme Court on Tuesday, granted a mandamus directing the Board of State Canvassers to convene and canvass the vote of 1891 on the proposed constitutional amendment increasing the salary of attorney-general from $800 to $2,500 per annum. It will be remembered that according to the official canvass the amendment received a majority of 1,237 votes in the state, but the vote of Gratiot county which gave an adverse majority of 690 was thrown out by the canvassers and previous to the canvass the vote of Gogebic county was fraudulently changed by adding 1,000 to the affirmative vote. These facts were shown to the court by Governor Rich's petition for a mandamus to compel the Board to canvass the vote.

The annual convention of college prohibition clubs of Michigan met at Kalamazoo last week. State President J. E. Richardson, of this city, presided and made an able opening speech. The following officers were elected: President, A. F. White, Kalamazoo; vice-president, E. Lougher, Hillsdale; secretary, Thomas Clemon, Albion; treasurer, W. W. Mills, Ann Arbor. In the afternoon took place the oratorical contest. A large crowd of students and townspeople was in attendance. Proceeding the contest reports of committees were received and resolutions adopted indorsing prohibition and female suffrage and urging the support of party organs. The first prize in the contest was won by A. E. Ebersole, of Hillsdale, in a brilliant oration on "Abolition on War." Mr. Ebersole will represent the state clubs at the national convention held at prohibition Park, Long Island, June 18. The second prize was won by A. J. Hutchins, of Kalamazoo.

Fine Table Salt.

The Fulton Market and Grocery, of No. 19 E. Washington-st., has just received a supply of the famous Worcester fine table salt. It is by all odds the finest grade of salt ever placed on the market. For table use, and for seasoning and especially for use in butter making, it cannot be excelled. (12)

GENERAL SPALDING.

Monroe People See Him Only in the Second District.

Gen. George Spalding is the candidate of Monroe county for the nomination, and Monroe will present him with a solid delegation, and will press his nomination with all the energy they possess. Monroe's claim is "assurance of success." He has been elected mayor of this Democratic city, and was a member of board of education many years. He is a good public speaker, and popular with all classes. Gen. Spalding is president of the First National bank, whose success is due largely to its president's ability and integrity. He is also president of the Monroe water company, and treasurer of the Monroe electric light and power company. He has been chairman of the Republican county committee, and takes the stump in all presidential campaigns. He is a forceful, logical and pleasing speaker. He owns and personally manages a large farm near Monroe.

At the outbreak of the war he entered the Fourth Michigan infantry as first sergeant, and participated in the first skirmish of the war, and was the rear guard in the retreat from Bull Run. He rose to the rank of lieutenant, and soon after to that of captain, and when in charge of a reconnoitering party in front of Yorktown was wounded in the shoulder but refused a leave of absence, continuing the command of his company with his arm in a sling. At New Bridge, with another, routed a confederate brigade and captured more prisoners than they themselves numbered.

At Malvern Hill, Capt. Spalding received a severe wound and was reported as dead, but returning to consciousness, he made his way back to the lines and took a short leave of absence. He then received the appointment of major. This he resigned and took the position of lieutenant colonel of the Eighteenth infantry. He served various engagements in Kentucky and was in command of Danville and later provost marshal of Nashville. After this he was commissioned as colonel.

At the battle of Nashville, he led a cavalry charge against Forrest and captured Gen. Chalmers, with battle flags, twenty-six officers and 100 men, and himself received a wound in the leg. For this gallantry he was brevetted brigadier general. After closing his splendid military career with the war, he was appointed special agent of the treasury department and was ordered to Brownsville, Tex., to adjust commercial difficulties at that point.

The Republicans of Jackson contend that they have a winner in the person of Hon. James O'Donnell. They say his nomination is necessary to the success of the ticket. In a district that is overwhelmingly Democratic, O'Donnell lacked but 594 votes of being elected. He ran Gorman about 900 votes behind his ticket. This year he can and will overcome the majority and will be elected by a handsome majority.

THE W. C. T. U.

Prominent Temperance Women Gathered in this City.

The twentieth annual State convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Michigan met in this city this week. The convention was called to order at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church, when a delegates' prayer meeting was held; at 4:30 occurred the annual memorial services, held in honor of the members of the union that have died during the year.

The following program was carried out at the evening session, which began at 7:30 o'clock: Devotional exercises, Rev. G. M. Gelston; music, and then welcomes in behalf of the city by Mayor Darling, in behalf of the churches by Rev. J. M. Gelston, in behalf of the Y. W. C. T. U. by Miss Anna Richards, in behalf of the W. C. T. U. by Mrs. Hattie Doig. The response to these welcomes were made by Mrs. Anna G. Curtis, of Detroit.

The closing hour of the evening session was devoted to the Y. W. C. T. U. as follows: Greeting, Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop; report and object of the Y. W. C. T. U. by Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit; "Relation of the Young People to the Questions of the Day," Georgia Fay Merrill, Muskegon; "The Attitude of Young Women in the Churches to the Temperance Reform," Mary Stewart, Grand Rapids; "The Attitude of College Girls on the Temperance Question," Anna Richards, Ann Arbor; "The Attitude of Young Wives and Mothers on the Temperance Reform," Hattie Flint, Detroit; "The Attitude of the W. C. T. U.'s Towards the Y. W. C. T. U.," E. N. Law, Baraga; "Delsarte and Indian Club Movements," Lydia J. Newcomb. The addresses were interspersed with music at appropriate intervals, and the exercises were closed with the benediction.

Wednesday evening's session was in the nature of a business meeting. Committees on resolutions, finance, and courtesies appointed, and then the president's recommendations by Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop; treasurer's report, Mrs. Emma H. May; reports of the auditing committee and corresponding secretary; Michigan union and state minutes, by Mrs. Julia R. Parish; report of auditing committee, Mrs. C. C. Faxon; summarized report of district presidents.

Wednesday afternoon's session consisted of a department conference, evangelistic, social and legal, which was participated in by Mesdames Maybee of Lansing, B. B. Hudson of Detroit, H. M. Wilson of Ionia, Charlotte D. Pettee of Battle Creek, S. A. Morrison of Wayne, Alice M. Phillips of Grand Rapids, W. E. Aldrich of Fenton, M. E. Pengelly of Kalamazoo, Helen M. Thomas of Albion, Annie Andrus of Detroit, H. M. Newman of Jackson, Margaret I. Taylor of Lapeer, A. S. Benjamin of Portland, R. M. Kellogg of Ionia, J. M. Kinney of North Street, S. E. V. Emery of Lansing. Following this came a ten minute health study, by Lydia J. Newcomb, and a paper on "The development of the department method and its advantages in W. C. T. U. work," by Mrs. W. E. Aldrich. The session closed with a discussion.

Wednesday evening's entertainment was in the nature of a reception, and a very fine musical and literary program had been arranged.

The First Presbyterian church, in which the sessions of the convention were held, is tastefully decorated with flowers and plants. Banners and mottoes were spread about the walls.

Mrs. Mary T. Lathrop, of Jackson, who has for 13 years been state president of the W. C. T. U., is a native of this state, and received her early education at Marshall. She taught in the public schools of Detroit from 1862-65, when she was married to Carnett C. Lathrop.

Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit, who is state recording secretary of the young women's branch of the W. C. T. U., is a native of Michigan, and spent the earlier part of her life as a teacher in the public schools of this state.

Miss Lydia J. Newcomb, of Spring Lake, state superintendent of the physical culture department, is one of the hard workers in the cause.

Miss Lizzie M. Johnson, of Flint, state recording secretary, is a native of Connecticut. Since coming to Michigan she has been closely identified with the work of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Julia R. Parish, of Bay City, state corresponding secretary, is a graduate of the New York Central Conference seminary, and has for the last ten years been teacher of English literature and Greek in the Bay City high school.

Mrs. Emma H. May, of Clio, who has held the office of state treasurer of the W. C. T. U. for three years, was born at Romeo, and received her education at the Dickinson institute.

A New County Atlas.

The American Atlas Co., of Chicago, sent their men into Washtenaw county last week to begin work upon the new county atlas. The surveying was begun Monday morning. They began on the west side of the county and will make a complete survey of every foot of land in the entire county. The pages of the atlas will be the same size as that of the county atlas published twenty years ago. A full page will be devoted to each township and every parcel of land will be indicated and the owner's name and the number of acres, as well as the location of his residence, given. The villages and cities of the county will be given in blocks, showing the size of the blocks, the width of the street, the name of the owners and the street numbers. The map part of the atlas will be made as complete and accurate as it is possible to get by a work of this kind. Every school house, post-office, church, public highway, cemetery, timber land, swamp land, etc., will be shown. Exact location of every residence in the county, and the owner of same, will also appear. The firm comes very well recommended and will, without doubt, publish a very complete atlas, something that has become a very great necessity. The old one, published twenty years ago, was a good one in its time, but so many changes have taken place within twenty years that at the present time another atlas is greatly needed. We believe that these gentlemen will get up an atlas that will be of great value to Washtenaw county people, and we anticipate a large sale for the same.

LATEST COUNTY NEWS.

DELHI MILLS. Mrs. Samuel Durout, of Toledo, is visiting relatives and friends of Delhi.

Mr. Fred Abele and wife, who have been spending several weeks in Delhi and vicinity, returned to Jackson last Saturday.

Delhi is furnishing the M. C. R. R. with stones. It is astonishing to see the quantities of stone taken away from here on the cars and still we don't miss them. There are lots left.

Mrs. Jennie Goodale and son, Fred, of Ann Arbor, spent the day last Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore. Delhi people rejoice with Fred that he has partially recovered from his long and severe illness and hope that he may gain his health entirely.

YORK. This neighborhood is having a chill at present. The K. O. T. M. held a social at the residence of U. C. Hale last Friday night.

The farmers of this section are feeling blue over the destruction of the corn they have planted. Prof. Camburn, of this city, will leave us soon, as he has procured a school at Centerville, St. Joseph Co.

The Epworth league have postponed their social until Friday, May 25th. There will be music by the Milan band. Mr. White, of Dexter, was here Friday, May 18, to organize a Good Templor's lodge. The lodge was all right but where were the Good Templers?

WEBSTER. Miss Vida Pierce is visiting in Ann Arbor. Henry Scadin went to Grand Ledge this week. John Wesley Reeves has gone to New England to make an extensive visit.

Rev. Mr. Baumgardner gave a very interesting report of the Kalamazoo convention Sunday morning. The extreme wet and cold weather has seriously hindered corn planting in some parts and is hurtful to that already planted.

Mr. Blomfield, of Grand Ledge, lectures this Friday evening at the Congregational church on the subject of the Metropolis, or London, its past and present. It is the fifth in the series and surely all will be rewarded by listening to one whose nationality draws him in close sympathy with his subject.

Mr. T. Holmes spent part of last week with relatives in Superior. Mrs. Shier and daughter Mai, spent Sunday with friends in Emery. Mr. Bailey, of Ann Arbor, was the guest of John Rane over Sunday.

A terrible storm struck this place last Friday evening, tearing up trees and fences. No school in this district is sick with the measles.

Mrs. Jos. Pray has been seriously ill for the past week but is slowly improving at this writing. People in this vicinity are putting linen dusters aside and getting out their winter overcoats.

Miss Carrie Barker, who has been attending school in Ann Arbor, is obliged to leave school on account of her poor health. Mrs. Frank Butterfield has the sympathy of this community in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Suley, of Hamburg, who died Monday.

Miss Hattie Roper has returned from her visit in Fort Wayne, Ind., her niece, Miss Hattie Markey, accompanied her and will spend the summer here. Rev. Father Elliot, of Detroit, is conducting a series of lectures at the Lake House, the first one was given Sunday afternoon and was listened to by a large and appreciative audience.

The L. O. G. T.'s will give a Pink Lawn Social at the residence of L. J. Stiles, on Friday evening, June 1st. Ice cream or strawberries and cream will be served by twelve waiters consisting of a good program, consisting of dialogues, essays, recitations and music, is being prepared and a good time is anticipated. Supper 25 cents a couple. All are cordially invited.

James C. Lewis, of Utica, Mich., is visiting his brother, F. J. Lewis, of S. 5th-ave. S. Kraus has returned to Ann Arbor from a six weeks' business trip through the west.

Mrs. E. B. Wood, of Tecumseh, was the guest of her sister, Mrs. L. E. Cheever, last week. Mr. Shivers, of Coldwater, is in the city and expects to have a surgical operation performed.

SHORT TALKS ON ADVERTISING.

No 8. [Written especially for THE REGISTER.] One man succeeds and another man fails and people wonder how it happens.

Slight differences in men seem to make all the wide differences between success and failure. In games of chance (?) the "bank" has only a slight percentage, but the bank always wins.

Back of every result is a reason. Back of business success are earnestness, persistence, concentration. Between these and achievement is advertising.

No man ever yet made a success of business without advertising of some sort. Maybe he didn't call it advertising, but it was advertising just the same.

Advertising primarily consists in letting a lot of people know you are in existence and what excuse you have for it.

The holder is of hard rubber perfectly formed and finished. The Feed is of the most approved pattern, (the same used in a pen costing $2.00.) insuring an even flow and no leakage.

What you can do is to put the remark, more or less elaborately expressed, into THE REGISTER and have it handed to 2,000 families all in one day.

An advertisement in "THE REGISTER" is a little thing, but it goes into hundreds of homes and tells thousands of people just what you most wish them to hear. If the ad. is an honest ad., it will always pay.

LITERARY NOTES.

Prominent among the many excellent features of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for May we notice: "On the Spot," the first of a series of personal reminiscences of an artist at the front in the rebellion of '61-'65, "Medical Education in France," and a Brazilian article, "The Revolt of the Fleet" by Cecil Charles. — Frank Leslie's Pub. House, (Department B) 110 Fifth ave., N. Y. City.

The Overland Monthly for May takes a look wider afield than is sometimes the case with that representative magazine. It travels from Egypt (a delightful paper on the present state of affairs in that enchanted land, by Jeremiah Lynch) on the east, to Singapore on the west,—this last in the first of a series of papers by the new editor, Mr. Rounseville Wildman, on life and letters in the Malay Peninsula, where he was United States Consul for a number of years.—Overland Pub. Co., San Francisco, Cal.

At the World's Fair last summer no foreign exhibit attracted more attention than, probably no other attracted so much as the Javanese village. In spite of the interest then taken in the gentle little brown-skinned residents of the rush-matting-and-bamboo village, many people will be surprised to know that the population of Java is 23,000,000. How the Javanese live, and what their island home looks like, will be described in the May Harper's Magazine, with illustrations of typical houses, vegetation, and men and women.—Harper Bros., New York.

The womanly side of Queen Victoria is pictured exceedingly well—and appropriately, too, in this the month of her seventy-fifth birthday—in an article in "The Womanly Side of Victoria," which Arthur Warren contributes to the May issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. Mr. Howells' literary biography under the title of "Literary Passions" holds the interest surprisingly well. The editor questions whether all this clamor about this being "woman's century," consists of sketches, with portraits, of Mrs. Edward Everett Hale and of Miss Nancy Bailey, the wonderful woman indexer of England.—Published by the Curtis Pub. Co., of Philadelphia, for ten cents per number.

The May Arena closes the ninth volume of this leader among the progressive and reformative reviews of the English-speaking world. The table of contents is very strong and inviting. Among the important social and economic problems discussed are "The First Steps in the Land Question," by Louis F. Post; "The Philosophy of Mutualism," by Professor Frank Parsons of Boston University Law School; "Emergency Measures for Maintaining Self-Respected Manhood," by the Editor of The Arena. The Saloon Evil is discussed in a symposium. One of the strongest papers on Heredity that has appeared in recent years is found in this issue from the pen of Helen H. Gardner.—Arena Pub. Co., Boston, Mass.

The foreign policy of the United States receives special attention in the department "Progress of the World" of the Review of Reviews for May. The advantages to be derived by our people from the construction of the Nicaragua Canal, from our commercial position in the Pacific, and from using Pearl Harbor as a naval repair and coaling station are clearly outlined. The part played by the British Bermudas as a base of operations against the United States during the Civil War is recalled as an object lesson to those statesmen who seem over-feeble of any policy looking toward the annexation of Hawaii. The proposed income tax is discussed in its various bearings by the editor. Objections to the measure are rigorously stated.—Review of Reviews, New York.

In the May number of The Eclectic the conclusion of W. H. Mallock's "Fabian Economics" is followed by an interesting paper from The National Review, by Leslie Stephen, on "Luxury." Railway Development at Home and Abroad" gives careful statistics as to the comparative area, growth and value of railroads all over the world, and the reasons for these facts. "The New Eirenikon" pleads for reason in religion, and is one of the most valuable articles in the number. A timely paper in view of the recent change of English ministers is H. W. Massingham's "Old Premier and the New." The number closes with a half dozen lighter articles and sketches, among them a story by the author of Ships that Pass in the Night.—Published by E. R. Pelton, 144 Eighth Street, New York. Terms, $5 per year.

With its first issue of January last the unrivaled eclectic of foreign literature, L. L. Living Age, entered upon a new (its sixth) series. As no continued articles were carried over into this year all subscribers commencing with that date will possess a work complete in itself and forming an invaluable compendium of the world's choicest literature. The price of the magazine, which has been the favorite in thousands of American homes for half a century, is $8.00 a year, but as a special inducement, to any who desire to make a trial subscription, the twenty-six numbers, forming the first half of the year, 1894 (January to June inclusive), will be sent for $3.00. To any one remitting six dollars in payment for the nine months, April to December inclusive, the thirteen numbers forming the first quarterly volume of 1894 will be sent free.—Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

MAKING AMENDS.

How A Nevada Cowboy Propitiated a Lady.

"On my overland trip to San Francisco I was treated to the exhibition of a rough ranchman put very much on his good behavior," writes a New York lady visiting California. "We had got out at one of the stations in Nevada for dinner. I have forgotten the name of the place, if ever I noted it, but if it wasn't Poverty Flat it was misnamed. Not feeling hungry I leaned back in my chair, idly looking at the sandhills through the open window opposite, unmindful of the knives and plates around me. A rough voice at my very ear startled me from my dream.

"Here, why the hell don't you pass me the butter?"

"It came from the nearer one of two stalwart, subburned men, who seemed to be ranchmen or miners. They sat beside me in dusty, high-top boots and rough peajackets, with their broad brimmed hats on, and were eating as if they had long arrears to make up in the way of square meals.

"Imagine my astonishment at such a summons, which I have no doubt was addressed to me. But I was too much intimidated to be indignant, but hastily handed him not only the butter, but everything within my reach. At this he looked around at me for the first time, and his look of amazement showed that he was worse taken back than I had been. He did not thank me, but took his hat off and put it under his chair, and nudging his companion, said in an awestricken stage whisper:

"I say, Jim, take your hat off; she's a lady."

"Then, evidently wishing to make further amends for his discourtesy, he again turned to me:

"Say, marm, hev yer ever seen a live wild cat? 'Cause ef yer ain't, I've got one outside here I caught myself, an' I'll take ye out after we get through eatin' an' show it ter ye."

"I thanked him, and said I would be very glad to see it, as I had never seen one. After dinner, having still ten minutes to spare, we went to see the wild cat. It was in a rough wooden box with wooden bars, crouching as far back as it could get, with its eyes gleaming like coals of fire.

When one of the men offered it a piece of meat on the end of a stick, it made a spring that seemed as if it would break through the bars; but the stick had a sharp point that made it beat a hasty retreat, though not before it had secured the meat, over which it snarled viciously. Its owner told me he had brought it to the station to send to a friend who kept a 'club house,' whatever that is, in Carson City. I asked him to tell us how he caught it, but before he could answer the conductor called out, 'All aboard.' As the train got under way I looked back and saw my two friends flying across the country on their mustangs."

I suffered from acute inflammation in my nose and head—for a week at a time I could not see. I used Ely's Cream Balm and in a few days I was cured. It is wonderful how quick it helped me.—Mrs. Georgie S. Judson, Hartford, Conn.

Merely a Matter of Form.

Dentist—I'm afraid it's too late to save that tooth, miss. It will have to come out.

Self-Possessed Young Woman—Is the corresponding tooth on the opposite side a sound one?"

"Perfectly."

"No probability that it will get to aching?"

"None whatever."

"And this one that's aching—is it likely to keep my jaw swelled up as it is now?"

"It is."

"Then take it out, doctor. It destroys the symmetry of my face."

They Won't Mix.

"Don't mix facts and woe. Decide between them," says Mary Hall-ock Footo, who is a clever enough woman to understand the sex. What she means is that if a man believes in a woman he can't possibly believe anything against her, no matter what the facts seem to prove. On the other hand, if his experience with her doesn't justify absolute trust he had best accept the facts and permit no argument. Miss Footo ought to know her sex and whether they agree with her.—New York Press.

"What do you mean?" cried Alonzo, jumping up from his chair as though something had stung him.

"Ah," said Eric, with a voice cool and incisive, "I thought you had forever broken with her. How, then, can it wake your wrath if she should become the queen of Saltravia?"

"It wouldn't—it wouldn't," muttered Alonzo, pale and visibly distressed.

"But if anything happens, Lonz, I pledge you my word that will happen! The king has done far more audacious things already than marry an American girl. As for a morganatic marriage—"

"Curse a morganatic marriage!" cried Alonzo. "If he tried that, and she consented, I'd put a bullet through his brain, though they hung me ten minutes afterward."

"They don't hang here; they guillotine," said Eric, calmly. "It's much neater, in a way. But you needn't covet any such poetic fate. Clarimond loathes morganatic unions, has more than once told me. Lonz, Lonz! you know him too well by this time for such kind of talk! Here you are, rich, through his generosity, and you talk of him as if he were some common cad."

"I'll resign my position!" quavered Alonzo, with both hands clenched at his side. "I'll go to starvation, if you please—"

"Don't. Go to the ball first."

"I'll send him my resignation this very day!"

"Wait until the ball is over."

"Curse the ball!"

"You're cursing everything, it strikes me, in the most promiscuous manner."

"Forgive me, Eric, but I can't help it."

"You can't help it, dear boy," said Eric, "because your heart is almost breaking in your breast!" He got up from his chair, and went straight to his friend, putting his arms about his neck and kissing him on the forehead. It was a very sweet and simple act, and it was also one that brimmed with a beautiful, spontaneous fraternity.

Alonzo threw back his head, stared forlornly at his companion, and then flung his head on Eric's broad, virile shoulder. A great, passionate turmoil of tears followed—the tears that men shed, and so tellingly seldom, and that are wrung, when shed at all, from deep-caverned wells of their spirits.

Eric held him in his arms, not speaking a word, only throbbing with the most humane sympathy. But meanwhile his brain worked, and he thought, with the bitterness and irony that certain stern freaks of life will too often wrench from us, whether we are optimists, pessimists, or only a part of that huger throng which neither think nor feel too keenly. "And I brought him here for this! It's too devilishly bad! In a way he was happy enough till he'd seen her again, and now it's all a tumult with him, a madness, a torture. But he'll stay for the ball. He'll stay, just to see her again. And then? God knows with what reckless force he'll fly straight in the face of his present prosperity."

CHAPTER XII.

Eric was right. On the evening of the ball he and Alonzo sought the palace together. They entered the great room a little before ten o'clock.

Here the entire assembled court were waiting, and presently to a golden clash of music from the orchestra on an upper balcony muffled in choice living flowers, the king entered with the princess of Brindisi on his arm. It was a sight of extreme splendor. The enormous room, tapestried in gold and white, and hung with mirrors of huge size that reduplicated the chandeliers in endless glittering vistas, had been profusely adorned with roses, lilies and orchids from the royal hot-houses. The Saltravian nobles all wore their uniforms, and between the many beautiful ladies who were their wives a sumptuous kind of rivalry was to-night manifest, each one wishing, as it would seem, to eclipse the other in the glory of her jewels. But there were two ladies present who outshone them all, and these were the princess herself and her cherished ward, Bianca d'Este. The mother of Clarimond was literally mailed in gems. Her stomach and corselet of mingled rubies and diamonds blazed, as the light caught them, with vivid and luxurious fires. Her hair was oversprinkled with brilliants and her neck and arms were aflame with them. Possessing so much natural presence and carriage, she looked more than merely regal. Her worst foes (and there were two or three of these who now gazed at her with the most amiable demure) must have granted that she was altogether magnificent.

With Bianca d'Este it was quite an opposite affair. She, too, was magnificent, but in a way that became her maidenhood and her youth. A collar of pearls five rows deep encircled her throat, and these, with a cluster at her breast of sapphires, diamonds and other stones, in imitation of a spray of flowers, were the only jewels that she wore. But the pearls had belonged to her ancestress, Mary of Modena, queen of England, and hence were not only super-b but historic besides. As for the matchless bouquet, it was owned by her mother, was famous throughout Europe and worth a handsome fortune in itself. The princess having begged Bianca's mother by letter to permit the girl to wear it on this special occasion, it had been sent from Italy under the guardianship of five trusted men, who now waited in one of the halls of the palace and would receive the glorious bauble from the hands of its wearer the instant that she quitted the ball-room.

Shortly after the entrance of Clarimond and his mother the royal quadrille was danced, and to some conservative watchers, when they beheld the king lead forth Kathleen as his partner, the sight was one of absolute horror. Everybody else in the quadrille was of the blood royal except this upstart young American. Beautiful? Yes, amazingly so. Her beauty, in its perfect plainness of apparel, dimmed the fire of all those necklaces, bracelets and tiaras. With such eyes, with such a heavenly look about the brows, with such a slope of the arm and shoulder, and with that imperial kind of daintiness in her motion, she made every other woman look artificial, got up for the occasion, endimanchee. But what (que diable!) had that to do with the king's behavior? Whether she were hagor houri, why should he make her an excuse for smashing etiquette and then dancing on its debris? The thing was too idiotic. Did he mean to marry her? Was this to be his latest daring deed of unconventionalism?

"Look at him now," whispered a lady of highest rank to a gentleman equally lofty, after a pause had followed the first general dance. "He has those two Americans at his side, Eric Thaxter and M. Lispenard. What a revolution he has wrought in his mother! The princess is talking to them both and smiling her blandest."

"Oh! the poor old princess!" giggled the gentleman. "Was there ever such an overthrow? They say that he gave her her choice the other night after he had sent us all adrift like a pack of school children and treated poor Philibert so awfully. Either she had to pull down her flag and fold it discreetly away, just as she's doing it now, or leave the country inside of twenty-four hours."

"But is it true," asked the lady, "that this American girl was once betrothed to M. Lispenard?"

"You know what happened there on the palace grounds," was the reply. "He saw her and ran off in an agony of embarrassment, followed by his friend."

"Perhaps they had been married and then divorced," said the lady. "I have it on the best of authority that people in America marry there in one province (let us say Venezuela) this year and are divorced with perfect ease the next year in some other province (let us say California)."

"Really? I'm not surprised. Americans are such curious creatures. But she's wonderfully handsome, that girl. Don't you think so?"

"Oh! of course," granted the lady, saying no more, and saying even this much as though it were forced from her. "But I don't like the affected simplicity with which she has gowned herself. Do you?"

"I hadn't thought a bit about her attire," said the gentleman. "Where is she now? Do you know?"

"Talking to a score or so of our best men," returned the lady, a little harshly, "over yonder near the door that leads to the picture galleries. Take me in that direction, will you? I want to have a better look at her. I may be wrong, but it struck me there was a crookedness in one of her eyebrows."

Meanwhile, as the princess of Brindisi, subdued into humility that she had never before dreamed of as possible by her proud spirit, was saying snave if rather void things to Alonzo, the king slipped his arm within that of Eric Thaxter and murmured to him:

"Come with me, my friend, into the conservatory. I have something I must say to you at once."

Clarimond and his companion were presently in the sweet-smelling dusk of a spacious glass pavilion, where you heard the sounds of falling water and caught its flashes, now and then, through covert shadows and leaves and blooms. They found the place quite vacant; as yet, no flushed and fatigued dancers had sought it. Their feet struck with little hollow clangs on the marble pavements of the odoriferous avenues, and thus accentuated, as it were, the exceeding stillness. It was a stillness that Eric waited for his master to break, and at length he did so, in these words:

"I suppose that Lispenard told you just what passed between him and myself."

"Yes, monsieur, he told me."

"Well," said the king, musingly, "then you, Eric, who knew me so well, must have seen that I—betrayed myself."

"Betrayed yourself, monsieur. How?"

"Oh that I showed him I love the woman he loves. Did he not tell you that? No, do not reply. I will not permit you to tell me, even if so inclined. It would be unfair, almost dishonorable, for me to insist on such disclosure."

"An injustice from you, monsieur, would be as impossible as darkness from the sun."

The king suddenly paused. His face was touched with a vague yet revealing light and Eric perceived on it a pallor, a seriousness, which he had before noted but which now seemed intensified.

"If I wanted a counselor!" he broke forth, and then he laid a hand on Eric's shoulder. "But in this case I ought not to want one. I should be sufficient unto myself. Only, my friend, you would be the wisest and best of counselors; that is all I mean," and he withdrew his hand, giving a long and deep sigh.

"From what I know of you, monsieur," said Eric, "you have always been sufficient unto yourself."

"Not always, not always—but you are very kind."

"I am simply sincere, monsieur. You were born to be a great ruler of men. I have felt it for months past. The more that I see of you, the more strongly you appeal to me as a power for good. The world would have had no need for republics if all kings had been as perfect as yourself."

"Thanks, my Eric—thanks."

To the surprise of his hearer these words were very brokenly uttered. Clarimond remained immovable, so that the revealing light still clothed his face. And now Eric saw that his vivid eyes were shining as though with half-repressed tears. Only a slight silence elapsed before he spoke again: "Then if I am indeed worthy to be a great ruler, as you say, I should know, Eric, how to rule myself."

"Pardon me, monsieur, but I do not understand."

The king's glance turned from right to left as though in the dimness he suspected either some newcomer or some ambushed listener. With great abruptness he snatched Eric's hands in either of his own and held them strainingly while his moist-beaming eyes plunged their look into the obscured face of his watcher.

"Eric, I have never loved living woman until now, and I could have her for my wife if I choose!"

"For you—queen," faltered Eric, scarcely knowing why he spoke the words.

"Queen! queen!" Clarimond flung back, impatiently. "Dame! you are like everybody else. How otherwise could I have her for my wife, man? Have I not told you that those morganatic marriages are loathsome to me? But there it is! Instantly that 'royalty' idea occurs to you! Well, you are not to blame. It occurs to everybody, no doubt, the moment my marriage is thought of. It occurred to her. She accepted me. Are you smiling because she accepted me? Are you saying to yourself that she merely did what thousands of women would in like circumstances do? But you are wrong if you reason so, for she was sublimely frank. She made it clear to me that she still loved Lispenard, and if she brought me a virgin body she could not bring me a virgin heart!"

"Yes," he went on, "I have thought of asking you to dwell there with me—as my wife."

At once she turned and met his gaze with great directness.

"You—have had this thought, monsieur?"

"It is my wish—my request—my entreaty."

"Your wife?" she repeated; and he saw that she was deeply perturbed.

"My queen," he continued. "I want you to share my throne and crown with me, such as they are. I have never asked any woman to do this until now. I have never asked any woman, for the simplest of reasons. Need I tell you that reason?" He reached his hand forward and took her hand, lifting it to his lips. It had grown cold—piteously cold, and the kisses that he gave it were somehow bestowed with the compassionate tenderness which implied that he sought to reawaken its natural warmth.

"Your queen—your queen," she said, and withdrew her hand, not rudely, and yet with firmness. The color came back to her cheeks. As he watched her face it seemed like a tea-rose in some delightful process of revivification, faint yet distinct.

"That is what I said," he answered, "and that is what I mean."

He watched her struggle with her agitation. It seemed to him cruel that he should do this, and yet it gave him a curious pleasure just as if she were some oddly beautiful bird that revealed some touch of iridescent splendor beneath its wings every time they were fluttered.

But at length Kathleen, so to speak, fluttered her wings once more. "Monsieur," she said, with a kind of pathetic tranquility, "there is—your mother."

"My mother will be no obstacle. I can and will prevent her from being one."

She hesitated a moment. "Then there are—there are—(how shall I put it) your traditions."

"I've trampled on a good many of them, as it is. Come now, mademoiselle," he pursued, with a gruffness that would have frightened her if it had not ended in a smile. "You're going to throw me over—you're going to reject me—to (what is the right phrase?) send me about my business!"

"No, no!" she exclaimed. Immediately then she rose and stretched out her right hand. "I will be your wife," she said, "and I thank you for the great honor you do me."

He also rose at this and wrapped her with his embrace. But something in her lips, her eyes, her look (he could not for his life have told just what) made him put her away at arm's length, intently scan her features and then recoil several steps, touching her no longer.

"Your heart isn't in it!" he exclaimed. "You're giving yourself to me only because of your mother!"

Her eyes dilated frightfully. "Oh, no; don't think that!" she cried.

"But I do think it—I must! Why not, when I read it, when I see it? Your heart is elsewhere, and you're willing to let me possess it if I will—the void that marks where it once beat. Am I not right? Answer me, Kathleen; am I not right?"

She burst into a passion of tears. "Yes! yes! I dare not lie to you. If you were not so good and fine I—I might lie, but you tear the truth from me! You saw my pain, my undying memory; you taxed me with them; you insisted that they haunted me, and I—I confessed that you were not wrong. But I am willing to be your wife—willing. Oh, hear me, monsieur! I am not absurd to phrase it like that. Only it is best to be truthful. You, who are so sincere yourself, will understand, will pardon, if I had never known him it would have been so different. I could have loved you then with all my soul! I can imagine some good woman loving you that way. Perhaps it will come to me in time. You spoke of my mother. No, it is not she—not wholly she. Of course she wants such a marriage; what mother would not? I myself am proud to be your wife; only there is that other love which will not die! Am I not wiser to let you know this? You can't blame me. I see now in your eyes that you do not blame me. I've never asked you if he has spoken of me; I've never wanted to know. It's quite over between us. There, that is all. I go to you without a guilty conscience. You know me just as I am. I've tried to crush it but it would not be crushed. Suppose I had never said a word about it and let you take me with a falsehood in my soul. Many a woman would have done that. Almost every other woman in the world would have done it. But I'm not vaunting my virtues. I'm simply making a clean breast of things—don't you see? You do see; you must! There—I dare say I'll be a worthy wife to you, monsieur, and I'm certain that I'll be a very faithful and devoted one. As for a queen (and she laughed wildly through her tears), I may fall at that. It is such an un-dreamed-of part for me to play! But I'll try. I'll try hard, strengthened by your help!"

The tears were glistening on her cheeks as she put forth both hands to him. He took them, kissing them both, and then, still holding them, he said:

"Kathleen, you are a very noble and brave girl. I thank you sincerely for what you have told me. One easily multiplies words. You will understand just how grateful I feel. The evening of the ball is so near that a press of affairs may keep me from seeing you till then. But (as I said to you yesterday, if I mistake not), my carriage will be here at the hour named to conduct your mother and yourself to the palace. Au revoir. Let everything rest undetermined, please, until we meet again."

She felt his lips touch her hand, and then in the twinkling of an eye, before she could even be sure that he meant to leave her, he had vanished from the room.

She sank into a chair. Her heart was throbbing and her head swam a little as she leaned it backward. In a few more seconds her mother shot into her presence by another door.

"Kathleen!"

"Well, mamma!"

"In substance, yes, Eric, if not in actual phrase. And I, knowing how this man and woman love one another—how the cruel worldliness of a single, hard-grained being has kept them apart—I, whom you have called great, pause, positively pause, before the fulfillment of my duty!"

"Your duty, monsieur?"

The king's eyes darted fire for a second, there in the dusk where he and Eric stood. "I can unite them if I choose, almost by lifting my hand. If I do not choose, I can wed Kathleen. Which course is my duty? She will marry me, half from ambition; half because of her mother—that vicious, manish, insatiable mother!—Which course, I say, is my duty? People talk of Quixotism! Bah! As if I did not know! There was never a meaner word created than that 'Quixotism!' It has been the cloak for countless acts of cowardice, and Cervantes, were he alive to-day, would regret that his genius ever aided in its coining."

Eric dropped his head, and felt his eyes fill with tears. He knew just what great throbs of a noble nature underlay this splendid bluster, this incomparable vehemence.

"Monsieur," he replied, when able to school his voice so that he could speak with self-governance, "you have been very right in saying that you require no counselor. I am Alonzo Lispenard's friend; I know how he has suffered—how he suffers yet! I am your devoted servant, and I realize the noble renunciation it is in your power to make. You yourself have hinted that you are capable of this fine self-effacement. But I did not need your own admission to that effect. I have already known you too long not to grasp the height and breadth of your generosity."

Clarimond turned on his heel like a flash, threw both hands behind him, joining them there, and then moved slowly away.

"I've horribly deceived you," he shot over his shoulder. "I brought you here in the hope that, although an American, you would prove yourself a good courtier, and show me ample cause that I should plight troth with the woman I love."

"Monsieur," replied Eric, following him, "I am far too good a courtier for that! Sincerely as I esteem your character in its entirety, there is one element of it to which I must always pay primal obedience."

"You mean?" questioned the king, as Eric now reached his side again, in the fragrant twilight of their transient retreat.

"Your peerless conscience, your unparalleled sense of right!"

As the festivity progressed, this evening, nearly everyone conceded that there had been nothing at all resembling it in brilliance and buoyancy for many and many a month. Indeed, some of the native guests roundly admitted that Clarimond's reign had yet seen no grand assemblage so delightful; for this season more foreigners than usual had gathered at the hotels, and among these, where position and antecedents made it possible, the royal invitations had been somewhat lavishly spread. As a pleasant result the entertainment sparkled with novelty. At midnight the doors of the banquet-hall were opened, and wine and viands furnished in profuse largeness wrought just the needed result of quickened gaiety and enlivened social zest. The haughtiest Saltravian maids and matrons unbent and became affable to fellow-mortals of different grades or often of different countries from their own. Admiration for Kathleen's beauty waxed with the progress of the entertainment, and after awhile many ladies sought to know her. Mrs. Kennard, who had managed to get herself approached and talked to by some of the most prominent men present, was in an ecstasy of self-gratulation. She had once come face to face with Alonzo, and had managed to make it appear as if she had not intentionally cut him. It was so hard to treat anyone unamiably to-night!

J. M. Ashley, Sr., has begun suit against the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan Railroad Co., asking judgment against the company in the sum of $332,200 with interest that will bring the total up to almost $400,000. The petition recites in detail the facts that lead up to the filing of the suit. It alleges that in December, 1891, a committee of the directors of the Ann Arbor road was appointed to audit the accounts of J. M. Ashley, who was then president of the road. This committee went through the accounts of Mr. Ashley and found due to him from the company $305,000 on account of unpaid salary, rolling stock purchased by him for the road out of his private account.

CHELSEA HERALD.

Tommy McNamara says he is bound to get rid of his horse some way or other, so last week he traded one for a Bologna sausage.

Nellie C. Lowry and Minnie C. Allyn, of this village, received third grade certificates at the recent examination held in Ann Arbor.

YPSILANTI COMMERCIAL.

Chas. Gauntlett of Milan is training two promising young trotters, Coraline and Noraline, on the Dundee track.

Mr. John F. Lawrence is not a candidate for the nomination to congress. This is settled beyond controversy. Mr. Lawrence also authorizes The Democrat to state that he is in favor of the nomination of Mr. Sawyer for congress.

SALINE OBSERVER.

G. Charles Gross died at his home on Henry street Tuesday forenoon. For some time past Charles has not been feeling well, and was, in fact, not considered dangerous until the morning of his death. Mr. Gross was born in Bridgewater township May 2nd, 1852. The most of his life has been spent in and around Saline, several years having been spent in the Foundry and Machine shop, with his brother George.

MANCHESTER ENTERPRISE.

Saline has concluded to follow our plan and pay one-half the expense of building cement walks.

Jaynes' lumber office was broken into last Saturday night and a number of articles taken. On Sunday a young fellow was seen inside the building. There has been but little of this kind of work done here during the past few years and we hope that speedy arrests will follow all cases of this character.

THE YPSILANTIANS.

Mrs. J. Willard Babbit spent last week at the Soldiers Home in Grand Rapids, looking after the finishing of the women's annex. There are 17 women being cared for at the House already.

Wednesday of last week the fire department committee purchased 1,000 feet of hose, 12 coats, 2 Waldron nozzles and a set of extra couplings from the Chicago Fire Hose Company.

CHELSEA STANDARD.

Miss Kate Gorman leaves the first of next week for New York city to attend the graduation exercises of the Cooper Institute, from which her sister, Miss Alice, will graduate.

There has been considerable excitement here the past week over the would-be-postmaster. If reports can be relied upon, Simeon Laird will secure the plum, as it is rumored that Congressman Gorman has said that he will recommend him.

MILAN LEADER.

Commencement June 12. There will be three graduates—Willie Craig, Eva Ward and Jessie Loveland. A new departure will be entered upon this year. The graduating class will get up their own entertainment, bearing all the expenses, and will charge an admission of ten cents. Fine music has been engaged, and the program promises to be more than usually entertaining.

Married, at noon on Wednesday, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Sarah Ives, Stony Creek, by the Rev. H. M. Morey, of Ypsilanti, Mr. Albert C. Crawford, of Milford, and Miss Kate Jackson. There was a merry gathering of relatives and friends to witness the ceremony, after which all sat down to a sumptuous dinner. The happy pair left later amid a shower of rice and old shoes for a short trip ere settling down for life. Their home will be at Milford.

EMPLOYED STRATEGY.

Didn't Dare to Discharge Mary Ann, But Laid a Deep Plot.

The young husband was somewhat surprised when his wife came into the office. She opened the conversation at once.

"I want enough money to go out of town for a few days," she said, "and you will have to take your meals down town for a few days."

"Why, what does this mean?"

"It means just this. I got a messenger boy to come to the house for Mary Ann to tell her that she was wanted at her aunt's, and as soon as she got around the corner I shut up the house and locked it and ran away. When she comes back she won't find any one there. We don't owe her anything, so it's all right, and I wanted to discharge her, but you know I never would dare to tell her to go, and I knew you wouldn't dare, and don't you think your little wife knows pretty well how to manage? Say yes, now, or I'll break down and cry right here in the office."

Boston's Cure for Truancy.

School principals in Boston are not much troubled by truancy in their schools. Every morning, directly after the opening of the school, every principal makes out a list of the names and addresses of the pupils who are absent without known cause and hands it to the policeman on the beat. It then becomes the business of this functionary to call at the addresses given and ascertain the cause of absence. By this system unexcused absences are very few. No youngster is going to dodge his arithmetic and geography when he knows perfectly well that before dinner time a big policeman will call at his father's house to know why he is not at school.

The Fabulous Cockatrice.

The cockatrice, like the basilisk was one of the fabled monsters of antiquity. Its very look was fatal to life. It breathed fire, and on that account could only live in desert regions, where there was no danger of its fiery exhalations consuming vegetation. Travelers who were forced to cross a desert formerly took with them a cock, whose crowing, it was believed, would kill all the cockatrices in hearing.

WELCOME ONLY WHEN INVITED.

A Chinese Diplomat's Method of Avoiding Repetition of a Disgraceful Scene.

It does not take foreigners in Washington long to thoroughly adapt themselves to the social customs of the city. This is especially true of the Chinese, whose spirit of imitateness is proverbial the world over. All Washingtonians and many outsiders will remember the famous ball at the Chinese legation some six or seven years ago when the list of guests was so swelled by the addition of the uninvited that the place was crowded to suffocation, and the mob—for, according to Kate Field's Washington, it was hardly anything else—so abused the hospitality of these orientals as to induce them from that time to close the legation except for business purposes. The fact that the majority of entertainments given during the season are written up in the local papers, with a list of the guests present, appears to have been duly noted by the attaches of the Chinese legation, who desire to avail themselves of this means to prevent the public from appearing uninvited at legation functions. A society reporter of one of the leading local papers was formally requested by an attaché about to give an evening party to publish in advance the names of those to whom invitations had really been issued, in order that only such should attend the entertainment. Finding that such a course of procedure was entirely out of the question, the cautious Chinaman compromised upon receiving a promise to insert a notice that cards of invitation would be required of guests upon their arrival at the legation, where the man selected for duty knew by sight every one of the guests bidden to the reception.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary relief. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power, with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient. The druggists all sell it.

Master of Balliol College.

A few years ago, Professor Jowett was one of those who extended an invitation to the extension students to meet at Oxford. Desiring to find lodgings for some of them at Balliol college, he suggested to the dons that it would be a graceful thing for them to vacate their rooms for a fortnight, and allow him to assign their rooms to his visitors. The dons demurred. The master, however, had sole control of the chapel services and the buttery. The former he relinquished very considerably, and the resources of the latter were reduced to the lowest ebb. This policy had the desired effect, and the dons began to leave town for a holiday. As the last of them disappeared in the direction of the railway station, weighed down with hand-luggage, the master rubbed his hands, and said: "This kind goeth not out but by prayer and fasting."—Argonaut.

WHY DO YOU DO IT?

WHY DO YOU NEGLECT SMALL SICKNESSES AND LET THEM GROW INTO BIG ONES? WHY DON'T YOU CURE YOUR PILES?

Pyramid Pile Cure Will Do It.

Piles are painful, hard to cure, but they can be cured. There is just one remedy that will do it. It is a recent discovery, but it has been on the market long enough to have the endorsement of leading physicians and the recommendation of thousands of cured patients. Pyramid Pile Cure acts quickly and directly. It cures the cause of the trouble. Cures it so that the effect is permanent.

A great many salves and ointments will give relief for a few minutes. That is not what is wanted. Pyramid Pile cure will cure any sort of piles; blind, itching or bleeding. It will cure the lightest or the most aggravated case. The first application will do more good than a dozen boxes of any of the many so-called cures now sold. Read these letters. They are from people who have tried it.

Mr. J. W. Rollins, a gentleman living at Sweet Springs, Mo., writes briefly and to the point regarding his experience with Piles. He says: I consider the Pyramid Pile Cure without an equal. It cured me in less than thirty days. I waited fifteen days or more to be sure the remedy had fully cured me before writing you. I can now say I am cured and I shall recommend the Pyramid Pile Cure at every possible opportunity because it deserves it.

Miss Easter Nunley, of Tracy City, Tenn., writes: The Pyramid Pile Cure has done my sister more good than anything she has ever taken. I have nothing but words of warm commendation for it.

From J. T. Roberts, Mt. Moriah, Mo.: I have used the Pyramid Pile Cure and results have been entirely satisfactory. There can be no question but that it is a certain and lasting cure for piles, at least it has so proven in my case.

If your druggist hasn't Pyramid Pile Cure he will get it for you. It is made by the Pyramid Drug Co., Albion, Mich. The price is one dollar per package.

A Very Delicate Scale.

Wonderful stories have been told concerning the extreme delicacy of the scales used by the mists at Philadelphia and London. That at the first named place is said to tell the exact weight of a hair; the London wonder shows a difference in the weight of a card after a name has been written upon it. The most accurate scale in the world is now being discussed in England. It is so finely balanced that it shows the weight of a candle or taper to be much less after the flame has been extinguished.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists throughout the world.

Hard Times in Georgia.

"What do you think of the times, colonel?" "Hardest I ever saw." "Worse than the war?" "Ten times worse than the war. We all had plenty of money then." "Yes, but you had to pay $60 for a pair of boots then." "Don't care a darn if I did. I had the $60. Now I haven't got 50 cents."—Atlanta Journal.

AFTER THE NEXT SEA FIGHT.

The Victor Liable to Be Embarrassed in Disposing of His Prize.

When one battleship captures another in midocean in the next naval war, what is she to do with her prize, asks the Philadelphia Times. In the old days of wooden walls there was no difficulty in the practice. If the captured ship could float a prize crew was put aboard and all practicable sail was made for the nearest friendly port, while the victor continued on her cruise; or if both ships were badly injured, both put into harbor. But nowadays the position of a prize crew would be far from commanding. The captured vessel could not be managed by her captors—she would have to remain in charge of her own engineers and her own firemen, and the victors, instead of sailing the ship, while the prisoners remained under hatches, would be reduced to the status of a police. And thus would the opportunity for a recapture be greatly increased. For, while in the old days the entire captured crew were disarmed and imprisoned, the non-combatants of a captured battleship would have to be given their liberty, practically speaking, and much might be accomplished by a couple of second engineers with their wits about them. For instance, would it be so difficult to superinduce a slight explosion in the port engine and under cover of the confusion to liberate the prisoners? Again, the armament of a modern battleship would complicate affairs. Relatively to the power of a machine gun the prize crew would be greatly disproportionate in strength, since the chances for the prisoners to obtain control of one of these engines would be increased by the freedom of their noncombatants. Altogether the number of men required for police duty on a captive battleship would be very large, and a victorious ship would have to reduce the efficiency of her own gun crews to an unpleasant extent. It would probably be found necessary in almost every case for the captor to stand by and accompany her prize home across the Atlantic or the Pacific, as the case might be. And this would be a double incentive to the conquered to effect a swift and noiseless recapture of their own ship, for if they did so one unexpected torpedo or discharge of a 12-inch gun, carefully aimed, might very easily turn the fortune of war entirely in their favor. In other words, and not to define too closely upon the possibilities of the case, the capture of a battleship in an ocean duel in the next naval war will by no means ease the mind of the successful commander. He will have a leviathan on his hands that it will tax all his energy and cleverness to bring safely into port, and there may be moments when he will be tempted to lock up every mother's son of her engineers and firemen in the military tops and run her home under jury sails.

Too Much Diluted. Never was there a greater enthusiast over his own countrymen than Sir David Wilkie, the celebrated Scotch artist. One amusing story connected with this trait of his character was told by Henry Thomson. "Thomson! Ye maun be a Scotch Thomson, I'll warrant," said Sir David, as they sat together for the first time at an academy dinner. "I am of that ilk," was the reply; "my father was a Scotchman." "Was he, really?" exclaimed Wilkie, grasping the other's hand warmly. "And my mother was Irish." "Aye, aye, was she, really?" and the hand relaxed its grasp a trifle. "And I was born in England." Upon that, Wilkie dropped his new friend's hand, and almost turned his back upon him. His disappointment was so evident that Thomson actually felt regret instead of indignation at this treatment, and later on endeavored to counteract the effect of his unfortunate nationality. But from that day Wilkie had no further desire to talk to him, and showed it plainly.—Argonaut.

An Erroneous Impression. Eloping Lover—We can go no further! Your father will overtake us in a moment—but do not fear; I will face him—he shall never separate us! Her father—I just came after you to bring a few things that Melinda forgot to take—and when you get settled her mother and I would like to come and spend the fall and winter with you.—Puck.

A Boarding-House Sain. Landlady—Poor Mr. Lightweight died last week, and if anyone ever deserved to go to heaven he did. Mr. Heavygaul, who is slightly in arrears—Why? Landlady, weeping—He always paid his board in advance, never complained if his bed wasn't made up, and, oh, such a delicate appetite as that poor saint had!—Harper's Bazar.

A Popular Amendment. In the gardens of a certain nobleman's country house there were fixed at different spots painted boards with this request: "Please do not pick the flowers without leave." Some wag got a paint brush and added "s" to the last word.—London Tit-Bits.

Catarrh AND COLD IN THE HEAD relieved instantly by one application of Birney's Catarrh Powder

REV. FATHER CLARKE, Sec'y to the Rt. Rev. Bishop of Columbus, Ohio, writes: Gentlemen—I cannot say enough for your Powder. It has cured me of an aggravated attack of catarrh when nothing else could help me. Am delighted with it. All my friends to whom I administered samples are quite enthusiastic over it. The good sisters speak most encouragingly of their use of it in the Hospital under their care. I will do anything to speak a good word for the remedy to help others who are suffering. M. E. FENNERSON, Custodian U. S. Appraiser's Store, Chicago, writes: Gentlemen—Being almost entirely deaf for a number of years past and getting no relief from many so-called cures which I tried, was induced by a friend to try Dr. Birney's Catarrh Powder for my deafness. Have recovered my hearing entirely, so that I can now hear a watch tick plainly, it being held 18 inches from my ear. I look upon it as a positive cure for deafness and have recommended it to many of my friends and can say I have never heard of a case where it has failed to relieve. CHLOROFORM'S EARLY DAYS.

The Curiosity of an Undergraduate in 1851 Was Amply Repaid.

Your notice of the discovery of chloroform in 1847 recalls a curious experience in my Cambridge undergraduate life, says H. C. M. in the London News. One evening in January, 1851, I went into a chemist's shop and ordered some photographic chemicals to be sent to my rooms hard by; I was lodging on the parade. Seeing an ounce bottle of chloroform on the counter, I bought it out of curiosity and took it away with me, leaving the chemicals to follow. In my own rooms, seated in an arm-chair, I put four drops on my handkerchief, and carefully placing the bottle on the table at some distance from me, I sniffed the handkerchief. A pleasant sensation and a singing in my ears was the only result. So shortly afterward, I counted out eight drops and acted as before.

The next thing I remember is finding myself on the floor on my back, my dress undone, my face, etc., dripping with cold water and hearing a voice: "He's coming to, I do believe." Yes, it was so. I came to after having been unconscious two hours and a half. Next day my doctor, when out with the foxhounds, was greeted with "Hulloa, doctor. So you raised a man from the dead last night." "You may well say that," was the reply, "for I had given up all hopes." I was very puzzled to account for the effect of my carefully measured dose. All I could gather from the servant was that she had brought me up a parcel from the chemist, and seeing me asleep, tried to wake me. Then, "finding I was dead," ran down into the shop, calling out: "Mr. M— is dead." Two Trinity men were in the shop. One went on to the 6 p. m. chapel, telling everyone of my sudden death; the other, after a glance at me, kindly called in Dr. C—

Some time afterward the mystery was cleared up. The "slavery" gave warning, and the day she left she made the following confession: "You remember that night you were nearly dead, sir. Well, you know, sir, I thought you had fainted, and I see the bottle on the table and thought it was salts, so I took out the stopper and held it to your nose, but as it didn't do me good I poured a lot of it into my hand and rubbed it all over your nose and mouth." I told the doctor the story. He replied: "Well, my dear fellow, all I can say is this: If ever you have to undergo an operation, you can tell your family doctor that you can take chloroform." Thank God, that necessity has never arisen.

TOO DANGEROUS.

A Duel When One of the Principals Suffers With St. Vitus Dance. Down in my neighborhood, once upon a time, said Congressman John Allen, of Mississippi, recently, there was bad feeling between two lawyers. A challenge was sent and duly acknowledged. The hour was appointed and the two men met in a secluded spot. One of them was a great sufferer from St. Vitus' dance, the other was cool and collected. As they faced each other, the afflicted man began to tremble from head to foot, while his pistol described an arc with varying up and down strokes. His opponent stood firm as a rock, waiting for the signal to fire. Before it came, however, he laid his pistol on the ground, walked into the woods, and cut a limb off a tree, with a fork in the end of it. This he brought back and stuck in the ground in front of his antagonist. Then, turning to the second, he said: "I must request you to ask your principal to rest his pistol in that fork." "What for?" asked his opponent's second. "Well," replied the other, "I have no objection to running the risk of one shot, but I certainly do decline having one bullet make a honeycomb of me. If that man was to shoot while his hand was shaking the way it is now, he would fill me full of holes at the first shot." This was too much for the seconds, and, by mutual agreement, a truce was patched up and no shots were exchanged.

A Romantic Message.

When the petals of the great aural magnolia are touched, however lightly, the result is a brown spot, which develops in a few hours. This fact is taken advantage of by a lover, who pulls a magnolia flower, and on one of its pure white petals writes a motto or message with a hard, sharp-pointed pencil. Then he sends the flower, the young lady puts it in a vase of water and in three or four hours the message written on the leaf becomes visible and remains so.

His Favorite Animals.

Sunday-School Teacher—Do you love animals? Boy—Yes'm. "That's right; I'm glad you do. What animals do you like best?" "Snakes." "Goodness! Why do you like snakes?" "Cause it ain't wicked to kill 'em." —Good News.

A Fifteen Cent Hack.

"Cab fares are pretty high these days," said Dawson. "You can't get a cab for less than a dollar wherever you want to go." "I got a hack for fifteen cents this morning," said Withump. "Where?" "At a Sixth avenue barber shop." —Town Talk.

A HORSE AS WITNESS.

It Was Very Important Evidence in a Tennessee Murder Case.

The horse has been known to act in the capacity of a detective, according to the Boston Herald. Thus, in Shelby county, Tenn., a shocking murder was committed, and the trial of the murderer came off in a district which was divided from one of another jurisdiction by the highway on which the deed was committed. The body was found a few yards from the road, from which it had evidently been dragged, and the doubt arose as to which civil district the murder had been committed in, which gave rise to the probability that the murderer would escape conviction.

Several months passed away before the trial was commenced, when one of the witnesses, mounted on the horse of the deceased, and accompanied by a number of persons, was riding toward the court house. When the horse reached the vicinity of the scene of the murder he began to show symptoms of alarm, which conduct greatly surprised all who witnessed it, for the other horses of the company betrayed no indications of fear. As the party proceeded onward the agitation of the horse increased, and when he reached a point in the road opposite where the body was found his excitement was so great that he became unmanageable altogether. The gentlemen present came to a halt and looked on in perfect astonishment. His flesh quivered, his nostrils dilated, and his eyes glancing into the woods near by, he stood snorting and neighing, a picture of the wildest excitement.

One of the gentlemen present, suspecting the cause of the horse's agitation, suggested that he should have a loose rein, which being granted, the noble animal rushed into the thicket, and coming to a certain tree commenced pawing at its roots. Then making his way farther into the forest, he circled round and returned to the same spot, where he stood trembling with agitation and pawing until he was violently forced away, and whenever afterward he passed that same spot his conduct was invariably the same. No blood had ever been seen upon the road, and no appearance of any unusual struggle had ever been discovered. If the murder took place in the highway, the horse would have known nothing of the trees in the neighboring thicket; if it was committed where the body was found, then the court had no jurisdiction and the murderer would go scot free.

Upon the trial this testimony of the dumb animal against the prisoner proved most startling. His sagacity was proverbial in the neighborhood where he belonged, and his attachment to his master was such that he followed him round like a dog. In unmistakable pantomime he enacted the committal of the murder, pictured the decoy into the wood, the assassin's demand for gold and the death struggle under the tree, and thus the doom of the prisoner was sealed.

In Boston, of Course.

"I'm going to get married," said he as he placed a hand as large as a Dutch cheese upon the counter, "and I want a wedding cake." "It is customary nowadays," said the pretty bakery girl, "to have the materials of the cake harmonize with the calling of the bridegroom. For a musician, now, we have an oat cake; for a man who has no calling and lives upon his friends, the sponge cake; for a newspaper paragrapher, spice cake, and so on. What is your calling, please?" "I'm a puglist!" "Then you'll want a pound cake." —Texas Sittings.

Millions of Egyptian Mummies.

Competent authorities estimate that not less than 400,000,000 of human mummies were made in Egypt from the time of the beginning of the art of embalming until its discontinuance in the seventh century. Herodotus and Diodorus both agree in the statement that there were three grades in the embalming process, the first costing not less than a sum equal to $1,225, the second about one-fifth that amount, and the third cheaper than common earth burial.

A London Joke.

A certain lady of world-wide celebrity is in the habit of having bacarat parties at her house in London. A short time ago three or four intimate men friends of hers dressed themselves as police officers, and having knocked at the door boldly walked up to the room where they knew gambling was going on. Their entrance was the signal for a general stampede, and great was the relief to all when the raid was found to be a joke.

PATENTS FOR INVENTIONS.

Equal with the interest of those having claims against the government is that of INVENTORS, who often lose the benefit of valuable inventions because of the incompetency or inattention of the attorneys employed to obtain their patents. Too much care cannot be exercised in employing competent and reliable solicitors to procure patents, for the value of a patent depends greatly, if not entirely, upon the care and skill of the attorney.

With the view of protecting inventors from worthless or careless attorneys, and of seeing that inventions are well protected by valid patents, we have retained counsel expert in patent practice, and therefore are prepared to Obtain Patents in the United States and all Foreign Countries, Conduct Interferences, Make Special Examinations, Prosecute Rejected Cases, Register Trade-Marks and Copyrights, Render Opinions as to Scope and Validity of Patents, Prosecute and Defend Infringement Suits, Etc., Etc.

If you have an invention on hand send a sketch or photograph thereof, together with a brief description of the important features, and you will be at once advised as to the best course to pursue. Models are seldom necessary. If others are infringing on your rights, or if you are charged with infringement by others, submit the matter to us for a reliable OPINION before acting on the matter.
